CHRISTMAS LIGHTS PUT UP TO STORES

Chamber of Commerce Refuses to Sanction Decorations at Town Expense.

Should Manchester have Christmas street lighting again this year, it will be a merchants' and not a community project. This was decided by the 80 members of the Chamber of Commerce present at the all membership meeting at the Masonic Temple last night, by voting negatively on the motion that the Chamber as a whole should back the project. The motion carried the clause, that if voted upon negatively, the lighting program would be left to the merchants.

The vote followed a spirited discussion on the question brought about by the statement of E. J. Holl that there was a question in his mind whether conditions were such as to warrant the expense of the lighting, when it would be much better to supply tables with food and pay rents for those in straightened circumstances this Christmas. Mr. Holl said that the lighting was purely a merchants proposition.

The discussion opened with R. K. Anderson announcing his opinion that the lighting was a community project and H. B. House advancing the motion that the Chamber back it as such. After Mr. Holl's remarks it was brought out that the lighting would cost at least $1,400, to be raised by popular subscription. Harold Burr said that the lighting was carried on in a competitive basis by various towns and that it would be well for the Chamber to write to other Chambers asking discontinuance of the idea.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read by Miss Edythe Schultz, clerk. President E. L. G. Hohenthal welcomed the new members and a vote of thanks was given to the Salvation Army Band and the music committee for the committee, asked the co-operation of the membership in answering communication relative to dinners, etc., and spoke of the 30th annual meeting to be held November 17. A vote was taken on whether or not luncheon should be combined with the meeting and the vote was unanimously in favor of continuing the practice.

Scott Simon outlined the North End Y. M. C. A. and library building project to the members, tracing it from the creation of the Board of Trustees of the Community Club under the will of William Childs in 1924, to the forming of the Y. M. C. A. incorporation. He displayed the tentative building plans and said that it was the hope of the committee that the project would be completed by this time next year. A complete description of these plans has been carried previously in The Herald.

The meeting adjourned at 9 o'clock.

CIRCUS ACROBAT MAKES PERMANENT HOME HERE

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ferguson Purchase Johnson Place on Gardner Street Today.

Manchester acquired a new family this week when Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ferguson of the Centennial Apartments closed a deal whereby they became owners of the Johnson property on Gardner street. Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson have come to this town direct from New York City where they lived for the past 11 years as managers of the Clinton Apartments, torn down last spring with several other buildings to make room for the new Empire State building.

During their many years' residence on this famous site they enjoyed the acquaintance of the greatest stars of the theatrical world. While their removal to this town is the culmination of a long cherished desire to own a little place where they can raise chickens, pets, and commune with nature after a decade spent on one of the busiest spots on earth, still they both admit of missing the theatrical district, in which there were 14 of the best theaters in America.

As told in the Saturday special story of Sept. 6, Mr. Ferguson was for forty years a circus and stage acrobat and played practically every city in the United States, Canada and Mexico. Manchester will welcome to its list of citizens a couple whose broad experiences and associations qualifies them for a prominent place in local civic enterprises.

THE OBSERVER'S COLUMN

Facts and Near Facts About Things Here and There.

Way back almost before the writer could stand up and see the type on a stone in the composing room, The Herald featured a column every now and then under the heading appearing above; it was before the fire in the old Herald building on Hilliard street and the files have been burned since then so it's impossible to give the present generation any clipped samples of what the column was like. It was rambling sort of stuff as the sub-heading to this column indicates—never coming to any particular style—never committing the writer to any set policy—but always carrying interesting tidbits on things Manchester people were thinking about. It isn't our hope to be able to make this column a routine matter. We have always believed that if you set yourself to a task in this writing game, so many hours, or days in a week, your writing becomes forced and unnatural. Therefore, we won't be every now and then. It will appear only when the spirit speaks—and Heaven alone knows that our spirit isn't very prolific.

It has always struck us most forcibly at the lack of interest the average citizen takes in the way his township is governed. On almost any street corner, at almost any card table, wherever groups are wont to gather, you will always find someone who can criticize the way the Town Fathers are handling the prudential affairs of the Town of Manchester. Nine times out of ten the fellow who is doing the criticizing has never attended a Selectmen's meeting. And no one is really qualified to speak in criticism of the work of Selectmen unless he has seen the conditions under which the local governing board must work.

We are willing to wager that no one man in Manchester other than our estimable Town Treasurer has attended more meetings of the Board of Selectmen than we have. And, if you add in this column his original writing of this column has attended, the family very nearly holds the record. We believe, therefore, that we are qualified to talk about Selectmen's meetings. Month in and month out the Selectmen hold public meetings. They are advertised and they are publicized in all the papers circulating in Manchester, but the only time a voter ever appears before the Honorable Board is when he wants a favor, when he wants to kick about something or when he gets a notice through the mail that may cost him money. No one ever appears at those meetings just out of pure interest in the management of the town. The board, of course, holds its meetings to a certain extent in executive session. But, executive matters are quickly transacted and the rest of the discussions would be highly interesting to any taxpayer. All this has been suggested to the writer's mind by the candidacy in the last primary of a woman for Selectman. It is certainly no sin, but the writer knows that in all his years as a reporter of Selectmen's doings the woman candidate in the last primary has never attended a meeting of the Board of Selectmen. She is unaware of the great amount of tedious material that is discussed by the board. If she had been forced to attend these meetings she would never have sought the nomination. For the meager $100 a Selectman gets, the long hours and the abuse that obtain to the job make it far less than worthwhile. It is an education, no doubt, to serve on the board but the knowledge gained is scarcely worth the labor. The writer has heard members of the Board in open meeting. He has heard rabid citizens denounce members of the board as tyrants, grafters and almost every other name that attests of Manchester, any group, league, club or committee, want a woman representative on the Board of Selectmen, let some of them plan to attend a few meetings of the board before wishing the job on any first hand what a trying office that of Selectman really is. It is our firm belief that—for the present, at least—a woman has no more place on the Board of Selectmen than she has on a jury. Time will change our political set-up in Manchester, and it may eventually change the set-up of womankind, and then, if we still breathe, we may say "O.K." when a woman seeks the job of Town Father. But not yet.

The several times a week we drive to Hartford we get to wondering about the advisability of these corn borer inspections. We wonder how much, really has been accomplished by these examinations of flowers and vegetables. We wonder if it hasn't made a lot of nice summer jobs for some fellows who ought to have been put on their own in the first place on the government. We heard an expert gardener say the other day that the U. S. Department of Agriculture could have inspected every farm in the infected area, condemned the crops found infested, paid the farmer for the condemnation and have done the job in a few weeks for about one third the cost of the present inspection system. Of course, that "wouldn't have relieved the unemployment situation, someone will argue, but we never have believed that the right way to solve unemployment is to create a lot of snap jobs. That's just the proper way to create bad times. Be that as it may, we've been forced, here in Manchester, at least, to put up with a rather exasperating example of bureaucracy and it may have served to make us all better disciples of democracy—who knows?

We wish that we could let all our readers in at some private reading some time of the letters we get that we can't publish. Some of them come to this newspaper unsigned and not intended for publication, others, signed fictitiously and intended for publication if the phony name can get by the editor. Most of those not signed honestly are vituperative and intended no doubt to hurt the feelings either of the editorial writer or the owner of the paper. Nine times out of ten neither of these men ever see the bitter, insulting letters that come to the office, but when they do, they simply laugh. Just this morning a letter came to the Herald with a signature for which we could not find a corresponding name in the town directory.

We were forced to toss the writings in the waste-paper basket because we have a ruling, designed for our own protection against libelous matter, that we will not print letters unless we know the party who is the author. This morning's letter was particularly ridiculous. The Herald's editorial writer was branded as unloyal because he did not support the 18th amendment. He was classed as a criminal. However, the next sentence branded a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, maintaining that the buyer of intoxicants could not be held liable as can the seller, as an insane delusion. "If this be not treason!" well form your own opinion of the writer of the letter, whether he signed his right name or not.

