Head of State Manufacturers Says We Have Nothing In Common With Other States But Tradition.

Storrs, Nov. 12.—(AP)—E. Kent Hubbard, president of the Connecticut Manufacturers Association today declared that Connecticut should desert New England in consideration of her industrial, commercial and agricultural future.

The statement was made at his annual report at the Manufacturers Association convention at the Connecticut state agricultural college. The meeting was attended by 285 manufacturers from all sections of the state.

His opinion in regard to secession was made at the second of two propositions brought up by the members to write him before next Wednesday, giving their own opinions on the two matters.

Serious Depression

In his first proposition, he outlined his diagnosis of the economic depression. He declared he had experienced all economic difficulties since the year of 1897, but had seen none as serious as that of this year. The solution, he diagnosed, lay in the increase of consuming power. The means whereby this might be brought about was the question.

As one phase of the necessary increase in buying power, he declared himself as opposed to highly restricted immigration, saying the immigrant was to a great extent a consumer rather than a producer.

Unprecedented labor unrest, he predicted would come in with the return of prosperity. This would be followed with increased consumption and a trend toward shorter hours for working men, which in turn would result in greater leisure, and greater expenditure for clothing, recreation and food.

Praises Manufacturers

He praised the Connecticut manufacturers for not cutting wages during the depression and cited that as a reason this state would not suffer.

BETTER MARKETING IS FARMERS' NEED

National Grange Master Says No Special Governmental Favors Will Help.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Only through adherence to a definite and practical program and recognition of the fact that conditions in American life are changing so rapidly as to compel a new leadership, will the Grange obtain equality for agriculture, National Master Louis J. Taber today told delegates to the sixty-fourth annual convention of the National Grange.

"Not by special favors to the farmer, through government aid or otherwise," said Mr. Taber, "but by a program embracing such practical subjects as better marketing methods, restriction of irrigation and reclamation projects and a more intelligently distributed system of taxation, will the Grange be successful in its effort to obtain equality for agriculture."

"More important than either mechanical or scientific changes affecting agriculture is the remarkable development in merchandising and distribution. Mass production, mass purchasing and mass distribution are allocating farm methods and threatening many rural communities with disaster, if not almost destruction," said Mr. Taber.

Conservation Bureau
One of Mr. Taber's outstanding declarations was in favor of the establishment of a Bureau of Conservation in the Department of Agriculture to protect the natural resources of the nation.

The National Grange master presented his ideas of steps necessary to accomplish the economic readjustment he said was needed at the present time, stating them as follows:

Stabilization of values.
A higher price level for farm commodities.

More justly distributed burden of taxation.

Extension of the Federal farm loan system.

Readjustment of the nation's freight rate structure.

Mr. Taber characterized the Eighteenth Amendment "as the greatest moral reform of the century" and said that it must be sustained. He added that its supporters must awaken or they would "lose the fruits of their great victory."

WALEES PILOTS BIGGEST PLANE

Prince Takes Over Complete Control of DO-X for 10 Minutes in a Short Trial Flight.

Calshot, Eng., Nov. 12.—(AP)—The Prince of Wales took complete control of the giant German seaplane DO-X for ten minutes during a half-hour flight he made in her today.

"He is a very fine pilot," was the compliment paid the Prince by Flight Lieutenant Metz, the plane's chief pilot.

While in the air, the Prince toasted the commander and wished him success on the forthcoming Atlantic flight. In return Captain Christiansen and the crew drank the Prince's health.

After the flight in which the Prince participated, the DO-X made a second and shorter one in order that he might see her take off and alight on the water.

GERMAN STUDENTS START RIOT AGAIN

Socialists and Fascists Start Fight Which Ends Up in a Battle With Police.

Berlin, Nov. 12.—(AP)—The serenity of Berlin's academic life was badly upset today when the university became the scene of a three-cornered fight in which one girl student was beaten and several male students were severely injured.

The clash started between Socialists and Fascist students and the police then took a hand with the fight winding up between the police and the Fascists.

Arrest Seven
Seven Fascist students finally were locked up. The Fascists began at a repetition of clashes yesterday between leaflet distributing Socialists and objecting Fascist students but soon developed to such proportions that the president of the university and the police commissioner had to take a hand.

"German Avians" shouted the Fascists mixing these cries with "Out with the Jews." Then they turned their verbal attack on the police and sang mocking songs when the officers sought to establish order.

Start Excitement
While the president of the university and the commander of the police held a parley excited students yelled: "The president is the prisoner of the police—the president has suffered defeat."

Finally the police marched off taking the seven Fascist students with them while all the rest of the Fascist students gave their traditional salute.

After order had been established, President G. A. Deissmann made the following announcement:

"In the negotiations with the police commissioner it was agreed that the police no longer will enter the university courts nor post themselves near the gates as this is regarded by some circles among the student body as a provocation."

MAPLE SUGAR DUTY CLAIMED TOO HIGH

So Say Importers But Domestic Producers Demand An Even Higher Schedule.

Washington, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Assault on the increased duty on maple sugar established by the 1930 Tariff Act was made before the tariff commission today by Canadian importers and was met by a request from domestic producers for an even higher duty.

A long list of witnesses for a New York importing firm contended that the report of the old tariff commission to President Coolidge in 1928—placing the difference of cost of production in Canada and the United States at 53 cents a pound for maple sugar and 35 cents for maple syrup—had applied today and that the present duty should be lowered to these figures.

W. R. Ogg, of the American Farm Bureau Federation, representing domestic producers, contended this duty was not representative of land value taxation and labor costs. He told the commission present costs would justify a rate of 9 cents on.

Rescuing and Rescued Skippers

When the schooner Dunham Wheeler, largest sailing vessel in the eastern coastwise service, foundered in heavy seas off the coast of Florida recently, her seventeen men were saved by the steamer Aztec, of the United Fruit Line, and brought to New York. Here you see the rescuing and rescued skippers, Captain L. S. Gulestad, of the Aztec, and Captain J. A. McVar, who, with his men, was taken from the schooner just before she sank in the storm.

LONE SURVIVOR OF CREW TELLS A GRAPHIC STORY

Drifts More Than 70 Hours Clinging To Bit of Wreckage In Gale Maddened Sea Until He Is Rescued.

Eureka, Cal., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Jorgen M. Greve, first officer of the lumber schooner Brooklyn, which sank with all hands off Humboldt Bay Saturday lived today to tell how he drifted more than 70 hours on a bit of wreckage in a gale maddened sea.

Greve was rescued yesterday by the crew of the fishing boat Brooklyn. Greve was clinging grimly to the wreckage, semi-conscious, bleeding from numerous cuts inflicted by the constant battering of angry seas and with his clothes in tatters.

Last night Greve revived sufficiently to tell of the disaster and the agonizing hours that followed. He told of the mountainous waves striking the bow of the little schooner, making it impossible to steer.

The cook, a steward, a fireman and the engineer launched the lifeboat but couldn't remain afloat.

WORRIED FATHER THOUGHT SUICIDE

Leaves Home Carrying a Rope After He Hears That Son Had Been Arrested.

New London, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Charles Reilly, 50, father of Richard W. Reilly, youth held for a series of recent thefts from the rooms of Yale University students, left his home here late yesterday announcing his intention to commit suicide and today he was the object of an intensive search.

Reilly has been brooding since his son's arrest November 1 by Yale campus police who found him carrying two suitcases containing jewelry and other articles valued at $3,500. The youth confessed to stealing the articles from the Yale dormitories and also admitted similar thefts on the preceding five Saturdays while the students were attending football games.

Late yesterday the father who is an engineer aboard H. H. Walters steam yacht Narada, left home, carrying a rope, after announcing that he was going to hang himself. When he failed to return last night a searching party was organized by his friends but darkness called them off as they pushed through the woods near the point where he was last seen.

This morning state troopers, local police, coast guardsmen, members of the crew of the Narada and many other volunteers resumed the search.

PUZZLING CRIME WAVE
Bogota, Columbia, Nov. 12.—(AP)—This city was visited during the night by a puzzling "crime wave" which left 45 persons in the hospitals with stab wounds.

The police were unable to explain the motive for what appeared to be a general attack. They arrested more than 200 persons.

FEAR KAUFMAN, LOST IN WOODS, IS NOT ALIVE

Sheriff Wonders Why Wealthy Sportsman Did Not Even Fire Gun or Light Fire When Bewildered.

Jackman, Me., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Sheriff Elton M. Markham of Somerset county, a man experienced in the ways of men in the woods said today he did not believe Mitchell E. Kaufman, 37 year old Massachusetts millionaire was alive. He disappeared eight days ago.

"If he was alive why didn't he fire his gun, why didn't he light a fire? He could not possibly have been more than a mile from where he was stationed when his absence was discovered."

Sheriff Markham said word of Kaufman's disappearance was kept silent by Crocker camp authorities and his companions and that it was not until Sunday that the name of the missing man and details surrounding his disappearance were disclosed.

"Had they notified me Wednesday I would have had dogs there that night and I feel we would have found him, dead or alive. Now I think it is probably too late. The dog found on the woods on Monday, we have a dog working on them but we may lose them any minute because of their staleness."

Five in Party
There were four sportsmen besides Kaufman and two guides in the party. One of the guides placed the sportsman about an eighth of a mile apart on an old rut road and then started walking along the same road. Kaufman and a guide offered to enter the woods proper and try to drive a deer out to the road.

As it began to get dark the sheriff said Kaufman's guide joined the remainder of the party and asked if they had seen Kaufman. They had not but believed he might be at the lake edge awaiting them. They walked to the lake but did not find him and immediately returned. They fired and killed two pairs, the sheriff took no response. They returned to camp and came back with lanterns but heard nothing.

Three Inches of Snow
That night three inches of snow fell. Near where Kaufman was last seen was a small dam. The water held back also froze over.

Kaufman's tracks should have been easy to follow by the eye. He was head of a large rubber company and had brought two pairs of specially made rubber bottomed boots. He wore an odd boot on each foot to determine the wearing qualities of the new York over an inlaid rubber sole. Some of his tracks were found along the edge of the lake and then into the woods. The dog followed those until dark last night and then put onto them again today. The sheriff said nothing definite should be learned by night.

In the meantime he has ordered a posse of 40 to 45 men to travel along the Canadian Pacific railroad right of way 20 miles from Crocker Pond. The posse has been engaged in the search and a fourth was prepared to enter today.

JAPAN IS OPPOSED TO GIBSON'S PLAN

Does Not Believe In Limiting Land War Materials, Envoy Tells the League.

Geneva, Nov. 12.—(AP)—N. Sato, Japanese representative on the preparatory commission for disarmament, today announced his government's opposition to limitation of land war materials, maintaining that limitation of military effectives represented a sufficient form of disarmament.

Japan opposes such limitation by either direct or budgetary methods, her spokesman told the commission, adding that he did not believe Japanese public opinion would accept the "unequal arrangement" embodied in the recommendation of Hugh S. Gibson, American delegate, for direct limitation by the United States and budgetary limitations for those who prefer it.

Russia's Stand
Maxim Litvinov, the Russian delegate, declared solemnly that the armaments problem without real limitation of war implements was impossible, and expressed a fear that the preparatory commission was on the verge of renouncing reductions of materials.

The Soviet republic endorses the Gibson combination of direct and budgetary limitations, he said, and counts on the pressure of public opinion to change the attitudes of some of the governments between now and a meeting of a general conference.

The Canadian delegate, asserted that it was difficult to conceive of any tentative convention which satisfy the world without inclusion of some provisions for the limitation of war materials. Canada, he said, regards direct limitation as more practicable, but stands ready to support whichever method is decided upon by the commission.

New York, Nov. 12.—(AP)—King George's address convening the Indian round-table conference was heard in New York over an international radio broadcast of the Columbia Broadcasting Company.

Boy Starts Theater Panic By Discharging Pistol

Pittsburgh, Nov. 12.—(AP)—The movie audience held its breath. At last the heroic young ranch foreman had come face to face with the scheming villain who had foreclosed "the papers" and had driven the fair Gloria and her sickly father from their home.

"You cur—r—r—r—" hissed the villain.
Down in the front row there was a flash of fire—
Bang!

In an instant, the audience, or most of it, was in the aisles, while the back rows were emptying into the street.

KING GEORGE OPENS INDIAN CONFERENCE

Leaders of Britain and Princes of India To Attempt To Evolve a Satisfactory Government For the Restless Millions of the Asiatic Empire—Scenes of Splendor As Parley Opens In London—Monarch Expresses Hope That Conference Will Be Success and Princes Profess Loyalty To Crown—Premier Makes Spirited Address.

