LEAGUE'S PLEA FOR ARMS CUT GETS RESPONSE

Italy and Germany Join Britain in Demanding Action as Soon as Possible; France Against the Plan.

Geneva, Sept. 16.—(AP)—The voices of two neighbors of France, Italy and Germany, today were joined with those of British Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson and others in a plea for drastic measures toward disarmament, without waiting for security.

Signor Scialoja, spokesman of the Mussolini government in the absence of Foreign Minister Grandi, declared in the League of Nations Assembly today that Italy still is ready for a disarmament agreement which will reduce armaments to the lowest level consistent with national safety.

Closely following upon the address of the Italian statesman, German Foreign Minister Julius Tausen announced his own emphatic agreement with the principles enunciated by his British and Italian colleagues, in their appeal for the execution of that provision of the Versailles treaty which commits the victorious powers in the World War to enter an agreement for general reduction of their armed forces.

Must Not Wait

The position of these leaders—that disarmament is the world's greatest immediate need and must not wait upon security for its realization—is a direct negation of the French thesis that disarmament must follow security.

Great Britain, Italy and Germany also are generally agreed, their spokesman have indicated, that any scheme for European collaboration to solve the economic problem must be worked out in the League of Nations itself.

Interested in Speech

Dr. Curtius was heard with great interest by assembly observers in view of the results of Sunday's election in Germany, which sharply reduced the strength of his party in the Reichstag and indicated the representation of the German Nationalists several for the first time.

The tone of the foreign minister's address was regarded as quite moderate. He reiterated his former declaration that, regardless of results of the election, the German foreign policy would continue to follow the conciliatory lines laid down by Chancellor Stresemann.

The German foreign minister, in moderate tones, referred to Germany's desire for readjustment of her frontier. He said that as a move for the economic reorganization of Europe the only such attempt at European co-operation, as proposed by M. Briand, should be within the League.

Asks Publicity

Dr. Curtius spoke in German. "We consider," he said, "that it is essential that a disarmament conference should take place at the end of next year. We reckon on a just and equitable solution which will"

THICK FOG DELAYS STEAMER TRAFFIC

In New York Harbor and in Sound Vessels Anchored Because of Weather.

New York, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Trans-Atlantic liners, ferryboats and Long Island Sound steamers were delayed today by fog which hung low over the upper and lower bays and the East and North rivers during the night and early morning.

The fog, of pea soup density, delayed Staten Island ferries ten minutes and other ferries fifteen minutes before the rush hour period.

The White Star liner Majestic, with 1,944 passengers on board, was late in reaching Quarantine where she was due early today. The Saturnia, of the Cosulich line, with 810 passengers, among them the Italian delegation to the Fidas convention, was anchored at Quarantine since midnight unable to proceed because of the fog.

Just outside Quarantine were anchored the Minnekahda, of the Atlantic Transport Line, with 701 passengers and the American Merchant, with 45 passengers. The World, of the Munson Line, with 168 passengers from South American ports was anchored at Craven Shoals, near Quarantine, as was the Cambria, United States Army transport.

The fog was so thick in Long Island Sound that several night boats from Boston and other New England ports came to anchor off City Island and the Commonwealth of the Fall River Line discharged its passengers at the Whitestone pier in Queens.

Heavy Fog Prevents Today's Yacht Race

U. S. S. Kane, Newport Harbor, Sept. 16.—(AP)—The third race of the series for the America's Cup, scheduled for today, was called off at 10:26 a. m.

A pea soup fog, which had given signs of lifting, settled down again shortly after 10 o'clock and the committee decided that a race today was impossible.

At 10:20 the committee ordered all boats already at the starting line to return to port and six minutes later the postponement signal was hoisted.

Neither the Enterprise, American defender, nor the Shamrock V had left port.

The fog made navigation difficult. Two large yachts, identity of which was not learned, collided in the harbor.

POLICE HOLD GANGSTER AS A LINGLE SUSPECT

Admits Identity But Says He Did Not Know Chicago Reporter—Witness Says He Looks Like the Slayer.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Admission that he is Theodore (Red) Geisking but denial that he knew anything of the murder of "Jake" Lingle, Chicago newspaper editor, was made here today by a suspect picked up on a vagrancy charge.

Chicago detectives and an Indiana state policeman identified the suspect as Geisking. Then George Williams, Chicago detective, brought up a man who he said saw Lingle shot down in Chicago and saw the slayer flee.

"That looks like the man except his hair is different," said this man. His name was withheld by Williams.

Denies Murder

Geisking denied killing Lingle and said he did not even know him, but according to police he admitted he had been a whiskey runner and a hijacker. He was ordered held without bond on a fugitive and murder charge.

Geisking was arrested here Friday and held on a vagrancy charge and yesterday his bond first made at $5,000 was reduced to $1,000. Then Detective Sergeant Cecil Essel who had picked him up, noted the resemblance to published photographs of Geisking. A charge was filed and the bond automatically raised to $5,000.

When arraigned in Police Court, Geisking was held without bond on the murder and fugitive charges and his examining trial was set for Wednesday.

FIGHT FEATURES BOSTON CAMPAIGN

Mayor Curley and Democratic Chairman Donahue Engage in a Scuffle.

Boston, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Mayor James M. Curley, of Boston and Frank J. Donahue, chairman of the Democratic State committee, were the principals in a fight which marked the close of the Massachusetts Democratic campaign in the broadcasting rooms of Station WNAV last night.

A bitter arraignment of Curley by Donahue proceeded the brawl. Dan O'Connell, Boston politician, backing Joseph E. Ely, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, said that his son Gale had been struck while defending Donahue from the rush of the mayor and his supporters. He threatened to get a warrant today charging Curley with assault.

Curley today denied he had struck anyone and said he had not seen any blows struck.

Row Starts

The incident took place during an interval between broadcasts. Curley, who has been supporting John F. Fitzgerald for the gubernatorial nomination despite Fitzgerald's withdrawal because of ill health, went on the air at 10:40. At 11 o'clock Donahue took the air in place of Joseph E. Ely, Democratic gubernatorial candidate whom he supported, and accused Mayor Curley of violation of the corrupt practices act, on telling John J. Rasok, chairman of the Democratic National committee that Fitzgerald was a "clown" and of making a deal with the Republicans.

Witnesses at the studio said that the mayor and his supporters confronted Donahue and Ely's backers at the end of the speech and a scuffle ensued.

Varied descriptions of the scuffle were given over the air by the principals a few minutes after the fight had ended.

FORFEITS BONDS

Meriden, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Frank Rosoff, 33, a New Haven lawyer, who was arrested yesterday afternoon for speeding on the new Broad street highway, forfeited a $20 bond this morning by failure to appear.

Four months ago Rosoff, arrested on the same charge, had the count rolled in Police Court here for $18.45.

Republicans Also Praise Gov. Trumbull for His Administration—New Buildings Planned to Aid Workers.

Foot Guard Armory, Hartford, Sept. 16.—(AP)—The text of the platform passed today at the State Republican convention here was as follows:

"We commend the administration of President Hoover. He has fulfilled the party pledges. Taxes have been reduced to the amount of one hundred and sixty millions. Progress has been made in the development of national highways, inland waterways, the merchant marine, the conservation of natural resources. A foreign policy looking to the consummation of the ideal of world peace has been followed. The Republican principle of a protective tariff has been maintained, and the flexible provisions of the bill adopted by the recent Congress assure the making of changes as they are desirable without the delays incident to national legislation and the resultant lack of stability in business.

"We desire to express our gratitude and our approval of the administration of Governor John H. Trumbull. Serving for a longer period than any governor with but one exception since the Civil War, he has systematized the financial management of the state and continued to maintain its credit higher than that of any state in the country. He retreats with the heartfelt good wishes of the people of Connecticut.

New Buildings

"During the present two year period contracts for the construction of new buildings for over $5,000,000 have been awarded. These, in addition to a new state office building

MISSING JUSTICE HAD 3RD ACCOUNT

Drew $7,000 Just Before He Disappeared—Believe He Was Murdered.

New York, Sept. 16.—(AP)—A third bank account, hitherto unrevealed, from which Joseph Force Crater, missing Supreme Court justice, drew $7,000 in cash last May, has been uncovered, District Attorney Crain announced today.

From two other bank accounts the justice withdrew about $5,000 just before he disappeared on August 6.

The district attorney learned of the third account a few minutes before the convening of the Grand Jury which began yesterday to consider the mystery of the missing justice.

Justice a Witness

Supreme Court Justice Louis Valente appeared today as a Grand Jury witness. He expressed the belief the justice is dead, and declared that he and his friends think he had been robbed and slain after he had displayed currency of large denominations. The $7,000 was withdrawn by a check made out to cash and presented by Joseph Mara, Justice Crater's court attendant, and son of John Mara, Tammany district leader. Mara was given seven $1,000 bills. It was Mara who cashed the checks Justice Crater signed just before his disappearance. Mara was a witness before the Grand Jury yesterday.

Quick Success

Success came quickly to the young scholar and after a debut in "Dore Thorne" in 1906 in New Palestine, Ohio, he soon became Broadway matinee idol. In 1914 he joined the migration to Hollywood and the screen. Among the best of his motion pictures were "The Bark" "Burning Daylight" "The Crash" "The Hawk's Nest" and "The Valley of the Giants."

At the height of his stage career Sills married Gladys Edith Wynne, in London, May 26, 1910. To them was born a daughter, Dorothy, who was with her father when he died. The marriage ended in the local divorce courts in 1925. Mrs. Sills charging desertion. A year later, Sills married Miss Kenyon, and to them was born a son, Kenyon Clarence Sills, now three years old.

The actor is survived by his mother, Mrs. William Sills, of Chicago and a brother, Clarence Sills, Chicago banker.

The first Mrs. Sills is living in New York.

Sills was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity, several southern California clubs and a director of the motion picture Academy of Arts.

LOSES JOB TRIES TO TAKE HIS LIFE

John T. Kochin, of 215 Autumn Street, Shoots Self in Fit of Despondency.

John T. Kochin, 39, of 215 Autumn street, a discharged Cheney Brothers employee, attempted suicide by shooting in a shed in the rear of his home at 11 o'clock this morning with a 22 caliber rifle. The weapon was held in his right temple and a 22 caliber long bullet was fired into his head near the right ear.

Police Notified

The police were notified at 11:15 and Lieut. William Barron was detailed, arriving at the home shortly afterward. He found Kochin in the back yard with the rifle still in his possession. A daughter informed Lieut. Barron that her father still had some ammunition in his possession, just as the wounded man started to run. Lieut. Barron gave chase and when he neared Kochin the latter threw the rifle away.

Puts Up Fight

Lieut. Barron overtook him and walked back towards the house, but on nearing the front door he broke away and ran inside. The policeman was again warned by the daughter that there was a revolver in the house. Lieut. Barron grappled with Kochin in the house and took him outside to await the arrival of the police car.

Gets Aid

Fearing a hemorrhage due to Kochin's strenuous struggles in his effort to be taken to the police station, Lieut. Barron sent in a call to police headquarters and Patrolman David Galligan was sent out to assist. Kochin was taken to the station in the police car at noon.

Odd Wound

Dr. William R. Tinker, Medical Examiner, who had been given an erroneous direction, and had gone to 215 Oak Grove instead, arrived at the police station and a superficial examination revealed that the bullet had entered the skull but could not determine the location of the bullet or seriousness of the wound.

Taken to Hospital

At Dr. Tinker's suggestion the wounded man who was bleeding from the nose and mouth was taken to the Memorial hospital for X-ray examination. Due to Kochin's struggles in objecting to police intervention, a guard was placed over him at the hospital.

Out of Work

Kochin was discharged Friday.

Montreal, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Discovery that cat meat was being sold as rabbit in local restaurants has been made by city health officials. Dr. S. HOOVER APPOINTS TARIFF MEMBERS

Edgar B. Brossard and Alfred P. Dennis of Old Board Are Named Today.

Washington, Sept. 16.—(AP)—President Hoover today appointed Edgar B. Brossard and Alfred P. Dennis, members of the old tariff commission, to the new commission which will administer the Smoot-Hawley Act.

Dr. Lee Coulter, Republican, North Dakota, third appointee named, brought the list to five. The commission will comprise six members, three from each major party. Brossard the former chairman, is a Utah Republican and Dennis is a Maryland Democrat.

Henry P. Fletcher, Pennsylvania Republican previously had been appointed by the President as chairman of the reorganized commission, which assumes office at midnight tonight. The other member named is Walker Page, Virginia Democrat.

The President said the sixth member would not be appointed for a week or ten days due to the fact that one appointee had failed to accept.

Manchester Political Leaders Start Boom for Glastonbury Man at Convention.

Hartford, Sept. 16.—(AP)—With Judge Warren Burrows of Groton, the Republican nominee for attorney general, Fourth Senatorial District, today started a boom for one of his sons to succeed Burrows as Federal judge, in the person of Judge Henry H. Hunt of Glastonbury. Judge Hunt's name was advanced today by three Manchester political leaders, Senator Robert J. Smith, Judge Raymond A. Johnson, and Judge Thomas Ferguson.

ASHFORD, MASS., CASTS 29 VOTES FOR DRAPER

First Town in U. S. to Announce Returns in Presidential Election, Makes Another Record Today.

Ashford, Mass., Sept. 16.—(AP)—This town, first in the entire country to announce its returns in the last presidential election, today gave Eben S. Draper, candidate for the Republican Senatorial nomination, 29 of the 32 votes cast. Former Senator William M. Butler got one vote while one Republican apparently did not vote for Senator. The 32nd tally was Democratic.

SPENCER NOMINATED FOR LT. GOVERNOR

William L. Higgins for Secretary of State; Frederick M. Salmon, Comptroller; Roy C. Wilcox, State Treasurer; Warren B. Burrows, Attorney General—In Acceptance Speech New Standard Bearer of Party Pledges, If Elected, to Work Wholeheartedly for Best Interests of All People in State—Praises Administration of Governor Trumbull—Levitt Issues a Statement—No Debate on Prohibition Plank When Presented on Floor.

Foot Guard Armory, Hartford, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Lieut. Governor E. E. Rogers was nominated for governor by the Republican State Convention today. A rising vote on the name of Prof. Albert Levitt of Hedding showed only four delegates for him. The rest of the delegates rose for Mr. Rogers and George Hull who had offered Levitt's name moved that Mr. Rogers' nomination be made unanimous. This was done.

Samuel R. Spencer of Suffield, the present state treasurer was nominated for lieutenant-governor by acclamation.

William L. Higgins, of Coventry, was renominated for secretary of state by acclamation.

Frederick M. Salmon, of Westport, was renominated for comptroller by rising vote after W. J. Pape, of Waterbury, had had two delegates vote for him by rising.

Roy C. Wilcox, of Meriden, was chosen for state treasurer by acclamation.

Warren B. Burrows, of Groton, was unanimously selected for attorney general.

In his acceptance speech Mr. Rogers said:

"Your committee has notified me of my nomination for the office of governor of the state. I come before you at this time to say I accept the nomination."

"While I am deeply sensible of the high honor conferred in asking me to be the chief standard bearer on the state ticket, yet I am more impressed with the responsibility which accompanies the acceptance of the high place to which it has steadily progressed during the past sixteen years, with its credit now unsurpassed by any other state, practically free from debt and making its permanent improvements out of its current income, offers a challenge which cannot be accepted lightly."

Praises Governor

"May I speak a few words of commendation for the able, progressive and successful administration of Governor Trumbull and I do so from personal knowledge and having served with him in many capacities during the past ten years. He has given unstintingly of his time, ability and experience and deserves the thanks of the citizens of Connecticut for his efforts in their behalf."

"The people of Connecticut are proud of the form of government we have. Coming down to them as it has nearly 300 years, it comprises the purest form of local democracy in the world. In these New England towns each citizen freely expresses himself in a colonial day and has done so ever since. The members of this convention are the chosen representatives and the leaders of these 189 little republics. I am proud to have been chosen their nominee for governor."

Splendid Record

"Bancroft, the father of American history, said 'There is no state in the Union, and I know not any in the world, in whose early history if I were a citizen, I could find more of which to be proud and less than I believe that he would live today. If Bancroft were living today, I believe that he would be highly gratified if he could live in Connecticut, and would say that it had fulfilled the promise of its youth.'

