

ANDREE WAS NEAR POLE, NOTES STATE

Was Within 500 Miles of Objective When Blown Back; Was On Way Back to Civilization When Frozen.

Olo, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Salomon-Auguste Andree, Swedish balloonist explorer who in 1897 tried to fly to the North Pole in a balloon, was believed here today to have reached a point less than 500 miles from his objective, and to have been beating back to the inhabited world when death overtook him.

Dr. S. Horn, scientist with the expedition which August 8 found Andree's body, and those of his two comrades, Nils Strindberg and Knut Frank, on White Island, said he did not think their balloon landed on White Island, or Hvitoen, which lies between Spitzbergen and Fridtjof Nansen Land, since there were distinct traces of the party having arrived by rowing or walking.

On the back page of the balloon's log, one of two books found in the camp with the bodies, there is the notation, "83 degrees North 32 East," with the date of entry, July 18, 1897, seven days after the start of the balloon from Danes Island, Spitzbergen.

The position given is some distance north of the spot where the men's bodies were found, and about 475 miles from the Pole itself.

The captain of the sealed Brattvaag, which is bringing the bodies back to Tromsø, Norway, to arrive there September 10, said that the camp was arranged in intelligent manner. Moccasins and other wearing apparel found were very much worn, indicating long use. Andree apparently lived the longest. Rifles and instruments had been placed at his side; also there was his diary in which he wrote his last words.

Andree's body was said by the captain to be in an exceptionally good state of preservation.

RECALLS MEMORIES
London, Aug. 23.—(AP)—News of the finding of the body of Salomon August Andree, explorer-scientist, who set out from Danes Island in a balloon thirty-three years ago, recalls to old timers the interest manifested in aviation in those days.

The preparation and start of the Andree expedition presents a strong contrast with the present day North Pole and Antarctic ventures with airplanes and airships equipped with wireless.

It shows, incidentally, the remarkable strides in flying machines in thirty-three years. Newspapers reprinting stories of Andree's start for the Pole note that the only means of carrying his supplies was by means of carrier pigeons, several of which the explorer took in his balloon, the Eagle.

It is recorded that a carrier pigeon with a "ring stamped, the North Pole 142 W 47.62" was picked up on August 23.

OVER 2 MILLION UNEMPLOYED IN UNITED STATES

Figures Show Five Per Cent of Normally Employed Are Idle Now; Connecticut Has 32,192 Out of Jobs.

Washington, Aug. 23.—(AP)—A total of 2,508,151 able-bodied Americans, comprising two per cent of the country's total population, were listed today by the Census Bureau as unemployed last April and looking for work.

The total was announced on the basis of preliminary returns from every section of the country. The Bureau explained that six other classes of unemployed were not included in the present total, but added that those "without a job, able to work and looking for a job" unquestionably constituted the bulk of those to be listed as unemployed.

Not Yet Complete
Because tabulations have not been completed on the number of persons now gainfully employed, a definite comparison was not available. The Bureau estimated, however, employed would approximate 40 per cent of the total population. This would bring the number of idle to approximately five per cent of the normally employed population.

By states, the percentage of job seekers ranged from 0.5 in South Dakota and Mississippi to 3.2 in Rhode Island and New Jersey, and 3.3 in Michigan.

The other classes to be covered by the unemployment census include those having jobs but laid off without pay; persons unable to work; those having jobs and voluntarily idle, and vacationists and others drawing pay but not at work.

RESCUE FREIGHTER ARRIVES AT PORT

Has But Five Tons of Coal Left After Going Out of Course to Aid Ship.

Suva, Fiji, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The Norwegian steamer Penyrbyn which played an important part in the rescue of the passengers and crew of the liner Tahiti reached here today with only five tons of coal left in the bunkers.

For hours the little freighter stood by the doomed Tahiti while the liner Ventura, with more room for the 300 odd Tahiti passengers and crew, raced through the reef studded seas. Then, her mission accomplished, the Penyrbyn headed here for fuel.

