Perhaps all this is nothing more than face-saving propaganda on Rhee's part. Perhaps our officials, who have the secret document Rhee signed, trust his word on that.

But the Communists, if they do not see the secret document, and have only Rhee's public interpretation of it to go by, are likely to wonder how much assurance Rhee's good conduct we do have and are still likely to demand better guarantee than anything now publicly offered. And Rhee, in his own interpretations, may hav designs on something more than just face-saving for himself. He may still hope that he can upset the truce itself.

One of the concessions we made to him may, if we press it hard enough, do just that.
