

CONSERVATIVES WIN CANADIAN HOUSE CONTROL

MacKenzie King Government Overthrown After 12 Years on Tariff Issue; Quebec Flops to Bennett.

Ottawa, Ont., July 28.—(AP.)—After 12 years in power the Liberal government of W. L. MacKenzie King has been overthrown. The Conservative party, headed by Richard Bedford Bennett, won a majority of seats in the House of Commons in yesterday's general election.

When MacKenzie King submits his resignation to the governor-general the prime minister will be Bennett, a lawyer who has practiced for years in Calgary. He was born and educated in Nova Scotia. He has been a Conservative since his youth.

Upset in Quebec

Victory for the Conservatives, a high protective tariff, was forecast early by an almost unprecedented upset in Quebec. Liberal strongholds. There they gained 20 seats, increasing the four Quebec seats they held in the last Parliament to 24, and defeated two Liberal ministers.

Bennett won an easy victory in his constituency in Calgary. MacKenzie King fought an uphill battle against his Conservative opponent in Prince Albert, Sask., and won. Five Liberal ministers were defeated. Women sought seats, but Agnes C. MacPhail, the first woman to enter Canada's House of Commons, lost her seat in 1921.

With three of the 245 contests for seats in the House of Commons still in doubt, results of the election stood today: Conservatives, 156; Liberals, 84; Liberal-Progressives 2; Labor 3; Independents 5.

HEAT WAVE EXPLODES AT ITS HIGHEST POINT

Chicago, July 29.—(AP.)—The heat, making a final burning gesture yesterday that sent mercury rocketing as high as 114, has scammed away before the rush of an Alaskan cool wave. Even as the midwest read black headlines in announcing that relief was near, the area suffered the most severe heat of the current spell. Salem, Ill., had 114 degrees and there were 112 and 111 in several other Illinois communities. Kentucky reported 113 at Bowling Green, with temperatures of 107 at Ashland and Louisville. St. Louis had 108. The temperature drop began late yesterday.

ADRIANOPLE STORM WORST IN CENTURY

Famous Mosque of Selim II Badly Damaged; Populace Fears To Go Outdoors.

Istanbul, July 28.—(AP.)—Refugees began to arrive here from Adrianople with tidings of the storm of Sunday in which latest reports show 22 persons lost their lives and damage was caused to the extent of about $4,000,000.

Eye-witnesses reported the tornado did the worst in the Balkans in the last 100 years.

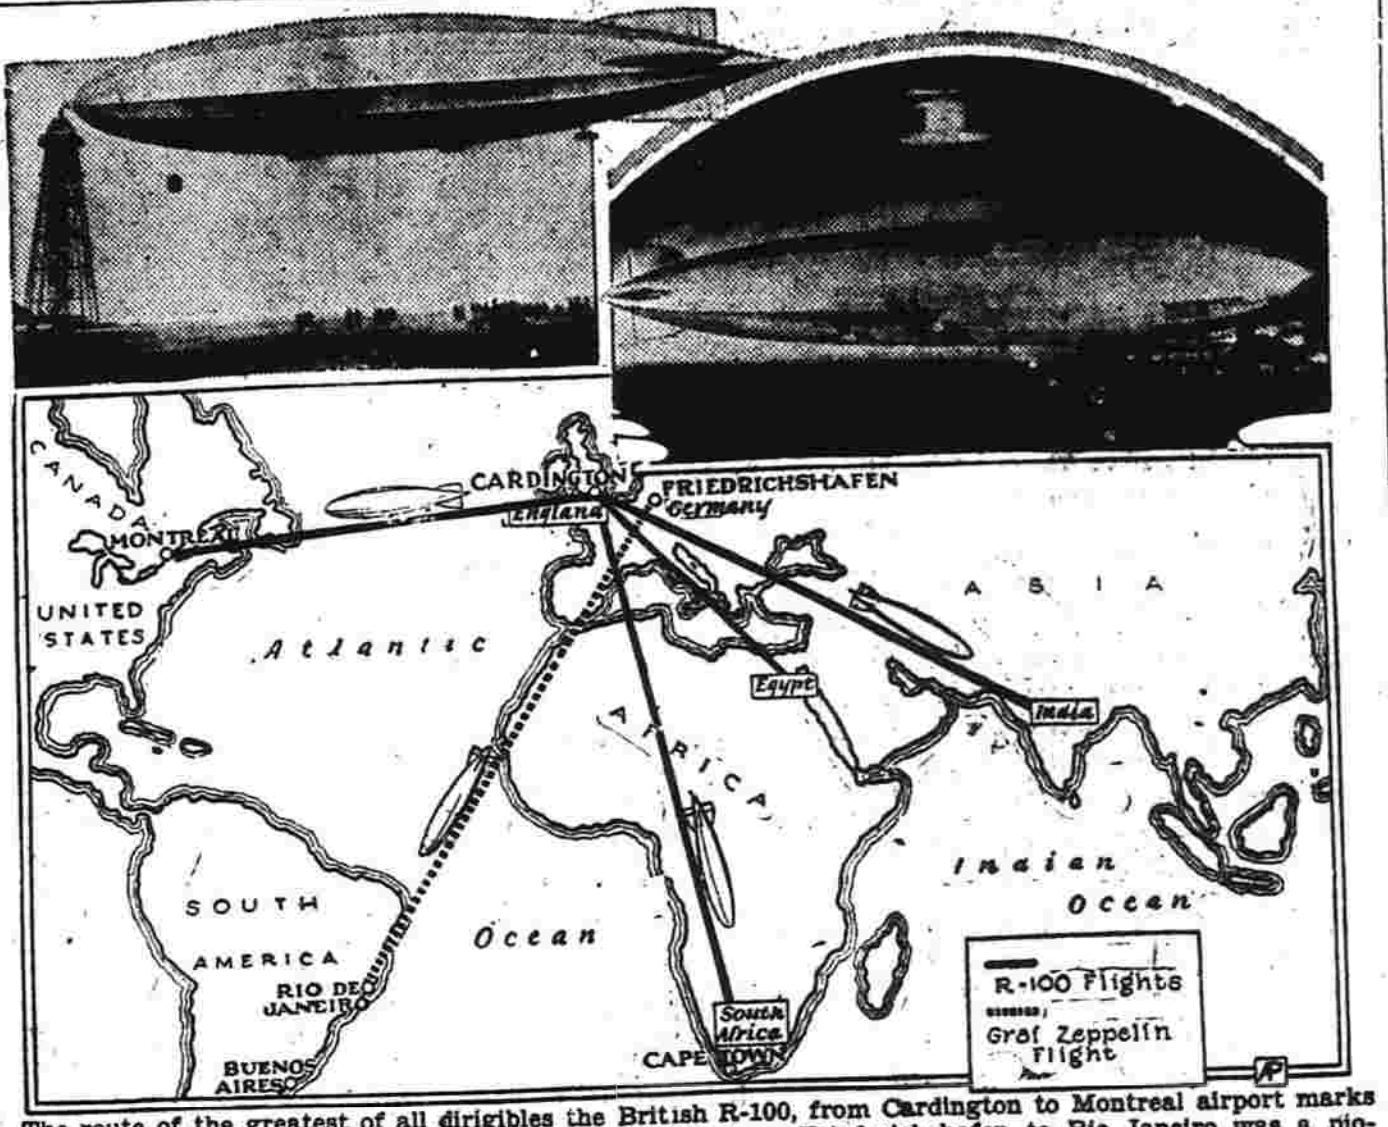

The famous Mosque of Sultan Selim II, an impressive 16th century edifice, suffered damage of at least $50,000. The mosque was the most notable building in Adrianople. It has a portico of columns carved from single stones and is flanked by four slender fluted minarets, each about 300 feet high. The spire of one of the towers was the largest in existence. Much of the damage was caused to the dome and the minarets.

Jewish Storm Victims

The Jewish quarter escaped with little damage. Thousands of storks, hawks and smaller birds were killed by hail, the birds falling in the streets amid the debris.

Today, it was said, many of the population were still within their homes. Many are waiting for the government to speed relief work.

FIST FIGHT MARKS HARMONY MEETING

Bay State Democrats "Sung Quiet" by Honey Fitz As He Sings "Sweet Adeline"

Worcester, Mass., July 29.—(AP.)—State Democratic leaders returned home today after a stormy "harmony conference" in which attempts to name a slate of candidates for the coming primaries had failed.

One delegate, State Representative Richard D. Gleason, of Boston, was ejected by police after a fist fight. Disorder reigned during the latter part of the afternoon meeting.

No definite action was taken in support of any of the candidates for the senatorial and gubernatorial nominations and the name of Congressman William J. Granfield, Springfield, was added at the night session to the list of those who have been proposed for governor.

No disturbances occurred at the night meeting.

Too Many Ballots

Congressman William Connerly, Lynn, led the fight in the afternoon to prevent the conference from sponsoring any particular candidate. A resolution he introduced opposing such action was passed by a vote of 268 to 255.