Captain Salvesen said he received a radio Saturday requesting a sharp lookout be kept for lifeboats from the Tahiti. It was then supposed passengers and crew of the Tahiti already had abandoned ship. He said he sat in the cross trees all day Saturday and about 7:30 p. m., saw rockets fired from the Tahiti. The Penyrbyn reached the Tahiti at 10:30 p. m. The distressed ship seemed to be holding its own and the Penyrbyn stood by until the Ventura arrived Sunday.

NATIONAL AIR RACERS NEARING CHICAGO TODAY

Hundreds of Planes Converging on Windy City as Meet Opens — Hartford Group Take Off From Cleveland.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The 1930 National Air races roared into reality today. The knights of the sky rode hundreds of planes into the Curtiss-Glenview Airport, as six contest Derbies advanced on Chicago.

The program provided thrills aplenty; Army, Navy and Marine Corps maneuvers, balloon bursting contests; civilian speed races; the arrival of one Derby; a glider exhibition by Capt. Frank Hawkes; cross continent speedster, circus flights; and the top-hole European Night flying and an anti-aircraft barrage and an exhibition by Jimmy Doolittle in his "mystery" Moth—all on the opening day.

The two men Derby from Brownsville, Texas, after an overnight set chased in East St. Louis, Ill., was scheduled to finish at Glenview in the late afternoon.

The Men's Derby from Miami, Fla., was held in Augusta, Ga., yesterday by rain and the original schedule was resumed today.

Do You Remember Old County Fairs?

The Thrill of the Crowds; the Cries of the Barkers; the Blare of Brassy Music Will Never be Forgotten by the Oldsters of Today; Tommy Conran Tells Something About Them.

Do you remember when you were knee-high to a grasshopper, how excited you became when fair time came around? Everybody in town talked about it; mother baking pies for the exhibit; Aunt Susie was knitting a wonderful quilt; father was preparing to enter the very best sheep in the country; and Uncle Bill was boasting that "he'd show 'em a thing or two" with his oxen, Star and Buck on the drag.

And how you hoped for fair weather! Last year, you remember, rain fell in torrents on two of the fair days. That was something that you never could understand; why did it always storm on the Fourth of July, circus days and fair days? Fair days, by every right, should be fair days, now shouldn't they?

No School For a Day
As a special dispensation you were allowed to stay out of school. Even to this day you retain a vivid memory of seeing the truant officer himself at the fair grounds. Gosh! You never supposed he was human.

Well, the great day finally arrived. You arose early, stilled down an early breakfast without hardly tasting it, and departed for the fair grounds. All day long you sat as if you had been transplanted to a fairy land, and you wished you might take up a permanent residence in it.

With mouth wide open you stood first of all in front of the tent in which "Bozo" was longed for. You were told by a flashy gentleman in frock coat, fawn-colored trousers, shiny black shoes and a very tall stove pipe hat, had been captured by explorers in that "dark and little known continent, Africa."

At frequent intervals a fearful cry would issue from "Bozo's" tent and you shivered and wondered if your courage and budget for the day would allow you to spend a dime to see that "half-beast, half-man" as wild as a raging lion!

OLD GLASS BLOWERS
ALWAYS AN ATTRACTION
But Bozo was but one attraction on the midway. You wished you could have a million dollars that you could spend on the midway. There was so much to see and so little cash to go the rounds.

Next came the glass blowers. You wondered at their skill, and why you, too, weren't so accomplished. You remembered, however, how mother had told you that all glass blowers died young. That mitigated your sorrow to some extent.

SPELL OF THE CROWDS IS THOUGHT MAGNET.
THE fairs was one place where young America could accumulate a miscellaneous assortment of free advertising material. Yard sticks, automobile catalogs, government bulletins on the care of cattle and crops, by the armfuls. Mother said when you legged them into the house: "Land's sakes alive, where do you think you're going to put all that trash?" It was your memoirs of a gala occasion.