TALL CEDARS SEEKING 'SAPS' FOR FIELD DAY

Local Branch of Masonic Order After Initiates for Big Ceremony Here on October 18.

Nutmeg Forest, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, will hold a Field Day and Ceremonial here on October 18, the local branch of the Masonic order being host on that day to hundreds of Cedars from the several Forests in Connecticut and some of those from more distant points. The local Forest is making a drive for "Saplings" to initiate at the ceremonial. A committee has been appointed to get initiates to go through the degrees on that day and a big class is expected. Stuart J. Wasley was named a committee chairman to get the following to assist him in the round-up: Eskil Buckland, Paul Carter, Carl Anderson, James Baker, Gustave Ulrich, Walter Hoffman, Harold W. Puter, and Harry Roth. Wasley's committee is out to break records in the size of the class presented on October 18 and has chosen as a campaign slogan "Each Chap Get a Sap."

HILLIARDS ANNOUNCE 10 P. C. WAGES CUT

Notice of Decrease in Pay Posted at Mills Here Yesterday Afternoon.

Notice was posted at the plant of the E. E. Hilliard Company in Hilliardville yesterday afternoon, stating that next Monday all employees of the company would work under a new schedule of wages, or a cut of 10 per cent in the present wage. The E. E. Hilliard Company is the oldest wooleen manufacturing company in the United States in continuous operation, having made blankets for the soldiers in the War of 1812.

Statistics reveal the curious fact that the mortality rate is lower in times of depression. Proving of course that a man may be down but never out.

FENTON OUT OF RACE

Williamatic, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Frank P. Fenton, town clerk and treasurer of Windham for the last 31 years today had withdrawn as a candidate for re-election. He was nominated by acclamation in the Democratic caucus recently. Fenton's withdrawal followed criticism of his management of the office by State Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett who cited discrepancies in the last annual report of the town's finances. An audit is now in progress.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 23.

"personally dry," is a political wet inasmuch as he believes firmly in the rights of the state and not the federal government to regulate the liquor traffic.

This, of course, is absolutely true. But we sometimes wonder whether sturdy anti-prohibition newspapers like the Courant do not help a little in befuddling the public's understanding of people like Mr. Rogers by referring to them as "personal drys." The word "dry" has come to occupy the position of meaning an advocate of federal prohibition. To ninety-nine in a hundred it means and can mean nothing else. And to describe a man or woman as a "personal dry" leaves a good many such people guessing as to precisely what is meant; they might even surmise that it meant that the person in question was privately convinced that prohibition was an excellent thing while not advocating its support as a political party principle.

We have wondered sometimes if it wouldn't be a good idea to avoid the use of the "personal dry" description and refer to such a person as a "non-drinking wet" or a "wet teetotaler." In our own person we know we don't quite relish being called personally "dry," because we are completely "wet" in political conviction though we leave the drinking to those who want to do it.

Possibly it would help to clarify the situation in Connecticut if the Republican candidate for governor in this state were generally understood to be a non-drinking wet standing logically on a wet platform—which is the exact situation—rather than a "personal dry" accepting a wet political declaration, which has a sort of contradictory sound when there is no contradiction whatever.

THE WINDHAM MESS
 Announcement yesterday by Frank P. Fenton, town clerk and treasurer of the town of Windham, which includes the city of Willimantic, of his withdrawal as a candidate for re-election, brings to a climax a most unfortunate situation disclosed when State Tax Commissioner Blodgett brought out the fact that the financial report of the town had been badly juggled.

The case of Mr. Fenton, who had served the town of Windham as its treasurer for a great many years, like the cases of a number of similar officials in Connecticut towns in recent years, brings out with great force the result of the lack of proper auditing at stated intervals of the accounts of the towns of this state. Many of them never have an audit made by disinterested, certified public accountants. Yet just such audits ought, in fairness both to the people of the community and to the custodian of its moneys, to be had by every town in the state every few years.

The system of audits made by citizen auditors elected perfunctorily and peremptorily doing their work as a mere matter of form may be a sort of protection, but it is a very slight one.

Here in Manchester the town's books are audited every little while by a highly reputable auditing concern—an operation insisted on by the town treasurer himself. Never more than a few years are allowed to elapse between such expert inspection of the accounts.

This is as it should be. If the town of Windham had followed the same course it would not now be facing the muddle presented by the discovery of a number of hundred thousands of dollars discrepancy between the actual debt of the town and that showing in its town report. Every town in the state should adopt some sort of a periodic audit system.

VALUE RECEIVED
 Dean Cross, intellectual as he is, could find so little to criticize in the Republican party's administration of Connecticut's government that in his Bridgeport address he was driven to the recourse of slamming that party's pay-as-you-go policy and of accusing the administration of being responsible for "the suffering caused by delays in humanitarian construction" which he thinks has resulted from the policy.

If the Democratic campaign is to be predicated on the theory that the better policy for Connecticut would be to sell a lot of bonds and build unlimited state hospitals and other institutions, then the Republican party is sitting about as pretty as could be desired.

There is always one answer ready for such arguments, which is that it costs a million dollars to build a million dollar building, paying cash, while it costs two million dollars or more to build a million dollar building if you pay for it with bonds.

If the people of Connecticut are anxious to cut down the 100 per cent of value received which they now get for their institutional construction appropriations, and get instead 50 per cent—if they want to pay one dollar in interest for every dollar they pay for bricks—they can easily bring that state of affairs to pass by electing an administration and a Legislature committed to the building-with-bonds idea.

Connecticut is one of the very few states or communities in America which gets a hundred cents work of value for every dollar it spends on its institutions. If to get half as much value is a more desirable thing a good way to help attain that end would seem to be to make Dean Cross governor.

SWEET CHARITY
 We have always been lost in admiration of the Connecticut practice of banning the publication of the names of juvenile offenders.

A fifteen-year-old Stratford boy, too young to have a license, so drove an automobile that it collided with a parked car, just escaped going into a creek, then forced another car off the road. After which the sweet child fled from the scene. He was pursued, the number of the car's registration obtained, its ownership traced and the identity of the driver obtained from the owner. Then he was actually arrested.

Here is a hoodlum breaking the law three times in less than so many minutes, all wrong in his attitude toward society; yet when he escapes paying any serious penalty, as he almost certainly will, the public of his community is not permitted to know who he is, that it may reasonably guard itself against his proclivities. The next time he pulls a similar stunt he will be, so far as anybody but the police of his own town know, just a little first-offender and so entitled to all kindly consideration.

IN NEW YORK
 New York, Sept. 23.—I see right now that I'm not going to get along with my namesake, Gilbert Swan, the Guyana river agitator.

If you missed by some chance, the first chapter—Gilbert was captured in the wilds of South America by Sam Love, reporter-explorer, and I was made the darn thing's godfather whether I liked it or not. There, I had hoped, the matter would end; that Gilbert would be locked up in the zoo with the rest of the birds and, now and then, I would drop out to see how he was coming along.

It did seem to me, however, that if I were to have an agrette as a ward, I should know more about the manners and customs of the bird and so picked up all the volumes I could find on the subject.

Browsing over these at home, I was in the midst of learning how to catch an agrette in the first place, when the phone rang.

This was slightly annoying, for I was in the process of improving my mind, which happens rarely. I had learned, for instance, that one goes about with a can of red paint. That when an agrette one cares to possess is spotted, it is cornered and red paint is daubed upon its wings.

Naturally, the agrette turns tail and beats it for home on the slightest provocation. But when it gets home none of its relatives can recognize it. It is different from the rest. They all look upon it with scorn and turn it from the clan. It becomes pariah.

All this has a very human sound. It projects the stories of most of the people you know into a jungle background. People who are different; who return after an absence and are found to have little in kind with their friends and relatives are considered "out of the picture." If they are too different, they are shunned, and even tossed into jail because of the radical difference of opinion.

Very well—the agrette, finding it no longer has a home, goes gladly back to its original captors. Perhaps it wonders what has happened, but it really wants some place to go.

At any rate, I had just reached the point where tears were in my eyes and I was going to send Gilbert back to his gang when, as I say, the phone rang.

