MCC Folding After Season

The Manchester Community Concert Association will begin its final season next week with a concert by William Warfield, best known for his singing and acting in Porgy and Bess, the American opera by George Gershwin.

Commenting on the season, Dr. Harvey Finkel, president of the organization said, "It is regrettable that this season is not in music here in Manchester because of the absence of a series which I and others who attend feel has not only cultural advantages to the town, but great entertainment and educational value to the residents as well."

Founded ten years ago, the local group has brought many noteworthy attractions to Manchester, including such orchestras as those from Buffalo, Washington, Cincinnati and Lincoln, Ohio. Many internationally known stars have also graced the stage at Bailey Hall during the period which in the past has represented the highest cultural point in Manchester's history.

ster (Name) Andelman ordered seizure of all smoked fish products in the city Friday. Andelman said 50 investigators will work on the case all week. The FDA singled out fish products that are packaged in sealed plastic wrappers and those that are sold in bulk without any wrappers. Canned products are not involved, the agency said. Michigan authorities said they found the organisms in smoked fish from the St. Joseph fishery in Michigan. The fish was heated immediately after packaging and has been maintained in a temperature of at least 100 degrees Fahrenheit for at least 20 minutes. "The fish was frozen immediately after packaging and has been maintained in a temperature of at least 100 degrees Fahrenheit for at least 20 minutes."

The Super-Slick

The correlation between super-patriotism, which those expatriates it obviously consider a high virtue, and the kind of behavior it sometimes inspires and claims the right to incense...

Memoirist?

When we had the unpleasant experience of reading Harry Truman's own account of his years in the White House, we had the impression that the story he himself believed and told was quite some distance removed from what might have been the verdict of any objective fly on the wall.

Memorist?

It seems to us that, in shaping his version, he made a choice between a difficult, involved and necessarily subtle, and one of what may have been his own great moral and political courage in that policy, and a glib version in which he played the hero by completely normal standards.

ed that Eisenhower took in Korea a truce which was essentially the same as one which had been negotiated under Truman and which Truman could have taken had he dared. And in fact of policy fact at the time, Eisenhower's acceptance of the stalemate truce in Korea was the first big sign that his administration was going to be devoted to the advocacy of peace and reason in world affairs as contrasted to automatic warfare...

Connecticut Yankee

By A.H.O.

One of the most intensive impressive lobbying performances before the 1968 session of the General Assembly was performed out of the goodness in the big expansive heart of Stratford, currently of Glassboro, once Governor, still with United States Senator and also Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court of Errors in which capacity he performed the lobbying that failed.

Park Kept H Clean

While the election in Korea was in progress, we wondered what explanation the opposition would give if, after all the charges of corruption and intimidation at the polls, it, the opposition, happened to win. We suppose the rationalization would have been easy, and it would have been that the military junta in power had done its best to steal the election and still failed.

A Thought for Today

Sponsored by the Manchester Council of Churches: The Church is God's House where we go to face the most terrible thing in the world, the big I, my big eye that thinks that I am the most important thing in the world.

Heralding Homes

Creating the Illusion of Space

Two rooms were combined to make a living room large enough to satisfy the family needs.

The decorating skill of Mrs. Richard Callahan of 48 Coleman Rd. plus the craftsmanship of her husband has transformed their small Cape Cod into a place of unusual charm and wide vistas. One of the first things which greet you as you enter the size of the rooms, which appear much larger than they actually are.

Evidence of Mrs. Callahan's ingenuity is displayed in blending of furniture styles in dining room.

Callahan built a lattice arch on the door that divides the dining room from the living room. Pale pink and sage green are painted in the off-white background in a series of the kitchen walls. The wall in back of the range is painted pink and decorated with trivets that are painted aqua. The colors are also repeated in candles, floral arrangements and articles in a shadow box.

The Callahan's home at 49 Coleman Rd. has an aqua exterior with white trim.