"During the ten years in which I have been active in the state affairs, I have never made a pledge or been asked to make one. I make my first today—that if elected, I will work wholeheartedly for the best interests of all the people in Connecticut."

"The latter's name also was endorsed by Alfred M. Bingham, son of Senator Hiram Bingham.

Levitt's nomination was endorsed by Leroy Fond, of Newington, who said he "respected" the former law professor and stood by "the state Supreme Court in its support of Albert Levitt."

Fond drew several laughs when he admitted Levitt "looked foolish," and is regarded as a joke in Connecticut.

and a new insane hospital, include enlarged and improved facilities for our state institutions. They have been paid for from current income. We approve this policy of not passing down indebtedness to posterity. "This large amount of construction of public buildings together with the work of the highway department, has provided means of livelihood for many who would otherwise have been idle during the present economic conditions. We commend this co-operation with the Hoover administration's policy of relieving the unemployment situation.

State Tax
"The state tax on the towns has been reduced a quarter of a million dollars a year over the past two years. We commend the business policy of the state which has made the reduction of this tax with the approaching return to normal business conditions.

"The Connecticut highways since the organization of the department have furnished models for other states. The trunk line and state aid thoroughfares have been studied and copied throughout the land. Along these roads desirable residents have built attractive homes, and the permanent wealth of the state and the value of the taxable property in the districts. The time has now come when the state is in a position to give serious consideration to the problem of making the rural roads passable to the main arteries of traffic throughout the year. We endorse the movement to promote speedy improvements and proper care of the rural roads in state not at present a part of the trunk line or state aid road system to the extent warranted by actual travel, or need for travel under the direction of the state highway commission. We pledge our support to more substantial appropriations by the incoming general assembly for this purpose.

Water Commission
"The recently created state water commission has made substantial progress in relieving public waterways of their burden of pollution. Numerous cities and boroughs are engaged upon active measures to correct the condition for which they are responsible and the manufacturer throughout the state have been cooperative. Municipal sewerage systems generally have been inadequately maintained and there is an accumulation of urgent work to be done covering in some cases many years. We urge the aggressive carrying on of this work by the commission and its participation by the municipalities and private interests, in order that the purity of the streams may be restored and adequate water supply may be assured.

"The people of Connecticut from the earliest times have shown commendable zeal in education matters.

We believe that continued encouragement should be given the further improvement of the public school system, including the vocational and teacher training schools and the Connecticut agricultural college. We view with pride the work being done by the state department of health resulting particularly in the remarkable reduction of the infant mortality rate. We commend its progressive policies with its object the prevention rather than the cure of disease.

State's Health
"We view with satisfaction the successful work being done in the war against tuberculosis. During the past two years additional infirmaries, one for one hundred adults and one for one hundred children, have been completed. We pledge ourselves to continue this expansion until there is a bed for every applicant.

"We believe that in safeguarding the welfare of the state, special attention should be given to constructive treatment of dependents, defectives and delinquents, and we therefore pledge our candidates to support the development of a comprehensive preventive program with adequate appropriations for the state departments and institutions responsible for carrying out such a program of public welfare."

nominating vote, but only he and Pond supported his motion.

But Four Votes.
The suggestion by Frank E. Healy, of Windsor Locks, that a rising vote be first taken on Levitt was adopted. There were four, Hull, Pond and two others who voted for the opponent of J. Henry Rowback. After a rising vote swept Rogers into the nomination.

Governor Trumbull was named head of a committee to wait upon the nominee. Meanwhile, the convention proceeded to the business of picking the remainder of the state ticket.

Samuel R. Spencer, was named for lieutenant-governor by Mr. Healy in a speech in which he answered the attacks of the Levitt-Pape organization on the public utilities commission and on the state highway department. Howard Alcorn, of Hartford, seconded the nomination.

Higgins Named.
Mrs. Annie O. Vinton, of Andover, nominated Dr. William L. Higgins of Coventry, incumbent, for secretary of state.

At this juncture Mr. Rogers was escorted to the platform and spoke. Mr. Salmon, of Westport, incumbent, and William J. Fape, both placed in nomination for comptroller. On a standing vote, Fape received two votes, Hull and Pond, after Salmon had been nominated, Hull, who had presented Pape's name, moved that it be made unanimous and it was carried.

Edward W. Goss, of Waterbury, offered the name of Roy C. Wilcox, of Meriden for state treasurer. It was seconded by Charles E. Wheeler, of Stratford, and Eugene F. Golden, of Meriden. Choice was by acclamation.

Judge Warren B. Burrows, of Groton, was nominated for attorney general by Mayor Lee Robbins, of Norwich. It was seconded by J. Edwin Brainard of Eastford.

When the nominations had been completed the new state central committee was elected, and the party platform adopted. The latter was presented by Daniel J. Cronin, of New London.

The convention adjourned after authorizing the state committee to fill vacancies.

SHORE DINNER PAVILION OWNER IS A SUICIDE

"Billy" Wordell, Widely Known Host at Ocean Beach, Breaks Under Losses in Stocks.

Many Manchester people and particularly members of the Chamber of Commerce have long known William H. Wordell—"Billy"—to any number of folks—who for thirty-three years until a few days ago conducted the famous Wordell's shore restaurant at Ocean Beach, New London. The other day, after the end of a season that proved a trying one to a great many shore resort proprietors, Billy lay down on a table in the kitchen of his closed up restaurant pavilion, turned on the gas on the range within reach of his hand and passed away. In a box nearby was about $300 in cash, with a note addressed to a New London undertaker arranging for the disposition of his body. The letter said that the writer had gone to the stock market and lost $50,000. This is supposed to refer to losses in the crash of the stock market almost a year ago.

For many years Wordell's has been a favorite dining place for Manchester visitors to the shore. A number of outings of the Chamber of Commerce or its predecessor, the Business Men's Association, were held there. Wordell himself will be remembered as a genial host.

Delegates throughout the district received letters from Congressman Fenn yesterday asking their support in the convention.

SALVATIONIST WOMEN PLAN PEACH FESTIVAL

Salvation Army women workers announce their annual peach festival for Thursday of this week from 5 to 9:30. Thursday is the evening the Manchester merchants keep their stores open for business, and it is customary for the Salvationists to bear this in mind in serving refreshments that the store clerks need not go to their homes for supper, but enjoy the good things at the festival instead. The cool basement will be used for the cafeteria, and one may have choice of chicken salad sandwiches which are almost a meal in themselves, peach short cake with whipped cream, home made cake, home made peach or apple pie with ice cream, peach sundaes with or without whipped cream, milk by the glass, tea or coffee. The modest prices the ladies are asking will be found elsewhere in today's Herald.

OBITUARY

FUNERALS

Ruth Elizabeth Smith
Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Smith, 348 Middle Turnpike East, for their 12-year-old daughter, Ruth Elizabeth Smith, whose untimely death resulted from septic poisoning.

Thirty-nine school children from the Manchester Green school, in charge of Miss Margaret H. Spring, attended the service in a body. Four were from the eighth grade and the remainder comprised the entire seventh grade in which Ruth had been met with the injury which led to her death. She was sliding down a chute in the playground at recess time and her right foot was infected from a ground burr.

Rev. Watson Woodruff, pastor of the Center Congregational church, officiated. The Smith home was crowded with the little girl's friends who came to pay final tribute to one they loved so dearly. Robert J. Gordon, South Methodist church soloist, rendered two numbers, "I Think When I Read That Book 'The Story of the Little Boy Who Climbed the Heavenly Steeps.'" Mrs. Gordon accompanied.

The bearers were Norman Gibson, Harold Topf, Ralph Strickland and George Greenaway. There were many beautiful floral tributes. There were 91 pieces in all. The funeral cortege was also very long, more than 20 automobiles forming the procession to the East cemetery where burial took place in the family plot.

Everett Phillips in behalf of the gathering presented Mr. and Mrs. Phillips with a purse containing forty dollars in gold and currency for the amount of $70. In addition they received a number of gift articles from individuals. The Mission Band in which Mrs. French has been a leader, and Miss Gertrude Phillips her assistant, presented her with a beautiful bouquet of flowers. Following the program and presentations adjournment was made to the living room of the parsonage where cake and ice cream was served. The reception was in charge of the church board.

"In a very material way, said Mr. Verplanck, in a very artistic way and in a very satisfactory way, we are reminded that the interest of Mr. S. Chapman had in the church and all its activities has been continued to the present time."

"The early records of this church," said the toastmaster, "are in a volume that is now deposited in the State Library for safe keeping. They are many too valuable to be trusted to the hazards of safekeeping. If one should read those records he would find that the early history of the Town of Manchester, and the early history of this church, are one and the same. The men who met in those days to carry on the business of the church and the business of the town, were the same men, and they even did the business which was church business, and the business which was town business, in the same meeting."

"It was during the years since I have lived in town," said Mr. Verplanck, "that there was an actual separation between the town and this church. Thirty odd years ago there was a dividing line between the property of the town, which was an old building of Center Church Congregational Society and the church property. It is fitting since the relationship of the town and this church has been so close, that we should have a representative of the town on our program this evening in the person of Selectman Thomas J. Rogers."

Mr. Rogers in acknowledging the introduction given him by Mr. Verplanck, said: "I wish to congratulate the people of Center Church Congregational Society in behalf of the Town of Manchester, on the completion of this beautiful new parish house. I am sure it is a source of great satisfaction to see something that has been dreamed about, planned for and worked for at last a reality. I can readily appreciate how your folks feel since it is but a short time ago that I experienced the same satisfaction when the stone church at the South terminus was completed. It is certainly a satisfaction to the town to have this beautiful building added to the group which has been built at the Center from time to time."

Proud of Schools
"We are proud of our schools and our recreational facilities, but they belong to the children and young people; we are proud too of our fraternal organizations and our clubs. These appeal perhaps to the older people. The church, however, is the only organization which I think of which has something to offer everybody, spiritual, recreational, fraternal. The church can offer all of these, and especially one which has the facilities this church now has. I cannot help feeling that this town, any town, owes a great deal to its churches, especially to one which has a real, live organization. I am afraid a town without a church would be a pretty poor place in which to live. Mr. Verplanck has already said in our early New England history of the church and the town were practically synonymous, and while the years have brought their changes and this is no longer true, when we consider what the progressive church does for the community as a whole, there should be the greatest co-operation and bond of sympathy between the church and the town."

"It is interesting to know in this connection that the old church building belonging to this society was used for a great many years as Manchester's town hall, and the fact that the architecture of this new building is similar to our new municipal building seems like an added tie between this church and the town. Every live community is interested in doing all within its power to make that community attractive to newcomers, and a town which can point with pride to its churches has much to offer. In this respect Manchester is very fortunate, and the progress which is shown by this and the other churches in this town means a great deal. All things considered, the town owes much to its churches. A progressive church means a progressive town and we feel that we have both."

Toastmaster Verplanck then called upon R. LaMotte Russell, chairman of the building committee, who said he would try to be brief and touch only those things that should not be overlooked at a meeting such as that of last night. He said when the building committee tackled its problem it felt the first thing to decide was what the church organization really needed in the way of a building, and with Pastor Woodruff's help it decided help a plan was decided upon, one which took into account not only the present but rather carried with it provision for what the future might hold as they saw it now. Mr. Russell gave a history of the preparation of plans, which provided for a new church auditorium, of the alterations when those plans were necessarily changed. He called attention to the lobby at the north of the auditorium which in reality will become a part of the future church edifice.

When plans for the present church house were finally decided upon, the contract was awarded to a local construction company. Manchester has always been blessed with contractors, said Mr. Russell, and it certainly was a satisfaction to the committee to find that the low bid was a responsible bid and was that of the Manchester Construction Company. He said he wished to go on record as saying that the members of the building committee feel that they have received at the hands of the contractors a very splendid building. Mr. Russell expressed pleasure that among the guests present were Mr.

LEGION AND AUXILIARY PARTY IN THE ARMORY

Legionnaires and members of the Auxiliary are reminded of the change in the meeting place of the joint entertainment and radio party sponsored by the local Post. This party was scheduled to be held at the Army & Navy club, but owing to another affair on that night, and also the veterans' quarters in the Armory in use, it was necessary to change the place. The party will be held at the Howitzer Company rooms at the State Armory.

Legionnaires are also requested to make their returns for the Theater Radio Concert tickets as soon as possible. On To Boston members will be informed of this short time of the arrangements made by the committee. The closing date to join the "To Boston" club is set as September 22.

Card of Thanks
We wish to express our sincere thanks and heartfelt gratitude to all of our friends who offered sympathy and sent floral tributes for our beloved daughter Elizabeth Smith who has just said a final rest. "I cannot say, and I will not say that she is dead—she is just away! With a cherry smile, and a wave of the hand, she wandered into an unknown land. And left us dreaming how very fair needs must be, since she lingers there. And you—O you, who the wildest can dream. For the old time step and the glad return. Think of her faring on, as dear. In the Love of There as the Love of Here. Think of her still in the same, I say: She is not dead—she is just away."—James Whitcomb Riley.

Visits Old Friend Here, Soon After Is Killed

Searching for Work, New Hampshire Man Stops in Manchester—Dies When Struck By Auto in South Windsor.

A tragic story which is a direct result of the unsettled condition prevailing in this section, was learned last night. It is one of those human interest stories that touches everyone's heart strings, and brings a spontaneous flood of sympathy from all classes of people.

Friday night as the Cheney whistle was blowing, a young lad stopped at a home on Center street to pay his respects to the members of a family he had known as a schoolboy in another state. He was looking for work and had applied at countless factories all along the road from his home in northern New Hampshire, unsuccessfully. He was tired, and dirty from plodding the endless pavement, and his clothing was such that few gave him a glance as he trudged from Putnam to Manchester on his way to Hartford—looking for work.

Just as the Cheney employees were leaving their work Friday night, Archie Tandy of Henniker, N. H. was at the South Manchester postoffice window inquiring for the family he knew to be living here. On learning their address, he was soon at the door.

A wave of mingled repulsion and sympathy overcame those of the family that met the young unfortunate at the door. They remembered him in different circumstances, as a laughing lad going to school with a member of the Manchester family in the little country village. In the years that had passed fortune had dealt a series of hard blows. The father had died, the mother married again and the boy and his brother had drifted from home in search of work. His case was made all the more difficult because of a disfigurement of features since birth.

As he stood at the door conversing with those he had known years before in the little country village, his feet protruded from shoes that had worn thin on the long walk from his native state, but his manner was that of old—quiet, sensible and a perfect gentleman.

He was conscious of his appearance, and of the utter futility of the whole scheme of existence. After hurried greetings he left for Hartford with a bill in his hand from the family to help him along the way.

Darkness came, and with it a low-lying mist. Tandy continued on to Hartford, walking, walking—saving his money for the necessary food.

Saturday afternoon the Herald carried a story on the front page about an unidentified man being run down by an automobile at South Windsor late Friday evening and the family got in touch with the Windsor police through the local police department. The revelation was all too true. Tandy had been run down by a Rocky Hill driver and killed instantly.

Through letters found on his person the mother and brother, Everett were notified and they arrived Saturday afternoon and claimed the body.

PLANE PILOT KILLED

Copenhagen, Denmark, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Pilot-Sergeant Victor Nilsson, who participated in the expedition for the relief of General Umberto Nobile after his Arctic dirigible, the Italia, was wrecked, is dead in a hospital here of injuries received when his airplane crashed at Lindaraengen Airdrome in the night.

A pupil named Anderson whom Nilsson was instructing also was killed. The cause of the accident was not ascertained.

The Herald Hears

That a woman in a private room at the Memorial hospital is maintaining a zoo all her own—confined to its cage but flies about at will.

That Murphy's Restaurant has been closed since July 9 and many are wondering what is to become of the place. Nothing has been touched within. Aprons still lie on the counters. Ferns have turned brown and crumpled away in the windows.

That the Herald sports editor was beaten by a girl tennis player Sunday and didn't live up to his threat that he would bust his racquet over the nearest fence-post if he ever lost to a member of the fairer sex. Ruth Behrend, former town champion, accomplished the Stowe-called impossible.

