

LORENZ IN COURT CHANGES HIS PLEA

Admits He's Guilty and Leaves It to Judges to Determine Degree; State's Witnesses Called Today.

Hartford, April 23.—(AP)—When the trial of Heinrich O. Lorenz for murder opened in Superior Criminal Court this morning, Lorenz changed his plea to guilty, leaving to the three judges the determining of the degree of guilt. Lorenz, who has confessed to the killing of Nils E. Anderson in Wethersfield, March 31, had previously pleaded not guilty to first degree murder.

Acting Public Defender Walfrid Lundborg, when court opened, announced that the defendant wished to change his plea. Judge Newell Jennings asked if Lorenz fully understood the meaning of this action and being informed that the defendant did direct the clerk to receive the change of plea.

Judges Ernest Simpson and Carl Foster are sitting with Judge Jennings.

Story of the Crime.

Anderson had loaned him money, and the motive for the killing, as claimed by the State, is that Anderson was pressing Lorenz for the payment of a $300 loan, and that Lorenz inveigled Anderson to ride with him to Wethersfield, where outside the automobile Lorenz shot him to death, carried the body in the car to a point east of the State Prison and threw it on the river bank. There the body was found and nearby in the river the gun was recovered after Lorenz's arrest in Windsor, Ontario, and his return to Hartford, where he re-enacted the tragedy for the detectives.

The First Witness.

The first witness was Civil Engineer John T. Henderson, who testified to a map of the route Lorenz is alleged to have driven over on March 31 from Anderson's boarding place on Rowe avenue to Wethersfield.

John T. Stuart from the First National Bank was a depositor in the bank from March 24, 1930 to April 1. There had been cash of $100 and a $150 insurance check for collection. It was drawn on the State Trust Life Insurance company to Anderson and was endorsed by Anderson and Lorenz. A $40 check to Mrs. Linquist April 3 closed the account.

Mr. Alcorn asked about a check for $60 on April 1. Mr. Lundborg objected and Mr. Alcorn said it was to show premeditation and preparation for flight by the accused.

Mr. Lundborg contended preparation for flight after the homicide was not material to the issue, if it was preparation before, he could see no valid objection to it. Judge Jennings gave the opinion that the testimony was prematurely offered.

In the examination of August Benson of 434 North Main, West Hartford, Mr. Alcorn asked about his calling on Lorenz at Cobb's Picture store on Church street, April 1. Mr. Lundborg promptly objected and the proceedings halted.

Short motions by counsel for the accused to admission of testimony regarding Lorenz's actions after the homicide because the only question is one of premeditation, to make a ruling on the testimony offered by State's Attorney Alcorn. A ten minute recess resulted in an announcement that the court would make no blanket ruling but would rule on the offerings of testimony as made.

Judge Jennings said in substance that the court rules if acts subsequent to the commission of the offense are part of a plan conceived before the commission of the offense, they would be admissible as evidence but in the absence of such proof it would be inadmissible.

Court's Ruling.

"If the accused hung around awhile after the crime, got scared and ran away, we are not interested," Judge Jennings said, "but if he planned before what he would do afterward then we are interested."

Mr. Alcorn's question was ruled out, and he then suggested a recess as the ruling may eliminate certain witnesses and shorten the trial.

Judge Jennings said the court was afraid its ruling would interfere with the State's presentation of the case and the court would be glad to grant a recess to the State's Attorney to rearrange his order of proof. The court recessed the second time.

Mr. Stuart on cross examination said Lorenz had a bank balance of $210 on March 31.

Benson's Testimony.

August W. Benson of West Hartford in his direct examination up to the time of the important ruling on testimony by the court, had testified in brief that he had a wife Laura and a daughter, Elizabeth, 18. He had known Anderson, brother of Mrs. Benson, for nine years. He had known Lorenz two years, and lately Lorenz had been a frequent caller at the Benson home. Benson said he saw Lorenz on the night of March 31. He came to the house shortly before ten o'clock and brought some snapshots. Then came the question about the next day at Cobb's picture store and

BOTH HOUSES PLAN ATTACK ON SEA PACT

With Agreement Hardly 24 Hours Old Senate and House to Investigate Various Phases of the Treaty.

Washington, April 23.—(AP)—A two-edged attack on the London naval treaty was forecast today in Congress.

With the new international agreement scarcely twenty-four hours old, the chairman of both Senate and House naval committees made plans to investigate.

Falling in with the proposal of Chairman Hale of the Senate committee, that the naval experts who were in London with the delegation be questioned, Chairman Britten of the House committee announced that his committee also would ask Navy officers why some features of American naval policy were "abandoned" in London.

Borah is Curious.

Chairman Borah of the Senate foreign relations committee likewise wants to ask some questions, although he has indicated that he probably will favor ratification.

Britten said he would summon Secretary Adams of the Navy Department, one of the American delegates, and four admirals who acted as advisers at London.

He would like to hear, he said, why the United States agreed to build fewer 8-inch cruisers and more 6-inch cruisers than had been favored by the Navy General Board. His hearings, he said, would take place in May, shortly after the return of the delegation.

While the Senate alone is required to ratify treaties, the House has an equal part in the shaping of Navy building plans, and Britten hopes that whatever is developed in the House hearings will have its effect at the other end of the capitol.

WINTER RETURNS FOR BRIEF VISIT

Freezing Temperature and Snow Flurries Here; Cold
In Many Eastern States.

Freezing temperature and occasional snow flurries made Manchester people realize last night that spring hasn't yet succeeded in completely displacing Old Man Winter. The mercury dropped to four or five degrees below the freezing point and a brisk wind made 26 below seem a conservative figure. No damage to peach or other crops were reported here.

IN WENTED.

Winded, indeed, (AP)—Spring did a nose dive during last night and landed in the lap of winter for there was snow in some places in the Litchfield hills at sun-up and flakes fell intermittently during the morning. The thermometer dropped to about 24 as a low mark. Some motorists who left their machines out had frozen radiators. While the snap was unusual for this date no damage was done to trees as buds are backward.

IN THE EAST.

New York, April 23.—(AP)—Freezing temperatures and snow falls in various quantities visited the North Atlantic states early this morning, breaking records of fifty years or more.

An area of high pressure in the Canadian northwest which extends to the Gulf coast and reaches the Atlantic ocean in lessening intensity was said by Weather Bureau officials to be responsible.

Rochester, with the mercury at 24, experienced the coldest April 23 in the history of the Weather Bureau, the nearest approach being 26 degrees in 1872. Saranac Lake, in the Adirondacks, boasted real winter with four inches of snow and a temperature of 12 degrees above zero.

At the Capital.

Washington residents were startled to see scattering snow flakes about six o'clock as were early risers in New York where the thermometer stood at 30, an all-time record for the date.

Pittsburgh reported a fifty-year weather record broken with a temperature of 27 and milk froze in and around Springfield, Mass., when the mercury dropped to 20.

Prisoners, guards, police, militiamen worked side by side to give first aid to victims of the fire which swept the Ohio State Penitentiary at Columbus, taking 300 lives. This picture shows convicts working in the smoke-filled yard of the prison to revive a fellow inmate who had been rescued from a burning tier of cells. ## FIND ANOTHER PLANET FAR BEYOND NEPTUNE

Canadian Scientists Report

Not the Lowell Object.

Cambridge, Mass., April 23.—(AP)—Possibility of the existence of another hitherto unknown trans-Neptunian planet was announced today by Prof. Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard Observatory, following receipt of a telegram from the Dominion Observatory at Ottawa.

The possible proof of such a planet's existence has been hidden away on photographic plates taken at the Canadian observatory six years ago. "A telegram received from Prof. Stewart of the Dominion Observatory at Ottawa," said Prof. Shapley, "reports an object discovered by Henroteau and Miss Burland, on plates taken in 1924 is suspected to be a trans-Neptunian planet. The following data were included in the communication:

1924 GMT. February 7.666; R. A. 1875.0 6H. 36M. 55s.; Dec. 1875.0 plus 23 42.4.

Not Present Planet.

"This is apparently a trans-Neptunian object or at least very far out in the planetary system, but since no magnitude or form of the object has been given by the observers, it is impossible to say whether this is another trans-Neptunian body like Planet X, recently discovered at the Lowell Observatory, or whether it is the nucleus of Taylor, he said, became angry and drew a revolver. In the scuffle that followed, Rinaldo declared he gained possession of Taylor's gun and hid it.

While Rinaldo's story coincides in minute detail with known facts of the case, police were inclined to doubt his confession until a careful check has been made.

U. S. HIGH COURT CITED IN PROBE

Sen. Robinson Accuses Wet Organization With Writing to the Judges.

Washington, April 23.—(AP)—Letters to members of the Supreme Court on prohibition and another discussing the advisability of a test case in an effort to overturn the dry laws were introduced today at the Senate lobby committee's hearing.

Along with these went a charge by Senator Robinson, Republican, Indiana, that the Association against the Prohibition Amendment had "lobbed directly" with members of the highest court.

Robinson made his assertion after the introduction of the letters, two to Justice Stone and one to the late Justice Sanford, written by Thomas W. Phillips, Jr., whose candidacy for the governorship of Pennsylvania has been endorsed by the association.

In a communication to Justice Stone, Phillips said an attorney had recently told him that many questions in connection with the dry laws had never been passed on, and that the lawyer remarked that he wondered "if the Supreme Court as now constituted would have the moral courage to go into this question thoroughly."

Letter to Sanford.

The letter to Justice Sanford assailed the Jones law as "providing excessive fines and cruel punishments."

BANK IN HARTFORD CLOSES ITS DOORS

State Bank Commissioner
Takes Action Against the
P. M. D'Esopo Company.

Hartford, April 23.—(AP)—The P. M. D'Esopo Company private bank at 65 Market street, was closed at 1:30 this afternoon by order of Bank Commissioner Lester S. Shippee in order to protect depositors.

"Frozen assets" largely in real estate holdings, caused the restraining order issued by the state official.

The company with which many residents of the east side have long been depositors, has about $1,100,000 in savings deposits, $30,000 in commercial deposits and about $30,000 in Christmas Club deposits. Among the large real estate holdings of the company which tended to cause the troubled condition are the Palace Theater building on Main street, Northwest Park, a large tract near the Bloomfield fire and a large building on North Main street which remained unoccupied for a long time.

Mr. Shippee's action was taken under Section 4024 of the General Statutes permitting such a course to protect depositors.

Pasquale M. D'Esopo is president and treasurer of the company.

CALL PRISON WARDEN FOR ANOTHER INQUIRY

Convicts Set To Kill Warden, Says Priest

Columbus, O., April 23.—(AP)—The opinion that Warden Preston E. Thomas, of Ohio Penitentiary, would have been killed had he entered the prison yard during the disastrous fire Monday night, was expressed today by the Rev. Father Albert O'Brien, Catholic chaplain.

The penitentiary chaplain, commenting on the fact that the warden ordered his chief deputy to take charge inside, and himself took command outside to prevent any possible movement of prisoners over the walls, said, "if Warden Thomas had stepped inside the walls of the penitentiary during the pandemonium of the fire, he surely would have been killed."

"Those men had no thought of escape. They were thinking of those men perishing in the flames like moths, but they were enraged, angered because of their helplessness; because they were beyond the help of those gathered outside walls."

VOTE ON PARKER TO BE CLOSE ONE

But Republican Leader Tells President That He is Hopeful of Success.

Washington, April 23.—(AP)—President Hoover was informed today by Senator Watson, of Indiana, Republican leader, that a close decision is in prospect in the Senate on the nomination of Judge John J. Parker, of North Carolina, to the Supreme Court.

Confronted with a break in their own ranks, the administration forces in the Senate are relying on sufficient Democratic support for confirmation of Parker.

Late reports from the Democratic side were understood at the Capitol not to be very friendly to Parker, however.

Still Hopeful.

Discussing the Senate situation preparatory to the opening of the Parker debate on Monday, the Republican leader said after leaving the White House that he was still hopeful of confirmation of the nominee.

After a call upon President Hoover, Frank B. Kellogg, former secretary of state, said he was anxious to see Judge Parker confirmed.

He praised the North Carolinian as an able jurist.

DELEGATES' CHEERS UNNERVES LEADER

British Labor Chief Breaks
Down and Weeps at End
Of the Conference.

Birmingham, Eng., April 23.—(AP)—Singing of "Auld Lang Syne," rather than "The Red Flag" or any other Radical song, and the passage of a warm vote of thanks to James Maxton, their leader, marked the concluding meeting today of the Independent Labor Party Conference.

Maxton usually has a biting tone in the heat of a Parliamentary debate. But he broke down when he rose to reply to the vote of thanks. He sank back in his chair, with the tears streaming down his cheeks, while from every side came shouts of "Come on, Jimmy, try it again."

Finally Maxton rose and said: "I have been an emotional and sentimental person. Your very hearty tribute broke down the little bit of nerve I had left. In the last ten or twelve months it has been hard work. I have had to seem to be in antagonism to the cause to which I have devoted a big proportion of my life."

Bitterly Criticized.

"I have had concentrated on me from all quarters the terrible concentration of criticism. I feel that at this conference the I. L. P. has decided our object is the achievement of a Socialist commonwealth and opportunism."

"I think we will all sing 'Auld Lang Syne' rather than 'The Red Flag' or anything else."

And led by the large Scottish delegation the conference sang the old air.

The conference has been meeting for nearly a week and in that time, by passage of numerous resolutions, has made it plain that Labor's Left Wing is decidedly dissatisfied with the moderate politics of the main Labor Party.