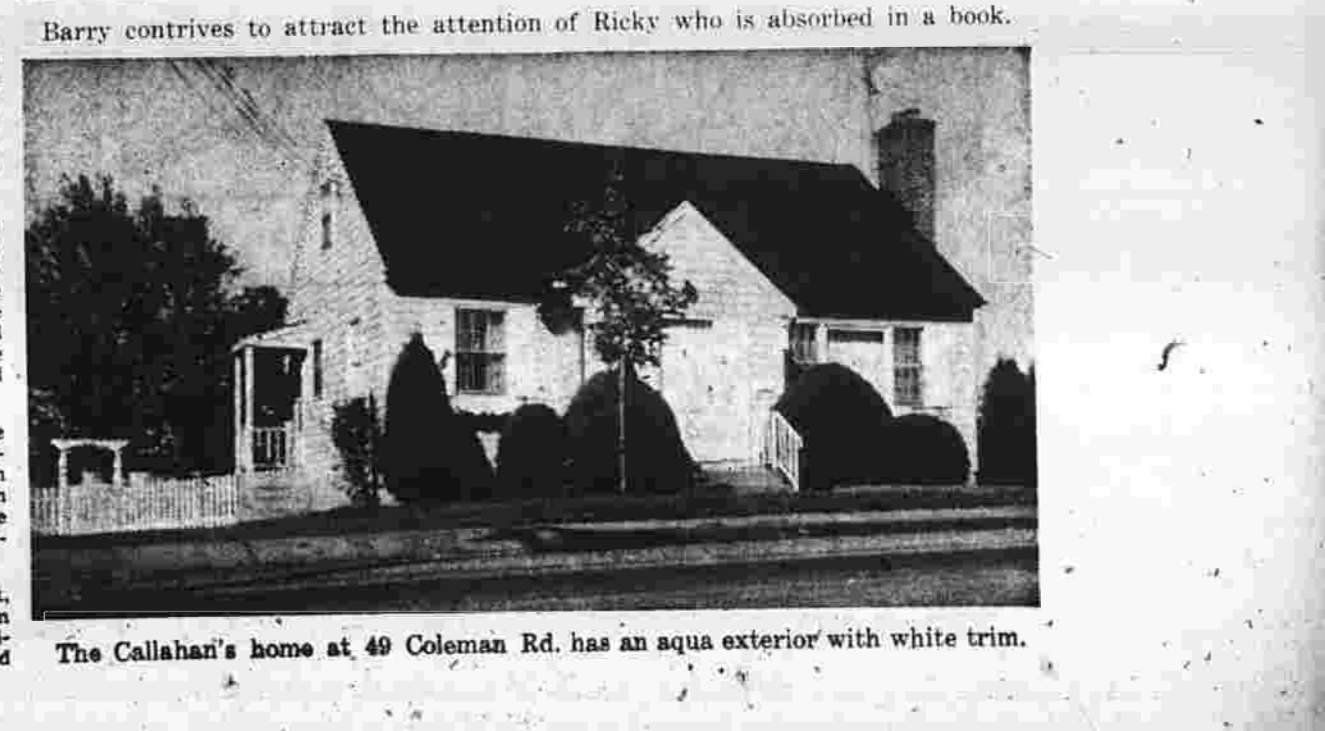

Mr. and Mrs. Callahan refinish old cabinet.

The dresser and chest of the bedroom set have been placed in the walls of the room. The chest has been built with a shelf on top, trimmed with a scalloped cornice with indirect light behind it, which illuminates the built-in television set.

Lattice provides interesting silhouette in kitchen door.

The redecorated living room, Mrs. Callahan said, "made our old pieces shine." Bright curtains were hung at the windows, and friends do a little bit of work in the room. Walls were painted in the aqua and sage green covered with a light blue-green carpet.

Barry contrives to attract the attention of Ricky who is absorbed in a book.

Guest Preacher

The Rev. Leslie R. Ostberg of Quincy, Mass., will be the guest speaker at Trinity Covenant Church Sunday at 8 p.m. Emanuel Lutheran Church and Concordia Lutheran Church will also be guests for a united Reformation Day Service.

The Rev. Mr. Ostberg has been chosen as his topic, "The Pilgrimage of Faith." Born in Kansas and reared in Seattle, Wash., he is pastor of the Covenant Congregational Church of Quincy. He received his education at North Park College and Theological Seminary of Chicago, Ill., and at Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa.