That there is a card game called "Brains" which is most appropriately named. It's a fine thing to improve one's memory. Pack of cards are spread face down all over table. Players turn up two cards at a time in effort to make pairs. The object is to remember where the cards are when they are turned back face down by a person unsuccessful in picking a pair. Try it sometime. It's a whole lot harder than it sounds. Complete silence is the secret of success in that art.

Mr. Hyde has filled the office he now holds with distinction and will undoubtedly be selected at the convention on Wednesday to represent the 35th District. The Senatorial committee for the next two years will also be chosen at this time. The present committee consists of Dr. William L. Higgins of Coventry, John T. McKnight of Ellington and Mrs. Myra L. Mix of Stafford Springs.

Because he failed to heed the advice given him by the court in May, he was sentenced to serve the 20 days suspended sentence.

LEGION CONCERT TO BE BIG EVENT

Program Bids Fair to Exceed Any Ever Before Attempted in Manchester.

The Committee of the "On to Boston Club" of the American Legion are working hard to make the "Radio Star Concert" to be held Sunday afternoon, September 28th, 1930, at the State Theater a big success. Plans which are daily becoming completed make this affair look like one of the greatest ever staged in Manchester, in fact is comparable with any presented in cities with a far greater population. It is interesting to note the number of local people who make up this program, each of whom is a real artist in his or her chosen profession.

In obtaining Leonard Eccellent for this affair, the veterans have chosen a young man who has a very brilliant and interesting area of study behind him and who has reached the stage in his musical education when critics are beginning to notice him. Many critics have recognized his ability and prophesy a very brilliant career. This is not the first public engagement of Mr. Eccellent as he has toured the studios and played in many concerts in the city of New York.

Starting his studies at a very tender age, he was tutored by one of the Old Country Masters in Italy who was so thorough with his primary lessons that it was simple for the student to enroll under Carlo Peroni of New York for further education. Carlo Peroni is widely known as one of the greatest violinists of the day.

However, at the completion of this course, Mr. Eccellent came to Manchester and has been studying under Robert Doellner, who is recognized throughout the New England States as a great musician and instructor.

Miss Eva Johnson will be the accompanist on the piano. For this programme Mr. Eccellent has chosen a very interesting list of selections and the Legion Committee are confident that his hearers will be more than pleased with this one part of a great program.

ANNUAL HARE, HOUND RACE NEXT FRIDAY

TAXI DRIVERS BUILD OWN "PUT-PUT" COURSE

Not to be outdone by the boulevard residents, the Tatem taxi drivers have constructed a 10 hole miniature golf course in rear of the building near the taxi stand. The drivers use their imagination in respect to grass, freak hazards, and the like and have but a window puller for a driver, machine, nibble or what have you in golf—no real time and the chauffeurs can idle the long hours away with the nearest thing to green grass, tricky hazards, etc., obtainable. All credit is due Leo Rowe, car starter par excellence for the idea. Driving by the brightly lighter "put put" courses on his way to and from a hire, he envisioned a magnificent layout in his own back yard and the hunt for 10 medium sized cans was on. Henceforth, says Leo, the tired hubby waiting for his shopping bettor half can drop down to the taxi office to while away an hour or so until the masterful voice calls him homeward—with the bundles.

TRIED TO KILL MAN

Norwalk, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Pleading not guilty to a charge of assault with intent to kill, Domenick Santella, 24, today was bound over to the Criminal Superior Court under bonds of $7,000 when he was arraigned in City Court before Judge Nehemiah Candee.

Santella was arrested yesterday as the aftermath of an altercation in an Italian social club here Saturday night, during which he fired a bullet from an automatic revolver point blank at Russell Gargon, 23. Gargon's life was saved when the bullet struck a package of cigars in his waistcoat pocket directly over his heart, and was deflected. The argument started over a bottle of whiskey.

LEAGUE'S PLEA FOR ARMS CUT GETS RESPONSE

take into account the security of all countries and we reckon on full publicity and a definite reduction of armaments from the outset." The German minister said that no country had a greater interest than Germany in seeing the widest cooperation between the states of Europe. It is the lack of such cooperation, he added, that has brought on the present grave economic crisis in Europe.

India's Opinion
The Maharaja of Bikaner, the first Indian delegate, warned the assembly of possible dangerous consequences of the Briand plan. "Is there not danger," he asked, "that in the early years of this League such a confederation may give rise to serious misconception? If Europe organizes to consolidate her industrial position, however little she may mean to do so detrimentally to other parts of the world, it may create a situation that no member of the League would wish. Economic action must not be sectional or regional. It must be universal."

Dr. C. C. Wu told the assembly that a confederation of the entire world may reasonably grow from the Briand plan. He pictured the growth of similar unions among other nations on other continents and then gradual amalgamation as the world progresses in mutual comprehension.

Such a confederation, he said, was predicted by Confucius twenty-four centuries ago. He added that it was with this idea in mind that Dr. Sun Yea Sen founded the Chinese republic.

CRONIN'S SPEECH NAMING ROGERS

Gives Review of His Life As He Seeks Nomination at Convention.

Hartford, Conn., September 16.—(AP)—The following is the complete text of Daniel M. Cronin's speech seconding the nomination of Gov. Ernest W. Rogers, as the Republican candidate for governor at the Republican state convention here:

Mr. Chairman: It is a privilege, Mr. Chairman, and one which I deeply appreciate to arise in this convention to nominate the next Governor of the State of Connecticut. Realizing the history of Connecticut rich in its noble achievements and traditions, I sense the responsibility of offering to this convention a candidate whose unalterable aim and purpose will be to further those achievements and forever keep faith with those inspiring traditions.

Mr. Chairman, which although born and fostered of the past shine out even now like beacons aglow in a haven of peace and security, to lead and guide us on into the tranquil harbor of faith and confidence—into the Land of Steady Habits.

Who among us, Mr. Chairman, who even only casually acquaints himself with the history of Connecticut can help but feel the thrill of pride at the accomplishments of her people. What dramatic acts of patriotic devotion that can compare to those of Nathan Hale, Israel Putnam, and Colonel Ledyard, and those others whose names perhaps do not appear upon the pages of a written history but still are cherished and revered forever deep in the memory of the state which they helped to create and preserve as a sovereign state of this great nation and those who followed the flag to foreign shores and there in the cause of universal freedom and liberty upheld the honor and valor of their state and of their country.

Firmly linked with the accomplishments and advancement of Connecticut stands the Republican party. Under its wise and prudent government this state has taken its place among the great nations of the world. Its people are enjoying the fruits of a sound business and financial policy unhampered by obnoxious laws and excessive and unnecessary expenditures, which would only result in increased taxation to its people, and likely the necessity of a state direct income tax such as exist in some of our neighboring states today.

The state of Connecticut can truly proud of its progress and achievements, proud of its peaceful farms and towns lying in their rustic surroundings, in the tranquil valley and along the shaded hillside. Proud of its thriving cities with their great business institutions whose products are carried over every sea to every country in the world. Proud of its great financial institutions which through Connecticut thrift and foresight have become recognized as bulwarks of confidence and security. And over all this, Mr. Chairman, for nearly more than the past fifty years the Republican party has been in power, and it has constantly and consistently of the state the benefit of sound, wise and economical business administrations to the extent and with the result that the people realizing this fact and the benefits and advantages accruing therefrom have set their seal of faith and confidence in the Republican party and have kept it in power with no uncertain mandate.

I realize, Mr. Chairman, the abilities and fitness of those who have held the position of chief executive of this state in the past. It is a trying position which calls for one who is particularly fitted and trained for the office. As the captain of a great ship must have knowledge of every working part of the ship and the duties of the crew he commands, so too must the governor of a great industrial state, such as this, be particularly familiar with every branch of the government over which the duties of his office functions.

It has been said, Mr. Chairman, that "the ideal candidate for the office of Governor should be a man of intelligence, broad vision, progressive outlook, and the highest integrity. He should have a thorough knowledge of the functioning of all parts of the State Government and an understanding of the commercial, industrial, agricultural, and social conditions in the state. Experience in public office is virtually essential."

In all sincerity, Mr. Chairman, and devoid of any personal enthusiasm I may have, I can unqualifiedly state that the gentleman I am about to nominate possesses all of these qualifications gained through years of practical training and experience.

His life and the life of his ancestors is the life of his native state for the past 300 years. His first ancestor to seek a home in the primitive colony of Connecticut settled in Saybrook in 1630 and engaged in the historic wars for the preservation of life and property against the Pequot Indians. Later he moved to New London and at the request of Governor John Winthrop, the first Governor of the Colony of Connecticut, operated the Old Town Mill which still stands in New London nearly the same as it did 300 years ago. And from that time on down through the years that have passed his forefathers have lived in New London or in the immediate vicinity.

resided. With the ambition of one who recognizes his own limitations and has faith in his own abilities and power of attainment, he began to take an active part in the business, civic and political life of his city and his state until today he has reached the just reward of success in every field of his endeavors.

If experience in public office is virtually essential as claimed in the times, and I submit that it is, then this gentleman's experience in public office squarely meets the most exacting standard of requirement. He served for many years as alderman in the City of New London. He served as mayor of that city during the trying days of the war with the greatest success and satisfaction to everyone. He has served in the House of Representatives and in the State Senate where he was chairman of the important quiring thereby a full and comprehensive knowledge of state legislation. He was elected by the electorate of this state to the office of state treasurer which office he filled with credit to himself and to the utmost satisfaction of his constituents. He has served for the past two years as lieutenant governor of the state where he has gathered a store of experience and governmental knowledge pertaining to the office of chief executive. He has served as a member of the Board of Equalization of the State Board of Finance and Control. He is a member of the State Board of Education and by virtue of his office he was president of the State Senate during the session of 1929.

Does not his record meet the essential requirement of experience in public office, Mr. Chairman? What other nominee to go before the people for this office can offer anywhere near the experience in public affairs. If an understanding of the commercial, industrial, agricultural and social conditions are essential requirements of the office, then this candidate once again can fully meet the test. He has a broad knowledge of the commercial and industrial conditions of the state acquired by practical experience of many years in active and successful business life and now is the head of a prosperous banking institution.

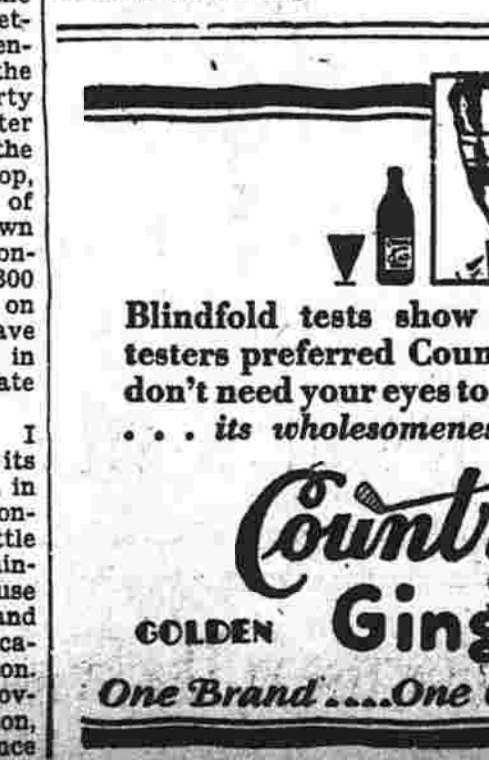

He has served as president of the State Chamber of Commerce. He is thoroughly acquainted with agricultural problems, having been born and worked on a farm himself for years, and now still running his own ancestral farm in the town of Salem and being a member of the State Grange. He is familiar with the financial and social conditions of the state through his various official capacities, and having visited and thoroughly familiarized himself with all the state institutions and studied their conditions and their needs. He is a man of the highest integrity and character. He has the trust and confidence of the people of this state who have on previous occasions elected him to state office by large pluralities. And finally, Mr. Chairman, he is liberal and broadminded in his views. He recognized and believes in the right of every man to his own individual opinion on all matters, whether it be on matters concerning legislation or matters concerning the everyday affairs of life. He holds no argument with those whose personal views differ from his, he does not interfere with the point of view of his fellowman.

Can a candidate be better qualified, Mr. Chairman, for this high office? Can the electorate ask for a more worthy successor to those able men who have previously guided the destinies of the state? I believe not, Mr. Chairman. The Republican party is willing to go before the people led by a leader of unimpeachable character and integrity; one of the highest attainments of practical legislative and governmental knowledge and experience, imbued with the firm belief that the faith and confidence of the people in the Republican party will not be shaken but on the contrary, as in the past, they will rally to the standard of sound and economical business administration and the entire Republican ticket will again, by the mandate of the people, conduct the affairs of state.

Mr. Chairman, I desire to thank you and the convention for your patience and your interest, and without encroaching further upon your time, I now have the pleasure and the honor to nominate for Governor of the great State of Connecticut my friend and fellow townsman—the Lieutenant Governor, Ernest E. Rogers of New London.

DELAY INAUGURATION
Detroit, Sept. 16.—(AP)—The inauguration of Mayor-Elect Frank Murphy was delayed for at least ten days this morning when Mayor Charles Bowles, through his campaign manager, filed a petition for a recount in the special mayoralty election of last Tuesday.

The petition for a recount was filed shortly before the city election commission convened to certify the election of Murphy. As a result the inauguration of Murphy scheduled for today was automatically postponed during the time required for the recount which is estimated at ten days. The official tabulation of the vote gave Murphy 106,637; Bowles 93,985, with three others trailing.

ELECTRIC CO. PLANS BIG EXPANSION HERE

New Sub-Station on Hilliard Street Makes Possible Great Development Here.

The Manchester Electric Company since its organization in 1917 through a merger of The Manchester Light and Power Co. located in Manchester and The South Manchester Light, Power and Tramway Co. located in South Manchester produced an enviable record in its service to Manchester, residents here and in the surrounding territory. New and modern equipment has been a prime factor in making possible a brand of public utility that has given uninterrupted, efficient service over this period, but of which the general public has little or no knowledge.

40 P. C. Dividend
It is always necessary that a real reason should exist in support of any unprecedented growth of private or public enterprises. The Manchester Electric Company in declaring a 40 per cent dividend this week depends upon the October bills and accruals of stockholders, goes on record as being able through efficient management and an economical program to share proportionately with those that have made this condition possible. That this procedure will mean more to customers, stockholders and employees during the present period of depression, goes without saying.

Prospects for the future growth of the company through its many channels is assured in a statement issued from the company's office, quoted below.

"It is especially gratifying to be able to announce this action at this time when it probably means more to our customers than it would under normal conditions of employment and business. The results of this year can be duplicated and improved, only by continued efforts on the part of the company to make electricity abundantly available to all at low prices, and on the part of the public by their willingness to increase their use of our product in every way that is advantageously possible."

Ability to furnish power and light as intimated in the above paragraph signed by the President of the Company, Samuel Ferguson, has, therefore, been the strongest link in the chain of service that the local company has forged in Manchester and vicinity in the past several years. A survey of the equipment of the Manchester Electric Company which has much to do with the present and future growth of the Company is given below for the benefit of Manchester citizens.

The electric current used by local consumers of the Manchester Electric Company is brought from Hartford from The Hartford Electric Light Company's South Meadow Station via various right of ways of The Hartford Electric Light Company located northerly and parallel to Silver Lane Highway and Hartford Road, to a sub-station located on or near Hartford Road by two 11,000 volt circuits. Another 11,000 volt circuit is brought to Manchester from The Hartford Electric Light Company's plant via The N. Y. N. H. & H. R. Co.'s right of way to a point opposite the northerly end of Broad street in Manchester, thence across The N. Y. N. H. & H. R. Co.'s tracks to Loomis street thence by right of way of The Manchester Electric Company through the intersection of Loomis and Electric streets. At this point the electric current is conveyed underground by a cable via Electric and Hilliard streets to a sub-station located just west of the South Manchester Railroad Company's right of way.