The I. L. P., with 30 members in the House of Commons, wants "Socialism in our time." Complete disarmament, allowances for all children, nationalization of the banks and many other Socialistic platforms have been endorsed by the delegates.

Will Be Asked Several Questions by Investigating Board as to Cause of Fire; Death Toll Now 318; Convicts Out of Cells Show Signs of Unrest But Outbreak is Averted—Continue to Identify the Dead; Relatives Arrive in Columbus.

Columbus, O., April 23.—(AP)—A. E. Nice, Columbus, fire chief told the board investigating the Ohio prison fire today that he believed none of the 318 prisoners who died would have been lost had they been released from their cells as soon as the fire was discovered.

Columbus, O., April 23.—(AP)—Warden Preston E. Thomas of Ohio Penitentiary was summoned to appear again this afternoon before the board investigating the tragic fire that took the lives of 318 prisoners in four cell blocks Monday night. Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, heading the inquiry, said the warden would be asked to answer these questions:

"What arrangements were made to take care of any emergency such as that which attended the holocaust?"

"What specific arrangements were made to handle the fire? What equipment was available to fight it? What information he has learned as to the cause of the blaze that sent dense clouds of smoke rolling through six ranges while the victims were locked in their cells?"

The warden testified before the board yesterday but the inquiry has revealed new angles which require explanation from him.

Death Toll Now 318.

The death list was increased to 318 today when one of the hundreds of injured in the prison hospital succumbed this morning. Four others are expected to die momentarily.

Relatives of the dead men assembled in droves at the temporary morgue in the Horticulture building at the State Fair grounds where the fire victims were laid out in caskets of grey, white and pink.

Efforts were being made to identify the men as quickly as possible and to send the bodies to their homes.

Prison routine was back to normal after the fear of an early morning outbreak had been dispelled. At 4 a. m. the convicts in the Idle House and in the dormitories showed alarming signs of unrest.

No Outbreak.

Several thousand men in the Idle House, not in their cells and deaf of orders from the guards, and more than 600 negro convicts quartered in wooden barracks were reported on the verge of making a break for liberty. The armed guards were increased and state troops were set for the emergency. But nothing happened.

One hundred and forty convicts were transferred to other state institutions this morning to relieve badly crowded conditions. As they were taken out of the penitentiary, soldiers stood on guard.

Before the board of inquiry resumed its investigation, as many of the convicts as were able to be on their feet were herded into the fire swept cell blocks of Companies C and H where Monday night they howled for hours while the smoke was rolling about them.

The purpose of this was to aid in the identification of the dead who were so badly disfigured that they could not be identified by sight.

The ill-fated cell blocks are still standing in the shell of the building that houses them. On the door of each is the prison number of the four men who occupied them.

The investigators decided to return the men to the cells temporarily to ascertain the number of the missing. When the check had been made the convicts were promptly removed.

Warden Jeered.

For the first time since the fire and smoke spread, destructive Warden Thomas ventured into the prison yard this morning. With head bowed, he went to the deputies' office and emerged to look upon the chapel building. Hundreds of convicts—cell mates of the men who died—let loose a crescendo of jeers and catcalls at sight of the warden. Thomas glared at them a moment and went on his way while guards silenced the prisoners.

The investigating committee, Attorney General Gilbert Bettman and

BRITISH DIRIGIBLE PLANS OCEAN HOP

To Make Trial Flight Tomorrow; Graf Zeppelin to Visit England on Saturday.

Cardington, Eng., April 23.—(AP)—The giant airship R-100, scheduled to fly to Canada some time in May, will make her sixth trial flight tomorrow. She has been refitted with the latest type engines. The flight will last 10 or 12 hours. There will probably be other trials before she crosses the Atlantic.

HITCHED TO MAST. The R-100 is to be taken out of her shed tonight and attached to the mooring mast. She is not likely to be put in the shed again until the round trip to Canada and back has been accomplished.

Experimentation with wireless transmission of weather maps, being carried out in preparation for the R-100's flight, has been conducted with great success at Cardington and it is expected that during the flight the Cardington weather station, working through the post office wireless station at Rugby, will be able to transmit a complete map of weather conditions over the North Atlantic to the huge ship.

KATHLEEN NORRIS QUILTS AS LEAGUE CANDIDATE

Washington, April 23.—(AP)—Criticism of her stand on disarmament has caused Kathleen Norris, novelist, to withdraw her name as a candidate president of the National League of American Pen Women.

Mrs. Norris, an ardent advocate of peace, said she had thought of the Pen Women only as a literary group "unaffected by politics, religion, race or personal international ideas," and that she had come to realize that it was "not so."

Mrs. Alfred J. Brossaie, former president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, an opponent of the World Court and an advocate of "adequate" national defense, had been mentioned as a candidate for the presidency of the Pen Women, opposing Mrs. Norris.

Mrs. Brossaie at the session today said she was not a candidate but her friends were planning to urge her to accept the office if she should be elected.

An anonymous paper attacking Mrs. Norris' stand on disarmament has been circulated among members of the league.

GIANT FLATFISH

Norwalk, April 23.—(AP)—A flat fish, weighing 263 pounds, 7 feet in length, 4 feet wide and foot in depth, pulled up in front of the First District police station early this morning. It was on its way to the Aquarium in New York city, where it will be stuffed and exhibited. There was no mistaking the fish; a tag appended to it gave its dimensions and type.

The driver of the truck transporting the fish and a seaman, who was accompanying him, vouched for the truth of the huge monster that completely filled the back of the van. They said it had been caught off New London and that its size immediately attracted the attention of the aquarium officials.

12 INSURGENTS KILLED

MAXON TRIAL DELAYED

New York, April 23.—(AP)—James Matthew Maxon, Jr., 21-year-old son of the Episcopal bishop and conductor of Tennessee, was held without bail today on a charge of suspicion of homicide in connection with the death last Friday of David Paynter, 73.

Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan in Homicide Court set the hearing for next Tuesday.

In a short affidavit, Patrolman George Croley charged that the youth struck Paynter several times over the head with his fist and then hit him with a chair in an altercation at the rooming house where they both lived.

Young Maxon's attorney, Martin W. Littleton, moved for the adjournment and, when Assistant District Attorney George M. Carney made no objection, Magistrate Corrigan granted it.

PRISON WARDEN CALLED FOR ANOTHER INQUIRY

his assistants; State Architect T. Ralph Ridge, and E. L. Jenkins, superintendents in the construction of the penitentiary, then visited the cell block to determine the cause of the fire and to fix the nature of the cell construction in their minds before they began to question more witnesses at the second-day session of the committee.

Jenkins told the committee it was reported to him Monday afternoon that electric lights used to illuminate the I and K cell block while under construction had been flickering. The trouble was eliminated at 3 p. m., he said but it was definitely established that there had been difficulty with the wiring.

The committee learned that wood-work used in the construction was soaked with paraffin oil to keep concrete from sticking to the molding forms.

The rafters of the G and H cell blocks were not covered with wooden sheathing.

The outside roof was of slate, as was the roof over the old building in which the new I and K cell blocks were being constructed.

Jenkins said it was planned to re-place the rafters in the sixth tier of the G and H block died of suffocation but that fire as well as smoke had caused the other deaths. Some prisoners were rescued from the fourth and fifth tiers. The north end of the block was charred by fire but the south end had not been swept.

The committee made a list of witnesses they would call to determine whether any shots were fired during the fire. This step was taken after the reported finding of two exploded shell gun shells on the floor of the gutted G and H cell block.

THE WARDEN'S DAUGHTER. Columbus, O., April 23.—(AP)—What goes into the Ohio Penitentiary executive offices, one is impressed by the efficiency and the commanding personality of a good looking young woman, who seems to have much to say within those grim walls. She even dictates, at times to Warden Preston E. Thomas himself.

The young lady is no other than Miss Amanda Thomas, daughter of the warden, who seeks to relieve her father of many of his routine duties. She is the heroine of the disastrous fire of Monday night when 318 convicts met death. She took command of the situation in the office, called for police and soldiers, and directed an Associated Press reporter to send out a general call for doctors, nurses, and hospital supplies, and dole out ammunition to guards.

Remained Cool. She remained cool and calm until the death dealing flames swept toward the Thomas home in the penitentiary structure. Then she got a little excited, and ordered some of the family valuables removed. But the flurry of excitement passed quickly, and Miss Thomas again assumed command.

Now that Amanda has had time to think over the terrible night, she seems dazed by the extent of the tragedy. She told newspaper men that "we're sitting on top of a living volcano here. There have been rumblings right along. We had an understanding with the splinters and the police that they would come quickly if called. When the cry of fire went up Monday night, and the yard was filled with the vicious smoke, I knew the volcano was loose."

Regulars Arrive. Within a short time she had summoned regular Army soldiers, the Ohio National Guard, the police and others.

Amanda is quite a power about the penitentiary. The night Dr. James Howard Snook was executed she issued the passes to newspaper men and photographers. She said her father would not witness the execution because he was not feeling well. Father thought otherwise and started in, but Amanda stopped him and led him back into the residence.

PRISON QUESTIONNAIRE. Washington, April 23.—(AP)—A questionnaire asking wardens of all Federal penal institutions what precautions they have taken to clear the institutions of prisoners in case of fire was sent today to the officials by Sanford Bates, superintendent of Federal prisons.

Calling attention to the disastrous fire at the Ohio State Penitentiary in which 318 prisoners lost their lives, the superintendent asked the wardens if they were holding the drills as prescribed by the prison regulations and urged them to see that every prison attaché knew exactly his position and duties he must perform in case fire broke out. He particularly urged that safeguards be provided for the inmates.

"The Federal prisons are as badly off if not worse, overcrowded than the state prisons," Bates said, discussing his questionnaire. "We want to know that all possible precautions are being taken to safeguard the prisoners in case of fire and that the officers and guards know exactly what they are to do in such an emergency."

Two of the Federal prisons are fire proof, those at Leavenworth, Kansas, and at McNeill Island on the west coast.

BASEBALL VETERAN DIES. Cleveland, April 23.—(AP)—Larry Twitchell, 68, famous old-time baseball player died today. He played with the Detroit National League Club in 1887. With Cleveland in 1888 he set a batting record that stood for many years, by getting a home run, three triples, a double and a single in six times at bat in one game.

Donato A. D'Esopo vice president and Saverio L. D'Esopo secretary, P. M. D'Esopo operating as the P. M. D'Esopo Company, has been a private banker in the city for 28 years, since 1902, when he opened a small bank at 510 Front street, catering to the needs of Italian residents of the district.

The company has about 2,500 accounts and assets of some $2,400,000.

Mr. Shippee indicated this afternoon that he would probably ask for a receiver. The commissioner said that the condition antedated the time when his department took over supervision of private banks and that he had attempted to relieve the situation. Attempts have been made to sell some of the real estate holdings but realty conditions made impossible such sales without the sustaining of big losses.

U. S. HIGH COURT CITED IN PROBE

pressed the opinion that the time would come when it would be wise to bring a suit and take it to the Supreme Court in the hope of getting the 18th Amendment out of the Constitution.

The letter added that to bring such a suit "now would be almost suicide" and advised waiting until there was a change in the personnel of the court.

No Court Policy. Henry H. Curran, president of the association, who was on the witness stand today, said his organization had no policy with regard to the Supreme Court.

Just before adjournment an exchange took place between Senator Robinson and Senator Blaine. Robinson, Wisconsin, over a letter written to Curran by W. P. Smith of Boston.

The letter said Charles H. Igees, identified as a Republican leader in Boston, had suggested a plan of soliciting contributions.

Blaine protested, saying Igees had nothing to do with the lobby investigation.

After a tilt with Robinson during which Blaine accused him of "disrespectful conduct" the reference was ordered deleted from the record with Robinson's approval.

LOBBYING CHARGE

Washington, April 23.—(AP)—A charge that the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment had "lobbied" directly with members of the United States Supreme Court was made today before the Senate lobby committee by Senator Robinson, Republican, Indiana.

Two letters to Justice Stone and one to the late Justice Sanford, written by Thomas W. Phillips Jr., of Pennsylvania, had been placed in the record.

"It's the most annoying thing I ever heard of," Robinson said. "Phillips is a candidate for governor of Pennsylvania and is supported by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment."

The letters to Stone were dated April 2 and 9, 1929. The one to Sanford was dated March 30, 1929.

The letter of April 9 to Stone said in part: "It is indeed unfortunate that so many men in public life especially those who have served for years and years in congress in executive positions, and on the bench, become for the practical purposes out of touch with the busy workaday world."

Tells of Conversation. "In order to give you perhaps a new slant as to how some men are thinking and talking, a few days ago in the course of my conversation with an exceptionally keen young attorney, I ventured to remark that there were very many serious and far reaching constitutional questions relating to the Eighteenth Amendment and enforcement measures that had never been submitted to the Supreme Court."

"His comment took the form of a question 'Do you have any idea that the Supreme Court as now constituted would have the moral courage to go into this question thoroughly?'"

Other Letter. The other letter to Stone said in part: "It seems to me that it was intentional to provide two methods for amending the constitution, one a rather easy one when the purpose is merely to clarify its evident meaning, correct minor defects, or better provide for the proper functioning of the government within defined limits; the other providing for conventions involving a much controversy, extending over a considerable length of time in case fundamental changes are proposed, such as the surrender of individual rights, state rights, or prospective changes in the form of government."

The letter to Sanford assailed the Jones law as providing "excessive fines and cruel punishments."

"Again," it added, "it seems to me that exorbitant bail—bail that places and keeps a man untried (except by a brutally administering the third degree) in jail indefinitely has become quite common."

