M. H. S. ORCHESTRA WINS HIGH PLACE

Gets Third Prize at Springfield Fair Against Field of Bigger Organizations.

Although school has just gotten underway with the result that there has been practically no time for rehearsals, Manchester High school's crack orchestra, under the able leadership of Miss E. Marion Dorward, captured third prize in the orchestra contest staged at the Eastern States Exposition in Springfield Friday noon, according to a decision made by the judges the following afternoon.

Considering the disadvantages of a smaller membership and lack of several musical instruments which larger schools can afford, Manchester High's showing is considered excellent. It would be no exaggeration to say that in placing third in a field of six contending groups, Miss Dorward's protégés attained the maximum result possible under present conditions.

Last year Manchester placed second but this year the field was much stronger. It was not classified and orchestras other than those representing high schools were allowed to compete.

Waterbury high school took first prize with 75 players and a much wider variety of instruments. The Middletown Community orchestra was next in line and they had 50 members, Manchester with only 29 pieces was next while three other orchestras, some with larger membership, followed in the rear.

The contests were held during different days so that the people attending the exposition might have a musical treat. Manchester's program was offered Friday noon.

Three selections were played, Sakszy's March, a Hungarian composition, Minuet in E Flat by Mozart and Selections of Maritana by Wallace.

THIS IS THE LAST WEEK OF DAYLIGHT SAVING

Manchester will get one added hour of sleep—perhaps—next Saturday night, September 27, when clocks will be turned back again as the town reverts to standard time at 2 o'clock Sunday morning.

As usual schedules of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad will be revised and business offices will open on standard time Monday morning. Little time will remain for daylight activities after working hours as the sun will set at approximately 5:45 p. m. next week. It won't be so dark, however, when you get up.

TWIN HILLS PERIL BRINGS BAD CRASH

Long Expected Collision of Trolley and Truck Comes With One Driver Drunk

Motorists who have long been anticipating a terrific accident as the logical outcome of conditions existing on and alongside the Manchester-Hartford highway in the vicinity of Twin Hills, near the Love Lane station of the Connecticut Company, would have witnessed the realization of their fears at a few minutes after 1 o'clock this morning had they been in that neighborhood. The trolley tracks at this point run alongside the highway without the interposition of any sort of protection from collision. Motorists ascending the hill from the west at night are confronted by the traffic on opposite direction motor traffic on the one hand and the powerful headlights of trolley cars on the other. The liability of an automobile to get onto the trolley track is great.

Luck Saves Lives. Last night the accident happened. An east-bound five ton Mack truck with a heavy load and a west-bound trolley car came together in a thunderous crash that practically wrecked both vehicles. The trolley was killed or even seriously injured was due to sheer luck and the fact that there was only one passenger on the trolley car. The truck, owned by Michael Darcey of Waterbury who does business under the name of the Darcey Trucking Company, was driven by John Carroll, also of Waterbury. It was on its way to Providence and New Bedford. Included in its load was a motor weighing a ton, a lot of cases of rubber goods and a number of rolls of plush. The trolley car was being operated by Joseph Bell of Manchester and with its one passenger George Allen of Hartford, had left the Center here at 1:05.

According to Carroll's story, told later, the ideal setting for an accident, so often occurring, had repeated itself. On one side of the road were the glaring lights of an approaching automobile, on the other side was the single still more glaring headlight of the trolley car. Between the two the truck driver lost his sense of distances and swerved over into the path of the electric car.

Crushes Trolley. It was close to the point where the Love Lane road enters center street that the two heavy vehicles crashed together. The truck was only partly on the railroad line so that it was the right hand parts of the fronts that came together. That end of the trolley's vestibule was torn off and the steps swept away and the whole right side of the big car was crushed in for a distance of eight seats. Mr. Allen, the passenger, who was sitting in the first seat on the right side, must have jumped up an instant before the crash, for he was catapulted clear out of the car into the vestibule and out through the left hand door. He landed in soft sand and was not really injured. Motorman Bell's position on the left side of the front platform accounts for his escape.

of the cab seat of the truck was equally fortunate to him, since the cab was the first part of the vehicle to come into contact with the trolley car and the entire right end of the seat was bent and twisted out of shape. The impact threw the ton-weight motor off the truck, together with much of the other freight. It was figured out that the heavy motor, into which the trolley had, after sweeping away part of the cab, was responsible for much of the damage to the electric car.

Find Driver Drunk. The wreckage blocked the highway for a few minutes but motorists aided in clearing a way and traffic was shortly resumed. Sergeant John McGinn of the Manchester police repaired to the scene of the accident. He decided that Carroll was not in a proper state to have been driving any sort of motor vehicle and placed him under arrest on a drunk driving charge. This charge was sustained in Police Court this morning when Carroll was fined $175 and costs. He could not pay and was sent to jail.

