Firemen Battle House Blaze

Vernon and Rockville firemen try to control blaze in two-car garage at the home of Raymond C. McKinney at 10 Sunrise Dr. in Vernon. The fire started at 9:45 p.m. yesterday and was under control within a half-hour. Extensive damage was reported to the garage with heavy smoke and water damage in the house section. Cause of the blaze is undetermined. It is still under investigation. (Herald photo by Sateris).

Rockville Fire Probed

(Continued from Page One) A blaze at the Carriage House was one of the fires then under probe. Damage at the Hall was estimated at about $10,000 in the 1960 fire. More than $30,000 was spent in renovations after extensive damage to the second floor and the attic. Among fires under probe then was a blaze that badly damaged the Professional Building and another of the Union Congregational Church. Scores of persons were questioned by State and Rockville police during intensive efforts to trace the cause of the blazes. On June 6, 1960 the city council offered a $100 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the fires. An Ellington man was subsequently arrested and charged with arson. He was convicted and confined to a mental institution.

12th Circuit Court Cases

EAST HARTFORD SESSION Four youths, three from Manchester and one from Bolton, yesterday were given jail or suspended jail terms after being found guilty of similar charges of larceny (value $180).

The charges stemmed from a theft of gasoline, fire extinguishers, reflectors and an ax from vehicles at the Collin's Bus Service, South Windsor, on the night of June 1.

Clarence Burke Jr., 23, of 229 Autumn St., was sentenced to six months at the State Jail at Hartford. He appealed the findings in the case and an appeal bond of $2,500 has been set.

Raymond Miller, 21, of 810 Toland Tpke., was also given six months in jail along with a revocation of his probation which stemmed from a previous conviction.

David N. Masse, 22, Bolton, was fined $50, given a 60-day suspended jail term and placed on probation for two years.

Richard Oliver, 19, of 146 Bissell St., was given six months in jail, suspended after 60 days, and placed on probation for two years.

In other case dispositions, Raymond O'Neil, 22, of 10 Mintz Court, was fined $25 after he pleaded guilty to breach of the peace, a charge which stemmed from a drinking incident and disturbance at the World of Mirth Carnival, Silver Lane, East Hartford; and Ann M. Sobrial of Talcottville was fined $45 after pleading guilty to a substitute charge of reckless driving. She was originally charged with evading responsibility and had pleaded not guilty to that charge. She was put to plea yesterday on the new charge and her original plea was erased.

Bryant College Graduates

Four Manchester persons were graduated from Bryant College, Providence, R. I., this morning at its 100th Anniversary Commencement exercises.

They are Robert W. Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Anderson, 20 Avondale Rd.; Arthur E. Nielsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Soule, 22 Clifton St.; Miss Carol Ann Gilha, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gilha, 460 Hillside Rd.; and Miss Judith A. Soule, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Soule, 22 Clifton St.

Anderson and Nielsen were awarded bachelor of science degrees in business administration; Miss Gilha and Miss Soule, who were enrolled in a two-year accelerated program, received associate degrees.

Anderson, a dean's list student, was awarded the Bryant Golden Key for outstanding scholastic achievement. A member of the Newman Club, he also served as its treasurer and vice president, and was vice president of the Glee Club.

Nielsen, a member of Phi Sigma Nu Fraternity, the Delta Omega Professional Society, and the Bryant Chapter of the American Marketing Association, was secretary of Phi Sigma Nu Fraternity, secretary of the "Circle K" Club, and a member of the Delta Omega Professional Association, the Bryant chapter of the American Marketing Association, and the Bryant Christian Association. He was sports editor for the Archway (the campus newspaper) and was a dormitory representative.

Miss Gilha, a member of Sigma Lambda Theta Sorority, was chosen "most outstanding student" of the sorority. Secretary of her senior class, she was also a member of the Student Senate, and the Newman Club, and served as counselor for her dormitory.

Miss Soule was a member of Sigma Lambda Theta Sorority. Miss Soule, Miss Gilha, and Nielsen are all graduates of Manchester High School. Anderson attended St. Thomas Seminary.

