

WOODS URGES BUSINESS AID FOR THE IDLE

President's Relief Director Loses Little Time to Start Machinery in Motion to Help Those Unemployed.

Washington, Oct. 23.—(AP)—A call to American industry to cooperate in the alleviation of suffering among unemployed this winter was sounded today by Colonel Arthur Woods, President Hoover's relief director, after a conference at the White House.

Colonel Woods who arrived here last night to take charge of setting up a relief organization, conferred on his hour with the President, Secretary Lamont, Secretary Hurley, and Under-Secretary Mills of the Treasury.

After the conference Woods indicated a formal request to industry to cooperate in giving as many jobs as possible would be made soon.

The First Step

The conferees said the first definite step would be to set up an organization for Woods and then to obtain information on where jobs can be found.

They said they would draft men qualified for the work from all over the country and if possible would obtain those men who worked with Colonel Woods in his unemployment relief work under President Harding.

Colonel Woods said that his industry was doing its part but he expected more cooperation in the general campaign.

"I not only expect industry to do its part," he said, "but I see that it is already doing so."

Headquarters for the administration of employment relief will be set up in the Commerce Department. Members of the President's Cabinet unemployment committee of seven planned to lend every effort to get the organization functioning within the shortest time possible.

After the White House conference, Colonel Woods returned to the Commerce Department, conferred with Secretary Lamont, and began to organize his headquarters' personnel.

Edward E. Hunt, who was secretary to the unemployment commission of 1921, was designated as temporary secretary for the new campaign.

MRS. O'LOUGHLIN ADMITS KILLING STEPDAUGHTER

Wife of Denver City Detective Breaks Down After Being Questioned Steadily for Six and a Half Hours.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin admitted today she alone was to blame for the death of her 10-year-old stepdaughter, Leona, whose battered body was thrown into Berkeley lake a week ago Tuesday night.

Captain of Detectives Bert Clark announced that he had obtained the admission from Mrs. O'Loughlin after six and a half hours of questioning. The woman's nerve broke and she was carried to her cell in the matron's quarters of the city jail on the verge of a complete breakdown.

Beyond the bare announcement that Mrs. O'Loughlin had "talked," Captain Clark declined to comment.

Details Later

"Neither Mrs. O'Loughlin nor myself was in condition to go into details when her admission came," Captain Clark declared. "I expect to get a more detailed statement from her later on, when she has had time to collect herself."

Captain Clark, worn out himself by the strain of the protracted questioning, went to his home.

The admission of Mrs. O'Loughlin concluded her sixth extended questioning by officers, one session having been at the hear of the dead child. She was grilled yesterday by her husband, Leo O'Loughlin, a city detective.

"She admitted responsibility," Captain Clark said. "Her first statement of admission was: 'I'll take the blame; I'm the one that has to suffer.'"

FIREMAN STARTS SUIT

Ansonia, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Samuel Corso, a truck driver in the Ansonia Fire Department, has sued Walter and Theodore Allegretti of this city for $25,000 alleged damages due to injuries he received in a crash of the men's car with the fire truck. The mishap was on October 27, 1929, and Corso had a fractured skull and other injuries.

WORKER FALLS 175 FEET IN WATER, SWIMS ASHORE

Sydney, N. S. W., Oct. 23.—(AP)—While working on the great new Sydney harbor bridge, said to be the world's largest arch bridge, a workman named Kelly today fell 175 feet into the harbor.

He hurtled down feet first and as he struck the water a column of spray 20 feet high shot into the air. Kelly swam ashore not much the worse for his experience and is now wondering whether he established a high plunge record.

HUB MAYOR WANTS AIRPORT FOR CITY

Curley Visits President About Plan to Provide Work for the Idle.

Washington, Oct. 23.—(AP)—After calling upon President Hoover today Mayor James J. Curley of Boston, expressed confidence that the government would turn over Governors Island to the city of Boston, to permit construction of the large airport planned there.

The mayor told the President if governmental red tape could be cut and the city allowed to go forward with its proposed construction, it would mean the expenditure of approximately $18,000,000. Five hundred men would be employed the first of December, the mayor said, an additional 500 in January and another 500 about May 1. The work would take about two years.

Needs New Airport

The city seeks Governors Island for a 440-acre airport extending out into the ocean. It formerly controlled the island under an Act of Congress passed in 1902, but the island was taken back by the government during the World War. Mayor Curley contended Congressional action was not necessary since the 1902 act had never been repealed.

After conferring with the President, Mayor Curley went to see Secretary Hurley who has jurisdiction over the island. He was accompanied by William P. Long, chairman of the Boston parks commission, and Thomas Johnson of Boston.

GUNMAN DIES FROM BULLETS FIRED BY COP

Attempts to Hold Up Bristol Druggist While Policeman Was in Store—Was Ex- Soldier in U. S. Army.

Bristol, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Edmond R. Theriault, 22, died in the Bristol hospital today of bullet wounds which he received last night in a pistol duel with a policeman during a drug store robbery.

The youth, his head covered by a black hood, with two slits for his eyes, was shot by Patrolman Edward O'Connor as he fled from the store after demanding and receiving from John F. Rock the contents of the cash register, which included $17 in cash and two checks for small amounts. Four bullets fired by O'Connor entered the robber's abdomen, while a fifth went wild.

Automatic Jams

Theriault's automatic jammed after he had fired two shots at the patrolman. Both bullets went wild. O'Connor was in the store chatting with Rock when the robber entered. Theriault covered both men with his automatic and ordered Rock to open the register.

While Rock was complying with the order the patrolman remarked to the bandit: "You know there's another cop outside." The youth replied: "I don't care if there is, he'll get it too."

Policeman Fires

As the youth began backing toward the door, O'Connor ducked behind a show case. Theriault fired two shots at the patrolman and then fled, but O'Connor's bullets dropped him near the front of the store.

Papers showing he had been discharged from the army.

NAVY BOARD DRAFTS BUILDING PROGRAM

To Bring Our Fleet Up To- ward Limits of London Pact—The Details.

Washington, Oct. 23.—(AP)—A new building program to bring the United States fleet up toward the limits of the London treaty has been drawn by the Navy general board.

It is to be studied by President Hoover as a basis for recommendations to Congress, which is to take up the question on Navy appropriations.

The exact contents of the board's program have not been made public. The rate at which new building and replacement would be undertaken under the plan also remained undisclosed.

Aircraft Carriers

There have been authoritative indications however that the board favored building up to the full limit of 135,000 tons for aircraft carriers. Including one ship just contracted for, the present tonnage is 79,800 in three ships.

Modernization of equipment of the battleships New Mexico, Mississippi and Idaho with the latest armament, gun controls and defensive armor is provided for. Other battleships also would be rejuvenated during the next several years.

Sub Construction

Submarine construction recommended is understood to involve replacement of some 25,000 tons of obsolescent S and R type boats with vessels displacing between 1,000 and 1,300 tons.

Destroyer construction is believed to form an important part of the recommendations for immediate outlays.

In cruisers the only construction not already authorized will be in the 6-inch gun class. The United States may build under the treaty another 73,500 tons within the category but there have been numerous indications that all might not be constructed.

Verifies Rumor

Martin's announcement was immediately construed in political circles as opposition to Pinchot's as another manifestation of the difference of opinion between the Senatorial and gubernatorial candidate concerning the wishes of the President in the Pennsylvania battle.

Pinchot had given Davis as authority for the statement that the success of every candidate on the Republican ticket, while Davis had stated that the President had not endorsed any candidate. The conflicting statements were made in campaign addresses in the western part of the state.

"I am going to speak from the same platform with Mr. Pinchot in Pittsburgh Saturday night," Secretary Davis said in his Washington statement, "and I shall stay in the campaign in my state as much as I can until election day, speaking with Mr. Pinchot whenever there is opportunity."

STICKLERS WILL SET YOU THINKING

You've heard the old expression, "Use your head." Well, you'll have to, when you start working "STICKLERS" which will appear daily in The Herald, starting today.

Or, maybe you're just smart enough to work "STICKLERS" pronto—just like that. Some folks will be stuck—maybe—by one "STICKLER" and other folks will be stuck—perhaps—by another.

Anyway, you'll have fun trying to work "STICKLERS."

Threatens Europe's Peace

Adolf Hitler, German National Socialist leader, man of mystery and sudden power, is shown, upper left, in a recent portrait. Upper right, Hitler as seen by the famous cartoonist, Heine, for Das Tagebuch of Berlin. Lower picture shows Hitler surrounded by admirers, after his party's recent sweeping victories in the German elections.

Former House Painter European Power Now

By MILTON BRONNER

Seventeen years ago Adolf Hitler swung his legs from a ladder and dabbled paint on houses in little villages in Austria. Today he ranks as one of the most potent political leaders in Germany—a nightmare to the old-established political and parliamentary masters, a bogeyman to the financiers, a menace to the German republic and the peace of Europe.

In all the troubled story of Europe's past quarter of a century there has been no rise comparable to Hitler's, unless one points to Mussolini in Italy. Hitler has never said so from the platform, but in Munich beer-gardens, when inflated by an extra "schoppen" of "dunkles," he has been known to admit that he considered himself the German Mussolini, aiming at the same goal, desiring the same power, and intent upon getting it by any means to his hand.

There is some little parallel between the two men. Mussolini's father was a village blacksmith. Hitler's was an Austrian railway workman. Mussolini served in the ranks in the Italian army during the World War. Hitler served in the ranks in the Bavarian army during the same war. Mussolini was at one time a Socialist and repented of it during the disillusionment that followed the war. The same is alleged to be true of Hitler.

Not even a German but there the resemblance ceases. Largely self-educated by reason of assiduous reading and travel, the young Mussolini became assistant editor of the "Avanti," the great Milan Socialist paper with a circulation of over 100,000 daily. Only

SEC. DAVIS DENIES ROW WITH PINCHOT

Says He Will Speak on Same Platform With Him in Penny Campaign.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Reports of a breach between Secretary of Labor James J. Davis and Gifford Pinchot over the latter's campaign have been denied by Davis.

In a statement at Washington, Mr. Davis, Republican nominee for U. S. Senator said there were no differences, and that they would speak from the same platform in Pittsburgh next Saturday night.

Secretary Davis made his statement after General Edward Martin, chairman of the Republican State committee had announced here that the remainder of the campaign because President Hoover's demand for every minute of his time to meet the unemployment situation.

Martin's announcement was immediately construed in political circles as opposition to Pinchot's as another manifestation of the difference of opinion between the Senatorial and gubernatorial candidate concerning the wishes of the President in the Pennsylvania battle.

CHINA'S PRESIDENT BECOMES CHRISTIAN

General Chiang Kai-Shek is Baptized; Two War Lords Now Christians.

Shanghai, China, Oct. 23.—(AP)—General Chiang Kai-Shek, youthful Nationalist president of China, was baptized a Christian today.

The conversion of Chiang Kai-Shek, the 44-year-old president of China, means that two Chinese war lords now are adherents of Christianity. The first was Marshal Feng Yu-Hsiang, long termed "the Christian general."

Chiang Kai-Shek first gained fame in 1926 and 1928 when he swept over China with a Cantonese army in a revolution that established a new republic with himself as the head. He cooperated with the aid of Russian Communists at first, but later shook them off.

All this summer Chiang's administration has been beset by trouble. On one hand he has been fighting a northern coalition under Yen Hsi-Shan and Feng, the other Christian general, while armies of Chinese Reds have sacked the interior. At present the civil war has let up and Nationalist troops now are moving against the Reds.

An instance is told how Chiang once spared a Christian mission which had done him a favor. This was in 1926 after a dentist at the Yale-in-China Mission at Changsha had extracted a painful wisdom tooth for the young general. "He was so grateful that when his Cantonese soldiers surged through the country he ordered that the Yale buildings be spared."

GOVERNOR ASKS PROBE OF WETHERSFIELD JAIL

Ready to Contribute Wheat to the Jobless

Washington, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Chairman Legge said today the Federal Farm Board would be glad to make its holdings of wheat available as food for the unemployed if Congress would replace the money used by the Grain Stabilization Corporation for its purchase.

Such a step, he said, would help in reducing the wheat surplus in this country.

Legge explained, however, that the Farm Board had no authority under the Agricultural Marketing Act to give away wheat purchased in stabilization operations.

The only way the wheat could be turned over to the unemployed, therefore, was through additional authority from Congress which meets in December.

