CHAMBER MEETS TOMORROW NIGHT

Unusual Supper and "Team Work" Address to Be Meeting Feature.

The last regular monthly membership meeting of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce for the first half of the year, will be held tomorrow evening at 6:15 in the Masonic Temple Banquet Hall.

The meetings committee have secured Oscar Phelps, personnel superintendent of the Fuller Brush Company of Hartford, who is past president of the Wethersfield Chamber of Commerce and a very prominent figure in civic and welfare circles in Hartford and the state as the chief speaker.

Mr. Phelps will take as his subject "team work" and his talk will be along the lines of community development and worth-while programs for a community.

Summer Program A proposal was made by several of the members of the Chamber that discussion be held at tomorrow evening's meeting regarding a community program during the summer months, possibly band concerts as it is the thought of those making the proposal that through such a program the people of Manchester would find their town more enjoyable and it would be a source of encouragement to neighboring towns.

Other Business The other interesting business to come before the Chamber will be a report from the president of the Chamber activities during the past six months, and the Executive Secretary will also make a report to the membership concerning the achievement of reorganization that the Chamber has been going through and the way the Chamber is now set up to function on various lines such as securing new industries, handling legislative matters which are of vital importance to the community and various other programs which a well-organized Chamber is looked to as the source through which to secure results.

Secretary McCabe acknowledged that the chief aim of the officers of the Chamber during the past six months has been to strengthen the organization and especially to organize the Chamber of Commerce so as to be prepared to carry on a suitable work program during the months and years to follow.

The Chamber office reports that reservations are being made rapidly and it is hoped that a record attendance will be enjoyed for this last meeting of the entire membership before the summer intermission of June, July and August.

POLICE COURT

Arnold Pickvance of 10 Trotter street was heavily fined in the Manchester police court this morning for breach of the peace. Complaints had been received at the police station about some one who was bothering women on Center street.

Patrolman Michael Fitzgerald who was detailed to make an investigation came across Pickvance who was whistling to women and accosting them as they passed him. He placed him under arrest and brought him to the police station.

Pickvance in court this morning said he was married and had lived in town about six months and was employed in one of the machine shops in Hartford. He said he did not mean any harm by his actions, that he was sorry and wished to apologize to the woman who made the complaint. He said he didn't say anything more than "Good Evening" or "Good Night" besides whistling.

whether the census is right or wrong. But a lot of things that don't make any real difference do stir up a sporting interest. And we have been visited by a sudden wonderment as to just how much of a flop this census of Uncle Sam's is, anyhow. That it is a flop of sorts is perfectly clear—not so much because of the obvious conflict between probabilities and census totals, as exemplified particularly in the case of New Haven, as because of the testimony of any number of individuals in all sorts of communities that they never saw a census enumerator.

In Manchester the number of these instances which quite casually and incidentally come to light are sufficient proof that the census was not accurately taken. And if it was not accurately taken all we can know about the population total is that it is some figure other than the one reported. Perhaps some of the census enumerators were gifted with an occult sense that enabled them to fill in slips for people whom they never saw. Perhaps the slips didn't go in at all. Perhaps there were five people missed, perhaps there were fifty, perhaps there were five thousand. We don't know and neither, by the same token, does the census bureau.

MORE COMPLICATION The declaration of the United States Supreme Court to pass on the question of whether it is illegal to order the delivery of bootleg liquor is, of course, exasperating to the lay mind. It seems to the non-legal person like mere pettifoggery to refuse to decide whether a prosecution was valid or not merely because the person prosecuted was advised by some lawyer to plead nolo contendere. The simple citizen has the notion that it should be beneath the dignity and gravity of the nation's interpretive tribunal to indulge in technicalities of the very sort against which its members have so often inveighed. But the court's ruling that the Norris case was foreclosed by the plea of the defendant leaves the question at issue easy enough open for decision at some later date, and this ruling will be lost sight of in the interest in the Farrar case, in which the court makes the determination that it is not necessarily illegal to be a purchaser of illegal liquor.

And if enough people in the United States feel unsatisfied and disgruntled about the census flop of 1930, perhaps before it is time for the taking of the next one some better system will have been devised than the one that has resulted in so much bewilderment and so very little of actual value for the money spent. The United States leaves so important a business as the election of a United States President to the control of the various states and each state in turn leaves that business up to its towns. If the towns can be depended on to perform the most important of all federal businesses why on earth can't they be depended on to take their own census? That is something to think over.