Local Man Sold 13,700 Blankets at County Fairs and the Beaches.

MANCHESTER has one veteran of the fairs in Tommy Conran, proprietor of Conran's Soda Shoppe at Depot Square. In his seven years as a concessionaire at a dozen Connecticut county fairs, as well as others in New Jersey and Massachusetts and the midways of Pleasure Beach, Savin Rock and Walnut Beach he has compiled an unusual record.

Tommy has disposed of 13,700 blankets in the various stands which he has conducted at all these fairs and pleasure resorts. Candy, another item which is as much a part of fairs and carnivals as the hotdog, was also checked for a total of 17,000 pounds. One year at Pleasure Beach the North End restaurant and bowling alley proprietor disposed of 7,000 pounds of the best grade chocolates and 5,000 blankets. During the Manchester Centennial a blanket stand operated by Mr. Conran distributed 990 blankets in Manchester and vicinity.

Again some of us, the more domesticated, linger long in the exhibition halted feasting our eyes on tables loaded with the products of the farm and fields. Potatoes, apples, plums, peaches and the garden truck are all arranged in sparkling rows and pyramids; the home canning and sewing exhibits have their large share of admirers. It is an old-fashioned, neighborly exhibition of many busy hands.

Farmer or business man; clergy or layman,—they all attend the county fairs. Each one develops an unusual capacity for food in all its branches from the lowly hot dog to the church or fraternal full course dinner.

Even the sober, dignified old judge may be seen at the county fair with hot dog mustard dripping from his whiskers, coolies and persimmons before the screaming African dodger, while a bunch of peppers urge the old boy on to greater efforts. Oh, yes—it's all a part of the annual fair. Culture goes by the board, youth off the cloak of years in the unhindered mingling of the masses.

ENTERS TOM CONRAN
COUNTY FAIR VETERAN
ALTHOUGH the old-time county fair is not what it was thirty years ago, there are enough of the old associations still operating each season to keep the spirit fresh in one's memory. Manchester has an individual, who at this time of the year conducts his permanent business as if under a spell of old days of county fairs. He is none other than Tommy Conran, proprietor of the Conran Soda Shoppe at Depot Square in Manchester.

His First Venture
"My first venture was at Walnut Beach at which place the original concessionaires numbered eight. I paid $250 for my first season and a good indication of the increase in this business can be obtained from the fact that the same stand that I rented fifteen years ago for that price was sold last year for $1,800. The original eight concessionaires had increased to 180 in the intervening years."

Tommy Describes
THE OLDEN DAYS
SAVIN ROCK, Myrtle Beach, Pleasure Beach, Walnut Beach are all down as cold assets in the life story of the North End's popular business man. Distantly removed from the fly-by-night carnival, these legitimate beach concessions gave the pleasure seeker a clean break. As Tommy tells it:

PRESIDENT GRANTS VISIT TO KIDDIES

Children Came All the Way From Texas and Wanted to See Him.

Washington, Aug. 22.—(AP)—President Hoover yesterday held up the reception of many callers to grant a special audience to smiling Gertrude Ann and Billy Windsor, who came all the way from Tyler, Texas, to see the executive and nearly lost out.

"I don't blame you for not wanting to shake hands with so many people, but isn't there some way we could just see you before we leave. I am eleven and Billy is eight."

"We have begged mother and daddy for nearly a year to bring us here and I'm afraid we won't get to come back for a long, long time."

"With love from Gertrude Ann Windsor." The President was shown the letter and immediately granted the children an interview and sent them away happy with autographed pictures of himself. Neither Gertrude nor Billy were shy when confronted by newspapermen.

"We enjoyed it fine," the little girl said with a smile. Billy was beaming too, and when asked what the President talked about, replied: "Oh, he told us a lot of things. He told us about a dog he got from the South Pole—or maybe it was the North Pole—and it was so warm for him here that whenever the ice-man came around he used to sit on the cakes of ice."