The Sub Station
The electric current which is received at the sub-station located on Hartford Road known as the Dressing Mill Sub station is synchronized by a condenser which regulates and converts the flow of electrical current for its proper use. From this sub-station two 11,000 volt circuits are distributed to Cheney Brothers factories, another 11,000 volt circuit is distributed to another sub-station located on New street just north of the Park street bridge and the Freight Depot in South Manchester via rights of ways of The Manchester Electric Company along the rear of the Dressing Mills, New Yarn Dye House to the intersection of Pine and Forest streets from this point along Forest street to the intersection of Chestnut and Forest streets thence via The South Manchester Rail road Co. right of way to a sub-station, known as the New street sub-station. At this point the electrical current is transformed from 11,000 volts to 2300 volts and distributed through the town by various channels. Six circuits are distributed from the New street sub-station of 2300 volts serving all streets in Manchester, south of Middle Turnpike. Also all street

James T. Moran Retires as President — Harry C. Knight Named Successor.

New Haven, September 15.—At a meeting here today of the Board of Directors of the Southern New England Telephone Company, James T. Moran, President for the past 13 years and for 46 years identified with that corporation in various administrative and executive positions, was selected Chairman of the Board and Harry C. Knight, Vice President and General Manager since February, 1917, was elected to succeed Mr. Moran as the executive head of the company.

The duties of Mr. Knight, as Vice President and General Manager, included executive supervision over operations and public and personnel relations. The growth of the business in recent years has been such that a division of these duties is for the best interest of the public, the business and of its personnel. Accordingly with the change in the Presidency a new plan of organization was adopted providing for two Vice Presidents. To all these positions, Alletton F. Brooks, Chief Engineer since 1927, was elected Vice President and General Manager in charge of operations and E. L. Simonds, General Superintendent of Plant since 1917, was elected Vice President in charge of Public and Personnel Relations.

Under the new organization plan title changes are also given to some of the higher administrative officials in the company. Johnstone D. Veitch, General Commercial Superintendent, becomes General Commercial Manager; Frank L. Moore, General Superintendent of Traffic, becomes General Traffic Manager; and Charles E. Rolfe, Assistant to the Vice President, in charge of advertising and information programs, becomes General Information Manager. No change of duties accompany these title changes. The title and duties of Ellis E. Baker, Jr., General Auditor of the company, will continue as heretofore.

The election of Mr. Knight to the presidency of the Company and the attendant promotions of Mr. Brooks and Mr. Simonds have resulted in numerous changes in operating officials, all those involved passing upward to places of greater responsibility in the business. In no instance, among the several changes made, has the company been required to go outside its own organization for capable men, thus following its well established policy of giving promotion when possible to its own people.

In the Plant department, Elmer P. Bradley, Superintendent of Construction, has been appointed General Plant Manager, succeeding Mr. Simonds, whose title was General Superintendent of Plant.

Robert S. Burs, Plant Engineer, has been appointed Superintendent of Construction, succeeding Mr. Bradley. Geary S. Corves, Hartford and

With the weekly Merchant's Night at the State Theater tomorrow night comes Gary Cooper in "A Man From Wyoming," a story of a young engineer who hears the call to arms and leaves a construction job in Wyoming to get into the big fight in France.

Synopsis
When war is declared Gary Cooper and Regis Toomey, who had been working on a bridge construction job in Wyoming, join the army and are sent to France with the Engineer Corps. Cooper as a Captain. Toomey as his Lieutenant. June Collyer, an American society girl, is an ambulance driver back of the lines. Her uncle, E. H. Calvert, a major-general, got her the job. Impatient at the dull routine of her job and seeking excitement, she goes "A.W.O.L." and wanders into the territory held by Cooper's company. She draws enemy shellfire, and Cooper is forced to arrest her. When his company is relieved he forces her to march back with his men. Though he treats her roughly, he is forced to admire her grit. June admiring his manliness, falls for Cooper. Impetuously they are married and spend three glorious days in a little French village. In the ecstasy of their love June casts aside all thought of her wealth and social position.

But their heaven-on-earth is short-lived. Cooper is sent back to the front. June returns to the ambulance unit to face court-martial. Only Calvert's influence saves her from a serious sentence. Meanwhile Cooper's company is raised, with shell-fire. He is listed as killed in action. This news throws June into a state of embitterment. She returns to a villa in Nice where she is the talk of the place because of the wildness and abandon of the parties she stages for officers in "blighty." Cooper, not killed but badly wounded, is sent to the villa, and is

HONORS STATES
Gary Cooper has 44 states to go! The rangy and handsome youth from Montana has made four pictures in which the names of states have been honored. This constitutes some kind of a record for other state-name pictures.
His first state-name picture was a silent called "Nevada." Then came the talkies, "The Texan" and "The Virginian." Now he is appearing at the State Theater Wednesday and Thursday of this week, in "The Man From Wyoming." That leaves 44 states of the Union which have not yet been honored by the popular Gary.
"A Man From Wyoming" is the story of a young engineer who joins the army when war is declared and who falls in love with a society girl who has signed up as an ambulance driver for a thrill.
June Collyer, the exotic beauty who played in "Illusion," "River of Romance" and "The Love Doctor," is the leading woman for Gary in this exciting romance. Others in the supporting cast are Morgan Farley, E. H. Calvert, Regis Toomey, Mary Foy and William B. Davidson.

surprised and shocked to learn that the notorious girl is June. Misconstruing her gaiety, he refuses to believe her when she says she has been trying to drown her grief over his reported death.
Cooper tries to persuade her to return to Wyoming with him where he can happily resume his engineering work. She laughs at the proposal, saying that she intends to support them both on her own large income. Their differences lead to bitter words. Cooper, sad, dejected, returns to the front. He feels that he may as well die.

His departure rouses June who hurries after him to the town where they were married. There Cooper returns on the day of the Armistice. June is waiting for him. The war of the lovers and the big war are both ended.

OIL IN SCHOOLYARD

Oklahoma City, Sept. 16.—(AP)—An unmatched gusher in the yard of a city school here was ending the school with royalties today after having evicted its more than a thousand pupils.
Gauged at 65,000 barrels a day during its initial flow yesterday the gusher, known as No. 5 Holmes, was described by oil men as history's great high gravity oil producer.
Heeding advice of the fire chief, the Oklahoma City school board decided to abandon the school building temporarily, because of fire hazard caused by the well which was producing gas estimated at 20,000,000 feet daily.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 16.

ick C. Walcott delivered at the Republican state convention at Hartford. They both dealt exclusively with the performances of the Republican party.

There the resemblance absolutely ceases. Mr. Cummings devoted his entire speech to critical generalities directed against the Republican party. Senator Walcott confined himself entirely to detailed achievements of the same party. The contrast is tremendous.

The only reference made by Senator Walcott to the Democratic party is contained in a single sentence: "Our government, both state and federal, has been built up from its inception on the basis of two rival political parties which today differ less in the principles of government than in their ability to function."

And right there the senator put his finger on the nub of the political situation in Connecticut. The Republican party is functioning and functioning extremely well. The Democratic party seeks to displace it, not because it offers any fundamental or important difference in principle, but because its leaders believe, or effect to believe, that it could and would function better. If they can convince the voters of the state that they have the capacity, the experience and the character to improve on the expert and highly efficient administration of state affairs by the Republican party during the last twenty years they can win the coming election. It is very difficult indeed to see how they are going to do that.

Aside from the remarkable contrast it provided to the keynote speech of the Democratic convention chairman, Senator Walcott's address is a masterly political document. It is packed with facts which it is important that the people of this state and this country should know and remember. We recommend it for preservation to every maker of a scrapbook.

Of very special interest is the position taken by Senator Walcott in the matter of prohibition. It must be remembered, in this connection, that Walcott is as close to President Hoover as anyone in America; and when he uncompromisingly declares that "the results of prohibition in many ways have been disastrous" and in effect asks for suspension of action until the report of Mr. Hoover's crime commission shall indicate "quite clearly which road leads most directly to temperance," he makes one of the most significant utterances on the subject that have been heard in a long time.

son will wish it the best of luck in the undertaking.

RADIO MINSTRELSY

John Masfield thinks that maybe the radio is going to restore poetry to its lost estate of personal minstrelsy. He thinks that the art of printing, mistakenly hailed by the poets for the wider circulation it gave to their creations, has failed to convey the subtleties and spirit of the direct communication which was the method of dissemination of the earlier minstrels. Mr. Masfield is hopeful that the radio may redeem the losses brought by the printing press.

Possibly. But if Mr. Masfield could be a fly on the wall in a million American homes at once and witness the unanimous switching to jazz hands and Amoses and care-of-the-teeth talks when rhythmic picture making begins to come in, we doubt if he would be quite willing to swap the printing press for the radio as a vehicle for poetic expression after all.

HOW EMOTIONS AFFECT INVOLUNTARY MUSCLES

It used to be thought that food simply fell down the esophagus like a ball falling down an elevator shaft. Now it is known, through watching the esophagus under the X-ray, that the wear contract just for the food as it is being swallowed, and expand just in front of it in such a way that the food is pushed along. The involuntary muscles squeeze food before them where it houses it squeezes cream down a pastry tube. For this reason it is possible for you to swallow while standing on your head just as easily as otherwise, since the food does not drop down, but is pushed ahead. Vomiting is simply the swallowing process in reverse.

While most of these actions of the involuntary muscles are not under control, it is known that they are affected more or less by the emotions. A strong emotion, such as anger or fear, will cause the peristaltic waves of the stomach and intestines to cease for a long time afterwards. All of you have noticed that after a strong emotional scene you have indigestion and your food washes heavily in your stomach. Anger increases the beat of the heart, and fear inhibits easy breathing. By avoiding over-excitement, you may keep the involuntary muscles, which rule over the vital processes of your body, working more smoothly.

Some of the results of poor tone in the involuntary muscles may be: indigestion, due to a lack of tone in the stomach; constipation, due to poor tone in the bowels, and high or low blood pressure, due to poor tone in the blood vessels. Exercise is usually beneficial to the involuntary muscles, for while exercising you force the muscles to bring an extra supply of blood to the place where it is being used. When the blood stream flows rapidly, like any other swiftly flowing stream, it washes away and removes any toxins which may have stilled in that region. In this way the blood washes the muscles during the exercise and flushes away their waste.

Exercises which use the voluntary muscles of the abdomen also benefit the involuntary muscles, since the exercise improves the circulation of the blood to the abdominal and pelvic region, and gives them more blood for nourishment, or removes toxins which may have accumulated.

Destructive emotions undoubtedly have the most severe effect upon health through upsetting the normal functioning of the involuntary muscles. Any system of mental treatment will be beneficial to the patient if such treatment is one which teaches the patient to control the emotions that neither great joy nor great sorrow takes possession sufficiently to dangerously upset the normal order of the natural functions. In the emotive life as in other things, it is well to travel the middle path of temperance.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—Our Latin American customers below the Panama Canal seem to have maintained a much more satisfactory status in regard to their trade with the United States than the northerly group of republics which includes Mexico and the countries of Central America and the Caribbean.

The export and import figures comparing the year ended last June 30 with the previous year show that the 10 Republics of South America averaged an 11 per cent improvement in the balance of trade factor over 1929 whereas the other 10 Latin American states received a bad break.

They All Declined

Relative decline of our imports from and our exports to all of Latin America was practically the same—imports falling off about 14 per cent and exports about 13. Imports fell from $999,099,000 to $884,607,000 and exports from $912,335,000 to $760,130,000.

But whereas our exports to the South American countries fell off 20.89 per cent our imports from them were reduced only 9.08 per cent. Exports dropped from $551,300,000 to $496,500,000 and imports from $611,700,000 to $556,700,000. That is, we bought 90 per cent as much from South America as we did in the year before, but she only bought 80 per cent as much from us.

Now take the North American republics. Our imports from them fell off 22.91 per cent and our exports to them only 2.08 per cent. Imports dropped from $389,473,000 to $306,827,000 and exports merely from $363,400,000 to $355,900,000. We kept right on selling to this group at virtually the same old pace, but cut down our purchases almost one-fourth.

The figures in dollars are furnished by the Department of Commerce. The percentages used in this story were worked out at the headquarters of the Pan-American Union. They are especially interesting at this time because of current economic developments in Latin America—and their political consequences, the Latin American protests against our new tariff, and the fact that they throw some light on the facts in the world-wide business depression. It should be remembered, of course, that declines in values of imports and exports are frequently largely due to the general lowering of commodity prices.

Cuba took the worst sock among those countries whose exports to the United States suffered—a drop of almost exactly 30 per cent from a 1929 export business of $214,100,000. Meanwhile, we sold Cuba all but 12.85 per cent as much in the fiscal year of 1930 as in 1929. Mexico's balance of trade fared considerably worse, for while our imports from her fell off 17.23 per cent we increased our exports to Mexico by 17.23 per cent.

Cuba's trouble was sugar. The quantity of our purchases of that commodity fell from 8,217,000,000 pounds in 1928-29 to 5,516,000,000 pounds and the value from $166,000,000 to $101,000,000. The figure makes it quite easy to understand Cuba's terrific hollering at a further increase in our sugar tariff.

Argentina, Bolivia, Colombia, Ecuador and Peru all sold us more last year than the year before and bought less. Only Chile and Paraguay in South America sold us less and bought more. Brazil, Uruguay and Venezuela showed smaller declines in exports to us than in imports from us.

Our imports show these increases: Argentina 2.16 per cent, Bolivia 34.40, Colombia 15.38, Ecuador 0.71, Peru 21.83. And these decreases: Brazil 22.31, Chile 18.95, Paraguay, 28.83, Uruguay 7.32, Venezuela 13.24. Our exports showed these gains: Chile 1.13, Paraguay 4.74. And these losses: Argentina 18.02, Bolivia 2.81, Brazil 31.64, Colombia 44.40, Ecuador 21.46, Peru 15.44, Uruguay 14.87, Venezuela 19.36.

GERMAN REVELATION

Notwithstanding the determination of the United States to stand aloof and withhold that restraining balance of power which could always have made a great European war impossible, we have been completely convinced ever since the armistice of 1918 that there would never be a repetition of the madness of 1914. We feel less certain of that today than ever before.

The amazing upset in the Reichstag elections in Germany is enough to destroy all confidence in the permanency of peace. When the National Socialist party, otherwise known as the German Fascists, under the once utterly discredited leadership of that brilliant lunatic Adolf Hitler, can suddenly jump its representation in the national parliament from a dozen seats to more than a hundred and can leap from a strength of a few hundred thousand votes to more than six million, with a program of defiance and aggression against all the allied world, then affairs in Germany have reached a serious state.

Middle class conservatism has been practically wiped out by the German election, the high-power parties being the Fascists and its bitter but not altogether dissimilar rival the Communist party. With these roaring elements commanding the political attention of their country and spilling for trouble the peace of Europe has gone suddenly faint.

The National Socialist party, to which the younger Germans seem to be turning almost with one accord, is the embodiment of Pan-German jingoism. Its platform demands the immediate unification of Germany and Austria, the annulment of the treaty of Versailles, equality in military forces with any country in Europe, the restoration of Germany's colonies and the discontinuance of reparations payments. So much for its international program.

Internally the policy of the Fascist party includes the nationalization of all trusts, the participation of workers in the profits of manufacture, the socialization of industry, the nationalization of the land without compensation, the death penalty for usurers and profiteers, the expulsion of all non-Germans while there is any unemployment, no further immigration of non-Germans, the abolition of unearned incomes, the partition of department stores into small shops to be rented at nominal rates to small storekeepers, the requirement that all journalists must be Germans and all productions of art and literature contrary to the principles of true Germanism shall be suppressed, and the formation of a great national army. Finally all Jews are to be disfranchised or driven from Germany.

When six million German voters, and these mostly the younger and more active of the nation's people, hold views like these, and when the moderate parties which have been the reliance of steady going and sober minded leaders are melting into ineffectualness, it is time for the rest of the world to come awake and be on guard.

Gestures like the Kellogg pact are poor dependences in the face of threats like those presented by a Germany potentially seething with a desperate determination to win the World War after all, by a Russia accused by the French with being a secret storehouse and manufactory of German war material, and by an Italy seriously suspected of being ready to enter an alliance with both of these for her territorial aggrandizement.