He has held pastorates in Pennsylvania, Iowa, Illinois and Massachusetts. He served in Worcester, Mass., from 1945 to 1950, and has been in his present parish since 1961. He has served on numerous denominational and conference boards and committees. Most recently, he served as chairman of the Commission on Covenant Freedom and Theology.

The adult choir of the Trinity Covenant Church will sing under the direction of Miss Deanne Platt, organist and choir director.

Since no united service has been planned this year by the Manchester Council of Churches, the public is welcome to attend this service.

Ansaldi to Help Test-Seal Walks

Because the town highway department does not have the men or equipment available for the scale-arresting spraying of curbs and sidewalks, the town has accepted an offer by the Andrew Ansaldi Co. for performing the experiment, at no added cost.

The 55 gallons each of lined oil and mineral spirits, which the town has already purchased, will be mixed for spraying intensively, and will be used on deteriorating curbs and sidewalks of the Ansaldi-bull Dartmouth Heights, off Spring St., in an attempt to stop the concrete scaling.

Town Engineer Walter Puss explained that the lined oil is expected to penetrate the concrete and seal its pores, so that no air or water can get in to do further damage.

He is hopeful that this trial will prove to be successful, and permit the town to extend the sealing operation to other trouble areas.

Albert J. Todd, 379 Porter St., has retired from Case Bros., paperboard manufacturers on Glen Rd., after 33 years service.

He joined the firm prior to 1930 and resigned from that firm to assume new duties with Great American Life.

Business Bodies

CHANGES AT GRANDWAY

The Grandway Store at the Manchester Shopping Parkade recently made new innovations and additions to its store operations including "no waiting" for customer check-out.

New speed "check-out stations" have been added and relocated in the food department; a new costume jewelry and hand-bag counter has been added; a newly acquired charge-card system has been employed; ready-to-wear items departments have been expanded; and the toy department has been doubled for the coming holiday season.

Bob Flint, formerly of Youth Centre, has been named to head the Men's and Boy's Department. Robert Kroll and Ronnie Brault, both Manchester, have named a section manager; and Leta Phillimore, formerly of Manchester Mills, is now in charge of all Children's Wear.

GETS PROMOTION
Raymond D. Bianco Jr. of 136 Hollister St. has been appointed regional field supervisor for the Great American Life Insurance Co. of East Orange, N. J.

Bianco, a native Manchesterite who has his headquarters at distance covered by the bottle in its drift to shore will be used by the government agency in plotting hydrographic charts and maps which serve as vital navigational aids for ships at sea.

Rowley found his bottle on the shore of Cape Cod Bay, North Truro, Mass., and Bettemount came across his bottle while on Nashveta Island, Mass.

Daniel Carey, 66 Ludlow Rd., and Aaron Cook, 562 E. Middle Tpke., Manchester, and Bruce R. Bengston, 10 George Dr., Rockville, and their wives, are expected to attend the Mobil Dealer Convention Monday and Tuesday at the Corcoran Hotel, Kiamasha Lake, N.Y.

Enzo R. Rotatori, recently of 37 Clinton St., has been named manager of the Friendly Ice Cream Shop at Lincoln St., Worcester.

Regal Men's Shop at 907 Main St. is currently celebrating its 23rd Anniversary Sale.

LaPointe Industries, Inc., Rockville, has received an additional $600,000 contract from the United States Military Forces for aircraft communications systems. With the new contract, officials at LaPointe reports a backlog of close to $4 million in orders.

NEW PRODUCTS: Bausch & Lomb Co., Rochester, N.Y., has taken an unusual step by entering the low-cost microscope field. It now offers a line of microscopes priced at $12 to $50 to provide economical expansion of school science programs for younger students.

Also, Associated Testing Laboratories Inc., Wayne, N.J., has come up with a new type automobile washing machine called the "Pacemaker." It is portable, low priced, one-man operated, and can be used inside or outside while requiring no more space than the length of an average car for its operation.

Rockville Auto Parts and Manchester Auto Parts, will be held for area mechanics Tuesday at 7:30 at the Army & Navy Club, 1090 Main St., as part of a special "Highway Safety Program." Frank Thompson, professor of Franklin Tech in Providence, R. I., will be guest speaker.

