Charter Meeting

Set for Monday

Mayor Francis J. Mahoney has rescheduled to Monday a special meeting of the board or directors, to consider and act upon the report of the Charter Revision Commission (CRC).

The date originally decided upon, March 4, is a lready scheduled for a meeting of the board of directors, the board of directors and the general mandate for a special or regular date education and the general manager on the school budget.

Monday's charter change consideration meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in the hearing room of the Municipal Building.

The Democratic Town Committee voted last night to increase its membership to 70, to make room for "the many, able young Democrats, who might otherwise lose interest in active political participation.

The move marks the third time in the last ten years that the membership of the committee the membership of the committee to 60 in 1955, and from 50 to 60 in 1955, and from 50 to look out for Manchester interests in future reapportionment to the State Legislature, as well as in the realignment of the U.S. Congressional Districts. Near the close of last night's meeting, the committee was shown slides, and listened to an explanation, of the proposed plans for North End Renewal. The presentation was made by Edward Rybczyk, executive director of the Manchester Redevelopment Agency; and Alexander Penny, chairman of the Citizen's Advisory Committee.

By CECELIA LYNETT PHILADELPHIA (AP) — In the cold war era. a hot war is going on in most cities of Pennsylvania. It's the people vs. the pigeons. Or is it the pigeons vs. the people?

In 1961, the legislature approved a pigeon control act that permits any city to "provide for the destruction or killing of unowned pigeons. . .by humane methods." Since then the war on pigeons has been stepped up, but two things complicate the problem: A pair of pigeons can produce as many as eight offsprings in a well-meaning city-folks con-tinue to feed them.

To most city folks, pigeons, with their messy ways—are just a downright nuisance, along with starlings and English spar-City health departments throughout the state all agree there is an urgent need, for health reasons also, to reduce the pigeon popluation and the hazard of infection from their droppings. Town Engineer Walter Fuss has submitted a sidewalk construction budget for the 196465 fiscal year which include an estimated $19,000 worth of new construction and $30,800 in repairs.

The total budget is set at $50,000, which is $1,500 more than the $48,500 that was approved for sidewalk work last year.

New walks proposed in the budget include sidewalks from Tower to Broad St., along W. Middle Tpke, at $7,000; and from Keeney to Prospect St., along Hackmatack, at $12,000. The projects are tentative suggestions, Fuss says, designed to indicate what could be done less than the substance of the successful saboteurs of the successful saboteurs. Intended To Be Uncivilized

There is no amount of cold logic, no amount of reassurance regarding the expert training of the very intelligent animals used, and no amount of assurance that the animals are not used anywhere exclusively against one particular race which can make it possible for the ordinary human eye to take calmly the spectacle of dogs being used to chase and harass human beings.

Every time this is in the news, every time this is pictured in the news or on television, every time this happens in the actual life of any community, it causes a cringe of revulsion and a feeling of guilt-guilt in belonging to something that calls itself a civilization and still officially condones such practice. And if it makes us Americans feel uneasy and uncertain of the quality and state of our own civilization, it is easy to imagine what thoughts and judgments such pictures inspire in the minds of people elsewhere. This is one of those things where something instinctive is involved, and where the instinctive governs our reaction no matter what logic is used in defense of the practice. And, to get to the psychological bottom of it all, it is precisely this element of the instinctive reaction to the use of dogs against humans which makes some authorities favor their use. This is what gives the crowds. It is intended to be inhuman. Serpents, skunks, crocodiles and man-To us, that seems much more than eating tigers could also, presumably, be

Premier Chou has favored, that is, Pakistan's demand that the issue be settled by a free vote among the people of Kashmir. Since they are overwhelmingly Moslem, it is assumed that, if they ever got a free vote on their own destiny, they would choose to go with Pakistan. That prospective outcome for any plebiscite is, presumably, the reason India has never allowed the United Nations to conduct such a vote, the reason India depends upon military force to maintain its own possession of Kashmir.

So what has happened now is that Communist China, the villainous "outlaw" among the world's nations, has made itself champion of that side of the Kashmir dispute which most of the world's more virtuous nations would probably also take if they were not afraid of offending India.

The importance of not offending India lies, one supposes, in the fact that India, although it steadfastly refuses military alliance with anybody, nevertheless stands as the great antagonist to Communist China on the Asian continent. It is India which must succeed in its experiment toward progress for a great mass population if prestige is not to be yielded to China. That could be why Communist China, two years ago, harassed the Indian frontiers. And that could be why Communist China, now, plays so social a game with Pakistan. In any case, India, which will not Chou may now be succeeding in breaking eastern alliance unity with his wooing of Pakistan.