Uncle Sam's Planting Pointers

DAHLIAS

By D. VICTOR LUMSDEN
 Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Dahlia plants which have produced a dwarfed growth may often be induced to produce fine flowers by cutting back any hardened and stunted growth that has developed in midsummer. Do this pruning when hot days are on the wane, and when the plants are in new growth at the time when the best blossoms are to be expected.

How much of the old growth to remove will depend on the condition of each plant. They will soon respond to this pruning and the new growth will bear vigorous and colorful blossoms.

Plants Need Supports

Make sure your dahlia plants are well staked and tied so heavy winds will not break them down at their mature. Stakes should have been set when the roots were planted, but if it is not too late to provide supports now. Drive the stakes into the ground far enough away from the plants so that roots are not damaged.

Plants that are just starting to bloom will be benefited by giving each one a handful of manure, 5 parts of bonemeal and 1 part muriate of potash. Spread this on the surface soil at the base of each plant and work it into the surface soil. If your soil lacks moisture, water the plants thoroughly so it penetrates deeply into the soil.

Practice Disbudding if you wish to have large flowers on long stems. The terminal bud on each stem usually produces the best blossom. Remove lateral buds while they are still small. Do not remove leaf axillary growth that comes from leaf axils down on the stem. In time this also will produce long-stemmed blossoms if secondary buds on the sides of the stem are pinched off.

Cut dahlia blossoms in the early morning or late evening. Immerse the stems in boiling water, near the cut ends in a flame or over the cut ends in boiling water until it cools. After this treatment the flowers should be sunk deeply into fresh cool water and placed in a cool place for several hours or overnight. Under this treatment cut flowers will last much longer than otherwise.

A NEW DOG BOOK

Author With Local Connection Tells About "Rusty."

Nassau H. Arnold of Holden, Mass., who for several summers has been substitute editorial writer on the Manchester Herald, is the author of the newest of the animal books. Its title is "Rusty, the Story of a Little Dog," and it has just been published by the Lothrop, Lee and Shepard Co., of Boston.

Nobody could have written this story who did not love both dogs and children. And nobody, young or old, can read it without being the better for it. It is all about a friendly, devoted little black spaniel puppy who gets his name from a single brown spot under his throat; better for it. It is all about a puppy who never does a thing that is better for it. It is all about a little spaniel puppy who would do, as like as not, but whose affection and loyalty entitle him to a place among the personages, just the same.

He becomes a member of a very nice kind of family and encounters almost always nice people, whether at home or at the summer camp, excepting one distressing interview with a skunk and another with a very mean hobo, whom he bites for good and better reasons.

We can say with all sincerity that here is a book which ought to be in every home where there are boys and girls around a dozen years old, and will do more than a little good when read in homes where there are no children at all. It is redolent of right feeling and kindness besides being understanding of animal psychology.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Whooping Cough)

Question: M. K. S. asks: "Will you please tell me how to treat a child who has whooping cough, and how long a time he should be kept out of school? How can these children's diseases be prevented?"

Answer: A child's diseases are preventable if the child is kept with a series of proper habits. Once whooping cough has been developed, it is a serious disorder and needs the diligent personal care of a physician. In my practice I have found the most effective treatment to be with a series of short fasts of three or four days each, with the child eating a light diet in between each fast. It will sometimes take several weeks to produce the desired results. Applications over the chest are helpful, and also deep manipulation of the spine and muscles of the upper back. A physician's certificate is usually necessary.

PARTRIDGE "COMES BACK"

Having fought a long battle with disease, the ruffed grouse, better known in these regions as partridge, has staged a comeback, according to the State Board of Fisheries and Game, and during the coming hunting season will be fair game for the gunner for the first time in some years.

Frankly we can find it in our heart to wish that the closed season were to be continued for yet some other years. The grouse did come so near to extermination! And he had so many different things the matter with him, one after the other. And he is such a beautiful thing to encounter in the woods, particularly in the spring.

But perhaps we are over-sentimental. One thing about the grouse, he is pretty well able to take care of himself. Let no one imagine that the shooting of partridges is "slaughter." Any time you hit him you have done something. Those young gunners who have been "brought up" on pheasant shooting will find the grouse a far harder target, who can put a stump or a tree bole between himself and the gun, as he roars away into cover, much quicker than you can wink an eye.

And nothing that grows feathers is so good to eat.

Just the same the gunner who limits himself to a brace of partridges for the season will be a gentleman.

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

MAYFLOWER SAILING

On September 16, 1620, the Pilgrims, strong, sailed on the Mayflower for America.

The Pilgrims, sometimes called the Separatists, because they dissented from certain religious beliefs in England, had emigrated to Leyden, Holland, where they were allowed to believe as they pleased. After 10 years' residence here they decided to settle in America. They left Holland in a ship called the Speedwell, to go to Southampton in England, where friends were to join them in another ship, the Mayflower. When they started for America, the Speedwell was found leaking so passengers from both ships were crowded on the Mayflower.

After a stormy crossing the ship reached the shores of Cape Cod, Massachusetts, instead of the coast of what is now New Jersey, where they had permission to land. But they decided to stay where they landed, and so founded the settlement of Plymouth.

They lived crudely in floorless log cabins and suffered for want of food. During the first winter more than half of the little company died, including the governor. Later on, the Puritan party in the Church of England, also subject to religious oppression, joined the Pilgrims and established several settlements on Massachusetts Bay.

GRANGE TO THE RESCUE!

It is gratifying to learn that the National Grange is taking up the fight against billboard advertising—peculiarly gratifying. There are other organizations engaged in this worthy work and their efforts have not been entirely without fruit; but the Grange is in a special position with relation to the war on landscape disfigurement.

Without the consent of farm owners few worthwhile sites for advertising hoardings could be obtained by the misguided concerns which carry on this objectionable business. If the Grange succeeds in exerting its influence on country people generally for the suppression of the billboard sign it will be hitting the nuisance a blow of pretty close to knockout strength.

It is barely possible that the Grange may find this—inducing its numbers and friends to refuse billboard rental money—about the stiffest job of the sort it has ever tackled. But a long suffering na-

IN NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 16.—Manhattan is going through a period of "looking back."

No matter where you turn, whether in games or in dress, the vogue points to another era.

Gazing about, you'll find Professor Money's experiment, the bear garden idea swept Yorkville, in the best parlors; you'll find play-wrights returning to courtroom dramas and songs getting back to the ballad age; you'll find woman's attire going in for funny looking cuffs at the wrist.

And you'll find the beer saloon returning to popularity.

With or without either, the German beer garden is the most popular of the night resorts. Starting in Hoboken with Christopher Money's experiment, the bear garden idea swept Yorkville, in the upper Fifties and now gradually sweeps uptown.

Whether you take Emil's roof or Schmidt's Brau House, it's going to be the fad of the winter to drink in some form or other. Sometimes the beer is near, and often its very far from the old Milwaukee idea.

Mid-Broadway night clubs, facing the starvation period of the mid-summer and early fall, have turned into brau houses. The yodel of the phony Alpine waiter is heard on the air and sithers have become more common than ukules. They've invaded the uptown belt, the downtown belt and the midriff of Manhattan. Almost every new place that opens has the word "brau" connected with it in some way or other.

The fact is that Manhattan threatens to duplicate Chicago, insofar as the "beer racket" is concerned.

New York's beer sources are largely local, though there is a considerable influx from the Jersey side. Such charming little towns as Hoboken and Weehawken have never attempted to apply the prohibition amendment where beer was concerned.

But along the Hudson, the charming historic towns—whether you mention Yonkers, Poughkeepsie or Catskill—have suddenly found themselves invaded by beer racketeers.

If and when you read of Brooklyn or Manhattan "rides" these days, you can safely wager that the beer gang is behind it.

The most recent Manhattan "ride" was started because straw.

A THOUGHT

And the work of righteousness shall be peace; and the effect of righteousness, gentleness and assurance forever.—Isaiah 32:17.

Righteousness is at the bottom of all things.—Phillips Brooks.

RETURN SEIZED BOOZE

San Francisco, Sept. 16.—(AP)—With a cargo of 1,039 cases of returned liquor in her hold, the Canadian ship Ray Roberts was escorted to sea yesterday by three Coast Guard cutters.

Attorneys for the vessel and crew, seized on a smuggling charge in July, declared part of the ship's equipment and cargo was missing, among other things eleven cases of whiskey, engine room tools and a barometer. They said a formal protest would be filed. Customs officials denied the alleged shortage.

The Ray Roberts was released from charges of violating smuggling laws, when Attorney General Mitchell ruled terms of a treaty with Great Britain had been violated in seizing the vessel.

It is with no feeling of exasperation, you may be sure, that the haberdasher says, "That's the last I said to have been started because straw."

MRS. M. BENGS TELLS OF EUROPEAN TOUR

Spent Three Months Taking in Most Famous Sights in British Isles and on Continent.

Mrs. Max Bengs of Pitkin street returned Saturday on the S. S. Berengaria, after a three months' tour of Europe. Mr. Bengs went to New York to meet his wife, and the children, Carl and Una, who have been spending the summer with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Carroll of Baltimore, have also returned home.

Mrs. Bengs made the trip with her father, M. H. Donahue, and her sister and niece, Mrs. John Conway and daughter, Mrs. M. J. Conway. They spent considerable time in the British Isles and remained for two weeks in Ireland, visiting many famous Irish scenic wonders. While the unemployment situation was apparent in all parts of Europe, it appeared to be more acute in England, and in Belfast, Ireland, where the great linen industry and ship-building yards are rather quiet.

The party leisurely toured Great Britain and the continent, visiting Holland, Germany, Italy, Spain, Switzerland, France and Oberammergau in Bavaria where they remained four days. In that time they were able to learn a lot more about the Passion Play and the participants than the average tourist who witnesses the play and hurries on his tour. They visited with Anton Lang who for so many years played the role of Christ and renewed acquaintance with his own son whom the party had met while a student at Holy Cross College, Worcester.

It was much more wonderful and impressive than they anticipated and it was interesting to hear the senior Lang's views on American comments in regard to the play. In Germany a visit was made to relatives of Mr. Bengs living in Dusseldorf and other places. Many air services are well established and the tourists saved considerable time by a three-hour flight, an experience new to most of them. In Italy they had the most unusual experience of a private audience with the Pope in the throne room of the Vatican at Rome.

Asked how they found the weather this summer as compared with last when tourists found the heat most oppressive, Mrs. Bengs replied that on the contrary the weather was delightfully cool and ideal for touring. Even in Italy they did not mind the heat, and wraps were comfortable during practically all the tour, with the exception of two torrid days in Paris. They were at Lourdes during the pilgrimage, and found the French and Italian Riviera very beautiful.

Asked if the party had seen anything of the devastation from the earthquake in Italy, she stated that they toured down from Venice to Sorrento, Salerno and the Isle of Capri and in their opinion the accounts of the catastrophe were overstated if anything.

Fortune seemed to favor the party. When they arrived at the Blue Grotto, it was the first day in a week that people had been able to get a clear view of this wonder on account of rain. It was the same when they reached the Jungfrau in the Swiss Alps. It had been cloudy and rainy for three weeks, but when they arrived the sun came out and they were able to get a magnificent view.

It was Mrs. Bengs' first trip abroad but her father had made frequent trips to Europe and made an ideal conductor. The quartet thoroughly enjoyed every moment of the tour, together with the sea voyage going and returning.

SECOND GIRL MURDER IN SOUTH BEND, IND.

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Another girl murder has transformed South Bend into a city of agitated citizenry calling upon the law for the quick arrest and punishment of a miscreant. Alice Wolman, 17, was killed in her bed early yesterday. Her throat was cut with a razor. So quick was the killing and so silent that three other children asleep in the same room—one or more of them being Alice in the bed were unaware of it. A few minutes later the thumping of the girl's body on the stairway to which, dying, she had crawled, awoken the household.

Two young men who had been paying her attentions have been questioned by police without, however, providing any clue to the identity of the killer.

First Murder. Less than three weeks ago the body of seven year old Marberine Appel was found in an alley near her home. She had been attacked, then murdered.

The two killings today prompted the taking of added precautions for protection of South Bend school children. There was a noticeable absence of children from the streets last night.

Crowds gathered at the Wolman home yesterday in such numbers that police had to stretch ropes about the place to hold them in check.

CREW NOT RESPONSIBLE. Wellington, New Zealand, Sept. 15.—(AP)—A court of inquiry into the sinking of the liner Tahiti recently off the Cook islands today found that her loss was due to the peril of the sea, which no reasonable human care or foresight could have avoided. In the court's opinion the vessel was staunch, and well founded, and the sinking was caused through the broken talker shaft puncturing the hull. Conduct of officers and crew was praised highly.

ADMITS KILLING GIRL

Coudersport, Pa., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Having confessed, according to Sheriff S. B. Sawyer, that he killed six-year-old Helen Cass with a butcher's knife, Harry Coon, 23, a farm laborer, was held for a coroner's inquest today.

The child's body was found in woods yesterday after a posse had searched for her since Saturday. Coon was found in a deserted farm house near the Cass farm in Allegheny township. He was said to have claimed he killed the child because her father, H. D. Cass, had reprimanded him on account of his work.

MODERN FURNITURE ECONOMIC, STYLISH

Home Furnishings Show To Be Held Here Sept. 26 to Oct. 4 Depicts Finest.

Unusual opportunities are being offered the public today in home furnishings both from an economic and style standpoint. Furniture dealers of South Manchester who are preparing for the Home Furnishings Style Show to be held Sept. 26 to Oct. 4, were agreed today.

The local show will be part of the national exhibit to be held on the same dates. As this is the first national style show arranged by the home furnishings industry, local dealers say that manufacturers and their designers have created the smartest fashions ever exhibited.

The Style Show comes opportunistically for the public. The new merchandise selected at the summer markets now is available to the public at prices which compare favorably with those before the World War. In some classes they are lower.

Local merchants were agreed that prices had "touched the bottom" and that the public could buy with confidence that no further reductions would be made. Since the peak of prices was reached in 1920, they have gradually decreased until now furniture and other merchandise for the home is offered at surprisingly low figures.

Practically everything now on display in local furniture stores represents the latest in fashion. Therefore, the local dealers point out, the public will be able not only to buy furnishings that are fashionable but at prices which, while low, will be maintained at their present levels.

Investors have been slow for some time, due partly to the fact that the business depression which the country has recently experienced caused merchants to buy cautiously and because merchants were preparing to restock for a complete new line of goods for fall showing.

Considering all these factors, the local dealers explain, the dates for the Home Furnishings Style Show are opportune, advantageous both for the public and the merchant alike.

MAY FORCE QUIETER DRIVING OF AUTOS

Stoeckel's Bulletin Appeals to Motorists to Ban Unnecessary Noises.

Unnecessary noise, created by thoughtless drivers of automobiles has become so much of a nuisance that authorities may be obliged to take action soon to secure quiet operation, if voluntary action does not satisfy the strong anti-noise sentiment of the State Motor Vehicle Commission.

In particular, the commissioner's article calls attention to unnecessary horn tooting at times where there is nobody to be warned; the inconsiderate blowing of the horn as a means of signaling a car.

"Public sentiment against noise is becoming so strong," says Stoeckel, "that to demand that every one, especially those in charge of motor vehicle enforcement, recognize the existing situation and suppress those acts of nuisance which are unnecessary, the time is close at hand when nuisances, heretofore unimportant from a disciplinary point of view, will become important and the perpetrators will be disciplined. All authorities will be taken into consideration for their part in the correction."

CONN. BUILDING UNDERGOES BOOM DURING AUGUST

N. H. Road Survey Shows Striking Gains Both Over July and Corresponding Month of 1929.

One of the most remarkable building booms ever to occur in Connecticut took place in the month of August, according to the monthly building survey conducted through the office of E. L. Taylor, Industrial Commissioner of the New Haven Railroad. Coming after months of subnormal activity, the August figures indicate a refreshing, optimistic improvement, showing a gain of more than six million dollars over July in the building permits granted by the twenty-two cities and towns reported upon in the survey.

August permits also revealed a marked gain over those issued in August, 1929. This was the first time this year that any month has shown an increase over the corresponding month of last year. The gain amounted to nearly four and one-half millions. Nine of the twenty-two communities participated in this increase. They were Derby, Hartford, New Britain, Torrington, Stamford, Stratford, West Haven, Colchester, and West Haven.

