The society also voted approval of a new program to be known as "Blue Cross for the Aged" which would provide for the care of aged members who are unable to care for themselves in their own homes.

Acting on information submitted by Dr. Franklin M. Pugh, state commissioner of health, that chiropractic is seeking to include its practitioners in the treatment of their patients, the society resolved to call upon agencies and individuals in the state government to prohibit such practice.

In a second resolution, the 121 delegates approved a plan of action by the boards of trustees of the American Hospital Assn. and the American Medical Assn. to mobilize their resources to adequately finance health programs to care for the needy and, in particular, needy persons over 65 years of age.

Dr. Edward Weiler, of Bridgeport, president of the State Medical Society, extended greetings to the delegates and referred to the various medical programs now coming to the attention of the society and stated for action in the near future. He referred to the need of more medical insurance for families and individuals and the controversy between private medical practice versus socialized medicine.

In other action, the House of Delegates approved continuation to rely on the registration of the firm with which he deals for the quality of the drugs he sells.

Dixon said that firms selling drugs to the government, whether they are large or small, must meet standards set by the Food and Drug Administration. If they do not, they may lose their business.

Connor insisted, however, that drug products do differ widely in purity, quality and other features extremely important to physicians.

Figures cited by the subcommittee yesterday listed 100 tablets of March's prednisone being sold at prices ranging from $1.50 to $3.00 or less than half the $12.00 charged by the other firms.

However, the figures also showed that in some foreign markets the prices were higher than in the United States. The price to drug firms in Tokyo, for example, was listed as $37.78 a hundred.

John Martz, the subcommittee's chief economist, testified the price list was for 1958 and was compiled from a survey made by the State Department at the subcommittee's request.

Connor said he was not willing to accept the figures as correct even though they were obtained from the State Department.

But in any event, he said many different factors have to be taken into account in comparing drug prices in this country and abroad.

Among other things, he cited differences in labor and material costs, fluctuations in currencies, discount practices and competitive forces.

"We try to be competitive in the markets where we are doing business," he said.

Dr. Austin Smith, president of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Assn., said yesterday in a New York speech that the public is getting a distorted picture of drug prices, production costs and drug company profits.

Smith said he believed the industry has done a good job in serving the people and done so at a reasonable cost to the people, and that the industry's products are in line with other industries having similar risks and problems.

Santa's Statistics Spread Yule Giving

By NORMA GAUEN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The Santa Claus with the biggest pack on his back this Christmas works from the cold facts in a social worker's notebook.

At first glance it may seem odd that agency people say, with that faint smile of misery, "I'm just a statistic," while they play equipment for the often forgotten youngsters in distant homes.

There is a wide range of ideas for gift giving where it counts. One group of school children turns in names to buy a food scale for a 12-year-old diabetic boy; a man's job reconditioning TV sets at a radio repair shop gives trading stamps to a Christmas Bureau to help needy children; a woman who is a member of the local Christmas Bureau, a community of women's club turns in $150 as a gift for needy children.

A probation officer told a Syracuse, N. Y., bureau about 15-year-old Jimmy, who was buying a new bicycle. He had been annually give through the Christmas Bureau bought Jimmy the present of a new bicycle.

Every year more than 500,000 people give through the Christmas Bureau and its branches. One such gift is a Christmas Bureau which uses the money for gifts of clothing and turkey dinners for night large families. Gifts and turkey dinners delivered the gifts to the parents' social act, as Santa Claus.

There may be critics who complain of a cold heartedness in organized Christmas giving. But there are plenty of examples of the organized generosity.

The Milwaukee Christmas Bureau reported 743 potential gift duplications. Another gift without checking, a family would have had help from four different stores and 11 by three donors—while other needy cases were ignored.

WATSON SPON
FOR NEW PLAYA

By Albert Sheinwoold
U.S. Amateur Champion

Landscape and bridge players have to watch their spots. If you let one get away from you, the result may be embarrassing.

West opened the five with the ace, and East won with the ace, that returned the ace of diamonds and fourth hand put by the king.

That was a fatal error. West ruffed and East later dealt the contract with the king of spades and another diamond trick.

"What horrible luck," South complained. Everybody agreed with him, and then everybody congratulated West on his opening lead.

This was all very comforting, but luck had nothing to do with the game. South had tossed game and nobody out of the window.

Revealing Card
Take a good look at East's lead at the second trick—the six of diamonds, a very revealing card. The only higher cards missing are the queen and seven. If West had led the five from Q-7-6, South's play at the second trick wouldn't matter.