Ingenuous Yarn. Carroll this morning tried an ingenious scheme for getting out of the legal consequences of his bad driving. He told the court that it was not he at all who was driving the truck, but another man who disappeared immediately after the crash. He himself, he said, was asleep at the time. This tale, an afterthought which overlooked the fact that if he had been on the other end of the truck cab's seat he would certainly have been killed, did not impress the court at all. He was found guilty of both driving while intoxicated and reckless driving.

Officials of the Connecticut company placed the estimate of damage to the trolley car at $2,000, while the automobile men said the truck had been damaged to the extent of $1,500. Regardless of the fact that Carroll was under the influence of liquor there was a revival of talk this morning about the necessity of the erection of guard rails at this dangerous point between the trolley tracks and the highway.

PLAN LECTURE COURSE FOR TEACHERS HERE

New Extension Work Schedule With Yale Instructors May Become Effective Soon.

Arrangements are being made by P. A. Verplanck, superintendent of the Ninth District schools and A. E. Howes, superintendent of the first, eighth districts, for an extension course for teachers. Arrangements have been made, if a sufficient number of teachers sign up for the course, to have members of the Yale faculty come to Manchester, one night each week and discuss various subjects before the group. There has been such a course in the past, but that one was in connection with a Trinity College plan which made necessary the presence of the teachers in Hartford by 4:30 in the afternoon, a condition which presented difficulties. By having the lecturers come to Manchester and the extension class meet at the various school assembly halls, and also by having the sessions at 7:30 o'clock the teachers, it is expected, will be in a more responsive mood and receive more benefit from the course.

LICENSES SUSPENDED. Hartford, Sept. 22.—(AP)—Four New Haven taxicab drivers who were arrested more than a week ago by the New Haven police on a statutory charge, were among the six men whose licenses were suspended by the State Motor Vehicle Department today.

MANY SIGN-BLIND HAILED INTO COURT

First Batch of Ignores of Boulevard Stops Warned; Other Court Cases.

Of the 15 cases before the local town court this morning, all had to do with violations of the motor vehicle laws. Two men, William Lewis of this town and John Carroll of Waterbury went to jail for driving while under the influence of liquor. Carroll figured in the accident at the Twin Hill section early this morning, described elsewhere. William Lewis of Charter Oak street was given a jail sentence of 30 days and fined $100 and costs for driving while under the influence of liquor.

Lewis, who on Friday, escaped serving a jail sentence imposed on him some time ago by the local court, when the Superior Court on his appeal relieved him of the imprisonment part of his sentence, stalled his car at the Center late Saturday afternoon. Sergeant McGinn, when he investigated, found that Lewis was intoxicated and placed him under arrest.

Car Attached. Incidentally Lewis's car, while parked behind the police station after his arrest, was attached by Constable James Duffy, who had been looking for Lewis all day, to see if the latter would not pay up a $14 balance on an execution taken out against him by the Manchester Bottling Works.

When Duffy interviewed him at the police station Lewis said: "Didn't you know this was the place to find me? Sure, the cops have been looking for me ever since I beat them on Friday."

Monday, September 22, 1930. FUNDAMENTALS

There are many indications that the controversial stage of the great prohibitory era is nearing its end; that the final verdict of failure of Volsteadism and the determination to start over again the attempt to beneficially control and guide the liquor traffic and the liquor habit are matters of the relatively near future.

It is high time for the serious of purpose and the liberal of thought to begin to plan for the future so that the future may be far better than the present or the past.

No such planning can have a successful issue if it be no more than a series of quarrels over pet theories. It is therefore extremely important that sociologists and others interested in the physical, mental and moral well being of the nation avoid the temptation to fall in love with this, that or the other theory or system of control.

On our own part, for example, we honestly believe that with all its flagrant crassness, stupidity, arrogance and piggishness, the saloon was less injurious than the speakeasy, and if our choice were limited to the restoration of the rum situation of 1910 or the retention of the crazy demoralization of 1930 prohibition, we should certainly advocate the return to the saloon.

But we are, as a matter of fact, a million miles away from favoring the saloon. We want a better device whereby the citizen may enjoy the legal right to get a drink—and we are willing to agree that some other fellow may have a better plan than any we have ever thought of or heard of.

Whenever government dispensing of liquor has been accompanied by surreptitious selling the reason has lain in the charging of high prices which give the bootlegger opportunity to cut rates. To avoid this is fundamental. To put an end to the poisoning of the population with raw hooch is also fundamental.

A GIFT. Before he became a Sir, Harry Lauder used to say: "Ma wife says to me, 'Arry, this drinkin's getting to be a habit, w'ye.' And I says to her, 'Nay, my lass, it's na a habit—it's a greet!'"

The superstitution that Chairman Roraback of the Republican State Committee attains his political ends partly by intriguing with crooked politicians in the Democratic party has passed beyond the habit stage with the Waterbury Republican and has become a gift.