"Say, when are you going to send some shrimps around for the bird?" came the voice.

"What—what's this... what do you mean shrimps? As far as the bird is concerned, my only interest is that it was named after me." I stammered.

"Well, do you want your namesake to die from starvation?"

"Is this the zoo?" I inquired, which was a foolish question because the zoo always takes excellent care of its charges.

"No, the zoo won't call for him for a couple of days. This is Sam Love's residence and that darn thing is keeping us broke buying shrimps."

"How's that?"

"I say that Gilbert Swan is eating $3-worth of fresh shrimps a day."

"Well, that's a darn sight more than I'm doing. I never ate $3 worth of shrimps in my life and you can tell Gilbert for me that he'll learn to eat Charles' hash before he's through—and like it."

"You don't know this bird. He not only has your name, but your extravagant habits. We've tried him on fish and sardines and whatnot, but he won't touch anything except fresh shrimps and then he gorges. And shrimps are expensive."

"Don't I know it." I came back, fingering in my cash pocket and finding only enough for coffee and sinners if I set my namesake up to dinner. "Is this going to keep up long?"

"Now, he'll be out in the zoo pretty soon. Oh, say—by the way—the zoo may decide to change his name."

"Why?"

"Because we've found out that he's a she."

P. S.—Male or female, Gilbert Swan it is going to remain.

DOCTORS AT VATICAN
 Vatican City, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Pope Pius XI today received in audience 150 doctors who had come to Rome to attend the congress on medical history. He gave them an address on Leonardo Davinci's studies of human anatomy, surprising his hearers with profound knowledge of the technique of their profession. He also received 30 K. C. from the United States.

ACID CASE CONTINUED
 Ansonia, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Fredrick Soudier, 16, of this city, charged with throwing acid in the face of his brother, Nicholas, 22, during a quarrel at their home on Maple street on the night of August 23, was given a continuance in City Court today until Oct. 15. Soudier is out on bail of $1,000. Nicholas is still a patient at the hospital and it is said that he may be permanently blinded from the effects of the acid.

What the Well-Dressed Candidate Will Wear!

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—Four things, more or less inter-related, have been contributing lately to an unusual amount of long-range speculation about the presidential election of 1932:

1. The vastly increased importance of prohibition as a political issue.
2. The business depression and Mr. Hoover's continued failure to become a popular president with his party.
3. The strong declaration of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York in favor of turning prohibition back to the states.
4. The rise of Dwight Morrow and the increasing assurance that he will be elected to the Senate from New Jersey.

Such speculation becomes actual excitement to many persons as they attempt to forecast the 1932 campaign on the basis of what already has been happening in the nomination and election campaigns of 1930.

The two parties in the various states have been fixing up platforms and nominating candidates for this year's elections, with all kinds of interesting results. In 1932 they will meet in national convention to select a presidential candidate and to devise a campaign platform. Right now it appears as if there might be heavy fighting at both conventions.

Both Factions Strong

Unless the agitation over prohibition suddenly subsides it seems inconceivable that both candidates and both platforms will straddle the issue. And still more inconceivable that the whole set-up will be dry. Whatever seems to give it the best chance to win and there are strong wet and dry factions in both parties to be considered.

To consider candidates first, nothing has happened to dispel the general belief that Governor Roosevelt is well out in front for the Democratic nomination. It's baldly simple: There isn't any strong man to oppose him any more than there was to block Smith in 1928. And if the Democrats were willing to nominate a wet and a Catholic in 1928 it is extremely unlikely that they will be unwilling to nominate a wet of Roosevelt's strength in 1932, especially when militant wet sentiment seems to be growing both in the party and among the voters.

As to the Republican candidate, of course Hoover will have the inside track, unless discontent within the party should reach a critical stage. Morrow certainly is now the outstanding personality when one thinks of an alternative to Hoover.

Hoover is Versatile

But if the Republicans decide that it's best to set up as a dry party or if they feel they need a candidate who can straddle the issue more or less gracefully, they can't very well nominate Morrow. If they gather in convention with the assurance that their man must oppose Roosevelt, they will have to decide whether it is safest to nominate a dry, a wet or a straddler to oppose him.

Hoover, of course, might run as any of those things. He has never committed himself on the prohibition theory to the extent that he couldn't say four years of experience had convinced him that the "mole experiment" wouldn't work. But if you eliminate Hoover and then decide that Morrow is too wet for a Republican nomination you're likely to find yourself thinking of Calvin Coolidge.

Sometimes a nominee is permitted to hold and express personal views which the party is unwilling to express in its platform, so you can do your own guessing about platforms. They might follow the prevailing style of 1930, which finds frightened dry officeholders favoring state referenda and promising to act accordingly to surrender power to the people, but they hate to handle hot potatoes. So there's something of a chance that by 1932 both parties will be hollering for some sort of a referendum scheme in order to save themselves from all kinds of dissension and trouble.

"It must be borne in mind that from the point of view of the burden of the problem in the acute drought area will show very much more vividly over the winter than at the present time."
 —President Hoover.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
 (Albuminuria)

Question: W. A. G. writes: "I am sixty-three years old and troubled with albumen in the urine. Would cultured buttermilk or sweet milk be good for me and how much should I use? I used to be a heavy meat and egg eater, and a coffee and beer drinker, but I have not touched these things for over five years."

Answer: The buttermilk and milk diets are often good for kidney trouble, but you should precede these diets by taking a short fast on some kind of fruit, then follow the fast with a regular milk regimen, taking the buttermilk or sweet milk every hour during the day. If you will take eight ounces every hour you will be able to use three quarts or more during the day. This will keep up your strength and you can continue doing any ordinary kind of work. Have your urine tested frequently, or learn how to make the tests yourself, so you can watch to see if the albumen returns. If it does so on this diet, go back on your fast again until it disappears, and then return to the milk or buttermilk diet. When you are cured and want to go back onto a regular diet do not be afraid of using meat, providing you use it once a day and only one-fourth of a pound at a time, being sure to use plenty of leafy green vegetables and salads at the same meal, and no starches of any kind.

(Acidosis a Cause of Rash)

Question: Mrs. B. writes: "I am troubled with a rash under my arms occasionally. My skin feels all prickly as if my blood were overheated. Is this a form of eczema?"

Answer: I cannot tell you whether you are suffering from eczema or psoriasis, or simply from a rash caused by hyperacidity of the stomach. In the case of any of these troubles, you will find that the cause lies in using the wrong food combinations which produces acidosis of the body.

THE MOST NOURISHING FRUIT

In past years the fruit of the avocado has been so scarce that the price was high and the fruit was not obtainable in many markets. The demand has always exceeded the supply. This year, however, it is estimated that the crop will exceed any previous year by eight or ten times.

The avocado crop begins about October 1st and lasts all winter of the few which bears fruit during the winter months. Fortunately, this seems to be a wise provision of Nature, for it is precisely at this season that the avocado is of the greatest value because it contains so much fat that it is valuable for supplying heating energy to the body.

Thin people often find that by adding one or two avocados to their meals they can gain a moderate amount of fat without overtaxing their digestive organs. This is because the avocado contains from 10 to 30 per cent fat, so combined with other elements that it is very easily digested. From this you can see that the avocado contains more fat and oil than any other fruit except the olive, which can scarcely be called a fresh fruit because it must be processed before being eaten.

The flavor of the avocado (sometimes called the alligator pear or calavo) is unlike any other fruit. It is neither sweet nor sour. The flavor is creamy and nut-like. The fruit is best when the flesh resembles butter in consistency. If you buy the fruit and find that the flesh is hard, do not cut into it, but store it aside a few days and serve when the flesh is soft enough to be indented with a moderate pressing of the finger.

Besides the large amount of vegetable oil, the avocado contains a considerable amount of protein and a larger amount of mineral matter than any other fruit.