"Stop Ocean Flights," Is The Plea Of Weatherman Who Starts Them

By PAUL HARRISON.

New York. — Since James H. Scarr can't combine magic with his meteorology to sweep Atlantic skies clear of storms and fog and headwinds, he wants to do the next best thing—stop non-stop ocean flights.

With a record number of heavier-than-air attempts scheduled for this summer and early fall, the Chief Meteorologist here of the United States Weather Bureau has a foreboding look as he studies his charts and recording machines.

Scarr's office has supplied maps and data for the start of every west-east ocean flight. His painstaking research and frequent conferences with prospective conquerors of the ocean made him the friend of every one of them.

SUCCESSFUL ATLANTIC FLIGHTS

For more than ten years, from the arctic to the South Atlantic flyers have been spanning the ocean from both directions. Here is a record of successful crossings in heavier-than-air craft:

ROCK GARDENS BEAUTY THE MODERNIZED HOME

A definite part of the home modernizing plan is the beautifying of the home grounds. No home is complete until it has been planted with shrubbery and flowers and the lawn properly taken care of.

Lately there has been a vogue for rock gardens. Some home owners have started a rock garden simply by collecting an assortment of rocks of various sizes and kinds and starting a garden within their confines.

The true rock garden however, should be planted with those varieties of plants which are suitable for such a place. A number of plants are tried and true. They may be recommended as being suitable for the rock garden for the experience of well known nurserymen and seed merchants have indicated that they will succeed.

Among these varieties for the rock garden are the Sedum Lydium, a charming little redhead that holds first place among rock sedums. Another is the old fashioned Hen and Chickens which carries the botanical name of Sempervivum Tectorum. It is a hardy plant and suitable.

Again the cheddar or rock pink may be used to advantage. It is similar to the clove pink but grows in neat compact tufts.

The Thymus Vulgaris grows like the thyme but does not seem to be a nuisance. Its carpet of pink flowers throughout the summer and fall is most enjoyable.

A fifth variety which has been recommended for the rock garden is the Tunica Saxifraga, beautiful with grass-like foliage and dainty pink flowers. It may be enjoyed from early summer till late autumn and is often considered indispensable for the rock garden.

Another variety is the Iris Crisstata, a crested Iris of purest sky blue. It grows only about 4 inches tall and is a rock plant that is quite suitable for this type of garden.

These are rock plants that always satisfy and the average home owner will be very well satisfied by their selection for his rock garden.

RADIATOR ENCLOSURES BEAUTIFY INTERIOR

Home owners who have awkward looking radiators in the house may now secure metal enclosures who hide the ugliness of the radiator. These transform the radiator into a delightfully attractive piece of furniture.

The radiator enclosure has an additional virtue in that it prevents smudge on the wall over the fireplace. It may be so equipped that it aids in humidifying the room, a necessity where there is no provision for supplying moisture to the atmosphere.

Radiator enclosures come in a wide variety of sizes and may be secured without inconvenience to cover any existing radiator.

A HEAVY BILL

Little Rock, Ark.—W. T. Scott, of Texarkana, bought a radio set here for $118. The dealer had the set packed for shipment to Scott's home and sent along a bill. Scott came into the store one day, apparently with a limp. The store keeper, thinking that Scott had come to pay his bill, got out a pen to receipt it. To his surprise, Scott dumped 11,800 pennies on the counter—$118 worth. They weighed 84 pounds.

MANY SYSTEMS USED TO SUPPLY HOT WATER NEED

Copper Boilers May Be Installed for Gas Heaters; Galvanized Steel Durable.

By WILLIAM HARMON BEERS
Supply of hot water throughout the house is frequently furnished by gas heaters, of which there are many styles, some operated periodically and others maintaining a constant supply of warm water. There are systems of heating water by injection of live steam from a steam boiler, but these are used chiefly in large apartments and office buildings. Other steam systems warm the water by means of coils in the range boilers supplied with live or exhaust steam, but rarely are such systems used in ordinary housework.