Legge's statement came in the midst of a series of conferences on the employment situation between President Hoover, Col. Arthur Woods, government relief director, and other members of the Hoover Cabinet committee.

To Immediately Appoint a Commission to Make Thorough Investigation of State's Prison—Expresses Confidence in Prison Board and Warden—Directors Demand That Charges Made by Ex-Chaplain Be Shown False or True.

Hartford, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Immediate appointment of a commission of "disinterested and unprejudiced citizens to make a thorough investigation" publicly, of conditions at the State Prison in Wethersfield, in compliance with the appeal of the prison directors, was promised by Governor Trumbull this morning.

Expressing "absolute confidence in the prison board and in the warden" the governor announced, in his office at the State Capitol, that he will get in touch with men he has in mind, today, appoint them forthwith and ask that the probe start as soon as possible.

Directors' Letter

The communication from the prison directors, drafted at a meeting in Wethersfield yesterday afternoon, and then delivered to Governor Trumbull, declares that "malicious, irresponsible and ignorant" charges concerning conditions at the prison, had compelled the plea for a disinterested investigation, "not in a spirit of defense but rather in a spirit of challenge to our accusers."

"If we are guilty for the charges which have been brought, we should instantly be removed from office. If, on the other hand, it should transpire that these charges, insinuations and innuendoes are found to be false, the responsibility for them should be placed, with such disapproval of public opinion as would seem to fit their offense, where it belongs."

Governor's Views

In announcing his decision, Governor Trumbull said: "I am perfectly satisfied that an investigation will show not only that the charges against the administration of the State Prison are unfounded, but that the public opinion as would seem to fit their offense, where it belongs."

He considers the prison warden one of the best in his field, in the country if not the best, the governor said and expressed a similar confidence in the members of the board of directors, who, he declared, have given their personal attention to the affairs of the prison.

Letter to Governor

The letter to Governor Trumbull was as follows:

"The publicity which has been given charges laid by the former chaplain of this institution, the Rev. William H. Smith, against the spirit and humanity of this administration, and the more or less sympathetic comments which have found their way into the columns of the press; the widespread accusations brought by Miss Genevieve Cowles, who for a number of years has been in the employ of the institution, and the more or less prevalent gossip which these attitudes and assertions have provoked, all of which we feel are factors, both malicious and irresponsible and ignorant, compel us to appeal to you, not in a spirit of defense but rather in a spirit of challenge to our accusers, to appoint at your earliest convenience a commission of disinterested and unprejudiced citizens to make a thorough investigation of the management of the institution behind open doors.

Want Speedy Action

"We urge you, sir, this course rather than await the assembling of the Legislature, in order to safeguard the welfare of the institution, anticipate any prejudgment within or without prison walls and to protect the good name of the state, whose humanity has been assailed. We are not unmindful of the reaction of the uninformed, at a time when prison administrations in other sections of the country have been subjected to serious criticism, to charges and gossip affecting the integrity of ours. We quite understand the psychology of it and because we understand it, we deem it our duty to invite at your hands such an inquiry into conditions here as will establish the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth as regards the manner and form in which we have discharged our obligations to the state. If we are guilty of the charges which have been brought or if it should transpire that these charges, insinuations and innuendoes are found to be false, the responsibility for them should be placed, with such disapproval in

40 YEAR OLD LETTERS OF QUEEN MADE PUBLIC

Victoria Called Ex-Kaiser "Hot-Headed, Conceited and Wrong Headed Man, Devoid of All Feeling."

London, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Letters of the late Queen Victoria describing her grandson, Kaiser Wilhelm II, as "such a hot-headed, conceited and wrong-headed young man, devoid of all feeling." Were among the revelations made today in a book compiled from confidential royal sources including the archives of Windsor Castle.

Victoria also said that Gladstone, then occupying the role of prime minister, "will ruin the country if he can," the documents disclose.

The volume, edited by George Earle Buxton and published by the firm of John Murray shows that King Albert's widow had deepened viewpoints of her own, whatever might have been the views or intentions of the government officers of her time.

Permission to publish these royal secrets, hidden from the world for forty years, was given by King George and, in the case of some of the letters, permission was said to have been secured also from the former Kaiser at Doorn.

About the Kaiser

Regarding Wilhelm, she wrote: "x x x How sticking it is to see Willy, not two months after his beloved and noble father's death, going to banquets and reviews! It is very indecent and very unfeeling."

Of the Emperor Frederick, the Kaiser's father, she wrote, "None of my sons could be a greater loss to me. He was so good, so wise and so fond of me. And now?"

Refers to Balfour

Victoria referred to A. J. Balfour, afterwards the Earl of Balfour, thus:

"Lord Salisbury named his clever and agreeable nephew as the person fit to succeed him (she refers to Balfour succeeding Sir M. Hicks-Beach as Irish secretary) and I was just going to make the same suggestion."

The Queen would not admit to her court, nor have as ministers, persons whose reputation she did not approve. For example she declared that she would not accept Sir Charles Dilke as minister "on account of his dreadful private character." Dilke had been named as co-respondent in a divorce case. The Queen said, "every one looks on Sir C. Dilke, as guilty, though he has gone off without punishment."

THREE AUTOS HIT HARTFORD TRUCK

Windsor, Oct. 23.—(AP)—A large truck parked alongside of the main highway near Hayden, this morning proved a stumbling block for three automobiles and in one of the three accidents J. J. Gier of the Clinton Hotel, Springfield, was badly injured. He was treated by Dr. William H. MacCreedy and removed to the Mercy hospital in Springfield in an ambulance.

Mr. Gier was riding in an automobile driven by Joseph F. Sanpack, of Indian Park, Cheshire, Mass. The heavy fog, about 8 o'clock, obscured the truck so Sanpack did not see it in time to avoid it. Before Constable Maurice Kennedy could reach the scene, an automobile driven by Raymond Hancock, of

CAVEIN OF TUNNEL TRAPS THREE MEN

Two Thought Dead and Other Says He Is Not Hurt— Digging for Him.

Steubenville, Ohio, Oct. 23.—(AP)—One of three trainmen trapped in a cavein in one of the Wheeling and Lake Erie railroad tunnels at Adena, 25 miles southwest of here today, was dead when removed from the shattered caboose at noon today. He was identified as Jerry L. Sells, 40, a conductor of Dillonvale.

Communication with Al Romando, 35, Dillonvale, another trainman was established a short time before rescue crews reached Sells' body which had been crushed under stone and dirt. Romando said he was trapped between boulders and could not move.

The rescue crew said E. E. Duga, 35, Dillonvale, a brakeman, probably was dead as the caboose had been broken into hundreds of small pieces by the weight of the tunnel roof. They said Romando would be reached after the removal of about 10 feet of dirt.

Romando told the crews he was trapped but did not believe he was injured seriously.

Use Mustard Gas Pellets To Blind Bay State Cop

Marblehead, Mass., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Patrolman George Kelley of the Marblehead Police Department was horribly burned about the face and head early today, while guarding a quantity of seized liquor near Flounder Rock. Hi-jackers fired up on Kelley with a revolver loaded with mustard gas pellets.

At the Mary Allen hospital, where Kelley was taken, it was feared that he might lose the sight of both eyes.

Kelley had just discovered an outfit of hi-jackers when they fired on him. The liquor, in 50 cases, was washed in with the tide near Flounder Rock. Officers discovered it yesterday and were guarding it until a low tide would give them a chance to take it ashore.

TRAPS THREE MEN

Officers said that they heard Kelley challenge someone but they heard no reply. They saw several long spurts of flame and heard a dull explosion. They found Kelley writing on the ground as they charged across to his station.

Salem, 22, 23-year-old, police rounded up 17 suspects for questioning and gathered in a truck load of liquor in the search that followed Kelley's shooting.

CHENEYS RETIRE RALPH RUSSELL

Well Known Beamer in Local Plant Employed by Firm for 54 Years.

Ralph Russell of Winter street, after many years a resident of the West Side, living at the corner of High and Cedar streets, has been placed on the pension list of Cheney Brothers after fifty-four years of service with the company. He was the greatest part of his service in the bearing department. For the past thirty-six years he has had charge of this department. He is father of a large family and was always interested in matters pertaining to the town and especially the West Side. He was one of seven West Side residents that met and discussed the needs of a Recreation Center for that end of the town and was one of the seven that first signed the petition for such a building. In his early days he was one of the "boys" who played baseball in the old "Four Acres" and although he moved from the very center of what was then the West Side and his children have always retained the spirit that is so strong with all West Siders. Mr. Russell started last week on his period of rest and as yet, he says, is finding it hard to find what to do with himself after fifty-four years of active work.

"What is needed is a group of men who really know modern methods of working with criminals—a group possibly composed of a business man, a physician, a sociologist and a sociologist, at least."

BODY OF NORMAND IS FOUND IN WOODS

Waterbury Man Who Shot Three Persons Evidently Committed Suicide.

Waterbury, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The decomposed body of Napoleon Normand, 69, of Manchester, N. H., who shot and seriously wounded his wife and step-daughter, Mrs. Rose Normand, 60, and Mrs. Ralph Theriault, 31, of 285 Grandview avenue, here October third, was found in the woods in the Hill street section of Waterbury at noon today by Rocco Guerterra, a hunter.

Normand clutched a .32 calibre revolver in hand, and had evidently shot himself, although there were no visible wounds as a result of the decomposition which was advanced. Police believe the man walked into the woods across town just after the shooting and put a bullet in his head.

Identification was established by an eye-witness who bearing the label of a Manchester, N. H., optician. The calibre of the revolver was the same as that which Normand shot his relatives, and the clothing answers the description of those he wore. A more thorough search of the body will be made as soon as the medical examiner gives his permission to move it.

There is apparently no more fear here of any illness affecting the children in the schools as shown this afternoon. Nearly all of the schools in Manchester are back to normal in attendance. In every case in town where a child is out of school the reason is known and the reason is not fear of the children being taken ill.

Tonight in Odd Fellows Hall King David Lodge of Odd Fellows, assisted by the Rebekahs will give the first of a series of weekly whist and dance socials, to be held on consecutive Thursday evenings. The prizes will be all in money and refreshments will be served after the games. Modern and old-fashioned dancing may then be enjoyed until midnight. Tomorrow night Irving Wickham will play the piano and Charles Burke the violin. These whist and dance socials will be run jointly by the two organizations have proved popular with local players heretofore.

Burr who remained in Norwich for the entire time of the convention. Mrs. J. A. Hood, Mrs. Mary Ferguson, Mrs. George E. Keith, Mrs. Fayette B. Clarke, Mrs. Albert Mann, Mrs. Hood gave the report for the state on foreign missions and relief, and Mrs. Burr on Parliamentary usage. Rev. Share prices rallied briskly at the opening of today's Stock Market. American Can rose 2 points, and U. S. Steel, Westinghouse Electric, Loew's, Nickel Plate and Pere Marquette were also soft, yielding 1 to 5 Westinghouse Electric, after selling 2-1/2 points higher, sagged to 101-1/8, yesterday's low, but now recovers to 102-1/2, on three point advances in American Can, J. I. Case, Columbia Carbon, U. S. Steel, American Tobacco "B", Union Carbide and Vanadium were likewise shaded, but good support was in evidence at the lower levels and the list pointed higher again in ground noon.

Call money renewed at 2 per cent.

The market displayed considerable buoyance in the first half hour. The resistance offered to selling pressure yesterday appeared to have prompted considerable short covering. Utilities displayed conspicuous group strength, and miscellaneous manufacturing issues rose substantially. Trading, however, was in moderate volume.

American Can extended its rise to 3 points, and shares showing advances of 2 or more included U. S. Steel, American Tobacco B, Columbian Carbon, Worthington, Rock Island, Case and Westinghouse Electric. Allied Chemical mounted 5 points. Gains of 2 points were recorded by American Water Works, American and Foreign Power, Electric Power and Light, Consolidated Gas, North American, National Power and Light, Stone and Webster, American Telephone, Radio, General Electric, General Motors, Warner Brothers and Woodworth.

Dupont sagged a point, in response to its third quarter earnings statement, showing net of $1.05 a share, against $1.80 a year ago. Unsatistactory earnings statements, as well as the steel trade reviews, however, seemed to have been largely discounted, and the market reflected what appeared to be an oversold condition.

Sterling cables opened at $4.86-15-16, unchanged.