Follows the Mob. "If I am even partially correct in such surmise or suspicion, then law makers and law administrators have both forgotten the primary use of language, and also that the purpose of government is to protect and that that the real excuse of a constitution is to set up some barrier against the persistent encroachment on tyranny."

The letter added: "I have but little doubt that if the judiciary lies down on its job and follows the mob along the lines of least resistance our form of government is doomed."

Questioned by the committee, Curran said his association had no plan to propose as a substitute to National prohibition. "We'd be in hot water all the time if we did that," he said. Curran said his association was primarily interested in obtaining repeal of the National prohibition law and to leave to the states decision as to prohibition. "There are a hundred million different ideas on how to control the liquor traffic," he said. "No two persons agree."

LOCAL BOYS RESCUE DEER, DOGS' VICTIM

Tow Exhausted Doe Ashore from Middle of Coventry Lake During Week-end.

Charles Tobin, 12, and Harold Hand, 15, both South End boys, accomplished a nice bit of rescue work early last Sunday morning while spending the week-end at the Tobin cottage at Lake Wamunagung in Coventry. The boys awoke early, intending to spend the morning in a circuit of the lake by boat, and upon reaching the porch noticed a full grown deer swimming far out in the middle of the lake.

It was disclosed after examination by the warden that the deer had evidently taken to the water to escape the attacks of dogs, as the animal had been bitten in several places on the hind legs. The deer was allowed to remain in the improvised pen until it had partly recovered from its wounds and was then released in the nearby woods.

NEW TENOR IS ENGAGED BY THE CENTER CHURCH

G. Walter Scharf of Burnside To Succeed Harvey Lidstedt As Choir Member.

Harvey Lidstedt, tenor in the choir of the Center Congregational church for the past three years, has resigned his position, it was learned today from Mrs. Clarence P. Quimby, chairman of the music committee. According to Mrs. Quimby, the entertainment bureau conducted by Mr. Lidstedt requires him to devote most of his time to business affairs and he has decided to tender his resignation.

His successor has already been found in G. Walter Scharf, of 74 Church street, Burnside, who will assume his duties on the first Sunday in May. Mr. Scharf, who is 31 years of age, comes to Manchester with a wealth of experience as a singer to recommend him.

For the past five years he has been a pupil of Wesley Howard of New York. It was on the latter's recommendation that Miss C. Louise Dickerman, organist and choir director of the Center church, sought Mr. Scharf and after hearing his voice he was immediately engaged.

The other members of the choir are Mrs. Viola Dunham, soprano; Miss Emma Trebbe, contralto; and Jarle Johnson, bass.

FIND ANOTHER PLANET FAR BEYOND NEPTUNE

Prof. Shapley said photographic plates made at the Harvard Observatory were being examined for traces of the object reported by the Ottawa observers. Planet X referred to by Prof. Shapley, was announced by him March 13 as having been discovered by the Lowell Observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz. His opinion was that the planet, the ninth of the solar system was beyond Neptune and probably larger than the earth but smaller than Uranus.

Other Objects There. "Well, then that makes it palpable there are other objects of the same kind and type in the skies and the Lowell object was the one first revealed. Several of us at the observatory here have computed about how many of these are to be expected and the number is fairly large. Possibly the Ottawa thing is one of this large number."

"If this should turn out to be the correct guess, for it is nothing more, then the history of these objects will be similar to that of the asteroids, one of which was discovered in 1801 and turned out to be of a very large compass, now numbering about 2,000 and the number is increasing steadily year by year."

IS CALLED A GUESS. New Haven, April 23.—(AP)—Dr. Frank Schlesinger, director of Yale Observatory who had received a telegram from Ottawa imparting information of the finding of an object on photographic plates taken six years ago said today that he could not comment specifically on the basis of that message.

"We know now pretty well what the character of the Lowell object is," said Dr. Schlesinger, "and that it is not the object which causes disturbances in the orbit of Uranus. In other words, while it is not an accidental discovery it has turned out to be a different object to the one actually sought."

The horse jumped to her feet, releasing Martin. Examination revealed that he was suffering from a double fracture of the left leg near the ankle.

GENERAL EDWARDS RAPS PROHIBITION

Tells of His Experiences in the Army When the Canteen Was Eliminated.

Washington, April 23.—(AP)—Major General Clarence Edwards of Boston, today said that the testimony of prohibitionists before the House judiciary committee in the prohibition hearings "indicates their lack of knowledge of what is going on in this country today—it indicates more particularly their failure to realize what is happening to our youth."

Appearing as a rebuttal witness for the wet forces in the hearings on measures to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment, The World War commander of the Twenty-Sixth (Yankee) Division, defended the old army canteen which he instituted 43 years ago to promote temperance among soldiers.

"My object is temperance," he said. "Advisedly I say that my conclusions are that the most temperate thing that exists is 'prohibition.'"

Conditions improved. General Edwards said that as a result of the establishment of canteens where wine and beer were sold to promote temperance among the soldiers and to induce them to abandon saloons and dives outside the military reservations conditions improved. The soldiers, he said, became "a sober, well disciplined and happy crowd" and many became total abstainers.

"About this time," he said, "came the fore-runners of our modern advocates of dry fanaticism—the men and women who demanded the abolition of the Army canteen. With absolutely no knowledge about the excellent results obtained by reasons of the establishment of the canteens, these reformers waged an uncompromising battle in the halls of Congress for the complete elimination of this most beneficial institution."

"The result of this campaign," he continued, "was the enactment of legislation prohibiting absolutely the serving of any beverage of alcoholic content on a military reservation. Let the Army be the dog on which to try this early edition of the Eighteenth Amendment. Examine the results of this reformation."

What Followed. "A reign of intemperance prevailed in every military garrison. Extreme disciplinary methods were resorted to in an effort to gain a state of temperance which Army life and regulation demanded. Punishments were severe and uncompromising, but to our consternation every army post was surrounded by saloons and dives. Men would be away for 20 minutes at intervals between their duties and would return intoxicated and unfit for duty. This was the result throughout the Army wherever troops were stationed."

Asserting that the youth of the land had an "idealism, a patriotism, a spirit of self-sacrifice and a vision in crises far greater than that of their elders," General Edwards said that prohibition had created a crisis which he termed "another call to the colors for liberty and common sense."

MOST OF WOMEN NOT FOR DRY LAW

Washington, April 23.—(AP)—The claims of women dry leaders that more than 12,000,000 women favored prohibition was disputed today in a statement from the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform read by Miss Elizabeth Harris before the House judiciary committee.

The claim was attacked on two grounds, first, the statement said, "the inherent improbability that nearly half the total adult female population of the country was enrolled on one side of this political question," and second, "the immediate and widespread protest from women and clubs who denied the views attributed to them."

A long list of names of women reputed to be members of the National Federation of Women's Clubs who said no poll had been taken on prohibition was read together with extracts from their comments. "It is apparent from these brief extracts," the statement said, "that it has been the settled policy of many clubs formed for a great variety of useful purposes to discuss the prohibition question out of discussion because of the admitted diversities of opinion among members. And in spite of this careful and deliberate report—they have been taken wholesale by certain of their officers to the continuance of a policy abhorrent to many of them."

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

SHAKESPEARE'S BIRTH

On April 23, 1564, William Shakespeare, English poet and dramatist, was born at Stratford-on-Avon, Warwickshire, England.

It is probable that Shakespeare attended a free grammar school at Stratford and later was employed as an attorney's clerk. But this is as theoretical as the story that he was a wild young fellow stealing deer. In 1582 he married Ann Hathaway by whom he had three daughters. Four years later he went to London where he became joint proprietor of the Blackfriars theater. He accumulated money enough in his theatrical enterprises to be able to buy considerable property in Stratford.

Shakespeare wrote and produced most of his plays between the ages of 25 and 40, some or all of them being performed before the royal court. The histories and comedies were written before his 30th birthday and the tragedies before his 40th.

The whole world now recognizes Shakespeare as a creative genius unique in all literature. "In imagination, fancy, knowledge of man, wisdom, humor, pathos, strength, and versatility, in the music of his verse, and the felicity of his language, and also in that mysterious power which fuses all these separate gifts into one, he stands unapproached and apparently unapproachable."

MOST CITIZENS AGAINST DRY LAW

That Is Opinion of Pierre S. Dupont and He Gives His Reasons Why.

Washington, April 23.—(AP)—"Most of the upright and respected citizens are in open revolt against the supposed purpose of the Eighteenth Amendment."

Mr. Du Pont is chairman of the executive committee of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment and appeared as a rebuttal witness on measures to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment.

He said that since the Eighteenth Amendment was enacted, a generation comprising one-third of the voting population had reached a majority and was entitled to a vote on the question of prohibition.

Mr. Du Pont said that the will of the people may be determined after ten years experience with a law that can boast little of their support or approval either before or after its passage.

Workingman's Side. Speaking on the workingman's side of prohibition, the industrialist said "today's liquor bill reached $1,600,000,000 but that this was only two and one-half per cent of the yearly income of the people of the United States."

Whether or not the efficiency of the workingman has been materially changed through prohibition is a question that cannot be definitely settled with this part of the subject.

Mr. Brown said that under the provisions of the Jones-White law; providing for the award of mail contracts to aid the upbuilding of the Merchant Marine, 57 vessels of 600,000 gross tons are to be built at a cost of $225,246,000.

Mr. Brown said that the United States Lines is undertaking to complete by 1935 300,000,000 ships of not less than 45,000 gross tons, each with a speed of not less than 23 knots, for service between New York and Southampton.

"These vessels," said Mr. Brown, "we believe will exceed in speed and size any ships now operating in the transatlantic service."

"Our people must learn to give their patronage to the ships which are subsidized by their own tax dollars," he said.

MERCHANT MARINE IN U. S. GROWING

Washington, April 23.—(AP)—Retainment of the American commercial and maritime independence of a hundred years ago with American ships carrying substantially all of the nation's commerce is expected soon by Postmaster General Brown.

In an address before the Third National Conference on the Merchant Marine, Mr. Brown, who is charged with administration of ocean mail provisions of the Jones-White law, said that within a year he believed American shipyards would all be working at capacity and that replacements and additions made necessary by the country's expanding commerce would bring stability and prosperity to the industry.

Approximately 300 leaders in the merchant marine were in Washington for the conference called by the shipping board with its chairman, T. V. O'Connor, delivering the opening address in which he promised the shippers that with the board no longer operating ships, it would make every effort to cooperate toward a greater Merchant Marine.

He pointed out that 1879 ships had been disposed of by the board for approximately $280,000,000, with 171 of them sent into American foreign trade. Today only 471 vessels remain to be sold, 217 being in active operation.

Mr. Brown said that under the provisions of the Jones-White law; providing for the award of mail contracts to aid the upbuilding of the Merchant Marine, 57 vessels of 600,000 gross tons are to be built at a cost of $225,246,000.

Mr. Brown said that the United States Lines is undertaking to complete by 1935 300,000,000 ships of not less than 45,000 gross tons, each with a speed of not less than 23 knots, for service between New York and Southampton.

The Husband Hunter

© 1930 BY NEA SERVICE INC.

BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

BEGIN HERE TODAY

NATALIE CONVERSE tries to conquer the jealousy which comes her when other women admire her handsome husband, ALAN. When he receives a phone call to the home of BERNADINE LAMONT, a popular night club hostess who has outraged the snug respectability of Westchester aristocrats by purchasing a home among them, Natalie demands that Alan refuse to go and that he give up the brokerage business of "that Lamont woman."

Alan tells her that Bernadine is the widow of a war buddy who had saved his life, and that she is doing the only work she was able to secure in order to support herself and her fatherless boy, Bobby.

After a bitter quarrel in which he taunts her for refusing to bear him children, Alan leaves and Natalie spends a miserable evening trying to fight down her suspicions—never dreaming that even then Alan was listening to a grave-faced doctor tell that Bernadine's recovery is in doubt.

The actress surprises him by requesting that he take her son in the event of her death because she has no relatives to leave him with. Natalie, but her rebuffs silence him. Later, he confides in his secretary, PHILLIPA WEST, who has always been soothingly sympathetic.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER V

Phillipa was a bit surprised. Alan's tone was so far from being casual, that there was no mistaking that he was going to be serious about something. But children! Of course, Phillipa knew he hadn't any. What could he be leading up to? She decided not to commit herself until she knew.

"Do you want to consult an authority on children?" she evaded. "I certainly do," Alan informed her heartily. "I'd like to find out what kind of toys a little shaver four years old would like most."

"Oh," Phillipa said softly, and took her cue. "I think that ought to be easy to decide, Mr. Converse," she added brightly. "Just go to a toy store and pick out the things you like most."

Alan was puzzled. "But you know I've never played with a kid," he explained.

Phillipa's eyes held a soft light for him as she answered. "You'll get the right things just the same," she said gently. "I've noticed that fathers-enjoy the toys as much as the children do."

"Well, if that's the case," Alan replied, not taking her remark unto his sex alone, "we're all big kids. Any of us can buy toys. That's what I want to ask you to do. Go out and select a few for me, please?"

"Oh, but I couldn't," Phillipa objected quickly. "You see, when a woman goes, she always takes the child along. I've seen them in the toy departments at Christmas time and..."

"What were you doing there?" Alan teased.

Phillipa appeared reluctant to answer. Then she said, "Oh, I... I get a few things occasionally for the children next door," she said.

The word generous flashed through Alan's mind—as Phillipa had hoped it would—but he only said: "Then you're a qualified buyer."

Phillipa shook her head. "These are girls," she said. "I'm sure a mother always consults a boy's father about such things," she went on hastily. "Really, you'd better go yourself, Mr. Converse. You'd enjoy it, too, I'm sure you would."