Range boilers are of copper and plain or galvanized steel in all sizes from eighteen to 300 gallons' capacity. The size most frequently used for houses are thirty, forty and sixty gallons, the thirty-gallon boiler being sufficient for a house of moderate size and the sixty-gallon boiler furnishing sufficient water for a family of considerable size. Galvanized boilers are most frequently used, as they cost less than copper.

Galvanized boilers should be "extra heavy double riveted, guaranteed tested 250 pounds," as lighter boilers are not safe. Other boilers may be cold-welded (plain, painted or galvanized), in which case there are no rivets. Boilers of this class should be "extra heavy" or "double extra heavy, cold-weld, guaranteed tested 250 to 300 pounds."

Most copper boilers are polished on the outside and tinned on the inside. They are only used where pressure is light—not more than twenty pounds a square inch. "Safe" use, as they are reinforced on the inside with brass ribs running spirally around the boiler, making them non-collapsible.

Such copper boilers should be specified "guaranteed tested 150 pounds" or "guaranteed tested 200 pounds," as the case may be. One slight disadvantage of copper boilers is that they radiate heat more than galvanized boilers, tending to make the kitchen uncomfortable in summer and require polishing to keep bright.

All range boilers should be piped with a "circulating pipe" and should be equipped with a mud drum and blow-off cock at the bottom. When the blow-off cock is occasionally opened sediment collected at the bottom of the boiler can be blown out, thus insuring delivery of pure water at the fixtures.

Range boilers can be set vertically on iron supports, or horizontal tanks may be hung from the ceiling, depending upon the location. Vertical tanks are most often used when the boiler stands directly in the kitchen and horizontal tanks are frequently used for basement boilers. Hot water pipes are of copper, brass, white metal or iron. Lead pipes should never be used for hot water work, as lead will stand the fluctuations of heat and cold which prevails in a hot water line.

Large pipe should be used for connecting the water back with the boiler (not less than three-quarter inch), and the best method of connecting the boiler is to run the vertical hot water pipe from the water back to the top of the boiler instead of connecting it at the side. Good circulation is established by the long vertical pipe, whereas a short pipe connected at the side is a poor circulator. The cold water supply pipe should extend well down into the boiler.

Branches of pipe extend from the hot water boiler to the various fixtures, and these lines should never be nearer than six inches to a cold water pipe, for cold water might greatly lower its temperature. Sometimes on long runs it is well to insulate a hot water pipe with felt piping covering to facilitate retaining heat in the water.

INSTALL A LAUNDRY IN THE BASEMENT. MAKE IT COMPLETE

When finishing up the basement, electric lights should be installed with its concrete floor. Install a drain in that portion of the interior which will be set aside for the laundry. There are a number of obvious advantages in doing the family laundry at home and with the advent of electrical equipment, the house should be provided with a laundry.

The careful home owner will partition off a section of the basement for the laundry. Here will be sufficient space for the laundry proper and the drying room. By placing the laundry by itself flying ash dust from the heating plant will not invade this room to soil the drying clothes.

One or two basement windows should be installed over the built-in laundry tubs to provide ample light so that the laundress can see plainly while washing the clothes.

Electric lights should be installed also as often artificial light may be necessary on wash day.

Place a number of electrical outlets also conveniently so that the electric washer, the electric mangle and other laundry accessories may be used.

While the built-in tubs should be provided with hot and cold water faucets so that plenty of water is available, in one corner of the laundry a small gas stove should be installed for heating water when the tank is not filled with hot water. Many homes are not equipped with automatic hot water heaters and the gas stove becomes a necessity during certain seasons of the year.

The laundry should be placed near the rear exit for during pleasant weather the clothes will be hung in the back yard for drying rather than in the drying room.