CORRECTION: The Rogers Corp. of Rogers and Manchester recently signed a new two-year contract with its workers and The Herald last Saturday reported the wrong per cent of increase. The correct figure, as listed in the contract between the firm and the workers—United Papermakers and Paperworkers AFL-CIO, show local employees receiving a 3 per cent boost, as of Oct. 1, and a 3 per cent increase on Oct. 5, 1964. Windham Lodge of Windham will have a 12-cent increase of 2 per cent and 2.5 per cent on the respective dates as mentioned; and Oak Lodge of Killingly will receive 17 cents an hour more, as will Manchester, with 3 per cent boost as of Oct. 1 and a 3.2 per cent increase on Oct. 5, 1964. Improvements and other fringe benefits are also in the contract.

John J. Zapadka, 20-year veteran nurseryman, has introduced a new innovation at his Woodland Gardens firm, 168 Woodland St., with a self-service greenhouse, shown at left. The greenhouse, 26 by 100 feet, has wide aisles in which customers may "wheel a tree around in selecting their plants." Zapadka is one of the first nurserymen in this area to have such facilities for quicker customer service.

He has two sons associated with him in the business, Leon and Richard Zapadka, both graduates of the University of Connecticut. The firm, one of the largest growers of pansies and bedding plants in New England, grows its plants in containers of a dozen each, and have prepared them for spring and summer planting. (Herald photo by O'Hara.)

Popular Markets Inc., of which one outlet is located at 725 E. Middle Tpke., reports gross sales of $25,265,863 for the year ended Sept. 28, 1963. The total shows an increase of $2,504,478 or 11 per cent over the corresponding period of the previous year.

Joseph P. Shea, a Manchester native and high school graduate, who now lives in East Hartford, has been promoted to an examiner in the life, accident and group claims department at the Travelers Insurance Companies, at Hartford.

A "Generator and Starter Clinic," sponsored by the Hampden Automotive Supply, Rockville Auto Parts and Manchester Auto Parts, will be held for area mechanics Tuesday at 7:30 at the Army & Navy Club, 1090 Main St., as part of a special "Highway Safety Program." Frank Thompson, professor of Franklin Tech in Providence, R. I., will be guest speaker.

'Twilight Zone' Back To Half-Hour Series

By RUTH H. THOMPSON

How often do you suppose you've tossed off the phrase "Twilight Zone" of late to dispose of a topic that's neither here nor there, or maybe fuzzy around the edges, or maybe really spooky?

It seems as though this handy amalgum of words that wraps up the unwrappable has been around forever, but actually its only five years since the fertile brain of Rod Serling created it to describe the ephemeral setting for the CBS series he hosts as well as produce and writes — (and which this season has reverted to its original half-hour format — Fridays 9:30 p.m.).

"Twilight Zone for sure," I uttered to myself as I hurried to my interview with Rod before he took off for his current combined personal appearance, teaching seminar tour of the Far East. I was late and somebody had stretched the sidewalk from Broadway to Sardi's until it was three times as long as it had ever been before. Secretary of State Dean Rusk had put the phrase to more impressive use the same day, however, in a communique describing something as "iffy" as it was momentous, as "in the Twilight Zone."

I suppose a good two dozen of the last three dozen top actors and producers who've talked television depth with me have in one context or another paid tribute to the impact and influence of Rod Serling on the medium, let alone the language.

He can handle the harshest reality ("Patterns" and "Requiem for a Heavyweight") as well as the sensitively wrought "Twilight Zone."

And what does he have to say for himself and his work? I wish I were Arthur Miller and had written "Death of a Salesman."

But being a genuinely gracious man, he let himself be led back to a discussion of his own work, and his enthusiasm really rose when we discussed "Twilight Zone's" reverting back to its original half-hour format. In this world where a child's doll, a grandfather's clock, a deliverable automobile, all take on personalities and wills of their own, he feels a story must move rapidly. He hated the stretching to an hour. Then, too it gives him opportunity to write, not just supervise, more of the series' scripts himself — and the one-man Mickey Rooney starrer is pure Serling. Not that he himself doesn't like the work of others — because he's generous with his praise.