Washington, May 27—Plenty of things happen which interest everyone in Washington, but which are never heard of outside. Lately the people of the capital, including legislators who don't mind saving a few dimes, have been excited over a taxicab rate war. Cab rates have gone so low that Washingtonians have had a taxi ride for the first time in their lives. The streets are full of 35-cent cabs. Taxi rides that used to cost a dollar or more over 40 or 50 blocks can now be had in fivers for 35 cents. Generally speaking, you can ride almost anywhere in the District of Columbia for that price. Before someone decided that money could be made tooting passengers at the flat 35-cent rate Washington wasn't much of a taxi town, but so many small companies have sprung up in the last two or three months and so many individual cab owners have suddenly entered the business that there is now perhaps as much proportional cat-riding here as anywhere. Old Rates Were High Before this all began there were two large cab companies, holding the railroad station and hotel corners and operating at 25 cents for the first two-fifths of a mile and 10 cents for each additional two-fifths. They still do. There was a third company, the Diamond, operating at 15 cents for the first two-fifths and 10 cents for each additional two-fifths, with some small independents using the same rate. Recently at the 35-cent competition forced more and more of the old cabs into garages, the directors of the Diamond voted to adopt the flat 35-cent rate. At the same time they warned that so much increase in speed would be necessary more accidents would be reasonably sure to result. Officials replied that spreading taxi drivers would have their licenses taken away. Meanwhile most Washington taxi users are riding speedily and economically and the old cab companies are demanding congressional intervention. And if you want to know how people here can save pennies just ask the fellows who run the Senate restaurant. They have had to cut prices on the popular brands of cigarettes from 15 cents straight to two for a quarter. Sales had fallen off seriously because patrons were buying their cigarettes at the bottom rate in chain stores down town. In case your local malt and hops stores have been closed as a result of the recent supreme court decision, you can still stock up on bottles, caps, gin, rum and whiskey flavorings, siphons, crocks, etc., in stores operating under that such signs might be seized when obviously displayed to encourage law violations sales have been especially heavy, as if home brewers may be advised to lay in large stocks in case the supply were cut.

That ruling will serve to complicate the enforcement of prohibition in a great many instances. But the complication is one that can be easily enough cleared up if our dry Congress wants to clear it up. There should be no impression that the Supreme Court has declared that the purchase of alcoholic drinks cannot be legally prohibited—what it has ruled is that such purchase is not prohibited by existing law. Congress is not at all inhibited from passing the Sheppard bill specifically making the buyer of liquor equally guilty with the seller. If it has the faith in federal law as a means of stopping drinking which it pretends to have, and if it wishes to stop drinking, Congress will pass the Sheppard law. But it has no such faith and it has no such desire, and so it will not do anything about the scheme of Senator Sheppard. If there were the slightest chance that it were going to do so we should see a terrible panic among the professional drys, because the adoption of such a law and its enforcement even in small part would uncover with great suddenness all that highly important dry vote which drinks wet, and would send supporters of Volsteadism stampeding in myriads into the wet camp.

Realizing this, a majority of the dry leaders are hotly opposed to the passage of any such law. Yet the Sheppard law is, for any sincere prohibitionist, utterly logical. It should be written into the law of the land if we are to stop the use of liquor by federal enactment. And if we are not to stop liquor by federal enactment, why prohibition? Dr. Dinwiddie's explanation that we have prohibition only for the purpose of keeping the record of the United States free from the stain of alcoholic responsibility will not meet the requirements of very many. Obviously Volsteadism, with all its show of fangs, hasn't yet a full set of teeth. Let us fill its mouth with as many as a shark has. Let's have some real prohibition—so that we may the quicker get rid of the plitful thing and start in sobering up as it has not before in a hundred years.

Customers are now given a printed card which says: "It is expressly understood and agreed that all merchandise sold here is to be used for legal and nonalcoholic purposes only. The buyer assures and guarantees that said merchandise will be used according to the above specifications by his or their purchase or contract." Few people realize how much fear guides and shapes their lives, especially when developed through the carelessness of parents who train their children to think of fear rather than of courage. When children are brought up on "must nots," "can'ts" and "don'ts," they usually develop an attitude of fear and suspicion as they are hourly told of new things to avoid instead of being taught in a constructive way just how they can get the most out of life. How often have I seen the truth of the saying, "The thing they feared came upon them." Those who fear financial losses usually become bankrupt. Those who fear sickness often develop the disease which they most fear. Those who are afraid that people will not like them generally are disliked. Anyone who has this fear habit will do well to study the ways and means by which he can develop his mental as well as physical courage. Most of the fears which trouble people are non-existent, and anyone can learn to substitute good mental pictures of strength, confidence and courage. Of course, you should try to make your body as strong as possible by the right physical training, good food, sufficient sleep, and the right kind of physical training, good

THE CENSUS The Herald has jeered a bit, good naturedly, at the walls that have gone up from disappointed communities when they found that the census did not support their expectations in the matter of population growth. Now it has occasion to make a wry face over the returns on Manchester. It will try to make the grimace a grin. Nothing in the Manchester figures tends to affect our heretofore expressed conviction that it doesn't make a scrap of difference to the town or to any individual in it