Suddenly Alan rather liked the idea himself. "Suppose we go together?" he suggested. "You know the stores, and I haven't been near a toy department since I was a kid."

Phillipa was delighted. It was just what she was hoping for. "This afternoon?" she proposed.

"We've a lot of work to do this morning," Alan agreed. Let's pitch into it."

He did not think of the shopping expedition again until Phillipa reminded him of it about three o'clock. His pleasant anticipation had been lost in the mountain of business that always was towering over him.

But he became enthusiastic again as soon as he found himself surrounded with wagons and trains, drums and blocks and sleds, and all the things any boy dreams of owning.

He wanted to buy everything in sight. Phillipa induced him to be content with the purchase of a huge woolly camel upon which Bobby (she had dug successfully for the "little shaver's" name) could ride.

"You'll be going to see him again," she remarked, as though there could be no question about it. Alan did not answer. Neither did he insist upon buying more toys at the time.

"It's much nicer to take them something new each visit," Phillipa went on instructively. "Children are dear, aren't they?" she added, with a sigh.

At the moment she was standing before a row of dolls, looking longingly at one that was so cuddly real it seemed about to coo. Alan's glance followed hers.

"Don't think that would do for a boy," he vetoed.

Phillipa laughed. "Silly," she said. "I was just thinking." Her voice trailed away wistfully, and her eyes held a far off, dreamy expression. Absent-mindedly, she took his arm, seemed to cling to him.

Alan thought, as they moved toward the elevator, that Phillipa was sweetly feminine. He wondered if Natalie had ever been in a toy department. For all she knows about kids, she'd probably buy a doll buggy for

That night, sitting with her chin cupped in her hands, Phillipa mused on the situation.

Bobby," he surmised. Then he remembered that he'd yet to tell her about the possibility that Bobby might some day be under his guardianship. The prospect did not appeal to him.

"Hang it all, why didn't I tell her the other morning and have it over with?" he reproached himself, thinking of the morning after he had been called to Bernadine's house. He could see his courage was slipping and still Natalie wasn't told.

Suddenly the thought came to him that it might be asking too much of her. Perhaps any woman... He turned to Phillipa with a very serious expression when they got off the elevator and made their way toward the street door.

"What would you do, Miss West, if you found yourself obliged to adopt a child?" he asked her. Phillipa was startled, but not of her guard.

"I'd rather," she said instantly, "have one of my own."

Now it was Alan who was startled. But he, too, found words quickly.

"I'm sure you would," he agreed unquestioningly; "but just suppose you had to take this other child—suppose it was a solemn duty."

"Then I'd love it, of course," Phillipa declared.

Alan felt grateful to her. She always rolled his clouds away.

But even with the encouragement Phillipa's words had given him, he was not able to bring himself to the point of telling Natalie what he had promised Bernadine. He put it off, from day to day. After all, he told himself, the possible fulfillment of the promise seemed growing more remote each day. Bernadine was steadily improving.

He saw her almost daily. Within two weeks' time he had fallen into the habit of dropping in at her house on his way home, for a few minutes' chat with Bobby.

Usually Bernadine was at home, getting ready to go to the club, seeing to Bobby's supper, telling him a bedtime story, trying to down her wish to stay at home with him.

Alan did not linger with them. Natalie had been rather decent to him lately, and he did not want to disturb the unaccustomed harmony in their home. Her jealousy of Bernadine seemed to have subsided.

No doubt because Alan was with her every evening, and not too suspiciously willing to agree to any arrangements she made for their amusement.

Their period of peace lasted until it came to Phillipa's notice. The secretary opened the door to Alan's private office unexpectedly one day, and saw him kissing his wife. She learned he had just given Natalie a star sapphire ring.

That night, sitting with her chin cupped in her hands, Phillipa mused on the situation.

She concluded that she'd spent too much time on Alan to give him up. Corrected—to give up the ground she'd gained. Natalie had had her chance. She'd invited competition by giving another woman an opening. Now, she decided, it would be fight to the last ditch.

She didn't believe that Natalie had buried the only weapon that could be used against her—her jealousy. Astutely she reasoned that Alan's wife didn't know about the gifts that went to the Lamont home.

While she was wondering what to do about it, and growing more convinced that she must do something soon, a letter came to the office from Bernadine.

She had taken Bobby to Atlantic City—for a vacation, she wrote. But the truth was she wanted to break up Alan's visits to her house, if she could.

Maid's gossip. Nellie brought it to her ears as something other than idle comment. Mrs. Converse's maid said that her mistress was terribly jealous of her husband. Here Nellie repeated a few instances of Nata-pours fragrance into these tobaccos

LONG BEFORE the choice leaves of golden Turkish and velvety brown Domestic tobacco are selected for Camel Cigarettes, nature's own alchemy has worked a miracle in them that no effort of man can hope to duplicate.

Every tiny leaf-cell is irradiated—stored full of goodness by the clean, pure vigor of the sun!

Our share in the making of Camels is to see that all of the fragrance, mildness, mellowness, aroma—in a word all of the natural goodness of these sun-ripened tobaccos is preserved and developed—then to combine them into the smooth, delightful harmony of the famous Camel blend, and manufacture them into cigarettes by the most modern methods known to the industry.

You can taste the natural goodness in every delicious puff of a Camel Cigarette.

THE WOMEN'S AIM

The Literary Digest's prohibition poll has reached a magnitude that now entitles it to very serious consideration as reflecting in a general way the opinion of the country. Granting that numerous factors may combine to create some degree of error, it is highly improbable that the poll fails, in any broad sense, to express the proportionate views of the people of America. It is reasonable to make, without serious doubt of its validity, the deduction that less than a third of the population is satisfied with the existing prohibitory laws. A good many drys simply refuse to believe this. They cannot believe it because they are utterly convinced that a good many more than one-third of the people are both well intentioned and intelligent; and they cannot see how well intentioned and intelligent people can fail to subscribe to the laudable purposes of the prohibitory laws. Perhaps an article in the current number of the North American Review, written by Mrs. Courtlandt Nichols, national secretary of the Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform, may serve to bring enlightenment on this aspect of the situation. The Women's Organization, Mrs. Nichols makes it clear, will fight any tendency to permit the Eighteenth amendment to become an inactive law, thus leaving the country actually wet while it remains legally dry. This because the organization fears that if the amendment is permitted to become a dead regulation by public suffrage, leaving the liquor traffic uncurbed, conditions will be worse than they are today and worse than they were under the old saloon system. "The liquor traffic must be controlled," says Mrs. Nichols, "and if we allow the Eighteenth amendment to go by default and not be changed by lawful method, we shall have the situation we are rapidly approaching today, that of uncontrolled and unrestricted dealing in intoxicants." This, the writer emphasizes, would mean no closing hours, no inspection, unrestrained selling to minors, no license and no penalties for violation. Chaos would surely follow, and it is toward that condition that we are rapidly drifting. It would seem to us to be clear enough that an organization animated by such a determination as this is not one to be accused either of being under the influence of the "liquor interests" or governed, in its opinions, by appetite. It would seem to us that the organization is striving hard and in a practical way to do what the drys hoped to do when they promoted federal prohibition—to keep the liquor traffic from getting out of hand altogether. The Women's Organization is trying to salvage something out of the wreck of prohibition. It is working for good order, good morals, good results from workable control of liquor instead of abandonment of everything that temperance workers used to fight for coupled with a violently tenacious adherence to the empty shell of an unworkable law. It seems passing strange that a group which is seeking to bring about a measure of liquor control many times more effective than we now experience should be challenged as an enemy by other groups which have devoted a life-time to the cause of liquor control. It is true that two-thirds of the people of America are opposed to the Eighteenth amendment or the Volstead law or both; but it probably is just as true that not one-tenth of them would be in favor of the condition which we are certainly fast approaching—that of tacit nullification of the prohibitory laws and so of all laws controlling liquor. The prohibitionists made a fearful gamble when they staked everything on a dry Constitutional amendment and an extremist's enforcement law. They have lost. Why should they throw away their chance to help in salvaging the measure of national respectability that yet remains to be saved?

THAT MOON TRIP

We've been thinking quite a bit about that trip to the moon which Professor Stewart of Princeton says is strictly possible scientifically and pretty sure to come before long, what with the pace of engineering development and the chemical research in fuels that is going on so rapidly. All that is needed, Professor Stewart points out, is a rocket momentum of about 25,000 miles an hour; a matter of a few decades hence at most.

We have made up our mind that we don't want to go. Somebody else can have our seat in the first rocket—and all subsequent ones. We are a little inclined to be nostalgic, anyhow; and the last place we want to be marooned in is the moon. It's too far from home. A nice enough place, perhaps; and probably not crowded. But entirely too distant from Bissell and Main, Manchester, Connecticut, the Earth.

It is completely impossible to harbor any doubts about its being easy enough to get to the moon after listening to or reading one of Professor Stewart's statements. The professor simply doesn't leave any room for doubt. He is one of those folks who when he says a thing's so it has simply got to be so. Not like Professor Irving Fisher at all. You can always tell in one guess, when Fisher says a thing is so, that it isn't so; no need to worry about that. Stewart is just the opposite. He's convincing.

So it isn't any nervousness about going astray and spending the rest of eternity scooting around in an interplanetary area of balanced gravitations that gives us halt. It's the fact that Professor Stewart hasn't said a single word about there being a rocket for a set-up of equipment to shoot the return journey.

What good would an empty rocket be, on the moon? And we suspect that even that very clever engineer of Jules Verne's, who made all sorts of things out of next to nothing on the Mysterious Island, would be at a loss to establish a rocket shooting plant on Luna in the absence of machine shops, chemical labs and even five and ten cent stores. Moreover, the Professor hasn't said that he wants the rocket to come back. All he seems interested in is getting it there. Maybe he intends to go in it himself. Maybe his next door neighbor has a radio loud speaker.

BAD MANNERS PREMIUM

Here is an interesting news item from a Waterbury paper of Monday: Clear skies and cool spring weather lured approximately 10,000 persons to Hamilton park yesterday afternoon to watch 8,000 children participate in the annual egg hunt of the Lions club. Despite the well laid plans of the Lions and police march confusion and disorder prevailed, scores of hoodlums dashing here and there, snatching and forcing their way through groups of smaller children. When the candy eggs, containing prize coupons were thrown into the air there followed breath-taking scrambles. Fortunately the injuries suffered were no more serious than scratches or bruises.

The account of the affair is amplified in the Waterbury paper and carries conviction of utter rowdiness. The trouble quite evidently was not caused by any mad desire on the part of the hoodlums to grab candy eggs for the sake of the eggs. It was the prize coupons known to be hidden somewhere in the lot that did the mischief. One of the prizes was a ten dollar check signed by Governor Trumbull, and there were other items of great attractiveness to the young of a generation greatly given to looking for something for nothing.

Here, then, was a direct appeal to cupidity and the gambling instinct. Obviously, from the consequences, a distinct mistake on the part of the kindly but in this matter misguided folks who got up the affair. Scrambles of any sort are of doubtless merit. When they are deliberately promoted with young children as the participants there is invariably a serious risk of disorder, panic and physical injury—to say nothing to the harm that is done by teaching youngsters to "hog it."

JOBS FOR 35,000

When Lester P. Barlow, president of the New York and New England Motorways corporation, made the flat announcement the other day that, with the needed legislative sanction, his company would have 35,000 men at work on the New York to New Haven tollway before Christmas, he said something important.

We never have pretended to know and don't know any more about this project than has been given out, largely by Mr. Barlow himself. But from the first we have contended that it is not the kind of a proposition to turn down through sheer smartaleckism. Nobody can be more opposed to the indiscriminate and unconsidered granting of the right of eminent domain to private corporations than this newspaper is; and nobody could be more unalterably antagonistic to the entrancement of such an enterprise than this newspaper would be if there were to be any trick or evasion or question of any sort about the provision for recapture by the state. But we have insisted and we still insist that Mr. Barlow and his corporation are entitled to an extremely respectful hearing from the public, the press and the administration of Connecticut. The employment of 35,000 workers, most of them, naturally, of the laboring group, for a matter of two or three years, is alone too big an item to permit to get away through any mistaken skepticism.

Editor's Note: This is the first of two articles by Rodney Dutcher, Washington correspondent for this newspaper and NEA Service, discussing the unemployment situation.

By RODNEY DUTCHER.

Washington, April 23.—Unemployment doubtless has decreased in April. During the first three months of this year the number of jobless persons did nothing but mount. That is the fact shown by the government's own figures, despite persistent optimistic assertions by government officials. Assuming that jobs are becoming more widely available at last it is now possible to look back upon the worst period of idleness and survey both its extent and its implications. Many of the facts are being brought out by the debate on the Wagner employment bills in the Senate.

There is no assurance that anything of permanent importance will be done about unemployment in the near future, despite various proposals. But there has been an increasing national awareness both of the problem and its tendency to more frequent recurrence.

No Preparation for It. The recent employment slump showed that there was no machinery to measure the amount of enforced idleness and no machinery to deal with unemployment itself. It showed that administrations are unwilling to admit the real facts during severe unemployment and are even willing to misrepresent them. It showed that Congress cannot be too busy taking millions from American pockets for tariff grabbers to worry about the matter of several million people being out of work.

Right from the first of this year the administration claimed a gradual decrease in unemployment. But the government's own figures—at least the only ones it has crept right behind and indicated a steady increase. For each week in January an improvement was announced and then the Bureau of Labor Statistics regular monthly survey showed that January unemployment had decreased over December's.