The vote was doubted and Chairman Frank J. Donahue of the State Committee arose and said that 528 votes could not be cast with only 460 accredited delegates. Disturbances arose during a roll call, with the fist fight in the back of the hall, and delegates crowded to the platform.

The disorder was quieted after ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, Boston, candidate for governor, began singing "Sweet Adeline," and Joseph B. Ely, another gubernatorial aspirant, got the attention of the delegates and pleaded strongly that any move to vote on candidates be defeated. Those who had doubted the vote on Connerly's motion withdrew their objections and it stood adopted.

United States Senator David I. Walsh gave the keynote address.

PINTHIS WAS GOING SLOWLY, IS PROVED

Diver Finds Indicator of Sunken Tanker Was At Half Speed When Hit.

Scituate, Mass., July 29.—(AP.)—A diver has found that the oil tanker Pinthis, sunk with the loss of 49 lives by the steamer Fairfax, was traveling at half speed at the time of the collision.

The wreck was located yesterday by Edward G. Diver, operating an insurance company, lying on its port side in 96 feet of water. The tanker, laden with gasoline, had not exploded, he said, and had been nearly cut in two between the pilot house and the port bow.

He reported that the speed indicator was set at "half speed" and that all the windows had been broken and the foremast had been split.

See Two Bodies

The bodies of two of the crew were seen, one entangled in a life line and the other near the pilot house. No attempt was made to bring them to the surface.

The crash occurred on the night of June 10 off the Scituate shore in a fog, with the entire Pinthis crew lost, and after subsequent investigation federal inspectors reported that the Fairfax had been traveling at an excessive speed.

Trial of Captain Archibald H. Brooks of the Fairfax will begin August 12 at Norfolk, Va.

AMTORG'S LEADERS PROTEST EMBARGO

Bogdanov Denies Soviet Imports Constitute Menace to Industries Here.

New York, July 29.—(AP.)—Officials of the Amtorg trading corporation were headed for Washington today to seek the lifting of the embargo against Soviet pulpwood.

Uljanoff, says Bogdanov, Barring of two vessels here was the first application of the embargo imposed by the Treasury Department on the ground that forced labor was used in loading.

Peter A. Bogdanov, head of Amtorg, Soviet trade agency in this country, denied that there was justification for embargoes on Soviet goods and warned that a curtailment of imports of Soviet products would bring with it a corresponding reduction in Russian purchases here.

The two ships denied entry were the Greif, a British vessel, and the Christian Bors, a Norwegian ship.

A fleet of 40 ships is enroute here with Soviet pulpwood.

In a statement issued in behalf of Amtorg, Bogdanov said, "the statements that Soviet imports constitute a menace to American industry" is not warranted by the fact that almost entirely of such products as the United States either does not produce at all or in insufficient quantities."

Commenting on protests against Soviet trade by Matthew Wolf, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, Bogdanov said, "Will be sought to establish business relations" with Amtorg three days after publication of the "Walsh documents," which linked Amtorg with Communist propaganda, when... Hoover in Letter Backs Muscle Shoals Leasing

Johnson City, Tenn., July 29.—(AP.)—President Hoover in a letter to Representative Carroll Reece of Tennessee has endorsed the House Plan for development of the Muscle Shoals Project.

The letter said: "I have heard that your opponents are charging you with failure to serve the interest of your constituents because you refused to accept the Senate plan for dealing with Muscle Shoals."

"The fact is that the House plan will secure development of this great resource more effectively and more greatly in the interests of Tennessee than would the Senate plan. I am assured that the Senate plan would not be passed in the House, nor would it approve that plan because it is not in the interest of Tennessee or the rest of the nation. LOCAL MAN ONE OF PAIR SOUGHT FOR JAIL BREAK

Milford Machie, Serving a Year for Auto Theft, Quits Litchfield Jail in Pilfered Car Which Crashes.

Litchfield, July 29.—(AP.)—Two Litchfield county jail prisoners are at large today after escaping in a stolen automobile which was later wrecked against a pole.

The fugitives are Milford E. Machie, 31, of Manchester, who was serving a year's term for stealing an automobile, and Tony Carrella, 21, of New Haven, who participated in another jail break last winter.

The men were sent with a guard to mow the lawn of Arthur G. Camp near the jail, yesterday. They escaped in Camp's car, which was parked nearby, when the guard's attention was momentarily distracted from them.

Escape From Crash

A mile from the Camp home, the car crashed into a pole and overturned. The prisoners, who are believed to have escaped serious injury, continued their escape on foot.

Machie, who has served terms at the Cheshire reformatory, was committed to the jail last April. Carrella was serving a term for breaking and entering when he escaped from the jail last winter. A suspended sentence of eight months was invoked and six months added to the term after he was captured.

Well Known Here

Milford E. Machie, 31, the Manchester man who escaped from the Litchfield county jail, was serving a year for theft of an automobile, having been convicted in the Litchfield County Superior Court. Another Manchester man arrested with him was put on probation for a year and placed in the custody of Edward C. Elliott, Jr., local probation officer.

Machie was sentenced last April and had served less than four months.

Machie is quite well known in Manchester, especially at the north end. He lived on Hilliard street before last Adams street. He once served a term in Cheshire reformatory.

FIFTEEN DROWN AS STONEBOAT SINKS

Lake Erie Craft Capsizes in Storm Then Goes Down as Crew Clings to Bottom.

Erie, Pa., July 29.—(AP.)—The stoneboat George J. Whelan foundered in Lake Erie today, carrying fifteen of her crew down with her. Six seamen were saved. The ship overturned, apparently with little warning, six miles off Dunkirk, N. Y., at 12:30 a. m.

The crew of the steamer Amasa Stone, picked up six members of the Whelen's crew and brought them to port here with the first word of the sinking. Captain W. H. McNeill of the Amasa Stone said he heard the cries of several men in the water but was unable to find only six.

Coast Guards Search

The Erie Coast Guard crew, with three boats, left at six o'clock this morning for the scene of the disaster but without much hope of success.

The rescued men said the boat upset in a squall and remained afloat upside down for at least half an hour after overturning and that many members of the crew were able to stay on top of it until it suddenly dropped from sight, pitching them into the water.

Only two of the six men rescued wore life belts.

Seaman Lange attempted to swim the six miles to shore and was the first man picked up by the lifeboat which Captain McNeill ordered from the Amasa Stone as soon as he heard the cries of the men in the water.

Could Find No More

The Amasa Stone remained at the scene of the disaster until daylight at 4 o'clock and after cruising around and sighting only five bodies or survivors came on to Erie.

The steamer Donnelly, which came up at about the same time, also cruised about the scene and may have picked up some, but Captain McNeill doubted that this was so.

REVIVE NORTH END CIVIC ASSOCIATION Merchants On Square Say Desired Projects Not Gained Under C. of C.

After dormancy of nearly a year, the Manchester Improvement Society came to life yesterday afternoon at a meeting held at 2.80 in the Balch and Brown block at which nearly a score of former members met and elected temporary officers for the continuance of the civic work in the neighborhood of Depot Square.

According to a statement given out yesterday the North End merchants felt that they had a sense of individuality through the dropping of the old organization, which had been instrumental in producing many needed civic betterments in the North End. Many of the members of the old organization joined the Manchester Chamber of Commerce and when it was found, as stated, by Edward J. Murphy, the newly elected chairman, that consideration for Manchester projects were not forthcoming, a decision for a change was decided upon.

Under the new regime, a committee has been appointed consisting of Chairman Edward J. Murphy, Harold W. Willis and Thomas Conran. These men will meet Tuesday afternoon at the Chamber. An effort to increase the membership in Manchester will be made.

While the meeting outlined a program for consideration, one of the most important issues, that of submitting a petition for the continuance of trolley or bus service from and to Oakland and Buckland station already handed down by the Little Utilities Commission of Connecticut which states specifically that the Connecticut company must make Depot Square a port of call.

This was the basis for excluding the representatives of steamship owners, stevedore organizations and charterers added their protests to those made by the Russians.

Louis Connich, representing Amtorg, said that orders had gone forth stopping the loading of pulpwood at Archangel. He submitted a list of approximately 60 ships which had been chartered to carry Russian pulpwood to the United States.

Ten of the steamers, he said, were enroute, five had arrived, seven were loading pulpwood at Archangel and 42 others were chartered to carry pulpwood during August and September.

A KIND OF PAGANISM

We confess to not being able to understand what Right Reverend Bishop John Poyntz Tyler of North Dakota means when he says that paganism is responsible for the unemployment in this country.

Let ten men engage in the production of ten basic commodities. Let them each employ a hundred hands. Let these ten hundred and ten persons represent, for the sake of illustration, the entire economic body of the country.

It will not help simply to shout the pessimists down. We need to study the new dispensation more closely than we have ever studied anything; to find out just what its possibilities are, and to set ourselves the task of realizing them.

A GOOD SOLDIER. The marine corps lost a good soldier and the nation lost a valuable citizen in the recent death of Major Wendell C. Neville.