The University of Southern California has performed some experiments to determine the vitamin content of the calavo or avocado, and from this it was established that the vitamin A content is approximately 500 units per pound as compared with apples, 250; orange juice, 350; and lemon juice, 50. The vitamin B content is likewise superior, being approximately 450 units per pound as compared with apples, peaches, oranges, yeast and lemon juice which contain approximately 150 units each. The vitamin B content of one avocado has been found to be equivalent to six cakes of compressed yeast. Both vitamins A and B are necessary for proper growth and development and these experiments would indicate that the avocado makes a very valuable food for growing children as well as adults.

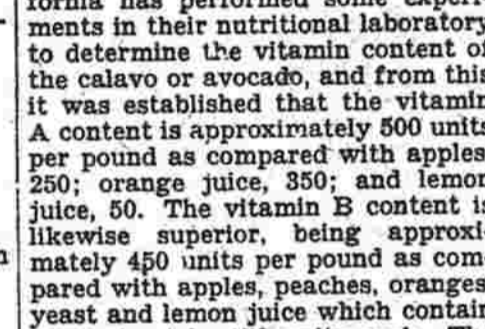

The avocado is also estimated to have about four times the mineral content of other fresh fruits, and is preponderantly alkaline forming.

The different varieties of avocados vary greatly in size. Some weigh as much as four pounds each, while the smaller ones will weigh from three to four ounces. The skin is usually either green or purple. The skins of the Mexican varieties are generally thin, while the skins of the Guatemalan varieties are thick. There are about 180 varieties of this fruit being cultivated at the present time.

Even though the avocado may be slightly higher in price than other fruits because of the delicate handling which it requires, the price need not be seriously considered when you realize that it has been estimated that a pound of avocado equals in caloric value six eggs, a pound of bread, or five pounds of oranges.

 IT PAYS TO OBSERVE IT

AGAIN by proclamation, the President of the United States and the Governors of the states declare the importance and significance of Fire Prevention Week. This year it is the week of October 5-11. Communities which have earnestly observed Fire Prevention Week have profited by substantial reductions in the number and amount of fire losses occurring within that week and the period immediately following it.

Year-round Program in 700 Cities

Under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, more than 700 cities are competing in continuous programs of fire prevention and protection. In these cities Fire Prevention Week is merely the occasion for a fresh yearly start.

Civic organizations, realizing that preventing the destruction of existing industrial plants is just as important as the winning of new enterprises for the community, are giving the fire prevention movement a constantly increasing measure of support.

ADVERTISE IN THE HERALD—IT PAYS

Sister Aimee and Ma

by DON ROBERTS

The strange story of a religious venture that became a two-million dollar business

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of four stories on the remarkable rise of Aimee Semple McPherson and her mother and co-evangelist, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, forming a most absorbing narrative-biography of two unusually interesting women.

BY DON ROBERTS
NEA Service Writer
Los Angeles, Sept. 23—Less than two years after she landed here in a broken-down auto and began her campaign to save souls, Aimee Semple McPherson—evangelist, extraordinary and business woman of luxury—had built her $1,500,000 Angelus Temple and was boss of a religious institution with cash and property assets valued at nearly $2,000,000.

Here are evangelist's star "go getters" and the $1,500,000 temple they built in Los Angeles, starting with nothing but an old circus tent and a lot of zeal and ambition. At right is Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson and, at left, her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy. Angelus Temple, which seats more than 5000 and also operates Radio Station KFSG is also shown.

The great temple, seating more than 5000 persons, had (and still has) 50-odd departments and hundreds of salaried employees. No "big business" institution was carried out on a grand scale, from a book publishing department to a radio station KFSG, which hurled the tenets of Aimee's "Four Square Gospel" to the world from its tall steel towers above the temple's domed roof.

Running the show was "Sister Aimee," with the aid of "Ma" Kennedy, her mother and first assistant. It was an admirable combination—Sister designed, planned and visited, Ma did the hiring and firing and saw to the details.

Thousands attended Sister's services, and at times there were huge overflow meetings, conducted by assistant ministers. There were hundreds of conversions, baptisms, "healing" of the sick that appeared to border on the miraculous, charity and relief work on a big scale, and all sorts of side-lines from three church bands that furnished music for the 21 services held each week to dreams of building a chain of "Soul-Saving Stations" across the United States.

Apparently indefatigable, Sister Aimee preached at most of the services with a dynamic, driving flow of words and catchy figures of speech. Then, as now, her congregation laughed aloud at a particularly humorous anecdote or applauded loudly some emphatic statement or picturesque challenge to the devil.

ly "shaking with wonder and joy and then the expression of perplexity on her face quickly flashes into a joyous smile) I realized that it was the Four Square Gospel! The first explosion came from a still which apparently was used for alcohol cutting.

at least, it was given out the settlement was half. It was something in the neighborhood of $800,000.

The property involved consisted of real estate in and about Los Angeles, acquired from the salaries they were paid as heads of the Four Square Gospel Lighthouses, Inc.

Out-voted two to one, Ma retired to the comparative obscurity of the northwest. Aimee, her dynamic energy keeping pace with her tremendous zeal, began to expand her work by establishing Four Square Gospel Lighthouses in other cities and advanced to even greater heights.

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Tuesday, September 23. "Mind the Light" is the title of the Mr. and Mrs. program to be broadcast by WABC and associated stations at 10:30, daylight saving time, Tuesday night. Although Joe has spent a young fortune in improvements on the house that his friend and business associate, Mr. Martin, gave him rent-free for the summer, the impending arrival of the boss from Europe has inspired Joe to the further efforts. He decided that the best thing to do is paint the house, or at least touch it up a bit, inevitably, the dissembling artist of his nature. She has planned a row of parties in town over the week-end, and neither wins rain, nor painting a house can stay her from the complete redecoration. The reaction of the boss is as the result of the fact that good old Nels is left to do the task unaided but he is sure that he is perfectly fit to leave Nels with nothing but instructions and a lot of paint. He is in a hurry to get them mixed.

HOW TO PLAY. Today's BACKGAMMON

Backgammon, Combining Luck and Skill, Is Played All Over the World

EDITOR'S NOTE: The beginner is introduced to backgammon in the following article, the first of a series which Elizabeth Clark Boyden has written exclusively for The Herald and NEA Service. She is the author of "The New Backgammon" and co-author of "Contract Bridge for 1930" and "Contract Bridge for 1931."

By ELIZABETH CLARK BOYDEN. The amazing revival, in America, of the old game of backgammon is one of the most remarkable developments in the world's remarkable history. The history of backgammon is most interesting. Of very ancient origin, it was probably the first game of dice and checkers. Some form of dice and checkers has been played in practically every country in the world. The game played in America today is the English game, which was probably brought to this country by the early Roman armies. The game is called "Tables" in the days of Chaucer, and the name backgammon is probably derived from either the Saxon or the Welsh.

Backgammon was very popular in America until about 50 years ago. It was distinctly a home game, and gradually disappeared from public notice when the whist family turned the attention of the world to playing cards. Backgammon has since been revived in many homes, and some clubs have maintained a backgammon room during all these years. Nevertheless an astonishing number of people have no recollection whatever of the game and its history. It is a new game of cards. Others have a vague idea that it is in some way associated with checkers.

A National Game Now. About a year ago this game was suddenly revived in a small way at some of our fashionable resorts. From this small beginning it has spread rapidly and is now being played in all parts of the country. It is a game of chance and skill. It is a game of chance and skill. It is a game of chance and skill.

Many features have contributed to the success of backgammon. Perhaps the most important of these is the fact that, while the chance element of the game is a distinct element of luck, there is enough opportunity for skill in the play that a player will not always be defeated by the poorer player who gets the better throw. Backgammon is essentially a game for two people, and, as there are comparatively few really good players, it is a game of chance and skill. It is a game of chance and skill. It is a game of chance and skill.

