The 86 Per Centers Tuesday night the Planning Commission held a public hearing in the Hollister Street School...

Only 16 property owners, or only 14 per cent, showed up to voice an opinion on the proposals. Most of them objected: Is it possible the other 86 per cent are in favor of the change? If not, where were they Tuesday night? What grounds will they have to object later if the proposed price are sanctioned by the Planning Commission?

We take no sides in the matters discussed here as we are trying to give the public hearing a fair hearing. The plan was drawn by the wife of the prominent citizen who is the subject of it. Or perhaps it was his son or daughter.

Of course, the whole thing was strictly upon the up and up and was not intended to be a "gotcha" play. A rather nasty and certainly embarrassing trick on all parties concerned. We hate to try and figure out what the odds are for the success of the plan, but it has happened and more than once.

Recently in Manchester, we had an incident roughly along these lines. The Fox and Con Club had an affair recently at which sporting equipment was being sold. Among those donating prizes were some of the best sporting goods department.

No. Red didn't draw one of his own prizes. He was almost as well. He drew a gift certificate for a pair of shoes. He was interested in it at fever pitch. Most people, deep down inside of them, really feel that they might win the prize. But not very many of them.

Anyhow, the big night arrived. Hundreds are gathered around the store. The prizes are being drawn, wherever the drawing is to be held. A prominent member of the committee is taking notes.

Quite a fix Dog Warden Lee Fracchia I dug one of the principals in new cases concerning his dog department.

This week a funny incident in the streets of the town was passed along. A local man phoned Lee at his service station and asked if he would call on his dog. The dog would be for a fee of one dollar. The man who phoned Lee said he had a dog and said he would bring the dog to the station and the man got out in his car and drove into the station, and the man got out of the car and the dog was in the car at the time. A dog was in the car at the time.