IN NEW YORK. New York, July 29.—There died in this strange town the other day a woman who left a $12,000 trust fund for the maintenance of her horses.

EXCHANGE OF VISITORS. American motorists are expected to spend around $300,000,000 in Canada this summer.

United States, finds that his famous pessimism is more firmly entrenched than ever. He tells an interviewer that constitutional government has abdicated, that Americans can no longer express themselves as individuals, that the average citizen has lost his power to think and that literature is practically dead.

Conditions here are in many ways similar to those in Russia before the revolution," he asserts. "I am more convinced than ever that the country is headed for great social changes that will frustrate the life of the ordinary individual unless they can be checked by a really important stand on the part of the intellectuals."

Mr. Dreiser never has been one to look on the bright side of things. His novels breathe a bitter doubt—or, rather, a firm conviction that humanity is fighting a hopeless fight against the powers of darkness.

Why should this be? In a great many ways we have made very genuine progress in the last two or three decades. Living conditions are easier for millions of human beings. An enormous amount of soul-killing drudgery has been outlawed forever.

It will not help simply to shout the pessimists down. We need to study the new dispensation more closely than we have ever studied anything; to find out just what its possibilities are, and to set ourselves the task of realizing them.

A SPLENDID PROJECT. It appears that we were quite wrong the other day when, in commenting regretfully on the Italian earthquake situation, we remarked that it was impossible for the Italians to build quake-proof cities because of the lack of space in their sites.

Here is a job for the Italian people in the performance of which they will have the most earnest well wishes of the entire world—an infinitely finer and more worthwhile project than Signor Mussolini's dream of rebuilding Rome for the sole purpose of being grand.

MR. DREISER'S PESSIMISM. Theodore Dreiser, having completed an extensive tour of the United States, finds that his famous pessimism is more firmly entrenched than ever.

Not many New Yorkers know that two of the very high-priced art sections of the town are merely old stables. It is wasted effort to announce that tomorrow evening is Merchants' Night at the State Theater, for the great drawing power of this attraction has made Merchants' Night synonymous with every Wednesday night. Again the theater management has obtained a long list of valuable gifts from local merchants to be awarded the lucky coupon holders.

And as if that wasn't enough, the feature presentation will be "High Society Blues," starring the famous team of Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell. Just to let you know what the picture is all about the following brief synopsis is presented:

El Granger (Lucien Littlefield) sells his chain of stores for three million cash and a million in stock. Horace Divine (William Collier, Sr.) comes to Fremont to close the deal. Divine politely invites him to visit him any time he is East.

Granger tells Pearl (Joyce Compton), Eddie (Charles Farrell) and Mrs. Granger (Louise Fazenda) the good news. They go East and buy a home—next door to the Divines. Mrs. Divine (Hedda Hopper) is scandalized by the Granger's efforts to be friendly. Eleanor (Janet Gaynor), their pretty girl, makes Eddie's acquaintance as he struts his stuff under a hedge. They become friends. Eleanor is to marry Count Frumier (George Gayle). Eddie declines to take the Count seriously.

The Grangers drop in, but are snubbed. Eddie and Eleanor soon are in love. Mrs. Littlefield insists upon inviting the Divines to dinner. The Count arrives and gives Eleanor an engagement ring. Eddie feels badly and tells her of his love. But they can see no way out of it.

When the Divines are to dine with the Grangers, Mrs. Divine sends regrets, saying Mr. Divine is sick.

Granger marches over and sees Divine at dinner. He walks in, scandalizes them. Granger announces plans to fight the Divines in business. Eddie declines and accepts $100,000 of the estate. Father thinks this is a boyish whim and gives him it in Consolidated stock. Father goes to Wall Street to corner Consolidated.

The Count whose engagement to Eleanor is to be announced that afternoon, meets Eddie sitting in the hedge and goes with him, getting drunk and passes out. Pearl puts cold towels on the Count's head. Eddie does this deliberately to keep him from the announcement party. Eddie later climbs a tree outside Eleanor's window, and asks her to elope. She agrees, leaving a cryptic note for mother, who happily thinks Eleanor has fled with the Count.

Granger meanwhile sends a wire to Divine saying he has cornered over fifty per cent of Consolidated and that Divine had better come to him or suffer the consequences. Divine next morning, rushes angrily in. Granger informs him that with Eddie's stock voting his way, he controls fifty per cent. Eddie wanders in just then with a breakfast tray, headed for his room and says he hasn't decided which way to vote.

The sisters excitedly bid against each other for Eddie's stock. They run up the figure to four hundred thousand.

Then they hear him and a girl singing upstairs. They learn of the wedding. Everybody is soon happy—including Pearl and the Count.

And just to get you well acquainted with the various players in this production, glance at these thumbnail sketches:

Janet Gaynor—Wisdom's little miss who has the greatest following. In sharp contrast to many of her previous roles, in this musical romance she is a daughter of wealth and is more charming than heretofore. "7th Heaven," "4 Devils," and many others proved her sterling ability. In "Sunny Side Up," when her voice with a soul was heard in song for the first time, her popularity increased.

Charles Farrell—Shared with Miss Gaynor in triumph of "Sunny Side Up" and other hits. Plays a youth who spends time strumming a lute and singing to Janet. Farrell's singing in "Sunny Side Up" was great. Sang twice in "Sunny Side Up"; new stage five songs.

William Collier, Sr.—One of the great squares of American stage who won greater honors in past year, appearing for Fox Movietone. Actor since he was eleven, when he joined a touring company with "Madame." First important role in "Richard, Jr.," with Eddie Foy. Starred in own farces. Starred in so many famous plays, a list would require a full page.

Hedda Hopper—Called "most sophisticated actress in Hollywood." Went to the New York stage from finishing school. "Six Cylinder Love" her biggest stage hit. In pictures seven years. In "Wings," "Such Men Are Dangerous" and "The Song of Kentucky," and other films.

Joyce Compton—Declared by Fox Movietone officials to be a real "comer." First role for Fox was in "Ankles Preferred." Subsequently in "Living" and "Wild Par" with Clara Bow. Had prominent role in "Sky Hawk" when she was signed to a Fox contract.

Louise Fazenda—One of Hollywood's greatest comedians. Some of her original pictures: "Cradle Snatchers," "The Rat," "The Terror," "The Red Mill," "On With the Show,"

"Loose Ankles," "No, No, Nanette," "Desert Song" and "Hot Stuff." Lucien Littlefield—In pictures for ten years. Some of his more prominent: "Bachelor Brides," "The Torrent," "Take It From Me," "Twinkle Toes," "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Cheating Cheaters" and "Seven Keys to Baldpate."

Bradson Hurst—Twenty years on legitimate stage and ten in pictures. Screen plays include: "7th Heaven," "The High School Hero," "The News Parade," "Love," "The Man Who Laughs," "Interference."

The song numbers of "High Society Blues" are: "I'm In the Market For You," sung by Gaynor and Farrell. "Eleanor," sung by Gaynor and Farrell. "High Society Blues," sung by Farrell. "Just Like A Story Book," sung by Gaynor and Farrell. All songs were written by McCarthy and Henley.

Memphis, Tenn., July 29.—(AP)—The south baked today beneath a blanket of heat while the effects of continued lack of heavy rains became pronounced on the Mississippi River. With mercury rocketing upward through the nineties, the government weather bureau reported a river stage of 4.5 at Memphis, equalling the record July low level and proving a decided handicap to navigation of the heavy barge tows, which carry most of the river's burden of commerce.

The Hollywood Story

COPYRIGHT 1930 BY NEA SERVICE Inc. BY ERNEST LYNN

CHAPTER I

Dan Rorimer had been in Hollywood two weeks when he got an airmail letter from Ziggy Young in New York. Ziggy was on the Herald-Tribune, and he was occupying the apartment in East 42nd street that Rorimer had recently vacated to go to Hollywood and a fascinating writing job with Continental Pictures.

Rorimer was in a hurry to get up to his room and change his clothes. It was Saturday afternoon and Paul Collier was going to pick him up to play golf. So when the clerk at the Roosevelt handed him the letter Rorimer stuck it in his pocket and made for the elevators.

Later on, attired in linen knickers and a light pull-on sweater, he telephoned for a bellboy to bring him some ginger ale and ice and pick up a suit to be pressed.

At the knock on his door he said, "Come in," and Collier entered, triumphantly escorting the grinning Filipino boy and carrying the tray himself.

"Just in time," he announced cheerily. "Playing the nineteenth hole first?"

"I'm hot," said Rorimer, "and I'm thirsty, and I'm not in the best of humor. Help yourself while I clean out the pockets of the suit."

Collier, mopping himself a drink and taking it over to the comfortable arm chair beside the window, said, "What's the matter, Wan? Finding they don't appreciate your talent at Continental?" He stretched his long, well-proportioned frame lazily and reached for one of Rorimer's cigarettes.

Dan grunted. "I learned today that they've cast Frederick Atwood as the newspaper reporter in 'Grim Holiday.' Can you imagine that shell doing a convincing job as a newspaper man?"

