

Kennedy, Gromyko Confer on Laos Crisis, Both Expect Peaceful Solution to Dispute

Budget Director Reports U.S. Economy Turns Upward on Saturday

Washington, March 27 (AP)—Budget Director David E. Bell said today the Kennedy administration believes the recession is about at the bottom and that the economy should turn upward in the 3-month period starting Saturday.

Bell told the Senate-Economic Committee that by summer and next fall, the recovery should be proceeding at a good rate. Nevertheless, he said that the administration does not expect the upturn will be anything like as rapid as it would want.

Spaak, Socialists Fail Eyskens, Catholics Lose Ground in Belgian Vote

Brussels, March 27 (AP)—Election losses by the right wing of the Catholic party opened the prospect today that the party's trade union wing would join the socialists to form a new cabinet.

Because of the traditional Catholic-Socialist rivalry, however, it appeared a lengthy period of negotiations would be required before a new government could be formed to succeed Catholic Premier Gaston Eyskens' 28-month-old coalition of Catholic Social Christians and Conservative Liberals.

Foreign Minister Pierre Wigny of the Social Christians predicted a coalition of Social Christians, Socialists and Liberals. The Social Christian party president, Theo Lefevre, said his party "is not opposed to any political combination, nor does it advocate any—we are open to any solutions."

"All political combinations are now possible," said Socialist leader Paul-Henri Spaak. Another Socialist, former Foreign Minister Victor Larock, said any future government "will have to rest upon the world of labor."

Eyskens met briefly with his cabinet this morning and then in accordance with the constitution, submitted the government's resignation to King Baudouin. The king accepted the resignation but, continuing the cabinet in office as a caretaker regime, to serve until a new government is formed.

Stratford, March 27 (AP)—Negotiators hammered out a tentative agreement on a new contract early today, thus averting a work stoppage by 2,700 union employees of Avco Corporation's Lycoming Division.

Local 1010 of the United Auto Workers and the company reached an accord about 1 a.m., an hour after the old contract was to have expired and a strike to begin.

Groups of pickets appeared at the sprawling installation at midday. The division produces nose cones for the Atlas, Minuteman and Titan intercontinental ballistic missiles and gas turbine engines for helicopters.

U.S. to Meet Obligations SEATO Seen Ready To Fight Laos Reds

Bangkok, Thailand, March 27 (AP)—Meeting under the threat of armed Communist takeover in nearby Laos, foreign ministers of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization today appeared ready to meet force with force if necessary.

Robert G. Menzies, Australia's prime minister, said SEATO must not shrink from using force if it must resist Communists in this part of the world.

Felixberto M. Serrano, Philippine foreign secretary, said the alliance has come to the crossroads where "concern and caution demand that we now pause in self-consideration."

French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville declared the Laos situation is more critical than ever before. But he did not indicate readiness to go to war over Laos, Couve de Murville's speech.

Rusk reportedly made an even stronger statement of the American position to officials of the U.S. Embassy just before the SEATO meeting, telling them that the United States would not flinch from positive action if the Soviet Union refuses to go along with a cease-fire in Laos.

The other seven foreign ministers from SEATO's member nations each spoke his concern about the crisis in Laos, where Communist-supplied Pathet Lao rebels have backed recently against the western-backed Royal Government's troops.

"We are ready to honor our commitments, whatever they are," Rusk said.

No Published Result On 56-Minute Talk

Washington, March 27 (AP)—President Kennedy and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko separately voiced hopes today that a peaceful solution of the Laotian crisis can be found.

Speaking for Kennedy, White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said: "He continues to be hopeful that there will be agreement between the parties concerned which will permit a cessation of hostilities and the development of a neutral and independent Laos."

Gromyko a few moments earlier said after a 56-minute conference with Kennedy that: "The President and I, after our conversations, expressed the hope that possibilities would be found of settling the Laotian question peacefully."

Gromyko added that they expressed hope for an agreement on peaceful development of a policy of neutrality.

The two men met in Kennedy's oval office, flanked by advisers. Then they stepped out into the White House garden on a warm, sunny day, sat down on a wooden bench and continued to talk alone.

Gromyko speaks English, although he used an interpreter during the main part of the conference.

Kennedy and Gromyko went back inside and met again briefly with their advisers.

While they were in the garden, Mrs. Kennedy came up and shook hands with the foreign minister.