SEYMOUR IS LINKED WITH NORRIS CASE

Says He Gave $500 Bond to Groceryman Norris to Enter the Race.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 23.—(AP)—The name of Victor Seymour, who until recently was associated with Republican National Senatorial campaign committee headquarters in Denver, was linked with the filing of the second George W. Norris for the Republican Senatorial nomination in Nebraska last summer by the testimony today of State Treasurer Wm. M. Stebbins before Chairman Gerrit P. Nye of the United States Senate investigating committee.

Wanted a Bond Stebbins, a candidate for the Republican Senatorial nomination which was won by Senator George W. Norris, testified that after he approached Seymour the latter investigated the availability of the second Norris, a grocer from Broken Bow. Seymour, Stebbins said, later called him and said Norris wanted a $500 bond and $50 in cash. Stebbins said he got the bond and turned it over to Seymour.

The state treasurer said he had heard rumors that an effort was being made to find another man named "Stebbins" to file against him.

Questioned regarding his motive in the bond to Grocer Norris, Stebbins testified he believed Seymour Norris was not a good Republican and that he believed this filing would cause Nebraska's senior Senator to withdraw from the race and run for re-election as an Independent.

Stebbins testified he knew of no other political activities by Seymour in connection with the primary campaign and that he had no knowledge of a straw vote taken in Nebraska last spring to determine the best man available for the United States Senate.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Share prices once more took the road to recovery in today's Stock Market, but made irregular progress, as several of the rail shares found block signals turned against them.

A break of 3 points in Allegheny Corporation and declines of a point or two in Chesapeake Corporation, Chesapeake and Ohio, and Nickel Plate were conspicuous in a brief period of weakness during the morning. Pere Marquette and Illinois Central, however, traded issue, dropped 20 points in a few sales. The list soon recovered, however, under leadership of the utilities and prominent industrials.

Shares selling up to 5 included U. S. Steel, American Can, Westinghouse Electric, Indiana General Business Machines, American Telephone, North American, Stone and Webster, Atchison, American Tobacco B, Air Reduction, and Union Carbide.

General Electric, Radio, Dupont, Sears, Woolworth, Loews and Unimatic, the latter at 2 or more. Trading was in light volume.

In the rails, heaviness of the Van Sweringen group was notable. Although Chesapeake and Ohio has maintained its earnings this year better than most trunk lines, such as Erie, Pennsylvania, Nickel Plate and Erie have been adversely influenced by the slump in automobile manufacturing and steel mill operations. The stock of Allegheny Corporation, the holding company, has been depressed by the reduced asset value of its holdings. Since the end of the year, it has been put up as collateral against the Allegheny Corporation bonds and, Van Sweringen Corporation notes, there has been some hasty selling of those lines, although it is reported that ample collateral is being easily obtained.

Third quarter earnings statements comprised the bulk of the day's corporate news, and were about in keeping with conservative expectations. Deferred recovery in corporate earnings has probably been expected by investors at the downward readjustment of share prices. Some brokers are advising their customers that this readjustment seems to have been completed in many cases. Conspicuous in that day's batch of statements was that of Dupont, which earned $1.05 a share in the third quarter, against $1.80 a share on a slightly smaller number of shares in the same period of 1929. Almost half this reduction, however, was due to lessened returns from its General Motors investment. National Biscuit report was a bright spot, showing $1.01 a share, as increased from 80 cents a year ago, calculated on the same number of shares.

Although Wall street has been rather deaf of late to predictions of business recovery, optimistic analysis presented by speakers at the annual conference of major industries at Chicago yesterday appeared to have been reassuring. Furthermore, wall street expects speakers at the meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute tomorrow to present a picture of the steel industry. U. S. Steel's quarterly statement due next week, commission house statisticians are busy making forecasts, and generally, they look for about $2 a share, amply covering the $1.75 dividend. Persons who were predicting an extra dividend of $1 a short time ago, however, were less confident.

EVEN STYLES IN CANDY

CHANGE IN THIS AGE

Small Quantities, Bars and So On Have Displaced the Pound Box Variety, It Seems.

Candy shapes, sizes and styles have taken a change in an effort to meet the competition of the bar or the lollypop that has driven the higher selling candy almost all out of the showcases. In nearly every case where candy is displayed there is now found sweets in smaller sizes to fit smaller boxes. Not even for birthdays, dances or "formal" calls on Sunday evening is box candy necessary as formerly. The automobile ride, a stop for a soft drink and the purchase of a bar of candy have been substituted. Boxes in pound sizes are not in demand. The merchants know it and so do the manufacturers. A walk along Manchester's Main street today will find this to be true in the displays found in every candy store along the street.

LEGS IS FRIENDLY TO DIST. ATTORNEY

Gangster Says He Will Do All in His Power to Help the Authorities.

New York, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Jack (Legs) Diamond was right friendly today when the district attorney paid his routine visit to the hospital on Welfare island where the gangster is nursing four bullet wounds.

"Who shot you, Diamond?" the district attorney asked for the tenth time.

"I don't know any more about it than you do, Judge," the racketeer replied. "If I can help you out, though, let me know."

Diamond, his doctors said, is improving rapidly and soon the bullets in his body will be removed.

After the interview the district attorney said he had learned a lot from the gangster about the men who shot him in the Monticello hotel eleven days ago, and about the circumstances of the attack.

Four men whom Diamond didn't know were the assailants, the gangster said, and he defended himself with a pillow snatched from his bed as the intruders' guns began to bark.

But, despite the evidence of a broken collar bone and three crushed ribs, Diamond said nobody laid a hand on him.

"They didn't kick me, either," he told the district attorney. "All my wounds are bullet wounds."

The district attorney said he had subpoenaed the gangster to appear before a Grand Jury November 16. He thinks the man is telling the truth, he said, but he hopes to identify Diamond's assailants by means of Rogues' Gallery photographs.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

TROOP No. 4 Troop 4 met Tuesday evening at St. Mary's Church. Twenty-one Scouts and recruits were present. Elmer Ullrich led the troop in giving the Scout Oath and Laws.

Patrol dues were collected by the patrol treasurers. Short patrol meetings were held and terminated when two blasts were blown on a whistle. The new recruits, G. Weir and A. Vance have almost completed their tenderfoot tests. We will be glad to welcome them as "tenderfeet" with an initiation. Two lines were formed and a game of Pass The Tinpan was played. William Weir dropped the pan passed to him many times, but finally succeeded in catching it. A celluloid ball was produced by Scoutmaster Crawshaw and a few games were played. Four sides were picked up, the sides then lay upon the floor facing each other, the celluloid ball was then thrown in the space between, the Scout nearest the ball then was to try to blow it into enemy territory for the score. Bantly blew so much that he was glad the game ended when it did.

After these games the meeting was closed by giving the Scout Oath and Laws.

CHALLENGE CROSS ON TAX PENALTIES

Republicans Say His Statement Is Worst Political Bank Yet Issued.

The Republican State Central Committee issued the following statement today:

To date in this campaign Professor Cross has criticized the Republican party in Connecticut for about everything in the calendar, and has offered no constructive ideas. His "condemnation" today concerns the 12 per cent penalty rate on unpaid taxes. He would reduce this and thereby relieve unemployment and ill health. This is the worst bank handed out by a political candidate in Connecticut for many years.

We would refer the professor to Section 1236 of the 1930 Statutes with which he is undoubtedly unfamiliar. In that section he will find specific provision for the needy and unfortunate. The statute does not go far as to the state of Connecticut. It goes to the various towns and assists in the maintenance of the welfare work of those towns. It is an affair of local self government.

The professor should also realize that the money thus collected does not go to the state of Connecticut. It goes to the various towns and assists in the maintenance of the welfare work of those towns. It is an affair of local self government.

The professor agrees that some penalty should be imposed for not paying one's taxes and after he has read the Statute referred to he might then confer with some of his associates who are running on the Democratic ticket and who are prominent in his party throughout the state who have themselves been free riders.

As in most of his other "issues" the professor should gather at least a few facts before he issues his daily item of criticism.

STOECKEL EXPLAINS AUTO STICKER LAW

Even Enforced to Point of Preventing State Inspectors From Marking Cars Tested.

Connecticut's procedure in administering the law regarding the use of stickers on automobiles was explained by Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins E. Stoekel today. He made several suggestions for changes which may eventually result in modification of present practices.

"In connection with the statewide inspection of safety equipment on automobiles now being conducted by one crew will be stopped for examination by a second crew, under the misapprehension that no previous inspection has been made.

"While such cases are infrequent, they do raise the question of certification of cars that have been tested to avoid the inconvenience of a second test. In other states a successful method has been the issuance of a sticker, which is placed upon the windshield or the rear window. The obvious reason why Connecticut has not adopted this practice is because there is a law against interference with the vision of an operator in any way. There are no specifications, under our law and practice, as to how large such an obstruction as a sticker may be before it interferes with the view.

"There seems little doubt that large stickers or placards do interfere with the operator's sight line, and that serious accidents might be occasioned by their use. Use of such obstructions is a breach of the law, and leaves the operator without legal standing. If, while using illegal stickers, an accident occurs, an operator might be held for negligence, when otherwise he would escape such a disagreeable consequence.

"The policy in Connecticut must continue to be against stickers, or any other type of view interference, until such time as the law is changed to permit the use of a small card or sticker which will certify that the equipment of the car has been tested. This type of sticker would seem a safe exception to the general rule, especially if the regulation required that it be placed near the top of the windshield and not near the bottom. It is appreciable that a sticker placed in the right hand upper corner of the windshield might interfere with the operator's view of the birds and treets, but could hardly constitute a danger or be regarded as an obstruction against which an officer would feel obliged to take action, unless the sticker were large enough to be extreme.

"For the nuisance which has been occasioned by duplicate inspection there is regret. There will be an attempt to make such examinations more practical and to work out some kind of an authorization which can be attached to the car instead of issuing cards which must be carried by the operator, as is now the case. The present system has been developed for the purpose of checking up, and in most cases the simple work of any Connecticut operator has been accepted on the matter of previous tests, so that there has been no particular hardship occasioned by duplicate examination."

NO SPECTACULAR BUSINESS RETURN

Speakers at Chicago Parley Say, However, That Turning Point is at Hand.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—(AP)—A picture of optimism for the economic future was laid before the American people today by the conference here of leaders of major industries in the United States.

While there will be no spectacular recovery of business in the opinion of speakers at the conference, the "turning point" has been reached and this in itself was deemed as a step toward a more solid future.

L. J. Tabor, master of the National Grange, said: "Agriculture is at the turn of the road. Despite drought and the decline in prices, the farmer has learned to look less to government and Congress and more to himself."

Other Opinions
Opinions that American industry has solved the technical problems of production and that American standards and wages have come to stay were expressed by other speakers.

A note of optimism also was given by President Hoover who sent a message in which he said: "The growing relationship between education and business is a happy augury for both and will lead to enlarged usefulness in both spheres of activity."

M. S. Sloan, president of the New York Edison Company, said that the unchallenged industrial leadership of the world which the United States has held for a number of years, continued even during the present depression. America remains better off socially and industrially than other nations, he added.

Good times ahead for the iron and steel industry were seen by George M. Verity, president of the American Rolling Mills Company. He pointed out that production of steel ingots and castings had increased 14,000,000 tons to 56,000,000 tons and predicted on the basis of expansion of natural gas piping a peak production of 69,000,000 tons in the next decade.

Living Standards
"More capital saving must go to improving the living standard and less into productive facilities. Wages and standards must be raised not lowered," said another speaker, General Robert E. Wood, Sears, Roebuck and Company president.

Radio was acclaimed by M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Company, as the most important factor in stopping the farm-to-city movement.

Many of the industrial leaders signified concurrence in the statement of Harvey S. Firestone, Jr., vice-president of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, that "the condition of over-capacity is now well on the road to correction."

Industrial leaders of industry at the banquet speakers' table last night included: Edward G. Seubert, president of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana; H. A. Scandrett, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad; W. E. Storey, president of the Atchafalaya, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad; P. E. Crowley, president of the New York Central Railroad; Walter P. Chrysler, chairman of the board and president of the Chrysler Motor Corporation; E. R. Erskine, president of the Studebaker Corporation; Arthur Reynolds, board chairman of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Company; and Vincent Bendix, president of the Bendix Aviation Company.

KILLED AT CROSSING
Everett, Mass., Oct. 23.—(AP)—An unidentified man was killed and two others were seriously injured as their automobile struck a Boston and Maine Rockport-Boston train at the Merrimack Chemical crossing after 7 o'clock today.