"You should be glad," Paul Collier told him, "that they're starting at last to make a picture of your story. When they buy them it doesn't always mean that they produce 'em. They do funny things in Hollywood." He sighed. "Hurry up and grab your drink, Dan. I'm parched."

Anne Winter came from Tulsa to break into the movies.

Rorimer tipped the bellboy and dismissed him. "Here's a letter," he said, "from Ziggy Young. He's picked up his glass, said 'Here's how,' and sat on the bed."

"Down the hatchway," Collier responded mechanically. "What's Ziggy up to?"

Rorimer ripped open the letter, read and frowned. "It's long enough," he said presently. "I'll read the postscript—Ziggy always put his news in a great big P. S. He was never known to put the punch in his lead."

"How much does he want to borrow?" Collier asked lazily, and Rorimer got up from the bed with an oath. "Can you beat that?" he exclaimed. "He wants me to look up some girl friend of his out here and try to get her a job in pictures. Me!"

"Listen. He's regular guy for once in your life and do me a favor.—And I've been doing nothing but favors for him ever since I've known him.—There's a swell little girl out here in Hollywood from that dear old Tulsa, the girl that Ziggy Young is in love with. Her name is Anne Winter and her family and my family have been just like that ever since my voice started to change."

"That's a long time," said Collier. "Don't interrupt," said Rorimer. "I've just learned from my mother-in-law that Anne left for Hollywood about two weeks ago, all fired up with ambition to break into the movies. Her folks don't think much of the idea, but Anne's a trifle bull-headed."

"Most of them are," Collier observed.

"Listen," Rorimer said and continued reading. "I haven't seen Anne for about five years. She was nothing but a kid then—a trifle Ziggy and wife's good looking. If she's never will be, and if you don't look her up and buy her a dinner whenever she's hungry I'll be off you for life. Maybe you can get her some kind of pull or you wouldn't be out there yourself. And those big stars like Clara Bow and Dolores Del Woods can't last forever, so why not give Anne a chance?"

"That," Rorimer announced, announced, flinging the letter down on the bed. "What I call a lot of crust. I should spend my time and money being nice to a friend of Ziggy Young's family down in Tulsa."

"Collier was laughing heartily. "You haven't got a chance in the world to duck it," he said. "I'll bet Ziggy's already written to dear little Anne and she'll be expecting to hear from you." He added that the next time he saw Dolores Del Rio he would tell her something to give her a laugh.

Collier saw them all. He wrote a daily column on Hollywood for an impressively long list of papers, and spent most of his working hours around the studios or interviewing the stars in their homes. Like Rorimer, he had known Ziggy Young in newspaper work in New York, but he and Rorimer had become acquainted only on the latter's arrival in Hollywood. It had been a telegram from Young that had sent him down to Rorimer's train, and then, at Ziggy's request, to attempt a practical joke.

Dan Rorimer got his clubs from the closet and announced he was ready to play golf. "Get that suit down," Rorimer said, "and then, at Ziggy's request, to attempt a practical joke."

"As big as a bird seed," said Rorimer.

"Asperry. Denny my boy, you can't throw Ziggy down. What's Miss Winter's address?"

"Some place on Romaine street."

"Let me see that letter. I'm going to call up information and see if she has a phone listed."

"He bustled himself at the telephone and, after getting information, announced that there was no number. "Got a privately listed telephone, I suppose," said Rorimer a little bit early. "Big stunt. Every extra girl in Hollywood has one." He observed that it hadn't taken Anne Winter long to learn the ropes and that it would mean extra trouble to drive out to her address to look her up.

"Send a telegram," said Collier. "Tell her to call you up and leave her phone number."

"All right. And I'll send Ziggy Young a telegram, too."

They went downstairs. At the telephone desk Rorimer wrote a message for Anne Winter, explaining that he was a friend of Ziggy Young's and would like her to get in touch with him at the Roosevelt.

To Ziggy Young he wrote: "Am looking up Miss Winter stop I hope you get murdered in a speakeasy."

Upstairs, changing clothes again, Dan gave the matter some thought. He was still indignant at Ziggy Young's habit of taking everything for granted and he didn't relish the idea of chaperoning some movie-struck girl around Hollywood. Why in thunder did people come to Hollywood, anyway, if they didn't have a job lined up? They only added to an already aggravated unemployment problem.

He certainly wouldn't have come out here, he told himself as he kicked off his shoes, if he hadn't been given a contract. And he hadn't asked for his job either. If he had, he probably wouldn't have got it. It had been a case of Continental Pictures liking a couple of his published stories and buying one and taking an option on the other. And then the executive at their New York office had talked about the opportunities for good dialogue writers. And then the contract, which he had signed, had called for a girl friend of his to be brought to Hollywood. And he had thought of Anne Winter. And if she has a girl friend I'm out of town."

Collier had said he was going to Long Beach. Rorimer picked up the slip of paper and read it again. He thought: "I don't have to call her up—not tonight, anyway." Still, he had committed himself to Ziggy Young, and he had nothing to do tonight.

He rang for some ginger ale and finished dressing. It was warm. Feb. 15, and just like summer. Probably morning in New York, he thought. He hoped Ziggy Young was knee deep in slush, covering a fire or something.

When the bellboy came Rorimer filled a glass, drank it and picked up the telephone. "Gladstone 5855," he said.

Waiting for the connection, he reminded himself that he never did have any luck on blind dates. Just a big sap, he thought, and fervently cursed Ziggy Young again.

"Hello," he said. "Is this Miss Anne Winter?"

"This is Dan Rorimer—Ziggy Young's friend. You got my telegram, I see."

"Miss Winter" said she had and that it was kind of him to take the trouble. She added that it was nice to hear from one of Ziggy Young's friends.

Her voice was pleasing. Rorimer was altogether unprepared to find it so nice and low, and he had expected a strident sound, full of freckles and long legs. It had poised. It made him think that its owner knew exactly what to do with it.

For an awkward moment he paused. Then he said, "Well, how do you like Hollywood?" And thought immediately that it sounded very silly.

"I'm in love with what I've seen of it," said Miss Winter. "You see, I've had a rather bad cold and have to stay in. I'm not, she hastened to add, "blaming it on your climate. I caught it on the train coming out."

Rorimer laughed. "I'm not a Californian," he said. "I'm a stranger here too."

Rorimer said he felt a little courage himself and glanced toward the tray on the writing desk. "Are you busy this evening?" he ventured.

"That's fine," Rorimer said. "If you haven't eaten, perhaps you'd like to dine with me. If you're at all like me, you're not crazy about eating alone."

"I think that would be lovely," said Miss Winter. "I was just about to go out to dinner when you called."

"It's a date then," said Rorimer. "And later maybe we can dance—unless you think your cold..."

"Oh, I'm entirely over it now. And I'd like to very much."

Rorimer said he would be over as soon as she was ready. "We needn't dress unless you want to."

"Then I'll be ready when you arrive."

He hung up the receiver feeling decidedly better. He even felt friendly once more toward Ziggy Young. Standing before his dresser mirror he gave a final careful adjustment to his tie and with military brushes did a little unnecessary work on his hair.

It was brown hair, rather wavy and of a slightly coarse texture that, once combed, required little attention. But Rorimer brushed it anyway—straight back above the ears—and glanced critically at the part. A lamed reflection looked back at him from the glass, strong mouthed, firm of chin and blue of eye. A not unpleasant face, especially with regard to the eyes, which had little laughter wrinkles at the sides and were intense in their business.

Rorimer's watch showed a quarter after seven. He slipped on his coat and selected a fresh handkerchief and stood tall and straight before the glass while he put on the hat that he wore only at night. His days since coming to southern California were bareheaded ones.

A block away from the hotel was the garage where he kept his car, a sturdy roadster of low price but sporty lines. The evening, he reflected, climbing in behind the wheel, might turn out rather well after all. A girl with a voice like Anne Winter's, he told himself, would have to possess more than ordinary charm or else the whole world was wrong. He hummed a few bars from the theme song of a new picture as he drove.

He brought his car to a stop presently in front of a small apartment building and found, after looking at the letter boxes in the vestibule, that Miss Anne Winter lived in Number Two. A door opened half way down the ground floor corridor in answer to his ring and the "blind date" came advancing to meet him.

She said, "Hello, Mr. Rorimer," in a nice conversational manner. "You see, I was ready."

Dan, feeling her warm handclasp and noting the brilliant perfection of teeth revealed by her smiling lips, vowed that he would send Ziggy Young a couple of the finest ties on Hollywood boulevard. His "How do you do, Miss Winter?" sounded stuffy formal to him and entirely inadequate. Holding the street door open for her to pass through ahead of him, he murmured something about hoping he hadn't kept her waiting too long for dinner.

"Of course not," she assured him. "You got out here so quickly you must have flown."

Rorimer said, "Well, here's my airplane—hop in."

"Are you a good pilot?" she asked.

"Perfectly trustworthy as long as my mind is on my work," he assured her, and was rewarded by the pleasant sound of her low-pitched laugh which told him that none of the implications of his remark had escaped her.