He says if he had to pick one episode as his favorite it would be an early one where a train finally stops at the mystical

Willoughby it always bypassed and the gentle conductor gets off explaining, "This is Willoughby where a man can live his life in full measure."

Tan, trim, attractive, still only in his thirties, Rod isn't consumed by his success, doesn't throw his weight around. When we were discussing a popular New York restaurant he said he hadn't been there and wondered if it would be hard to get in!

"Rod's a millionaire by now, I guess," an actor friend of his told me, "but he'll always use his expensive time to do a favor." He went on to tell how Rod had leaped to the rescue of somebody else's script and doctored it without a fee into a hit.

But Rod himself has a sadder comment on the relativity of money.

Turning his back on "of course a season of especially good offers" Rod went back to his Alma Mater, Antioch College (where he had met and married fellow student Carol Kramer in 1948) to teach this past winter.

And does he think something should be done about teacher's salaries?

"I earned $3,000 for that semester. Just before I reported, I earned $3,000 for a one-minute beer commercial."

"It was good for me to teach, though for the long pull I realize I am more writer than teacher. And maybe I was too harsh in my immediate judgment of students because I judge as a writer. You see, to me, individual style is everything, and many of them were still going through phases of influence. You could spot the devotees of Steinbeck, Ayn Rand, Hemingway."

"I was interested in the shaping of the different eras on students. As a freshman, I was an old man of 23 (World War II and paratrooping in the Pacific came first). I'd say my group was certainly more mature . . . but the current crop is definitely more aware. And sophisticated? Yes."

It was the Antioch alternate study-and-work pattern that brought Rod to New York in 1948 for a network writing job. By 1951, a year after graduation, he had written 12 television plays. "Patterns" came along in 1955 and both it and "Requiem . . ." were later made into equally successful films. He still combines film writing with TV, and did the script for the forthcoming "Seven Days in May" with Kirk Douglas and Frederic March. Furthermore, in addition to "Twilight Zone," he's doing two original teleplays for the Bob Hope Theater.

By probing on I did locate one adverse affect television success has had on this vibrant, witty man. It's given him over-awe of the stage. "Write a play? I can't afford to take two years off. A play must be your very self . . . truth." Well wouldn't he like to write one? "Sure about a boy named Biff whose father is a salesman." I waved goodbye on that deathly note.

Grindl (Imogene Coca) statements a murder trial jury on which she is serving because she believes the accused man innocent, in "One Angry Grindl" on NBC-TV's "Grindl" series Sunday, Oct. 27 (8:30 p.m. EST).

Rod Serling host and creator of "Twilight Zone" is surrounded by a group of the spooky types his fertile brain dreams up for the CBS Friday night series. A master of realism as well as fantasy, Serling has won five Emmy awards.

NEW YORK (NBA)—Looking back at her career, Patti Page can't help but wonder how far she would have gone if she'd been a more controversial figure.

Miss Page is about as controversial as a pat of butter. She's as far removed from the Las Vegas mold as a kitten from a saber-toothed tiger. And she thinks that perhaps she could have achieved more had she been a bit more colorful all these years.

"Fan letters? They don't mean a thing. They don't mean a thing," she says. "This surprising opinion comes from Edward Byrnes who, for a time, was getting so many fan letters he almost made the U.S. Post Office a profit-making institution. But he scoffs at their importance.

"Fan letters don't mean much to a star's success," he says. "Nobody pays any attention to whether you get 1,000 a week or 5,000. Oh, it's good for your ego, but that's all. When Kookie was hot, I got more fan letters than anybody, but it didn't help me much."

Maybe not. Warm Bros., which produced the 77 Sunset Strip shows which made Kookie (and Ed Byrnes) big names, raised the actor to stardom because of public reaction—which was measured at least in part by the quantity of fan letters he inspired.

Byrnes has now left 77 Sunset Strip — he says he was "sprung" from the show.

"It's really great to be off that show," he says. "I'm grateful to it because I was nothing before 77 Sunset Strip. And I did learn a lot while I was doing it. But I had no real chance to act on the show. I had to play straight and let the other people who got to act were the guest stars who played the killers and dope addicts."