McCLUSKEY FAILS IN TWO MILE RACE

Unable to Place in Steeplechase; Winner Sets Record; Four Other Marks Fall.

"Little Joe" McCluskey, Manchester's pride of the cinder path, who was sent to the National A. U. junior championships at Pittsburgh under the colors of the Recreation Centers, failed to place in his event—the two mile steeplechase—yesterday. The winner of the event was Harry Carter, former University of California miler, who set a new record of 10:58.2 N. Nelson, Denver A. C. was second, Carl Gerlic, Olympic Club, third, and Rolf Schilling, Deutscher Sports Club, fourth.

No information has, as yet, been received as to where the Fordham flash placed in the event, or whether he finished or not. Whatever took place, it was undoubtedly a bitter disappointment to the young miler, who had his heart set on qualifying for the coming meet with the British in Chicago.

By TED VOSBURGH
Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Their ranks reinforced by 20 new junior champions, the country's track and field elite assembled today for the National senior championships of the A. A. U.

As an added incentive the leaders were assured of places on the U. S. team that meets the British empire's best at Chicago Wednesday night. A flock of new talent uncovered in the junior title events yesterday, in which five new records were broken, vied with the established stars such as Eddie Tolan, George Simpson, Cy Leiland, Claude Bracey, Hector Dyer and Russell Sweet in the 100 yard dash. Steve Anderson and Lee Sentman led the hurdles; Tommy Warne and Fred Sturdy in the pole vault; and Leo and George Lermond, Ray Conger and Rufus Kizer in the mile.

Turning in a 9.7 performance for the new junior record in the century yesterday Ralph Metcalfe, young Chicago negro, served notice that the Tolands and Simpsons will have to travel to beat him. Among the other brilliant youngsters who won their spurs in the Junior meet are expected to try for senior laurels, as well, are four more record-breakers—Johnny Morris of Lafayette, La., high hurdler with a winning mark of 14.7; Ray Sears of Madison, Ill., winner of the mile in 4:21.5; Harry Carter, first in the two mile steeplechase in 10:58.2; and Ed Flanagan of the Boston A. A., who tossed the hammer 162 feet.

WILSON'S CIRCUIT MARK STANDS OUT IN NAT'L LEAGUE

43 Homers Ties Record With Month To Go; Chuck Klein Leading Batter.

New York, Aug. 23.—(AP)—The feat of Hack Wilson, husky Chicago outfielder, in equalling the National League's home run record, stands out above other hitting averages of the semi-official season.

Wilson, who has hit 43 home runs in 122 games, tied the record set by Babe Herman in 1924. He is now only 12 runs away from breaking the record.

Wilson's circuit has been a real success story. He has hit 12 home runs in his last 15 games, and his batting average is .345.

ATHLETICS NOSE OUT WEST SIDE DARKHORSES

The Athletics nosed out the West Side Dark Horses last night at Four Acres by a score of 4-2. The Athletics were on the mound for the losers and staged a wonderful come-back, limiting the "A's" to four hits. He completely baffled the Athletics for four innings, striking out six and only passing one man. But when the A's scored two runs on two hits and an error in the fifth he began to weaken.

Morgan Yacht Defeated First Shamrock In 1899

New York, Aug. 23.—Sir Thomas Lipton, whose Shamrock V now is being groomed for the yacht races off Newport, R. I., beginning September 23, called his first challenge series for the America's Cup in 1899. American boats already had successfully defended the coveted trophy nine times since it had been captured in England in 1851.

Though the wealthy Irish merchant then 51, knew practically nothing about yachting, his designer, William Fife, Jr., English naval architect, turned out a powerful and rather extreme type of racing craft.

Pierpont Morgan headed the New York Yacht Club syndicate which built the defender, Columbia. Its designer was Nat Herreshoff, the "Wizard of Bristol" whose son, Francis Herreshoff, placed second in the first race.