The two injured men were taken to the Massachusetts General hospital. All three are believed to be employees of a nearby plant.

The automobile struck the engine of the train just behind the driving wheels.

BOLAND AT HOSPITAL AS PATIENT LONGEST

Badly Hurt on July 9 in Auto Accident Local Man Must Stay Three Weeks More.

Thomas Boland of 37 Lancaster Road has been confined to the Manchester Memorial hospital longer than any of the other patients now in the institution. He was injured in an automobile accident south of Middletown on July 9 last. His discharge is not expected for another three weeks which will make a total confinement of more than four months in the hospital.

Mr. Boland's condition was regarded as serious when he was first taken to the Middlesex County hospital in Middletown following the accident. A fracture of the skull was feared but this later proved to be a concussion of the brain which is far less serious. The Manchester man also suffered a broken right hip and three broken ribs in addition to injuries of a lesser nature.

His condition was said today to have steadily improved and now his ultimate discharge from the hospital is delayed only by his broken hip which is slow in mending. The cast was removed from his hip three weeks ago after having been in place for 15 weeks. A few days ago he was given crutches but is not able yet to walk much with them. He sits up most all day in a wheelchair and then tries short walks late in the day.

Mr. Boland was injured when an automobile overturned in which he and two other Manchester men, Joseph Farr and Jos. Durkin, were riding. Farr was driving when the car struck the soft shoulder of a piece of roadway and overturned. Durkin and Farr were also injured but not nearly as badly and long since have fully recovered.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The Sock and Buskin dramatic club will hold its first social meeting of the year at the Country Club this evening. This will be a semi-private meeting. Only members of the club will be permitted to witness the entertainment and the business meeting during the first part of the evening, but guests have been invited to the dancing which will follow.

The entertainment will be in the form of two one-act plays, "Neighbors" by the popular author, Zona Gale, and "Moonshine." In the latter production John Zapadka will portray the role of Luke Hazy, a "moonshiner" of the Kentucky mountain region, and Francis McVeigh will take the role of a revenue agent.

McKay's Orchestra has been secured to furnish the dance music, and the affair is expected to be highly successful.

Another school social, the Sophomore Class Social, will also take place tonight. Extensive preparations have been made for this social. The scheme of entertainment is entirely novel and original. Instead of the usual games, there will be a mock inter-collegiate contest. Each home room in the sophomore division has adapted the name of a certain prominent college. These "colleges" will compete at the social for honors in various mock events. Perhaps the most comical of these events will be the "broad grin" event. Posters advertising the social have been distributed about the main building, and the assembly hall has been decorated in Halloween fashion for the social.

A special committee consisting of Louis Sullivan, Charlotte Rubinow, Susan Allen, Mary Donnelly, Anna Crosser, Richard Joslin, and Hewitt Wilson, has been appointed by the Senior class to look into the problem of the selection of a class photographer. This year, by special vote of the class, the pictures will be taken before Christmas instead of late in the spring as is the usual custom. This will eliminate the usual undesirable situation of having all expenses come at the same time.

The Props and Paints Society of the Meriden High school has extended an invitation to the Sock and Buskin dramatic club to attend their presentation of two one act plays by Sir James M. Barrie on next Tuesday evening. The titles of the plays are "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals" and "The Twelve Pound Look". Practically every member of Sock and Buskin has declared his intention to attend this performance, and it is quite possible that a bus will be engaged to transport the delegation to Meriden.

There will be no school tomorrow due to the annual teachers' convention. In view of this, a record attendance is expected to witness the important football game which is to take place tomorrow between the local high school and the team of the East Hartford High school. In spite of the fact that the Manchester High team lost its two last games, these games were lost by such close margins and were so well contested that the team has the whole-hearted support of the student-body.

game took place yesterday between the Junior and Senior girls. The score was 2-1 in favor of the Juniors. Another game between the two classes will be played in the near future. Hockey, although introduced only last year, is rapidly gaining popularity among the girls. Archery has also been introduced, and although it has not been undertaken on a large scale, it has already gained much popularity.

This week marked the beginning of the second marking period. Several rehearsals for the "Admirable Crichton" were held this week. This production is now nearing the stage of completion as far as the study of the various roles is concerned. An exceptionally fine cast together with an excellent play arouses the prediction that this production will equal if not exceed any production previously presented by Sock and Buskin.

The high school band is engaging in a series of intensive rehearsals. It was necessary to almost completely re-organize the band this year as a large number of the former members graduated last June. Under the supervision of Carl Cullyer, the cheer-leaders are preparing to make a worthy showing at tomorrow's game.

MOBE WISECRACKS
Derby, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Judge Archibald Duffield, chairman of the Republican Town Committee and Republican candidate for mayor, commenting today on Democratic State Chairman Sullivan's statement to Jasper McLevy that the Democrats are gunning for bear and not chipmunks, said: "That may be so, but what they'll get will be crow." Judge Duffield is deputy judge of the Derby City Court and a noted wit.

Start Work Immediately on Official Graduation Pictures at New Studio.

The New Studio on 9 Johnson Terrace, of which John Klues is the proprietor, has been selected by Manchester High school to take the official pictures of the senior class members. It was stated today. The work will begin immediately. The students will go to the studio either outside school hours or during study periods, making their appointments through the class advisor, Miss Avis Walsh. Many of the pictures will be ready for delivery before Christmas, so that those who desire to do so, may have duplicates made to use as presents.

OUR INDUSTRIES NEED STABILITY

Business Head Says Waves of Prosperity Not Needed; They Lead to Depression.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—(AP)—A belief that the reactions and reverses now manifesting themselves merely foreshadow stability as a permanent characteristic of American business was the consensus of eight leaders of American industry who addressed the seventh conference of major industries today.

The conference, under auspices of the University of Chicago and the Institute of American Business, was attended by two score industrial, commercial, railroad and educational chiefs.

R. C. Holmes, president of the Texas Company, speaking on the problems in the petroleum industry, said the principal problem lay in the difficulties of adjustment and reconciliation to conservation.

Legitimate business desires stability rather than waves of prosperity and depression, he said, and to this end fuller co-operation in industry was needed plus such co-ordination with the government as could be helpful.

State Regulations Matthew E. Sloan, president of the New York Edison Company, said: "While the greatest development of electric utilities has come about in a period of state regulation, regulation, Federal or state, if carried to extremes is likely to retard not only proper utility expansion but all other lines of industry and business."

"Now we are told that state regulation has broken down and must be supplemented by Federal regulation. State regulation has broken down or failed. On the contrary, in my opinion, it has proved to be one of the best examples in our entire governmental structure of how capably a public agency, as free as is humanly possible from political control, can deal with important, complicated and highly technical matters."

He said continued state regulation would insure a steady, progressive movement in the utility field, but "the demand for government ownership and operation, the demand for fanciful and complicated regulation will throttle it."

RAIN IS NEEDED IN MANY STATES Washington, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Drought conditions were reported today by the Department of Agriculture to have continued generally over the middle Atlantic area during the past week, with additional rain needed in the northeast.

In the Ohio valley, water for livestock and domestic purposes was still scarce. In parts of Kentucky and Ohio the scarcity constituted a serious problem.

At the same time, generous rains were reported to have relieved conditions in New Jersey and southeastern Pennsylvania while beneficial amounts were helpful in New York and New England, with moderate falls in parts of Virginia and eastern North Carolina.

Precipitation for the week was rather widely distributed, but was mostly light to moderate.

"The abnormally cold weather, with hard freezes in much of the north," the report continued, "did more or less damage to late gardens and trucks over the northern half of the country, but staple crops were generally matured and out of danger."

"Considerable loss of undug potatoes was reported from the northern great plains, as well as some damage to apples in the upper Mississippi valley."

BOY HANGS HIMSELF South Paris, Me., Oct. 23.—(AP)—The body of Stanley W. Ripley, 14, was found hanging from a tree at the rear of his home today.

COLD CATCHES HIKER WITHOUT UNDERWEAR

Manchester Lives Up to Hospitality Reputation and Provides Stranger With Clothing

A native of Maine far away from home and having a tough time getting back to his native land, was given a helping hand here yesterday. The stranger was on foot, "bumming" his way with hitch-hikes wherever possible, but when he struck Manchester his clothing was as shabby as it was short.

Upon the advice of a Herald reporter the man went to the office of Miss Jessie M. Reynolds, social welfare worker. He informed her that he was out of funds and in need of a suit of underwear.

There was but one suit in the collection of second hand clothing and this looked like a perfect fit, for the tall and angular stranger. The old nobs hid the stranger to try it on; that if it fitted it was his for the asking.

A few minutes later the stranger came out of the men's dressing room, a sad and dejected look on his face. The suit was plenty long enough, but it refused to button, he said. One of the town officials heard of the man's troubles and gave him enough money to purchase a new suit which he did and was shortly on his way to the Pine Tree state.

PORTUGAL'S EX-PREMIER IS AGAIN IN TROUBLE

Lisbon, Oct. 23.—(AP)—An official note today said that trouble had been caused in the Azores recently by Cunha Leal, former premier of Portugal and governor of the African Colony of Angola, who departed to the Azores because of agitation against the dictatorship.

The government statement said Leal had attempted to foment trouble among the other political deportees in the Azores and also planned to escape on a steamer called at Ponta Delgada October 11.

When the police learned of his plans and ordered him to surrender, Leal was said to have locked himself in a hotel room. The police broke in and placed the former official in the St. Braz fortress. At the same time a group of other deportees demonstrated in front of the hotel but were dispersed without violence.

FED PLANES CONTROL SITUATION IN BRAZIL

Rio De Janeiro, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Federal authorities today asserted that the government air forces were dominating the situation over rebel territory and were making constant flights into the interior of the State of Parana to map the insurgent positions.

A communique said the insurgents made two attempts to cross the Senges river near Itarare, Parana, but had been repulsed each time. Federal airplanes helped to drive back the rebels.

Government troops from several points were stated to have joined forces at Itajuba in the southern part of the state of Minas Geraes, constituting a strong army which is now advancing on the insurgents.

Under the terms of a presidential decree extending the business holiday to November 30 all banks were opened today doing usual business for the first time in several weeks. The bank of Brazil alone was permitted to deal in exportation.

ENTOMOLOGISTS TO MEET New Haven, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Entomologists working in Connecticut will meet October 31 in the old Senate chamber in Hartford for their seventh annual conference.

FOUR FLEE FLAMES Bridgeport, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Four persons were forced to flee from their homes in night clothes and property damage estimated at more than $10,000 was caused as the result of two fires which broke out almost at the same time this morning in a home at 47 Butler street.

DOUGAN MAKES RAPID RECOVERY FROM HURTS

Will Be Able to Return to His Business Shortly—To Take No Action Against Driver

It is only a question of time before William Dougan, head of the Dougan Dye Works on Harrison street, will be able to return to his place of business. His complete recovery is now regarded as only a matter of a short time.

Mr. Dougan has returned to his home on 14 Linden street from the Memorial Hospital Tuesday afternoon, and when The Herald called today to inquire as to his condition, none other than Mr. Dougan himself answered the telephone.

In another week's time, he said he thought he would be able to go back to his work. The wounds resulting from the automobile accident have healed very satisfactorily, Mr. Dougan said and all he needs now is a little more recuperative rest.

Mr. Dougan is able to walk about the house or outside a bit, but after a distance of a hundred yards or so, he is tired. His right leg bothers him most now, the limb having been badly wrenched in the accident. No bones were broken, he said.

Mr. Dougan said that he was struck by a packed automobile talking to the driver, William D. Page of 15 Franklin street.

Mr. Page's car ran out of gasoline and he called Dougan for assistance. The car which struck Dougan was operated by Miss Kathryn S. Newton, of 218 Collins street, Hartford. The accident occurred on East Center street.

Mr. Dougan said that no charge would be brought against Miss Newton. She carried accident insurance and it is expected that the insurance company will pay for the hospital expenses Mr. Dougan incurred.

NEED OF HOSPITALS TO TREAT DIABETES Minneapolis, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Dr. E. P. Joslin of Harvard University today proposed establishment of ten endowed hospitals in medical centers to serve as centers for the treatment of diabetes.

Private endowment of approximately $10,000,000 would be necessary to carry out the plan, Dr. Joslin told delegates to the International Medical Assembly. He suggested the hospitals be established in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, New Orleans, Chicago, Cleveland, Minneapolis, St. Louis and San Francisco.

