Rockville-Vernon Teachers Agree Separation Of Like Children Essential

Elementary teachers in the separate of the Rockville-Vernon school system have concluded that children with similar abilities should be grouped together in Grades 1 to 3, but create a "social stigma" in Grades 4 to 6.

After hearing this conclusion last night the Vernon Board of Education considered grouping students beyond Grade 3 by subject matter. This would mean that students would still be grouped by ability but only in certain subjects.

Teachers and principals discussing the problem with the Board at the monthly curriculum meeting last night agreed that grouping is most effective in the language arts and in mathematics. Students with varying abilities could easily be mixed for other subjects, to learn the stigma of being in the "slow" class.

Richard Sawyer, principal of the Vernon Junior High School, particularly the formation of classes among those who do not do well. Separating children in these classes, period, would tend to reduce the cliques.

Reporting on a census of teachers, the principals said the advantages of grouping children of similar abilities are clearly evident and are being given acceptance of the plan in the first three grades in the district. Disadvantages in higher grades which tend to raise questions of the overall situation, are the difficulty in marking students in the three groups but all in the same class, the lack of leaders resulting in the slower groups and the difficulty in getting common sense to accept the slow groups.

Teachers Can Help

Some principals feel that teachers' rejection of the slow group was the main reason for the problem. They pointed out that good teachers can do wonders with a slow group and take pride in their accomplishment. However, primary teachers do not receive satisfaction out of the progress of the slow group and prefer to teach the middle group. There is some hesitation to take the bright group but enough teachers want this group to make up for the rejection.

Rennick Lewis, principal of Northeast School, noted that teachers there rejected the similar grouping plan when it was inaugurated in Grade 1 five years ago, but now 16 out of 20 teachers favor the plan, he added.

Lewis found that the social problem that arises in Grade 4 can be eliminated by a teacher with ability and the proper attitude.

The fact that people tend to socialize in groups throughout life was pointed out by Mrs. Alice Hammond, a teacher in Manchester, as well as Board member Mrs. Frances Campbell, the social stigma arising in the elementary grades of the social stigma of adult life.

Library Expansion Considered

Expansion of the Junior Library section at Rockville Public Library is being considered by the trustees because of increased activity.

In the annual report for 1959, Miss Natalie Ide, librarian, states that the number of children using the Junior Library on the second floor has created problems of overcrowding and of distraction to adult patrons in the main library.

Miss Ide notes that Mrs. Loretta Denley, children's librarian, is under heavy pressure during the winter's afternoon hours helping children with assignments.

Increased library service to the schools and the opening of Lake Street School to the public, the trustees to ask the town to increase its appropriation from $4,000 to $5,000, according to the report.

At the close of 1959, a total of 8,847 books had been sent to 116 different classroom collections, with a total circulation of 29,093 books compared to 18,470 the previous year, Miss Ide reported.

The library also experienced a record year in the number of borrowers and in circulation. A total of 1,897 borrowers were added to the library's list, bringing the total number of persons borrowing books to 7,134. Circulation jumped to 116,343 from 101,609 the previous year. Miss Ide attributed part of the increase to school circulation.

Investment Proposals Explained to Workers

Twenty employees last night quizzed the Pension Board about more liberal investments in the Hartford National Bank and Trust Co. 37 1/2.

Most questions at the 2 1/2-hour meeting in the Municipal Building dealt with the board's proposal to invest in securities that are not covered by the State law for savings banks.

"The 'risk' involved would be the possibility of a greater return for the money," the board members said.

Present were representatives from the Municipal Employees Group, the Hartford National Bank and Trust Co., the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Workers, A.F.L.-C.I.O., and Board of Education employees.

The board also discussed other proposals, including a change in the way the board is elected and a public hearing next month.

Board Chairman James Arthur last night said opening up 25 per cent of the fund to wider investment and keeping the remainder in government securities would be a "safer" investment.

Tip to Directors

Nothing at all would be invested in stocks now, he added, because of a more favorable bond market.

The question as to whether increased returns would be used to reduce either the employer or the employee's contributions to the fund would be up to the Town Director.

Employees contribute 2 1/2 per cent of their salaries and the town contributes $30,000 this year.

General Manager Richard Martin, speaking as an employee said he would be in favor of bonding the fund first if and when the fund earns enough.

Answering questions, Arthur said the board's financial advisor expected to be the Hartford National Bank and Trust Co., which would be expected to be bonded by the board. Bookkeeping and checks would be handled by the town treasurer. At the fee as advisor, he said, would be 1 1/2 per cent on the first $1 million.

Ernest MacNeil, chairman of the Municipal Employees Group, suggested the board have a financial expert to advise on the investment.

In reply, board member Henry Backer introduced each board member, cited backgrounds on the unit and said "imprimatur" concern about the town and its employees was as important as financial knowledge.