To be continually and consistently amusing is an endorsement. A great many people try to cultivate the art and fail miserably. It is only now and then that anyone can be consistently and perpetually funny.

the other day and asked it for specifications. The answer of the editor is illuminating. Starting off by explaining that, not being a Democratic newspaper, the Republican was not deep in the councils of the Democratic leaders, it informs its correspondent that the details must be sought from Democratic sources—as naive a confession as you could wish for that the Republican has nothing whatever on which to base its accusations.

MAUDLIN. Promptly adopting the view that the astounding expansion of the Hitler Fascist party in Germany is a new and grisly threat to the peace of the World, the New Haven Journal-Courier is just as quick to blame the situation upon anybody and everybody but the Germans.

IN NEW YORK. New York, Sept. 22.—Well, it's bound to come out sooner or later. So I might as well break the news! Gilbert Swan is in the zoo. The Bronx Park zoo to be exact.

IN NEW YORK (continued). At this moment, I don't know whether to be flattered or annoyed. Perhaps I can best describe my state of mind by recalling the days when fame was supposed to depend on whether or not a five-cent cigar had been named in one's honor.

NEEDS A STATUTE. The Department of Motor Vehicles in this state, or at least its head, labors under the delusion that it has never abandoned its belief in the righteousness of the elimination of prima facies from the state speed law.

There isn't anything we can do about it—at least not much—but it might be just as well to remember that if all the rain that should have fallen in Connecticut in 1929 and so far in 1930, but did not fall, were to come down in one storm and remain where it fell this state would be a lake a foot and a half deep from each of its four corners to each of the others, across the middle and every other way.

NATIONAL STYLE SHOW OPENS FRIDAY EVENING

Elaborate Plans for Local Show Attract State-Wide Interest; Watkins, Keith's, Cheney's Cooperating

"Come one . . . come all" is the national invitation to the Home Furnishing Style Show. It appears in leading magazines and newspapers reaching 22,793,087 families and this same cordial spirit is reflected in the invitation to attend the show here in Manchester. Elaborate plans have been completed and everything is nearing completion in readiness for a gala opening on Friday evening at 7:30. It will be by far the greatest educational event ever attempted in the interests of home furnishing.

Stores will be completely redecorated for the occasion and at their stores will be exhibited the very latest styles in furniture and the very newest ideas and trends in furnishing. Model rooms, ensembling groupings, special exhibits of floor coverings are but high lights of these displays.

Cheney Brothers have enlisted their cooperation. A special exhibit of upholstery fabrics and draperies will be arranged at Cheney Hall by a New York decorator in complete room schemes and will provide many ideas applicable to every home. The opening of this feature of the Style Show is scheduled for 2:30 p. m. on Saturday afternoon.

In addition there will be interesting talks by speakers of national prominence such as Anita Self, personal representative of Helen Kouss director of Good Housekeeping Magazine Studio of Home Furnishing and Decoration. Miss Self will speak at both Keith's and Watkins

Brothers and will prove very interesting to every woman who has read her authoritative articles in Good Housekeeping Magazine. Informal tea and discussion of home furnishing problems will be held at each store on afternoons of days on which she is scheduled to speak. Public is invited.

A gift certificate for ladies will be featured during the Style Show, details of which will be found on the Home Furnishings page in today's Herald.

The formal opening of the exhibit will be held at Watkins Brothers and Keith's stores on Friday evening, September 26, at 7:30 p. m. with Thomas J. Rogers, chairman of the Board of Selectmen and Emil L. G. Hohenthal, Jr., President Manchester Chamber of Commerce officiating. There will be special music at both stores.

This show, lasting eight days, is the first of its kind ever attempted and is being held through the cooperative efforts of furniture merchants and manufacturers all over the country. Here in Manchester it is being heralded with the finest program of any town of equal size in New England. During the Show, the greatest array of furniture fashions ever assembled here will be displayed in a manner that will give you a vivid conception of how they would appear in your own home. In addition, there will be a special program, both entertaining and educational, such as the Cheney Exhibit, lectures, gift certificates for ladies and special music.

The committee in charge of the Manchester Home Furnishings Style Show has worked hard to make it a success . . . something worthwhile to every home lover. You can help to make it so by attending. Harvest Wagons, Kitchen Junkets, Woodpiles and 'Stun Fences', Fade

Not many years ago, one of Manchester's most familiar sights at this season of the year was the harvest wagons returning to the barns with oats, wheat or corn, and sometimes a small "jag" of second crop clover. Yesterday, the first and only harvest cart was seen to pass up Center street towards the Green.