By Dewitt Mackenzie

London, Nov. 12.—(AP)—King George, ruler over the mightiest empire of all time, today convened representatives of Britain and India in a conference which during the coming weeks will attempt to evolve a government for the Asiatic empire satisfactory to its restless millions.

His Majesty, expressing anxiety that the monarch should follow their deliberations with closest attention, but with confidence in their success.

"It is my hope that the future government of India," he said, based on foundations of mutual obligations and their recognition and fulfillment "will give expression to her honorable aspirations."

Scenes of Splendor
The formal, imposing opening of the deliberations was held amidst the gorgeous regal trappings of the Royal Gallery of the House of Lords, official home of the British nobility. Eighty-seven states were present. Of these 57 were from the provinces of India and sixteen from the native Indian states, including nine powerful ruling princes. Thirteen were members of the British Empire.

Meanwhile in the Royal Gallery, King George and Queen Mary, in a room of state, were seated on the throne. The King's throne chair stood on the outer rim of two large circles of tables, one circle within the other, to accommodate the delegates. The Indian princes, representing fabulous wealth and power, sat about an inner table making a colorful spectacle in their ornate Oriental headgear. Beside the throne was an ordinary chair for Ramsay MacDonald, England's labor prime minister, who, after the King spoke, was made chairman of the Assembly.

Questions of Rank
Delicate questions of rank and precedence among the Indian potentates, all of whom are exceedingly jealous of their rights necessitated particular care on the part of the British officials in seating delegates. One of the most striking features of the spectacle was the presence of two Indian women delegates, Mrs. Subbarayan and Begum Shah Nawaz.

Beautiful Gowns
Mrs. Subbarayan walked regally to her seat in long silken robes of gold and grey. She wore many diamonds and her fingers sparkled with diamonds. On the left side of her nose a large diamond glistened, worn as western women used to wear diamonds in their pierced earlobes. The Begum wore flowing silken robes of pale blue which swept the floor.

Most of the princes wore conventional morning clothes, but despite this the Assembly was a riot of color from their headgear. There were rich turbans of every hue and shape—gold, yellow, crimson, green, blue and even pink, which was to be seen in the headgear of the Burmese delegate.

King Arrives
It was high noon as the King, Emperor entered and took his place before the historic assembly, which stood in silence to do him homage. The ruler spoke in measured tones, his striking voice sounding resonant and clear into his own gold and silver microphones which carried his words over a wide-spread radio network to the far corners of the Empire and across the Atlantic to the United States. He spoke for seven minutes.

"More than once," he said, "the sovereign has summoned historic assemblies on the soil of India but never before have British and Indian statesmen and the rulers of the Indian states met as you now meet in this place and around one table to discuss the future system of government for India and to seek an agreement for the guidance of my Parliament as to the foundations upon which it must stand."

His Majesty said that the true foundation of self-government is the fusion of divergent claims and in his moving sentence he declared that he had in mind: "The just claims of the majorities and minorities of men and women, of the town dwellers and tillers of the soil, of the landlords and tenants, of the rich and poor, of the races, castes, and creeds of which the body politic is composed."

"For these things," he said, "I care deeply."

The King called attention that ten years ago in his last and final made for an advance in self-government for India, and that while ten years represented a small span in a nation's life, in India there had been a quickening of ideals and national aspirations which defied the customary measurement of time.

King Leaves Room
After His Majesty had finished his brief address he shook hands with Mr. MacDonald and then stepped from the low dais on which his throne stood. Bowing first to the delegates on his left and then to those on his right he walked slowly from the hall.

The delegates resumed their seats and the Maharajah of Patiala, his sombre black clothing relieved by a large light blue turban and jeweled earrings, moved that Premier MacDonald be elected chairman of the conference. The Aga Khan, prince who is spiritual head of India's huge Moslem population, seconded the motion and it was unanimously carried.

Premier Speaks
Mr. MacDonald took the floor. He spoke slowly and appeared to be making one of the greatest efforts of his striking career. He seemed rather worn, and the tired lines of his strong face were deep. Usually he speaks extemporaneously but today he read carefully from his manuscript. Ripples of applause frequently interrupted his speech.

The prime minister commented that this was the first occasion on which the Indian princes had met in joint councils with representatives of the people of India, and of Britain, on English soil. His speech was one which moved his audience. Its keynote was contained in his passage: "We are now at the very birth of a new history. Declarations made by British sovereigns and statesmen from time to time that Britain's work in India was to prepare her for self-government have been plain. x x x We have endeavored to register a recognition of the fact that India has reached a distinctive point in her constitutional evolution."

Throughout the inaugural session of the conference which will be resumed Monday there was a noticeable effort to avoid Indian spokesmen to avoid misunderstandings.

Profess Loyalty
Indian princes applauded every reference to loyalty to the throne. Sir Muhammad Akbar Hydari, representing the princely states, in a speech declared he could assure the peoples of the Empire and the world at large "that no hand shall ever sever the ties which bind the princes to the Crown." He added, however, autonomous states sympathized with the aims and ideals of the people of British India and would work in harmony with them for a greater and united India.

Many distinguished guests witnessed the opening of the conference, including Ambassador Charles G. Dawes. A number in the gallery were the premiers of the various dominions who are here attending the Imperial Conference, former Premiers Stanley Baldwin and David Lloyd George and the Archbishop of Canterbury.

INDIA INTERESTED
Bombay, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Today's opening session of the Indian round table conference in London was the one absorbing topic in all Indian circles of whatever politics and took the most prominent place in the daily press.

With Mahatma Gandhi, the Nationalist leader, still held in jail at Yeroda, the Nationalist leaders continued undeviatingly their hostile attitude toward the conference to which they have refused to send representatives.

One Nationalist organ today, however, said that the round table conference could be made a true one by proclamation of a general amnesty and a "change of heart" on the part of Great Britain.

Bombay, which is a Nationalist stronghold, observed a halt or cessation of work today. Generally speaking the attitude of Indian political leaders, apart from the strongly Nationalist ones, appeared one of mild optimism throughout the country. Marcelline communities particularly are eagerly awaiting the outcome of the hope that a peaceful settlement may enable resumption of business.

LIQUOR QUESTION REMAINS AN ISSUE

Republican Wets and Dries Hold Spirited Arguments As Hoover Board Meets.

Washington, Nov. 12.—(AP)—President Hoover's law enforcement commission convened today to continue work on its prohibition report as Republican wets and dries came to grips on the liquor question as a possible issue in the 1932 presidential race.

As usual, the meeting of the enforcement commissioners was executive and Chairman Wickersham stood on his announcement of a few days ago that all reports speculating on the commission's findings were "guesses."

With former Senator Wadsworth, of New York, and Representative Britten, of Illinois, Republican prohibitionists, in dispute with Senator Fess, Republican prohibitionist from Ohio, as to the latter's assertion that the party would split if it favored repeal, Representative Beedy, Republican, Maine, came out in favor of making prohibition an issue in the 1932 elections.

His Argument
"I believe," the Maine member said, "that the matter of prohibition should be thoroughly discussed in the 1932 campaign and that it would be much better if the people of the country would have the right to voice their opinions."

Beedy is an ardent prohibitionist and has opposed on the floor of the House repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. He said he thought it advisable to settle the prohibition question in the next general election and that it would be a "helpful thing for everybody concerned."

Replying to Fess, Wadsworth said: "We want our party to be right on the only fundamental constitutional issue that has arisen since the days of the Civil War and we will fight to make it right, split or no split."

Britten urged a new chairman be selected for the Republican National committee, if Fess "is so blind or so intolerant that he cannot analyze the desires of millions of people."

EIGHTH'S BOARD TO TRY TO COLLECT OLD LIENS

Many Sewer Assessments Have Been Allowed To Run Until Interest Equals Original Sum. The regular monthly meeting of the directors of the Eighth School and Utilities District took up several important matters at their meeting last night. Most important was the viewpoint of the directors was the collecting of sewer liens in the treasury which have grown to a large number. The report of the tax collector of the money received during the month of October on the list of liens was paid during the first month of the collecting had amounted to $29,091.86 of the $37,984.50 to be collected.

John Miller, the new treasurer of the district, presented a monthly report in which each item was charged against the proper appropriation as budgeted by the district committee. Mr. Miller, although not elected as a director has, because of his system of bookkeeping, been asked to sit in with the directors and take part in their general discussion and to present to explain any matters that may come before the committee and be handled through the district's treasurer.

Old Liens. As a result of a request made by the directors all unpaid tax liens due the district were reviewed and it was the general opinion of the directors that the liens have been allowed to stand through an oversight rather than the inability of the people to pay. All unpaid liens from 1923 were gone over and a letter is to be sent to each delinquent. The amount of the lien and the interest charge that is made will show how fast the sum is growing. In some cases, because the law provides that the interest shall be compounded each year, the total interest has reached the amount of the original lien.

URGES CONNECTICUT TO QUIT N. E. AREA

Concerning his suggestion that Connecticut secede from New England he presented a series of figures tending to show that this state has nothing in common with the northern states except tradition. Connecticut, he declared, has advanced farther industrially, commercially and agriculturally than the rest of this area.

The state should, he declared, be included in the New York federal reserve district, inasmuch as it is a part of the New York industrial district, sending and receiving exports and imports through the port of New York.

State Included. The rest of the world, he pointed out, speaks of the decline of New England and includes Connecticut in that estimate. Such an attitude he declares, hurts this state. However, facts show that Connecticut's economic future is assured, whereas that of the Bridgeport district states depends on the greater development of their agricultural and recreational possibilities.

Charles C. McCracken, president of the Connecticut Agricultural College and B. McLean Buckingham, president of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station, agriculture spoke briefly. McCracken extended a welcome to the delegates, while Buckingham outlined the necessity for co-operation between agriculture and manufacturing.

HUBBARD RE-ELECTED. Hubbard was re-elected president of the association for another term. Other officers re-elected were John Goss of Waterbury, vice president; and Robert C. Buell of Hartford, secretary and treasurer.

Directors elected today are: W. R. Weber, of Bridgeport, director for Fairfield county; R. H. Whitehead, of New Haven for New Haven county and C. R. Gardiner of Meriden and A. E. Payson of Norwich, directors at large.

Sen. Bingham's Speech. In Washington we are looking at the problem of unemployment from three angles. First: how much unemployment is there and where is it worst; second, what has caused it, and third, what can we do to help.

To learn that there is an extraordinary amount of unemployment in all parts of the world. Our world markets, particularly in Asia and South America are seriously curtailed. This is reflected in diminished activities in our factories, where 20 per cent less people are employed than a year ago.

Chief among the causes are the upset of the silver standard in India and consequent loss of purchasing power in China and Mexico and over-production of rubber and coffee, followed by poverty and revolution in Brazil.

At home we have had over-speculation and a very serious drought. As a result we have a sharp decline in building operations, with severe depression in the lumber and house furnishing industries.

On the other hand, a clearing house for useful information has been set up under the direction of Colonel Arthur D. The ground is known as the President's emergency committee on unemployment may be of interest.

How It Works. The committee's activities consist chiefly of accumulating information throughout the country on the unemployment situation and the methods being used in meeting it.

Public Records. Marriage Intentions. An application for marriage license was filed in the office of the town clerk today by Theodore D. Chambers and Ruth Carolina Wogman, both of Manchester.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, Nov. 12.—(AP)—The Stock Market was a pallid affair again today, having lost the flush of recovery which appeared briefly in the previous session. The market was quiet but save in a few prominent shares, it was unable to resist a light selling pressure, and losses of 2 to 5 points were numerous. An unexpected advance of 1/2 cent in copper to 10 cents a pound, with reports that large producers were holding out for still higher prices, caused a rally in the copper shares, but further heaviness of the rails kept the list unsettled.

The day's industrial developments, however, were largely cheering, after making due allowances for the normal seasonal trends at this time. Freight car loadings, as reported for the week ended Nov. 1, showed a decline of about 2 1/2 per cent from the previous week, which was smaller than is expected for that period. That week's reduction for the past three years has averaged 6 1/2 per cent.

The stiffening of copper prices came as a pleasant surprise, and was regarded in financial circles as a favorable augury, in view of the fact that the decline in commodity prices has now run for 13 months, which is about equivalent to the length of the decline in the major periods of deflation of 1893 and 1921. Wall street has been disappointed in its hopes that commodity prices were scraping bottom several times since last June, but in the light of past history, its present hopes seemed to have some basis.