"Now then," Rorimer said, climbing in beside her, "where away? Any choice in the matter of eating places?"

She told him she preferred to leave the choice to him. "I really haven't been around much—honestly. You don't know what a conscientious invalid I have been. I've obeyed the doctor's orders absolutely—in bed every night by nine for a whole week. . . . But I mustn't bore you, talking about a cold in the head. Anyway, I'm feeling gorgeous now."

Rorimer resisted a temptation to tell her that she looked the same way. Her eyes, dark and wide and vivid, shone brightly in the gloom of the car and her hair, he suspected, must be coal black beneath the tight-fitting helmet-shaped hat.

He said, "Have you been to the Brown Derby?"

"Just once—for lunch."

"Let me see, now. Would you like to go to the Blossom Room at the Roosevelt? That's a good place to eat and dance, but it's a little early. I'll tell you; let's have dinner at the Brown Derby and then go to the Blossom Room to dance."

She nodded her head vigorously. "Check!"

"We're taking off. Stand by for a loop," he said, and swung the car around in the street in a tight arc.

Some minutes later, as they were being shown to a table in the restaurant, Rorimer heard someone call, "Hello, Dan!" and he turned to see a young man waving to him from one of the tables along the wall.

Rorimer said, "Hello, Johnny," and saluted, and when he helped Anne Winter with her coat he said, "Hello, Dan!" and he turned to see a young man waving to him from one of the tables along the wall.

placed dishes before them, but said, when he had departed again: "You haven't finished. I can't eat until I hear the rest."

There was, Rorimer said, little else to tell. Someone at Continental had thought he liked Rorimer's stuff well enough to offer him a contract. "Someone without much judgment. . . . And that's the end of the story."

His deprecating way of telling it gave Anne Winter the impression that he was not too fond of talking about himself. She said gravely, "I'm sure that's not the end; it's just the beginning of you."

"You're very kind," Rorimer said, "but now that I'm here they don't know what to do with me. He added that he guessed he was lucky. "In fact," he said, eyeing her with laughing but bold intentness, "I know I'm lucky."

She laughed delightedly, a pleasing low ripple of sound, but ducked her head in pretended confusion. Rorimer liked the way her long lashes swept her cheeks when her eyes lowered.

"Have they made a picture yet from your story?" she asked.

"What is the name of it?"

Rorimer said that production was about to start. "Grim Holiday," he said, was his story. "But Lord knows what they'll call it when they're through with it."

He spoke with a shade of resentment. Anne Winter, watching him thought she saw rebellion in his eyes and in the set of his lean jaw.

Anti-French Seed Is Strewn By Italians In Island Of Corsica

Leghorn, Italy. (A.P.)—Deep significance attaches to a tour of the island of Corsica, birthplace of Napoleon, just made by the Italian Automobile Club.

For growing agitation is arising in Italy crying that Corsica is Italian historically and ethnologically, and must return to Italy, whether by treaty or by war.

Corsica, Nice and Tunis would be in immediate dispute between France and Italy if war, always urged by certain sections of both nations, develop. And the prospect of gaining or losing these three possessions might well bring on a war.

Just off the coast is the island of Elba, Napoleon's place of exile, now owned by Italy. Rome itself is only 150 miles away. And just south of Corsica is the Italian island of Sardinia, from which the Italian Kings derived their title.

In the Italo-Turkish war of 1912, when friction between France and Italy arose over Italy's seizure of some French ships, France massed troops and warships in Corsica, and thus intimated to Italy that she would protect to overrun Sardinia from Corsica. The ship seizures stopped.

Corsica has been French property since 1768. Previously, for 468 years, it belonged to Genoa. The Italian city sold it to France at about the time of the birth of Napoleon in Ajaccio, so that some dispute has arisen as to whether Napoleon was born an Italian or a Frenchman. It is recalled, however, that Napoleon, a Corsican, spoke of Italy as his native land when he made his first Italian invasion. Now the island has a population of 375,000.

A Roman bookshop is exhibiting in one of its windows a map with Corsica, Nice, Tunis and the Dalmatian coast painted red. Italy would dearly love to regain or recolor these territories. But the coloring of red is appropriate, for undoubtedly much blood would flow before she could get them.

Western Life a Puzzle To King of Abyssinia

BY MINOTT SAUNDERS

Paris.—When Ras Tafari, who had been co-ruler of Abyssinia for many years, recently proclaimed himself King of Kings, successor to the Queen of Sheba and descendant of King Solomon, he didn't surprise his friends in France. On his visit to this country several years ago, Ras Tafari made it quite plain that he was expected to do unexpected things from a political point of view.

"What good is an army to the head of a state unless he can use it to fight for him," the Ras remarked as he departed puzzled by the strange ways of western civilization. Western ideas were just too much for the Ras. He could not understand the need for peaceful elections, and he expressed himself accordingly.

Dead in Battle

Remembering this, his French friends were not surprised when they heard that in the political intrigue and bloodshed which enveloped Abyssinia for some time, the Ras should emerge as ruler. The methods by which he accomplished this coup still remain something of a mystery in Europe. The Ras assumed sole power on the death of his aunt, the Empress Sautida, who was reported to have died from shock when she was informed that her husband had been killed in battle. However, the court physician, Dr. Garabedia, after removing himself to a safe retreat, has declared that the Empress didn't die from shock, but from poison. And, intimating the physician, the Ras knows who administered it.

When Tafari, then regent of Abyssinia, visited Europe to have a look at the workings of western civilization, he attracted a great deal of attention. A colorful figure, tall, straight, black-bearded and with piercing eyes he moved through the crowds that surrounded him with majestic calm.

On his arrival in Paris, he was greeted at the railroad station with the ceremony and escorted through the streets of Paris by President Millerand and Premier Poincare. He was shown all the wonders of the western world, but the things that interested him most were new military weapons, and given a flight in the latest type airplane. Troops with great guns polished were lined up for his inspection.

While it was apparent that there was little in the visit which inspired the Ras to enthusiasm—with the possible exception of new military weapons—he was always polite and lavish in his acknowledgment of favors rendered him. He gave jewels to many who won his favor, and to minor officials who escorted him he usually gave an elephant tusk. To several of the higher officials, he gave live zebras as a token of his esteem.

Quit the Country

During his visit France had a political crisis. The national elections returned a majority for the Socialists and Premier Poincare had to resign. President Millerand called upon Edouard Herriot, as Socialist leader, to form a government, but Herriot refused because the Socialists felt that Millerand, as president, had out-spokenly supported Poincare during the campaign, and a president of France is not supposed to have political leanings in office. So Millerand had to resign.

This was all explained to Ras Tafari. It meant nothing at all to him. Here, out-spokenly, he found the country with a new president and a new premier. Yet there had been no fighting, no bloodshed. His friends, Millerand and Poincare, who had greeted him on his arrival were no longer in control of the country.

The Ras could understand this; but he couldn't understand why they should step out without fighting for their jobs. Then he made his prophetic remark: "What good is an army to a ruler of a state unless it can fight for him."

In the kindest manner, his French hosts attempted to explain it. But the Ras shook his head. No battles, nobody killed, not even a shot fired. With all that magnificent army, that strong navy, and that excellent air service, Millerand and Poincare had quit.

Sorrowfully, Ras Tafari prepared to quit the country. Surrounded by his large retinue, and distributing zabras, jewels, and elephant tusks on his way, he went home to live his own life. From Europe he had learned one thing—the value of the airplane as a military weapon. He introduced them to his own land. And when he became king he decorated a French straggler in his service for valor.

Queen of Hearts

Muchly-Married Daughter of Congressman Discards Three Diamonds and Weds for Fourth Time.

Here is Mrs. Jean Bankhead Hoyt-Hoyt Butt Lee, daughter of Congressman, Bankhead of Alabama, and the three men who have been her husbands in four marriages—one of them twice.

Reno, Nev.—Feggy Hopkins Joyce—she of the penchant for used marriage certificates—has a rival for the throne of queen of hearts in the matrimonial game.

By the recent acquisition of her fourth husband in two years, Jean Bankhead Hoyt-Hoyt Butt Lee, daughter of Congressman W. B. Bankhead of Alabama, has equaled vivacious Peggy's record.

The much-married and often divorced Jean received her first diamond from Morton Hoyt, son of former Governor Henry M. Hoyt, of Pennsylvania, 10 years ago.

After several years of wedded life they decided to dissolve the partnership and Hoyt took the train for Reno, while his wife went to London to visit her actress sister, Tallulah Bankhead. They were divorced in 1922.

But it was only a few months later that they agreed that it was all a misdeal and were married again. Then, of all places, they went to Reno to make a happy home, within walking distance of the divorce court.

Mrs. Hoyt didn't like the far west, however, and her husband did, so it wasn't long until their second marriage went into the discard.

About this time, Mrs. Hoyt met W. Lawson Butt, Nevada University football star, and fell in love with him. They were married, but this romance also ended in the divorce courts after a few months.