In the old days the "huskin" was treasured by the young of Manchester each autumn. These events have all passed out except a few held each fall in Coventry, Bolton and such communities. Other interests—possibly the movies, "put-put" courses and the lake dances—have crowded them out. There is still plenty of good corn grown locally, but the youth of the land has passed up the once favorite get-together of the forefathers for modern brands of "winoops."

Similarly, the afternoon and evening bridge has ousted the "kitchen junket." For the benefit of those who do not know, these homey affairs were held during the fall of the year for a double purpose. Neighbors gathered at a chosen home and while the object of the meeting was primarily one of neighborly helpfulness, still both old and young fully enjoyed themselves in the big farm kitchen to the tune of liquid music from the old fiddle and ditto from the cider pitcher. Bridge, the radio and the car have knocked all these old time affairs flatter than a flounder.

The amount of cordwood cut in this vicinity is far less than it used to be. Farmers nowadays don't seem to find time to rustle up the old wood pile like of old. No better exercise under the sun than the old woodpile—to which many men in town will still attest. But the dearth of choppers and the changeover to oil and coal have caused the pictures to become overgrown with trees and brush that would cause the hardy old time Connecticut Yankee to blush with shame.

Many such things will soon become merely history. No longer is it considered "stun" by farmers to lay "10 rods or wall" each year.

Fences of wood and wire took the place of the old cobbles and boulder walls surrounding the New England farms, and now they, also, are passing.

CATCH AUTO THIEVES

New York, Sept. 22.—(AP)—Pursued into the Bronx by Motorcycle Patrolman Robert Philip of Yonkers, four youths were captured today when the stolen car in which they were riding ran into another machine at Jerome avenue and 189th street.

Gilford Coletti, 17, who was driving the car suffered internal injuries. He was taken to Fordham hospital under arrest for the White Plains police. His three companions Ralph Novellino, 15, Ciprian Panzo, 15, and Cesario Farillo, 15, were held for White Plains authorities. All gave addresses in the Bronx.

Philip said the driver of the car tried to throw him off his motorcycle when he drew along side by maneuvering the car sideways. The policeman emptied his gun at the car during the chase.

The boys said they hitch-hiked to White Plains and stole the car for the return trip.

The car they hit was driven by Charles Cook, a negro. Both cars were wrecked.

PROBE DOCTOR'S DEATH

Santiago de Chile, Sept. 22.—(AP)—Authorities here today investigated the death of the Spanish physician, Dr. Pagador, member of the League of Nations committee for suppression of the drug traffic. They have not determined whether he was poisoned by traffickers in narcotics who resented his activities or whether he committed suicide.

Lion Loose in Baggage Car Gives Boston a Real Scare

Boston, Sept. 22.—(AP.)—Julius, a 350 pound Nubian lion, was on his way to Manchester, N. H., today safely confined in a heavily barred steel cage—thanks to Curtor Daniel Harkins of the Franklin Park Zoo.

Julius, a 350 pound Nubian lion, broke from his cage in the baggage car of a Buffalo, N. Y.—Boston bound Boston and Maine railroad train last night and roamed at will about the car from North Adams to Boston.

Once at the North station he presented a serious problem to railroad officials.

The conductor in charge of the train wouldn't enter the car; the baggage master and railway expressmen refused to even attempt to unload its contents; and the Boston police looked yearningly towards the zoo for aid.

Harkins came to the rescue with a new cage, coaxed the lion in, and today Julius was on his way to his destination. A dog in a crate in the baggage car was uninjured by the lion. The lion had been purchased by the owner of a Manchester, N. H., filling station.

PERSONAL INSTRUCTION AT EVENING SCHOOLS

Pupils' Special Needs Govern Teaching of Mathematics Under Plan in Vogue.

Among the courses to be offered in the Manchester Public Evening Schools which open in the High school buildings next Monday evening are arithmetic and algebra. The arithmetic course is offered to aid pupils who feel the need of reviewing fundamental processes or more advanced problems of a practical nature. The instructor will give to each pupil individual instruction in whatever type of example he or she may desire. The whole range of arithmetic, as taught in the elementary school from drills in fundamental processes to applications in percentage, will be taught. The purpose of this flexible plan, made possible by the individual method of instruction, is to assist each pupil to meet his everyday requirements.

Algebra will be offered to beginners or to pupils who wish to review the subject either in preparation for college or for other personal reasons. As in arithmetic, the work will be carried on by the individual method. Each pupil will tell the instructor what stage in mathematics he most desires.

There are to be two experienced instructors, one for each subject. During the past few years many young people have profited by supplementing their previous training in mathematics by attending the evening school. A great many, especially those employed in trades, have found the review in arithmetic of practical value.

MRS. TREADWELL FAVORS REPEAL OF DRY LAWS

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 22.—(AP.)—Mrs. George Curtis Treadwell, Republican candidate for Congress from the 28th New York District and wife of a former diplomat, today announced her advocacy of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. The announcement was contained in a new organ of the Albany county organization which also carries the official program of the Republican state convention scheduled for Thursday and Friday.