SEN. WALCOTT SCORES PROHIBITION RESULTS

In Keynote Address He Says That In Many Ways The Results Of Dry Law Were Not Satisfying—Says Since Connecticut Did Not Vote For Amendment It Was Not Responsible—Asks, However, That Hoover Board's Report Should Be Studied To Determine What Steps Should Be Taken—His Speech In Full.

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 16.—(AP)—The following is the complete text of Senator Frederic C. Walcott's keynote speech delivered at the Republican state convention here:

Mr. Chairman and members of the state Republican convention: In 1930 we have convened for the purpose of selecting candidates for the highest governmental offices within the state.

Ours is the oldest experiment in a representative form of government, and by far the most successful. We have been blessed with vast natural resources, and most of our institutions have been built upon such solid foundations that the state has the pride of the world. But as pride grows before a fall, we must give ourselves, modestly but courageously, and with faith in the future, to the protection and the strengthening of both the executive and the legislative branches of our government.

Our government, both state and federal, has been built up, from its inception on the basis of two rival political parties, which, today, differ less in the principles of government than in their ability to function. We believe that the record of accomplishment of the Republican party for constructive legislation and wise administration clearly entitles that party to continue in office. It is my purpose to direct your attention to some of the recent accomplishments of the Republican administration at Washington and the Republican administration in this state.

Beginning with the federal administration, the victory of the Republican party two years ago was decisive. It is fair to assume that not only the extraordinary record and unusual character and efficiency of the candidate for president, but the planks, or pledges, in the platform of the Republican party, the approval of the vast majority of the American voters. Some of the more important of these party pledges seemed, two years ago, almost impossible of accomplishment, yet today they are accomplished facts.

The enumeration of a few of these will prove illuminating and gratifying.

Tariff
The 1922 tariff law revised to furnish greater protection both to American labor and agriculture, with a strengthened flexible provision under which the president may change rates within a limited scope, with a view to making unnecessary general legislative tariff revision for many years to come.

The great desire of this administration is to avoid, as far as possible, a general revision of the tariff in the future by removing the uncertainties which arise from political changes. To this end the flexible provision has been materially improved in the present Smoot-Hawley tariff bill by giving the president full power to reorganize the commission on a bipartisan basis, having three Republicans and three Democrats with adequate salaries and broader powers to ensure men of expert knowledge and broad vision. The president is still given power, by the new provision, to modify rates either up or down to the extent of fifty per cent of the present duty when the findings of the new tariff commission justify such changes. It is a much more liberal provision than we have had heretofore, and the president can, with confidence, assure our foreign customers that they need not be alarmed over the possibilities of future trade with the United States.

Our balance of trade, that is, the balance of exports over imports, gained steadily during the entire life of the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill of 1922. There is no reason why, with this new flexible provision, this present bill cannot be adjusted so that this trade balance may continue in our favor. The Department of Commerce report shows that the trade balance, the value of exports over imports, in 1922, was $130,000,000 and in 1927 it amounted to $670,000,000, an increase of over four hundred per cent.

The records show that the same protests, both in number and intensity, were made against the Fordney-McCumber rates in 1922 that are being made today against the present rates of the Smoot-Hawley bill. These fears of our foreign friends can be allayed because a study of the facts shows clearly that in most cases they have no more grounds for apprehension today than they had eight years ago. With the passage of this new bill, the prices adjusted to the new rates can be established promptly, and business should become normal within a comparatively few months.

tion, especially the farmer and the laborer will increase our foreign trade, without loss of revenue, notwithstanding the fact that under its provisions two thirds of all our imports will come in free. Through increased efficiency which the duty was increased, such as clothing, shoes and sugar, are selling lower than before the increase was made.

No rate changes were made in 66 per cent of the total items in the present law. Increases were made in 888 items and decreased in 285 items. The present tariff bill contains 3,283 items. Of these items, the rates on 2,111 or 65 per cent, were transferred from the dutiable list to the free list and 48 items were transferred from the free list to the dutiable list.

Based on the imports during 1928, the compact and valorem equivalent of the duties under the present law was 33.22 per cent. Under the pending bill the equivalent ad valorem is 40.08, showing an average increase for all items, agricultural and industrial, of 6.86 points.

The opposition of international bankers and American investors in foreign securities and in the establishment of plants in foreign countries with American capital, is purely selfish, and cannot be considered by the legislator. I do not condemn these investments. While I prefer that they should employ American rather than foreign labor, I am willing to concede the liberty of American citizens in such ventures. But the country will not permit the product of such industries to displace in the American market, the American labor employed in competition with unskilled foreign labor. Such imports must bear a duty which fairly covers the difference in cost of production between the two countries.

From this source arises most of the talk of retaliation. The facts are that before the recent legislation, 31 countries had already adopted in some form or other the protective system on a sound economic policy, with no thought of retaliation, and the importation of goods from these countries has been no less than in the past. Such talk may be good partisan policy but is never good economic sense.

When all is said and done it must be remembered that our tariff legislation is for American interests, not foreign. In its adoption the interests of foreign countries were not considered to the detriment of American interests, nor was production in foreign countries from American capital allowed to influence against domestic production both American and labor.

At this point it might be pertinent to ask, in whose favor are all of these efforts directed? Obviously, for the benefit of the American farmer, the American worker, the American business man, the American laborer, the American farmer, the American business man, that he may have employment and that his wages may be maintained even in times of depression.

For the American farmer that his domestic market may be preserved to him against the products of countries where lower wages and lower living standards prevail.

For the American business man that his goods without ruinous competition from countries where production costs are much lower due to lower living standards.

Far-reaching steps for the promotion of peace and good will in the world have been taken during the present administration. Foremost among these, and the greatest step toward peace in the decade was the negotiation of the London Naval Limitation Treaty, putting an end to competitive warship construction between the United States, Great Britain and Japan. Under this agreement, which was ratified by the Senate by an overwhelming majority, the gross tonnage of all navies will be reduced; replacement of capital ships will be postponed at least until 1936, certain battleships now in commission will be decommissioned with large savings in maintenance costs; the American cruiser fleet can be built up to parity with that of Great Britain, and obsolete destroyers and submarines replaced.

The so-called London Naval Treaty between the United States, Great Britain, and Japan declares for England and Japan a holiday in their naval building programs until 1936, and allows the United States to build up to the naval strength of Great Britain. Japan's strength at the end of this period is expected to be six-tenths the strength of England and six-tenths the strength of the United States. This means for the United States that we have the option of five years of building up our navy until we equal in tonnage and fighting strength Great Britain's navy, which is today the largest navy in the world. This would mean parity with Great Britain. Japan would maintain her navy approximately as it is until 1936, when, by the terms of the treaty, the relative strength of the United States navy, compared with Japan will be 10 to 6. There will be another conference in 1936 when the question of naval strength between these three countries will be again reviewed. Whether or not we have a navy equal to Great Britain's is going to depend entirely upon whether we depend upon the willingness to appropriate the necessary money for the new construction, which amounts in round figures to slightly over one billion dollars or a little more than two hundred million dollars a year. If we build fully up to the strength allowed by the terms of this new treaty, it is safe to say that we shall have by the end of 1935 a much larger navy than we would have if no such treaty had been considered, and without this treaty it is probable that both Great Britain and Japan would have kept on building to a point which would have left the United States conspicuously inferior in naval strength. This assumes that Congress would not have appropriated for the full program of the Washington Treaty of 1922.

The ratification of this new treaty of 1930 is the most substantial step toward actual world peace and against war that has yet been concluded. It definitely removed growing belief that we were becoming imperialistic in our ambitions. Our willingness to lead in a program of limitation not only makes possible limitation but in the end we hope reduction of armament. The treaty not only provides the element of safety through a parity of defensive equipment below the stage of aggression, but it puts an end to the dangerous and inevitable rivalry on the sea, which policy may in time open the way for a substantial reduction of armament on land.

There is nothing more certain than the determination of the United States to be equal upon the sea to any other sea power. Whether wise or otherwise, that is a policy upon which country will not yield. We have the interest to be protected. We have the ability to insure such protection; we have the will to make it effective. Unless we act by agreement such as the London Naval Treaty contains, fix a limit, this rivalry will carry us to the stage of tax burdens unbearable with the threat of world conflict constantly impending. Before the World War our defensive equipment, although thought adequate, cost us less than half what it costs today in spite of our efforts at reduction of our military establishment. This idea does not include nearly one billion dollars annually expended to care for the specific results of the World War.

Finance
President Hoover in his first budget to Congress held down Federal expenditures to the same sum appropriated the year before under President Coolidge, and yet by shifting the expenditures he provided for the expansion of the merchant marine and internal waterways, and for increased services of the Department of Labor, Commerce and Agriculture.

The wise financial policies of previous Republican administrations have been carried forward under the direction of Andrew W. Mellon with the result that at the end of the first year of the Hoover administration there was a Treasury surplus of $184,000,000. From the beginning of the Hoover administration on March 4, 1929 to the end of the first fiscal year on June 30, 1930 the public debt has been reduced by an additional $1,160,000,000, making the total reduction under Republican administration since March 1921, $7,864,218,000. The decrease during the Hoover administration has resulted in an additional saving in interest payments alone of over $40,000,000 per year. This means also that the government has adhered strictly to the sound and well-established Republican policy of paying off the public debt as rapidly as the revenues will permit. Today the debt has been reduced to manageable proportions; and eventually as it is further scaled down the drain of debt interest on Federal revenues will continue to be decreased and the country should be able to look forward to a corresponding reduction in Federal taxes.

Debt Settlement
The pledge to carry out the established foreign debt policy was met by ratifying the settlement of the French debt of $4,000,000,000. This brings the total amount of such debts funded to $11,377,000,000 and completes the settlement of all foreign debts except those with Armenia, where there is no established government, and with Russia, the government of which is not recognized by the United States. During the periods specified in the agreements with the debtor nations, the United States should receive a total of $22,000,000,000 on account of principal and interest.

Public Buildings
Thus far, Congress has appropriated $300,000,000 toward completion of the program for new public buildings, including $165,000,000 for an extensive project a triangle extending the length of the south side of Pennsylvania Avenue from the Treasury to the Botanical Gardens, and four blocks deep at its greatest depth, is being cleared of its present structures to make way for monumental modern buildings which are to house the activities of the government.

President Hoover's principal aim in attempting to accelerate the entire program is to stimulate business.

United States As a World Power
The richness of the American home market, compared with the rest of the world combined, is difficult to comprehend. With only seven per cent of the world's population, the United States now consumes forty-two per cent of the world's iron production, forty-seven per cent of the copper, sixty-nine per cent of the crude petroleum, fifty-six per cent of the crude rubber, thirty-six per cent of the coal, fifty-three per cent of the tin, forty-eight per cent of the coffee, twenty-one per cent of the sugar, seventy-two per cent of the silk, and upward of eighty per cent of the automobiles. The United States census estimates in 1922 placed our total national wealth at $20 billion dollars. Our total national wealth in 1928 was estimated at more than $60 billion dollars, an increase in six years of 40 billion dollars. At the beginning of the year 1921, our national debt was $24,049,000,000. The national debt today is $16,187,000,000, a decrease from February 1921 to August 1930 of $7,862,000,000 in ten years of Republican administration. The Allied war debts to the United States, prior to funding, amounted to nearly twelve billion dollars. This huge sum is to be paid back with interest over a period of sixty years. The annual interest this country received in 1928 on its war debts in the sum of one billion dollars, while our net tourist expenditures abroad that same year were 625 million dollars and our immigrant remittances abroad, 189 million dollars. These two items, tourist expenditures and immigrant remittances, thus supplied to Europe almost three and one-half times as much as was paid back to us in war debts. This is a fair illustration of our close economic relationship with Europe and our dominating position as a world power in finance. It calls for great wisdom, generosity, and friendliness in our relations with Europe, but not for a voice in her political affairs.

Conclusion To National Administration

The American people will be glad to have a succinct statement as to accomplishments during the first year and a half of the Republican administration under President Hoover. The program completed will include party pledges fulfilled, improvement in government service and law enforcement, a great constructive program entailing additional outlay with economy in administration permitting a reduction of taxes to the amount of one hundred and sixty million dollars; development of inland waterways, highways, merchant marine, conservation of our natural resources, maintenance of the Republican principle of protective tariff, definite and long-continued relief to agriculture, a constructive program of social improvement, and a foreign policy looking to the consummation of world peace.

Prohibition
Connecticut is in no way responsible for the conditions resulting from the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment and the adoption of the Volstead Act. The Connecticut legislature did not ratify this amendment. The Connecticut Senators and Representatives in Congress voted against the amendment and against the Volstead Act.

The Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution and the enabling act, known as the Volstead Law, were adopted at a time of the greatest stress this country has known since the Civil War. More than ten years and many hundreds of millions of dollars have been spent in an attempt to enforce this law. The results in many ways have been disastrous. The bootlegging, intoxicating liquor is estimated today to be the fourth largest business in the United States. The high price of intoxicants has placed a tremendous premium upon law-breaking and the technical division of bootlegging has led from this into other lucrative fields, the illegal bringing in of immigrants, estimated at nearly a million immigrants last year, more than five times the total quota. The diamond trampet, the legal killing and sale of game, the importation of narcotics, and white slaves. The net result is that there is an organized defiance of law and a concentration of wealth in the hands of a criminal class such as this country has never before seen.

It is claimed by many that the enforcement of the law has not yet been given a fair trial. But no one who knows anything of the facts can question the determination of President Hoover's administration in Washington to enforce the law to the utmost limit of the appropriations which can be made available. The enforcement division has been recently transferred from the Treasury Department to the Department of Justice. There has been a drastic reorganization in personnel of the enforcement division, and coincident with this determined attempt at the strictest enforcement, is the work which is being done by an exceedingly able commission appointed to study the whole problem of crime and law enforcement, particularly related to the Eighteenth Amendment. The report of this commission may be expected sometime next winter. It has gone into every phase of the question, the legislative, economic, and moral.

The administration at Washington can be trusted to get at the bottom of this desperately serious problem as quickly as possible, so that with the unvarnished facts before us and after a determined and drastic attempt at law enforcement, we should know quite clearly which that this right will be upheld can flow that unbowed courage and hope which stimulate each individual man and woman to endeavor and to achievement. The sum of their achievement is the gigantic harvest of national progress. Equal opportunity is a fundamental principle of our nation. Equality of opportunity is the acid test for all of our policies.

The strength of the whole is equal to the sum of its parts. The Federal Government can never be better or wiser than the average administration of its component parts or states. We in Connecticut are jealous of our state rights, which we intend to maintain and exercise to the fullest.

Let us analyze briefly in what respects this state has benefited in a comparative short time through the resources of the state, both financial and economic, have been conserved.

Finance
The financial condition of the state continues to be entirely satisfactory. New economies have been introduced, a budget system covering all departments has been consolidated on short notice to reveal the exact condition of the state at any time. Estimates are now made by each department, covering a period of two years in advance, giving ample time to study carefully the needs of the various departments, determine where economies can be introduced, more efficient methods installed, and a more accurate budget system reached. When the Republican party came into control of the state affairs in 1914, the state of Connecticut owed approximately $14,000,000. The legislature of 1915 established a sinking fund for the reduction, and ultimate payment of this debt; this sinking fund has been accumulating ever since. On August 1, 1930, the state treasury had in its sinking fund, for the retirement of the debt, the sum of $10,199,000. These bonds come due as follows: On April 1, 1934, $2,955,000; on July 1, 1936, $13,366,000. During the year ending June 30, 1930, the income from investments from this sinking fund amounted to $647,040.63. By July 3, 1930, there will be sufficient money in the sinking fund to pay the entire bonded indebtedness and leave a balance in addition of approximately $200,000. During the year from April, 1930 to April 1, 1930, there will be an additional million dollars of income from the investments from this sinking fund. This is entirely apart from the current balance of the state.