After the meeting, Gromyko said he had expressed to the President "certain considerations" of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and the government in Moscow on the crisis.

He did not spell out those considerations. Nor did he say whether they were in line with the stand in a Pravda article today which raised much hope here that the Soviets would accept a British peace plan beginning with a cease-fire and including an international conference to work out a more permanent settlement.

Gromyko said he did not bring any written message for the President. His reply to a question about a message clearly indicated he had given Khrushchev an oral message from Khrushchev.

Salinger was asked whether Kennedy and Gromyko discussed the possibility of a cease-fire in Laos.

The press secretary replied he could not go into specific matters discussed.

As for the prospects for a Soviet reply to Britain's proposal for a cease-fire and a general settlement, Salinger said Gromyko had told Kennedy that his government is studying the British plan carefully and intends to reply in the very near future.

Asked whether Gromyko had indicated what the general tone of the Russian reply will be, Salinger said: "He did not."

While other problems were discussed to some extent, Salinger refused to say more.

"THE WAY I HEARD IT"

The other evening, at a concert, Sir Hamilton Harty's name by I overheard two people behind me discussing the printed program, before the music began. One was trying to explain it to the other; and in this it was a matter of the hall leading the blind.

There are always promoters to concert and without some sort of knowledge they are more or less at sea when reading the printed program and trying to correlate it with the music. Consequently, I'm going to give them a few hints. It is already translated a program this column is probably not for you, but bear in mind that some people cannot do so.

Let's first consider a symphonic program and for choice let's look at the one to be offered April 28 by the Manchester Civic Orchestra, at the high school.

The first line will read something like this: Handel's "Water Music." And right below, in smaller type, indented from the margin you will see the following words stacked above each other:

Allegro Deciso
Translated from a sort of musical shorthand, this means that the first offering will be three numbers from Handel's "Water Music," there being some 40-odd numbers in this collection. The addition of Symphony No. 1, in C major. And right below it you will find four lines of smaller type indented and stacked as follows:

"This should apprise you that Beethoven's first symphony is in four sections or "movements." Theoretically they are related and should follow without pauses of any great duration, consequently applause after each movement is not indicated.

The first movement starts "Adagio molto," or "very slowly," and then changes to "Allegro con brio," or "Happily, with spirit." The second movement is listed as "Sung at a rather fast walking speed," to translate literally.

The third movement is supposed to be a Minuet, according to the heading, but "is not, because the original marking is 'Very fast and lively.' The two are mutually exclusive."

The "fast" movement, commonly referred to as a finale, starts "Allegro" or "Sung," and then changes tempo for the main portion of the piece. This is indicated with the words "Allegro molto vivace," or "Very bright and lively," or "Very bright and lively."

Bolton Chief Pleads For Care in Outside Fires

Fire Chief Peter Massolini issued a plea for care in outdoor burning after firemen were called out for two grass fires Sunday. Volunteers were first alerted at 11:45 a.m. for a grass fire at the home of Donald Hattazi on Brandy St., where about three-fourths of an acre was burned over. Cause of this blaze was given as a spark from an uncovered incinerator, where papers were being burned.

Almost three acres of land were burned over on property owned by Mrs. Esther Silverstein on Cedar Hill Rd. in a fire about 12:30 Sunday. The cause of the second fire was an unknown spark, Massolini said. No damage was reported in either fire.

Massolini urged residents to use caution in outdoor burning, to only approved incinerators with a cover, and to obtain a fire permit from one of the fire warden before doing any outdoor burning. The fire chief suggested that incinerators be placed in a clear spot so that there would be a clear path for the fire warden to draw permits from a fire warden.

Bad Automation Aful

Chicago—Automation has its drawbacks as well as advantages. At a metalworking factory recently, a two-dimensional cutting job was ruined when one motion jammed and the other continued. The cutting tool chewed through the workpiece and then right through the worktable.

Coventry Selectman Coviello Accused Of Embezzling Center Funds

An undisclosed amount of annual membership drive and rental fee is reported missing from the funds of the Nathan Hale Community Center and the treasurer of the non-profit corporation has been charged with embezzling by agent.

He is Selectman James J. Coviello, 43, of Dunn Rd., North Coventry.