The copper statistics for October showed a slight gain in stocks above ground, but this may have been attributable to the fact that some of the larger producers have been declining to sell at the recent low prices. The weekly statistics from the oil industry, which along with copper has been seriously affected by overproduction, were the most favorable in several weeks. Gasoline stocks, which have been increasing steadily of late, dropped 203,000 barrels, to a level slightly below that of a year ago, a substantial reduction in crude output was also achieved.

ROBBERS IN WATERBURY STAGE A DARING THEFT

Waterbury, Nov. 12.—(AP)—One of the most daring robberies in the history of this ordinarily placid city took place between 6 and 7 o'clock last night when robbers climbed a painter's ladder to the second story bedroom of Mrs. John H. Goss, at 70 Hillside Ave., and stole jewelry believed to be worth approximately $2,000, and possibly a number of valuable dresses. Mrs. Goss is the wife of the general manager of the Scoville Manufacturing Company.

The Goss family were eating dinner while the robbery was taking place, Mrs. Goss believes. She discovered late last night that her room had been ransacked, but shunning the inevitable publicity, did not report it to police, at first believing that the value of the jewelry taken was small enough to accept without complaining. However, a check up this morning caused her to change her decision. Captain William P. Keegan, detective chief, has assigned detectives Edward McElligott and Jack Leary and Detective Lieut. Timothy Hickey to the investigation.

BRITAIN TO CARRY OUT OBLIGATIONS

Premier Says That the Palestine Matters To Be Discussed Thoroughly.

London, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Prime Minister MacDonald told the House of Commons today that the British government intends to carry out its obligations under the mandate to both sections of the Palestine population.

No ordinances on the basis of the recent white paper regarding the British attitude towards Jews and Arabs in Palestine will be framed before there has been discussion of the white paper in the House of Commons, said the prime minister. Mr. MacDonald made the statements, which were in response to questions, after reiterating a recent governmental assertion that the white paper had given rise to some misunderstanding and had been misinterpreted in some of its essential points.

David Lloyd George, Liberal leader, said he was sure the prime minister would realize the importance "of having this cleared up as soon as possible."

Mr. MacDonald replied that time for the Palestine discussion probably would be allotted with the discussion occurring next Monday or Tuesday.

W. G. A. Ormsby Gore, Conservative, wanted to know if the deduction was to be drawn that the government was prepared to modify the white paper and to make a statement to that effect in debate.

"The right honorable gentleman might wait for the debate," replied MacDonald, but added, "in substance, I think it's all right."

MISSIONARY TELLS OF WORK IN U. S.

Has Had Experiences in 40 Different States — Enthusias Over Prohibition.

The address given last evening by Mrs. Cora Downs Stevens in the South Methodist church was one of inspiration and interest to the small group who were privileged to gather in the church parlor.

Miss Stevens has for seven years been a field secretary for the Woman's Home Missionary Society of her church. Her work has taken her into forty states of the Union and brought a rich experience and knowledge. In an able way she told of the work of schools and missions among the Chinese and Japanese of the Pacific coast, and the negroes of the south.

She dwelt more particularly on the Indian and Mountain White work and made her hearers feel the need of continuing these.

Her impressions of the good accomplished by the Eighteenth Amendment were strongly in its favor. The effect of the same was noticeable in her repeated visits to missions located in the slum districts of the large cities. Mrs. Stevens noted the fact that yesterday, a holiday, in her travels, she had seen no drunken driver or pedestrian and brought out the testimony from her hearers that the same was true of her observation in town, in Hartford, or wherever they had chanced to spend the day.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Troop 8 of Manchester Green held its weekly meeting at the Green school Monday night at 7:15 o'clock. Eighteen Scouts were present with the Silver Fox and Dawn Patrol having the best attendance.

Truman Cowles had charge of all Scouts until 7:45 o'clock, when Mr. Lewis and Mr. Pratt arrived to take charge. The first game run off was capture the bacon. Later a short patrol meeting was held.

The game consisted of the Scouts being blindfolded and made to get down on their knees. Then an alley-way was made for the boys to crawl through. Those Scouts forming the alley-way had belts to hit them as they crawled through. Next the Scouts were baptised with cold water. Seeing that the time grew shorter and shorter for the meeting they did only one more thing, which was giving the Scouts a ducking. Too bad that the field executive was not there to see the way these boys enjoyed themselves.

Closing the meeting at 8:45 the Scouts went home with a gay feeling.

Notes
Blaine Stanley came to the troop with a new uniform. We all welcomed him. Come on Scouts of Troop 8 how about another one next week.

All Scouts are to be present at the Rec tonight for a swim which has been all arranged. You are to be there at 8:15 and don't forget to bring a towel.

FESS IS ASSAILED ON HIS DRY STAND

Britten and Wadsworth Say Success of G. O. P. Depends On the Wet States.

Washington, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Two prominent Republican anti-prohibitionists were joined today in open opposition to the expressed dry views of their party's National chairman.

Senator Fess of Ohio, chairman of the Republican National committee, was made the target of a vigorous attack by Representative Britten of Illinois and former Senator James W. Wadsworth of New York. Britten demanded the selection of another chairman, if he said, "Senator Fess is so blind or so intolerant that he cannot analyze the desires of millions of voters in progressive northern states."

Wadsworth spoke of a split in the party and asked, "What kind of a split is better, a split caused by a straight-out manly declaration on the fundamental importance of repeal or a split caused by a half-hearted and transparently insincere adherence to prohibition?"

EPISODE OF 3 CHICKENS

Demon Rum Bestows Biddies On Its Victim While Robbing Him Of His Memory.

The drunk's case had been disposed of in Manchester police court and the erring one was about to depart. "You'd better wait, mister," said the stern voice of personified Law, "till we find out about those chickens."

"What chickens?"

"Those three chickens you had with you when you were pinched. I don't know anything about no chickens."

"Don't eh? Well you wait, just the same."

"Up to mid-afternoon the police could find no trace of a crime involving chickens. Still and all the custody if not the technical ownership of the chickens seemed to devolve on the ex-drunk."

"Well," said the Law, at last, "you can go. And take those chickens with you."

"What?" asked the erring one. "I can't do with three chickens, I ask you? I don't know no more than a dog or a cat where I got 'em. And I don't want 'em."

Nevertheless he had to tote the three chickens. Just outside the door he bestowed them on a willing world represented by a couple of men with families who were doing some work around the place.

New York, Nov. 12.—(AP)—The Maharajah of Patiala, ruler of the Punjab, nominating Ramsay MacDonald, British prime minister, as chairman of the Indian round table conference, was received in New York today over an international radio broadcast of the Columbia Broad-East system follows.

"The gracious address which His Majesty, the King Emperor, has just delivered strikes a responsive chord in our hearts and if we can succeed in following the lead which he has given us I feel confident that our deliberations will become a success."

"In proposing that the Prime Minister of Great Britain, the Honorable J. Ramsay MacDonald should be appointed chairman to preside over the deliberations of the conference I know I am voicing the wish of all present."

"I can assure you, Mr. Prime Minister, that all of us, whether we are princes or ministers who represent the Indian states, will cooperate most heartily with Great Britain and with British India in working for the solution of the problems which confront us."

PASSION PLAY PAID

Oberammergau, Germany, Nov. 12.—(AP)—The final appointment of profits among the Passion Play performers turned out to be a pleasant surprise for all, as net profits proved much greater than had been anticipated. This was especially welcome as there are nine "lean years" to come before the next series of performances brings more grist to the mill.

Apart from stage manager Johann Georg Lang who draws $2,000 and choir-master Guido Diemer, to whom $1,750 is allotted, the star actors Alois Lang (Christ) and Hugo Rutz (Caiaphas) each receive $1,375, Annie Rutz (Mary) and the recently married Hansi Preisinger (Magdalen) each draw $875 and so on down to $75 for each child actor.

Today all have gone back to their trades, mostly woodcarving.

GOOD GAMES TO FEATURE MASONIC TOURNEY

"Cap" Peterson still continues his good pool playing in the Masonic Social club tournament, winning from Frank Jack by a score of 50 to 19, then defeating M. Starin 50 to 28, then took Roy Norris into camp to the tune of 50 to 22.

"Doc" Nelson said this has gone far enough and he won from Peterson by a score of 43 to 38. "Cap" Starin was to play Smith 50 to 43 but Tom Smith won by a score of 43 to 48. Martin Starin then defeated "Doc" Nelson 50 to 30.

Clifford was to play "Lucky Tom" Smith 50 to 48 but Smith played all around Clifford and kept Clifford's score down to 25 while Smith made 35 and won.

Martin won from George Veitch. Veitch was to play 5 to 43 but Smith scored 43 to Veitch's 45. Clifford then took Veitch into camp by a score of 50 to 42. "Sully" won from Frank Jack by a score of 50 to 45. Clifford won from F. Jack 50 to 22. Thomas Lewis said I will take my associate along on my belt and then won from Clifford 50 to 35. Raleigh won from "Tom" Smith

50 to 28. Nichols defeated "Sam" Nelson 40 to 24. Lingard and Raleigh played a very interesting game, Lingard winning 50 to 27.

Nichols was to play "Lucky Tom" Smith 50 to 48 but Smith played all around Nichols and won by a score of 40 to 28. Wm. Balls and "Sam" Nelson had a good contest Balls winning by a score of 50 to 45. "OH" Wright then showed Clifford that he was a better player, Wright winning 50 to 23.

Tennyson won from William Balls by a score of 50 to 44 in a well-played and hotly contested game.

Political experts at Washington say you can expect J. Ham Lewis, the Senate's meepest dresser, to get into a couple of spots when he first takes his seat next March.

FRENCH LEADERS DEMAND REFORMS

Draw Up Program of What They Think Is Needed To Develop Country.

Paris.—(AP.)—Though French leaders consider France the most prosperous nation in the world today, they are hammering for reforms which will tighten the belt of prosperity and assure the country's uninterrupted development.

These men are dissatisfied with present conditions. They demand a stronger national equipment to meet new problems, or old problems which threaten trouble for France. They have just issued a series of demands which appear in a pamphlet called "The Animator" and which really are an integral part of what is called the "Tardieu plan." This is an all-embracing plan prepared by Premier Tardieu which calls for public improvements and a modernization of France along sound lines without endangering a loss of basic French traits.

The Reforms

Some of the reforms demanded are: A modernization of parliamentary and administrative methods where France will go forward without constructive measures being blocked by Parliament.

Appropriation for the protection and defense of the French race and French thought.

Help rural communities so that they may have comforts and progress like the great cities—more running water, more electricity, more hygiene.

Suppression of fatal grade crossings on railway lines.

More assistance to agriculture on the ground that the peasants form the backbone of France.

More commercial airplane lines and more French aerodromes.

More children, France being one of the countries where births are fewest and deaths the most numerous.

An organized struggle against cancer and tuberculosis.

FEDERAL FINANCES

Washington, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Formulation of legislation to finance the Federal government for the next finance year today engaged the attention of the House appropriations committee.

Between December 1 when the short session begins and the Christmas holidays, Chairman Wood expects the House to pass three of the nine annual measures and send them to the Senate and to act on the others as soon after the holidays as possible.

The nine supply bills including two deficiency appropriation measures are expected to call for an outlay of approximately $4,000,000,000. For the present year they aggregated $4,872,401,086, including postal service allotments of $540,271,353.

Beethoven, G Clef Clubs Announce Their Concerts

The G Clef Glee Club will present Donald Pirnie, baritone, as their guest soloist for their Third Annual Concert Tuesday evening, January 6, to be held at the High School hall.

Donald Pirnie who has been conspicuously successful in the United States and in Europe, is one of our foremost American baritones. He has received ovations wherever he has appeared. Not long ago, on one of his European tours, when he sang at the Vienna Symphonie Orchestre, the whole audience rose to its feet and applauded for five minutes and a demonstration of the same sort greeted him when he sang at the world-famous Salzburg Festival. As soloist with celebrated orchestras on both sides of the Atlantic, at Music Festivals, in Oratorio and in song and radio recital he has been highly praised.

Mr. Pirnie first came to the notice of the musical world when he was chosen a winner in a competition held by the Stadium Concerts in New York. William Van Hoogstraeten, then conductor of the New York Philharmonic Society, spoke of him as "a wonderful singer, with a far carrying, beautiful voice, and a fine musician." His appearance at one of the Stadium concerts was followed by very successful New York recitals and concerts and tours which have taken him to the principal cities of the United States and Europe.