At the commencement ceremonies this morning, Edwin P. Nellan, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, delivered the address to graduates entitled, "Youth Opportunities Unlimited."

Hebron Gilead Boy, 15, Killed As Tractor Overturns

William Bromley, 15, of Hebron Rd., Gilead, was fatally injured last night when the farm tractor he was driving overturned as he attempted a U-turn on Rt. 85, just south of Gilead St. at about 7 p.m., according to State Police. Bromley was pinned under the tractor's right rear wheel, and suffered head and chest injuries.

Colchester State Police called the Manchester Ambulance Service and Bromley was rushed to Manchester Memorial Hospital, from where he was transferred to Hartford Hospital. He was dead upon arrival at about 9 p.m.

A companion, James Porter, 16, of old Gilead Rd., riding on the rear of the tractor, was thrown clear in the accident, and suffered only bruises.

State Police said that the boys were on their way to assist a disabled truck, loaded with hay. When they got within sight of the truck, they noted that it was moving under its own power, and their assistance was apparently not needed. That is when Bromley decided to make the U-turn towards home, and the tractor turned over.

The Bromley boy was born May 4, 1948 in Webster, Mass., a son of William H. and Shirley Ann Reynolds Bromley. He would have been a sophomore at Rham High School in September.

Resident his parents, he is survived by three brothers, David W.

half of 32 African nations, even though diplomats generally figured it could not get the seven votes necessary for adoption.

Key clauses condemn Portugal's colonial attitude and demand that she immediately recognize the right of her territories to self-determination, stop "acts of repression" there, pull out troops, negotiate for a transfer of power to elected governments and finally grant independence to all the territories—namely Portuguese Guinea, Angola and Mozambique.

The U.N. Special Committee on Colonialism recommended Friday night that the General Assembly call on South Africa to "declare unequivocally" that it will not try to annex British-protected Basutoland, Bechuanaland and Swaziland.

Comic Billy Sands Unknown Off-Screen

By RUTH E. THOMPSON

Billy "Tinker Bell" Sands, the last man aboard when "McHale's Navy" (ABC-TV) was signing on its regulars last season, is confident he's in for a five-year hitch in the crazy PT-boat detachment skippered by Ernest Borgnine.

Of course, if the Bilko series is re-running around your way, then Billy is also in the Army still as Dino Paparelli.

But as a matter of fact, if nobody's using that old label "Man of a thousand faces," Billy's just the man to sew it on because if you bump into him on the street some day, and if you run true to form, you'll say "Hi!" then walk away trying to place him. Billy says ten-to-one you won't figure it out. People think I look vaguely familiar but they don't associate me with television. They're more apt to conclude it must be good-old Wot-siname they used to play hooky from school with. His personal style of dressing has a lot to do with it, of course. Sands favors well-cut conservative business suits whereas Tinker and Dino before him, were either in work clothes or in uniform. But mostly it's what he does—or rather doesn't do—with his face. When he's out of character his jaw relaxes to normal size, his eyes un-squint and presto, there's Wot-siname.

Billy declined a scholarship to college after he'd gotten his first taste of show business at a summer resort.

"In a Catskill's famous hornet circuit?"

"Nops, didn't get there until I'd been in the business for years and I was earning good money and they were paying it. I started in a nice little place in Vermont run by a woman who took me on because she was a friend of my mother's back in Jersey City. She had a wonderful sense of humor. When I did a sketch in the first 'Staff Night' she decided I was funnier than some of the talent she was paying for.

"I went back there six summers, got into production and directing gradually. Next I went off to a resort in New Hampshire where such young fellows as Ella Kazan (then an actor) and John Garfield were working. Then—much later, I was with the famous Camp Tansamist, early stopping place for such talent as Danny Kaye, Eugene O'Neil, and more recently, Carol Burnett.