The balance carried over at the end of the last fiscal year, June 30, 1930, amounted to $6,080,845.50, which is sufficient to cover all the needs of the new buildings and leave a balance of unallocated money amounting to $500,000. At the end of the previous fiscal year, June 30, 1929, the current balance of the state treasury was $3,516,305.42, notwithstanding the loss of income caused by a reduction in the state tax, amounting to $250,000 for each of the fiscal years, 1928 and 1929. It is interesting to note the ex-

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Celia Rogers, looking one month of being 18 and just out of high school, spends a hot and weary July day looking for a job. Her mother, Margaret Rogers, is a widow and employed as seamstress in a dress shop. They live in Baltimore and the mother's earnings are their only income.

Celia is unsuccessful in her search for work. Mrs. Rogers arrives home with a letter which she conceals from the girl. The letter, signed John Mitchell, is an offer to provide Celia with every advantage of education, travel and social position if the mother will give her up. Margaret declares she will never do this.

Celia goes for a drive with Barney Shields, young newspaper photographer who lives next door. Shields kisses the girl and tells her he loves her. They discuss marriage, but agree it must be a long time off. Next day Celia continues her search for work. She goes to the shop where her mother is employed and learns Mrs. Rogers has been taken ill.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER IV
"Where is she—my mother? Oh, has anything happened?" Celia demanded, her voice rising hysterically.

The doctor held up a warning hand. "Quiet!" he insisted. Then, eyeing the girl kindly, went on: "Are you Mrs. Rogers' daughter? She's resting quietly but you mustn't disturb her. No cause for alarm. Your mother is suffering from a heat attack—brought on, I should say, by exhaustion. "Can't—can't I just see her?" the girl begged.

"After awhile." Dr. Williams turned to one of the women who seemed to be in charge of the fitting room. "There's nothing further I can do," he said. "She's comfortable. Let her rest where she is as long as you can. My honor! What she needs is rest and quiet for a few days—particularly if this hot weather lasts. Ought to stay home tomorrow by all means. Well, I'll be on my way—"

Celia caught the doctor's arm. "Please!" she begged, "tell me what happened!" Patiently Dr. Williams reviewed what he had said. The intense heat had caused Mrs. Rogers to collapse. Emergency measures had been applied with satisfactory results. In half an hour Celia could go into the little rest room where her mother lay and could stay with her providing she promised to be perfectly still and not to talk.

He added instructions for the patient's care that evening. "Just keep her quiet and comfortable," he said. "She'll probably feel weak for some time. Don't let her worry about anything. Of course she'll have to be very careful to avoid hot sunlight the rest of the summer. Ought not to exert herself in the least during hot weather. You look to me like a pretty good nurse. Take care of her!"

With a smile Dr. Williams departed. He had been called in because his office was just two doors from the dress shop. He had done all that he could for the sick woman. As he strode into the street the doctor shook his head, muttering something unintelligible, and tried to wipe perspiration from his forehead.

The other women who worked with Mrs. Rogers were sympathetic. They tried to comfort the girl and Mrs. Foster, who was really "Margie" and owned the shop, came in to tell Celia her mother should remain home next day.

Connecticut Boy is Brightest

FROM three to twelve. That's the period which is most important to your child's development. And that's the time many are retarded mentally and physically by constipation.

Watch your child, mother! At the first sign of bad breath, coated tongue, headache, biliousness, lack of energy or appetite, give a little California Fig Syrup.

This pure vegetable product cleanses, regulates a child's bowels without discomfort. No danger of forming the laxative habit when California Fig Syrup is used. For it tones and strengthens weak bowels. In colds or children's diseases, employ its gentle aid to keep the system from becoming clogged with germs or waste.

Mothers everywhere are eager to tell of the benefits secured for their children. Mrs. James McCarter, 25 Rowe Avenue, Hartford, says: "I have used California Fig Syrup with Bobbie for four years in cases of upset, bad breath, coated tongue or constipation. It keeps him the brightest, happiest six-year-old I know!"

Look for the name California when buying. That is on every carton of the genuine, for your protection.

Barney's bright smile flashed at her, but immediately he saw something was wrong.

Celia tip-toed down the hallway and peered into the rest room. Her mother seemed to be sleeping. She looked little and tired and her face was pale as she lay on the low cot. An ice bag covered Margaret Rogers' forehead. Her clothing had been loosened. The breeze from an electric fan swept the room.

Celia crept silently, to the only chair and sat down. Her eyes were misted with tears. It was all she could do to keep from kneeling beside the cot and slipping an arm about her mother, begging that a cab be waiting at the door. They helped her rouse Mrs. Rogers, helped the woman to rise and get ready to go home.

"Celia!" Mrs. Rogers whispered softly. That was all she said until she had been called in by the doctor. Then the mother leaned back against her daughter's arm and gave a long sigh.

"So tired," she murmured. "Glad to have you here, darling." The driver of the taxicab helped Celia take her mother up the two flights of stairs leading to the flat. He volunteered and the girl could scarcely have managed alone. The driver was a thick set, red-faced man who by no chance would ever have been taken for a good Samaritan, but he tipped his hat, mumbled something and hurried off down the stairs as soon as he had received his fare.

Lying on the bed before the open window Margaret Rogers looked up into her daughter's face and managed a wan smile. "I'm—all right now—dear. See about your dinner—I'm all right."

She refused to be wakened upon. Celia pushed the windows as high as possible, brought ice wrapped in towels for her mother's head, but nothing the girl could do could keep the room from feeling like a bake oven.

After Mrs. Rogers closed her eyes and seemed to doze Celia went into the living room. She sank into a chair, fanning herself with a folded newspaper. She was hot, tired and still frightened. The early afternoon seemed years away.

Presently she arose, found cold food and nibbled at it. She had no appetite and soon cleared away the dishes.

At eight o'clock she heard footsteps on the stairs and knew they were Barney Shields. Celia hurried into the hall to meet him.

Barney's bright smile flashed at her as he reached the top of the stairs. Immediately he saw something was wrong.

"Oh, Barney," the girl said in a low voice, "I'm glad you've come. It's—I've been so frightened!"

"The youth was beside her, his face as grave as hers now. "What's happened?" he asked. "What's the matter?"

Celia told him. They stood in the hallway talking in whispers so as not to disturb the woman in the bedroom. Celia's words came in a flood, interrupted once or twice when tears got the better of her. Emotion, held in check for hours, suddenly gave way.

Barney tried to comfort her. "But, honey, don't cry! Everything'll be all right tomorrow. I'm sure it will. Gosh, on a hot day like this anyone's liable to go to pieces!"

THIS AND THAT IN FEMININE LORE

Individuality to Determine Style of Hairdressing
"Femininity is the Watchword," says Miss Bernice Juul of the Weldon Beauty Parlor who has returned from New York with many new ideas concerning beautification work. While in New York she interviewed prominent New York hairdressers such as Arnold and Martin of Vienna, both of whom cater to actresses and young society.

Miss Juul also spent a day at the Wilfred Academy of Hair and Beauty Culture, and took private instructions in new branches of the work, such as oil manicure and oil facial.

"What shall I do with my hair this fall?" is a question every woman is asking. If her hair is short, she is afraid it should be long. If it is long, she thinks it should be short.

Reducing in Hollywood
While in New York Miss Juul learned about Hollywood's new idea for reducing. Miss Sylvia von Ulback, a little Danish girl, is Ulback's leading masseuse, who spans our movie stars into shape. She doesn't believe in steam baths which are weakening or a rigorous diet.

YOUR CHILDREN

Should a mother have any interest in her family? Yes, she should. It seems superfluous to say so in this age when a woman now is looked upon as a human being and not as a machine.

Let me explain that this woman is no goddess, but she has a nice circle of friends whom she enjoys occasionally.

Her husband, too, I must admit, seems like a normal sensible person, who did not impress me as being a slave-driver or a jailer in the slightest sense of the word. He is a good provider, too, but he has his little economies, I understand.

How He Got That Way
However, the dollar for the girl to come in a little stronger and say a month was not the reason for his objection.

His wife told me later, with a certain cheerfulness that I am sure she did not feel, that he'd always been that way. He had the old-fashioned idea that when a woman had a family of children to look after, she ought to stay at home.

But I wonder how long this man would feel the way he does about his wife having a little recreation during the day if he were to change places with her for a week? We'll put it a little stronger and say a month of the monotony and wear of just such work as she is doing owes some of its breaking power to the pull of time.

CHAPTER XLII
It found its mark on Gary Sloan's nose and the big director staggered. And then the came on like a giant fury, snarling, and in a moment Romer went to the pavement beneath a smashing blow, with an agonized cry from Anne Winter ringing in his ears as he fell.

He scrambled up again, brushing Anne aside as she sought to interfere, but Sloan was too big for him. The director was on him at once, eyes blazing, swinging mighty fists, and one of them connected solidly with Dan's chin and the lights went out.

"When he opened his eyes again Sloan was bending over him with a worried look on his face. Blood was flowing from his nose. It ran down in a dark rivulet over his mouth and chin. He said anxiously, "Am you all right, Romer?"

Dan nodded and managed a feeble smile. An anvil clanged in his head and Sloan was a hazy vision to him, kneeling there with one arm around a girl who smothered him and shook with violent sobs. He could feel the man's forehead beneath his neck, propping him up.

Sloan's strained features relaxed at the other's smile. "Sure you're all right?" he repeated, and Dan assured him he was. To prove it he got up unaided and stood on his feet.

"I'm sorry, Romer," the director said, "sorry as hell. I went off my nut." He turned his attention to Anne then and pressed his mouth to her ear and told her not to worry. "It's all right, Anne; everything's all right again. Buck up now."

Things slowly became clear to Romer again, as though he were emerging from a fog. He put his fingers against his jaw and they touched a tender spot where Sloan had hit him and knocked him unconscious, and he suddenly felt conscious, and he suddenly felt that never before in his life had he been so ridiculous as this; for there was Sloan with his arms around the trembling Anne Winter—the Lord only knew what had happened to Anne—and here he was rubbing a sore chin after a bad lighting, because he had stuck his nose into somebody else's affairs.

He felt the spot gingerly again. Lucky that his jaw hadn't been broken for his pains. Just a big fool.

Sloan had been decent, too—very decent—more so than he had a right to expect. He ought to be sore. Dan went over to him and he said, "I'm sorry—terribly sorry. It was my fault, the whole thing. I made an awful sap of myself."

"It's all right," the other assured him with a bloody grin, and he held out his hand for Romer to shake. It was his left hand; the other arm was around Anne Winter. "We all fly off the handle once in a while, I guess," Sloan smiled, "forget it. Forgive it and say something to her, will you? I can't get a rise out of her. She's scared out of her head."

Sloan himself spoke soothingly to Anne again, but his words had no effect. So Dan held her and murmured into her ear while the director wiped his face with his handkerchief. He rubbed her wrist and patted her shoulder, and talked to her, and Anne's convulsive weeping continued.

He looked up at Sloan and shook his head. Having removed most of the blood from the face, Sloan now plucked at his chin and gazed thoughtfully at the distracted girl. "There's nothing to worry about, I believe," he assured Romer. "She's just a bit hysterical, that's all."

"It's all my fault, too," Dan murmured in self-reproach, but Gary Sloan smiled and said he was not so sure of that.

"I contributed my bit," he remarked, and he looked thoughtful again. And then he took hold of Anne and pulled her gently by her feet and held her there. He spoke sharply to her.

"We're going back, Anne. Come along. We're going back on that scamp. Understand?" Romer heard voices not very far off, coming nearer to them—the crew, most likely, coming back for the "shooting."

Sloan heard them too. He raised Anne's chin, compelled her to look at him and listen to what he said. "Come on, Anne, we're going back. And he nodded to Dan Romer to come along. "You and I have a little cleaning up to do," he smiled, "that the other's don't know won't hurt them. . . . Feeling better, Anne?"

Anne nodded. With Sloan on one side of her and Dan on the other, she walked back to the studio.

Paul Collier that night heard a strange story. Dan came home, wild of eye, with marked face and dirty clothes, and Collier took one look at him and his mouth fell open in amazement.

He exclaimed softly. What a story! It's the best yarn that's cracked in Hollywood in a year." He grinned. "Can I use it?"

"Can you what?" Collier threw an arm up over his head and shrank from an imaginary blow. "All right. All right. I was just kidding. Don't throw any punches at me." He said, "What did Sloan do? What did Anne do?"

"Just what I'm telling you. He talked to her for a while. Sat in her dressing room with her and told her she simply had to go through with it. And I'm telling you she did, too. I stuck around to hear part of the playback and then I beat it. She's absolutely going to steal the picture."

"Didn't you take her home?" "Me take her home? Do you think I was going to stick around after what happened? Nothing doing; I ducked out. What a goof she must think I am—swinging on Sloan that way."

"They sat at that up, my boy." "Yeah?" Dan rubbed his chin and smiled ruefully. "Gee, how that guy can hit!"

Paul chuckled and lazily stretched out a long arm for a cigarette. "You sure went out of your class," he observed, measuring his friend with admiring eyes. "But I don't think there's anything so remarkable in what Sloan did afterward. I mean about making Anne do her stuff. The same thing's been done before, under different circumstances, of course. He just caught her in the right mood and grabbed his chance, that's all. He knows his stuff. . . . But what do you think of Gary Sloan now? Is he a director or isn't he?"

"I'll never say another word against him," Romer promised. "I know when I'm licked, and I'm pretty thoroughly licked. He thought—in more ways than one."

Waiting for Sloan to appear the next morning, he felt a few misgivings. They had parted friends, but he had not ceased to reproach himself for his foolishness; Sloan, he feared, might have been as pleasant about it now that he had had a night in which to think matters over.

But the director was cordial when he came, and he took Dan to one side and told him to forget what had happened.

"No one has to know a word about it. No one was there but the three of us. It doesn't have to go any farther."

"One of the camera men gave me a funny look last night," Dan told him with a smile. "He must have thought something."

"That's all explained. I told him you stumbled over a step in the dark."

"I'm just a sap." "Sure you are," Sloan said cheerfully, "but you'll have to take credit for one of the biggest scenes in the picture."

"I'll run his fingers through his blond mop of hair. She'll be a great actress yet, Romer. Watch her. I guess I was pretty tough on her last night," he admitted, "but sometimes you have to be in this business. . . . Has she been around today?"

"I haven't seen her." Anne did not appear at all that day. There was nothing more for her in the picture now. There remained only the war sequences, in which she did not appear. And were to be made on location. And Dan believed that he did not have to face her. There had been no talk between them—nothing; he had remained in the background while Sloan brought her around to doing what he expected of her.

The following day, though, he saw her. The publicity department had arranged for a luncheon appointment for her with a newspaper writer. Anne came early, and Gary Sloan discovered her and took her to the projection room forthwith to look at the last rushes and hear his praise.

"Great Anne. Absolutely great!" Sloan's manner said. "Tell me, now, that I was right." And Anne told him.

Hints on How To Keep Well by World Famed Authority

OFFER LITTLE PROTECTION FROM GLARE
BY DR. MORRIS FISBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

If the average man looks at bright sunlight, or at the snow, or at intense light from any source, he is likely to have his vision blurred at least temporarily. As a preventive of the uncomfortable feeling associated with glare, glasses of various types have been provided by the manufacturer which are to be worn in the presence of intense light.

Recently the Bureau of Standards has made an investigation of various types of glasses used for this purpose. Dr. W. W. Coblenz has studied many types of glasses over a period of 16 years. "They come and go," he says, "like the styles of hats and dresses."

The scientist is concerned with two factors in the light: One is the general question of the light itself; two, the special question of ultraviolet rays from the light.

Apparently the amount of ultraviolet in ordinary sunlight is not injurious to the normal eye. There are instances, however, in which the eye is especially sensitive to ultraviolet and the irradiation associated with exposure may result in inflammation.

Doctor Coblenz points out that anethysol colored glasses do not seem to have any real advantage over ordinary spectacle glasses. Other glasses are advertised as especially valuable because they cut down the ultraviolet rays. Although all of the glasses cut down the infrared rays in about the same manner as do ordinary spectacle glasses.

Doctor Coblenz is convinced that none of the glasses thus far available cuts down to any extent the glare or light which enters the eye. In fact, he says, "The cases are few in which it is important to reduce the intensity of average daylight. When near ultraviolet rays lamps and sparks from the collars, dark glasses should be worn to protect the eyes from ultraviolet radiation."