And now the former Jean Bankhead is making another bid for marital happiness with Howard Lee, the famous polo star, to whom she was married on July 1—at Reno.

OUR STATE JOINS SAFETY CAMPAIGN

Enters "Save-A-Life" Drive; Rogers, Stoekel Represent Connecticut.

Connecticut's entry into a new England-wide "Save-A-Life Campaign" to be conducted simultaneously in the six states during August, was marked today by official representation at a meeting in Boston of the chief executives and motor vehicle commissioners and a statement by Governor John H. Trumbull asking the people of this state to cooperate.

Lieutenant-Governor Ernest E. Rogers and Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoekel were designated to present the Connecticut plans for participation to the governors and other officials.

The loss of life, the suffering from injuries and the damage to property caused by motor vehicle accidents is appalling. In general these distressing incidents are avoidable and to that extent they can be and must be prevented. In an extraordinary effort to attain this end, Connecticut in conjunction with the other New England states, is about to enter upon a definite "Save-A-Life" campaign.

For many years this state, through its various official agencies, has emphasized safety work in this connection. Its policy in highway construction has been to eliminate dangerous physical conditions, its policy in administering the laws governing the operation of motor vehicles has stressed the education of the public in automobile safety and its policy of traffic control and police enforcement has been framed to meet the increasing complexities of the situation.

There has also been a most gratifying cooperation, in safeguarding life and property, upon the part of the press, chambers of commerce, automobile and civic clubs, local committees, schools and colleges, public utility companies and other large business corporations—all of which has developed high standards of responsibility and is prophetic of permanent advance in accident prevention.

Concerted action by all of these effective agencies, both public and private, combined with a like sincere effort on the part of the individual motor vehicle owner and operator in the state, is bound to result in a betterment of the existing serious condition, not only at this particular time when the attention of all New England is being directed toward remedying it, but will be of permanent value in making traffic in the future.

Therefore, I urge that the coming month of August be observed as a special "Save-A-Life" period and I hereby request all public officials and all organizations and citizens to unite in demonstrating the great possibilities for good in such movement, that all motor vehicle owners and operators, in addition to exercising caution and consideration in their public contacts, make sure that the mechanical equipment of their cars is in a suitable condition for highway use.

Particular attention should be given in traffic, including pedestrians, bicyclists and drivers of animals, exercise ceaseless care to the end that Connecticut highways may become safe and that their utility for pleasure and business purposes be made fully available to all users of them, with detriment to none.

ESCAPE OF CONVICTS, ONE FROM THIS STATE, BLOCKED Trenton, N. J., July 29.—(AP)—Two convicts attempted to escape from the New Jersey state prison at daybreak today. Guards thwarted the attempt.

The other, Benjamin Nerenberg, 23, a lifer, gave up his effort. Land broke out of the Wethersfield, Conn., state prison in 1925.

Rothstein Mystery Is Revived In Play Starring the Girl He Loved

(By Gilbert Swan) New York—Somewhere between Fourteenth Street, on the fringes of Greenwich Village and Chelsea, and 41st Street, on the fringes of what turned to be the cardiac center of the amusement world, things have happened during the week.

In Fourteenth Street, Miss Eva Le Gallienne, is making of Shaker's "Lilium." And a lovely lady was she.

And in 41st Street, Miss Inez Norton is recreating the Inez Norton who once was the heart-throb of the late Arnold Rothstein, murdered gambler. Miss Norton is leading lady in a play titled, "Room 249," which, by some grimly realistic concept of the playwright, happens to be the number of the room in a Manhattan hotel in which Rothstein met death during the recent notorious poker game.

Naturally enough, a play thus based is not likely to be a good play but it is certain to be an interesting document. And so it is. Interesting productions of the sometimes-gay-white-way had to do this season with events made famous by the newspaper headlines. "The Last Mile" was based upon an actual execution. Last season "Machinal" was built upon the charred remains of Ruth Snyder and Judd Grey. "The Royal Family" was written around the Barrymores. "Gambling" was presumed to be a chapter out of the life of the gambler, Canfield. "Driver's Death" was a tragedy, when turned into a play, was the story of an actual murder trial.

At any rate, Miss Inez Norton has the grisly job of watching each evening an actor, disguised under a theatrical name, being "taken for a ride" even as her sweetheart was. Miss Norton, however, is a very so-so actress, although a more than passingly attractive blonde type, quiet of manner and pleasant of voice.

Miss Le Gallienne, who already wears an artistic croix de guerre for fighting the battle of the little theater and winning most nobly, has often shown signs of being an actress of great ability. In "Romeo and Juliet," this enterprising and lovely lady adds laurels that are not likely to fade. At the moment, the critical young men of Manhattan are criticizing her praise in a rather loud tone. For not only does she act Juliet as seldom Juliet has been acted in these parts, but she has directed one of the loveliest stage pageants to be seen in the city.

Old Home Sunday will be held at the chapel Tuesday, evening at 8 o'clock (S. T.). The date for the Sunday school picnic has been set for August 7, at Elizabeth Park. Anyone wishing transportation notify Mrs. A. J. Vinton at Lawrence Hill.

There will be 38 stations on the hook-up, and a copy of her speech will be sent to every extension worker in the United States. Miss Kingsbury is the first girl to be chosen from the state of Connecticut on this program. Joseph Woodhouse was the first boy; he was chosen last year.

NORWALK GETS BIGGER INDUSTRY BY MERGER Norwalk, July 29.—(AP)—The Norwalk Chamber of Commerce today announced that negotiations have been concluded whereby the Segal Lock Company of New York will move its entire Brooklyn plant to Norwalk and that the lock-making activities of the firm will be concentrated here.

Some time ago the Segal company purchased the Norwalk Lock Company, one of the oldest lock manufacturing firms in the country. The Norwalk company's small force since then has been gradually increased to 350 by the Segal company and the removal of the Brooklyn plant here will mean the employment of 200 and more additional help.

Choir rehearsal for the music for

Le Gallienne, as "Juliet" Wins Praise From Critics.

The theater has been going to the newspaper headlines quite persistently this season, and so here you see Inez Norton, sweetheart of the murdered gambler, Arnold Rothstein, in a scene from a play, "Room 249," which dramatizes the sensational murder mystery. This is one of the few instances in which an actress played upon the stage a role similar to that she played in life.

For something like two seasons now, as good theater lovers should know, this brave and apparently untiring young woman has held out against Broadway in an old-fashioned playhouse on Fourteenth street. There, at a dollar a seat, she has proved that Chekov, Ibsen and the other superior playwrights can be presented at a profit and a fee within the reach of the poor man's purse.

Incidentally, it is said that Miss Le Gallienne heads the one theater enterprise which Otto Kahn has backed which paid Mr. Kahn back his money. Realizing this, and recalling all the other enterprises Mr. Kahn has supported, it does seem a bit odd that some of the financial pressure should not be removed from Miss Le Gallienne's experiment, so that she would have more time and opportunity for acting.

And Sir Harry Lauder, celebrating 45 years on the stage, comes back with gray hair and favorite old songs and the announcement that he's going to stay on the stage for five years more and, upon the celebration of his fiftieth season, he'll call it a lifetime and retire.

From all appearances, there seems to be no reason why he shouldn't go on and on. Despite his years he still delivers his songs with that particular gusto that made him famous and popular.

CHARGES LAWLESSNESS IN 'GIANT' QUARRYING

New Haven Group Alleges That Injunction Has Been Violated—Hearing Today.

New Haven, July 29.—(AP)—The Sleeping Giant Association, which seeks to stop further quarrying on the head of the Sleeping Giant Range at Mt. Carmel, today was prepared to resist the effort of the company which has been quarrying there to have a temporary injunction against it vacated. This injunction was issued on July 23.

The company has been attacking the face of the hill on the Whitney Avenue side, which in outline as seen from a distance makes the mountain resemble a giant's head.

It was understood prior to the hearing, which was to be held at Bridgeport this morning, that the association would claim that quarrying has continued since July 23 in spite of the injunction.

Okla. City, July 29.—(AP)—A group of politically minded voters were offered slates of candidates including two impeached governors, two oil millionaires, a woman and a blind former senator from which to select senatorial and gubernatorial nominees at the primary today. Managers at the municipal offices predicted the possibility of anyone receiving a majority, which would necessitate a runoff primary August 13, and a convention for Oklahoma.

Unique Toronto Hospital for Sick Members of Finny Tribe Employs X-Ray, Surgery and Medicines to Restore Them to Health and Happiness.

Toronto—Honest, it isn't the heat... nor the humidity... and it isn't just another "fish story," either!

The fish hospital is in the Walker House Hotel Aquarium. Jimmy Palmer, the manager, gets fish from everywhere. When they are well again he sends them home—puts each fish in a vacuum bottle two-thirds full of water...

Unable to find just what was the matter, he took it to the Toronto General Hospital and had it X-rayed. The X-ray showed a small jagged stone, about the size of a bean, inside the fish. Palmer promptly took the fish back to the aquarium, operated on it, took out a bit of flint, and put the fish back in its tank...