"I am," Mrs. Treadwell said, "what might be called an enrolled wet, and there I stand."

"Anybody who is not blind can see what prohibition, so-called, has brought to this country and it is a sorry picture indeed. I favor government control of the distribution of alcoholic beverages. Of course I am not for a return of the open saloon, although one is almost led to believe that even the open saloon brought less evil and real temperance than our present day system of speakeasies."

Rust Proved That Copper Costs Little!

The owner of a certain house took a chance on gutters and rain-pipes made of rustable metal... In less than seven years rust had destroyed their usefulness and complete replacement was necessary. But because he replaced with copper, the expense of repairs and replacements due to rust is ended.

Rust proved to this owner, as it has proved to thousands of others, that although the initial cost of copper is somewhat higher than that of rustable metals, its durability makes it far less expensive in the end.

Copper cannot rust. It lasts indefinitely without attention. Time only improves its appearance.

Heart Hungry

By LAURA LOU BROOKMAN
AUTHOR OF "CASH ROMANCE" © 1930 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
CELIA ROGERS, 17 and just out of high school, suddenly learns that the father she has believed to be dead is actually living, and a wealthy New York lawyer. The revelation is made when JOHN MITCHELL, the father, calls at the humble apartment in Baltimore, where Celia lives with her mother, who tells the girl for the first time that Celia is the daughter of a first marriage.

The second husband, BOB ROGERS, has been dead for years. Mrs. Rogers and Celia have had no income but the mother's earnings as a seamstress, though the girl has just secured a position as stenographer.

BARNEY SHIELDS, young newspaper photographer, is in love with Celia and swears they will be married some day. Mitchell proposes to take Celia to New York to make her home, offering to shower her with luxuries. The girl refuses, but later her mother persuades her to accept. Barney Shields calls at the apartment next evening and is told that Celia is married.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER IX
 Barney Shields looked disappointed.

"You mean Celia's away for the evening?" he asked, hoping the answer might be in the negative.

Mrs. Rogers nodded.

"Yes, come in, Barney. I might as well tell you all that's happened. The perplexed young man followed her into the shabby living room. For the first time he wondered if Celia's mother might really be seriously ill. She looked tonight as though she were sick. Mrs. Rogers took a chair and Barney eased down on theavenport.

"Celia's father is here," the woman said abruptly. "She didn't even know he was living. You see I'd—well, I'd put off telling her. He was my first husband, and we were divorced. Celia was such a baby then. She grew up thinking Bob Rogers was her own father."

"Well—that must have been a shock!"

Shields' laugh was forced but he was trying to appear at ease.

"She's—with him now," Margaret Rogers went on explaining. "They're having dinner down town. He's a rich man, Barney. He wants to take her to New York."

"What? Take Celia?"

Again Margaret nodded. "He can give her so much. It wouldn't be fair to keep her here! Barney you understand a little how it is for me, don't you—"

"But—say, Mrs. Rogers—is Celia leaving? Why, that changes everything! When's she going? Does she want to go?"

Mrs. Rogers nodded her head affirmatively.

"I think she does now. Of course she was upset last evening. I didn't realize what a shock it was going to be. Oh, but they'll be here for a day or two. She wouldn't go without saying good-by to you, Barney. You've been such friends—"

The young man seemed completely at a loss for words. He was still staring at the woman. Margaret Rogers was moved by his helplessness.

"I'll always appreciate what you've done for Celia," she told him. "She's had so few good times compared with other girls and she's enjoyed the dinners and evenings you've spent together so much."

Barney had found his voice now. His cheeks flushed darkly.

"Mrs. Rogers, I wasn't going to say anything for a while but I know well, I think a lot of Celia. I know she's awfully young and I'm not nearly good enough for her, but just the same I care more for her than any girl I ever met. I've been hoping she'd find a nice man, and I got a better job and was earning more money I could ask her to be my wife."

He stopped abruptly. In his gray eyes was such appeal that Margaret Rogers stifled the exclamation on her lips.

"Oh, but—you're both so young!" she said gently.

"Celia is 17. I'm 23." The youth paused and then went on aggressively. "Did you say she's really rich?"

"Celia's father is a rich man," Mrs. Rogers agreed. "I believe he means to do a great deal for her. It's not all decided yet. There have been so many things—"

"Going to live in New York, you said?"

Margaret nodded her head. "Yes, for a time. You see she has to grow used to the idea of having these relatives she's never heard of before. I'm glad you told me how you feel about my daughter, Barney. I—well, you know I like you very much. Of course she's a child. I think it's best for both of you to put marriage out of your minds for some time. You have so many years ahead of you!"

Barney smiled sardonically.

"If she goes off to meet a lot of rich folks I guess she'll put me out of her mind all right."