President Hoover and Secretary of Labor Davis differed by a million or so in their public guesses at the number of unemployed—until Davis guessed again to square with his chief. Early in March Mr. Hoover announced that employment had gradually increased since early January—and a week later the hard cold figures and decimal points of the Bureau of Labor Statistics said that employment in February had decreased slightly as compared with January in manufacturing and in some other major groups of industries surveyed.

On through March the ballyhoo chorus continued—conditions were alleged to be easing up and everything was said to be much roser. Well, the combined figures for manufacturing and the seven other major industrial groups for the month of March showed a decrease in employment—meaning an increase in unemployment—of 1 per cent, as compared with February and a decrease in payroll totals of 1.2 per cent. The decrease in employment in manufacturing industries was 0.5 per cent, with an increase of 0.1 per cent in payroll totals.

Those figures covered 36,810 establishments in the eight industries, which had 4,915,407 employees in March—a large cross-section. Employment increased in the quarrying, hotel and canning industries and fell off in coal mining and metal mining, public utilities and wholesale and retail trade.

What the Figures Show. If you wonder how much unemployment there was last March as compared with March in 1929 you might look at the bureau's index figures. These show that for every 100 persons employed in nearly 13,000 manufacturing plants in 1926 there were 89.8 in March, 1930, 90.3 in February and 90.2 in March, 1929. These figures don't come from the Communists; they're from the government's own.

IN NEW YORK

New York, April 23.—The cosmopolitanism of New York breeds a little world of Richard Harding Davis folk.

Adventurers and soldiers of fortune, drift from many lands. A few years back, when Jack's was a famous cafe rendezvous, it was said that more South American revolutions were plotted there than ever were conceived in Latin surroundings.

There are still juntas and gun runners; there are secret agents from a dozen lands watching the movements of the opposition on this island; intrigue is brewed over teacups and airplane fleets are ordered for mysterious errands; chieftains of rum-running fleets dicker for sleek, swift craft and sun-browned rainbow chasers drift in and out of the Explorers' Club.

For years, on the fringe of the lower East Side, there was a store that equipped whispering rebels with armaments—and, so far as I know, an opera bouffe revolution may still be staged with the guns and supplies purchased there.

Only a few months ago an ex-war flyer who had turned soldier of fortune and sold his services into Nicaragua and Mexico wandered into the office and whispered in my ear that he was taking a "gun runner" which then lay at anchor off a busy Manhattan pier. Since he disappeared a few days later, with two planes, it is not unreasonable to suppose that he answered the call of adventure.

In Fifth avenue, at the moment, you'll find a representative of the old Russian regime ensconced in an elegantly fronted building, carrying on an espionage campaign against all those interested in Soviet activities. From time to time he pops up with documentation, secured by devious spy methods, in an effort to reveal the relationship between the Soviet leaders and certain American "red" activities.

A half dozen flyers who figured in the recent Mexican troubles have come by, with whispered admissions of connections in Latin lands or the far ends of Europe.

An army of bogus nobility is forever finding its way into the inner circles of New York during the "who's who" with trickeries reminiscent of the old "gold brick" game. The most recent of such impostors has, only recently, been a guest of the immigration authorities on Ellis Island. Impersonating a couple of Syrian potentates, he is about to be returned to Europe after imposing himself upon many of Hollywood's fairest stars.

Phoney ex-nobles of Russia, Austria and other countries that threw over the various royalties have been commonplace in New York, as in Paris.

The case of a young woman who appeared sincerely to believe that she was the Princess Anastasia, of the czar's family, has been but one incident in the series of fictionally romantic episodes. For several years she has been harbored by some of the richest and most eminently exclusive society folk of the town. Her protectors and champions have been convinced to the point of spending fortunes to prove her case. Whether or not she is deported is of no matter, insofar as the romantic aspects of the case are concerned.

The ousting of Latin revolutions has long been an old Manhattan custom. The hazard involved in financing such intrigues was invariably slight, since most of the plotters appeared well pursued. Some of the swiftest financiers have, at one time or another, been lured by the bright lure of the melodramatic. And fortunes have been tossed into the coffers of the adventurous. We're funny that way!

USE DRIED FRUITS THROUGHOUT THE YEAR. Dried fruits are almost indispensable during the winter and spring months before the fresh fruits can be obtained, but they can also be used to advantage from a health standpoint every day in the year. Dried fruits have these points in their favor. They are allowed to ripen on the tree and attain a full flavor and food for shipping. No poisoning has ever been known to result from using dried fruits even when they are not strictly fresh. Dried fruits have also the advantage of keeping well, they have less acid than fresh fruits, and a greater food value. The dried fruits make wholesome substitutes for children, as they are natural and harmless sweets, offering a natural fruit sugar which is quickly and easily taken up by the body. Much of the fruit starch is slowly transferred into sugar by the ripening process. One should never use the dried which have been prepared with sulphur or other preservatives. The best dried fruit is prepared by dehydration at a low temperature since the vitamins are best retained by this measure. The next best process is the sun dried fruit. Dried fruits contain large quantities of valuable minerals, and all of them have a laxative tendency, especially prunes and figs. Dried fruits may be featured by the housekeeper who is figuring up some low-cost menus. They are in every case much lower than the fancy canned fruits. The price per pound may seem high when you are buying them, but you must remember that as they are cooked they will soak up enough water so that their total bulk is greatly increased and you will serve much more than you buy. In many foods which you buy by weight you pay principally for water, but this is not so true with the dried fruits. Many markets now feature the natural unsulphured fruits, which at one time were difficult to obtain because they do not realize their needs from a health standpoint and insist on the right kind of food, the stores must acquiesce. You can always tell whether or not packed food laws require that the preservatives used be printed on the label. Here are a few ways of preparing dried fruits: (Casseroles of Figs) Thoroughly wash some dried figs and remove the stem ends. Put in a casserole with a small amount of hot water. Add a thin slice of lemon. Cover and bake for one hour. This may be served with cream. Prunes may be used in place of the figs if you desire. If you wish to cook apricots, peaches or the more acid fruits you may add a few dates for sweetening. (Dried Fruit Salad) Any of the dried fruits may be cooked until soft and when cold stuffed with cottage cheese. Serve on lettuce with a dash of whipped cream on top. (Stuffed Prunes) Steam the prunes for about 20 minutes and remove the seeds. Next, grind a half cupful of seeded dates, one-fourth cupful of nut meats, and a teaspoonful of citron peel together and put through the grinder twice. Knead well and stuff the prunes. Dry in a moderate oven. (Stuffed Dates) Wash equal amounts of seeded prunes, figs and seedless raisins and

Questions and Answers (Pleurisy) Question.—B. E. asks: "If 80 per cent of pleurisy is caused from a tubercular infection, what causes the other 20 per cent? What course does the fluid take on leaving the body?" Answer.—Various inflammation of the pleura may produce adhesions. Such adhesions will often form after a prolonged cold where the tubercular bacillus is not found. The excess fluid is eliminated principally through the lymphatic circulation. A fasting cure will encourage the absorption and elimination of these waste fluids. Also, certain physiotherapy treatments with heat and electricity will bring about a more rapid re-absorption. (Skin Disease) Question.—S. L. writes: "Please give me the correct name of this skin disease in English: Lichen Planus Atroposus Keratosis Senilis." Answer: There is no exact English word which describes this skin disease, but in a sentence I will try to explain its meaning. It is a certain kind of skin disorder which is supposed to be caused by certain algae or fungi, and is more common with elderly people who have oily skins. The treatment I suggest is with radiations from an ultra-violet light, and a fasting and dieting regime to produce the proper blood cleansing. (Smoking and Tuberculosis) Question.—M. L. asks: "Does smoking cause tuberculosis?" Answer: Inhaling cigarette smoke may be a contributing cause in producing tuberculosis.

PICKS NOTED DRY AS BOOZE DRINKER

That's Why Swindler is Now In Jail—Tried to Sell Him Fake Liquor.

Rosemont, Pa., April 23.—(AP)—Harry Harris, in jail on charges of fraud and obtaining under false pretenses in connection with the delivery of seven cases of alleged liquor to the home of Alva B. Johnson, possibly does not read newspapers closely.

Had he done so he would have known better than to pick out the former president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works as a purchaser of "a shipment from Holland."

Johnson, an ardent dry and prominent churchman, is now in Europe, but recently his views on prohibition enforcement were set forth in the press under the headline: "Relaxing dry law would shame U. S.," says Alva B. Johnson.

Fake Cable Knowing her employer's view, his secretary, Miss Alice E. Clafin, was surprised when she received a purported cablegram signed by Johnson's name, which read: "Made arrangements for shipment coming through to you from Holland. Handle this matter upon its arrival. Strictly confidential. No more than ten at one hundred fifteen per cent. Will explain on my return."

Miss Clafin found the message to be a fake and turned it over to the Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce, of which Johnson is president, and a trap was set for the sender. Later, when he telephoned that he had seven cases for Mr. Johnson and that the price was $805, Miss Clafin directed that it be delivered to her employer's home.

Police were hidden in the house and after a maid had handed Harris $805 in marked bills he was arrested. The seven cases contained ginger ale.

Harris was held in default of $5,000 at a hearing last night. He said the name was fictitious and refused to give his address.

REDS FEW BUT NOISY IN PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

Manila.—(AP)—Communists are scarce among the Filipinos but are vocal at every opportunity.

In the recent school strike, for example, they tried to take the dispute between students and a teacher who, it was asserted, had insulted the native people, and issued a red manifesto urging the youths to fight imperialism. But when the objectionable instructor was removed, the youngsters went back to their books.

Similar activity is shown whenever there is a labor strike.

The few Filipinos who have gone in for communism have not done very well, chiefly because they have not found an effective means of guarding their cash box. The local reds receive a subsidy, reported as $50 a month, from Moscow and the money is supposed to be used to support the students of communism in Russia.

But when the last time came for selecting a student to go to Moscow, it was found that there were no funds. Moreover, it was further discovered that one of the local leaders had bought an automobile. This led to a split from which the organization has not fully recovered.

WINS SWEDISH TITLE; NOW HOPES FOR JOB

Stockholm.—(AP)—A young coal dealer, long out of work, is waiting hopefully to see what a lot of publicity and a noble title can do toward getting him a job.

Stig Julius Carlsson, who married an artist's model, was brought up in a poor workman's home and always believed himself a real son of the family. Then he accidentally found the parish record of the workman's family and noticed that his name was not among those of the other children.

He learned that he was the son of the late Baron and Baroness Liljencrantz who, for some unknown reason, had given him to the workman to rear.

"But what can an unemployed baron do?" he asked. "I hope this notoriety will help me to get a job."

Rome.—Newspapers which, in the words of a government spokesman, give excessive typographical emphasis and unjust abundance of details to news of airplane accidents are subject to sequestration. The penalty has been imposed on some. All that is permitted is the mere announcement of a crash.

Meissen, Germany.—This city is so poor that even burglars have had pity on it. They pried open the city treasurer's safe and found the equivalent of $1.50. They left it.

Berlin.—Erwin Straus, 19, son of the famous Oscar, began composing when he was nine years old and has written his fourth opera, which is enjoying popularity. "Denk an Mich" (think of me) depicts the adventures of an actress who in order to win a bashful young man gets a job as maid in his home.

WANT RIVER OPENED

Springfield, Mass., April 23.—(AP)—Spurred by word from Washington that on the suggestion of the House rivers and harbors committee the engineer board decided to reopen the question of Connecticut river navigation between Hartford, Conn., and Holyoke, this city, Holyoke and Chicopee were today preparing to send official delegations to the capital to argue for improvement of the river at a hearing tomorrow morning.

In the belief that navigation is vital to the three communities, the delegation was prepared today to sanction any necessary expense by the committee principally in providing draws in bridges, in order to bring about improvements sought. It is felt that the cities attitude was misinterpreted at the recent earlier hearing, which resulted in an adverse report by the engineers and subsequently by the House committee. It is hoped to persuade the committee, barge navigation will meet all needs.

Modern Method Lift Them Out CORNS Callouses Go Too

The safest and real modern way to remove corns, root and all—out to stay is soak them every night for 3 or 4 nights in an invigorating stimulating Radox Footbath.

Then put on modish shoes again, walk and dance with greatest comfort because there's nothing left to ache. No pain, no trouble.

Radox liberates oxygen which softens hard outer layer of corn, each night penetrating further and further thru the pores, carrying the water to actual root of corn so loosening it that it comes right out. Nothing like healthy, free from corn feet to assure happy days! Get a package of Radox at Packard's Pharmacy, or any drugstore.

OPIUM REPLACES WHEAT ON RICH CHINESE FARMS

Shanghai.—(AP)—Extensive cultivation of the poppy plant in rich agricultural sections of China is listed by Chinese authorities as one of the principal reasons for the scarcity of foodstuffs in the country.

For several years, the production of opium in this part of the world has been unusually profitable and despite the continuous anti-drug campaign conducted by the Opium Suppression League of China, poppy growing has increased.

This is especially true in Anhwei Province, Central China, one of the richest producing areas in the country. Here, farmers are turning to growing poppies as a more profitable use of their land.

In most cases, too, the farmers use their best land for opium production, leaving the less fertile fields for rice and wheat. In many instances, the peasants have failed to grow enough grain for their own use, let alone having any for the market.

Not do the farmers longer fear the constant threats of opium suppression. Most of them take it for granted that they will be permitted to continue growing the poppy without interference from the government for the simple reason that the government continues to tax their opium.

The taxes, of course, are high but even so, the farmer has enough left over to make opium worth his while. Still another reason why the farmer prefers to grow poppies is the fact that little labor is required. The crop is planted in the autumn and harvested in the spring.