Diabetes required the highly specialized treatment and care which these hospitals would be especially equipped to provide, Dr. Joslin said. Success in treating diabetes, the discovery of insulin, and other factors, have resulted in making the profession of treating the ailment more lucrative, he said. As a result there were more sufferers from diabetes at a given period than ever before, while the possibilities of extending their life span had greatly increased, Dr. Joslin said.

"Indirectly every diabetic under treatment would be benefited," Dr. Joslin said in advocating his plan. "It would give every physician the proper facilities for treating patients. The country doctor should have these facilities because at present they do not have the proper opportunity to obtain results for their patients."

OPERA STAR SHAKEN UP Birmingham, Eng., Oct. 23.—(AP)—A young lady shaken up when her car overturned last night. Mme. Amelita Galli Curci, the famous soprano insisted on keeping a concert engagement tonight.

Her automobile bearing among others herself and her husband Homer Samuels, was traveling to Kings Norton when it swerved to avoid a collision with another car and the chauffeur lost control, driving it into a ditch where it turned over.

Every member of the party was badly shaken up and bruised but none was seriously injured.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 23.

SCRAP THE HOOEY

Granting, as most people will, that at least a small part of the business depression is psychological, perhaps it would be just as well to put in reverse gear some of the psychological accompaniments of the late lamented boom that caused all the trouble. Referring, at this particular moment, to the verbal flub-dub and hoey, otherwise tripe, out of which the said late lamented was largely constructed.

It gives us, for example, an active main in the neck to see featured as the leading news article in a Connecticut morning newspaper a speech made to a gathering of business men and bearing the sickeningly reminiscent title, "Selling New England to the United States."

One could swallow the unintelligent slang—and there never was a stupider thing than the persistent misapplication of that word "sell" which buckshotted out language for ten weary years—if it were not that it was so conspicuously linked up with the vast mass of unbecoming and foolishness from which were developed the crazy bull market and the mountain of industrial froth that was its twin.

Hardly anybody has the slightest faith—and no sensible person has any desire—that we shall return again to the same state of affairs in this country that preceded the blowing up of the bubble. Then why on earth should sensible men continue to blow through the same old tube the same old gas that filled the bubble up?

Everybody knows that when we experience a revival of business it is not going to be along the old-lines of superheated salesmanship and forty-volume inflation. We are through with that period for the rest of our lives. Business of all kinds is going to be done on its merits and not on a basis of gaseous intoxication. The bass drum and the calthumpianade are going to be excess baggage and so treated.

That being the case would it not be admirable psychology, in order to get the unhappy memories of the late disappointment out of our minds, to rid the business vocabulary of the nation of all those trite and usually pointless terms which are so intimately associated with the silly season preceding the grand bust-up.

The language was greasy with them. "In conference" the young man was urged to "sell himself" to the "personnel" director. In "class" the sales force was filled with "pep" and instructed in overcoming "sales resistance"—a slushy term meaning that the other fellow didn't want the goods. "Graphs" displayed by "efficiency men" showed the boss how to keep the business out of "the red." The head of the concern became a pair of initials. Everything must be "bigger and better" and everybody must be made clothes—or coffin—"conscious."

Business concerns that are planning for a new deal could do a good deal worse than to start off by sweeping all this hokum out of their establishments. There is scarcely one of the stock phrases born of the artificial boom period that was not the invention of a nit-wit to start with. There is a solid English term for every conceivable use in trade. The quicker we get back to them and the sooner we scrap the matter of the phoney rah-rah period the sooner we shall begin to restore faith in the genuineness and integrity of American business.

A little more dignity and a good deal less blarney is a real need in the tackling of the job ahead.

AS TO ALIENS

When former Congressman Loneragan told a Manchester audience the other evening that 150,000 aliens were being bootlegged into the United States annually in defiance of the law he was dealing, of course, guesswork figures, because nobody knows how many foreigners have been making their way into the country surreptitiously. Perhaps Mr. Loneragan overstated the number. Perhaps, on the other hand, he understated it. We do not know and neither does he. It is undoubtedly true that the total of undesirable coming in violation of the immigration laws is very large. It is also undoubtedly true, as Mr. Loneragan said, that they constitute one of the causes of unemployment, in spite of the fact that every one of them is to some extent or other a consumer as well as a bidder for a job.

But when Mr. Loneragan says that, if elected again to Congress, he would help to "send those fellows back home," the statement doesn't mean much. It is not from his party that the country can look for especially energetic action in keeping out illegal immigrants. His party is essentially the party of the agricultural South, which gets none of that immigration but does want to keep its Negroes as a cheap labor supply.

Southern Negroes moving to the North have found that it is the presence here of plenty of bootlegged aliens from Eastern Europe that operates more than any other cause to keep them from getting jobs. The illegal immigrant is more directly in competition with the Negro than with any other class of American labor. If it were not for him the South would lose heavily of its Negroes. And the South is perfectly aware of that fact. So that if it should be proposed to appropriate the immense sums necessary to adequately patrol the borders and keep out the aliens, the attitude of the Southern Democrats would be automatically determined. And they are the people who determine in turn the Congressional policies of the Democratic party.

Another thing Mr. Loneragan did not think it necessary or expedient to call the attention of his audience to the fact that it was a Republican administration and Congress which in 1922 put an end to the flood of immigration, up to that time perfectly legal, which if it had not been restricted would have brought in between ten and twenty million more aliens than are now here. And which has maintained ever since a supervision, through American consulates in 63 countries, which right now is holding back a million and a half would-be immigrants who would be coming here on the first steamers, despite the scarcity of employment, if it were not for Republican legislation and administration watchfulness.

PROF. FISHER AGAIN

The Hartford Courant, discussing the discovery of Professor Irving Fisher of Yale that the amount of liquor now being consumed in the United States is not more than 20 per cent, and probably not more than 10 per cent, of the amount consumed before prohibition, points out that if Professor Fisher is no nearer right in this matter than he was in his stock market predictions in September, 1929, "we can pin very little faith on what he says about the extent of drinking."

We congratulate the Courant on this measure of evaluation of the utterances of the New Haven oracle. By and by perhaps the Courant will reach the point where, in this relation, The Herald arrived long ago. It is some years since, not hastily but after due reflection, we reached the settled conclusion that Professor Fisher had never once in his life been right about anything—and we had the audacity to say so. Being jealous of a reputation for fairness we have been on the lookout lest there might be occasion to amend that belief, which we should not like to overlook. Up to yet no such occasion has arisen.

STATE HOSPITALS

There is no man in Connecticut whose word carries greater weight with those who know him—and these number thousands—than that of Samuel R. Spencer, of Suffield, treasurer of the state of Connecticut and candidate for lieutenant-governor on the Republican ticket. Mr. Spencer is well known to have peculiarly strict ideas of honor and to be quite above stretching a truth or presenting a fact under a slant light calculated to give a false impression of it.

Therefore, when Mr. Spencer, in a political address at New Haven on Tuesday sketched the course of the administration in the matter of in-state care for the ill in body and mind, his statements, not only with respect to recent and present plans, can be accepted as positively representing the acts and purposes of the state government as they have been proceeding right along—not as a hastily invented offset to Dean Cross' indefinite charge of negligence of the tuberculosis.

Four years ago, Mr. Spencer pointed out, a sum slightly exceeding a million and a half was set aside for the care of the tuberculous, the otherwise physically ailing and the mentally sick. Two years later this sum was more than doubled, the amount being three and a half million. And exactly in line with this humane and generous policy the budget being prepared for the approaching session of the Legislature, which is still in the rough, is being framed, despite the fact that there are liable to be extraordinary demands upon the state in view of the business depression, with a determined view to an increase in this department of expenditure to at least five million dollars.

It is to be very seriously doubted whether Dean Cross, who has been accusing the Republican party of indifference to the welfare of the sick, had previously been informed as to this set of figures. If he had been he probably would have hesitated some time before accusing the administration of being penurious in its hospitalization program. Such strides in the employment of public funds in humane activities leave little grounds for criticism. Indeed it is almost surprising that the Democrats did not decide that it would be better politics to accuse the Republicans of spending too much of the public's money on such institutions.

IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 23—Manhattan's most completely anonymous actor has been appearing nightly for some weeks now in the Broadway belt.

He is not so much as dignified by identification as Joe Spelvin. And Joe Spelvin is synonym for anonymity. It's the fake name given some actor who plays more than one part in any show. But there's an actor identified merely as "A Voice."

And, so runs the legend on Broadway, this performer is a quite famous theatrical personality hit by the recent depression and unwilling to be identified with some trivial role. A guessing contest is being started in an effort to trace this actor's identity.

At any rate, he is a "radio voice." The play is called "The Ninth Guest" and its action depends on repeated ghostly announcements from a loud-speaker. The actor never appears on the stage and he is not mentioned in the program. Burlesque, which once upon a time was considered the bad boy of the town, has suddenly become "the thing to do" in New York.

The Minsky Brothers, a couple of smart showmen with several theaters where jokes are rough and ready, now advertise in The New Yorker and ladies and gents step out of limousines in Houston street, over on the East Side, and are taken to the "roof" in a venerable elevator.

Just a couple of seasons ago, this was a spot where hard-boiled peace officers paced the aisles swinging handy night sticks and if any of the hoodlums got rough they were tapped on the soles of their shoes. Sometimes they were thrown out. Frequently the aroma was a mixture of East Side smells which had saturated into clothing and bodies. Youngsters went through the house selling "favor" boxes and peanuts and "hokey pokey ice cream." Each Saturday night was good for one old-fashioned disturbance, with some loud lousie being tossed out or some over-zealous youth being invited to leave if he didn't stop making remarks to the chorines. There are ushers now, with uniforms—and everything.

But New Yorkers must have their little vices and so, just now, it's quite "the thing" to drop down to that "oh so amusing" place—a little vulgar, sometimes... but a good, lusty sense of low comedy. And so this must be added to one of "the places to go"—if that's what you happen to be looking for.

Smart lads, those Minskys! Four of them—Abe, Bill, Morton and Herb. Their chief spot wears the title of National Winter Garden and it's on the sixth floor of a building which looks out toward the push-cart belt of the old Ghetto. And a touch time they had "civilizing this spot" which they now refer to as "the Folies Bergere of Manhattan."

It took a couple of college degrees to get them that way and to achieve the end. Herb came home from Columbia with a full L.L. D. and one of the others had a Ph. D. And it's rather amusing that a couple of degree boys from the colleges should be cast in the role of burlesque operators.

They all started in the movie business, but the first ten or twenty shows. It didn't go so well, so they decided to try burlesque every other day, using the old Union Square theater as a tryout place. Then they got a place in the Bronx and the National Winter Garden. It wasn't long before they had a small chain of houses.

They have their own companies and produce their own shows—and it's so high-toned now, no one would ever believe

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Oct. 23.—There is still some suspicion in the minds of the more imaginative that spies have been trying to tap the telephone wires leading into Senator Nye's office, but the telephone company investigator says it was mere insulation was found to be torn off the wires and after all the charges of wire-tapping and espionage that had grown out of Nye's investigation of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick's senatorial campaign expenses in Illinois it was hard for the discoverers to believe that the incident had no sinister significance.

Nevertheless, there are mice running around in offices of both the Capitol and the Senate and House office buildings and many traps have been set. The record for most mice caught appears now to be held by Senator Howell of Nebraska, whose traps have caught four. Here in Washington if it's not one kind of a pest that afflicts us it's another. A few weeks ago every one was stretching his ears for the news that there were several billion strange moths. A year ago an invasion of starlings had the whole town swearing and worrying. Perhaps you remember the cockroaches which were so thick on Capitol Hill as to cause Senator Keays of New Hampshire to rise on the Senate floor and demand relief because they were eating the bindings of his books.

Senator John Marshall Robinson, campaigning for reelection in Kentucky, returned the other day to his old home at Pig Misery on Pity Creek in Bracken county. They gave him a barbecue—which doubtless caused more pig misery than ever—and school girls strewed flowers in his path.

HERE'S TO YOUR HEALTH
 By Dr. FRANK MCCOY
 AUTHOR OF "THE FAST WAY TO HEALTH"

ASTHMA IS CURABLE

Although the cure is much slower than if the initial fast is used. The patient should be encouraged at the same time to develop a strong movable diaphragm.

If much bronchial mucus is present, the cure will be slower, but not the less sure, and it seems that advanced cases often yield as readily as those which are just beginning. It is necessary to restrict the use of starches in the diet and also to avoid gas forming foods or combinations.