Health and Diet Advice. By Dr. Frank McCoy. EXCLUDE FEAR. Fear is like a shadow following many people wherever they go and whatever they do. Fear is a vicious habit that deforms the intellect and vitiates the health. It might almost be termed a cancer of the mind, so corroding does it become if unchecked. We must understand the mental causes which lead to fear if we are to realize health in its fullest measure. You may eat the right kind of food, use sufficient exercise, and inhale fresh air deeply, but if you mind is constantly worried and harassed by the destructive emotion of

Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Northam and children Richard and Marcia, also Clarence H. Sloane of New York, are spending a few days at Point O' Woods, Lyme, Conn.

At the Candle Light service held at the Hockanum Methodist church Sunday evening, Rev. Stuart Haskins of the First Congregational church of Glastonbury addressed the large gathering on the subject of "Looking Up." John P. Kenney and Mrs. William R. Dunham gave short talks on the Epworth League history. Miss Hester Lindgren of Hartford sang two solos. Miss Ruth La Fargue sang a solo assisted by Miss Hatfield at the piano.

Mr. and Mrs. David H. Finn entertained at bridge Saturday evening in honor of the birthday of their son Lucien S. Finn. Prizes were awarded the winners. Dick Van Ausdall won first prize for men, and Mrs. J. P. McMann won first prize for ladies. Miss Catherine Merrill carried away the consolation prize. Mrs. Finn served a bountiful buffet lunch. Lucien or "Huck" as he is better known was the recipient of many valuable presents. Among them was a rumble seat for his Ford coupe, golf clubs, haberdashery, coin and many other useful articles. The merry throng departed shortly after midnight all wishing "Huck" many pleasant returns of the day.

The Parent-Teachers association of the South Grammar school will hold a field day Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock on the school grounds. Athletic games, folk dancing and other forms of recreation will be an attraction. The parents will serve the cream and cake. The public is invited to come and watch the youngsters perform. The teachers have been drilling them for some time and it will be mighty interesting.

Mr. and Mrs. Levi T. Dewey and Mrs. W. W. Grant attended the funeral of their cousin, Frederick W. Snow, from the funeral parlors of James F. Pratt of 71 Farmington avenue. Rev. Raymond Cunningham, rector of Trinity Church of Hartford, officiated. The burial was in the family lot at the East cemetery of Manchester.

Last Sunday at the Federated Sunday school a returned missionary, Mrs. Auger, spoke very interestingly of her work in the Philippines. She brought many interesting things to show the school and also dressed two of the local girls in their costumes.

At 7:30 o'clock last Sunday evening, Rev. Harry S. Martin of the First Congregational church of South Windsor, (also a former pastor of the Congregational church of Wapping), preached a fine sermon from the Book of Esther.

The Young Girls' Missionary meeting will be postponed next Wednesday afternoon on account of a rehearsal of the children at the church for Children's Day. The rehearsal is to be at 3:00 o'clock (D. S. T.)

A THOUGHT

CUT FLOWERS

By Furman Lloyd Mulford
Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture

Cut flowers add distinction to any home. Of course they may be purchased, but one gains additional satisfaction by growing them in the garden. Growing a number of kinds will supply the home from spring until late in the fall.

Snagdragons, larkspurs, and many kinds of dianthus or pinks are well adapted for cutting, thrive under a wide range of conditions and stand cold, others of trillium, less hardy are gallardia of strawflowers, Drummond phlox, and zinnias; some that require even warmer weather are calendula or pot marigolds, China asters, French and African marigolds. A few that require frost-free conditions are callipais, salpiglossis and scabiosa.

Flowers the Year Around
Next to the shrubs, the earliest outdoor flowers for cutting are some perennials, the so-called Dutch bulbs, such as daffodils and tulips. Later come the irises, peonies, and in between many other flowers whose roots have lived over winter in the open ground. Annuals supply most of the flowers through midsummer and even into early fall. China asters predominate in late summer in the northern area. The gladiolus furnishes many satisfactory blooms in midsummer and later.

When nights grow cooler toward the end of summer and in early fall, dahlias come in for the lion's share of attention, and with the early frosts chrysanthemums make their appearance.

Roses Bloom Long
Bush roses of certain types known as cut flower, or everblooming rose, in regions where they thrive, bloom over the longest season of any one flower, although for the space occupied and the care required the yield is not so large as from many of the annuals.

Flowers to be satisfactory for cutting must either have long stems or must be arranged on a common stem so that one cut gathers several blossoms as in the gladiolus. Flowers with stems as short as pansies and sweet alyssum are not satisfactory for general use as cut flowers though most attractive in suitable receptacles.