The only possibility is that West had led a short suit. If he had led from the doubleton 8-4, South could make an overbid by finessing instead of playing the king of

From Your Neighbor's Kitchen

By MARGIE FELTON
Manchester boasts several gourmet clubs whose members operate in international cuisine.

"We are just dedicated to good eating," one member laughingly reported.

It was Norway Night for the members of the Gourmet Club which met Sunday evening at the home of Mrs. and Mrs. E. H. Phillips, 500 Spring St.

Two of the many authentic Norwegian dishes prepared by Gourmet members are offered this week as suitable for buffet supper entertainment during the holiday season.

Convolvore with Shrimp Sauce (Shrimp and potatoes)
1 head cauliflower
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons sugar
1/2 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon onion cream
1 lb. shrimp
Cooking Directions
Make a white sauce of milk, butter and sugar. Boil about 10 minutes. Stir constantly over low fire and add cream, salt, sugar and onion cream. Keep over low fire until shrimp are done. Drain shrimp and mix with sauce before serving. Pour over hot water cauliflower. Cover or fresh lobster may be substituted for the shrimp.

Lamb and Cabbage (Far & Kall)
4 lbs. lamb (breast or shoulder)
1 lb. medium cabbage
1 celery root (1 cup dried celery)
1/4 tablespoons salt
1/2 cup flour
1/2 cup water
1/4 tablespoons whole black pepper
Carrots cut in small pieces
Cut lamb into pieces suitable for serving in large soup kettles or Dutch oven, place the fatty pieces first in a layer with fat down. Cover with cabbage cut in wedges a little larger than meat pieces. Add carrots, potatoes, the layer with dried celery and mixture of salt and flour. Repeat layers until ingredients are used. Cover halfway with boiling water. Put paper into space bag and cook with mixture. Cook 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 hours until meat is tender. Make 12 servings.

A special guest of the club Sunday evening was Mrs. Mart Gardner of Spring St., a native of Norway, who came to this country 10 years ago. She is an authentic of the various Norwegian dishes including the menu, and provided as table decorations a small flag of Norway and "Pilsen," a small wood carved figure which are traditional in her native land.

Club members obtained posters from a Norway travel agency for wall decoration, and the guests enjoyed an informal program of recordings including music from "Song of Norway" and "Grieg" played by Kirsten Flagstad, Mrs. W. J. Paul of Essex and formerly of Manchester, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Horwitz discussed Norway's history.

Members of the Gourmet club are Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Paul, Dr. and Mrs. Theodore Powell, Dr. and Mrs. Melvin Horwitz, Mr. and Mrs. Justice Paul of Essex and formerly of Manchester, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Horwitz.

Firemen Put Out Mattress Blaze

Two Fire Companies 1 and 2 were called to the Park Chestnut Apartments at 140 Park St. at 5:25 p.m. yesterday after a mattress in a room on the second floor caught fire. Firemen carried the mattress and a chair, which was singed, outside and opened doors and windows to eliminate the smoke. No other damage was reported.

Eight District crews put out a grass fire at 15 Strong St. at 12:20 p.m. today, and were called to 54 Sherwood Circle at 2 p.m. yesterday when papers burning in a collar dropped rolled through a defective fire screen and caused a fire. There was no other damage, firemen said.

A man short of $1,000 for the purchase of a car, was arrested at 140 Park St. at 5:25 p.m. yesterday. He was charged with larceny of a car. He was taken to the police station.

Also arrested were Philip Kohler and Mrs. Shirley Walker, both of East Hartford, who have been identified as the local source of the stolen car.

Incumbent Charles Harlow, County representative to the State Legislature, was re-elected as treasurer, and Leo Fortier of Lake Amston was re-elected as conductor. Mrs. Isabel Sullivan of East Hartford was chosen from a field of small women candidates as trustee for three years.

A back-and-forth race between incumbent William Stewart of Middletown and William Lorenz of Thompsonville for the vice presidency won't be decided until later today as a charter ballot is still being received and will be counted if postmarked before yesterday's deadline. Fraser said Charles Hill of Hartford and Eldor Linder of Meriden were also seeking the post.

The union's negotiating committee is scheduled to meet with the company tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock to propose negotiations for a new contract. The committee, meanwhile, was scheduled to hold a meeting today to get a preliminary agreement.

Fraser said that the union and federal mediators will be present tomorrow at the meeting. He said that the Hartford division of the P.A.W.A. will be along in the negotiations in the hope of the fact that the union and Meriden plants have signed contracts for the year.