Digitalis occasionally settles such cases; sometimes it is necessary to lance the fish and let the dropsical fluid out. This disease, says Palmer, is rather baffling, and no certain cure has been found.

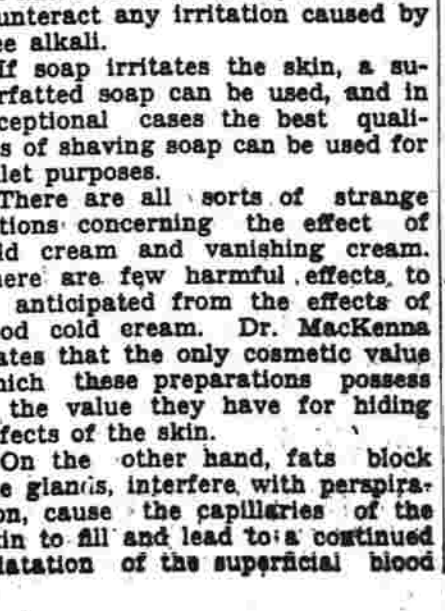

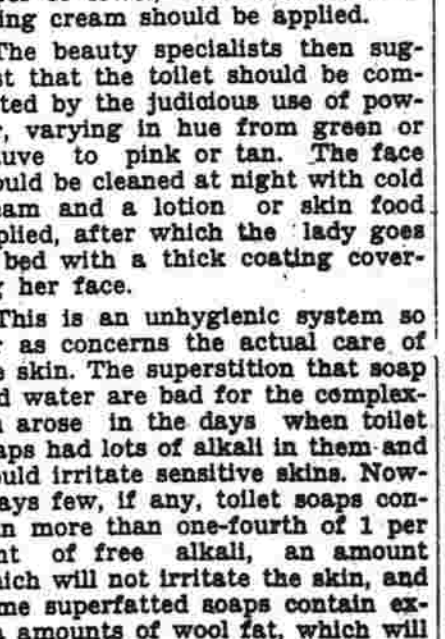

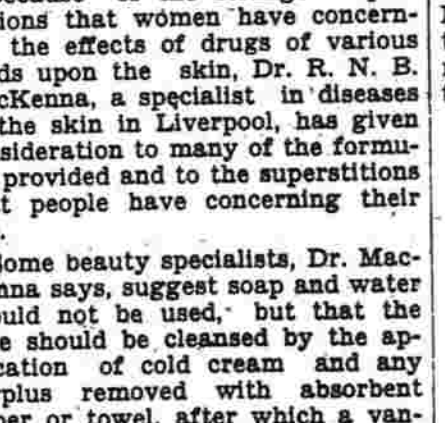

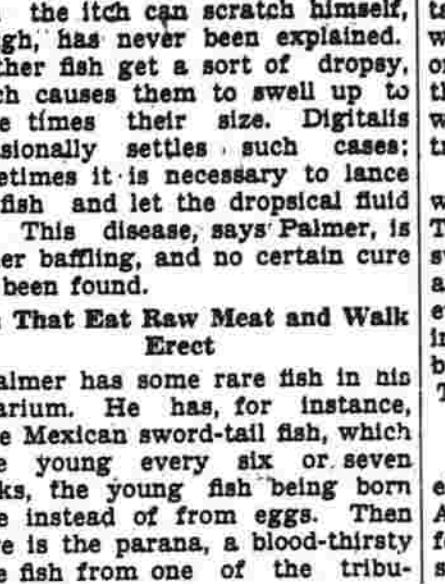

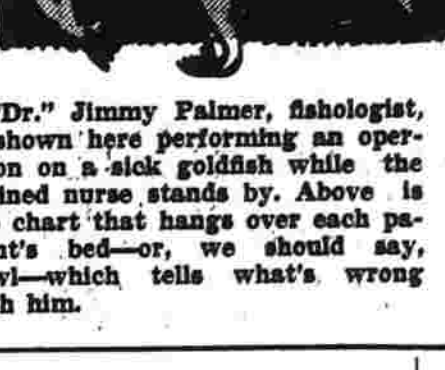

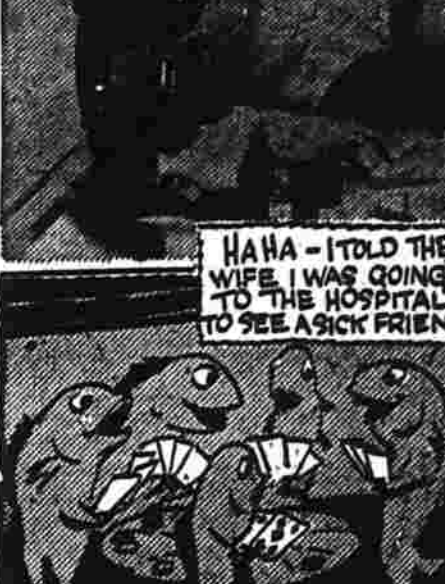

Palmer has some rare fish in his aquarium. He has, for instance, some Mexican sword-tail fish, which have young every six or seven weeks, the young fish being born alive instead of from eggs. There is the parana, a blood-thirsty little fish from one of the tributaries of the Amazon. This fish, which is only four inches long, eats only raw meat and will kill anything that comes in its tank...

PARTIES ARMING FOR FALL ELECTION

Conventions Likely To Be In Successive Weeks In September—Levitt A Factor.

(By Associated Press.)

Both major political parties in Connecticut have begun to grid on the armor of battle for the fall elections. State Chairman James J. Walsh called a meeting of the Democratic state committee for Bridgeport, Thursday, several days ago and today calls for the Republican state committee meeting issued by State Chairman J. Henry Rosaback were in the mail.

Both committees will set the date and place for state conventions and the advance forecast is that the Democrats will meet at Hotel Griswold, Eastern Point, right after Labor Day, and the Republicans at Foot Guard Armory, Hartford, possibly the second week in September. Several times the conventions have been held in the same week, one following the other so closely that convention officers of the first convention have had to hustle the wind-up to have the hall cleared for the second convention.

Grant Namsing of Rogers Both state conventions will have more than usual interest for the so-called off-year. It has been conceded within the party lines that Lieutenant Governor Rogers of New London will be nominated for governor after that convention there will be the question of the attitude of Prof. Albert Levitt, who is an independent Republican, towards the state ticket.

The Democratic convention will have to find a standard bearer and of several names mentioned for governor none has yet rallied a support which ensures nomination.

National Commitman Archibald McNeil at the state committee meeting Thursday may outline his own opinion of the issues to be fought out at the state election. He has expressed himself several times at group meetings that the party should carry the fight to the Republicans, taking advantage of the skirmishing which is being done by Prof. Levitt. At this preceding it likely several names will be brought forward as possible candidates for the governorship.

Fifth District In the Congressional districts attention already has turned to the Fifth where the Democrats are seeking a candidate to run against the Republican nominee, who is likely to be State Senator E. J. Gove of Waterbury. The Democratic delegates chosen in New Milford last night were understood to favor Martin E. Gormley of Naugatuck, who has a canvass of Litchfield county end of the district well in hand.

In Waterbury yesterday Democratic mentioned former State Highway Commissioner Charles J. Bennett for the governorship. Mr. Bennett was appointed to state office by Governor Baldwin in 1911 but at that time it was generally understood Mr. Bennett was a Republican.

SWEET POTATO IN FABRICS NEW SCIENTIFIC PROSPECT

By EDWARD W. BLAKELIE, Associated Press Science Editor.

New York, July 26.—(AP)—Clothes containing a dash of the American sweet potato are next on the list of prospective scientific wonders.

New United States Bureau of Standard researches which aim to put sweet potatoes and other southern agricultural crops into the textile industry and boost the southern pine as a source of paper, were announced today by Theodore Swann of Birmingham, Ala., vice-chairman of the Alabama Industrial Development Board.

The bureau begins work next month on both projects, co-operating with Alabama Polytechnic Institute for textiles and the University of Alabama for paper.

Starch is to be the sweet potato contribution to what the world of men will wear. Known principally in collars as something that melts, starch also is a chemical with many other qualities, from food and glue-like adhesive to explosives and artificial silks, and it is particularly indispensable in weaving.

Serves Various Purposes It serves first as a protective coating, called sizing, which guards threads from wearing or losing their nap as they rub in the weaving process. In some goods the starch is removed, after weaving, by using chemicals. But it also may be retained in the finished products to enrich color, enhance sheen, make threads full-bodied or hollow or produce a texture more agreeable to the sense of touch.

American textile mills use 250 million pounds of starch annually, mainly made from Irish potatoes, wheat and corn. Millions of dollars worth of this starch is imported. The American sweet potato with a 20 to 25 per cent starch

Priest Of Iowa Village Is Made Bishop By Pope

Protivin, Iowa.—(AP)—The village priest of Protivin, which has 277 inhabitants and no railroad, has been appointed bishop of the Lincoln, Neb., diocese by Pope Pius XI.