I will be pleased to send anyone who is interested complete instructions regarding the dietetic treatment of asthma if he will write to me in care of this newspaper, enclosing a large, self-addressed stamped envelope.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Dirt-eating)
 Question: M. J. writes: "I have a child two years old who eats clay or other dirt at every opportunity. What makes a child do this, and how may I stop him?"
 Answer: This dirt-eating practice is probably only a habit which the child gets into because he is not kept sufficiently interested in healthful playing. Some claim that it is because the child craves certain foods containing mineral and not getting enough of these foods acquires the instinctive desire to eat dirt. My observation is that this is not usually true, but that the dirt-eating habit or the habit of putting objects into the mouth is simply a bad habit of a poorly-trained child.

(Dry Cereals)
 Question: Reader asks: "Do you recommend the dry, ready-to-eat breakfast foods now on the market, such as corn flakes, etc.?"
 Answer: When these breakfast foods are re-toasted they form an excellent dextrinized article of food and may be used freely with milk or cream except by those who have a tendency to catarrh, in which case it would be best to use only a small amount of butter. Milk and cream are to be avoided by catarrh sufferers on account of their mucus-forming elements.

(Left Arm Aches)
 Question: G. F. writes: "During the night I am awakened by my left arm aching dreadfully and this ache remains until morning. Could it be caused from poor circulation or lack of exercise, or is it all in our eating?"
 Answer: Yes, the aching in your left arm may come from poor circulation, lack of exercise, or from over-eating. When such aches come only in the left arm, one must be suspicious of angina pectoris, which is a serious functional disorder affecting the heart and its arteries.

WOMAN ON JURY WEEPS AS SHE SAYS GUILTY

Peterson, N. J., Oct. 23.—(AP)—A jury, eight members of which were women, found Bonaventuro Nardella, 42 years old, guilty of murder in the first degree today in the killing of his wife.

The state charged that Nardella attacked his wife Lucia in their home, last August 2, with a baseball bat, a shovel and an axe, beating and hacking her to death and buried the body under a pile of coal in the cellar. He was arrested three days later at the home of relatives in Manlius, N. Y.

Mrs. Elizabeth Haeffel, foreman of the jury, burst into tears as she pronounced the word "guilty."

Judge William B. Harley before whom the trial was conducted asked her if she meant guilty of murder in the first degree and she nodded.

The verdict, without a recommendation of mercy, carries a mandatory death sentence. Nardella was brought to the jail at 8 a. m. to hear the verdict.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Troop 3 met at the Center Church Tuesday night with 32 Scouts and leaders present. Preliminary games were run off by Harvey Gould. The flag ceremony opened the meeting, followed by patrol meetings in which each patrol either practiced some main test or patrol procedure. Several members of the Lion Patrol passed compass. David McComb and Irwin then worked with the tenderfoot and recruits.

Contest events were next run off in which the Viking Patrol was winner. A campfire scene was then held at which announcements were made. The Lions Patrol is doing its good turn by washing the letters on the signboard at the rear of the church. Bodies Badly Battered Are Found On a Fire in Arkansas Swamp.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 23.—(AP)—The battered and burned bodies of two North Carolina high school students lay today in a morgue, apparently victims of assassins who beat them severely and placed them on a pyre formed by embers of an Arkansas swamp camp fire.

nowhere to be found, evidently having taken refuge in the woods. Preliminary reports to local headquarters indicated the Helen was carrying a valuable cargo of liquor, much of which had been strewn about the beach, some probably having been dislodged by the shock of the grounding and some thrown out by the crew.

Liquor Salvaged Today patrol boat Eagle was sent from this place to salvage liquor from the beach and to float the speed boat. It was considered probable that the Helen would have to be lightened before she could be pulled clear.

Orders were for the speed boat and her cargo to be brought here, where an examination of the craft or not her bottom was damaged in the grounding. The boat and her cargo will then be taken to New York to be surrendered to customs officials.

JOHNSON MAKES RULING ON ELECTRIC PROBLEMS

Hartford, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Separate ballots and ballot boxes, and separate tabulation of returns must be used in the regular and special elections in the Fifth Congressional District, First Assistant District Attorney Raymond Johnson ruled today, replying to the query of the secretary of state on Oct. 14.

Approving the form of the ballot submitted to him by the secretary of state, Mr. Johnson explained: "While both elections are to be held at the same time and place, it must be remembered they are two separate and distinct elections, one being a regular biennial state election, and the other a special election to elect a Congressman for the Fifth Congressional district for the unexpired term."

merely educated, with a common school instruction, Hitler made his daily bread as a house painter. Mussolini was converted into a man of action by the sad condition of his country, torn by political factions. He was slipping down hill. He inducted Fascism and made his triumphal march upon Rome, won the throw of the dice, and has been in power ever since. No such home reasons best known to himself, he did not rattle his political fortunes in his native Austria, but in Germany of which he is not yet even a citizen and therefore, not eligible as an office-holder.

Now whatever misfortunes may have hit Germany in a business way, the republican statesmen who guided her destinies during the past ten years did great things. They wrote the republican constitution of Weimar; they restored orderly life out of the revolutionary chaos that followed the end of the war; they stabilized the currency after its enormous and unpopulated of the Ruhr; they got them out of the Rhineland; they secured Germany's entry into the League of Nations as a recognized great power.

Borrowed Mussolini's Ideas When Hitler set to work on his march to power he developed no new ideas. He took them ready-made. The Fascists of Italy wore black shirts, so he clothed his men with brown shirts. Mussolini chose as emblem of his party the old Roman fasces, the bundle of rods with the axe in the middle, carried by the lictor before the magistrate. Hitler chose the swastika cross, the favorite insignia of the anti-Semitic youths of German universities. The Italian Fascists originated the famous extended arm salute. Hitler took the salute from the Catholic Centre party raa neck and neck. In the district around once royalist Potsdam; in the Dresden, Leipzig and Chemnitz industrial districts the Socialists topped the poll. In Cologne, in Coblenz, Bavaria, Wurttemberg and Baden the Catholic Centre led all the rest, and in the great free seaport city of Hamburg once more the Socialists topped the voting. Mussolini conquered a whole country. Hitler acquired a big vote, but a very large part of the country has repudiated him, his doctrines and his candidates—so far.

Is Anti-Semitic In exterior politics he has captured the minds of the hot-headed unthinking youths and of the old women by loudly proclaiming that he will free Germany from the "enslavement" of the Treaty of Versailles and the Young reparation plan. Just how he would meet a French army if he tried to make scraps of paper of these international agreements, he has failed to make clear.

As to his interior politics it may be summed up in three words: "Blame the Jews!" Who influenced the governors of Germany to sign the Versailles Treaty and the Young Plan? Hitler answers: the Jews. Who is responsible for business depression and unemployment? Hitler makes the same answer. He is heavy on many things but in this matter he is clear: German Jews are to be deprived of their rights of citizenship, with no vote and no ability to hold office. Those who have come into the country since 1914 are to be booted out. They are not to own, edit or write German newspapers, Jewish finance, whatever that may mean, is to be expropriated.

Theodore Wolff, famous editor of the powerful Berliner Tageblatt, not long ago had an interview with Mussolini in which, with a squint at what was going on in Germany, he dryly said:

Reputed by Germany "Fascism is an Italian thing. It is not a matter of export. And it has nothing to do with anti-Semitism." Finally, when Mussolini struck, he found the bulk of the nation behind him. Even with his astounding success in the Reichstag elections of September 14 last, Hitler can only count six and a half million voters in a poll of over 27 millions. His army of followers is surpassed by the 8,870,016 who voted the Socialist ticket and approached by the wild men of the left, the Communists, who polled 4,587,708. In Berlin the Communists topped the poll. In the Communist industrial district the Communist and the Catholic Centre party ran neck and neck. In the district around once royalist Potsdam; in the Dresden, Leipzig and Chemnitz industrial districts the Socialists topped the poll. In Cologne, in Coblenz, Bavaria, Wurttemberg and Baden the Catholic Centre led all the rest, and in the great free seaport city of Hamburg once more the Socialists topped the voting. Mussolini conquered a whole country. Hitler acquired a big vote, but a very large part of the country has repudiated him, his doctrines and his candidates—so far.

paign. He has been secretary to the President's commission on economic changes and formerly was secretary of the United States Coal Commission.

Other Assistants John M. Gries, public instruction expert of the Commerce Department, also will assist Woods in his work. As soon as possible Colonel Woods plans to designate state committees on unemployment and committees to deal with the subject in the various industries.

Mayor James J. Curley, of Boston, said, after a conference with the President, that Massachusetts had set up a group of presidents of the state's educational institutions and economic professors to study unemployment and they had recommended a Federal economic board be set up to work out a long time program looking to the elimination or migration of economic depression.

SIGHT OF CASUALTIES PROVES WAR IS ON

Rio De Janeiro, Brazil, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The arrival of the first casualties from the southern front is bringing home to residents of this capital the fact that a bloody civil war actually is being fought in every direction just a few hundred miles away.

The banks passed their first day under the new opening order of President Washington Luis, functioning normally as before their 15 day "holiday" with the exception that they were not allowed to issue bills of exchange, this privilege being reserved for the Banco Do Brasil. The legal rate of the milreis was fixed at 9.5 to the dollar.

The government issued several decrees today which will aid in plans for putting down the rebellion. The prolongation of the business holiday until November 30, which was announced earlier this week, was made official by presidential proclamation, while the minister of agriculture issued a decree prohibiting the export of merchandise of foodstuffs from the capital without special permission.

STEAL $125,000 IN GEMS

New York, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Daring thieves who invaded the downtown "diamond market" today snatched platinum and upset diamonds valued at $125,000 from the safe of the jewelry firm of Segman & Abrahams at 102 Fulton street, just as William Segman opened the vaults for the day.

Segman told police he was alone in his office and had just opened the safe when he felt the muzzle of a revolver against his neck. His captor led him to an adjoining room and there bound him to a radiator.

VICE RING MADE MILLION A YEAR

Most Sensational of All Scandals is Being Unearthed in New York City.

New York, Oct. 23.—(AP)—A weakened fellow who limps heavily on a stout cane was taken out of the back way today from the quarters where the Appellate Court is investigating the existence of a "vice ring" whose members are charged with having collected a million a year from women arrested on vice charges.

He is called "The Dove," a translation of his German name, and for fifteen years he has been a "stool pigeon" for the police vice squad. Among other things, Isidore Kresel, special counsel to the investigation, is investigating a charge that "The Dove" built up a fortune of half a million dollars during his career as an "undercover" vice agent.

These charges are by far the most sensational which have developed since the Appellate Court ordered a general investigation by Mr. Kresel into Magistrates Courts of Manhattan and the Bronx, but the special counsel has declined to comment on this phase of his work beyond the assertion that magistrates appear to have been involved in the alleged ring's operations.

Specifically, Mr. Kresel's associates said, it is charged that the ring, through police, "fixers" and bondsmen trumped up charges against innocent women and collected "at least several millions a year" in bonds and "fixing" fees.

ASKS TO SEE FATHER

New Britain, Oct. 23.—(AP)—A few hours before she died at New Britain General hospital today, Mary Gajewski, 12, begged to see her father who left his home in this city last Sunday and who has not been seen by his family since. He was foreman of a gang employed repairing roads for the state highway department. It is said when he left home he did not reveal his destination but said he would return within a few days.

SHAMROCK ARRIVES

Southampton, England, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Nine Scandinavian-American canoes, who arrived in the crew of Sir Thomas Lipton's yacht Shamrock V for the return trip across the Atlantic following the Shamrock V's defeat in the America's Cup races, were happy today in the knowledge that they were one lengthy step nearer their ancestral homes.

The men said they agreed to strip aboard the yacht because they wished to visit relatives in the homeland and this seemed the cheapest way of doing it. They gave praise to the weathering qualities of the Shamrock, which arrived here yesterday from America, and said the Englishmen and Americans aboard formed a happy crew.

WALCOTT URGES THAT ALL VOTE

U. S. Senator Asks That Candidates Be Studied and All Cast Ballots.

Hartford, Oct. 23.—A plea to every Connecticut citizen to vote on election day was made last night by United States Senator Frederic C. Walcott. The Senator briefly summarized Republican financial, departmental and humanitarian accomplishments in the state, and asked that the policies of the state be continued in the hands of "such able administrators as have directed them so effectively for the last fifteen years."