Mr. Pirnie is a graduate of Harvard University, and was president of the Harvard Glee Club, appearing frequently as a soloist at their concerts. He is an excellent linguist and sings in Italian, Spanish, German, French and English. A prominent newspaper critic in Vienna said his diction "was perfect in all languages." He has a repertoire of over 2,000 songs, specializing in Scotch songs, German lieder, dramatic ballads and arias from opera and oratorio. His voice is exceptionally resonant, making it possible for him to sing the bass as well as the baritone parts in oratorio.

Donald Pirnie is not only a brilliant singer and one of the most versatile artists on the concert stage today, but he has the rarest gift of all—a combination of dignity and ready sympathy which appeals to everyone.

Beethoven Concert As an assisting artist for their Sixth Annual Concert to be held at the High School hall Monday evening, March 9th the Beethoven Glee Club has secured Martha Attwood, lyric soprano of New York City.

American born opera stars are less of a rarity than they were some years ago, but Martha Attwood is probably the only one of first rank who comes from tradition-laden Cape Cod. She has brought with her to the Metropolitan Opera House the salty flavor of sea-going ancestors.

The future opera star, began to sing almost as soon as she could talk. She sang so constantly and with such apparent joy, that her mother finally decided her daughter's voice and energy should be directed intelligently. So serious vocal study began at the age of twelve.

It was not long before those who heard her advised her to take up singing professionally. But her father objected. With the conservatism of rock-bound New England, he did not want his daughter to have a professional career. It took months of cajoling, arguing and reasoning to win his assent. At last Martha departed for Boston, with all the little Cape Cod town of Wellfleet at the depot to wish her success.

Recognition came quickly, bringing with it engagements throughout New England and numerous appearances with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. It was during this period that she sang with a quartet, the first violinist of which was the first violinist of the Boston Symphony, Philip Hale, the venerable Boston critic remarked that she employed her voice as a "Fifth string Marteau. Philip Hale, the venerable Boston critic remarked that she employed her voice as a "Fifth string Marteau. Philip Hale, the venerable Boston critic remarked that she employed her voice as a "Fifth string Marteau.

After a few years of concert singing she decided to try the operatic field. Endowed with beauty, a lovely voice, and a keen sense of the dramatic, she was destined to succeed. She has achieved her goal. Her regret is that her father did not live to see her reach her goal. He died a few months after she commenced her European studies. There were five years of hard work in Italy. Then came her debut as Mimì in La Bohème—more study and work in Italy and Paris—roles in Tosca, Ernani, Pagliacci, Otello, Faust, Thais, Louise, Traviata. The climax came when Tullio Serafin heard her sing at an audition in Italy. This resulted in her engagement by the Metropolitan Opera House, where she made her debut in 1926 as Liu, the slave girl, in Turandot. The debut was memorable in that it represented the first time an American singer had been assigned to make her first appearance in the premiere of an opera.

official visitors would be expected during the ten-day meeting. The main purpose of the convention will be discussion of the general question, "Equality for Agriculture." Six questions have been outlined by National Master Taber for consideration. They are: briefly: taxation, export, debenture plan, prohibition, federal road building aid, restriction of immigration and conservation of National resources.

The Grange will pause in its discussion of National agricultural interests long enough to initiate several thousand members into the Supreme Degree of the organization. It will be Mr. Taber, said, the largest initiation of any fraternity at one time.

ARREST "DOPE RING"

New York, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—In a series of raids in Manhattan, Brooklyn and New Jersey, Federal agents early today arrested 21 men and three women whom they described as members of a ring that was transacting a $50,000-a-week business in supplying narcotics to the foreign quarters of the city.

John Collins, 28, the alleged leader of the band, his wife, Katina, 24, Andrew Mandres, 35, and John Bougousis, 34, his lieutenants, and fifteen others were taken into custody at a birthday party for Collins in a mid-town restaurant. Other arrests were made in lower Manhattan and it was understood that additional prisoners were taken in Brooklyn and New Jersey. Investigators said that quantities of narcotics were purchased in southern Europe and smuggled to the gang by seamen.

COMMITTEE CALLS FOE OF COMMUNIST

Gregory Bessedovsky, Leading Red Diplomat, To Testify Before House.

Washington, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Gregory Bessedovsky, former chargé d'affaires at the Soviet Embassy in Paris, who leaped into international prominence when he declined to return to Moscow a year ago to stand trial, has informed his friends here he is planning on coming to America within a month.

The House committee investigation of Communist activities in this country is anxious to have him testify. Bessedovsky was for years regarded as one of the outstanding members of the Russian Communist Party and a leading diplomat. He was appointed in 1926 as president of the Amtorg Trading Corporation in New York but was denied a visa by the American consul at Riga when it was ascertained he belonged to the Communist Party.

Disagrees With Moscow Last year in Paris when he took issue with certain Moscow policies, he was commended by return to Russia to stand trial for "counter-revolutionary activity." He declined to comply.

Escaping at night from the Soviet Embassy, Bessedovsky attacked the Soviet government in several articles that created a furor in Europe. Later he was charged by the Communists with having defrauded the Soviet government of funds.

Since then he has been writing books about the Soviet government. In these he related plans purported to have been laid by Moscow for him to assist in obtaining recognition of Russia by the United States.

Chairman Hamilton Fish said Bessedovsky was not now connected with the Communist Party and expressed confidence that the State Department would not object to issuing him a temporary visa.

BRIGADIER GENERAL KIDNAPED BY TRIO

Philadelphia, Nov. 12.—(AP)—State police today joined Philadelphia city and county authorities in their search for three youths, who last night kidnaped and robbed Brigadier-General Robert M. Brookfield, 57, commander of the 56th Infantry Brigade, Pennsylvania National Guard.

General Brookfield, a World War veteran and a leading figure in Pennsylvania military circles, had participated in Armistice Day ceremonies during the day. He was driving toward his home attired in civilian clothes when he consented to give a "lift" to three youths. Shortly after the trio entered the automobile a gun was pressed against the general's side and he was ordered: "Drive where I tell you."

Near the suburban town of Merion, General Brookfield was told to get out of the car. After taking his wallet, containing $45, the men ordered him from the car and then drove away.

General Brookfield, formerly a colonel of the 110th Infantry, served overseas during the World War with the 28th Division. He is professor of military strategy at Girard College and an instructor in mathematics at Central High school, this city.

POLA'S EX-HUSBAND IN FIGHT ON SHIP

New York, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Four minutes of fist-cuffing on the deck of the liner Franconia between Prince Serge Mdivani, Pola Negri's divorced husband, and Harry Robles, vaudeville actor, enlivened the trip for passengers of the vessel which docked today.

Both participants told reluctantly of the fight and said they were friends again. Prince Mdivani took exception to a remark made by Robles during a party aboard ship, and they settled the matter with their fists. The prince's upper lip was slightly cut.

Prince Mdivani booked passage as "S. Davis." Of his recent Paris divorce from Miss Negri he said: "I'm very glad it is all over. Miss Negri is a beautiful woman. It was a question of sharp difference in character and temperament. She was for art and I for business."

Manchester's Needy Cases

Case No. 3 Unemployment, coupled with sickness, lowers the spirits of parents, unlike any other circumstance. In most of these cases the children are of school age, and as in case No. 3 the father is sick and unable to work, if work was to be found, the mother, of course, has her hands full with five small children to care for and to feed.

Food is urgently needed in this case. Children, when healthy—and who would like to see them otherwise? are good eaters, and the allowance given by the town takes care of but the bare staples. There is nothing better than watching a child who is hungry eat to his heart's content.

At one of these homes the other day Miss Reynolds left a pie given by a local contributor. When the pie was undone those little children danced around the table and clapped their hands in glee.

"Oh, mama," they cried in unison, "we can have pie for supper now, can we?" Pie had not been on the table in that house in many a day.

If only for the sake of the large number of kiddies these are pertinent and accurate facts to consider while you are enjoying the best that the American consul at Riga when it was ascertained he belonged to the Communist Party.

HAWAIIAN PROGRAM AT "Y. W." MEETING

An unusual and interesting evening has been planned by the membership committee of the Hartford County Young Women's Christian Association for the members and friends of the Association through the districts surrounding Hartford, on Friday evening, November 21, at the Y. W. C. A. building at 262 Ann street.

The theme of Hawaii, the Crossroads of the Pacific, will be carried out in the supper at 6:30 and the program following.

The principal feature of the program will be a revue, "The Crossroads of the Pacific," written by Jane Loomis of Granby. The story of the love deals with the visit of a group of American travelers to Hawaii and the five scenes represent typical pictures of the cosmopolitan life of the islands.

Native music and dancing and picturesque costumes will lend much color to the presentation.

Miss Amy Pratt of South Glastonbury is general chairman for the evening. Mrs. Ernest Gage of Southfield will preside at the meeting. Miss Mary Gargan is in charge of the dances and Mrs. John Dunning of Granby and Miss Nancy Chamberlin of Windsor are directing the music.

Miss Margaret Gordon of the Enfield High school is coaching the dramatic parts. About fifty girls from the Girl Reserves Clubs of Glastonbury, Granby, Enfield and Thompsonville are taking part. The Hartford County Y. W. C. A. has clubs and other activities for the women and girls in twenty-nine communities.

BARGAIN MARRIAGE GIRL FACES JAIL SENTENCE

New York, Nov. 12.—(AP)—A girl who offered her hand in marriage for $1,000 faced a five-to-ten year prison sentence for fraud today.

A Queens county court convicted Sally Le Blanc, whose parents live in Oxford, Miss., yesterday. She advertised to wed anybody who would give $1,000 to her "aged and infirm mother." The girl used the name of "Ruth Miller" and a young Japanese, Suezki Suzuki, had her arrested at Bedford, Mass., after she vanished with his deposit of $750.

The 21 year old blonde blamed Jack Madeson and his wife, convicted with her, for her plight. All will be sentenced Nov. 21.

Both participants told reluctantly of the fight and said they were friends again. Prince Mdivani took exception to a remark made by Robles during a party aboard ship, and they settled the matter with their fists. The prince's upper lip was slightly cut.

COL. ISHAM BUYS BOSWELL PAPERS

New Literary Treasure Discovered In Italy — 107 Pages of Manuscripts.

New York, Nov. 12.—(AP)—A musty, treasured and hitherto unknown collection of James Boswell's original manuscripts on the career of Dr. Samuel Johnson is on the high seas, bound for America. Col. Ralph H. Isham has acquired the papers from Lord Talbot de Malahide, a descendant of Boswell, from whom he secured a similar collection in 1927. They include 107 pages of the original of "The Life of Samuel Johnson," the complete original of "The Journal of a Tour to the Hebrides," a projected outline of a biography of Lord James and numerous letters between the writer and his biographer, Col. Isham said.

While he did not divulge the consideration paid, Col. Isham said the collection might overshadow in value his previous acquisition, which was described by scholars at the time as the find of the century and which a New York book dealer had priced at $80,000. Col. Isham has steadfastly refused to part with any of the Boswell data.

Valuable Find The material on the "Life of Samuel Johnson" is considered the most noteworthy of the discoveries because it was believed that only 16 pages of the manuscript survived. "The Journal of a Trip to the Hebrides" is the most interesting due to its narrative and conversational account of a journey made by Boswell and Johnson in 1773. About one third of it was not included in the first edition which was published in 1785.

The desire of Lord Talbot's guest at Malahide Castle to play a game of croquet led to the discovery. The servants were sent to locate the mallets, wickets and balls—and they found two boxes in a damp dungeon. One contained croquet equipment and the other contained a mass of yellow, crumbling papers. The castle had previously been ransacked in search of such a treasure and it was believed that every existing scrap had been turned up.

Col. Isham said the new material probably will necessitate the addition of one or two volumes to "The Private Papers of James Boswell," which will be provided without further cost to subscribers. When this is completed a popular edition will be issued, he said.

Meteor Crater, near Winslow, Ariz., was produced by about 300,000 tons of meteors, in a close swarm, exploding as they hit the earth with a force as violent as 400,000,000 tons of high explosives, according to Dr. Forest R. Moulton, former University of Chicago professor.

To Be Speaker Before Chamber

Above is Roscoe H. Goddard, executive secretary of the Worcester, Mass., Chamber of Commerce, and president of the New England Association of Commercial Executives. He will be the principle speaker at the 30th annual meeting of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce to be held at the Masonic Temple, Monday evening, November 17. His subject will be "A Nation of Joiners." Goddard is also an instructor at the Northwestern University summer school which Secretary E. J. McCabe attended last summer.

LANGUAGE PROBLEM DISRUPTS BELGIUM

Brussels, Nov. 12.—(AP)—King Albert today received the speaker and party leaders of both houses of Parliament for consultations looking toward a solution of the Cabinet crisis which came to a head yesterday with the resignation of the entire ministry over the troublesome language issue.