To Take Initial Stand
The negotiating committee, because of the vote last Thursday, will take a position tomorrow going back to the original proposal made at the beginning of the negotiations, the union president said.

"We are interested primarily in job security for senior employees and would forego money if we can get a contract which would preserve their jobs," Fraser said.

The union workers in East Hartford and Manchester have been continuing on the job without a contract since the old contract expired last Thursday. At that time the union employees rejected the company's offer of a new 7-year contract which would have provided pay raises of 7 to 12 cents an hour.

Monday, the same pay raises went into effect at the P.A.W.A. plants in Southington and Meriden, where the union employees accepted the same contract, raised by the East Hartford-Manchester unit.

Fraser Heads P&W Union

David Fraser of 33 Wadsworth St. yesterday was elected president of the Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Union, which has 4,000 members of the International Association of Machinists, A.F. of C. Local 1460, voted during the election. It was the largest turnout in the history of the unit which was formed in 1945. There are almost 6,000 members in the local.

Fraser was opposed for reelection by William Stackman of 200 Oakland St., Manchester; Charles McCarty, East Hartford; Thomas Radosavich of Avon; and Eugene Ripolone of Windsor.

Also re-elected were Philip Kohler, recording secretary for several years, and Mrs. Shirley Walker, East Hartford, who has been financial secretary of the local since 1945. Both were re-elected.

Incumbent Charles Harlow, County representative to the State Legislature, was re-elected as treasurer, and Leo Fortier of Lake Amston was re-elected as conductor. Mrs. Isabel Sullivan of East Hartford was chosen from a field of small women candidates as trustee for three years.

NEW COPIES OF CHARTER READY SOON

Many Manchester attorneys will sign in relief when new copies of the Town Charter become available in a month or so.

A work force of town employees in the Municipal Building is now typing and mimeographing under instructions of Prof. Cornelius J. Scanlon of the University of Connecticut, who is coordinating the lengthy document—making changes called for by legislative amendments since 1947—and including special acts applying to Manchester. His index and cross-referencing system will be more thorough than past ones.

Area Boards Hear NAREB Official

John J. Cronin, regional representative of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, addressed the area boards of the NAREB at a luncheon yesterday at the Manchester Country Club before a joint meeting of the Manchester and Greater Boston Boards of Realtors. It was the largest meeting of realtors in the area.

There will be 15 million new homes built in the 1960's, he stated, and the realtor should know some of the problems that must be anticipated. Due to the great birth rate during 1940-48, there will be 15 million new families who will need the services of realtors.

One discerning note he said, was the mortgage market which has become a serious problem in the middle and is affecting the area. Cronin was optimistic in stating that the mortgage market will recover within six months at the same level as the past two years.

Realtors will be asked to send their families first homes and must know the problems to respect. The local boards were advised to plan the following for the coming year: 1. Educational meetings—learn something new each time.

2. NAREB Library—largest collection of real estate information is available from the main office in Chicago, Ill. 3. Public relations—members should bring the professional status of the realtor to their other activities and clubs.

4. Political Ed.—members have avoided this in the past as too controversial, but were advised to enter this area on a local level. 5. Urban redevelopment—an expert in this category was available to be flown from Chicago to assist the boards on a local or Federal level.

7. Legislative—real estate taxes in some areas are approaching a saturation point and it was well to keep abreast of these matters. 8. Educational—was close working with the National Board of Realtors for making the special trip from Washington.

Receipt of an Air Force contract to develop inverters was announced yesterday by Walter R. Bush, manager of Hamilton Standard's electronics department. Inverters are a critical component in space exploration and missiles. They convert direct current obtained from an internal power supply into usable alternating current. This current operates instruments and instruments.

Standard units will be accurate to within six hundredths of one per cent. They will be completely constructed and have no moving parts. Unit weight will be less than one pound.

Norwich Bishop Consecration Slated for St. Patrick's Day

Announcement was made today by Bishop-elect Vincent J. Hines, that the consecration of the cathedral and installation will take place March 17, St. Patrick's Day, at St. Patrick's Cathedral, Norwich.

At the same time, Bishop-elect Hines announced that the Most Rev. Bernard J. Flanagan, bishop of Worcester, formerly bishop of Norwich.

In making the announcement, Bishop-elect Hines stated that the date of March 17 had been chosen for the consecration and installation ceremonies because this date figures prominently in the history of the church in Norwich.