A few years ago, the farmer would plant his opium and wheat in alternate rows. This was because he feared suppression. He could, if the necessity arose, tear up the poppies and leave the wheat to mature.

This rarely happens, however. On the contrary, the farmers often pulled up the wheat before it had matured in order to give the poppy more room.

Boston, April 23.—(AP)—Police investigation started last winter when more than a score of wealthy families received blackmail letters was climaxed in Superior Court today when Costas Gazalis, 18 year old bridegroom, pleaded guilty to a charge of threatening to extort and was held for sentence.

He was charged with sending a threatening letter to Mrs. Mary Ryerson Frost, wife of Donald McKay Frost, wealthy lawyer, the reputation of whose debutante daughter the youth said he would ruin.

Allan T. Burke, youthful antique dealer and member of a respected family was first arrested and charged with being the author of the alleged extortion plot. He was later released.

HAWKS GREAT PEARL ON SHANGHAI MARKET

Shanghai.—(AP)—A pearl which the would-be vendor claims is of 663 carats weight and the largest gem of its kind in the world, has been offered for sale here. He values it at $1,500,000.

The hawk is Major U. Mohideen, who presents himself as a Singapore jewel dealer. Alleging that he fears kidnapers who might force him to give up the jewel, he lives in seclusion and keeps his treasure in a bank vault.

The major calls the gem "The Pearl of Asia" and claims it was a gift to the Manchu emperor, Ch'ien Lung from the shah of Persia. Ch'ien Lung sat on the Dragon throne in old Peking from 1730 to 1795.

Where Major Mohideen obtained the jewel and upon what he bases his claims to its veracity constitute a secret. He refuses to discuss the subject with any but a prospective purchaser and will not even show the gem to others.

A picture of the treasure shows it to be pear-shaped. It is said that its luster is such that it provides a mirror for one's whole face.

In Baltimore there is a monument to Adam.

PRESIDENT SUSTAINED

Washington, April 23.—(AP)—The House today sustained President Hoover's veto of the bill to coin a silver half dollar to commemorate the Gadsden territory purchase in the southwest.

By a vote of 243 to 96, it rejected a motion to pass the measure over the veto.

Under the Constitution a two-thirds vote would have been necessary to override the President.

Those supporting Mr. Hoover's position constituted a majority of the membership.

Mr. Hoover in vetoing the bill took the view that the coinage of special pieces commemorating historical events should be stopped to prevent confusion to "our monetary system."

CUBS AND YANKEES ARE BEATEN AGAIN

Bill Hallahan Once More Tames Chicago Champs; Red Sox Lose 4 to 3 In 12th Inning.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

The Chicago Cubs may be champions of the National League and a dangerous club but they are just another ball club where Bill Hallahan of St. Louis is concerned. Hallahan, a lefthander, who failed to live up to expectations the Cubs twice this season and may become a permanent fixture if he can continue his pace.

In two games, the Cubs have scored just four runs and seven hits off Hallahan's delivery. Three of the runs came from a homer by Hack Wilson yesterday as the Cards scored an 8 to 3 triumph.

The Cards and the Cubs supplied just half of yesterday's National schedule as New York and Boston were rained out and Pittsburgh and Cincinnati were not scheduled.

In the other game the Phillies beat out the Brooklyn Robins 6 to 5 as Chuck Klein and Barney Friberg each got a homer in their first inning to gain a 3 to 0 lead and Klein added a double and two singles in four times at bat.

The Athletics demonstrated to a New York crowd of 65,000 just how to beat the Yankees. A home run in the 9th by Bing Miller gave the A's a 7 to 6 victory after the teams had started out with a wild slugging spree for three frames that drove Lefty Grove from the mound and nearly did the same to Roy Sherid, young Yankee hurler.

The Chicago White Sox moved into second place standing by defeating the Cleveland Indians 4 to 3 for their third victory in four games. The pitching of Al Thomas turned the trick.

Washington continued its smart playing to nose out the surprising Boston Red Sox 4 to 3 in a 12th inning duel between Charles Ruffing of Boston and three Senator moundsmen.

The St. Louis Browns had to log 13 innings to gain a 5-4 victory over Detroit after the Tigers had scored twice in the ninth to tie the score.

Washington continued its smart playing to nose out the surprising Boston Red Sox 4 to 3 in a 12th inning duel between Charles Ruffing of Boston and three Senator moundsmen.

The St. Louis Browns had to log 13 innings to gain a 5-4 victory over Detroit after the Tigers had scored twice in the ninth to tie the score.

Between fishing and the stock market (the order should be reversed) it is surprising that Bill Brennan finds time to coach the young West Side baseball team and umpire other contests. When it comes to fishing, Bill is like Jack Dwyer, both do a lot of talking but get few fish. We went with Jack once, but never again! Jack says the reason is because he won't take us. But, be that as it may, we have agreed to disagree so far as fishing is concerned.

Sam Prentice says he is picking Bushy Graham to beat Bat Battalino Friday night. He, too, favors a neutral referee.

But neutral officials are not always satisfactory either. Remember the night Sheehan came down from Boston to hand the verdict on a silver platter to Kid Kaplan at the Waterbury ball park after Babe Herman had given the Meriden boys such a beating he was barely able to accept the present?

President Hoover has had installed a library in the White House and already jealous politicians see an effort to put one over the library of Congress.

Yesterday's Stars

Bill Hallahan, Cards—Held Cubs to 5 hits to beat them for second time, 8-3; fans nine men.

Ted Gullic, Browns—Singled to 13th to drive in run that beat Detroit 5-4.

Bing Miller, Athletics—Hit home run in ninth to beat Yanks 7-6.

Buddy Myer, Senators—With a single, drove in run that beat Red Sox 4-3 in 12th.

Barney Friberg, Phila.—Hits sacrifice fly with bases full in 9th to beat Brooklyn 6-5.

In certain parts of France anyone heard singing the Marseilles, French national anthem, is liable to physical injury. This is particularly true of Brittany which is still strongly Royalist.

Manchester High opens its track season tomorrow afternoon with Hartford Public High in the Capitol City. Prospects for a successful season are very good. East Hartford has cancelled its scheduled meet with Manchester, it was announced yesterday by the faculty manager.

Erik Modean, who occasionally contributes to the sports columns, tried his hand at baseball last Saturday down in Glastonbury, it has just come to light. The story of what happened is too good to keep under the hat. It appears that Scribe Modean struck out four times in succession. When questioned on the matter, Erik argued that he also poked out a couple of home runs, but we leave the reader to draw his own conclusions. A brace of homers doesn't usually follow a quartet of breccings.

Elmo Mantell is one of the regular pitchers on the Holy Cross Freshman baseball team this season and may get the assignment to hurl against the Harvard Frosh Saturday. They think quite a lot of Mantell up Worcester way and he may yet achieve fame on the Holy Cross varsity.

Ab Lupien, star slugging left fielder on the Harvard Freshman team last season, is doing first string reserve outfield duty on the varsity team this season. Ben Ticknor, football hero, is patrolling left field and keeping the Manchester boy on the bench. Ab's hitting power may yet land him one of the three berths.

Manchester High which produced both Mantell and Lupien, opens its baseball season with Rockville here this afternoon and takes on Middletown at the West Side Friday afternoon in one of the major games of the season.

Most New York Scribes Pick Battalino To Win

Difference of opinion is the thing that makes horse racing and other sports too for that matter, according to an old saw. And it is true in no sport more than in boxing where there usually is a difference of opinion not only before the bout but after it as well.

That is one reason for the unprecedented interest in the ten-round bout between Bat Battalino, world's featherweight champion, and Bushy Graham, the Utica Ghost, set for Friday night at the Hartford state armory.

In Hartford opinion veers toward Graham despite the fact that Battalino is a home town boy and Jim stands out as the favorite as the odds move on toward the zero hour. But a poll of leading New York boxing writers finds a majority believe that Battalino will be returned the winner. Here is what they say:

Dan Parker, Mirror—Battalino can't lose. Bushy Graham, however, is just the type of fighter Bat needs to meet just now to acquire the championship. He is a champion should have, but which he missed because of his sudden rise. I saw Bushy Graham give Kid Chocolate one of Chocolate's toughest fights at the New York Coliseum a year ago. He's a seasoned campaigner.

Murray Lewin, Mirror—Graham should beat Battalino. He figures to be on form. Bushy has been boxing Skene Collins a year ago. He is very well of late and, in my opinion, template about a boxing lesson. He has too much experience for the champion, but it should be a hot scrap nevertheless.

Don Skene, Tribune—If I were a betting man, a goodly portion of the belief that Battalino will win over Bushy Graham Friday night, I certainly am stringing along the champion, but this fact should not make Graham to acquire the championship a sure thing.

Jim Dawson, Times—Battalino should win over Graham.

Will Wood, Sun—I believe Bat Battalino will win from Bushy Graham. I expect to see Graham get away out front in the early rounds and then let down with Battalino taking command from then out. Bushy's peculiar style will bother Battalino for a while, but Battalino's aggressiveness, punch and ruggedness should enable him to wind handsly.

Jim Jennings, Graphic—I pick Battalino to win over Bushy Graham.

Ned Brown, Morning World—I think Battalino ought surely to beat Bushy Graham now that the champion's hands are O. K. again. I believe that, barring a foul, which I certainly hope doesn't happen, that Battalino will be too aggressive and too strong for Graham. Clarence Cassin, formerly of Waterbury and now of our staff sends regards.

Jack Kofoed, Evening Post—Bushy Graham is about washed up against really high-class opponents in my opinion, but still a dangerous opponent at all times. If Battalino is in shape, he figures to win as he punches too hard for Bushy.

Walter Trumbull, North American Newspaper Alliance—If Bat Battalino beats Graham, it surely will be a feather in his cap. Graham is a great little fighter. He is not generally credited with being a great puncher, but any boy who can floor Chocolate twice and Bud Taylor four times must have a real sock.

All of which proves that sports writers are not unlike the fans themselves—that they look at the same thing from many angles.

And it all simmers down to personal opinion, with Smith picking Graham and his neighbor putting his finger on Bat Battalino, world's champion. Now you make your choice.

Robert J. McConville, 45 years old, of Hawthorne street, was found not guilty of intoxication and breach of the peace by Judge Raymond A. Johnson in Manchester police court this morning due to lack of convincing evidence offered by his wife and daughter.

A complaint came to police headquarters at 1 o'clock this morning that there was a disturbance at the McConville home. The complaint was by the daughter, Sergeant John Crockett investigated and found the husband bleeding freely from a cut on his head.

Sergeant Crockett told the court that when he entered the home, McConville was sprawled out on the kitchen floor, drunk.

GROUP OF ATHLETES SEEKING NEW WORLD RECORDS

These boys seek new laurels in the two big relay events, the University of Pennsylvania and Drake contests. Tolan of Michigan, Shelby of Oklahoma and Bausch of Kansas are entered at Drake.

New Century Record May Come Saturday

Marks Tremble as Stars Close In On Drake and Penn Contests; Spotlight Focused on Doings of Simpson and Leland in Special Dash Events; How the Others Shape Up.

"And the time—nine and four-tenths seconds—equaling the world's on the I. C. 4-A games. Eyes are on Simpson. Much of the interest in Philadelphia centers on a tall, slender fellow from Ohio State University, who has hopes of proving his claim to the title of "world's fastest human."

It will be his third successive triumph at Penn. Leland-Brace-Tolan Duel. Rivalry in the Drake "100" revolves around Cy Leland and Claude Bracey of Rice, rulers of southwest sprint lanes; Eddie Tolan, diminutive negro flyer of Michigan; Cave and Patterson of Illinois; Haas of Minnesota and Ford of Northwest.

NEW HAVEN'S VALUATION. Washington, April 23.—(AP)—Reconsideration of the valuation placed upon the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad by the Interstate Commerce Commission was sought today in a petition filed by the road which contended no account had been taken of its proportionate interest in the Grand Central Terminal at New York and the Boston Terminal.

The 440 and the 80-yard relays at Drake took together again the crack Illinois and Michigan quartets, after spirited duels at Kansas, in which they broke even. Useman, Dickinson, Cave and Patterson bore the Illinois colors to victory in 41 seconds, equaling the world's record set in 1927 by an all-star quartet representing the Newark A. C.

A comparison of winning times, distances and heights for the two programs annually provides a source of argument for weeks following the games. Last year, easterners won the majority of the debates, by reason of better marks in 11 events at Pennsylvania. In the main, the program of events are the same for each set of games. One of the most interesting parts of the Penn Relays, however, is the decathlon, a grueling test in 10 events for the all-around performer.

MUSSOLINI'S DAUGHTER TO BE WED TOMORROW

Rome, April 24.—(AP)—Edda Mussolini, daughter of the premier, and Count Galeazzo Ciano, will be married quietly at St. Joseph's church tomorrow in the presence of the immediate families and only a few close friends.

A reception restricted to a few officials and intimate friends was held today at the premier's summer residence Villa Torlonia and the simplicity of the affair was indicated by wording of the invitations which read: "Benito and Rachele Mussolini at home" without mention of tomorrow's event or any use of titles.

Two Fliers Killed. Warnemuende, Germany, April 23.—(AP)—Captain Jensen, pilot of a Danish Naval plane and Mechanic Bressendorf, were killed last night in the crash of their plane on the Baltic sea. Captain Jensen's body was found today. Danish and German vessels were searching for Bressendorf's body.

SCENT SUICIDE PACT

Worcester, Mass., April 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Mary Montville, 31, and Fabian Spitalonis, 30, a boarder in the Montville home were shot to death with a revolver some time last night.