BISHOP LOUIS KUCERA

The new bishop is the Rev. Fr. Louis Kucera, 41 years old. Of Bohemian descent himself, most of the 175 families in his parish here are Bohemian families.

The Lincoln diocese, to which he goes, also has a high percentage of Catholic Bohemian families.

There are about 80,000 Bohemians in the diocese, and about half of them are Catholics. The appointment of a priest of Bohemian descent to the bishopric is regarded as a friendly gesture to the Bohemian Catholics.

Father Kucera was born in Wheatland, Minn., in 1886. Most of his life as a priest has been spent as an educator rather than a pastor. For nine years he was a professor and dean of discipline at Columbia college, Dubuque.

He also has been active in the Convention of Catholic Workmen, a Bohemian fraternal organization. His appointment came as a surprise, although a friend, Rev. Edward Chapturan of Omaha, also a Catholic priest of Bohemian descent, jokingly told Father Kudera while visiting him only a short time ago that he soon would be made a bishop.

CHINESE REDS CONTROL CHANGSHA; BURN, LOOT

Foreign Gunboats, Forced to Leave by Low Water, Leave Few Non-Residents Behind.

Shanghai, July 29.—(AP)—Changsha, capital of Hunan province, apparently was doomed today as communists burned and looted their way through the city.

Foreign gunboats were forced to withdraw from the city due to the lowering of the river level. Foreign property worth millions of dollars thus was left at the mercy of the Reds. Burning and looting was going on unrestrained.

The majority of the foreigners left the city having boarded warships in the Siang river. A report yesterday, however, said three American missionaries had remained within the walled city, which has a native population of about 500,000.

The Communists, forming a well-disciplined force of 10,000 men, defeated the relatively small Nationalist guard remaining after the departure of government troops for the Honan and Shaantung civil war fronts.

Warned of renewed Communist activities, American, British and Japanese authorities had sent river gunboats to Changsha to protect their nationalities. Foreigners hastily boarded these vessels.

Changsha is a silk manufacturing center and the nearby territory produce metals. The city is surrounded by a wall twelve miles long and is famous for having withstood, alone of all the cities of South China, the siege of the Taipings rebels more than three score years ago. In recent years it has gained a reputation for the cleanliness of its streets, a rare thing in

'PEACE POLICY' MARKS ALASKAN POLITICAL JOUST

Juneau, Alaska. (AP).—No more are chips to grace the shoulders of Alaska politicians in dealing with the federal government.

Sobered by the economic depression caused by loss of population following the world war, a policy of soft persuasion is planned by National Commitman Archibald McNeil at the state committee meeting Thursday may outline his own opinion of the issues to be fought out at the state election. He has expressed himself several times at group meetings that the party should carry the fight to the Republicans, taking advantage of the skirmishing which is being done by Prof. Levitt. Belles And Wives Of Pacific Isle Lure Tars

Papeete, Tahiti.—(AP)—The Society Islands in the Eastern Pacific, inhabited by dusky belles, and flowing with cheap wine, were much to the liking of the tars of the American fleet at Papeete.

A broken cambacht forced the Arcturus to put in for repairs. When the ship was ready to sail, many of the crew preferred the cosy grass mats beneath the palms to the bunks in the forecabin.

Officers offered the enchanted seaman handcuffed and literally dragged them on board, and hung over the sides of the ship to attract sharks.

The long, gray, menacing shapes circling the vessel deterred those who felt inclined to swim ashore.

President Bagley Names Three to Supervise Club's Newest Activity.

Alexander Jarvis, Arthur Wilkie and Henry Smith were appointed to the Lions Camp committee by President George Bagley of the Lions Club at their weekly dinner and meeting held last night at the Hillside Inn, Bolton.

After dinner the club members inspected the new camp and grounds located on the west shore of Bolton Lake nearby the summer home of P. J. O'Leary. Plans were made for the immediate conditioning of the roomy camp building, formerly the property of the Bolton Notch Fish and Game club.

The newly acquired camp is located on high ground about 100 yards from the lake front, with plenty of space between the camp and the lake for recreation purposes. Fine parking space is available in rear of the cabin for a large number of cars.

The Lion's club intend to completely refurnish the spacious camp interior with furniture, piano, radio, etc. The work to begin tomorrow afternoon when a delegation of members will man scythes, brooms and axes at the Bolton lake front.

The property consists of a 40 by 20 cabin, well roofed, sheathed and painted. A large veranda extends the entire front of the camp facing the lake. A picturesque woodland path through the oak forest leads to the lake to a stone wharf, extending out into the water accommodating several boats for camp use.

A large barbecue pit on the property will be cleared and made ready for use and space is available for outdoor brick ovens for camp fires. Plenty of space for recreation is available on the six acres of oak woodland surrounding the camp and the nearly 400 feet of waterfront is a guarantee of seclusion in this ideal spot.

"RED" DIDN'T STEAL DOUGHNUTS; FOUND 'EM

So He Tells Judge But His Story Isn't At All Convincing—Jailed for 60 Days.

James "Red" O'Brien of Charter Oak street was given a sixty days' jail sentence in the Manchester Town Court this morning by Judge Raymond A. Johnson for petty larceny. Yesterday afternoon, Officer R. H. Wittala received a complaint from the manager of the A. & F. store at 1078 Main street to the effect that a man had walked out of the store with a package that contained a half dozen of doughnuts.

The officer had seen O'Brien in that neighborhood just a short time previous and lost no time in picking him up. He had the doughnuts and also he had two large bottles of beer which O'Brien claimed he had bought at McClellan's store on Main street. It turned out that O'Brien had actually paid for the beer but a new shaving brush that he found in his pocket could not be accounted for and the clerk at McClellan's store admitted that she had sold the man the beer but she had no record of the brushes were right on the counter next to the beer.

O'Brien's story to the judge about the doughnuts was not at all convincing. In fact it was not well thought out. He said that he went into the store to buy some potatoes and saw the doughnuts on the floor. He naturally picked them up supposing that his partner who was outside had dropped them when he was in the store. But it just escaped his mind to ask his partner if the doughnuts belonged to him.

In imposing sentence the judge said that the theft of the doughnuts was in itself a small matter, but O'Brien's court record and his reputation were to be considered. He is a general nuisance and every day that he spends in jail the town is so much better off.

Joseph Grimes of William street paid a fine of $10 and costs for speeding his automobile on Center street. He was arrested by Traffic Officer Raymond Griffin.

John Wynne of New Britain was in Manchester last night and when he drove down Main street at 9 o'clock this morning his light was not burning. Officer Martin stopped him to remind him of this fact and incidentally asked to see his license. He did not have a license and was detained at the police station for a hearing this morning. He pleaded guilty to driving without a license and a fine of $10 and costs was imposed.

Clarence Turkington of Garden street and Thomas Gardner of Center street are spending a week in Troy, New York, visiting with Joseph Addy, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Addy of Garden street.

BOYS AVERAGE 3 1-2 LB. GAIN AT HEBRON CAMP

Last Week of Camp a Lively One for Boys—Thomas Hagenow Best Camper.

The first period of the Kiwanis Camp closed Saturday morning when 24 boys left for home contented and with a gain of weight which averaged 3 1-2 pounds apiece. Danny Sheehan and Robert Fitzpatrick were the leaders in weight gain, each boy gaining six pounds during his stay of two weeks.

At the evening campfire the last night awards were made to the boys who were selected as the best campers. Thomas Hagenow was selected as the best all-around camper and was given a fine sweater which was donated by Thomas Ferguson. His brother, Robert Hagenow, was selected as the best camper of the Tunkia Tribe and received a baseball.

Danny Sheehan was best camper of the Mohawks and received a pair of sneakers donated by Wilfred Messier, and Michael Schuets of the Nipmink Tribe received a bathing suit donated by Charles McCann. Ray Bidwell of the Mohawks won a big league baseball as the best croquet player in camp.

The Mohawk Tribe won the most points in a contest carried through the two weeks' period. This contest included washing, kitchen duties, dormitory inspection, personal inspection, games, etc.

The last part of the week of the boys' stay was quite eventful. On Wednesday the camp was conducted by the boys. Tommy Hagenow was elected as camp director, Ray Bidwell as leader of the Mohawks, George Palmer as Tunkia chief, and Eddie Anderson, Nipmink chief.

The regular camp leaders were put through a merry life of dishwashing, kitchen police, sanitary duty by the boy officers, and the Boys' Day was a pronounced success from beginning to end. On Friday evening the entire camp set out on a "snipe hunt". All the boys were supplied with two small stoves which they were told to crack together to make a noise like the cry of the snipe which was described as an animal with long ears and short tail. Several burial bags were supplied to capture the snipe. These hunters were left on the road in the dark, and the sound of cracking rocks was heard for a half hour, but after a while the hunters returned empty handed. In the morning the boys were shown a box in which a captured snipe was supposedly secured. On opening the box a mirror concealed, reflected the face of each boy who peered therein.

The only charge is three and one-half per cent. per month on unpaid amount of loan.