The first Mass was offered in the original St. Mary Church on Christmas Day, 1854. However, the church was destroyed by fire on March 17, 1865.

The cathedral was dedicated in 1868. The consecration ceremony will be held at 10 a. m. on St. Patrick's Day at St. Patrick's Church was held in 1868 when it was cut out of territory formerly a part of the Diocese of Hartford.

Coventry Yule Carol Sing Set Monday Night at Green

The annual Christmas Community Carol Sing for the public will be held at 7:30 p. m. Monday on the "Green" at Cross and High Sts. The program will open with a song by the Coventry Lions Club. The program will open with a benediction by the Rev. Dr. Allison R. Heaps, interim minister at the Second Congregational Church. The club is planning to have a social during the program.

Postmaster Herman F. LeDoyt today advised that all unneeded cards mailed outside the United States must have 4-cent stamps affixed on them.

Deaths Last Night

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
London.—Mrs. Maria Daniloff, about 50, of Grosvenor Place, Mich., president of the International Social Service, a world-wide case work agency, died Wednesday of a heart attack. Mrs. Daniloff had served three years as head of the American branch of the organization, which aids in the placement of orphans throughout the world.

The names of 275 delinquent car taxpayers names have been submitted to the Commissioner of Motor Vehicle Taxation as of Nov. 30, according to law, by Tax Collector F. Pauline Little. A copy of the list has been submitted to the branch office at 488 Valley St., Willimantic.

Coast Guard Helping Sick Soviet Sailor

Kodiak, Alaska, Dec. 10 (AP)—A U.S. Coast Guard plane was on the way to Alaska today to help a sick Russian sailor to a hospital here. The sailor was taken off a Soviet ship at the Soviet fishing fleet at a rendezvous at remote Dutch Harbor, 600 miles west of here. The Coast Guard identified the Russian seaman as Shashka Pyotr. He was taken to the hospital at Kodiak, Alaska, where he is being treated for a serious condition. Doctors at the Kodiak Naval Hospital said he is in serious but not critical condition. The sailor was taken to the hospital after being struck in the leg by a bullet from a Soviet ship. The sailor was taken to the hospital after being struck in the leg by a bullet from a Soviet ship.

Jap Students Fail in March

Tokyo, Dec. 10 (AP)—Ultra-rightist Japanese students today abandoned a march on the Japanese parliament to protest Japan's military alliance with the United States. The demonstration collapsed after other leftist organizations boycotted it because of public indignation over a similar march Nov. 27 in which 700 persons were injured. Anti-American forces suffered another defeat today. The leftist Japanese Labor Federation called on 4 1/2 million workers across the country to hold workshop rallies denouncing the alliance with the United States. But police said only 300,000 showed up.

Humanity in Person

Yesterday, in New Delhi, President Eisenhower came upon that humanity everybody is always writing and talking about.

It pressed about him, wanting to see him, wanting to touch him, wanting to speak to him, wanting to throw flowers at him.

For the good American statesman responsible for his personal security, it was a harrowing time.

Their concept of safety demands a certain distance between the great man and the mob, plus detailed surveillance of the members of the mob itself, plus a rate of speed which carries the great man past the mob swiftly enough to prevent any sudden surge or gathering toward him.

These precautionary techniques have been devised out of our own past history. The great President we had, the mild man many Indians may have been thinking of yesterday as they welcomed this modern President, died of an assassin's attack, because he was not guarded efficiently. Security is the great American concern for its Presidents, for its position in the world, for its every day living.

When the crowds yesterday became impassable, when to the concept of our security agents, the situation had become desperate and impossible, the great man of India, Nehru, got out of the car and plunged into the human mass, pushing it back with his own hands, breaking a way the car could slowly follow.

This was foolhardy, and one could find proof of it in India's own history. Nehru, the disciple of Gandhi, and Gandhi, the man of non-violence and peace, was assassinated in his own garden, where no one but his admirers would supposedly come. He was assassinated because he refused to approve or lead the bloodshed in India's brief but tragic war of partition. Today, many Indians denounce Nehru savagely because he doesn't throw Indian blood and blood at the Chinese Communists, instead of words and remonstrance. Nevertheless, Nehru plunged into the crowd as huge and unwieldy it might have done him injury without intending any.

This was, we suppose, another concept of security, different from ours. Perhaps it was an oriental fatalistic brand of security, which is not ignorant of possible danger, but which still chooses to walk as if it had no fear and no suspicions. And perhaps this brand of behavior has as much security in it as our system of elaborate precaution. Perhaps, in our absorption with security, with our imposition of almost inhuman restrictions upon the conduct and travel of the great, and our crowning of security as the ultimate goal in our own average living, we lose some portion of his ideal nonchalance.