There were lean seasons though, winter seasons, in the early years. In fact, he'd pretty well given up the idea of performing in New York and walked into an agents office to look for talent for a production he was casting when the agent said, "You look funny, do you want to work tonight?" It wasn't quite New York, it was Newark, just across the river, but the closest booking he'd ever had to the metropolis. "Of course, I didn't have an act—but I made one up on the train," which means of course that he had less than half an hour! It turned out a semi-professional, semi-amateur evening, but Billy went over big. "I was paid $5, but I got something infinitely more important. The orchestra leader, a nice guy named Leo Fineburg, got the word around that 'the kid is funny' and it got to me and felt good. I suddenly realized that this was the end of the business I wanted to be in, that it didn't matter if I made a few dollars less until I was known." Billy's non-New York jinx was broken. Theater appearances, club dates and eventually 13 Broadway shows came his way.

World War II cut a swathe of two years from the career during which time Billy was with the signal corps. After his discharge he trooped back to the servicemen stationed overseas as "Banjo" with Moss Hart in a U.S.O. production of "The Man Who Came to Dinner." (Incidentally, it's still his favorite stage part). "I did try drama early in my career," he says whimsically, "but people kept laughing at me, so what could I do?"

Then he met an agent he'd lost track of during the war years. "Are you still funny?" "Are you still an agent?" was Billy's rejoinder and they got down to business, and Billy finally got to the Borscht Circuit, or rather a prime stop thereon, Grossingers, where Milton Berle caught his act and quickly telephoned a recommendation to her famous son who was casting TV's earliest big-time comedy program.

"Sitting in the control room when I auditioned," Billy muses, "was Nat Hiken who's given me more work than anybody else."

After that Billy went into the program headlined by the late Jack Carson where he started as a comedy announcer, then moved into the main body of the show. When that ended he got a spot with Martha Raye and then came Bilko.

Which of the headliners has he enjoyed working with best? Well, he's liked them all but maybe gallantly gave the edge to Martha Raye. "She's pretty close to genius, yet she can work well with other comics," is his accolade.

And if you've wondered about backstage at "McHale's Navy," it seems PT Boat 73 is "a happy ship." The Naval Reserve which presented its 1968 award "for outstanding service in humanizing the U.S. Navy" to the program chose well. Borgnine is wonderful to work with according to Billy because, "He's not a comic. He's a good actor who handles anything, including comedy, well. He's the one who makes the whole half hour tick."

"So we enjoy it, but it's not that we don't work hard, mind you. We have a saying, if you're 45 minutes early, you're late."

Billy's wife, Toronto-born Martha Sands, had had a formal musical education and was "one-third of a trio whose material was so high-class I didn't understand it" when they met, now devotes herself to home and children Gene, 10, and Susan, 5, "and to shopping." Billy added, "Right now they're shopping for clothes and antiques, the latter because we have a motto, when you're in a series buy a house. And as I said 'McHales' is going at least five years, it just figures. I was with Carson two years; Martha Raye, three years, and Bilko, four."

"What kind of house?" echoed the not-quite-transplanted Bostoner. "Why it's a well... it's a Connecticut Yankee farmhouse—in California." What else!

Gilbert and Sullivan, the beach at Walkiki, songs sung by mimes, and varied cloaks provide themes for NBC-TV's "Sing Along with Mitch" in color Friday, Aug. 2 (8:30 p.m. EDT. Repeat of Feb. 15, 1968).

A high school football coach is threatened with blackmail if he lets his team win the championship game in "The Long Walk Home," an exciting story of scandal and sport on the Alico Premiere summer program Thursday, Aug. 1, from 10-11 p.m., NYT over ABC-TV.

Billy Sands gets a helping hand from Cindy Robbins with the bridal garb he had to wear in a recent episode of "McHale's Navy."

Tal Garret (series star Ryan O'Neal) feels compelled to show he is self-reliant in "Seven Days on Rough Street," on "Empire," NBC-TV color series, Tuesday, July 30 (8:30-9:30 p.m. EDT. Repeat of Feb. 28, 1968).

The conference in Moscow between the United States, the Soviet Union and Britain on a nuclear test-ban treaty will be the subject of "Ray Scherer's Sunday Report" on NBC-TV Sunday, July 28 (6:30 to 7 p.m. EDT).

A modern religious choral work, the "Choral Mass in Three Voices," composed by Donald Johns, will be presented by "I Believe" on the NBC-TV Network Sunday, July 28 (1:30-2 p.m. EDT). Dr.

the foliage. That commemorates for at the University of California's Riverside campus.