Officials of the recreational organization are not commenting on the case. The group's executive board, after checking the books Friday night, brought a complaint to state police at the Statler Troop, and a warrant was issued for Coviello's arrest. He was arrested yesterday by Sgt. Ludwig T. Kolodziej, resident state trooper, booked at Stafford Springs, and released under a $2,500 bond for appearance in Circuit Court 15, Stafford Springs, April 19.

The Community Center owns a building on Main St., South Coventry, which is used for a recreation hall for dances and other activities. A Coventry resident reported, Coviello is derived from an amount.

Fee Boost Opposed

Hartford, March 27 (AP)—Republican legislative leaders have opposed a Democratic move to boost annual motor vehicle registration fees from $6 to $12 for passenger and commercial cars.

Gov. John N. Dempsey had estimated the higher fees would raise $12.7 million in additional revenues over the next two years.

GOP legislative leaders said Saturday the present fees are high enough.

Sutton Place, south of London, is one of England's most beautiful homes. Getty is said to have paid about $2.8 million to buy it from the Duke of Sutherland.

"A call to London costs one and three (one shilling three pence—18 cents)," said Getty, "and when you get some fellow talking for 10 or 15 minutes, well, it all adds up. So, I've installed a coin box telephone."

Getty said he well remember his first visit to the home of the newspaper publisher.

"Mr. Hearst didn't like people to use his telephone without telling him about it," Getty recalled. "I was told that if you did not tell Mr. Hearst about it, when you got back to your room, your bags were packed. You were out."

Getty said he would never do that.

"The coin box should take care of things," he commented.

The country also elected a number of provincial councilors and 206 senators. The provincial councils will name the rest of the 175 member senate. The Social Christians lost one to five seats on all the provincial councils but retained the largest group on all but those in Liege and Hainaut, both Socialist strongholds.

This was the result of the Sept. 16 election. Social Christians 47 (minus 6); Socialists 45 (plus 6); Liberals 11 (minus one); Vob-

Fats Secret Found

Paris — French chemist Michel Eugene Chevreul discovered in 1823, after 10 years' research, that all fats — either solid or liquid and whether of animal or vegetable origin — are decomposed into glycerine and acids when heated with alkali. He was able to isolate from all ordinary fats a waxy substance and a liquid oil — now known as stearic acid and oleic acid, respectively.

Lack of Air Studied

New York—Research has established oxygen deprivation during pregnancy as a cause of heart defects in mice offspring. Scientists hope to apply the finding to prevent similar deformities in humans.

The accident occurred on heavily traveled Route 6.

3 State Men Killed
Westboro, Mass., March 27 (AP)—A double funeral service will be held Wednesday for a father and son who were among four men killed Saturday in a plane crash near Route 6.

The service, at Westboro Congregational Church at 2 p.m., will be for Albert L. Bell, 47, Framingham, director of research and development for Ray State Aircraft Products Co., Westboro, and his son, Albert L. Jr., 34, Torrington, Conn., a mechanical engineer for the Torrington Co.

Also killed in the crash of the single engine Bonanza plane, en route from Worcester to Bradley Field, Windsor Locks, Conn., were Schallan L. Ghani, 40, of Torrington, and Donald H. McMahon, 24, of Windsor. McMahon was a wing broke off the plane, owned by the Bells, came in for a landing at Bradley Airport.

4 March for Freedom
Berlin, March 27 (AP)—Despite blisters and fallen arches, four Wabash College students took road today to resume their march for physical fitness.

The hiking quartet, which set out Friday from Putney, Vt., hopes to reach New York's Times Square by late Wednesday or early Thursday.

The 240-mile hike was the student's method of calling public attention to President Kennedy's physical fitness program.

After an overnight stay here, the four determined students headed further along the road in late 1958, planning to get in at least 40 miles before ending the fourth day of their hike.

One of them, Anthony Broom, 20, New York City, was nursing an act of fallen arches by the time the quartet reached Berlin. Frank Catalano, 19, Huntington, N.Y., was troubled by blisters.

But they were keeping up on the hike with Bruce Blaisius, 19, Ramsey, N. J., and Richard Murphy, 22, New York City.

The four, when they reach New York, hope to contact Kennedy to see if there is anything else they can do to call attention to his physical fitness program.

Stock Driver Crushed
Bethel, March 27 (AP)—William Barbell, 29, a stock car driver, was killed last night when a car he was repairing slipped off a jack and crushed him.