Arthur's reply to MacNeil was that the fact the bond does not have a financial expert was very reason it has moved to hire the Hartford National Bank.

It was pointed out by Martin that employees' benefits are based on the pension ordinance. The town would be legally bound to meet the benefits even if the fund took a downturn, according to Atty. W. David Keith.

Frank Conitt, a Municipal Group member, objected that all the proposals were based on "assumptions." He called for something to be done.

Suggests Bulletin

To increase flow of information on pension proposals, MacNeil said Arthur might run lines in a news bulletin which MacNeil said was not in the plan.

Soroptimists Hear Investment Broker

Edward Birdsey of the Hartford firm of Kennedy-Peterman Inc. spoke to members of the Soroptimist Club and guests about investment securities at a meeting last night at Caveny's restaurant.

The speaker stressed the wisdom of investing in shares of life insurance companies, which he described as the fastest-growing industry in the country today.

He expects to have circulars printed by which employees could figure their individual pensions.

Also MacNeil asked that board member Herman Paasentall, who represents employees as a whole, advise the board.

"No one was allowed to speak at the meeting other than employees," Arthur had declared such a policy after MacNeil invited representatives of banks and brokerage firms which in the past, had indicated interest in being financial advisor before the board decided to name the Hartford National Bank.

Apparently, the only representative present last night was Edward Kraemer of the Manchester branch of Shearson & Hamill.

Rockville Native's Poems Published

The poetry of Rockville native Thomas Cahill, wrapping the appointments and triumphs of his life, was published yesterday in the Vermont community book "Of Frogs and Stars" contains the poems of Rockville natives Cahill and other poets.

Born on Brookley St. and reared in Rockville, Cahill attended the Rockville Parochial School and Rockville High School. He now lives at 60 Niles St., Hartford with his wife. He is a night shift supervisor at Pratt & Whitney Company in West Hartford.

Cahill received a warm reception yesterday as he addressed the Rockville Rotary Club luncheon meeting.

He told of his personal struggles with life and his eventual return to his home town.

A person's viewpoint depends upon their position, Cahill suggested. That man not try to assess his fellow man.

His book is on sale at the Journal Publishing Co. and at Randall's Stationery Store, both in Rockville.

Fall on Sidelwalk

What could be one more in a series of accidents resulting from falls on sidewalks was prevented yesterday in Rockville.

Albert E. Palmer, had a notice of injury filed in behalf of Atty. Vincent Diana claiming he suffered injuries from a fall from a sidewalk on the corner of Pearl St. where he resides.

The notice said the fall was caused by an icy condition left unattended.

A notice of injuries usually precedes a suit for damages.

According to the notice, Palmer suffered "serious injuries to his left elbow and shoulder, a serious strain and sprain to his lower back, bruising and contusions upon both neck and back and to his nervous system."

Hebron

Town Will Print Ordinance Book

In observance of a statute enacted during the last session of the Legislature making it a crime that all town ordinances be published in their ordinances and make them available for sale to anyone interested, the Hebron Board of Selectmen has named Richard W. Grant to compile them as required.

The work will be brought to the Hebron town hall and will cost the town nothing more than the expense of printing. Receipts from sales will be turned over to the town.

Driver's License

It is announced by Carlton R. Baybitt, principal of the Regional High School, that of the 23 students registered for the driver training course, 20 have now completed the course.

The other three not owing to failure in classroom work. Another course will be available later this year, with Dwight Martin as instructor. Between 35 and 40 students are expected to enroll. Classes are held during after school hours at the convenience of students.

Church Notes

The Home Economics Committee of Hebron Grange will take charge of a meeting to be held Feb. 2 at the City Hall. A literary program will be presented and there will be an old fashioned box social and dance.

Church Notes

Over 30 attended the corporate Communion and dedication of Sunday officers and vestrymen at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Hartford. The Rev. Gordon W. Weeman, rector, officiated. A breakfast followed in Phelps Hall.

Yesterday the rector attended a meeting of the Council of Trinity Church, Branford, as assistant chairman. It was held at the Council Council. A workday was held at Phelps Hall Sunday at 3 p.m. those present participating in a box supper, with meeting following.

Rehearsals of the Junior and senior choirs will be held this evening.

Mrs. Henry A. Jones is retaining her leadership of the Fleur-de-Lis, an order of the church.

Youth Service

Young people of the local Congregational Church who participated in the Youth Service Sunday were: Mary Cholidge, June Thoni, George Alden III, and David Pierham. A Youth Library service was presented, with leader as questioner and replies by the young parishioners.

The responses of the young people constituted the National Pilgrim Fellowship "Purpose" uniting Congregational youth in Christian faith and service.