"I bet I would have gotten some bigger and better parts in movies and on the stage," Patti says.

She cites an exchange of correspondence between the president of her fan club and the editor of one of the leading women's magazines. Her fan complained to the editor because the magazine had never done a story about Patti Page.

The editor wrote back, "Patti says, 'saying that she admired me very much, but that I had never been in any trouble so the public didn't want to read about me.'"

"I'm sure the same philosophy affects the minds of producers. They want a box office name, and they think that controversial people are good box office names."

Meanwhile, Patti Page continues to oil along. This coming television season will see her as guest on three Bell Telephone Hour, one Jimmy Dean Show and one or two Bob Hope Shows. In between she'll do "The Dubious Balkan" with Mickey Rooney, Bobby Darin and Raf Valone. He thinks he has a good part — but the job may turn out to be a financial loss.

"I'm taking a loss along," he says, referring to his wife, Ann Maynor. "She's interested in buying clothes in Paris and Rome, and I think she may spend more money than I make."

That Some Bifocals Are Wrong For Certain Prescriptions?

A proper segment is one that has neutralized algebraically, the distant portion with the reading portion to minimize object displacement, image jump and subject disappearance.

When an improper segment is used it would cause injuries in climbing stairs, curbs and alighting from automobiles.

Rain Follows Warm Spell But Drought Relief Minor

BOSTON (AP)—A cool front moved across New England today routing record-breaking temperatures which reached in the 80s over the weekend. Occasional rain fell in some sections to slow down the forest fire situation, but it was not expected to relieve the month-long drought appreciably.

Russia Apparently Out of Moon Race

WASHINGTON (AP)—It's full speed ahead for the U.S. program to land a man on the moon in this decade. That's the way American space officials greeted Sunday the news from Moscow that Soviet Premier Khrushchev apparently has pulled his country out of any moon race.

Miners Await Rescue Shaft In Germany

BROISTEDT, Germany (AP)—Three German miners trapped for over 80 hours in a flooded iron mine cheerfully reported today they are fit and well. The miners reported to the surface through a communication shaft bored 250 feet down to the airlock in which they were enclosed by water.

Crown Awarded To Wrong Coed

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—How does a girl feel when she is homecoming queen but a nervous master of ceremonies announces and then crowns the wrong coed?

The rainfall, however, was quite insignificant with the heaviest amount of .13 inches reported at Norfolk. As cooler air slowly becomes established over the state tonight cloudiness will gradually break up. Tuesday promises to bring seasonable weather with partly sunny skies and afternoon temperatures rising to around 60.

Minor Relief

CHICAGO (AP)—Light rain, the first measurable amount in weeks, dampened parched areas in eastern drought sections today but afforded only minor relief from the prolonged dry spell.

Study Assails Police Facts On Accidents

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Proper investigation of highway fatalities would show they are sometimes not accidents at all but occasionally the results of vehicle tampering, intentional collision, suicide or even murder, Harvard researchers contend.

Dempsey Asked to Act In Andover Bias Fight

By A. J. CHEMARI Gov. John N. Dempsey will be asked to take immediate action in the racial controversy at Andover Lake. The request comes in the wake of the refusal yesterday of the Andover Lake Property Owners' Association (ALPOA) to relax its membership policies, and its adoption, in the face of statewide criticism, of even stricter regulations.

Culled from AP Wires STORY CONFUSED WASHINGTON (AP)—The story of a beautiful German housewife, reported to have moved in high political circles here before being sent back to Germany, took on a further air of mystery today. Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., appeared to wash his hands of any accusations in the case. Previously, Clark Mollenhoff of the Doe Wotnes Register, Minneapolis Tribune and other Cowles publications, had said Williams would spell out the matter when he goes before a Senate committee named to determine whether Congress officials have engaged in improper activity. But Williams in a statement asserted: "The story of Clark Mollenhoff did not originate from my office, and whether it is true or false is something which I cannot answer and for which the writer will have to assume the full responsibility."

COURT REFUSES

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court refused today to review orders requiring the Mobile County, Ala., Board of School Commissioners to begin desegregating classes in September. The board's appeal said the orders, by the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals, could disrupt a 75,000-pupil school system.