Barbell frequently drove at the Danbury State Fair.

He was making the repair in the garage of his home at 4 Prospect St. He was found by neighbors who lifted the car to see if he could be removed to Danbury hospital. He was dead on arrival.

'Gag Rule' Confirmed
Hartford, March 27 (AP)—House Speaker Anthony E. Wallace, R-Southern, said today that he would not be free to attend "gag rule" on the presidents of four state teachers colleges.

The president of one of the colleges Saturday confirmed Wallace's statements. The educators said the four presidents had been advised by State Education Commissioner William J. Sanders that they would be free to attend "gag rule" at a hearing before the legislature's Appropriations Committee tomorrow.

The schools are Southern Connecticut (New Britain), Danbury and Willimantic State Colleges.

Wallace said the "gag rule" is an advisory resolution to force backings of Gov. John N. Dempsey's recommendations to cut $1.4 million from the colleges' $12.9 million operational budget and more than $3 million from their building requests.

'Blackballed'
Thompsonville, March 27 (AP)—A new novel about a teacher who is blackballed by his school community is being published.

The teacher, Miss Ann Symonds, the author, was a school teacher from the Enfield School District for 20 years before she was blackballed.

The novel, "Blackballed," relates the story of a young school teacher's attempt to teach her first year, planning to get in at least 40 miles before ending the fourth day of their hike.

One of them, Anthony Broom, 20, New York City, was nursing an act of fallen arches by the time the quartet reached Berlin. Frank Catalano, 19, Huntington, N.Y., was troubled by blisters.

But they were keeping up on the hike with Bruce Blaisius, 19, Ramsey, N. J., and Richard Murphy, 22, New York City.

The four, when they reach New York, hope to contact Kennedy to see if there is anything else they can do to call attention to his physical fitness program.

Schoolboy Crushed
East Hadam, March 27 (AP)—A 13-year-old schoolboy was crushed to death yesterday afternoon when a tractor he was operating overturned on him.

State Police said Daniel Hitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hitz, Hitz, Chester Stramp Rd., Moodus, apparently put the tractor into third gear instead of reverse as the heavy machine approached a 4-foot wall. The tractor, under accelerated speed, started to climb the wall and then toppled over, pinning the boy underneath.

Fighting Stops On Laos Front

Fighting along the Pathet Lao border appeared to be self-defeating because they are not believed in the west but still taken as true by panicky Royal Army troops.

Western experts estimate that up to 10 per cent of the 4,000 to 6,000 Pathet Lao troops are made up of technicians, artillerymen and advisers on strategy from North Vietnam.

They see no evidence to back up government claims that a total of 15 battalions have crossed the border to fight with the rebels.

Western experts also term reports of critical fighting around Kam Keut in the narrow central portion of Laos exaggerated.

What happened was that 30 Pathet Lao stormed the town and government troops fled, later returning to fight with the rebels.

"All this talk about cutting Laos in two is so much hot air," said one western military man. "In the first place there is no possible road to cut. In the second place the truth is it was already cut in two—even three or four by the Pathet Lao."

Information Minister Bouvan Norasing said in effect that Laos' fate is in the hands of the big powers and the SEATO meeting. He said the royal government could not hope to arrange a cease-fire by itself because the Pathet Lao is under obligation to the Soviet Union which is supplying arms to the rebels.

There were no outward signs of unusual activity in this quiet capital as the SEATO meeting opened.

An occasional truckload of smiling troops rolled down the streets but people went to market, official shuffled papers in offices and everybody took the usual midday rest.

Farm-Aid Cost Rises
Washington—Thirty-nine states and the District of Columbia are participating in the Department of Agriculture's rural-development program to help low-income farm areas. In 1960 the cost of the program was $1,500,000 from $880,000 the year before.

Rockville-Vernon
Car Hits Pole, 2 in Hospital
State Police today are investigating an accident which occurred in Ellington last night and which resulted in hospitalization of two Rockville men.

Russell Stowe, 34, of 38 Prospect St., and Arthur Burgess, 24, of 28 N. Park St., were admitted to Manchester Memorial Hospital at 8 p.m. yesterday after their transfer from Rockville City Hospital.

State Police at Troop C in Stafford Springs said this morning their information was sketchy. Trooper Joseph Bangasser, investigating, had been unable to locate the occupants of the car.