"But my dear young man—"

Shields interrupted her. "I know, Mrs. Rogers. I shouldn't have said that. Only you see this thing's a shock for me too. I'd better be going. I suppose you have lots of things to do. Packing and everything. Tell me, will you that I'll stop tomorrow evening—that is, if she can see me."

"I'll tell her," Mrs. Rogers agreed. "She'll want to see you I'm sure. Good night, Barney."

"Good night."

The sound of the young man's footsteps on the stairs died away and still Margaret Rogers sat where she was, struggling with her thoughts.

Celia had never seen such a room. She was sitting across from John Mitchell at a table for two in the great green and gold hotel dining room and she was trying very hard not to seem self-conscious.

She wore the rose dress which was her "best" and kept her small

Carol's Big Job Now Is to Please Four Women

Wife, Ex-Wife, Mistress and Mother Form Odd Quartet That Adds to Worries of Former Royal Playboy.

By MINOTT SAUNDERS
NEA Service Writer

Paris.—King Carol II of Rumania, modern royalty's most romantic figure, is back on the throne

NOT SO GAY NOW—This recent picture of King Carol, taken since his return to Rumania, shows how the former royal playboy has aged with the problems that beset him.

last June in which Carol returned to Rumania "to wrest the crown from his small son, the King Michael, there have been rumors that all was not harmony in the royal household. Frequent have been the reports that the errant royal wife, Princess Helen, and Carol was having a hard time trying to win the forgiveness of his royal wife, Princess Helen. And the several postponements of their formal coronation as king and queen, now scheduled for next spring, is cited by some as proof of the Four Women.

Anyway, Carol—faced by four women—is having his personal and domestic problems as well as his regal ones.

They are:

PRINCESS HELEN, his royal wife, who divorced him after he abandoned her and their child and fled to a life of indolence with a charming, red-haired mistress, a proud and regal daughter of Greece with no particular preference for titan-tressed rivals, it was hardly expected that she could be consoled very easily, even by the offer of a seat on the throne.

MADAME LUPESCU, the red-head in question. Her friends in Paris greatly doubt that there has been any sentimental break between her and her royal lover. Apparently, Helen suspects as much.

ZIZI LAMBRINO, Carol's first love and boyhood friend. She is ambitious for her son (Carol's son, too) Michael, now 10 years old, and is again attempting to get a kingly settlement for him, both in name and money. It was to her he wrote in a farewell letter: "The charm is broken and I have turned over a new page in my life. So ended their morganatic romance."

QUEEN MARIE, Carol's mother. Dominant, shrewd and powerful, she has been called "the mother-in-law of the Balkans." And she is said to take just as aggressive a part in the domestic affairs of the royal household as she takes in the affairs of state.

Europe expects to see the future, Carol's return has cheered a number of men in Europe who depose a few more or less homeless and out-of-work monarchs in Paris and elsewhere just now.

The boom is centering on the Balkans. King Carol's brother-in-law, George of Greece, who has made his home here since he was deposed, has been greatly encouraged by Carol's success. He has never given up hope of returning to Athens and his followers are said to be working hard in his interests. His wife is Carol's sister, Princess Elizabeth of Rumania.

Cecil B. de Griffith: "Attaby Carol. Now you clasp the heroine to your bosom and finish." Carol of Rumania: "W-w-which heroine?"

This satirical cartoon from the Evening Standard, London, shows how Europe regards the new problems that have beset Rumania's young monarch since his dramatic return to take the throne. The cartoon has been republished widely throughout Europe.

and wives remember. It will be hard for her to forget that her husband deserted her.

Still in the wings, ready to play her part if another show is staged, is Queen Marie. She is a mother-in-law who likes to have her own way—and frequently does.

In addition to the four women, there is the Ex-Boy King Michael, himself. He has gone back to his toys and can write in the cover of his school books: "Michael, king, and his royal mother, still loves him and wants to see him get along. In another 10 or 12 years, Michael will have grown to manhood and will perhaps feel the pulse of ambition. What will happen if his father is still on the throne then is a matter of conjecture.

Despite the uncertainty of the future, Carol's return has cheered a number of men in Europe who depose a few more or less homeless and out-of-work monarchs in Paris and elsewhere just now.

The boom is centering on the Balkans. King Carol's brother-in-law, George of Greece, who has made his home here since he was deposed, has been greatly encouraged by Carol's success. statement that men of the future will go in for beauty merely predicts that history repeats. Beauty parlors flourished 4000 years ago in Babylonia and it was the Princes of Ur and not the women who patronized them. The men wore their hair in as many as a dozen layers of artificial waves, they hennaed their nails and used ointments and tints on their faces and perfumed themselves richly. Our own American Indian men are the ones who use paint and personal adornment more than the women.