The careers of Dr. Kildare (Richard Chamberlain) and Dr. Gillespie (Raymond Massey) are threatened when they are sued for $1,300,000 for alleged malpractice, in "The Thing Speaks for Itself" on NBC-TV's "Dr. Kildare" series Thursday, Aug. 1 (8:30-9:30 p.m. EDT. Repeat of Jan. 10, 1963).

Settling differences between two warring families raises new problems for Slim (John Smith) and Jess (Robert Fuller) in "The Dispossessed," an episode of NBC-TV's "Laramie" color series Tuesday, July 30 (7:30-8:30 p.m. EDT). Repeat of Feb. 19, 1963.

Stars Work For Charities

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-Television Writer

Stars love a good cause almost as much as a good part. Marlon Brando's appearance in integration headlines is the most recent example.

There are phonies, a very few, who may lend their names for publicity. But most are sincere and work hard at it.

Some, like Jerry Lewis and Frank Sinatra, not only work hard but spend thousands of dollars on their pet projects.

Lewis is a tireless worker in the campaign against muscular dystrophy. Sinatra, who calls himself an overprivileged adult, last year spent $25,000 on a world tour that raised $1.2 million for underprivileged kids.

Lewis, although Jewish, is a big financial gun behind the Mary and Joseph League, a Catholic charity. That's his wife's pet charity. She's Roman Catholic.

As a class, the comedians are the hardest workers. Some, like Joe E. Lewis and Jimmy Durante, don't do it publicly.

They just see that some of their old pals who didn't make it big eat well and pay the rent.

Bob Hope has more causes than Bing Crosby jokes. His favorite, of course, is GI Joe in some lonely outpost.

"I don't consider this charity," explains Hope. "Where else can I get an audience that won't walk out on me?"

In the early days of television, every comedian with a program was plugging for research on some unpronounceable disease.

George Gobel said it delayed his television debut by a year.

"When I was ready to go, NBC said they had run out of diseases. Only thing left was measles."

Jack Benny's violin playing has raised thousands for musicians' pension funds and paid off the deficit for some symphony orchestras.

Danny Thomas, who says he once had a prayer to St. Jude answered, raised more than a million to build the St. Jude Hospital in Memphis.

Red Skelton has given a fortune for leukemia research since the disease took the life of his son, Richard.

Jane Russell founded WAIF, the international adoption agency that so far has placed 11,000 children with parents.

Loretta Young has done much for unwed mothers, as has Mrs. Bob Hope.

Actress Vies Well with Comedy Pros

By JAMES BACON

AP Movie-Television Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP) — How does a pretty actress with little comedy experience, thrown among comedy pros, wind up as one of television's brightest young comedienne?

That's what happened to Mary Tyler Moore, the wife on "The Dick Van Dyke" show. Danny Thomas calls her the best young farceur in the business.

Her co-stars are Van Dyke, Morry Amsterdam and Rose Marie. The latter two are among the sharpest wits in the business.

And Stan Laurel wants no one but Van Dyke to play him when they film the "Laurel and Hardy Story."

Says Mary: "It was pretty frightening when I realized what I was up against. I knew how easily I could get lost in this company."

"I thought and thought about it. I knew that there was no chance in the world if I competed against any of them as an out-and-out comedienne. They'd destroy me—even with the best of intentions otherwise."

"The only thing I had going for me was my experience as an actress. On that basis, I knew I could compete—even though most of my experience was on the serious side."

"When a script came, I approached it strictly as an actress playing comedy. It's amazing what a thin line there is between serious acting and comedy acting. It's worked well. Also I have had the help of one of the best comedy directors in the business—Sheldon Leonard."

"The only time I have any trouble is when we do slapstick. You just can't approach slapstick with any actress method. There's no rhyme nor reason to it—so sometimes I got a little lost—but I'm learning that, too."

Some years before, Mary had been up for the part of Danny Thomas' older daughter on "The Danny Thomas Show."

"She was too sophisticated looking for my show but I kept her in the back of my head—although I forgot her name," Danny recalls.

When Thomas and Leonard, some four years later, were casting the "Van Dyke" show, Thomas ordered: "Get that girl with the three names for the wife."