Queer Twists In Day's News

New York—Buster Keaton, baseball nut, home from Europe, intends to commute between Philadelphia and St. Louis shortly. TELEPHONE EMPLOYEES MEET IN CONFERENCE

One Hundred Representatives in Hartford Gathering Today—Hear Thrift Talk. Hartford, September 23.—About one hundred telephone workers from the exchange in the Hartford district met in conference here today to consider various matters relating to the business but, particularly, a talk by Mr. Rolfe, characterized as "information" manager, on "Thrift Activities" and ways and means of broadening this worth while movement among telephone workers. Mr. Rolfe spoke of the inception of the thrift movement among telephone people and of its growth. He outlined in some detail the plan by which employees of the telephone company may purchase stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph company by paying a small sum weekly for each share subscribed for. He spoke of other phases of the thrift movement in the business as they relate to the employees' welfare and announced that a thrift board, to be composed of workers in all sections of the state, will soon be formed to give further impetus to the saving habit among telephone people. Mr. Rolfe characterized the thrift as wise spending, rather than practicing a great degree of self denial in order to acquire a savings fund, and stressed the fact that the company offers employees exceptional advantages in the efforts to save from their earnings. The plant, traffic and commercial district boards met here in the morning and all joined for luncheon at the City Club. The departmental boards reconvened, following Mr. Rolfe's talk, for further discussion of business related to their respective departments.

Merchants' Night At State Theater Every Wednesday Night

Merchants Gift Night Again Tomorrow at Local Theater—Film Feature Is Dorothy Mackaill in "The Office Wife"—Unusually Attractive Program

HERE'S THE STORY OF "OFFICE WIFE"

Lawrence Fellows, president of a large and successful publishing firm, is unaware of the fact that his secretary, a middle aged woman, is in love with him. She not only handles his business affairs, but watches over his health and personal matters.

One night when Mr. Fellows and his secretary are working late in the office, Fellows reveals that he is soon to be married. Miss Andrews is so overcome with the news, that she faints. The next day she sends in her resignation.

The position is given to Anne Murdock, a very attractive stenographer in the general office. She devises all possible schemes to attract her employer, but he is too busy to notice her. However, as time goes on, she rapidly assumes the place of an office wife, taking care of his work and his health. By now Fellows is already married, but Anne falls in love with him in spite of Linda and the fact that she herself is engaged to Ted O'Hara, a young reporter.

Fellows becomes more and more dependent upon Anne. When he goes to the seashore for a few days with his wife, he takes Anne along with them. Ted comes to take Anne back. As they drive away, Fellows sees him kiss her. The next day Anne discovers that Fellows is looking for a new secretary. Anne is hurt until she discovers that Fellows thought she was going to be married. Anne denies that she is to be married—and is kept on the job.

While on his vacation in the south, Fellows sends for Anne again. While they work day and night, his wife, Linda, begins a flirtation with a young man by the name of Jameson.

Fellows realizes now that he is in love with Anne, and Linda also realized it.

The night before Anne's wedding she remains at the office late to work, for the next day Fellows is to go on a trip. Midnight approaches but neither wants to leave the other. Finally Fellows tells Anne that he is going on the trip alone and that his wife is going to Paris for a divorce.

Furious because Anne is working so late, Ted telephones Anne's sister, Katharine. Ted mentions too that he has heard that Linda is going to get a divorce. Katharine, in turn, calls Fellows and tells him, in confidence, that her sister has broken her engagement because she is in love with a certain person whose name she cannot reveal. Understanding at last, Fellows turns to Anne and takes her in his arms.

Berets make smart sport hats. But for those who do not care for berets there is an attractive stocking hat that can be pulled on to the head and arranged in any shape. It is usually made of a knitted material. In "The Office Wife," the picture starting at the State tomorrow. The costume of mine that I liked best was a white shantung sport dress with a maize angora beret. I wore maize shoes and carried a maize cloth bag.

A white knitted sport dress with a navy throw around the neck and a pattern of navy cloth around the waist was one of the most charming costumes Natalie Moorhead wore in "The Office Wife," now at the State theater. She wore a navy stocking hat which was most attractive.

Now is the time for success writers to draw a moral from the yacht races. You know—luck never gets you anywhere, Enterprise does.

STRANGE TRIANGLE IN "OFFICE WIFE"

Will you ever forget Lewis Stone in "The Wonder of Women?" or "The Trial of Mary Dugan" or "Madame X"? Do you remember him in "The Patriot"?

Now you will see him in a role different from any of these—in a picture whose name you will always think of when you think of Stone. The picture is "The Office Wife," a Warner Bros. and Vitaphone production to be shown at the State theater.

There is an intriguing story that deals with a triangle of which we have all heard, the business man, his secretary, and his wife, handled from a different angle. It is the story of the jealous secretary, instead of the jealous wife.

Lloyd Bacon, director of "The Singing Fool," and "Moby Dick," made "The Office Wife." Dorothy Mackaill plays the lead opposite Lewis Stone.

For the fall, have your gowns in brown and black. They are the two leading colors. Next come navy and green. No high shades will be worn. Even the late summer colors are brown and green. In "The Office Wife," a Warner Bros. and Vitaphone picture at the State tomorrow. The players seemed to wear more browns than any other color.

Clothes are longer again for the autumn. Evening gowns will be down to the ground, and street clothes will be about twelve inches from the ground. In "The Office Wife," a Warner Bros. picture starting at the State theater Wednesday, long gowns—especially for evening wear—are quite in evidence.

STEAMER GOES ASHORE, ALL OF CREW RESCUED

Peterhead, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The City of Osaka, a 6,814-ton steamer, Tyne to New York, was ashore seven miles from here today in a badly crippled condition after pounding on the rocks for several hours.

The weather cleared this forenoon and the sea abated so that the officers and several members of the crew decided to remain on the vessel, which has three holds full of water and considerable water in her engine rooms.

Those on the City of Osaka spent an anxious night, with two life-boats and a destroyer standing by in the heavy weather and a Coast Guard force on a cliff above with a rocket apparatus ready to signal for help if the lifeboats proved unable to take off the 80 persons aboard, all crew men.

NEW WAR MANEUVERS

Villeneuve-L'Archeveque, France, Sept. 23.—(AP)—A new technique of the swift massing of highly motorized armies along a lengthy front is being tested in France in maneuvers with 30,000 men that started at midnight. It was the third in a series of maneuvers recently held. Problems of movement and motor supply also are being studied.

A division normally is allotted a two and a half mile front and at the end of the war a division held only half that much. The new practice is to cover a sixteen mile front with mobile forces with motorized equipment and supplies.

At the same time the French are trying out new automobile equipment intended for the roughest sort of service over all kinds of ground.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CELIA ROGERS, 17 and just out of high school, suddenly learns that the father she has believed to be dead is actually living and a wealthy New York lawyer. The revelation is made when JOHN MITCHELL, the father, calls at the humble apartment in Baltimore where Celia lives with her mother, MARGARET ROGERS. Margaret tells the girl for the first time that Celia is the daughter of a first marriage. The second husband, BOB ROGERS, has been dead for years. Mrs. Rogers and Celia have had no income but the mother's earnings as a seamstress, though the girl has just secured a position as stenographer.

BARNEY SHIELDS, young newspaper photographer, is in love with Celia and swears they will be married some day. Mitchell proposes to take Celia to New York to make her home, offering to shower her with luxuries. The girl refuses, but Mrs. Rogers, knowing that she herself is faced with serious illness and loss of work, persuades Celia to accept. The girl goes to dinner with her father. He gives her a jeweled wrist watch. Later he tells her he has a request to make.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER X

Celia waited for Mitchell to continue. He looked so serious she was frightened. Her two hands met and clasped tightly beneath the edge of the table.

"Oh, Mitchell was clearing his voice."

"I wonder if you could call me—father?"

"Why, of course." Somehow the words hard in Celia's throat. It was hard for her to get them out. Mitchell was looking at her with an odd, strained expression in his eyes. Pride and hurt, both were struggling for the upper hand. The lump in Celia's throat became larger. Finally she conquered it.

"I'll try to remember—father," she said.

The word had never really held meaning to Celia before. Other girls of course had fathers. But Margaret Rogers had been both father and mother to her child. Margaret was everything. Again Celia had the feeling that John Mitchell was an interloper. It was going to be difficult, pretending otherwise.