Nearly two weeks of calm and fog delayed the first race until October 16, when Shamrock led the Columbia over the line as the starting gun boomed. The run was fifteen miles to windward and return, and Columbia gained nearly ten minutes in beating to the outer mark. It also gained a few seconds on the home run before the wind, and won by a comfortable margin.

Everything is now O. K. Watson, the mystery has been cleared up. It wasn't the Pirates that played the Athletics at the Four Acres Tuesday evening for the league championship. The Dark Horses is the team that didn't play in the League but were in it. It is all clear!

YANKS CONTROL AMERICAN LEAGUE HITTING RECORDS

Pennant Chances Slim But New York Holds Batting Leadership; Grove Best Pitcher.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Only total collapse of the Athletics and Washington can give the New York Yankees the American League title, but Bob Shawkey's club has almost a corner on the various offensive leaderships.

Unofficial averages which include Wednesday's games today showed the Yankees still at the top in team batting with a mark of .311, the same as last week, while Lou Gehrig, Babe Ruth and Earl Combs between them had control of eight leaderships.

Gehrig cracked the pitching for a gain of eight points during the eighteenth week of the season, and had a comfortable lead over Al Simmons of the Athletics for the lead in batting in runs, with 144, an increase of six during the week, had total bases amounting to 344, and led with 177 safe hits.

Ruth batted out only one home run during the period, but his total of 44 was nine better than that of Gehrig, the runner up, and his collection of 132 runs was eleven more than Simmons had compiled. Combs led the junior circuit in triples with 16.

Green's Diamond Poor; To Play At Four Acres

Woodbridge Field Spoiled by Storm; Lineups Unannounced; Game at 3 O'clock.

With one game already chalked up in its favor and with but one more game needed to gain the right to meet the Bon Ami for the town championship, the West Sides enter tomorrow's struggle a prime favorite over Manchester Green, a team grimly determined to reverse the proceedings of last Sunday when administered a 4-2 beating.

The game will be played at Four Acres, starting at 3 o'clock. As before neutral officials, Carl Thorsell and Charlie Nagle will handle the contest. Originally scheduled to be played at Woodbridge Field, Manchester Green, the scene of the game was transferred to the West Side due to the poor condition of Woodbridge Field after the terrific hailstorm of last week.

The entire top layer of the diamond was washed off by the storm exposing a field of small stones, almost certain to cause injury if played upon. The diamond will have to be resurfaced and according to Sam Prentice the work will be finished in time for the play-off series between the Green and Bon Ami, which speaks well for the Green's optimism.

The line-ups announced are wholly tentative. The Green have not yet decided who will handle the pitching assignment, it being a toss-up between Poole and Sturgeon. Boisjau led the slab last week. A similar condition exists with the West Sides, three pitchers being available in Jones, Lock and Mantell. The latter did a splendid bit of work last week, allowing but four hits.

Both players tripped only after three sets of heads-up play in the quarter-finals.

been completed from School street through Eldridge street and within one block of the Maple street bridge. The School street section, which includes the building of the side walls and the covering of the brook, has been completed. The sidewalks will now be built from School street north. The open surface sewer is already covered from Maple street to Oak street. The flow of water is not great, but a hand pump has to be used to keep back the water while the work is being done. One of the hard parts of the work will be taken up next week. This will mean the laying of the flooring under the Maple street bridge. GOOD THINGS TO EAT

WEATHERWISE

Wet or dry, draught or tempest, hot or cold, this food business is the one kind of business that hardly knows there is such a thing as weather. "Folks have to eat."

Just the same the weather makes a lot of difference to the customer. When it is so hot or so cold or so stormy or so just plain miserable that one fairly detests to go out to market, it's pretty comforting to know that your marketman is ready, at the other end of the telephone wire, to serve you as understandingly, as considerately and as honestly as if you went to the food shop yourself.

Pinehurst's customers are troubled very little by the weather. The call 4151, they know, is going to answer in every way the purpose of the dreaded marketing expedition.