Burgess was driving, police said, and Stowe was his passenger. According to spectators at the scene, the men were driving south on Rt. 83 just north of the Rockville city line when the car struck a utility pole on the right hand side. The pole was snapped in two, and the car rolled about 60 feet over a wall and into some bushes bordering the driveway of a nearby house.

Spring Training WARM UP From Florida

Biggest Bat Baseball History Once Lugged by Eddie Roush

Brenton, Fla. — Each morning the Milwaukee Braves spring training camp near the Manatee River, a visitor, a well-tanned man carrying a few extra pounds around his midsection, can be seen leading the ball players in wild antics in the outfield. Also, this chap often takes a latticed bat from his bag and, with a few chaps, he is seen in batting practice before being sent to the back of the bus. Next he picks up a bat, carefully places it in a large canvas bag and, when filled, brings the bag over to the batting practice pitcher's mound.

There is an interesting story behind this man, whose first physical condition he is, age 57. He is Eddie Roush, a former major league player who has spent the last 15 years of his life in the Milwaukee Braves camp. Roush, who was just getting enough votes for election to baseball's Hall of Fame, is a native of Oakland City, Ind. but has wintered in Brenton for years, always being welcomed in the Braves' camp.

An Amazing Guy
"It's an amazing guy," Manager Chuck Dresser told me as we watched Roush, with his little glove that is about half the size of the gloves used by players today, practicing in and out, making the hard catches look easy and feeding grounders as if he was a rookie trying to get his feet under him.

When Roush left the field I followed him into the clubhouse. "That's your secret for staying in top physical condition?" I asked. "I have always been in good condition," he replied. "I never had any trouble in spring training working my legs or arm into shape. I stayed in shape all year long. I could miss all of spring training and start the opening day's game and be ready to go."

Dresser, who had followed me to the clubhouse, said that Roush's number, 59, added his two cents. "That's right what he said. Baseball has never known a man who was always in shape like Eddie. He was a home run hitter, Roush specialized in just meeting the ball spraying hits to all fields."

Used 48 Ounce Bat
"I used the biggest bat in the history of baseball," the 57-year-old veteran said. "I always used a 48 ounce bat. I used to swing a long bat which I choked up so far that the handle kept hitting me in the stomach every time I swung. Finally, I ordered my bats shorter. I had two bats made, one 42 inches but I used to choke up so much. Roush played 17 years in the majors, 1914 through 1931, with the New York Giants and Cincinnati Reds. For 11 consecutive seasons he batted over .300. Finally he was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1950. A lot of writers said Roush was a 'hot' hitter."

Defending Champ Sets Two Records Roush Bates Still Now Duckpin King

When the blue chips were being tossed beyond the shadow of a doubt that he is still the top duckpin bowler in the City of Willies Cham, Fred Roush, who had won a field of 123 hopefuls during the qualifying round two weeks ago and had been bowled over by the smooth, southpaw tournament defending champion completely surprised his teammates in the Restaurant League by sweeping the first three games of what was supposed to have been a best three out of five games final match for the title in the ninth annual Men's Duckpin Bowling Tournament.

"I used to order six bats like this year," Roush said as he started to peel off his uniform that was wet with sweat. "I used to swing a long bat which I choked up so far that the handle kept hitting me in the stomach every time I swung. Finally, I ordered my bats shorter. I had two bats made, one 42 inches but I used to choke up so much. Roush played 17 years in the majors, 1914 through 1931, with the New York Giants and Cincinnati Reds. For 11 consecutive seasons he batted over .300. Finally he was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1950. A lot of writers said Roush was a 'hot' hitter."

Kept Same Style
Roush maintained the same style of playing throughout his career. He was a home run hitter, Roush specialized in just meeting the ball spraying hits to all fields. "I used the biggest bat in the history of baseball," the 57-year-old veteran said. "I always used a 48 ounce bat. I used to swing a long bat which I choked up so far that the handle kept hitting me in the stomach every time I swung. Finally, I ordered my bats shorter. I had two bats made, one 42 inches but I used to choke up so much. Roush played 17 years in the majors, 1914 through 1931, with the New York Giants and Cincinnati Reds. For 11 consecutive seasons he batted over .300. Finally he was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1950. A lot of writers said Roush was a 'hot' hitter."