"It's time to go now, isn't it?" she asked in a low voice.

"Can't be late yet. What time is it?"

He glanced meaningfully at her wrist bearing the new watch bracelet. Celia's cheeks flushed.

"Oh—I forgot! You see I'm not used to wearing a watch." She studied the time.

"Nearly 8:30," she announced.

"Mother will be expecting me."

They rose and left the dining room. As soon as they had their wraps a uniform attendant came in prepared by Mitchell's ceremonious manner as he helped her into the vehicle.

Neither of them had much to say as they rode to the apartment.

EXCESS ACID

SICKENS—GET RID OF IT!

Sour stomach, indigestion, gas. These are signs which usually mean just one thing; excess acid. The stomach nerves have been overstimulated. Too much acid is making food sour in the stomach and intestines.

The way to correct excess acid is with an alkali. The best form of alkali for this purpose is Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Just take a spoonful of this harmless, almost tasteless preparation in a glass of water. It works instantly. The stomach becomes sweet. You are happy again in five minutes! Your heartburn, gas, headache, biliousness or indigestion has vanished!

Know Phillips Milk of Magnesia and you're through with crude methods forever. It is the pleasant way—the efficient way to alkalize the system; to relieve the effects of over-acidity.

Phillips Milk of Magnesia has been standard with doctors for over 50 years. 25c and 50c bottles at all drug stores. Be sure you get the genuine.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered trade mark of the Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.—Adv.

"DANDERINE"

Dissolves Crust of Dandruff

Soothes Scalp; Gives New Life and Lustre to Hair!

There's no use allowing unsightly dandruff to steal the life from your hair; make it dull, brittle and scraggy; turn it gray or start it to falling out. "Danderine" will dissolve the worst crust of dandruff in a hurry. It will bring the glow of health back to your scalp. Its consistent use will encourage the hair to grow long, thick, more youthful-looking.

You will be delighted by the effects of "Danderine's" first application. Excess oil is removed from the hair; its natural color is brought out marvelously; it sparkles with new life and lustre.

Five million bottles of Danderine used a year shows its popularity! And you won't wonder at this once you learn its easy use and see how quickly it gives health to the scalp and vigor and youthful appearance to the hair!

Every hairing and toilet counter in the land has Danderine—35c bottles.—Adv.

WOMAN OPERATES ONE OF EAST'S LARGEST AMUSEMENT PARKS

Finds Her Man-Size Job is a Gamble With Weather, With Popular Tastes, and With Bogy That Women Aren't Good Managers.

It's "just a gigantic piece of housekeeping," says Mrs. Beulah Hassard, N. Y., above, of her work as operator of a big amusement park at Albany, N. Y.

By JULIA BLANSHARD

Albany, N. Y.—Twenty years or so ago this month, a chubby little girl with fair curls and big blue eyes got put to bed one evening without any supper because she had broken open her china pig bank and extracted money to ride on the forbidden ferris wheel at the street fair in her home town, Clinton, Mo.

Today, that little girl grown up could ride for nothing all day long on any number of contrivances built to amuse folks, if she wanted. For she is Mrs. Beulah Hassard, N. Y., president of the MidCity Amusement Park, the only woman in the United States, actively running a big, first class amusement park.

I found her on her knees in the zoo, personally administering medicine to a sick monkey who had eaten too many peanuts. A hermit trim cream and green bungalow, tucked back of the 10 acres of park and decorated in the park's colors, she had a baby fawn which required its bottle of warm milk every day. She was holding forth in her dance hall. A swimming carnival, completed last month, was the talk of this part of the state. Four hundred moth-eaten and children's frocks were in the garden where a peaceful little brook gurgles under a bridge. A men's organization was scheduled to have a clam bake that evening over in the grove.

Housekeeping on Big Scale

Comotion, crowds, dozens of decisions to be made. It was all in a day's work to Mrs. Sica.

"I have often wondered why more women haven't gone into the business of running amusement parks," she calmly stated.

"It is just a gigantic piece of housekeeping and women are supposed to come by that ably naturally, aren't they?"

"Very often," she replied. "I am a woman, I have decided. You see men and women who come here in an amusement-mood are just children wanting to have a good time. It is not a business. It consists of having an instinct for knowing what will amuse."

Mrs. Sica inherited her park from her husband. She had never given it or any other part of business a thought until his sudden death just before the 1925 season started. She knew nothing whatsoever about the business, for her husband was an oil magnate, running the park as his avocation.

"The first year would have discouraged any woman made of less determination than Mrs. Sica. Some concessionaires quit, refusing to work under a woman. Other unpleasants, such as the city, but she gritted her teeth and kept on, running the park as it was, with no new additions! By midsummer she was checking patronage on every ride, chute, slide and so on. By fall she had added one or two more and what she should replace with new attractions.

"The hardest lesson I learned that summer was that a woman in any kind of business has to be hard, has to be forceful, but she has got to go to the trouble of covering it up with feminine wiles and smiles so that she doesn't seem so. Moreover, I learned that a woman can't lose her temper the way a man is entitled to. Folks call it 'nerves!'"

In the last four summers, Mrs. Sica has practically made over the park, has had it all painted and each year has added one or two new attractions, such as her miniature golf course this season and a huge open air swimming pool which 45,000 people have used on several hot Sundays. For the beach season, she had three barges of sand hauled up the Hudson from Far Rockaway, regulation, clean, white sea sand!

Amusements Are Varied

Today her park boasts one of every kind of amusement that such places as Coney Island have, from roller coaster to diving horse. A midge in clown costume runs the scales, to the delight of the children. A zoo, most of which was given Mrs. Sica by ex-Governor Smith, is one of the chief attractions, and is free, as is entrance to her park. All the attendants are in uniform, and are encouraged to come plain, not

Hints On How To Keep Well by World Famed Authority

BY DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

As great cities are constructed for millions and millions of people, two sanitary problems become more and more prominent: (1) The provision of safe and sufficient food; (2) The disposal of sewage.

In rural districts it is possible to pluck vegetables from the garden, to milk the cow practically at the doorstep, to take fruit from the trees, and even to slaughter meat for home consumption.

The supply of milk for a great city must come from many miles distant and it may be necessary in the course of the attempt to supply this milk to have the concentrated product the hand of many men.

Obviously, the more the material is handled the more likelihood there is of contamination with bacteria or with human excretions. In the tropics, or in the heat of the temperate zone, the growth of the germs in food is encouraged and, in the absence of refrigeration, almost any food substance may become a hazard.

These are some of the conditions which lead to the development of milk modified in various forms for greater ease in transportation and greater safety in handling.

Among the products widely used are evaporated milk. Evaporated milk is prepared by mixing the milk from many cows and heating it until about 60 per cent of the water is removed.

By stirring and by constantly agitating the concentrated product the fat globules are broken up and later distributed throughout the milk. The concentrated evaporated mixture is then put in cans, sealed, and heated to a temperature of about 240 degrees.

As a result, Evaporated milk seems to keep almost indefinitely when put up in sealed cans. When the evaporated product is mixed with an equal amount of water, a milk becomes available which is a little more concentrated than the fresh mixed milk from a number of cows, but it is to all intents and purposes otherwise about the same. It has been urged that evaporated milk is more digestible than fresh milk because of the finely divided form of the fat globules.

Studies of the various forms of evaporated milk indicate that it is about the same as boiled milk. Such as the milk contains appear to be completely destroyed, but the other vitamins are not affected.

Since milk is not in any sense of the word a very rich source of vitamin C, this should not interfere with the use of this milk product. It has long been customary to add orange juice, tomato juice, and various other fruit juices to the diet of even the young infant in order to provide sufficient amounts of vitamin C.

From the point of view of germ safety, evaporated milk is an exceedingly good product. Many authorities are convinced that it is the most suitable form of milk available for feeding most infants.

For many years this product has been used in infant feeding. It should not be confused with certain condensed milks to which large amounts of sugar have been added and which therefore does not represent the equivalent of cow's milk.