Police were notified of the slayings by Raymond Montville, husband of the woman early today. He reported that when he reached home from work he found the couple dead in bed together, with a revolver on Mrs. Montville's breast.

Police found blood spots on the kitchen floor. An attempt had been made to scrub out some of them. Spitalonis was married but had been separated from his wife, Antonette for four years. The Spitalonis have two daughters. Mrs. Spitalonis was quoted by police as saying she knew her husband was friendly with Mrs. Montville.

Murder Backstairs

by ANNE AUSTIN

"THE AVEING PARROT"
"THE BLACK PIGEON," ETC.
©1930 by NEA SERVICE INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
When DETECTIVE WICKETT lifts the body of DORIS MATTHEWS, lady maid, from the lake and lays it in the summerhouse he knows that the heavy perfume flask, murder weapon, is the chief clue. He has seen SEYMOUR CROSBY, engaged to CLORINDA BERKELEY, give the flask to MRS. BERKELEY; has watched GIGI BERKELEY madly wasting the perfume by sprinkling it over everyone in the drawing room Friday evening, before WICKETT, the butler formerly employed by MRS. LAMBERT, noted Mrs. Berkeley's social secretary, and by Crosby, took it to Mrs. Berkeley's rooms.

But not until Mrs. Berkeley, DICK BERKELEY, (Doris fiance), SEYMOUR CROSBY, and finally HARVEY JOHNSON, missing valet who robbed the house, have all been suspected in turn, does Dundee hit upon the perfume. Mrs. Berkeley and not Doris was the intended murder victim. There is proof Crosby hoped for his future mother-in-law's early death, and abundant suspicion against GIGI BERKELEY, 14 months before, when PHYLIS, his wife, was killed. Doris was her trusted maid. And Mrs. Berkeley is a perfume addict! Dundee's belief that Crosby had poisoned the perfume is dashed by the chemist's report of no traces of poison in Gigi Berkeley's perfume-scented handkerchief. When Johnson, the valet, is arrested and confesses the robbery but gives no clue, Dundee alibi for the murder, Dundee alibi for the theory of Mrs. Berkeley as the intended victim. He finds Gigi has, in his absence, cleaned all the perfume-sprinkled dinner coats and evening dresses to destroy and to charge her with trying to protect her mother's would-be murderer. Sending a sample of the perfume-soaked earth in the summerhouse to the chemist, Dundee awaits the verdict to know if Mrs. Berkeley was to have been poisoned or not.

either downstairs or upstairs, has either of you noted the odor of perfume about a drain pipe?" The girls looked at each other blankly, then shook their heads decidedly in the negative.

"Would you have noticed such an odor if perfume had been poured down a drain pipe?" Dundee persisted.

"I'm sure I would sir, since there has been so much talk about perfume, on account of poor Doris being hit over the head with a bottle of it," Della answered. "But I didn't smell any perfume at all yesterday or today. That is, in the bedrooms. All of the clothes closets smell of perfume because Miss Gigi sprinkled it on everybody before Doris was hit with the bottle. But I haven't smelled any at all anywhere else. Mrs. Berkeley uses violet bath salts, but she hasn't even used any of them since Doris was killed."

"I don't clean upstairs—just this floor, but I didn't smell any perfume in the lavatory down here," Peggy assured him.

"Will you take particular notice tomorrow morning—both of you—and report to me if there is such an odor from a drain pipe?" Dundee asked, with his friendliest smile, reinforced by a five-dollar bill for each of the girls. "And don't mention to anyone—not even District Attorney Sherwood or Captain Strawn—that we've had this little talk."

"A slim chance, but one that I couldn't afford to overlook," he said to himself as he left the butler's pantry and turned toward the drawing-room.

Five minutes later he accompanied George Berkeley to the library and closed the door.

"Please forgive me, Mr. Berkeley, for calling you away from your bridge game," he began, "but there is a question I must ask you."

"I thought the district attorney had taken over the case," George Berkeley retorted stiffly.

"It is Mr. Sherwood's privilege to investigate any case for his own office, but he cannot ask the police to abandon their own lines of inquiry," Dundee explained courteously. "He paused, groping for words with which to frame a question, so that it would indicate the possession of knowledge which he did not possess at all. "Mr. Berkeley, when you went upstairs about half-past 10 Friday night, to—say good-night to Gigi and possibly console her, did you see or encounter anyone at all on the second floor?"

The multimillionaire fell into the trap. "I saw no one on my way to my daughter's room, but when I was leaving it I saw Wickett emerging from my wife's sitting room."

Dundee concealed his exultation. Not by the flicker of an eyelid must he betray to George Berkeley that he knew until this moment he had known nothing of the visit to Gigi's room. The trap had been laid upon the flimsiest of foundations—merely a long-delayed recollection of the fact that when he—Dundee—had returned to the drawing-room Friday night after his telephone call to Police Headquarters, Berkeley was not in the room and did not return until just before Clorinda Berkeley announced her intention of going up to bed.

"That was when Wickett took the perfume flask to Mrs. Berkeley's room," he said casually.

"I believe so," Mr. Berkeley answered coldly. "Though I did not know at the time what his errand was."

Dundee tried another shot in the dark. "When you went into your wife's rooms yourself, did you notice the perfume flask?"

"I went no further than the sitting-room," Berkeley answered. "Again the trap had sprung. "I was there only five or six minutes, possibly less time."

"What was your errand to your wife's sitting-room, Mr. Berkeley?" Dundee asked quietly.

His host's stern, handsome face flushed darkly, but he answered: "I was using my wife's telephone. I wanted to make a call and her telephone was the nearest. I tried to reach my lawyer, but there was no answer."

For the third time, but very confidently now, Bonnie Dundee pretended knowledge he did not possess. "That call to your lawyer was a direct result of your few minutes' talk with Gigi, was it not, Mr. Berkeley?"

The millionaire shrugged and the flush on his face deepened. "I am not surprised that Gigi has tattled. She has a very loose tongue. But I can assure you that I was not following her hysterical suggestion. I was not about to consult my lawyer in his professional capacity, but as a friend. He has a daughter of Gigi's age, whom he has enrolled in a junior college in the east. After my talk with Gigi, I suddenly made up my mind to send her to this college, instead of permitting her to remain at home this winter as her mother had planned. Mrs. Berkeley's idea was that Gigi should be groomed for society by Mrs. Lambert. I wished to ask my lawyer's opinion of the college, for a girl of Gigi's temperament."

"I see," Dundee nodded. "Thank you very much, Mr. Berkeley. You saw no one when you left Mrs. Berkeley's sitting room?"

"No one at all. It is likely that Doris went to Mrs. Berkeley's rooms soon after I left, to lay out my wife's things for the night, but I did not see her in the hall as I was returning to the drawing-room."

"One thing more, Mr. Berkeley. I understand that you had agreed to finance a beauty parlor venture for Doris."

"That is quite correct," the millionaire agreed coldly. "In fact I began a letter to my lawyer Friday before dinner, but was too upset over another matter to finish it. When Doris told me of her engagement to Arnold, she also confided her ambition to open a beauty shop. I reminded her that capital would be required. I admired the girl for very evident good qualities and particularly for her attitude toward my son. I determined to help her financially, on a strictly business basis, of course, I am a silent partner in a number of small ventures in Hamilton, all of them handled through my lawyer and I believe I should not lose money if I put it into a beauty shop. I might add that Doris had accepted the idea gratefully, on the condition that her fiancé did not object to my being her silent partner."

Dundee heard him through without interruption. "I am sorry Doris did not live to benefit by your kindness, Mr. Berkeley."

"So am I. . . If you'll pardon me, I'll get back to my bridge game," Berkeley answered stiffly.

Half an hour later Wickett was admitted to the tower room. He came bearing a tray of sandwiches and coffee, as well as information which seemed to puzzle him exceedingly.

"I have checked the contents of the fountain, sir," he said, depositing his tray as far from the parrot's cage as the length of the table allowed. "Here are the figures, sir. And I can't understand them at all. Mr. Berkeley's fountain was full and less than an ounce of the wood alcohol had been removed from any of the others, except Mrs. Berkeley's. I can swear I filled it full on Friday, sir, but I found less than two ounces in it and it holds five."

"That's our secret, Wickett," Dundee warned him.

When the butler had left, the detective locked the door at the foot of the stairs, returned to the room and locked its door, then addressed his parrot:

"I'm afraid you're in for a long session, my dear Watson!"

CANARIES AID JOBLESS ENGLISH BOOT MAKERS

Norwich, England.—(AP)—The canary breeders of Norwich have had a great boom of late. The mild spring weather has brought good bird business to many workmen, just as the boot trade, a staple industry of Norwich, was languishing.

Norwich exports more than 100,000 canaries every year. America takes 17,000 of them, while the other birds go to European countries, to British colonies, and some even to lonely outposts in the Arctic.

Several other towns in England have flourishing canary industries, but all the birds trace back to Flemish birds introduced in Norwich in the sixteenth century.

Flemings who fled from Spanish persecutions on the continent settled here, bringing their singing pets with them.

The young canaries must be given vocal lessons. Some fanciers place the birds in the bushes where nightingales sing at dewy eve. The young canaries try to imitate the other birds and thus acquire varied notes.

But housewives have found a more simple method of training. They draw a wet cork across the dampened surface of a glass bottle and say that the resulting screech moves the birds to sing lustily.

About one-quarter of Ireland's male population consists of the bachelors. More than 80 per cent of the men between the ages of 25 and 30 are unmarried.

HEALTH

USES OF TOILET WATER SOMETIMES CAUSES STAINING OF SKIN

BY DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

For some years specialists in diseases of the skin have been interested in an unusual kind of inflammation. It was first described in 1916 as Berlock dermatitis. It results from application of toilet water to the skin immediately before being exposed to the sunlight.

In a recent discussion of the subject, Drs. Paul Gross and Lewis B. Robinson point out that the pigmentation was first noticed as occurring in both men and women who had been exposed to intense sunlight while bathing, and that in every instance the patients had put on eau de cologne just before exposing the skin to the sunlight.

In the cases which the newer investigators describe, the results occurred when any perfume had been applied by dabbing the stopper of the perfume bottle, according to modern feminine custom, on the ears, the neck and under the arms. They saw brown discoloration of the skin in five cases in which women had put perfume on the skin and had gone out immediately to play golf or to sit in the sunlight.

In order to prove that the use of the perfume had been responsible, they made tests by applying drops of the perfume and were able to produce the pigmentation in each case. It is not quite certain just what would appear to be a combination of circumstances involving the sunlight, some substance in the perfume, and something in the body of the person concerned, since perfumes and sunlight are widely used, whereas only an occasional person becomes pigmented.

The observation shows, as has been pointed out previously, that the skin is a delicate indicator of the special nature of the human being, that it covers. It reacts to unusual conditions within and without the body.

Say what you will about Chicago, more killings are made on Wall street.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLV

At nine o'clock that Sunday evening Dundee descended to the library, put in a call to the laboratory of Dr. Abel Jennings, city chemist, and took a specimen of the perfume-soaked earth from the summerhouse to the chemist, Dundee awaited the verdict to know if Mrs. Berkeley was to have been poisoned or not.

"Well, there's your case, Dundee," Dr. Jennings concluded cheerfully. "And all I have to do is to prove it." Dundee retorted. "Thanks to certain interference, that will be an almost impossible task."

He lost no time, however, in setting to work.

"Wickett, I'm going to bother you again," he said to the butler whom he found at work in the pantry.

"You'd like some dinner, I expect, sir," the butler suggested.

"Not now. You to bring a plate of sandwiches and a large thermos bottle of strong black coffee to me in the tower room. I'm going to be working there several hours. It is the only place I know of where I can be sure of absolute privacy."

By the way, there's a key to the door at the bottom of the stairs, isn't there?"

"Yes, sir," Wickett assured him, removing the key from a large ring. "The key to the room itself is in the door."

"Thanks, Wickett. Maybe two locked doors will keep Gigi out. . . Now, Wickett, I've been told that it is your job to fill the lighter fountain with alcohol."

"Yes, sir," Wickett agreed, with faint surprise but apparently no fear.

"Where do you keep your supply of wood alcohol? Has anyone access to it except yourself?"

"No one but myself, sir," Wickett answered promptly. I keep it locked away in my pantry here and the keys are never out of my possession, sir."

"Good! Mr. Berkeley told you to use wood alcohol instead of benzine, I suppose?"

"Yes, sir. Either fluid works in the lighters, but Mr. Berkeley asked me to use wood alcohol, because of the black, sooty smoke and the odor of benzine."

"Right, Wickett! When did you last fill up the fountains?"

"Friday morning, sir. None of them were emptied in the house, sir. There are six, all told: one in the drawing room, one in the library, one in Mrs. Berkeley's sitting-room, one in the guest room which Mr. Crosby has now, one in Mr. Berkeley's room and one in Mr. Dick's."

Dundee considered for a moment, then made a sudden decision. "Wickett, would it be possible for you to collect all these fountains without being observed?"

"The family is in the drawing-room now, sir," Wickett demurred. "That fountain is not important. But please get all the others, bring wood alcohol remaining in every one of them. As soon as you have finished, report the results to me in the tower room."

"Very well, sir," Wickett answered.

"Just a minute, Wickett," Dundee detained him. "Please send Peggy Harper and Della Blinn to me here. You need not come in with them, however."

When the two maids, looking very tired and frightened, entered the butler's pantry, the detective hastened to reassure them.