The Catholic press has laid the blame upon the Cabinet for yielding to the injunctions of the local federation on a purely administrative matter, but the Liberals assert that a question of principle is involved and appear ready for a showdown at this time on Belgium's language problems.

The Cabinet split on the issue of the use of the Flemish language, which is spoken in the northern part of Belgium, and in the higher departments of the schools, where French is the approved language.

It is agreed that a New Catholic Liberal coalition Cabinet is possible only if complete accord is reached beforehand on a solution of the linguistic question in education.

As for that new black derby Al Smith wore at the polls, the Democrats are convinced it had a silver lining.

Savants Banish Monkeys; They Cannot Catch Colds

Baltimore, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Because they would not catch cold, three gibbons used in the five-year common cold research at Johns Hopkins Medical School have been banished to the National Zoo at Washington, and chimpanzees are to be given a chance to sniffle for the sake of science.

Dr. Perrin H. Long, one of the group whose endeavor to trace the cause and find the cure of the common cold is financed by a $195,000 fund has gone to New York with Dr. Adolph Schultz, Johns Hopkins anthropologist, to buy a number of chimpanzees for the research work. "Of course I don't say that gibbons can't catch cold, but these certainly didn't, and they were given every opportunity," said Dr. Long.

Dr. Long and Dr. James A. Doull, formerly head of the research group, recently announced that the infecting agent in the cold is a virus so fine that it defies microscopes and filters.

fact that India has reached a distinctive point in her constitutional evolution...

Civil Disorders

"Civil disorders is the way of reaction. It destroys social mentality from which all constitutional development derives its source...

"Could any issues be more momentous? Could any be more enticing to men who love to make the rough places smooth? We must bring to our task all the resources of mutual trust, of practical sagacity, and of statesmanship."

"At there is much to give us confidence in our ultimate success. This is not the time for receding, to say nothing of prejudicing, our problems. We shall meet them as we proceed. Let us face them as men determined to surmount them."

"What problems of growth and development in liberty and institutions have our peoples not faced? And united we remain in our diversities by our skill in harmonizing differences by reasonable mutual accommodation."

"This gathering itself surely is a heartening promise. His majesty's presence at the opening of our deliberations enabled us to understand both the strength and flexibility of the bond which unites our whole community of nations together in loyalty and devotion to the crown. The attendance of the representatives of the dominion governments is an attest of the interest and good will with which the sister states in the commonwealth will follow our labors."

steps in progressive northern states."

Amos W. W. Woodcock, prohibition director, who was summoned from the west by the Department of Justice, reached Washington today, but declined to talk for publication until after he had conferred with Attorney General Mitchell.

Woodcock said he did not know what information the attorney general wished for him.

Works Successfully The director reported that his tour of the United States had convinced him the present system of enforcing prohibition was the best that could be devised. He visited northern Indiana, Illinois, and California on his last trip and said he found cooperation of state officials good in those places.

He said the attorney general probably wants him to appear before a Congressional committee to testify regarding the necessity of additional funds and more agents. He added the 500 men he asked for recently were urgently needed.

MAYOR AS WITNESS

New York, Nov. 12—(AP)—Mayor James J. Walker signed a waiver of immunity today and went before the Extraordinary Grand Jury investigating charges of judicial corruption to tell about his appointment of former Magistrate George F. Ewald to the bench in 1927.

The mayor's testimony was understood to be along the lines of what he told a County Grand Jury several months ago in connection with charges against Ewald, who has since been indicted with three others by the Extraordinary Grand Jury on charges of office buying.

Mayor Walker told the County Grand Jury that his appointment of Ewald was based solely on a recommendation in a letter sent him by the Stuyvesant Society.

A contract was signed yesterday placing the government in possession of fifty thousand square feet of land on property formerly used by a hating concern.

The personnel for headquarters will come from the governmental laboratories at Toledo, Ohio, to be consolidated with the force moved here from Boston.

maple sugar and 8 cents on maple syrup in contrast to the present duty of 8 cents and 5.5 cents, respectively.

Importer's Views

John Paton of New York, an importer, said conditions under the Smoot-Hawley tariff which such tobacco companies, large users of the product, were considering substitutes unless the duty was changed.

Acting as counsel for the importers, Everett Sanders, former secretary to President Coolidge, presented sworn statements from Canadian officials to refute claims the Canadian government was paying bounties to Canadian maple producers to increase production.

Canada's Side

He read a statement from Joseph Lavoie, an auditor employed by the provincial government of Quebec to audit the Quebec Maple Sugar Producers Society, in which Lavoie asserted the Canadian government "has no appropriation up to the present date to come to the aid of maple syrup and maple sugar producers."

"For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930," the statement from Lavoie said, "there was authorized a loan to the society from the government of an amount equal to two cents on each pound of production of maple sugar, provided a similar loan would be made to the society by its willing members of one cent per pound. The total amount loaned by the government under this proposal was $31,016."

Despite precautions taken by the police the anti-conference demonstrators attempted to stage a procession through the city but were dispersed by the mounted constabulary.

MOTHER DIES ALSO

Providence, R. I., Nov. 12—(AP)—A mother who saw her husband and twins die as a result of a gasoline fire in the cellar of her house on October 31, joined them today in death. She succumbed at the Rhode Island hospital from burns and shock. The mother, Rosie Fracasso, 35, followed in death her husband Luigi, who succumbed on the day following the fire and the twins who were born at the hospital the next day and lived but one hour after birth.

The fire occurred as Fracasso, anticipating a birth in his family, was cleaning out an oil barrel with gasoline, preparatory to installing an oil burner. The gasoline was suddenly ignited.

ADDRESS OF KING BROADCAST TO U. S.

posing the Parliament in whose precincts we are assembled. "More than once the sovereign has summoned the senators on the side of India, but never before have the British and Indian statesmen and rulers of Indian states met as you now meet in one place and around one table to discuss the future system of government for India and seek agreement for the guidance of our Parliament as to the foundations upon which it must stand."

Growth of Ideas "Nearly ten years ago in a message to my Indian Legislature, I dwelt upon the significance of its establishment in the constitution prevalent in India. Ten years is but a brief span in the life of any nation, but this decade has witnessed not only in India, but throughout all the nations forming the British Commonwealth, a quickening and growth in ideas and aspirations of nationhood which defy the customary measurement of time. It should therefore be no matter of surprise to the men of this generation that as we then contemplated it should have become necessary and review the results of what was begun ten years ago and to make further provision for the future."

"With such a review as has been later carried out by the commission appointed by me for that purpose you will have before you the outcome of their labors together with other contributions which have been or can be made to the solution of the great problem confronting you. No words of mine are needed to bring home to you the momentous character of the task to which you have set your hands. Each one of you will, with me, be profoundly conscious how much depends to the whole of the British Commonwealth on the issue of your consultations. This community of interest leads me to come forth and it is a happy augury that there should be present today the representatives of your government in all the sister states of this Commonwealth. "I shall follow the course of your proceedings with the closest and most sympathetic interest, not indeed without anxiety, but with a great confidence. The material conditions which surround the lives of my subjects in India affect me greatly and will ever be present in my thoughts during your forthcoming deliberations. "I have also in mind the just claims of majorities and minorities of men and women of town dwellers and tillers of the soil, land owners and tenants, of the strong and the weak, of the rich and the poor, of the races, castes and creeds of which the nation forming the British Commonwealth, a quickening and growth in ideas and aspirations of nationhood which defy the customary measurement of time. It should therefore be no matter of surprise to the men of this generation that as we then contemplated it should have become necessary and review the results of what was begun ten years ago and to make further provision for the future."

move it because of the water shipped. The pilot house, then the superstructure, were torn away as gigantic seas swamped the vessel, he said.

"The next time the Brooklyn turned over, she came keel up," he said. "The men climbed the side and caught hold of the keel. I saw skipper (Captain T. J. Turfesson) in the water and some of the men alongside of him."

A wave struck the hull, sweeping Greve and his mates into the water.

Finds Wreckage "I swam as far as I could from the wreckage," he said. "Later I found a piece of bulkhead, four feet wide and eight feet long with a beam six by six inches standing out two feet on each side. Then I took in two pieces of one by four inches plank I used them for paddles."

He said he was carried 20 miles from the scene of the wreck Saturday night. He could see a light flickering and "yelled until I thought my lungs would burst, but no one seemed to hear me."

Meanwhile in San Francisco, his wife, Mrs. Louise Greve had refused to relinquish the idea that "the sea can't kill him."

"May your discussion point the way to a sure achievement of this end and may your names go down in history as men who served India well and whose endeavors advanced the happiness and prosperity of all of my beloved people. I pray that providence may grant you in bounteous measure wisdom, patience and good will."

The story of the beating was corroborated, the American says, by the girl's sister and classmate Elizabeth.

MANUFACTURERS MEET

Stores, Nov. 12—(AP)—The Manufacturers Association of Connecticut came up in the country today to hold its annual meeting. The gathering was right in the midst of the institution which seeks to turn out farmers who have been scientifically trained. The incentive to come here, aside from the responsibility—a member feels of attending the annual meeting to elect officers and hear the report, was the opportunity to see an agricultural college at work and to enjoy the frills which had been prepared by the reception committee.

It was quite a layout of attractions which the members found upon arrival. Business, a military drill by the R. O. T. C., a few minutes with the football squad, an old fashioned sing in the armory, a luncheon at noon at which U. S. Senator Hiram Bingham was the speaker, and an organ recital at the community church.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CELIA MITCHELL, 17, leaves Baltimore where she has lived with her seamstress mother, MARGARET ROGERS, to join her wealthy father, JOHN MITCHELL, in New York. The parents are divorced and Mrs. Rogers is a widow following second marriage.

BARNEY SHIELDS, young newspaper photographer, is in love with the girl. Mitchell asks EVELYN PARSONS, beautiful widow, to introduce his daughter to other young people. Mrs. Parsons agrees, considering Celia a means to win Mitchell's affections.

She soon becomes jealous of the girl and schemes to get rid of her by encouraging her to marry a man named JORDAN, fascinating but of dubious character.

Although Mitchell forbids Celia to see Jordan she goes about with the young man frequently. LISA DUNY CAN, a girl of Celia's age, becomes her loyal friend. Shields comes to New York to work for a photographic service and meets Celia. She tells him she has lost her heart to Jordan, but later realizes it is Shields whom she loves.

Mrs. Parsons goes to Mitchell and tells him the girl has been meeting Shields surreptitiously. Father and daughter quarrel and Celia leaves for Baltimore. Her mother is not there and all clues to Mrs. Rogers whereabouts are lost. Mitchell arrives and Celia becomes reconciled and returns to New York after he has promised to locate Mrs. Rogers. Meanwhile, Mrs. Parsons invites Shields to dinner and tells him Celia is to marry Jordan. Later when Celia telephoned the young man avoids an appointment. Celia and Lisa go to a matinee and encounter Jordan, who takes them to tea. All three are together when they meet Shields.

Celia leaves the others to talk to Shields. The interview ends with the understanding that all is over between them. That evening Mrs. Parsons announces to Celia that Mitchell has asked her to marry him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER LIII

"You mean—" Celia began and then she stopped. From the expression of Evelyn Parsons' face she was no doubt that what the woman said was true.

Mrs. Parsons laughed and the sound was strident. "I mean just what I said," Evelyn continued. "Your father has asked me to be his wife—and I have accepted. I must say I'm disappointed, Celia. You don't look very pleased!"

The girl was staring at her. For a moment she said nothing. Then she leaned forward eyeing Evelyn appealingly and the words burst forth:

"But I thought—I mean when mother comes back—oh, Evelyn, it wouldn't be right! You wouldn't do such a thing! Mother loves him still, I know she does!"

Evelyn's shoulders straightened. "So you disapprove," she said coldly. "Really, my dear, I think it would have been more polite if you concealed your feelings. After all, your father and I are both grown adults able to think for ourselves. Do you have any idea you disliked me so much?"

"Oh, it isn't that! Of course I don't dislike you. Please don't think me ungrateful for all you've done! But don't you see what they both mean to do to Mother?"

"There is no need for you to say any more. And I shall tell you frankly that if your mother were in this very room tonight begging me to give him up it would not alter my plans in the slightest. Do you think I'd let your father make a fool of himself over that woman a second time? Do you think I have no feelings? No rights? Why do you cling to this ridiculous notion that your father and mother separated when you were a child, would be any happier together now? I tell you it's preposterous. They made one mistake, discovered it and parted. Do you think you could possibly bring them together again?"