It is found that infants fed on sweetened condensed milk may be crease rapidly in weight, but their flesh is flabby and their condition in general not as good as that of infants fed with proper formulas made with milk as a basis.

THIS AND THAT IN FEMININE LORE

There are new modes in furniture; take some little thing with you when you call on a sick person. The feeling of being remembered will cheer the invalid. As one old country woman once expressed it, "Never visit the sick with the hands hanging down."

Madame Schuman-Heink, that grand old lady of the opera and concert stage, is planning to do her bit to bring song into its own in this country by personally teaching 40 American girls whose voices she will personally select. The course will require four years and she plans to teach her pupils in groups. She will begin in October to visit the country by personally teaching 40 American girls whose voices she will personally select.

This is the season of color in clothing and house-furnishings and the new chinas and earthenwares also feature the season's flair for color. Various pieces harmonize but do not match. English earthenwares are high on the list. All colors are used, with perhaps green as the favorite. Hunting scenes, ships, flower designs that resemble all-over embroidery, with clusters of flowers to pick up the covers of sugar, pitcher or teapot. Water glasses may be had in black, amber, rose, sea green and royal blue. As each course is removed before the next appears you can allow your fancy for colored tableware to run its limit.

There was a time when rugs and carpets were just a background for the rest of the furniture. Now they are laying themselves out to attract attention of their own. In bedrooms especially the new modernistic rugs are very effective made of rayon texture, in black and white and all the wanted colors. Chenille and the same colors are very decorative, while for the nursery there are lovely wash rugs with boats. Mother Goose characters or little animals strutting across their surfaces.

Washington Salmon Salad
1 1/2 cups flaked cold salmon, 1/2 cup finely cut celery, 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper, 1 small onion, minced, 2 medium-sized tomatoes, salt and pepper to taste, mayonnaise, lettuce.

Mix together the salmon, celery, pepper, and onion, add mayonnaise to moisten, and season to taste with salt and pepper. Peel the tomatoes and either cut them in dice and mix them with the salad or slice them and use as a garnish. Arrange on a bed of lettuce-leaves and garnish with a little extra mayonnaise.

Connecticut Boy is Rewarded

WHEN children are weak and run-down, they are easy prey to colds or children's diseases. So it is never wise to neglect those weakening and depressing symptoms, such as loss of breath, coated tongue, fretfulness, feverishness, biliousness, lack of energy and appetite, etc.

Nine times out of ten these things point to one trouble—constipation. Mothers all around you are coming right up in public to tell how their children are being relieved of this trouble by California Fig Syrup.

Mrs. J. Therkelsen, 4001 Main Street, Hartford, Conn., says: "I gave Junior California Fig Syrup to keep his bowels open during a cold. It helped so much I knew what give him when I saw by his head and coated tongue that he was constipated."

He has been more than rewarded for taking Fig Syrup. He never complains of any symptoms of constipation now.

The genuine, endorsed by doctors for 50 years, always bears the word California. All druggists.

MORE EXPENSIVE MEN'S PAJAMAS ARE LUSTROUS

By William H. Baldwin

Men's pajamas come in three styles—the middy, which slips over the head; the coat style, which has no collar, and the English collar. The majority of pajamas are made of broadcloth. Other materials used are flannel, which contains some wool, if not all wool; flannellette, which is all cotton; muslin, which is less expensive than broadcloth; and silk.

In broadcloth, particularly, better pajamas can be distinguished by the nice 'uster of the material, and the fineness of the weave. The cheaper broadcloths have little or no luster, and streaks are apt to show in the weave, indicating the material has been weighted with starch.

Generally, pajamas which have milky white buttons should be low in price. The better grades of pajamas all have ocean pearl buttons, and in good stores even the cheaper products have ocean pearl buttons.

YOUR CHILDREN

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
© 1930 BY NEA SERVICE INC

There is nothing more pitiful than to hear a child beg his mother not to be cross.

She may not be cross at him, or his sister, or his father. It may just be something in general—the groceries being late, or the electric sweeper gone out of commission.

When the mother of the house is upset about anything, it is always discouraging to the other members. Some way or other it throws a cloud over everything.

Very often Buddy doesn't hear her say a word. She merely looks angry. Instantly his reaction is unhappy. "Don't be cross, mother," he pleads.

Housekeeping is one of the hardest jobs in the world. It consists chiefly of untidy affairs, overcoming obstacles and making wrong matters right.

The only job that I know of that is still harder is to do all this peacefully.

Anyone can be amiable in beatific surroundings. If every mother had all the help she needed, all the money she wanted, no illness to dread, no worries about bills and being late, how much more smiling and easy it would be to smile and be loved!

That is the way it should be for mothers—but it isn't. Few of them escape without some or all of that disheartening list of worries. A mother is in a different position from her husband, although he in his turn at the office may have as many things to worry about as she has.

But her responsibilities involve him more directly, and when evening comes she is still there on the job.

So it isn't easy when her nerves and her endurance begin to go, to be placid and neat. Complaint follows summer. It comes gradually, for worry is cumulative. We can't forget past worries in present ones, and women keep looking back. Once complaint starts it keeps on growing.

The day comes when nothing is right. She thinks she is the unluckiest, most unappreciated person on earth.

Cubs To Have Practically A New Football Team

Hornsby to Manage Cubs Next Season

Rajah Will Succeed McCarty as Pilot of Wrigley's Clan; Decision Made Last Fall.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The Tribune in a copyrighted story today said William Wrigley, Jr., owner of the Chicago Cubs had announced Rogers Hornsby would be appointed to manage the Cubs for the season of 1931 and possibly longer.

"There has been no misunderstanding with Joe McCarty, the present manager," Wrigley was quoted as saying. "We simply decided to make a change and as proof of my friendship and respect for Joe I will do all I can to assist him in getting another major league position."

Hornsby regarded as one of the greatest infielders ever developed has been out of the game most of the year with injuries. The decision to make a change in managers, the Tribune quoted Wrigley as saying, was reached when the Cubs failed last year to win the world series from the Athletics.

NEW YORK SCRIBES ALL BACK KAPLAN

Battalino is Confident He'll Upset Dope; Record Crowd and Gate Expected.

Everything is ready for what promises to be the biggest ring event in the history of the state—the ten-round battle at the Hurley Stadium Wednesday night between Ed Battalino, world's featherweight champion, and Louis (Kid) Kaplan, who held that title a few years back.

The gallery is expected to be in excess of 15,000 and the gate is estimated at at least $50,000. Promoter Ed Hurley has arranged for extra police details, for 150 ushers and for all of the other provisions for handling a great crowd in orderly fashion. Governor Trumbull and other state officials will be among those at ringside.

Both Battalino and Kaplan are of fine shape for the fight, with the only speculation as to whether Kaplan will be himself at the weight, 131 1/4 pounds. He declares the aim and that he will be as strong and fast and hit as well as ever.

They moved a little nearer the clinching of the pennant yesterday with a 15 to 7 win over the Philadelphia Phillies. The Cards have five more games on their slate and need only win only three of them even if the Cubs sweep their final four-game series with the Cincinnati Reds. The Robins, idle yesterday, are four games back of the Cards and must win all of their remaining five games if the Cards lose all of their games to win.

Eleven Men Played On Oldtime Nines

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third chapter in a series of six articles describing the origin and development of baseball, which is 100 years old.

By GEORGE C. MORELAND. Written Especially for NEA Service. (Copyright, 1930 NEA Service, Inc.) As the game of "town ball" grew in popularity in the years immediately following 1840, the young business and professional men of the city began to take it up.

Indeed, it got its very name at that meeting. One of the members of the Doubleday-Cartwright-Wadsworth group was a Dr. Adams. He had been somewhat opposed to all the changes, and when the meeting ended he made this remark:

One of Wadsworth's pet ideas was to lengthen the distance between third base and fourth base, so as to cut down slightly on the speed. At his suggestion they extended the baseline, dropping fourth base 15 to 20 feet below the old position. The field, by this action, lost its square form, which had distinguished it from its earliest beginnings; and while the result made it look like a modern diamond base ball, this was really the first big step toward bringing the present field into existence.