We rather cringe at the possible day when some Nehru, dealing with some American traffic jam, might get out of the car and lead the way through an American crowd for Eisenhower. We are rather sure that Eisenhower himself, for all the good discipline supposedly bred into a great soldier, has an occasional impulse to escape from his keepers.

The Plus Side in Cuba

It is encouraging to be told, by one returning observer, that something does go on in Castro's Cuba beyond television harangues.

Robert A. Lyon, the executive secretary of the New England Regional Office of the American Friends Service Committee, has just come back from his second visit to Cuba this year, and he accuses the American press of giving an unbalanced coverage to events in Cuba. It is possible for the press to plead both innocent and guilty in this charge. In Cuba, as elsewhere, the negative makes news.

We wouldn't be that sure, however, that we know how to give big headlines to the things Mr. Lyon claims he has observed in Cuba. He says, for instance, that the "average Cuban today is infinitely better off than he was 12 months ago. And in spite of unemployment, in spite of certain domestic shortages, he does not live in fear of his life."

The most important thing, this observer finds, is that "there is freedom today in Cuba. People are no longer afraid to be out on the street after dark, as they were a year ago, and there is no secret police system such as existed under Batista."

Mr. Lyon also reports a big public works program under way, paving roads to remote villages and building housing. He salutes the beginning of a social welfare program. He is heartened by the beginning of an attack on illiteracy.

And, although he ran into all kinds of criticism of Castro, he found none of it, in Cuba, which mentioned Communism.

"We in the United States," says Mr. Lyon, "have substituted for a foreign policy an almost psychotic fear of Communism. This causes our ability to judge objectively what is taking place in Cuba today."

This observer buttresses our own willingness to concede his own "objectivity" by what he has to say about Castro himself, as follows:

"I can't help but feel that the weakest link in the chain in Cuba today is Premier Fidel Castro himself. Not that I doubt his sincerity, his wisdom, and judgment, and particularly his super-sensitivity to criticism of any kind. This can be especially dangerous."

One fairly balanced report from Cuba duly received and noted.

Harry Honors Eleanor

Former President Harry Truman was chief speaker at a big dinner honoring Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt in New York City Monday night, and he filled the occasion with typical grace and gentility. What could be more fitting than a young, two-faced attack on the trust of honor?

Mr. Truman accomplished this and by methods which were very clear to his audience, which Mrs. Roosevelt has been in the New York state Democratic party which has been crusading against the Tammany and the state machine, calling for more liberalism in the party's leadership.

When, against this background, Truman called into the "self-appointed guardians of liberal thinking who have become rather vocal lately," and "house liberals" and "house mobs who think that they have solutions for all our problems" everybody, including the great of honor himself, could be aware that this was another of Mr. Truman's great moments in public life.

As it turned out, it was also Mr. Truman's inverted way of focusing a really shining light on the great of honor. For Mrs. Roosevelt is one of the few people in the world who can take such a situation and be light and graceful and telling all in the same benign language.

Mrs. Roosevelt's response, in which she began by referring to the long-ago moment when President Truman trusted me sufficiently to ask me to go as a delegate to the first meeting of the "United Nations" and in which she then went on to welcome "all kinds of liberals" to the party and deny the possibility that some of the "older generation" might not realize the changing nature of our time, had an impressive and electrifying effect upon the audience. It was a word from Truman, which had the little man from Missouri still talking to himself the next day when he took his plane back to Missouri.

There his parting remark was "But I am damn sure they are not going to have anything to say about it," they beat, the hot-house liberals, and it being the nomination for President, and the I am damn sure being Truman being more desperate than sure.

They ought to have him in part of every dinner for every person, for contrast.

Connecticut Yankee

By A. H. O.

The effect of scandals in one of the national life is to alert the muckrakers to other fields. We continue to find it necessary to brace ourselves against possible disfigurement in the field of politics. Is it possible that the fix and the fake have been there, too?

This effort on our part requires calm nerves and fortitude, for not only do we find a grim and proper organization like the Connecticut Public Expenditures Council taking place but mysteriously of possible "conflict of interest" scandal, but we also find that very idealistic public servant, Secretary of State Eric Cramo, making a public inference which stabs to the very heart of the democratic process.

While discussing possible recommendations for better control of the Connecticut voting procedure, Mrs. Cramo made the cryptic observation that "it has been known" that some individuals have gone to the polls and succeeded in voting under names not their own.