"Mrs. Parsons' eyes flashed. Anger had gotten the better of her usual suavity. The exhibition of temper held Celia spellbound.

"John and I love each other," Evelyn went on. "I will be useless for you to attempt to interfere. John's been devoted to me for years. Really, Celia, I should think you'd consider his happiness even if you do dislike me!"

"You mustn't say that, Evelyn. I do like you. It's just that it's such a surprise. I was startled."

"But why should you be surprised? Surely you must have known he was fond of me. Why I've been putting him off for months! I had to respect Dwight's memory but it's a year since he left me—practically a year. John and Dwight were such friends. That's one reason I feel the hand of fate is guiding me. Of course it will be some time before the engagement can even be announced. You must promise me, Celia, not to speak of it!"

"I won't tell anyone," Celia agreed.

"It would mortify me frightfully if the news got out. Of course I felt that you should know at once. I'm glad you told me," the girl said slowly. "I suppose it changes everything, doesn't it?"

"Well, in some ways. In the first place I shall insist that John must stop killing himself in that office. He's made himself a slave and it's because there's been no one to guard his health and mind. I'm planning six months abroad immediately after we're married. The Orient would be a wonderful change for him, don't you think so? I'm sure it would do him good. And everything will work out nicely because you can stay with your grandmother. I'm sure you'd prefer to be in town anyhow and when we're here I'll probably spend most of our time at Lakewood. Really, I think it's only fair to you. You'll develop so much more without having to depend upon."

Celia was silent.

Mrs. Parsons had recovered her composure. After a moment she said softly, "Celia, you're going to wish us happiness, aren't you? And you're going to be marrying one of these days yourself."

"I wish you every happiness."

"But, my dear, you don't seem very cheerful!"

"The girl's eyelashes lowered. "I keep thinking about my mother," she said. "Father promised me he'd do everything in the world to find her."

"Then he'll keep his promise. Naturally your father would allow the woman who was once his wife to remain in town. You know him well enough for that!"

"For an instant, their eyes met. "Do you love him a great deal?" Celia asked tremulously.

"Oh, my dear—if you only knew!"

The girl rose and walked to the window which faced westward. She could stare there with her back toward Evelyn, pretending to look out at the night until she forced the tears back. There was a great deal to be said on her cheek. Celia brushed them aside casually. Then she turned.

"I didn't make plans for the evening," Mrs. Parsons said, glancing up, "because I thought it would be a great deal to both of us to meet at this hour. It makes me happy to know you're looking at the situation unselfishly."

"The date found its target. "I suppose I have been selfish," Celia admitted, "but I didn't mean to be. I must see father tomorrow and congratulate him."

Evelyn started. "Oh, no! Promise me you won't do that," she exclaimed. "You see, dear, I have a confession. Your father expected me to tell you the news. I agreed but afterward when he said he didn't want you to know until just before the announcement was made public I felt he was wrong. That's why I made up my mind to tell you myself. Of course, I can't blame John! He doesn't understand how a girl would feel about such a thing."

"Oh, I see."

The quick glance of Evelyn Parsons' face was apprehensive. "You are glad I told you, aren't you?" she asked.

"Of course."

"I was sure of it. It's just the sort of thing you could expect from a man who stands together. Do you think you wouldn't let him dream you suspected, will you?"

"Well, I'll do the best I can to keep him from guessing."

"That's a dear girl. You see, you and I must stand together. And when he says to give me your word, Celia, that you won't mention anything I've said to your father."

"Word of Honor."

Evelyn heaved a little sigh and smiled. "I wonder what I did, with that book on contract bridge that Fannie loaned me," she said after an interval. "Have you seen it anywhere?"

Celia shook her head. "I'll help you look," she offered.

"It didn't prove useful in the search. Mrs. Parsons found the volume without assistance and settled down with it before a reading lamp. Celia chose a magazine and curled up on theavenport. She opened the pages and looked down at them but the lines of type might have been invisible. She neither read nor saw them. Her hands were icy and Celia clenched them together. The pain in her heart had begun again.

Everything was lost. Everything in the world that she cared about was gone. With Barney beside her Celia felt she could have faced her father's remarriage, even though it severed ties from Margaret Rogers. Now what was there left?

At the earliest possible moment the girl excused herself. Before she left the room Evelyn Parsons drew Celia down beside her and kissed the girl's forehead. "Happy dreams, dear," she said smiling.

"Good night!" Celia replied and went to her bedroom.

She undressed and got into bed but she could not sleep. It was toward dawn when at last she drifted off into troubled slumber. She awoke as she awoke late next morning and there were shadows under the brown eyes.

After she had breakfasted Celia moved about restlessly. At 11 o'clock she put on her hat and told Mrs. Parsons she was going for a walk.

"Order lunch for whenever you like," Evelyn called. "I shan't be here."

Celia's answer was an inaudible murmur as she let herself out of the apartment. She took the elevator to the street and walked to Fifth avenue. There she mounted a bus and rode to the building where John Mitchell's law office was located. Celia had been there only twice before.

She gave her name to the girl in the reception room. Five minutes later a tall, dark-haired young woman appeared, smiling. She was John Mitchell's secretary.

"Miss Mitchell?" the young woman said, approaching Celia. "I'm sorry. Your father isn't in."

"Oh!"

"Is there anything you'd like to have me tell him?"

"When do you think he'll be back?"

"Well, really, it's doubtful. It's almost noon now and he has a luncheon engagement. I don't know just when to expect him. His business had had enough through training to know that confidential secretaries were likely to be thoroughly informed on their employers' personal as well as professional affairs. Miss Roberts, who stood before her, was a confidential secretary.

"Could I come into your office for a minute?" Celia asked.

"Certainly."

The two went into a small inner room. Celia hesitated. Then she said, "You probably know father's trying to locate my mother. Has there been any word yet?"

A look of quick sympathy crossed the older girl's face. She shook her head.

"We haven't heard anything yet," she said. "He was expecting a message all day yesterday but it didn't come. I'm sure he'll let you know as soon as there's anything definite."

"Then I guess that's all. Thank you very much."

Celia turned and left the office. She rode uptown and returned to the apartment. She was there at 10 minutes after three that afternoon when the maid announced there was a young man to see her.

DR. C. R. LAYTON DEAD; STATE DEPT. AUDITOR

Georgetown, Del., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Dr. Caleb Rodney Layton, former Representative from Delaware who served as secretary of the state of Delaware and as auditor of several other departments at Washington, died today after a long illness. He was 79.

In 1905 he became auditor in the State Department at Washington and served as auditor of several other departments there by appointment of President Roosevelt and Taft. He was a member of the 66th and 67th Congresses. From 1891 to 1905 he was editor of the Union Republic, a weekly newspaper here.

Dr. Layton was born at Frankford, Del., and was a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania Medical School.

He was married twice, three children surviving from the first marriage. His second wife, who was Miss Fannie Herrington, of Dover, also survives. For 25 years before her marriage she was in charge of the office of secretary of state in Dover and for some time held the title of secretary of state.

Santo Domingo, capital of the Dominican Republic, is the oldest city in the New World settled by Europeans. Founded by Christopher Columbus in 1492, it is the oldest white settlement on the mainland of the Americas.

COMFORTABLE CORNER MARKS WOMAN'S PLACE IN HOME

It Should Reflect Personality and Be Restful.

For the woman of the house, a cozy chair such as the one shown here is covered with hand-blocked, dull-surfaced material, in a flower-pot design. The rug is red and beige and the table, foot-stool and wall book-case are painted the rust red.

New York, Nov. 10.—From time immemorial the man of the house has deserved and usually gotten his cozy corner, a spot where he could read or smoke in peace, sure that no one else would occupy his chair.

It is modern today for the woman of the house to have her niche. Even if she has to make it for herself, and of course she usually does. A chair is not an expensive furnished cozy nook. But it must be comfortable, have within reach the things she is likely to want when resting, and be attractive enough to make her crave a certain amount of leisure each day.

Since winter is the leisure time of the year, the season when staying-in is often the most desirable way of spending one's time, it is the logical time to build up this cozy nook.

Chair Is First Requirement

To begin with you need a comfortable chair. If you want a chair lounge, so much the better. Nothing equals the chair lounge for relaxing comfort. But you may have neither the space nor the money for a chair lounge. Recover to suit your leisure moods and there you are.

A slip cover for an old arm chair is not so hard to make. Have one with a decorative shade, for this corner should be a little dressey.

Wall Shelf for Books

And you should have a book shelf near at hand. A wall shelf conserves space and is decorative as well. Here you should have the latest detective story or novel, and a couple of entertaining magazines. Paint it the color of the background or your chair and then it will seem an intimate part of the nook's composition.

This is the kind of a woman's niche that will fit into any room. If you happen to have a living room large enough to devote part of it to yourself alone, that is the best place for this leisure hour spot. But the corner of the dining room is quite as good, or the bedroom, or even the kitchen, if you live in a house that has an old-fashioned kitchen with some room to spare.

Where you put it is immaterial. The fact of having a little place all your own to encourage you to rest and relax is the main thing. You will be surprised how you point up your work to leave you time enough to occupy this pleasant corner. You will be delighted with the refreshing effect it has upon your mental and physical self.

WHAT New York IS WEARING

By Anabelle Worthington

Illustrated Dressmaking Lesson Furnished with Every Pattern

The jumper effect makes this model outstandingly popular.

It is one of the cutest ideas of the season.

The Peter Pan collar and turn-back cuffs add a neat tailored finish. The kilted plaits at each side of the front sway so prettily when the little wearer moves. The back is gathered to a yoke because plaits at the back crush so readily.

It is a simple dress to launder, and remarkably easy to make it.

It's adorably smart as sketched in French blue cotton broadcloth speckled in navy blue. The vest, collar and cuffs are white broadcloth. The tie is navy blue grosgrain ribbon.

Style No. 2811 is designed for small folk of 2, 4 and 6 years.

Size 4 requires 2 1/8 yards 35-inch with 1-2 yard 35-inch contrasting.

Yellow linen with brown polka-dots and brown linen contrast is cute.

Rose dotted swiss with white organdy, Nile green wool jersey with white pique and sprigged dimity with plain white are lovely combinations.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Once upon a time we were told to eat the crusts of bread to make roses in our cheeks.

And the flowers that bloom on our skins are as important as they ever were.

Rouge should be the first article of make-up applied, after the foundation cream.

Placing of rouge is an art that must be developed according to the shape of your face. If you have a normal oval face, apply the rouge, triangle fashion, from the temple toward the nose and thence to the ear. The deepest 'int' belongs in the center of the cheek.

If your face is round you will get an oval effect by placing your rouge high up on the cheek bones just beneath the eyes and close to the nose. Thus, added light is acquired.

The long face requires its rouge applied low on the face, and over a rather large surface. It should be deepest on the lower part of the cheeks and lighter towards the temple.

If you aren't sure just what type of face you have, locate your natural color and let it guide you in placing rouge. To do this bathe the face for a minute or two in very hot water and press your face, still hot, into it. Watch your color while your face is drying. Incidentally this method will aid you in determining the shade of color best suited to the cheeks and lighter towards the temple.

Fill the cheeks with air, giving a balloon effect, before applying rouge, and you will secure a much more even effect.

Cream rouge gives a more lasting and natural result than compact rouge. It should be applied with the third finger of the right hand in three small dots which form a triangle. The second finger is necessary to blend it.

If you have a dimple in the chin a dab of rouge in its center will intensify it. A touch of rouge should appear on the lobes of the ears, if they show, especially in the evening.

If your eyes are large and bright you can rouge very brilliantly.

Smaller, softer eyes can't stand so much. It will detract from their beauty.

Rouging the chin shortens a very long face, and a touch of pink on the lobes of the ears narrows a wide face.

Since red raspberry rouge is easiest to wear, as a rule, you will be safe in choosing it, unless you have very fair skin. Geranium shades suit the fair skins and brunet rouge is made especially for women with rich glow.

Instead of just a table for magazines or books, have a table with a lift lid and a place inside it for a little sewing. Many times you may feel like resting, but not reading. Having a little sewing handy may rest your mind and relax your nerves.

Of course you must have a light near at hand. A bridge lamp that can be adjusted to high light for reading or low light for sewing is the best kind. Have one with a feminine-looking shade, for this corner should be a little dressey.

Public Service Co. Aids Pneumonia Sufferers

New York, Nov. 12.—(AP)—A general attack upon pneumonia through use of inhalators of a public service company began here today.

Inhalators give a mixture of oxygen, carbon dioxide, and have been used with marked success upon some types of pneumonia, particularly among new born babies.