The church council will meet this evening at 7:30 p.m. in the church.

A Thought for Today

Sponsored by the Manchester Council of Churches

If you want something to challenge your understanding of the Gospel of Christ, and your knowledge concerning His person, may I urge you to read the 6th chapter of St. John's Gospel.

We have recorded there the opposition of the Pharisees to the Baptist, and the Baptist's testimony to the Baptist.

Pay Counter Proposal Made by Teachers

Manchester teachers yesterday afternoon indirectly rejected a pay scale offer from the Board of Education, but left the door open to a speedy termination of differences.

The teachers authorized the personnel policies sub-committee of the Manchester Education Assn. to request the Board of Education for a minimum wage scale of $4,300 to $7,200 in 1960-61.

The action was an indirect rejection of the board's offer Friday of a minimum wage scale of $4,000 to $7,100.

However, the teachers also voted to leave the final decision on salaries to the personnel policies sub-committee, subject to the approval of the MEA executive committee.

Charles McCann, chairman of the Board of Education's personnel policies sub-committee, today said a meeting with the teachers will be held in the next couple of days.

The first requirement made by teachers to the Board of Education for the 1960-61 pay scale is a minimum of $4,300 to $7,200 in 12 steps.

The cost of this pay scale would have been $260,000 in addition to regular salaries and benefits, for a total of $724,750.

The present minimum pay scale for teachers is $4,000 to $7,100 in 18 steps.

The Board of Education rejected the teachers' first request today, leaving it to the Board of Education to make a counter proposal.

The Board of Education's personnel policies sub-committee met yesterday with the MEA and offered a $4,300 to $7,100 scale.

At yesterday's meeting the teachers voted to request the Board of Education to increase the scale to $4,300 to $7,200 per year.

The alternative to this would be a $4,200 to $7,200 pay scale, the teachers being willing to let the Board of Education choose which plan it thought best.

Whether the Board of Education will accept either proposal is not known at a meeting sometime later in the week.

The board is to begin final drafting of its total budget Feb. 1.

Another major item which the board is to consider is the cost of a new school building.

Rainbow Seats Susan Spicer

Miss Susan Spicer was installed as worthy advocate of Manchester Assembly, Order of Rainbow for Girls, last night in ceremonies at the Masonic Temple.

The suit was brought against Krause by East Hartford Judge Edward Foley. Krause appealed the finding and the court of common pleas in early November nolle the case.

Krause said he pushed the youth onto a bench while he called police to the scene.

Since the incident, the Recreation Department has discussed deputizing life guards at town pools for the coming season.

Superintendent James W. Hertel told a recent Advisory Park and Recreation Commission meeting he would confer with Police Chief James Reardon to discuss the matter.

Krause, meanwhile, has notified the Recreation Department that he will return to the job next summer.

The incident prompting the suit was the death of a young girl who fell from a diving board at the town pool.

Five Areas Outlined For Possible Hunting

Hunting will be legal in Manchester if town Directors approve an ordinance released today by General Manager Richard Martin.

It approved by the Directors at a public hearing noon, the ordinance will allow hunters to fire shotguns at distances not within 500 feet from roads or buildings in five outlying areas on the west side of town.

Town officials worked with the State Board of Fisheries and Game in preparing the ordinance.

The proposed ordinance would not give hunters authority to go privately-owned land.

Rockville $15,000 Jury Award Set Aside by Judge

A $15,000 jury verdict favoring Mrs. John D. Hale of Rockville, Rockville, was set aside today by Tolland County Superior Court Judge Joseph B. Longo.

The decision was made today in the Superior Court district office, Judge Longo ruled the verdict favoring Mrs. Hale was against the weight of the evidence.

Hale brought suit against Crestline Realty Inc. of Rockville, claiming Crestline was responsible for head injuries to her son, John, 22 years ago, when he fell from a horse.

The jury awarded Mrs. Hale $15,000, plus interest, and $1,000 for attorney's fees.

After deliberating for nearly six hours, Nov. 24, the jury awarded the damages to Mrs. Hale, who was attorney Herbert Hannabury, Rockville, claimed the horse was kept on the premises since the fall.

The setting aside the verdict, Judge Longo wrote:

"The jury could reasonably have found that the defendant knew or should have known that children were trespassing on his land, but because there was no evidence that Crestline knew of Mrs. Hale's son, the jury was not warranted in concluding that the defendant was negligent."

The judge concluded that the jury either failed to comprehend the legal principles, or that the jury was misled by sympathy for the plaintiff.

A significant amount of the verdict in view of the uncontradicted testimony of the plaintiff's medical testimony, supports the court's conclusion that the jury was misled by sympathy for the judge wrote.

Atty. Hannabury, who represented Hale, said today he would appeal the decision to the Supreme Court of Errors.