NAVY PLANES WRECKED

Chilmark, Island of Martha's Vineyard, Mass., May 27.—(AP)—Two naval seaplanes, members of a squadron of 23 airships of the Black or attacking forces in the Army and Navy's theoretical warfare now raging in Long Island Sound, were wrecked in Misnemsha Bay during the night with a loss of $80,000.

The planes dragged their anchors in a heavy northern wind and fouled each other. Their pilots and mechanics were aboard the mother ship Wright which had accompanied the attacking flotilla.

This morning the remaining 21 planes made safe anchorage in Menemsha pond. The gale continued to blow and there was considerable doubt whether the attackers could resume their place in the warfare game until it had subsided.

BUSINESS ADVANTAGES IN KEEPING FREE FROM ALCOHOLIC DRINKS

While every effort is being made to make it appear that the prohibition law is unpopular, a careful probing of the opinions of prominent men and women in every walk of life will show conclusively that prohibition has boosted business all over the United States.

We are living in a wonderfully active and stirring age. Every where people are thinking more quickly and acting more rapidly in everything they do, and thousands of people are investigating and adopting the practical ideas that are necessary for their health, their efficiency, and their advancement.

Nine billion is saved or spent for luxuries every year since prohibition. Think of this amount multiplied by eleven and see what would have been spent on liquor. The automobile business has increased by leaps and bounds since prohibition went into effect.

Industry and integrity are the best possessions any man can have, and any man can have them, and no one can take them away from him. They belong to the individual and are his property.

Liquor laws will be broken as well as other laws. While prohibition is not just what we want it to be, we hope it will continue. There is no element so essential to success in life as vigorous, robust health.

When Marshall Foch came over to visit our country, he did not bring any liquor, nor did he drink any while here because, he said, he was going to observe the spirit of the American law.

business is going to continue by the highest standard. We wish to have prosperity and happiness on this land, and in order to have it children must be sent to school and college. Not only those with moderate wealth, but the average family is better off mentally, physically, morally, and financially.

Fire Insurance the Bulwark of Trade

The volume of trade in the United States is estimated at more than 80 billion dollars annually. Probably 90 per cent of this is transacted on credit.

The underlying safeguard of this credit is Stock Fire Insurance, with more than $150,000,000,000 constantly at risk in the protection of burnable property in this country.

This background of $150,000,000,000 of protection against disaster makes commerce on its present gigantic scale possible.

Few indeed are the activities of the home or of business that are not benefited directly or indirectly by the stabilizing effect of Stock Fire Insurance and the security that it affords.

Stock Fire Insurance is the silent partner in every enterprise—the Bulwark of Trade. It has rendered its service at a cost which on the average has constantly declined for more than twenty years.

Reymond's Butter-Krust Bread is a product of an organization of Master Bakers with better than a quarter of a century experience behind it. One member of the firm learned the art of bread baking in Switzerland about 30 years ago, while another member of the organization is a graduate of the American Institute of Baking in Chicago, Ill. In all this time, they have kept constantly abreast of the most modern practice in mechanical efficiency. Their new plant in Waterbury is a "show place" for the baking industry. The oven—as well as every other piece of machinery in the plant—is operated by electricity. A trip through the building is a revelation in scientific operation, cleanliness and the use of quality products. Only the finest of ingredients, including Occident Flour, plus the combined skill and experience of the entire organization, gives a better and more uniform loaf, with better keeping qualities, more nutrition and better taste. THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE.) "Oh, my," cried Clowny. "What a sight. That whale is mighty big, all right. But what's it doing up on shore? It should be in the sea! It surely cannot swim around when it is up on solid ground." This made the whole bunch laugh. The thought was funny as could be. "Of course it can't," wee Scouty said. "Once more you fail to use your head. The fisherman will tell us why the whale is way up there. "You bet I will," replied the man. "At least I'll tell as best I can. Don't be afraid of Mister Whale. There's not a thing to fear. "From whales we get a lot of things and each whale heaps of money brings. We even get fine butter and good margarine to eat. We have a process now, you see, that hardens whale oil. Mercy me, when it's brought forth as butter it is really quite a treat." They listened to a whole lot more and then knew what the whales were for. The Travel Man soon said, "I guess we'd best be on our way. We've seen some interesting fish and now, my lads, I frankly wish that we could soon find something else to finish up the day." They slowly backed back into town and as the whole bunch looked around, one of the Tines cried, "Oh, look! A queer cart's right nearby. It's something I would like to try." "All right," replied the Travel Man. "We all will take a ride." They went up to the man, who said, "You want to ride? Well, go ahead and hop right in. I'm sure that you'll enjoy it. Bless my soul." The Tinymites all spread a grin and very promptly hopped right in. The Travel Man then told them they were in a carolee. (The Tinymites see some rain-deer in the next story.)