The sun is not, of course, in direct line of vision and the eye has some protection against it. However, direct line of vision. Because of the danger of ultraviolet to the eye, these rays should be avoided by the wearing of special glasses.

The bust of a former Tammany executive was rejected and now the sculptor has brought suit. Maybe he didn't submit a rough draft first.

WHEN A CHILD IS FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, in babies and children, generally show food is souring the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy, sour, in digestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

FIVE GRID STYLES TURNS SPOTLIGHT ON PACIFIC COAST

Systems Range From Warner's Hocus Pocus to Washington's Wingfooted Plays.

San Francisco (AP)—Five pillars of football strategy teeming as many distinctive systems, have turned the Pacific coast this season into a proving field of gridiron theory.

The systems will range from Glenn "Pop" Warner's hocus pocus at Stanford and Howard Jones' of Southern California driving tactics to the wing-footed Rockne game exemplified by Jimmy Phelan at Washington.

The campaign also will include the University of California defensive style and a new power game" being introduced at Oregon by Dr. Clarence Spears.

CARNERA RANKED AHEAD OF SHARKEY

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Primo Carnera, the giant Italian seeker of the heavyweight throne, monopolized the late session of the National Boxing Association yesterday.

Primo first threw his shadow across the convention when the business of ranking the heavyweight fighters was begun.

Primo passed every heavyweight in America with the exception of Young Stribling of Georgia. Even Jack Sharkey taking a back seat.

Discoverer of Dempsey Infected Finger Victim

John the Barber, Noted Broadway Character, Dies in Hospital; started Dempsey to Fame.

New York, Sept. 16.—(AP)—John the Barber, boxer, fight promoter and one of Broadway's best known figures for three decades died yesterday in Lebanon hospital.

His real name was John J. Reiser and one of his claims to fame was that he discovered Jack Dempsey.

Reiser eventually sued Dempsey for breach of contract and after prolonged litigation the case was settled out of court.

John the Barber was one of the principal witnesses at the trial of Police Lieutenant Charles A. Becker and four gunmen for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, gambler, who was slain in 48th street July 16, 1922.

Among members of the family at Reiser's bedside when he died was his son, Morris Reiser, whose sentence of 20 years was commuted by Governor Roosevelt last March.

ALL-STAR BALL TEAM'S BATTING AVERAGE IS 360

All Three Pitchers From American Which Places Two More Players Than National.

Newport, Sept. 16.—(AP)—Win, lose or draw, the discouraging efforts of the luckless Shamrock V to beat the saucy Enterprise in two races have convinced one of Great Britain's foremost sailors that England never can lift the America's Cup under present conditions.

The speaker is Rear Commodore Ralph Grove-Raines of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club, Belfast, Ireland, home port and club of Sir Thomas Lipton.

Each writer was asked to name two catchers and three pitchers. Here is the result of the vote on catchers: Cochrane, 10; Hartnett, 7; Jimmy Wilson of the Cardinals, 3; Shanty Hogan of the Giants, 1.

And this is how the 10 writers voted on pitchers: Ferrer, 10; Grove, 9; Lyons, 5; Pat Malone of the Cubs, 2; George Earnshaw of the Pirates, 2; Ray Kremer of the Pirates, 2.

The batting averages of the all-stars, according to recent averages, are: Terry, .407; Simmons, .385; Lindstrom, .367; Cochrane, .364; Ruth, .360; Hartnett, .351; Wilson, .348; Jackson, .347; Gehring, .326. In the batting average as given above, Hack Wilson was placed in the cleanup role because the stocky little Cub center fielder leads both leagues in the matter of runs driven in, a habit in which he is most consistent.

Joe Cronin was named at shortstop, unopposed, in the American League all-star team which appeared in this newspaper yesterday. In the National League team, printed Saturday, Jackson was named by a close vote over Wright.

National League Pennant Hinges Upon the Outcome

Cubs Meet Giants at Same Time; Lost to Phillies in Opener Yesterday as Robins Win 11th Straight.

Once more the pace setters, the Brooklyn Robins, today faced the difficult task of turning back the threatening St. Louis Cards, as they did the Chicago Cubs last week, if they are to be the first team under the wire in the National League pennant race.

The Robins, boasting a season's record winning streak of 11 games went into today's fray holding a one game margin over the Cardinals and a one and one-half game advantage over the third place Cubs.

The four leading clubs line up in their second crucial series within a week, the standing looks like this: Brooklyn . . . 84 60 583 0

St. Louis . . . 82 60 577 0
Chicago . . . 82 61 573 1 1/2
New York . . . 78 65 545 5 1/2

In turning back the Reds, 13 to 6, the Robins won their 11th consecutive game, beating the Athletics, former 1930 record of 10 straight. The Reds by scoring three runs in the first inning and driving Ray Moss from the hill looked threatening, but the Robins were not after the game and a chance to increase their lead over the Idle Cardinals, a few of whom were in the stands.

Red Lucas, ace of the Reds' hurling staff, went the way of Moss as Brooklyn walloped six times in their half of the first session. There would have been one more run if Glenn Wright who bounced a homer into the bleachers had not over-run Babe Herman on the base paths.

After the first inning the Brooklyn sluggers kept peppering away, rolling up a decided advantage while Watson Clark, Moss's successor, was holding the Reds in check.

It is interesting to speculate on the probable pitchers for the second game of the town baseball series between the West Sides and Bon Ami next Sunday. It would be no great surprise if neither team started the same man.

SEN. WALCOTT SCORES PROHIBITION RESULTS

Extraordinary improvements in the state's physical health are now in process of construction. During the last biennium period, the state spent $1,500,000 on additions to buildings and the state has let contracts during the last fiscal year of approximately $3,500,000 in new buildings, many of which will be completed by October 1, 1931. This means that in four years the state will have built the following: Five new buildings at the state farm for women; the Shelton tuberculosis hospital; one at the Meriden tuberculosis hospital; one at the boy's school at Meriden; one at the Noroton Soldiers Home; two at the Norwich insane asylum.

Two weeks ago contracts were let in the sum of approximately $1,000,000 for the first in new buildings of a new state hospital for the insane. By the biennium period this plant should be completed enough for use, thus relieving the congestion which now exists at Norwich and Middletown.

The new state office building is now being erected at a cost of $2,500,000. This will relieve the congestion in the capitol due to the growing demands of the state and the extraordinary growth of the motor vehicle department of its kind in the United States.

We believe that with the present building program already inaugurated, and well under way, for our humane institutions, that Connecticut has an enviable reputation for the character and beauty of her highways. It is generally conceded that there are no better roads in the country than those in Connecticut. The department, as our own state department, is entirely supported by revenues received from the owners of motor vehicles and the users of gasoline. The state's gasoline tax is fair and not as high as many other states. Our registration fees are moderate and with receipts from these sources, including fines and license fees, fully pay the cost of our highway construction and the operation of the department.

During the fiscal year of 1929 and 1930 the receipts from the above-named sources were $14,464,480.33 and the disbursements $14,317,615.86, divided as follows: For motor vehicle department $716,283.93, leaving a balance of receipts over disbursements of $146,000.

The State Highway Department has been able to afford a fair and equitable care of the care of road-ways, flowers, shrubs, and trees, and the beautification of our roadways. Connecticut's example in this respect has been followed by several other states. Several thousand signs along the highways have been removed and the beauties of most of the more picturesque turns in the road revealed.

The fact that each year shows a marked gain in the automobile mileage over our roads is the best indication of their increasing usefulness and the public's approval and appreciation of the work which the Motor Vehicle and Highway Departments have done in regulating traffic and placing Connecticut's roads in the best possible condition. State aid roads are now opening up the isolated farming sections and Connecticut's efforts at keeping the roads passable in winter have given the Highway Department a nationwide reputation.

The State Department of Health attempts to cooperate with local health officers through its personnel of physicians trained in public health, sanitary engineers, skilled laboratory workers, experienced public health nurses and through the bureau and divisions of the department which keeps the health officers and others in Connecticut.

Much of the Department of Health activity is necessarily carried on behind the scenes, such as the work by the laboratory in which a corps of thirty people carry out over 120,000 examinations annually in assisting physicians and public health workers so that Connecticut's health may be good. Major activities in the department are divided into separate bureaus or divisions, these being at the present time administration, preventable diseases, vital statistics, laboratory, sanitary engineering, child hygiene, public health nursing, public health instruction, venereal diseases, occupational diseases and mental hygiene. The major effort of the department is always along the lines designated by its motto, "For a Clean State and a Healthy People," and the chief aim has been to do whatever is best for Connecticut. To the president genius and executive head of this organization we owe much. To the governor who has guided the ship of state along her course for six years with unflagging interest and great skill, as the record demonstrates, we owe a deep debt of gratitude. Upon the other officials we bestow our sincerest thanks.

Now, delegates to this convention, upon your shoulders rests the grave responsibility of nominating men who, by character, ability, courage and vision, measure up to the great privilege of taking part in the further administration and development

16TH VICTIM

West Orange, N. J., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Another name has been crossed off the doom book kept by Dr. Harrison S. Martland, medical examiner for Essex county.

After the death of Mrs. Anna Stasi of radium poisoning yesterday, Dr. Martland revealed that he had a list of the names of women who had been employed at numbering luminous watch dials with radium paint in the plant of the United States Radium Corporation.

Mrs. Stasi is the sixteenth death among women who worked in the plant and contracted radium poisoning by moistening paint brushes with their lips.

Dr. Martland said he had the list prepared when symptoms of the poisoning first appeared among the women five years ago.

CONSERVATION

The conservation of the state's natural resources has been progressing rapidly. The state, during the last ten years, has accumulated several forests, which aggregate more than fifty-four thousand acres. These forests are being maintained and the waste lands reforested along scientific principles. They will eventually prove an important asset to the state. They are important today to the people of the state from a recreational point of view and the protection of our fresh water supply.

The state now owns and leases the fishing rights on more than one hundred and twenty miles of trout streams, and annually stocks these streams with mature fish up to the capacity of the streams food supply for the enjoyment of the anglers, of whom there are approximately fifty thousand within the state.

The fish and game department is now self-supporting from the sale of licenses, with the exception of an occasional capital expenditure for new buildings, and a small administrative appropriation which has to be taken from the general fund.

The state water commission has made phenomenal headway in educating the public conscience to the importance of keeping our fresh water supply clean and avoiding waste. Many industrial plants and most of the larger cities of the state have cooperated to the limit of their available resources in the scientific treatment and disposal of both domestic and industrial waste and sewage. A sectional movement for the removal of sewage from our fresh water streams, lakes and rivers is now being considered more important factor in this regional movement because of the example she has already set and her determination to clean up and conserve her fresh and salt water areas.

These accomplishments have required persistent effort along the lines of sound policy but no record such as this can be made without the leadership, men of vision, character and ability. The people of Connecticut are to be congratulated for having chosen such men during this reconstruction period of the last fifteen years. Much credit must

SENSE AND NONSENSE

Got A Car Like This? Traffic Officer (to fellow whose car stalled at street intersection)—You can't stop here! Car Owner—You don't know this car.

Even As You And I Diogenes was wandering aimlessly around the town with his lantern. Cop (sarcastically)—Still looking for an honest man? Diogenes (snapping)—No, for a parking place.

You never know just how mean you can be until you become dictator or get a job driving a truck.

A new automobile record was recently made. A guy drove from coast to coast without eating a single hot dog.

Mrs. B.—Did your husband snore? Grass Widow—Oh, I don't know. You see, we were only married a week when he got killed by an automobile.

The Man at the Wheel (noting Drunk)—That reminds me, I must get the car oiled tomorrow.

An actor had been guilty of a piece of dangerous driving in his car. A policeman approached, tugging his notebook and pencil from his pocket.

Actor (smiling)—Well, my man, I make it a rule never to sign autograph albums, but in your case I'll make an exception.

Overheard as a somewhat flustered young thing descended from the sedan: "Say, Mayme, I see you been on the rumple seat."

Thanks to the automobile half the world refuses to stay at home and let the other half visit it.

First Sap—What is the difference between learning golf and motorizing? Second Boy—In golf you hit nothing, and in motorizing you hit everything.

How comforting to reflect that the ordinary car you have is the wonderful one the ad describes.

If you see half a dozen automobiles parked around a country home on Sunday it means that the people who live there didn't get away in time to escape the invasion.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

If it's true that money talks, then silence can't be golden.

Now if they can only invent an antisknock car for people.

With some autoists the turnover is costlier than the upkeep.

Man—I want to trade this roadster for a coupe.

Salesman—What's the matter with it? Man—Nothing—Only I quit chewing tobacco.

Difficult Customer—I can't remember the name of the car I want, I think it starts with T.

Exasperated Salesman—Madam, all our cars start with gasoline.

Traffic Cop—Haven't you better go and tell your boss about that accident?

Farmer's Boy—He knows. Traffic Cop—Knows? How can he know? Farmer's Boy—Well, you see, he's under the hay.

The pedestrians future outlook depends largely on his present look out.

It must be great consolation to a man dead of a cracked skull to know the windshield didn't shatter.

Angry Dad—A car? Of course you can't have a car. Why, you would be absolutely helpless if you found yourself with a flat tire.

Daughter—Oh, no, I wouldn't Daddy, I've given flat tires the air before this.

PRACTICAL EXPERIENCE

"I believe," said the chagry philosopher, "that for every single thing you give away two come back to you."

"That's my experience," agreed Whifflebaum. "Last March I gave away my daughter and she and her husband came back in July."—Pathfinder.

HOLDING ON TO IT

"Who is the most miserly man you know?" "Old Smith. Just think: When there's a crowd at the station and people are standing in line waiting for their tickets, he always goes last so that he can keep his money in his pocket as long as possible."—Travasso, Rome.

ONCE UPON A TIME

Dirty, hungry and wearing shoes, trousers and a red flannel undershirt, Monte Blue, noted film star, crashed the gates of movie-land with a pick and shovel as a common laborer, when he visited the studio seeking work.

THE TINYMITES

Wee Clowny cried, "Ha, ha, ho, ho! Right up the mountain side we go. I am an Alpine climber and I'm pretty good, at that. This fun to walk up stairs like this. I hope that nothing goes amiss. If I should slip—oh me, oh my, I know that I'd fall flat." The guide then said, "You bet you would, and, frankly, 'twouldn't be so good. These mountains lead to far below, so far you cannot see. If you should slip, you'd slide a week, so of such things please do not speak. You'll have no trouble if you pay attention just to me." So, as they climbed and climbed more the Tinies kept remarks in store. The kind guide knew his business and they did just as he said. A rope was tied around his belt and to the others. My, they felt much safer just to trail along and let him go ahead. Once Coppy slipped and shouted, "Hey! Hold tight or I'll be on my way" right down this pesky mountain slope. "Oh, you're safe," cried the guide. "Just use your head and hang on tight. We all can pull you up all right." And then they pulled real hard and Coppy soon was at their side. In 'bout an hour they reached the top of that big slope. "Right here we'll stop and like around on snowshoes," said the guide, in friendly tone. "You see, the ground is flat up here and there is not a thing to fear. We'll do away with our long rope and travel 'round alone." Then to a but he promptly ran and came out with a chubby man. This fellow gave them snowshoes. Then he shouted, "Try to run." Poor Clowny did, and what a thrill! He took a very sudden spin. He couldn't run in snowshoes, but just trying it was fun. (The Tinymites have a snowball fight in the next story.)

NORTH END MERCHANTS

MEET THIS EVENING

Discuss Dollar Day Plans and Also Hear Report on Bus Terminal Plans.

The North End Merchants' Division of the Chamber of Commerce will hold its regular monthly meeting, postponed from September 8, at the Community Club at 8 o'clock tonight. Plans for a Dollar Day in the near future will be discussed and Secretary E. J. McCabe will report on the North End bus terminal proposal. At the request of the North End division the directors of the Chamber were asked to consider the terminal facilities. It is hoped that conditions may be improved on Woodbridge street, where the bus now stops. Among improvements suggested is the paving of the road. As it is now the street at this section is generally little more than a mudhole making it highly inconvenient to await the bus at this point.