TV Notebook

By DICK KLEINER

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. NEW YORK —(NEA) — If and when Patrick Wayne ever writes his version of "Life With Father," it will shed a new light on the personality of John Wayne.

Young Pat's new movie, "McClintock," may well establish him as a chip off the old blockbuster. He is big, handsome and has his own brand of quiet charm. You saw him on television as the kid first baseman in Fred Astaire's Premier play, "Flashing Spikes," with James Stewart.

Patrick Wayne

Even though he is John Wayne's son, he didn't grow up with a burning desire to act. The only burning desire he had was to get a college education. This he did, majoring in biology at Loyola. But, along about his junior year, he decided "I'd enjoy acting more than anything else."

Pat says his father never tried to guide any of his children. There are six young Waynes, two older than Pat and three younger.

"My father was a strange disciplinarian," Pat says. "I only remember his spanking me once. I don't remember what I did—I only remember knowing that I never wanted to be spanked again."

"But what he would do is wait until you were in a room with lots of people around and then scold you. Once, I guess I was about 9, I found his .45 and fooled around with it. You know, twirling it and playing with it. Nothing happened, luckily. I put it away when I was finished. But he found out what I had done."

"More than a year later, we were all in Ireland where he was shooting 'The Quiet Man.' One night, at a dinner party with the whole cast, he was sitting across the table from me. Suddenly, he leaned over, shook his finger at me and said, 'Don't you ever touch my gun again.'"

"I was humiliated. Tears were streaming down my face. It was terrible. But I never touched the gun again."

Jackie Loughery

The chance to travel helped lure former beauty queen Jackie Loughery into showbusiness.

She has had miles and miles of travel and now she would like to do some sight-seeing.

"I've traveled thousands of miles since my acting career began," said the former Miss United States, "but I haven't seen anything."

"There's a difference between travel and mileage," said Jackie who manages to break the string of dateless shore leaves of Lt. Rex St. John (Jack Mullaney) in NBC-TV's "Ensign O'Toole" Sunday, Aug. 4 (7 p.m. EDT; repeat of Feb. 10, 1963).

"About five years ago," she recalled, "I was sent on a four-week

Deepening Crisis: How Short the Fuse?

EDITORS NOTE - Will racial strife in America be limited to sporadic outbreaks or are we, in this turbulent summer, on the verge of major domestic violence?

By BERNARD GAVZEE Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson has warned that "a time bomb" lies in America's streets this turbulent summer of 1963.

Police reaction to jeering crowds, in either North or South, could result in major racial violence in the U.S. this summer.

Interviews with and reports from top-level white and Negro officials in federal, state and municipal governments, with civic, social and religious leaders, and with citizens in the street, point to one conclusion.

There is grave danger of major racial violence as America looks for a solution to the deepening integration crisis.

If chaos comes, the consensus is: 1. It may very likely—but not necessarily—occur in a Northern big city.

Police reaction to jeering crowds, in either North or South, could result in major racial violence in the U.S. this summer.

of the National (Negro) Baptist Convention, is booted for nine minutes, supposedly because he had backed President Kennedy's call for a moratorium on demonstrations.

C. Sumner Stone Jr., editor of the Washington (D.C.) Afro-American, says "For the first time, I'd say, everybody is involved. All Negroes, except for some Uncle Toms, are prepared to be involved."

In Detroit, George W. Cathcart of the Trade Union Leadership Council—a Negro labor power—was told about a professor's comment that "the old people got converted and the young people got religion."

There is concern that the one thing which might lead to trouble would be a march on Washington.

Such a march is set for Aug. 28. It was decided upon in New York recently at a strategy meeting involving CORE's James Farmer, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference's Martin Luther King Jr., the Urban League's Whitney Young, CORE's James Farmer, the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee's John Lewis and A. Philip Randolph, president of the Negro American Labor Council.

The march was scheduled even though the Kennedy administration has voiced vigorous determination to get a strong civil rights bill through Congress.

Authorities who must plan for any eventuality have done so in many areas. The federal government is committed to back decisions of courts and policies of the administration with troops.