His speech, in part, follows: "I am directing myself to the voters of Connecticut, men and women, both young and old. Some are casting their ballots for the first time, some for the last time. "This commonwealth of ours, whose blessings we all share, is the oldest and the most successful government by popular representation in the world. And because it is a purely representative form of government, all of our lawmakers, Senators and Representatives in both the Federal and the state governments, are chosen by popular vote. All of the chief executives of the Federal Government and the forty-eight states are also elected by popular ballot."

"The state administration recognizes the necessity of additional accommodations for the care and treatment of tuberculosis. Money was appropriated by the last General Assembly for two new buildings. More Hospitals. "The state administration recognizes the necessity of additional accommodations for the care and treatment of tuberculosis. to the Republican party for wise administration, sound economic and progressive legislation for the benefit of the people of Connecticut, in sickness and in health; then let us, by all means, retain Republican leaders in order that these same wise policies may continue to flourish in the hands of such able administrators as have directed them so effectively for the last fifteen years.

"It is no time to swap horses. It is a dangerous time to experiment with changes for we are in the midst of an economic depression which is world-wide and much more acute in other countries than in ours. There is no place for croakers or faint hearts. It is going to take courage, optimism, and common sense to get back to normal quickly, but faith in the future, with the right men in office, will keep the Ship of State from rocking and eventually guide it to a safe port. "Prophecies are vain things, and often misleading, but I have such unbounded faith in the courage and common sense of the American people and their ability to choose wise leaders who will prove equal to every task, that I am confident that we shall progress to new and higher levels of prosperity in this country. "Remember this: Study the candidates of both sides and vote. If all the voters of Connecticut will cast their ballots on November fourth, no one can complain of the results. We beseech you to vote."

Advance Guards Thrust and Counters Interest to Local Soldiers

Company G will complete its range work. The men of the company will assemble at the Armory Saturday morning at 8 o'clock and will be divided into two groups. One group will proceed by motor transportation to Willimantic where arrangements have been made to use the rifle range of Company C. The other group will motor to Storrs and will use the rifle range of the Connecticut Agricultural College, and which is used by the military students there. Funds have been provided and those who drive their cars will receive compensation to cover cost of operating same. Members of the company who absent themselves from this formation without permission will be fined five dollars. Orders have been received relative to the dedication services and parade in Meriden, Saturday, Nov. 8. The local unit will leave the Armory at 11:45 a. m. and will travel to Meriden in Connecticut Company buses. The parade will get under way at 1:30 p. m. After the parade entertainment will be provided by committees appointed to look after same.

Private Saimond of Company G is a patient in the Memorial hospital. He was playing football recently and in one of the scrimmages his back was badly wrenched. He suffered considerable pain, but is now convalescing and expects to sit up in a few days. He would appreciate visits from his buddies in the company.

Former Corporal Daniel McCarthy has re-enlisted in Company G. Dan was discharged some months ago and at that time stated he was done soldiering. However, the urge to be with the boys was stronger than Dan's resolution and now he is back in uniform again. Dan is a good soldier and is more than welcome.

Next Monday's drill being the last held this month, will be "dress drill." The men of Company G will wear white shirts and white collars instead of the O. D. shirt. They will also wear their new Melton uniforms. Arms and equipment will be thoroughly inspected after which drill and review will be held. Bugler Ferrell has received a very complimentary letter from Captain Liebie of Company M for turning out Sunday, October 13 and assisting at Company M's field day at Camp Ferry, Marlborough. The popular bugler of G is now welcome at any future function put on by Company M. Paul Feckard, a local boy, is a member of Company M. and it was Paul who told Captain Liebie of the accomplished musician who is bugler of Company G, hence the invitation from the Captain to Private Ferrell.

A number of promotions are scheduled for the most efficient men of Company G. It is expected an announcement will be made on or about November 1. Only those men who attend drills regularly and who are neat and soldierly will receive the coveted stripes. Non-commissioned officers to be promoted to the next higher grade must attend non-coms school every Sunday and must also possess those qualities of leadership which will command the respect of the men under them.

Howitzer Company Bugler Andrew Davis of the Howitzer Company has gone to Northampton, Mass., to work in a silk mill. Corporal "Eddie" Doran of the sixth squad has been promoted to Sergeant and assigned to the second platoon. Sergeant Ray Finn has been transferred to the first platoon. Private 1st class Anthony Mozzier has been promoted to Corporal and assigned in command of the trench mortar squad of the first platoon. Several other vacancies in the non-commissioned grades will be filled shortly. A number of the privates are attending non-com school and "bucking" for the promotion. An Atwater-Kent radio has been installed in the company social room and is the center of a group of listeners every evening. The men who were present for pistol practice signed the payroll Tuesday night. The ten weeks' school for non-commissioned officers opened last night at the State Armory in Hartford. The group from the Howitzer company consisted of Sergeants Finn and Doran, Corporals Bober, Vitullo and Korchi. Orders have been received for the parade to be held in Meriden, Saturday, November 8. The local companies will leave the Armory, here, at 11:45 a. m., going to Meriden by bus. After the parade refreshments will be served. The formation will count as a drill. The close order drill contest was won last night by the first squad under the leadership of Corporal Bober. The squad attendance competition to date is as follows: Squad Leader Percentage 5 Vitullo 96.8 1 Bober 90.6 3 Mozzier 89.0 4 Phaneuf 88.8 6 Korchi 79.8 2 Minor 64.8

JEWIS SAY BRITAIN BROKE ITS PROMISE. Chicago, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Judge Harry M. Fisher, president of the Zionist organization in America, said in a statement today that the new Palestine policy of Great Britain was a "betrayal of its mandate from the League of Nations." "Jewry will continue to fight for the establishment of the Jewish homeland in the Holy Land," Fisher said, and he predicted that "with the help of the nations constituting the league, the creative force now in operation in Palestine will continue." "Before the Jews returned to the cradle of their race, said the Zionist president, "it had been so neglected that nothing but bare rock remained." The land in the past ten years has been restored to fertility, disease conquered and modern methods of farming and modern modes of living introduced, he said. British announcement of restriction of Jewish immigration to Palestine has been met with indignation. Fisher said, amounted to a "breaking of Britain's promises."

FRANCE DENIES REPORT OF A U. S. MORATORIUM. Paris, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Henri Berenger, negotiator for the Franco-American debt settlement, today warned Frenchmen that they should give no credence to reports that the United States would grant a moratorium on the war debts. In an article written for the provincial press, Senator Berenger says that such reports betray ignorance of conditions in America and of the American attitude. France, he emphasizes, has no need for revision of the debts. Happily, he declares, France arranged the American debt settlement in 1926, since after the financial difficulties of 1928 and 1930 and the difficulties in England the government could hardly have obtained such favorable conditions. "France expects that all countries shall honor their signatures," he said, "just as France has honored hers. She will permit no interference in international contracts which menaces the stability of peace."

BALDWIN SCORES BRITAIN'S STAND

Says That Position on Jewish Problem in Palestine Will Arouse the World.

London, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Stanley Baldwin, sir Austen Chamberlain, and Colonel L. C. S. Amery in a letter to the London Times today severely criticize the MacDonald ministry's new policy toward Palestine as advanced in a statement of Lord Passfield, secretary of state for the colonies Monday.

The letter of the three men, two of whom are the leading figures in the British conservative party opposition, concludes:

"It is only too evident that the effect of the White paper upon public opinion of the American Jewry and elsewhere is to create a feeling of distrust in British good faith which is the most precious asset of our foreign imperial policy."

The letter pays high tribute to Dr. Chaim Weizmann, who has resigned his presidency of both the Jewish Agency and the Zionist movement in protest at British adoption of a policy which is deemed by his followers to do away with the project of making Palestine a national home for Jews and puts a ban on immigration.

The outright opposition of the conservative leaders, who held the posts of premier, foreign minister and minister of the colonies in the last government, coming at a time when a new general election threatens, may prove an important factor in political developments of the next few weeks.

The signatories say they are profoundly conscious of the two-fold obligation toward the Arabs as well as the Jews, which was embodied in the mandate and has provided the basis of the policy since pursued by every British government in turn.

"Without giving either Jewish or Arab opinion an opportunity to express itself or allowing the voice of the British Parliament to be heard, they have laid down a policy of so definitely negative a character that it appears to us to conflict not only with the insistence of the League of Nations but with the contrary to the intention of the mandate if the Jewish National Home was crystallized at its present stage of development, but with the whole spirit of the Balfour declaration and of the statements made by successive governments in the last twelve years.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Adventure enters the life of CELIA MITCHELL, 17, when she learns the father she has supposed dead is alive and wealthy. She leaves her unpretentious home in Baltimore to live in New York with her father, JOHN MITCHELL, and her aristocratic grandmother.

MARGARET ROGERS, Celia's mother, is now a widow, having divorced Mitchell and remarried later. BARNEY SHIELDS, young newspaper photographer, is in love with the girl and before leaving Baltimore Celia promised to be loyal to his love. Mitchell asks EVELYN PARSONS, beautiful widow, to introduce the girl to young people. Mrs. Parsons agrees, considering Celia means to win Mitchell's affections though she is jealous and at once begins scheming to get rid of the girl.

She introduces Celia to TOD JORDAN, fascinating but of dubious character, and does all she can to encourage this match. LISI DUNCAN, socially prominent, becomes Celia's loyal friend. Mitchell's Jordan is paying his daughter attentions and forbids her to see him. Celia offends her grandmother and the elderly Mrs. Mitchell feigns illness and departs for a rest. The girl goes to Mrs. Parsons' long island home for a lengthy visit. Jordan calls there frequently.

Celia visits the Mitchell home in the city and tries to learn from MARTHA, a trusted servant, why her parents, John and Margaret Mitchell, separated. This attempt is unsuccessful. Meanwhile, Mrs. Parsons lunches with Mitchell and he tells her he has been investigating Jordan's past.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXVI
John Mitchell rested one arm on the table. He eyed his companion as he spoke slowly.

"The man's a gambler," he said. "Works in the fashionable resorts, trans-Atlantic liners and any place he's likely to find real cash. I understand he has a number of men and women of high social rank among his acquaintances—particularly women. Must be rather a slick character!"

Evelyn Parsons was leaning forward. She looked astonished.

"Oh, John, how terrible! Imagine Celia becoming interested in such a—such an impostor!"

"Well, I can thank you for helping me break up that affair. Getting her out at your home was what did it. She's so busy now with tennis and football around the garden and getting a good healthy tan she hasn't any time left for sentimental nonsense. Of course, I don't blame the child. She doesn't know anything about the world."

"But I think this is dreadful!" Evelyn persisted. "How did you find out about this, John?"

"Through an agency. After the night of her birthday party I was worried. Wanted to know just how I made an investigation. The thing took quite a little time. Jordan is shrewd enough so that he's only once gotten into legal entanglements. The people he fleeces, you understand, aren't the sort who care to rush into court or the newspapers. You're sure he really is as bad as you say?"

"My information is authentic. No question about it."

"But how—where did Celia come to know such a man?"

"He's the one who pulled her out of the water that time she nearly drowned at the Boat Club. Must say I have to give him credit for that. You know it seems to me—er—seems to me Celia said before that she met him at your home. Could that be right, Evelyn?"

"At my home? Oh, no, John, you must be mistaken. Celia couldn't have said that. Why—ridiculous!" Mitchell nodded.

"Probably my mistake," he said. "I don't remember very clearly. Well, now that I know this man for what he is, you can believe me I feel lucky to have things turn out as they have. Yes, sir, getting her into the country is what did it. Something else to thank you for, too."

Evelyn Parsons' glance was meaningful.

"If I've helped, I'm glad, but we did it together, John."

"You're a wonderful helper!" Evelyn said. Mitchell did not speak. After a few moments the woman's stare gave out and she said earnestly, "I feel that I can talk to you as to no one else. There's a little confession I ought to make. Then perhaps you'll see what this summer has meant to me."

There was an instant's pause and then Evelyn continued:

"Three months ago when I returned from Paris I was a broken-hearted woman. You know the happiness that Dwight and I—God bless him!—had always known. Never a cross word between us in 20 years. You understand what his passing meant to me."

She touched a handkerchief daily to her eye before going on. "I felt so alone! There was no one to whom I could turn. In desperation I left everything and sailed for France. Those months were miserable. I had friends, but they were abroad for pleasure. I kept to myself and mourned. Yes, it was a dreadful winter. I think I am fairly brave, John, but I have never been so unhappy!"