Experiments also have been under way in various cities trying inhalators on the common type of pneumonia which sweeps the country each winter among adults, and which in most communities carries the highest death rate of all diseases for a short time during late winter.

The New York Edison Company announced last night that its inhalators henceforth are at the call of the medical profession for fighting pneumonia. The company has spent $100,000 to develop the electric shock.

Matthew S. Sloan, president, said 127 such pneumonia cases had been treated, and that of 85 who received treatment in the preliminary stage 70 recoveries had been reported.

Carbon dioxide is the substance which makes the "fizz" in soda water, and is also the gas exhaled normally from the lungs. It has a stimulating effect upon lungs which have collapsed.

MARCUS DALY DIES ON A HUNTING TRIP

New York, Nov. 12.—(AP)—The sudden death of Marcus Daly, son of the Anaconda Copper king, on a hunting trip in Virginia was announced today at the office of the state health department. Heart disease was given as the cause. The financier who was 49 left New York for the Holly Island Club off the Virginia coast on Saturday night. He was then in excellent health and his death was a tremendous shock to members of his family, among whom is Mrs. James W. Gerard, wife of the former ambassador to Germany and Mrs. Daly's sister.

Details of Mr. Daly's death were lacking, but the body was on its way north.

MAKE IT YOURSELF

Husbands, fathers, brothers and boy friends all will appreciate a traveling case for their best shirts for a Christmas gift.

These cases, of course, can be used to keep a dress shirt immaculately clean at home. But they are especially good for men who travel.

To make a shirt case, you make an envelope bag just the size of a folded shirt as it comes from the laundry, which is approximately nine inches wide and 19 1/2 inches long. If you have your bag finished 10 inches by 20, the shirt will slip easily, or two can be put into one case. Do not line the case. Finish all seams with French seaming. Use a plain glazed chamois, a figured silk or linen or even plain colorful chambray or gingham for the case. If you want a very pretty one, black satin, monogrammed, is lovely.

Make a flap on the envelope case and fasten with a button and button-hole, or a snap. Do not try to tie it shut, for while this may be pretty, no man wants to tie things in bows.

HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHERMAN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

The mental progress of the child and its muscular development proceed normally at such a rate that the average infant is held its head up at about the third month.

About the same time he can begin to grasp objects but not to coordinate accurately. Thus, he will sometimes put in his eye that which he aims at his mouth.

By the age of six months, he can reach for objects and begin to grasp properly at distances. By the seventh month, the normal infant can sit alone. It cannot sit steadily until the eighth or ninth month.

The average infant tries to creep by the end of the ninth month and to walk by the end of the first year. A normal infant can recognize its mother around the third or fourth month and begin to understand words at the end of the 10th month. It will try to speak a few words at the end of the first year.

There is, however, a great deal of difference among infants as to the time when they begin to speak and the time when they begin to put words together in order to make phrases in short sentences. Usually the infant can make a short sentence by the end of two years.

If the nutrition of the child is poor, it certainly will not progress as rapidly physically or mentally as one that is fed properly and that absorbs the food that is given to it. Thus a child three years old that suffers from rickets may be unable to walk, or even sit alone.

The average person may believe that the child is defective mentally, whereas the only difficulty may be the fact that it has not been properly fed or that it has failed to absorb the food that is given to it.

Just as soon as such children are given proper amounts of proteins, carbohydrates and fats; as soon as they receive the mineral salts necessary for proper building of blood and of bones; as soon as their vitamin deficiencies are supplied through the giving of cod liver oil, orange juice, liver and sufficient amounts of such vegetables as lettuce, spinach, cabbage, string beans and similar substances, they begin to show rapid development of the muscles, fat develops under the skin and co-ordinately the mind shows improvement, which is proof of the fact that there has been no actual mental deficiency, but only delay because of improper nutrition.

YOUR CHILDREN

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
© 1930 by NEA SERVICE, INC.

We know now that fear is the greatest handicap of the human race. Spiritually, mentally dead. Breaking "spirit" does not happen always after a child has developed will, but too frequently before the child has had a chance to sprout. Let will develop. A character without it is watery and insipid. Guide it, suggest it, get its co-operation, but do not kill it. With justice and reason and love on both sides, there will be little trouble.

Older people can make their own adjustments to that. But with children we cannot have the discipline of fear without injuring the tender fabric of emotional and mental stability. After that, when they are grown, let them develop whatever thousands and one fears they like. They are formed by that time and there is less danger of breaking down something infinitely precious in their minds.

Fear in childhood has no place. Respect is different; a healthy regard for authority because authority is right, but not dread of it.

And so we now look at discipline from this angle.

These points we have: the best discipline is obtained by early start, regular habit, praise, co-operation, and few commands well chosen that permit a certain freedom of action within their circle. Also gradually educating the child into the meaning of what is right and what is wrong as he develops mentally and can understand. He won't learn all at once and he must be told many many times over.

Now we shall see what fear does. A little child misbehaves. Perhaps he does something for the first time.

He is scolded, perhaps smacked. He is told, "You must not do that."

Very well, he discovers now that unpleasantness goes with certain things he does, but he is confused. Some things are all right. He never gets punished for them. But others, to his perplexity, bring swift retribution.

This is not surprising because he has not reached the stage where he can tell by his own reasoning what is good and what is wrong. Child of two or three reasons very little.

As he is powerless to tell the difference, he lumps them all. He makes up his mind after a few punishments that he must either do things secretly without being discovered or that he must lie. Both fatal things, of course.

That is one black mark against early fear-discipline. Another is that if he is pliable enough he will lose all interest in experimenting, and experiment is his natural birthright and a normal process. The death of self-confidence is spelled right here. He becomes a quiet lit-

QUICK COMFORT FOR STOMACH ILLS IN DIAPEPSIN!

"I want to tell every stomach sufferer about my experience with Pape's Diapepsin," says Clarence E. Kites, popular conductor of 821 1/2 Eye St., S. E., Washington, D. C. "I tried a lot of things for indigestion, but nothing really helped until I was persuaded to try Diapepsin."

"Now I even eat cabbage without any distress afterwards. It used to cause real suffering. I am not bloated after meals like I used to be; feel much stronger and better in every way."

A medicine must have real merit to bring forth enthusiastic statements like this. And when not one, but hundreds, even thousands, are telling the same story of success, there seems no reason to doubt the day-in and day-out reliability of Pape's Diapepsin to help stomach sufferers.

These harmless, candy-like tablets, which relieve the heartburn, nausea, belching, headaches, dizziness, gas and other symptoms of indigestion or "acid-dyspepsia" so quickly and pleasantly, are swiftly becoming the world's most popular remedy for digestive ills. Millions of boxes are used yearly! All drug stores sell them or, if you prefer to try them before buying, write "Pape's Diapepsin," Wheeling, W. Va., and you will receive a sample box, FREE.

Comparative scores often are misleading. But it is always interesting to draw comparisons along this line. In this respect the Majors appear to be much the stronger team.

most embarrassing to the Majors who for the first time in years enter the series as the overwhelming favorites.

There is a possibility that Coach Tom Kelley is keeping something up his sleeve; that the Cubs may rise to unexpected heights in the coming battles with the Majors, but those who have watched the Cubs closely during the past few weeks find it hard to visualize any such drastic transformation.

Many of the Majors watched the Cubs and Maple Ends battle yesterday and probably became more confident of a forthcoming north end victory in the titular series. In this connection, there is the remote possibility that over-confidence will be a serious handicap to the Majors.

Here's the complete record of the Majors and Cubs as the opening game of the series next Sunday at Mt. Nebo draws to hand:

NO MORE SCRIMMAGES FOR THE YALE ELEVEN

New Haven, Nov. 12.—(AP)—With the exception of Lindbergh and Al Beane, Coach Mal Stevens has his entire Yale football squad in shape for the Princeton and Harvard games and he doesn't intend to take any chances on losing any players because of injuries.

For the remainder of the season, the Elis will get plenty of football practice. Stevens has announced that there will be no more scrimmages during practices.

McLennan, who returned to the squad this week, is expected to start as quarterback Saturday against Princeton. This will permit Stevens to hold Albie Booth in reserve. Taylor, Parker and Crowley will probably be in the backfield with McLennan.

Y. M. C. A. BASKETBALL

Notices have gone out from the office of the Hartford County Y. M. C. A., calling a meeting of representatives of all the teams entered in the Hartford County Y. M. C. A. Basketball League this coming season, for Tuesday evening, November 18, at 7:30 o'clock at the Association's headquarters in Hartford.

Teams entered in the senior league include the New Britain South Church (champions of last year's league), Hazardville R. C. A., West Avon Boys' Club, Highland Park Community Club, Wapping Y. M. C. A., Southington Y. M. C. A., and the Bristol Boys' Club; in the intermediate league, New Britain South Church, Addison Boys' Club, Kensington Boys' Club, New Britain 1st Baptist Church, Wapping Y. M. C. A., and the Bristol Boys' Club.

The senior league is in charge of Kermot E. Parker of New Britain, while C. W. Laughton, New Britain, will direct the activities of the intermediate league.

Joe Canade Named Head Of Commercial Bowlers

At a meeting held in Farr's alleys after the Commercial League games were bowled Monday night, Joe Canade was elected secretary and treasurer.

The meeting was then called to order and the following rules and distribution of prizes was agreed upon by the different captains:

1. Four points will be awarded for each match, one each for games and one for pinfall.
2. In case of the games in either the first or second game, the first two boxes of the succeeding game will decide the previous game. If the last game is tied, two boxes will be bowled to decide the winner.
3. Teams may use but one dummy score, said dummy score to be the low score of the opposing team.
4. Teams starting with four men may put a fifth man in the game if he is in time to take his regular turn in the fifth or sixth boxes; otherwise they must finish the game with four men.
5. A player starting a game cannot have a substitute relieve him during the game except in case of an accident.
6. Games will start at 8 o'clock, a leeway of 15 minutes will be given for tardy arrivals.
7. Games maybe postponed only by consent of both opposing captains, otherwise they may claim 4 points to claim forfeit games teams must bowl their three strings. In case of postponed games, they must be bowled within a period of one week from date of postponement.
8. All teams will be allowed a limit of ten players. Team captains to enter five or more names by Nov. 17, and the total by the end of the first round.

The league will bowl four rounds so that each team will bowl the same number of games on each alley.

To become eligible for individual prizes a bowler must bowl 75 percent of the games and the last six games. Sickness or death in the family will be the only reason for not bowling the last six games, but in any case 75 percent of the total games must be bowled.

After the individual prizes are paid the balance of the money will be divided as follows for team prizes:

High team three strings	$15.00
High team single	10.00
Individual three strings	10.00
Individual single strings	5.00
First average	15.00
Second average	12.50
Third average	10.00
Fourth average	7.50
Fifth average	5.00
Sixth average	4.00
Seventh average	3.00
Eighth average	2.00

Balance after individual prizes and the $64 to be split among teams according to above arrangement.

CAUSES SQUABBLE

There's a little guy out on the coast who would like to take a punch at a big guy's nose, so the rumors tell us, and all because Nick Bican, above, veteran California tackle, was declared ineligible for the remainder of the football season on a transfer rule technicality.

MAY MATCH DE KUH AGAINST SHARKEY

Stirling Wins Decision But Fails To Impress In His Usual Manner.

Atlanta, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Lew Diamond, manager of Arthur De Kuh, New York Italian, who fought ten rounds with "Young" Stirling yesterday before the Georgia Athletic Union, today said he had received a series of offers for De Kuh's services.

Diamond said he had cabled Jeff Dickson, European promoter, that De Kuh had as good a claim on the Italian heavyweight title as Primo Carnera and that De Kuh was ready to meet Carnera.

De Kuh, the six foot four inch Italian, held Stirling so well that the best of the Georgia heavyweight could do was win a comfortable decision on points in ten rounds.

The tigerish attack which had fattened Otto Von Forst, Phil Scott and K. O. Christner was missing, and the slow fight and frequent clinching by both men was boomed on several occasions by the fans.

De Kuh outweighed Stirling more than 30 pounds and this advantage served him well. De Kuh scaled 228, Stirling 191.

For seven rounds De Kuh was the aggressor, with most of the fighting in the clinches. The last three rounds found Stirling forcing the fight, striving to add De Kuh to his long list of knockout victims.

In the last round Stirling landed a series of lefts to the ropes but De Kuh held on to his chin well protected and made Stirling shoot most of his punches to the body.

FEMININE ATHLETES SET MORE RECORDS

New York, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Applications for recognition of 172 new records in swimming and track and field are to be made to the Amateur Athletic Union at Washington November 16, 17 and 18.