"I'll keep you only a minute, girls, and I'm not going to accuse either of you of murdering Doris Matthews. But I want to ask you a question and I want you both to think hard before answering it: While cleaning bathrooms and hand-basins yesterday and today,

YOUR CHILDREN

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
© 1930 by NEA SERVICE, INC.

The human mind has become voracious, and greedy to learn. It is demonstrated everywhere not only in schools but in music halls, art galleries, and lecture halls.

Facts, facts, and more facts are what we are after. Facts about art, facts about things, facts about life!

The public is out to learn. It wants to know everything from the way a steel ingot is turned out to the old white-and-gray-matter on top lies down on us and goes to sleep.

But there is one secret that, once learned, will prop up the memory more or less all the years of our lives, if we learn to do it young enough. That is why I urge all mothers of little children to pay special attention to it and try to cultivate it to the highest degree.

It is observation—observation of every the detail surrounding an object or related to a fact. If children observe carefully and associate other things with the point in mind there is a fine habit cultivated here that will take deep root and bloom and bear fruit all life long.

Teach them to look at a tree, or a clock, or a house, not as a single object but as related to a group. We call that relativity. It can be applied to lessons, history, for instance, should be taught not as a solated story of a certain country but concurrently with the history of other countries. Contemporary history draws the whole picture. It tells the child why such a thing happened. Association!

Yes, I believe these two things, both observation and association are greatly neglected.

From then on until twenty-five it is soft and pliable, and memory is in its heyday. We seldom forget things we do or learn before that time.

What happens? It begins to stiffen, so to speak, somewhat for biological reasons, but about 90 per cent from disuse. We develop sloppiness, disorganized, undisciplined habits of thinking and then resent it when the old white-and-gray-matter on top lies down on us and goes to sleep.

But there is one secret that, once learned, will prop up the memory more or less all the years of our lives, if we learn to do it young enough. That is why I urge all mothers of little children to pay special attention to it and try to cultivate it to the highest degree.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

Nearly everyone likes and enjoys the appetizing dainties of jelly desserts and salads as well as meat and vegetable dishes. These concoctions are so simple to prepare and give such a large return for the amount of effort involved that they are a very real aid to the housekeeper.

Gelatine now is generally marketed in granulated form. Ordinarily one tablespoon of gelatine is needed to jelly one pint of liquid. This liquid includes the water, cold and hot, used to soften and dissolve the gelatine and the flavoring. But in warm weather, or if juicy fruits or nuts are added, more gelatine will be needed. When a large mold is used, a stiffer jelly and consequently more gelatine will be required.

Another point worth knowing in the making of gelatine dishes is the use of cold liquid rather than hot. After soaking the gelatine, dissolve it by standing it in a pan of boiling water. When the gelatine is thoroughly dissolved, add the cold liquid. The length of time required to cool the whole is shortened and the mixture can be immediately chilled and allowed to stiffen.

Keep in mind, too, that fresh pineapple-fruit or juice—must be scalded before combining with gelatine. The pineapple contains a constituent which, used in its raw state, prevents the gelatine from stiffening.

The usual method to follow in making a gelatine dish is to soak the granulated gelatine in cold water for five minutes. Then add the boiling liquid and stir until the gelatine is thoroughly dissolved. Add remaining ingredients and stir until thoroughly blended. If fruit or fruit juice is added, let the dissolved gelatine cool a few minutes before combining, for the heat may warm the fresh fruit flavor.

The molds should be damp or lightly rubbed with olive oil to insure perfect molds when unmolded for serving.

To unmold, wring a clean cloth out of boiling or very hot water and wrap around the mold just long enough to melt a thin coating of the jelly next to the mold. Invert on plate and gelatine will slip from mold.

Aside from making food attractive, gelatine supplements other foods by aiding in their digestion and increasing their food value.

Spanish cream uses milk with gelatine and eggs. Bavarian cream foundation. Spanish cream is an ideal dessert for children, since it is less rich than Bavarian cream.

Spanish Cream
One tablespoon gelatine, 2 cups milk, ¼ cup sugar, 2 eggs, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Add gelatine to milk and scald in double boiler. When gelatine is dissolved, add sugar and stir until sugar is dissolved. Pour slowly into volles of eggs well beaten, beating constantly. Return to double boiler and cook, stirring until mixture thickens. Remove from heat and add salt. Fold in mold of eggs, beaten until stiff and add vanilla. Pour into one large mold or individual ones and chill.

IRON AS SUBJECT OF A NEW OPERA

Austrian Composer Startles Critics With Story of Machine Age.

Berlin—(AP)—An iron opera, singing the metallic destiny of three humans caught among the cogwheels of modern mechanized life, is starting the music-lovers of Berlin.

The name, "Machinist Hopkins" would lead one to expect (or fear) a musical dramatization of factory life; but few who attended the opening of the Berlin civic opera production were prepared for the extent to which this idea is carried out.

Max Brand, the young Viennese composer of "Machinist Hopkins," which is his first opera, by the way—conceives the towering machinery of present day industry as moving through an inanimate metal. He endows it with a vague but ruthless personality; makes of it a looming, jealous deity of metal which dominates the humans who serve it and destroys the man who rebels against it.

The story in which this metal god plays the deciding role concerns two machinists and a woman. One of the men, eager for escape from the enslaving machine, steals the production secrets of the factory and flees with the woman after killing her husband (a foreman) when the latter tries to block the theft.

In Time with Machines

The other machinist, Hopkins, is a man whose soul has absorbed metal from the atmosphere in which he works. He is in tune with its whirring diety of steel and copper, and it is he who finally upsets the plans of the slayer, who for a time seems to have won mastery over the machine and quick riches because of his possession of the stolen secrets.

The backgrounds against which this drama unfolds are of unusual interest, particularly the enormous factory interiors of the prologue and second and third acts.

When Bill, the machinist, and his woman accomplice, Nell, sink into the silent factory at night, the great, shadowy machines become vocal. The chanting of offstage choruses, whirring, humming, murmuring choruses, throbs with the rhythm and suppressed power of great engines. (Brand even has written solo parts for "First Wheel," "Second Wheel," "Cog-wheel," "Piston," and the like.) The result is music, but the sort of music one might hear from an orchestra of hissing valves, chugging pistons, humming cogwheels and clinking chains.

Office Scene

The factory office scene in Act I emphasizes a different sort of rhythm. It might be called the chant of the yeomen. Big, new industrialist, listens to the staccato reports of his bass and baritone heads of departments, and gives them his orders in clear tenor. "Ninety days Continental bank," sings a secretary, or "two thousand tons, F. O. B. Bombay," and Bill sings back "Check" or "How much did you say?"

More lavish, though not so complicated technically as the factory scenes, is the roof garden cabaret scene in which Bill and Nell are shown spending some of the money which now comes to them in such abundance. A complete and very snappy jazz revue in the midst of a gay crowd of moneyed pleasure seekers provides the extravaganza atmosphere in which Nell achieves her great ambition—the signing of a stage contract. A later scene therefore takes place backstage in a big theater. In other words, there is no lack of scenic variety in this opera.

Brand, who is 34, already has begun work on a second opera, writing the book of "Machinist Hopkins" took him 14 days, he says, while the music occupied him seven months. He relishes with some satisfaction how he tried to pass the entrance examination of a conservatory of music and failed; whereupon he went ahead and wrote songs and orchestral music, studying meanwhile with Alois Haba and Erwin Steinhoff.

During the war, Brand was an officer in the Austrian Army; was not until after that he took up music as a career.

RUINS OF CELLS WHERE 300 DIED

This charred mass of tangled wreckage was all that was left of a section of the cell house at Ohio State Penitentiary after the disastrous fire in which more than 300 convicts were burned to death when trapped behind the bars. Note the twisted steel grating that prevented the prisoners' escape.

BRIAND WORKING ON U. S. OF EUROPE PLAN

Paris, April 23.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Briand's questionnaire on the proposed European confederation, sometimes called "The United States of Europe," is understood to be ready and shortly will be sent to the various governments.

Although the exact nature of the questionnaire has been kept secret, it is reported that the questions in general are as follows:

What is suggested as to the scope of a protocol uniting the countries of Europe in a Continental association?

What subjects should be treated in drafting such a document—should they comprise any political questions?

Should there be confined entirely to economic subjects?

Should there be in the protocol a provision for referring to the League of Nations all political considerations between the parties?

Is a Continental customs union possible?

Other topics believed to be included are Continental exchange protection, elimination of passport formalities at frontiers, and the length to which a European confederation could go in that direction.

The replies, it is understood, will be presented to the assembly of the League of Nations for consideration.

JAPANESE COLONY BEING ORGANIZED

One Hundred and Fifty Families Brought to Para Each Year to Work Farms.

Belem, Para.—(AP)—Hashiro Fukuhara, organizer and manager of Companhia Nipponica E. Plantacoes do Brasil, has a vision—that of a great colony of Japanese in this state growing cotton, cacao, rice and other products on farms of 60 acres each.

One hundred and fifty families are being brought yearly from the crowded islands of Nippon to the virgin forests of this state and started on an independent life. Fukuhara in November, 1928, secured a concession here of 2,500,000 acres in five different parcels.

One is of slightly more than 1,000,000 acres, another 1,000,000, and three smaller tracts are of 25,000 acres each. Only the first two have been definitely located; the others are to be located within two years on unoccupied lands in the regions specified in the concession, which, in general terms, is similar to that granted Henry Ford for his rubber plantation.

The company is using local labor as well as Japanese in the development of its property, and three Brazilians, an engineer, a banker and an attorney, have financial interests in the company. The first Japanese were brought from a large colony in the state of Sao Paulo, but now they are coming regularly from Japan by direct steamer via South Africa.

Experimental Farm

At Acara, where the first development is going on, there is an experimental farm and here the new settlers buy their land, paying a percentage down and the remainder over a period of years. Cotton is envisaged as the principal crop at Monte Alegre, while at Acara rice, tobacco and cacao are the principal crops. The first step taken at Acara was the establishment of a camp hospital with four physicians on duty.

Navigable River

The center of the Japanese company's activities is at Thomazasi, twelve hours by launch south of this city on the Acara river. To this point the river is navigable for vessels up to 200 tons. The administration and hospital buildings, are located on high ground a short distance from the river. The center of activity is the company store, where merchandise is sold only to employees at prices lower than the usual run, this acting as an inducement in securing Brazilian labor.

At the hospital two physicians are on duty and four Japanese nurses. Medical treatment is given to all who apply, whether employees of the company or not. Houses for the colonists are about five miles from the river, away from the malarial section, and half a hundred have been built, each accommodating one family. Nearly 30 miles of road have been built, 18 feet wide, and seven bridges.

Fukumara believes that cocoa is the most promising crop and hopes that 3,000,000 trees will be planted within two years which will bear, two years later, a total of more than 4,000 tons. Silk worms, already an important industry in Sao Paulo, will be another activity of the Japanese, as well as the production of two kinds of Brazil nuts.

The company plans to market the crops of its colonists, retaining 30 per cent as its commission.

LEGISLATIVE LEADER IN INDIA TO RESIGN

Calcutta, India, April 23.—(AP)—Nationalist circles today said that V. J. Patel, speaker of the Indian Legislative Assembly and widely known Swarajist leader had decided to resign.

He was known here to have been at variance with the government for a long time and many expected that action from him when his brother, Vallabhai Patel was arrested and imprisoned at the beginning of Mahatma Gandhi's civil disobedience campaign.

Among those arrested here today were P. K. Chakravarti, editor of a daily newspaper printed in English for an article regarded as subversive and K. C. Das Gupta, secretary of the Bengal Civil Disobedience Council.

Professor Vijay, Swaraj vice president of the Howrah municipality and 29 other persons were arrested today while picketing shops, most of them owned by Muslims in the Howrah market.

Nationalist volunteers attempted to break the police cordon and in the ensuing melee several were injured. While the arrested persons were being taken to court the crowd attacked the prison van but was dispersed by the police.

Pandit Madan Mohan Malviya arrived in Calcutta to meet the Marwari merchants regarding boycott of foreign goods.

OFF ON TRAINING SHIP

ONCE UPON A TIME.

After passing through the experience of being a bill collector, Silas H. Straw, noted Chicago lawyer, realized his boyhood ambition to become a school teacher, and taught for a number of years.

THE TINYMITES

The windmill kept on turning round and all the bunch, down on the ground, just stood and watched it. 'Twas a very pretty sight to see. The great big paddles swung through air. 'Twas fun to watch the Tinies stare. They all were just as interested as wee lads could be. Soon Clowzy said, "What I don't know is why they want these things to go. Are they of any use at all, or just a pretty sight? Of course the paddles fan the breeze and move along their way with ease, but just suppose they would stop. Would that be quite all right?" "Oh, goodness, gracious, me, oh my!" they heard the little Dutch boy cry. "I guess I'll have to tell you what the big windmills are for. They work and work, with all their might and not just as a pretty sight. I'll tell you all about them. There's a big surprise in store. "Sometimes they spin around forlorn and that is 'cause they're grinding corn. The paddles are connected to a rod that does the work. This thumps down on a stack of grain. Of course it doesn't thump in vain. It grinds the grain. A big windmill is never known to shirk. "They're sometimes pumping water, too. That is an easy thing to do. In fact, the mill you're looking at is doing that right now. Just step right up now, brave and bold, and have a drink. It's good and cold. It might be best to form in line so there won't be any row." Each Tinymite then had a drink. The Dutch boy then exclaimed, "I think I'll let you ride the paddles." "Twas no sooner said than done. The Tinies climbed out on the things and each one thought they seemed like wings. As 'round and 'round through air they went, it was a heap of fun. (The Tinymites visit the docks in the next story.)