Men today are just as vain as women. Men feel size and fear it fully as much as women," Dr. Aisen pointed out. "If women can hold off the years by beautifying, why shouldn't men be fortified by the same psychological benefit? Today a man's bathroom shelf has lilac water, bay rum, talcum powder, shaving cream, often perfumed soap. I have known men who used beauty packs and liked them. I have known men who wore toupees, hennaed their mustaches, waxed them or curled them. If men begin to feel worn and old, they are likely to notice what a change in a woman's brings a good facial and make-up spritz. She carries herself more buoyantly. She has zest. She finds herself thinking differently. Why shouldn't men benefit the same way?"

Smart School Girl Fashion

Delightful in Its Simplicity
By ANNETTE

The flaring circular skirt is no doubt one of the most popular fashions with the growing girl. It gives a sophisticated touch to the dress. The curved seaming of this model is particularly young. It just pretends a hip yoke with the long-waisted bodice belted at the natural waistline. The collarless neckline is interesting feature and best suited for classroom. Tab cuffs trim the long sleeves with slight fullness below the elbow.

It is a popular crepe woolen in dark green mixture with plain green trim.

Style No. 913 is designed for girls of 8, 10, 12 and 14 years.

Of course little daughter will want a dress for more formal occasions. This same pattern may be used. Note the miniature view with cape collar and short sleeves. Dark brown velvet or silk crepe is lovely for its development. It will be completely disguised from the school dress with its new neckline.

Wool jersey, covert cloth, lightweight tweed and the heavier weight cottons are ideal selections for service.

Size 8 requires 2 1/2 yards 39-inch with 3/4 yard 55-inch contrasting.

HEALTH

TIRED? MAYBE NOISE IS TEARING DOWN YOUR NERVOUS SYSTEM

SURVEY SHOWS IT TAKES 19 PER CENT MORE ENERGY TO WORK AMID CLATTER & BANG

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Those who have lived for a brief period in the primeval forests, or in any other place of comparative quietude find their ears terribly assailed with the thunder of the noise of the city when they return.

The motor traffic, the sirens of the police and fire trucks, the pneumatic hammer, the rattle of the elevated train, the mere footsteps of hundreds of thousands of people make noise the usual rather than the unusual sensation.

It is quite true that persons who have lived for a long time adjacent to railroad tracks or street car lines become accustomed to the regular passing of vehicles and apparently notice them not at all.

It has been recognized for some time, however, that regardless of whether the noise is coming from the street or from the factory, the sensation impinges on the nervous system and must in time have an effect.

In noisy surroundings it is necessary to concentrate more deeply in order to hear what is going on. Young children and infants are repeatedly disturbed. It has been shown again and again that the sudden slamming of a door or firing of a pistol may throw a child of extremely nervous tendency into a convulsion.

British authorities assert that children who sleep in the midst of uproar will awaken listless and tired, and that if it continues persistently, the growth of the child will suffer.

A great deal of modern improvement in railway construction is planned to lessen vibration and noise. These conditions can be controlled, whereas it is not possible to control always the barking of a dog, the crying of an infant, the practicing of an ambitious cornet or piano player, or ten radios left loose at one time in ten apartments.

Experiments have been conducted in an attempt to determine the results of constant impinging of sound on the auditory nerve. The investigators assert that noise raises the blood pressure and that a degree of noise insufficient to awaken a sleeping person will nevertheless cause one's muscles to contract and relax main tense for as long as 30 minutes before they relax. In various occupations it has been shown that hardness of hearing, dizziness and headache may develop in those who earn their livelihood by boiler making or cotton weaving. It is said that it requires 19 per cent more energy to perform a duty in noisy surroundings than to perform the same duty in a quiet environment.

In a recent consideration of the subject, the British Medical Journal asserts that the abolition of noisy motor horns, destruction of worn-out machines, the unvarying use of pneumatic tires, and the substitution of electric welding for riveting would abolish 75 per cent of street noises.

In some communities legislation has already been introduced to take care of these controllable situations. In some communities it is customary to post near hospitals and public buildings signs indicating that

HEAD HUNTERS BUSY

Baguio, P. I.—(AP)—Head-hunting, as rare as it is now in the Philippines, still occurs occasionally. Recently the head of a three-year-old Igorot girl, her hands and the hands of her baby sister were taken as trophies by some wandering head-hunters who entered the isolated mountain home of the children in the absence of their parents.

The authorities believe that it was done by two or three young men of one of the mountain tribes who were inflamed by old tales to emulate their ancestors.

When the Americans first came to the islands there was organized head-hunting in which all the warriors of a tribe went out on an expedition. That is a thing of the past now, but heads are still taken now and then for revenge and love.

TWO BURNED TO DEATH

Spirit Lake, Idaho, Sept. 22—(AP)—A sheet of flame sprayed upon them by the explosion of a plumber's furnace caused the death yesterday of two eight-year-old playmates, Alvin Call and Francis Dolan.