Through the activities of Helene Madison of Seattle and Stella Walsh of Cleveland, women athletes set more new records during the past year than did men. Feminine stars broke 46 records in swimming as against 28 for the men and established 24 in track against 17 for the so-called stronger sex.

London.—(AP)—Women athletes are sounding a call to arms against the Women's Amateur Athletic Association's rules that competitors must wear half-sleeve vests in running and jumping events.

Arguing that sleeves impede the counterbalancing arm throwing in running, the girls seek to have sleeves abolished entirely.

Bristol Maple Ends Win Armistice Day Game 6-0

HOPPE WILL PLAY COCHANE MONDAY King of Billiard Professionals At Odds With National Association Over Salaries.

New York, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Willie Hoppe has thrown down the gauntlet to the National Billiard Association, long in control of professional billiards under the sponsorship of equipment manufacturers. Hoppe, for years king of all the professionals, announces he will defend his 18.1 balling title against Walker Cochrane in New York next week at a match held without the sanction of the national association.

The national association recently abandoned its policy of retaining the stars on salaries and it is because of this change, Hoppe said, that the effort to operate independently is being made.

The players will furnish their own equipment in next week's match, which will be played at the Strand Academy in 1200 point blocks, morning and afternoon, starting Monday.

SPORT PLANTS ALAN GOULD ASSOCIATED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

Football teams having acquired the habit of bobbing up on short notice or even no notice whatever to confound the experts, it may prove a good precaution to point out the early November invasions of the east by two squads entitled to more headlines than they usually get.

Maryland and Georgia, although they have harassed the Blue now for several years, rate only $1 for general admission, although for at least the Georgia game this year most of the 50,000 onlookers gladly would have paid double the price.

Score Touchdown In Third Quarter On March From Midfield; Cubs Lose Ball Nine Yards Short of Tying Tally; Use Regular Team.

Using a first string lineup throughout, the Cubs went down to defeat for the third time this season at Mt. Nebo yesterday afternoon by the margin of a single touchdown.

The Maple Ends came here with a record somewhat similar to the Cubs. They had won only one game. So it was a case of finding out which was the worse rather than the better. A group of Major players and spectators was on hand to get a glimpse of the Cubs before the town series starts next Sunday.

Bristol Deserved Win Bristol clearly outplayed the Cubs, yet had a hard time winning. They made only one more first down, yet gained much more yardage in plunging through the line. The only score of the forty minute struggle came in the third quarter when Jimmy Kane recovered a fumble at deep in Bristol territory a few times but failed in the final manner when they had the best chance of the afternoon.

It was the first "earned touchdown" registered against the Cub line this season, the other two having come from forward passes. This time, however, Bristol took the ball to the 15 yard line, or rather, Blume carried it most of the way on one play, and then Alexander shot around Manchester's left end for a touchdown. Gustafson was playing end at the time and he was boxed prettily while Alexander outfooted Farr in the touchdown dash. Kane's try for a point via the dropkick route fell short.

The Maple Ends also came near scoring on a couple of other occasions, one being in the very first quarter when Jack Ennis missed a field goal from the 23 yard line. The Cubs had the ball deep in Bristol territory a few times but failed in the final manner when they had the best chance of the afternoon.

Williams Denied This was in the fourth quarter when the Cubs strove desperately for a tying tally. Al Williams, the stocky New London flash, made two first downs almost unaided and the Cubs had the ball on the 15 yard line. It availed nothing as Bristol tightened up and took the ball away on downs. Once more it was a close shave. Fourth down found the Cubs nine yards out from the goal with only a foot to go. Instead of giving Williams the ball, St. John was selected and when he attempted to circle right end, he was thrown back for a two yard loss.

The Cubs after that went into the air in desperation. It was their only last hope but Perotti, the imported tackle from Hartford was caught roughing twice in succession and penalized 15 yards, once when Eagleson caught a Cub pass on Bristol's 20 yard line. One other time when it looked as though the Cubs might "spoil" their non-scoring record, in the first period, the ball was lost on downs by a scant foot at the twenty-yard line.

And so, the Cub's worst pre-series record since organization took its year ago, came to a close with a solitary victory, three defeats and four scoreless deadlocks, yet a total of 27 points against 18 for their opponents.

T. COLEMAN DUPONT CAPITALIST, DEAD

Former U. S. Senator and Noted Republican Leader Passes Away in Delaware

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 12.—(AP.)—T. Coleman Dupont, former United States Senator, capitalist, philanthropist and one of Delaware's most distinguished citizens, is dead.

He died yesterday at his home here from a throat affection with which he had suffered for several years. He was 66. Funeral services will be held at the Dupont home at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow. Interment will be private.

The ailment which caused his death forced Mr. Dupont to resign from the Senate a year ago.

Noted Republican
Mr. Dupont was a former president of the E. I. Dupont De Nemours and Company and long was identified with the national and state organizations of the Republican party. He served as Republican national committee member from 1908 to 1929, was chairman of the Republican state committee for many years and the recognized Republican leader in Delaware from 1900, when he came here from his native state of Kentucky, until he became ill. He disposed of his holdings in the Dupont Company in 1915 and since then most of his business interests had been in New York.

Before coming to Delaware, Mr. Dupont was extensively interested in coal and iron mining in Kentucky and in the construction and management of street railway properties.

THREE MEN KILLED BY HOLD-UP BAND

Hear That Treasure is Hidden On Farm But Leave Without Searching For It.

Boscobel, Wis., Nov. 12.—(AP.)—A fashionably dressed woman and three young men left behind them today three dead men and the buried treasure, if any, that is hidden on the remote farm of sixty-year-old Cornelius Horrigan, 17 miles from here.

Posing as hunters, the three men, accompanied by the woman, shot to death Horrigan, his brother-in-law, Patrick Gorman and the latter's son, Paul, 18, and escaped without making any effort to find the money Horrigan and his brother, Stephen, 57, are reported to have secreted about the farm because of their distrust of banks. Stephen was wounded.

Were at Dinner
The would-be robbers invaded the home of the Horrigans as they sat at dinner with their sister, Ellen, 75, and the Gormans, who recently came from their home in Huron, S. D., for a visit.

The holdup woman asked for a drink of water. The aged Miss Horrigan went for it. As she left, the men drew pistols with the command, "hands up." Stephen moved as if for a weapon and the men fired. The Gormans were killed instantly, and the elder Horrigan fell, bullets through his neck and shoulder. He died a few hours later.

His left arm hit by a bullet, Stephen ran into an adjoining room for a pistol which he fired twice as the intruders fled to their automobile. One shot shattered the windshield of their car. Posses failed to find any trace of them.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Stocks of blister and refined copper in North and South America, increased during October to 695,073 short tons as of October 31, compared with 597,114 short tons at the end of September. United States production in October, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reports, totaled 85,800 tons, against 85,584 in September and 82,575 in October last year. Production by smelters in North America totaled 84,395 tons in October, against 85,580 in September and 84,500 in August.

Inventories of pneumatic castings on hand continue their downward trend, statistics issued by the Rubber Manufacturers Association disclose. Casings on hand September 30 totaled 9,811,764, a decrease of 10.6 per cent under August 31. Production for the month of September totaled 3,365,444, a decrease of 24 per cent from the August figure.

Production for September a year ago totaled 4,460,250 casings. Shipments for the first nine months this year exceeded production by 4.8 per cent, as compared with a one per cent excess of shipments over production during the same period of 1929.

"Iron Age," reporting a decline in steel ingot production to 44 per cent of capacity from 48 per cent, says the trade is "banking on an upturn in January." "Precedent points to some measure of recovery at that time," asserts the review, "just as it offers little hope of a change in trend in the remaining weeks of 1930." The recent effort to stabilize prices on plates, shapes and bars, says the survey, "added strength to the view that prices are finally scraping bottom and that a successful stand can be taken at present market levels in negotiating contracts for the next quarter."

The "Iron Age" composite prices for finished steel and pig iron unchanged at 2.135 cents a pound and $18.29 a gross ton, respectively, but heavy melting scrap has receded to $11.58, another new low.

Harley L. Clarke, president of Fox Film Corporation, said today that the earnings of the corporation are running ahead of last year and the regular $4 dividend will continue to be paid.

Proctor & Gamble has notified its district managers and factory managers throughout the country that all employees who owe money on company stock which they wish to hold would be protected by the company, which would advance additional margin if application is made to the home office in Cincinnati.

BIG OIL WELL FIRES

Los Angeles, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Two oil well fires, one in the new southeast Venice field and the other in the Inglewood district, today had caused injuries to eight persons and $100,000 damage. Three of the injured hovered between life and death as the flames continued to resist fire fighters.

The three seriously burned were working on York-Smulling Well No. 1 at Inglewood when a tank containing hundreds of gallons of oil burst into flames and ignited the well. W. L. Murray, Al Snow and S. D. Falls were so badly burned police surgeons were doubtful they would recover.

The Venice fire broke out when Well No. 2 of the International Petroleum Corporation, Limited, blew in unexpectedly from a depth of 4,000 feet. Battalion Fire Chief John Winkler, of Venice, one of his firemen and three oil workers were injured attempting to extinguish it.

STICKLERS

WHILE riding with his Uncle Henry, Jimmy asked, "How many pigs have you?" "Well, you figure it out for yourself," replied Uncle Henry. "If I had as many more and half as many more and seven besides, I would have 32." How many did he actually have?

SENSE AND NONSENSE

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS

Two-gun Murphy was arrested for passing a red traffic light. Policeman (scolding)—Don't you know better than that? Murphy—Oh, Hang the regulations. They don't mean nothin' to me I'm a trusty in Atlanta penitentiary, serving a life sentence.

Pedestrian (hit by auto)—Say, Mr. Motorist, aren't you going to stop and get the details of this accident? Motorist—Why stop? I can read all about it in this afternoon's paper.

Mechanic—How are those fenders I put on your car? Motorist—Dunno. My wife hasn't tried 'em on the garage door yet.

A clergyman who rides to his church in an auto received an anonymous letter calling his attention to the fact that the Lord never rode to church in a car. The clergyman read it from the pulpit and added: "If the writer of this letter will come next Sunday properly saddled and bridled I will be glad to follow the Lord's example and come to church as He entered Jerusalem."

Of course the meek triumph in the end... the pedestrian has right of way in a hearse.

Nellie—I dreamt last night I was motoring with Freddy. Jimmie—But when I saw you, you were walking in your sleep. Nellie—Sure, that was the finish of the ride.

A motorist had just crashed a telegraph pole. Wire, pole and everything came down around his ears. They found him unconscious in the wreckage, but as they were untangling him he reached out feebly, fingered the wires and murmured: "Thank Heaven, I lived clean—they've given me a harp."

Just when we were congratulating ourselves on having foiled the "two-care-to-a-family" automobile salesman by proving we had no family, we met a jeweler who rebuked us for wearing a wrist latch in the evening. Heaven only knows how many of life's complications are due to these sales arguments anyway.

Defendant—The things the prosecutor doesn't know about driving a car, your honor, would fill a book. His Honor—And it seems to me, young man, the things you don't know about it would fill a hospital.

Glady's—Do you see that young man standing over there next to the flivver with the golf pants on? Harold—I see the fellow, all right; but where is the flivver with the golf pants on?

Stickler Solution

Uncle Henry had ten pigs. As many more than that and half as many more and seven besides, would be 10 plus 10 plus 5 plus 7, which equals 32.

THE TINYMITES

The man who owned the almond trees said, "You can help me, if you please. All of you youngsters look real strong. I'm sure you won't tire out. I want to gather every one of my fine almonds. 'Twill be fun to shake them from the trees. I'll show you what it's all about."

"Don't throw your hats up. That's no way to get them down. That's merely play. I have some nice long sticks that you can use. I'll get them quick. Then all you do is reach around and slap the almonds to the ground." It wasn't long until each Tiny had a lumber stick.

work. He was the only one to shirk. In 'bout an hour the whole bunch stopped and said, "We've had enough." The owner thanked them for their aid and then he said, "Don't be afeid to eat all that you care for. You can stuff and stuff and stuff."

The Tinies did and then they went back into town. An hour was spent in walking 'round. The Travel Man then said, "What say we whiz upon a long train ride once more. The next place that we're heading for is not so very far from here. The name of it's Cadiz."

And so they carried out his plan and soon out of the train they ran. Said Scouty, "I'll just bet Cadiz will be another treat." The first thing that the whole bunch saw was quite a clumsy load of straw perched on a donkey's back. The donkey sauntered down the street.

(The Tinymites have a laugh at Scouty in the next story.)