Under present procedure, the voter walks up to the checkers, gives his street address and his name, and when these are found on the list of voters, is passed into the voting area. Mrs. Cramo's suggestion is that some other more definite procedure for identification be used, perhaps the presentation of documents to prove the voter is the name he says he is, perhaps a sample of handwriting.

We are, for the moment, less interested in the cure than in the allegation.

What does Mrs. Cramo mean, "it has been known"? Doesn't she mean it has been rumored? The distinction is important, for the preservation of our liberties.

We do know the kind of rumors that come out of the mouths of other towns or states has supposedly been the one reason left to crooked politics after the advent of the voting machine. In the good old days of the paper ballot, the boss who was out of control, his district and who could control or afford to buy votes, merely had to get one blank ballot at the beginning of the day, fill it out for the controlled voters, deposit it in his in turn brought out a "ballot" and "ballot" and "ballot" through the voting day.

The Little Butcher

A young couple stood in the corridor of a children's ward at the hospital with tears streaming down their faces. They were looking through the plate glass window into the room where their own little child was lying. This little one had cried until she no longer had a voice with which to cry because of a disease that the doctors knew so little about. Each one through their tears prayed, "Oh God don't let her suffer this way. She's committed her whole life to God's care praying that when ever way things might go, he spare her little one of this terrible suffering. This little child recovered and amazed the doctors by the speed with which she became well again. These parents believed that a miracle had taken place and gave God the praise for it. How true is the statement of the psalmist when he said, "Cometh out your way to the Lord, that while he is in turn brought out a "ballot" and "ballot" and "ballot" through the voting day.

Each one through their tears prayed, "Oh God don't let her suffer this way. She's committed her whole life to God's care praying that when ever way things might go, he spare her little one of this terrible suffering. This little child recovered and amazed the doctors by the speed with which she became well again. These parents believed that a miracle had taken place and gave God the praise for it. How true is the statement of the psalmist when he said, "Cometh out your way to the Lord, that while he is in turn brought out a "ballot" and "ballot" and "ballot" through the voting day.

As it turned out, it was also Mr. Truman's inverted way of focusing a really shining light on the great of honor. For Mrs. Roosevelt is one of the few people in the world who can take such a situation and be light and graceful and telling all in the same benign language.

Mrs. Roosevelt's response, in which she began by referring to the long-ago moment when President Truman trusted me sufficiently to ask me to go as a delegate to the first meeting of the "United Nations" and in which she then went on to welcome "all kinds of liberals" to the party and deny the possibility that some of the "older generation" might not realize the changing nature of our time, had an impressive and electrifying effect upon the audience. It was a word from Truman, which had the little man from Missouri still talking to himself the next day when he took his plane back to Missouri.

There his parting remark was "But I am damn sure they are not going to have anything to say about it," they beat, the hot-house liberals, and it being the nomination for President, and the I am damn sure being Truman being more desperate than sure.

They ought to have him in part of every dinner for every person, for contrast.

As bankers, our people can be helpful in a hundred different ways. Consequently, they regard their work as a service to their friends and neighbors... not "just a job."

You'll find it a pleasure to do business with people who think and feel this way about their work. You also will be pleased with the full range of banking services they have to offer. So drop in soon and make yourself known at any one of our 28 offices.

When, against this background, Truman called into the "self-appointed guardians of liberal thinking who have become rather vocal lately," and "house liberals" and "house mobs who think that they have solutions for all our problems" everybody, including the great of honor himself, could be aware that this was another of Mr. Truman's great moments in public life.

Suffield Buries Cheney, 100-25

Scoring 100 points is the goal of all high school basketball teams. This feat is an every game happening in the pro ranks but rarely does a schoolboy team match, or better this magic figure. Yesterday afternoon, Suffield High turned on all the jets in rolling up a 100-25 decision over hapless Cheney Tech at the Suffield court.

Son Following in Footsteps, Encouraged to Play Football

By EARL YOST
Twenty years ago a short, husky guard—called a watch charm guard in those days—was named Tony Albrioz by a star player in the forward wall with Wesleyan University's rare football team today. Albrioz is an assistant coach at Manchester High, as well as a member of the faculty.

Albrioz, Junior and Senior

During the Thanksgiving Day football game which wound up the season for both schools, the Indians battled East Hartford in the nearby city. One of the better players was the Hartford's Paul Giardi, son of the East Hartford coach, Henry (Hank) Giardi.