"My dear, if this hurts you, don't go on."

"But I must, John. I want you to understand. Besides telling it to you—doesn't hurt. It helps! After I came back to New York I made a list of my friends. I told myself that what was past and I must carry on. There were business affairs to tend to. Then you came to me—with Celia."

Evelyn paused dramatically.

"I see me everything has been different. I felt that here was someone who needed me. Here was something to which I could give myself. I was trying to make dear little Celia forget herself. I told myself that what was past and I must carry on. There were business affairs to tend to. Then you came to me—with Celia."

Evelyn paused dramatically.

"I see me everything has been different. I felt that here was someone who needed me. Here was something to which I could give myself. I was trying to make dear little Celia forget herself. I told myself that what was past and I must carry on. There were business affairs to tend to. Then you came to me—with Celia."

"What did you do?" she asked.

"Went in my bedroom slippers! Mother caught me coming in later, and didn't we have a pretty picnic more fun at our house!"

Celia was on her way to get the rackets.

"Come on," she said. "I'd love to play and it will cool you off—even if the sun is hot."

For two hours Lisi patiently batted balls over the net which Celia could return, and gave the beginner helpful instruction. At one o'clock Mrs. Parsons appeared to tell them luncheon was ready. Lisi accepted her invitation to remain.

While they were eating a telephone message came for Celia. She excused herself and reappeared a moment later smiling.

"It's your mother," she said. "She's coming to take me to the races, and you're going too, Lisi. I told him you would."

"Love to—but look at me!"

It was decided that one of Celia's dresses would serve in the emergency. Fortunately Lisi wore a pair of linen pumps and would not need to go in bedroom slippers.

Two hours later at the finish of a thrilling steeplechase a figure in front of her caught Celia Mitchell's eye.

"Lisi!" she stammered. "Could it be possible? The girl leaned forward."

YOUR CHILDREN

The radio man has just been giving the usual winter warning about fires.

He said that 10,000 people last year had paid the price of someone's carelessness, over a third of this number being children.

And he said that I've been preaching for years, that we always think fire won't hurt us. It is something for the neighbors to worry about. This is the greatest danger of all. When we get that feeling of security about anything in the world, then we need to look out.

Now we don't want to set up a credo of fear. That is obsolete and superstitious. But common sense and care have no dealing with fear, and a combination of both will avoid trouble where a senseless fear only courts it.

Let us see what we can sensibly do to frighten away the fire demon.

We must see that all gas fittings and pipes are perfect and throw out rubber tube connections. There is only one time to do that and that is today.

Amateur Wiring Blamed
Electricity is safer than flame, sometimes. I think there are too many amateur jobs of house-wiring—places where holes are bored through doors to pass wires through with no porcelain or other kind of protective apparatus to keep a wire from touching wood.

Electric irons need something. I don't know what, but some kind of device to make them fool proof. We don't forget our purses but we do forget our irons. One fixed law for every member of the family should be, "Disconnect when not in use—at once." This holds good for curling irons and every other type of heating device not protected by its own construction.

Gasoline and explosive cleaning fluids should be handled free dynamite. Remember that fumes travel and hunt a flame. Outside is the best place for cleaning-bees.

"The United States," says the radio man, "lost $35,000,000 in fires in 1929, caused by careless handling of cigars and cigarettes."

I cannot add to that. But the last thing anyone should do on leaving a

THIS AND THAT IN FEMININE LORE

Ernest Henry "Chinese" Wilson, Mrs. Albert Hemingway of Summit street has received from her daughter, Mrs. Charles Findlay of Allston, Mass., several clippings from Boston papers in regard to the death by accident of "Chinese" Wilson and his wife, Mrs. Ernest Henry Wilson.

Carolina club members and others will recall that the great horticulturist risked his life exploring the wildest regions of the old world for rare plants and flowers. He was nicknamed "Chinese" Wilson because of his many journeys to China.

Once in the interior of China his little caravan was nearly overwhelmed by a landslide. Mr. Wilson's leg was broken and he was carried for three days and three nights on a litter to a place where the fracture could be reduced. Ever after he walked with a limp and needed the assistance of a cane. "It's all in the game," he used to say with a smile. "Though he was hurt in this Tibet landslide he rejoiced at being able to bring back with him 10,000 bulbs of the beautiful regal lily which grows there in abundance but never until that time had been grown elsewhere. Incidentally it was six months between the time they were dug and the time they were planted in New England, but the greater number of them germinated and flourished."

Mr. Wilson in his travels abroad, had been asked to tell about his adventures Mr. Wilson modestly refused to talk. It is known, however, that on another occasion he fought the rapids of the Yangtze river in China and only by the hardest work did he manage to save not only his boat but his precious cargo of plants. He climbed some of China's sacred mountains never before seen by a white man. It was about the scientific discoveries on his trips that he would talk, and they were not always related to horticulture. For instance, in the Pacific is a group of islands where he found living descendants of a number of men from Salem, Mass., who settled there with Kanaka wives about 100 years ago. The islanders spoke good English but were a queer mixture of white, brown and yellow humanity and had "gone native."

Mr. Wilson in his travels abroad, in the depths of jungles, rushing torrents and inaccessible high places seemed to lead a charmed life, but death came swiftly and unexpectedly to his wife and himself as they were motoring along a New England road between Worcester and Leicester last Wednesday while returning from a visit with their only daughter, Muriel Primrose, of Geneva, N. Y. Their car skidded on wet leaves and plunged down a 40-foot embankment.

The double funeral at Trinity church, Boston, was attended by his associates from Arnold Arboretum of which he had been a director since 1919, by representatives of horticultural societies from all over the country. The honorary bearers and ushers were from the Massachusetts society and from among the editors of garden magazines and outstanding florists and botanists of the country.

In the profusion of floral offerings were many blossoms grown from seeds or slips which Mr. Wilson had collected in his travels or created in the arboretum. Cremation at Forest Hills followed the services at Trinity.

Mr. Wilson was only 64 years old—all was out off at the height of his career. He was born in Gloucestershire, England, educated at the Royal college and received his M. A. degree at Harvard. With all his years of travel and regular botanical work, he was a prolific author, and wrote a number of books, including "Lilies of Eastern Asia," "Cherries of Japan," "China Mother of Gardens," "Aristocrats of the Garden," "America's Greatest Garden," and numerous other works.

Mr. Wilson spoke a little over a month ago in Hartford at the banquet of the Connecticut Horticultural Society at the Hotel Bond.

Edward W. Bok's Project
Mr. Bok—of Ladies' Home Journal fame—and his wife in pursuance of a commendable philanthropic plan have just completed the purchase of about a mile of water front at Rockport Harbor, Maine, which now contains nothing but reminders of past industries. Mrs. Bok who has made great scenic improvements in Camden, has engaged the same firm of landscape architects to beautify her newly acquired Maine shore property. The decayed buildings will be removed, trees will be planted and grading and everything possible done to restore the water front to its pristine beauty before the boathouses and other man-made structures were placed there. The beautification program will call for the expenditure of fabulous sums, but it will make it one of the most attractive spots on the Maine coast.

HEALTH

SCIENCE NOW ABLE TO CONTROL THE MANUFACTURE OF BLOOD
By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

"From time immemorial" the Harvard lecturer, Dr. Lovell Guland, said, "it has been recognized that blood is essential to life, but modern science has begun to think there ever since man began to think there that there was more in it than a mere nutrient fluid."

The story of the gradual changes of opinion of mankind concerning the nature of the blood is one of the most fascinating histories in science. It involves all sorts of confused ideas, attempts at magic, and extraordinary theories which were only destroyed by the development of the microscope and our modern knowledge of the blood.

It is interesting to realize that some of the formed elements in the blood were discovered only within the last 100 years and that actual knowledge of these formed elements has been available only for the last 50 years. For instance, the man who first described pernicious anemia in 1822 apparently never looked at the blood, but concerned himself only with the gross symptoms.

The first record of a microscopic examination of the blood in disease was apparently dated about 1845 when an Englishman named Hughes Bennett, and the great German, Virchow, simultaneously described the appearance of the blood in the condition called leukemia, a disease in which the manufacture of the white blood cells runs wild.

Actual knowledge of the blood depends on the fact that the great Ehrlich, who first discovered salvarsan, began to develop stains which are applied to specimens of blood withdrawn from a vein and dropped on a slide, these stains having the power to bring out the various elements within the blood cells.

The manufacture of blood goes on constantly in the human body. In some diseases, such as pernicious anemia, the destruction goes on rapidly. By the giving of liver, the manufacturing rate may be speeded by to such an extent that it is possible to make a number of red blood cells beyond the usual requirement. If the blood becomes too thick with blood cells, more work is required on the part of the heart to push the blood around the body. The blood must be sent to every part of the body in order to maintain its health and nutrition.

The white blood cells are increased in times of infection and greatly lowered in certain diseases. Thus the number may vary from 200 cells for each cubic millimeter of blood to 2,000,000 cells for each cubic millimeter. The white cells are concerned with the defense of the body against germs, against the poisons developed by germs or by chemicals, and against any foreign material.

Today the study of the blood has become one of the most technical of medical specialties, and actual knowledge of the state of the blood may mean the difference between life and death in many cases.

WARD'S ESTABLISH NEW HIGH RECORD FOR RETAIL SALES

"The results of Nation-Wide Ward Week (Ward's Semi-Annual Retail Sale) have exceeded all expectations," announces W. L. Stensgaard.

Montgomery Ward and Co., operates 560 retail stores. And Ward's tremendous amount of merchandise is based on the reports already turned in by these stores.

Mr. Stensgaard further points out that every effort for months of a highly organized buying staff was utilized in the securing of enormous quantities of merchandise.

Ward's is of the opinion that such wide publicity—together with the tremendous amount of merchandise required for a sale of such magnitude—will have a very direct bearing upon the unemployment problem.

"This constructive move to stimulate consumer buying," he says, "naturally stimulates production."

In the face of reports already received from stores, executives of the company who are touring the various districts during the period of this Nation-Wide Ward Week event, Mr. Stensgaard has every right to feel optimistic about the outcome.

Despite government statements to the press that the Fourteenth Regiment of Unions has been withdrawn, the Ukrainian press asserts that the regiment still is assisting police in searching the villages and that the police often finish their search of the houses by beating the inhabitants.

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) Said Cloway, "My, this fruit is swell. I'd like to have a chance to sell to people who pass by this stand. Gee, would you let me try? I think that'd be pretty good. At least, I'd sell all that I could. I don't think folks would turn me down, there is so much to buy." The fruit stand owner smiled and said, "Well, sonny, you go right ahead. Your little friends can play around until you try your luck. I like to see you fellows work, but dislike those who always shirk. You know, success will come to people who have lots of pluck." So Cloway stepped into the stand and sorted fruit out with his hand. He put the nicest pieces up where they would show real well. And then he shouted, "Come this way, I'm selling real nice fruit today. I only charge a little bit for everything I sell."

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL RALLY THIS AFTERNOON
 Arouse Spirit for Tomorrow's Game With East Hartford—Held Out of Doors.
 The first outdoor football rally was held by Manchester High school this afternoon in Educational Square to arouse as much spirit as possible for the league game with East Hartford here tomorrow afternoon.
 The school assembly hall is not large enough to accommodate the entire student body with room for such an affair. In fact, as Principal G. P. Quimby said this morning, there is just about room for the speaker.
 The feature this afternoon was the cheering and singing of school songs by the 900 students under the leadership of Cheer Leader, Carle Cumberly and his staff of able assistants. The students stood throughout the brief rally. The speakers were Principal Quimby and Coach Thomas F. Keeley. At the coach's request, the members of the football team did not participate in the football rally as has been the custom in past rallies.

NOT A CLEAN-UP GAME
 If it were as easy to convince everybody that the greatest ultimate profit lies in buying the very best of foods as it was for that New York chap to make the Hartford lady believe that buying six cent shares of stock at a dollar a share led to great wealth, maybe Pinehurst would some day clean up $11,000 too. But we don't expect any clean-up. You don't get it doing business on the level—not in the food business. It's a long slow pull. If you keep edging ahead a bit—by everlastingly keeping at it, watching the quality of the intake of goods and just as closely watching the outgo, watching the service to see that no customer is ever given cause for complaint, nicking prices down to the lowest notch—you're in luck. But it's interesting and after all a good deal better way of passing your life than catching suckers, whether you go to jail for it or not.