High Grade Material To Replace 16 Gaps Left In 1929 Squad

Season's Prospects Bright Despite Losses—New Coach and Manager—Six Regulars Return—Open Season Sunday.

Many new faces will appear in the cast of the town champion Cubs when they make their initial appearance of the 1930 grid season next Sunday afternoon at Mt. Nebo against the Ranger A. C. of Naugatuck.

Only six varsity men will be back from last year's squad, three linemen and three backs. Sixteen have departed. Two utility linemen from the 1929 outfit will also be on hand.

Manchester football lovers who journey over to Mt. Nebo Sunday will hardly recognize the home team as the Cubs. Practically all of the stars have deserted. This is not because of any dissension but on the contrary for various reasons. It is true, nevertheless, that many of last year's players became thoroughly disgusted with the reckless manner in which their profits were spent.

If the football players could hold the line as easily as a traffic cop, there would be smaller scores.

A red light is a "stop" signal. So was a red nose—but men never paid any attention to it.

"Motorists Seek for Beauty," says a headline. So that's what they are seeking when they are driving all over the road as we are trying to pass them.

To take a pessimist's view of it, roads are being made wider just to make it harder for the pedestrian to cross them.

Did we mention before about the little girl who's so coo-coo she thinks a blunderbuss is a 1917 Ford?

She—Oh, what's that funny thing on the top of your radiator?
He—Why, that's a Motometer. When that red runs up into the white circle you have to stop the car.

She—Oh, Charlie, look! I think it's up there now.

Here's another epitaph: Bill Muffet said his car couldn't skid. This monument shows that it could and did.

Mrs. Know-It-All—It's scandalous to think they are going to charge us so much for towing three or four miles, George.

George—Never mind, dear. I'm getting back at them. I've got the brakes on.

SO CONSIDERATE

"I suppose you'll want me to give up my job, Henry, when we are married?"

"How much do you earn?"

"Twenty-five dollars a week."

"That's not a job. It's a career. I wouldn't want to interfere with your career, darling."—Nottingham, England, Express.

JUST CAN'T SLEEP

First Tramp: Bill, you ain't yerself, mate. I're restless.
Second Tramp: I know, Ted, it's insomnia. I keep walkin' up every few days.—Passing Show.

ONCE UPON A TIME

When he was premier of Japan, Reijiro Wakatsuki's career was threatened because he allowed his picture to be taken, while practicing the hallowed sport of archery, clad only in a common kimono.

THE TINYMITES

The Tinies found that Lucerne was a pretty place because the mountains and the water made it very much that way. The town was in a valley that most anyone could understand that it was just the proper spot for folks to come and play.

(The Tinymites take a tally ride in the next story.)

ABOUT TOWN

Ernest Kjelson heads the committee of arrangements for the public bridge which the Masonic Social Club will conduct Friday evening at 8 o'clock at the Masonic Temple. Three prizes will be awarded the men and women players and refreshments and a social time will follow the games.

A marriage license was issued yesterday in Hartford to John Joseph of 260 Sisson avenue in that city and Mrs. Justine Kazlauskas, of 67 Union street, widow of Ignatz Kazlauskas.

St. Margaret's Circle, Daughters of Isabella will meet for business this evening at 7:30 in the K. of C. clubrooms and follow with a bridge and whist party.

A daughter was born Saturday night at Mrs. Howe's Maternity Home on Wadsworth street to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bassett of 578 Lydall street.

The Board of Selectmen will hold a special meeting in the Municipal building at 7:30 this evening.

Miss Mary F. Reardon, daughter of Mrs. John C. Reardon of 20 Roosevelt street, and the late Mr. Reardon, left today for New Rochelle, N. Y., to enter the College of New Rochelle. Miss Reardon was graduated from the Manchester High school with the class of 1929.

Rev. A. B. Cary of Beacon, N. Y., will begin the first of a series of revival meetings this evening at 7:30 at the Church of the Nazarene. Evangelist Cary was at the local church last year and returns by urgent invitation of the congregation. The meetings will continue every evening this week at the same hour, except Saturday. The campaign will be from September 23 to Sunday evening, October 12. A cordial invitation is extended to the townspeople to attend these meetings when convenient.

It was necessary for the 'cross town bus to lose one trip this morning. Trouble developed with the horn which would not sound. Passengers on the trip leaving the north end at 10:15 were held at the Center until repairs were made. It was expected that repairs would be completed in a minute or two, but after fifteen minutes of waiting the trip to the south end was lost and passengers were transferred to the Hartford car.

Ruth Cohn of the Smart Shop has just returned from New York where she has been purchasing new fall stock.—Adv't.

Alfred A. Gressel has received the contract to install a Petro, Model D, oil burner in the Selwitz block. This burner is of a new type that burns low grade fuel oil.

Midweek services will be resumed at the South Methodist church Wednesday evening of next week, October 1. For the five meetings in that month Rev. R. A. Colpitts has prepared special informational and inspirational studies with stereopticon pictures, in keeping with "Missionary Month" which is to be generally celebrated by the Methodist denomination.

Reports of apple trees in blossom, chestnut trees being found in different sections of the state and other unusual discoveries in plant life has been further added to by the finding of a plum tree in blossom at the home of Patrick Griffin, section foreman of the New Haven railroad in Manchester, on Hilliard street. The peculiar thing about this tree being in blossom is that the blossoms only appear on one side of the tree, the opposite side being as free from blossom as would be expected at this time of the year.

In the curtailment of employees of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, which has previously resulted in the removal of one baggageman at the railroad station, has brought about a change in the men employed in the freight station. Frank Bilson, an employee of the road with a twenty-eight years record has been transferred from the freight station and today started as flagman at the Apol or Oakland crossing.

Mrs. C. R. Foley of 15 Proctor Road opened her home last evening for a large personal shower in honor of her sister-in-law, Miss Nellie Foley, who is to be married on Monday to Edwin Laking. More than 35 were present, including some of Miss Foley's classmates at High school in the 1924 class. The home was decorated in orchid and yellow and the gifts were placed under a large umbrella. Miss Helen McVeigh assisted Mrs. Foley in serving a buffet lunch and with the various games.

Memorial Lodge Knights of Pythias will meet in the Balch and Brown hall tomorrow evening. After the routine business a past chancellor's association will be formed in the district which includes Manchester, Thompsonville, East Hartford, Rockville and Stafford Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. James Serpiss of 129 Summer street have as their guest for a few days, Andrew Turkington of Philadelphia, formerly of Lurgan, Ireland. Mr. Turkington will be glad to see any of his old friends who wish to call.

EMERGENCY DOCTORS

Dr. Howard Boyd and Dr. LeVerne Holmes will be on duty to answer emergency calls tomorrow afternoon.

The Hi-Y club will meet this evening at 7:30 in the intermediate department room of Center Church House.

Miss Alice Thomas of Walnut street who is to be married early in October to James McCavanaugh, was honored with another gift shower at her home last evening. About 40 of her friends were present and brought the bride-to-be many beautiful gifts of linen, cut glass, silver and china. The Thomas home was tastefully decorated with paper streamers and flowers in a color combination of orchid and yellow. A pleasant evening was spent and a buffet lunch served.

Miss Emily Saunders, who was one of the passengers in an automobile that figured in an accident at the junction of Woodbridge street and Middle Turnpike East, Sunday noon, is confined to her home with a concussion of the brain. The concussion is clearing up and will not result seriously, her doctors say. It will keep her from work for the next ten days or two weeks.

NEW SEASON

Goodbye Summer! Howdy Autumn! Gone the season of vacations, swimming, traffic jams on the highways; here the season of blazing foliage, golden afternoons and hungry kiddies. How the appetites do flourish in the autumn!

And speaking of appetites—do you know that Pinehurst specializes in grinding appetites to the finest possible edge by the very excellence of the food it sells? Appetite and digestion both depend quite a lot on the quality of the materials they work on. Pinehurst sells no poor foods, no mediocre foods—none whatever. Everything here is just simply of the very best.