The boys were standing in a kitchen doorway watching the plumber at work when the accident took place. Their clothing ablaze, the playmates ran for their homes.

The boys were taken to a hospital where they died several hours later.

EAT SLOWER

Harrisburg, Pa.—If you'd live long, don't be one of those "seven-minute eaters," is the advice of Dr. T. B. Appel, secretary of public health of the state. "The seven-minute eater represents that ever-growing class of noon-day restaurant and lunch-counter patrons who have permitted the hurry-burly of life to impose upon their digestive apparatus," he says. "And it is fairly safe to say that the persistent 'bolter' rarely reaches extreme old age."

BEAUTY PARLORS FOR MEN!

They're Forecast for Future by Noted Chemist, Who Says Stronger Sex Needs Psychological Boon of Glorified Complexions and Shaped Eyebrows.

A coming day when men will use cosmetics as freely as women is forecast by Dr. Maurice Aisen, famous chemist, shown in photo above.

By JULIA BLANCHARD
New York, Sept. 23.—Beauty parlors for Big Business Men and other he-menbers of the male species are only a matter of time.

Men really want to beautify. Just look at them in a barber shop! But they hesitate to take active steps to beautify because of public opinion is against it and they themselves are naturally conservative and timid about going counter to this. However, if they were given proper encouragement tomorrow, they would soon blossom out in new complexions, shaped eyebrows and other enhancing improvements.

That is about where the male angle of the beauty racket stands today, in the opinion of a noted scientist who knows his creams, rouges and lipsticks perfectly.—Dr. Maurice Aisen, chief chemist of Pinaud, Inc. Dr. Aisen also knows his human beings, having been born in Rumania, educated in Paris and Vienna and having run his own research laboratories in this country many years before taking his present position.

"Men cannot look at women today and not realize what cosmetics and beauty treatments have done for thousands of drab, formerly uninteresting women," Dr. Aisen pointed out. "Beautifying has turned over the best suit and hat in many a middle-aged woman's mind and started her youthfully on her way when she had thought she was in the discard. Men need this jolt, too.

If anybody had a mind to rush men into beautifying, Dr. Aisen facetiously suggested the following scheme:

"Get Professor Dewey to write a treatise on the value in character that would accrue if men braved public opinion and went in for beauty. Get former President Coolidge to point out the value of more masculine beauty in politics. Get Col. Lindbergh to give a short radio talk on the way your spirits would fly upward if you took care of your looks. Get Herbert Hoover to be pictured having a facial. In no time propaganda for masculine beautifying would spread like wild fire."

Men Beautified in Past.

HOW TO SHOP

PLEASING COLOR EFFECTS FOUND IN EARTHENWARE

By William H. Baldwin

There always has been a feeling in buying dinnerware that it must be china, through which light will penetrate, and not earthenware. Good china certainly is desirable, but it is also expensive. The new hard-fired china was more interesting than earthenware, but in the past few years the art of potting has been so improved that it is now impossible to get more pleasing colors into earthenware. Moreover, fine coloring effects can be put on earthenware through improvement in decalcomania. Colors cannot be easily transferred to hard-fired china because the heat is so intense that it would burn the color. In other words, when people say, "This isn't china," don't be upset; you may have in earthenware a fine product pleasing in shape and attractive in color.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) All of a sudden came a shot. The Travel Man said, "Like as not that is the signal for the big parade. 'Twill soon begin. The fine canoes that look so grand will coast right by the judge's stand. Now, if we want to enter in this stunt, let's join right in. They'll have some prizes for the best and our canoe is nicely dressed with pretty, brilliant lights. Perhaps we have a chance to win. I'll leave it to you tots today and do exactly as you say. Please hurry now. Make up your minds." This made the Tynmites grin. "You bet!" cried Scouty. "We are game. If we don't win 'twill be a shame, but anyway we'll have the fun of paddling along. We'll paddle neat as neat can be and wave to people that we see." Then Clowzy cried, "I'll paddle 'cause I'm feeling good and strong." It wasn't long till the parade was on its way. The Tynmites made a very good impression. Folks applauded and sang and loud. Then, when the stunt was over, they took first prize and all cried, "Hurray!" The first prize was a great big cake. It made them all feel proud. That night they ate the cake and gee, it was as sweet as it could be. When they turned in to bed they dreamed of sweet things by the score. Next morning Mister Travel Man into the Tynmites' bedroom ran. Cried he, "We're going to Lucerne. And they soon were on their way. It didn't take them long to ride to Lucerne. There wee Coppy cried, "Oh, my, we're on another lake. And, look! A great big tower. Now, the first of all, let's walk around and see the sights that can be found. The town is not so big and we can do it in an hour." (The Tynmites play on the beach at Lucerne in the next story.)