We doubt that either possibility should really be viewed with very much alarm. To the contrary, it is conceivable that there ought to be at least a grudging touch of relief that somebody, at last, even the cantankerous de Gaulle, even the reptilian Chou, should begin demonstrating that all the settled cold war patterns of world life are not settled and permanent after all. Today, as we are becoming somewhat fond of saying, is not to be just yesterday forever. It lies somewhere between yesterday and something else called tomorrow. That thing called tomorrow will have its own quota of dangers and problems, but they will not be precisely the same as those of today, and they will demand fresh thought and analysis and action. Nobody could enter that tomorrow more defenseless than some poor soul who has sold himself the idea that a string of paper alliances set up yesterday would hold the weight of the new and changing problems inevitable to the future.

Milestone And Millstone?

There are a few simple facts about the Organization of American States report, through special subcommittee, on charges of Castro plotting against the existing government in Venezuela las

First, the hemisphere subcommittee making this report consists of the nations of Argentina, Costa Rica, Uruguay, Colombia, and the United States, The first four nations are, by their record and disposition, not in the diplomatic vest pocket of the United States. And, in Costa Rica and Uruguay particularly, they represent the most enlightened and liberal political trend in the hemisphere.

Second, this subcommittee's report makes history, in several respects. It cites the first confirmed evidence of Cuban arms shipment anywhere outside Cuba. It cites the first tangible evidence of organized Cuban subversive activities. And it winds up, this subcommittee report, making the first formal charge of a specific act of aggression which has yet been made against Cuba by any OAS This much having been placed on the record, it is possible to go forward, in somewhat querulous logic, and wonder fust how the Organization of American States can now take action condemning or punishing Cuba for such specific crimes against the peace and the legality of the rest of the hemisphere. The New York Times, for instance, weighs all the possible courses of action, and finds that there is some hemisphere complication gimmicking most of them. And t concludes, rather unhappily, that, although no speedy action of any kind may be possible, at least "the historic record of what Castro has tried to do to partial consolation. It seems like a major gain in itself. There has been a long division between the intensity of United States feeling about Cuba and that of other hemisphere nations. One of the differences between us has been the unwillingness of other nations to participate in any specific direct condemnation such as that stated in this report. The issuance of this report, then, constitutes a sort of milestone for us, and a milestone for the hemisphere, too. And, if we can take our advantage without trying to dictate some over-playing of it, if we can leave the digestion of it to the natural awareness and intelligence and self interest of other nations, it may be the first small millstone for Castro.

Ever since the closing of the 1963 session of the General As sembly it has been our impression that any campaign dedicated to the proposition that Searle Pinney must be removed from the office of Republican State Chairman would suffer from the elemental fact that the record the party had achieved with Pinney in office hardly justified the removal of anybody.

Now, in the few weeks that the effort to remove Pinney from office has been carryin its argument openly about the state—now, in other words, that Ed May has been going out tell-ing Republican gatherings why he thinks Pinney has to be removed from office—our origi-nal impression has not been eradicated. When, the other day, Pinney finally moved to the direct public retort to May, he made his main retort one of citing the record. Conceivably, he gilded it a bit as he cited it. But his biggest retort gun was indeed his claim that "in 1963 the Re-publicans in the Legislature wrote the best record in many a year. Among other things an excessive budget was brought into line at a saving to the tax-payers of Connecticut of some 63 million dollars, an archaic wasteful insurance patronage system was exposed and eliminated, real help was provided for the New Haven Railroad and many other things were accomplished solely because th Republicans were alert, united and aggressive."

And the second biggest Pinney answer was his citation of

It all depends on California's June 3 Presidential primary. This is outwardly a battle-ground be tween Sen. Barry Goldwater and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, but it also provides the stage for Kuchel's debut in national politics as Rockefeller's California campaign manager.

If Rockefeller wins, Kuchel will lead California's 86 member delegation (second only to New York's $22) to the National Convention. And like all good political checker players, California Republicans are speculating on possible future moves if Rockefeller does win in California.

The spectacle of Tommy Kuchel emerging as a brightly colored political butterfly at age 54 follows a political career spent in a cocoon. When Kuchel was appointed in 1953 by Gov. Earl Warren to replace Nixon in the Senate, he seemed dwarfed by California's Republican giants. For years he was obscured in the Senate by the ponderous presence of William F. But Kuchel privately decided in 1963 to dare try for leadership of the state party. The reason: He believes the Republican party nationally will be just a giorified debating society until he hews to what Kuchel calls progressive Republicanism.

As a result, he's thrown his prestige and his personal organization behind Rockefeller in the primary. Spencer Roberts Associates, the campaign manager firm which handled Kuchel's 1962 campaign, is working for Rockefeller. Kuchel's keeps in constant touch with Rockefeller. Kuchel has been carefully screening the Rockefeller delegation to make sure that most delegates are pro-Kuchel, (not just anti-Goldwater). Many of Kuchel's closest associates—such as Tom Mellow, San Francisco industrialist, and Sid Levine, Beverly Hills lawyer—will be on the list.

Accordingly, Kuchel would have a fair chance of controlling the delegation if Rockefeller collapses. Judging from their past differences, Kuchel wouldn't swing to Richard M. Nixon Responds

Like Candidate

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)
Richard M. Nixon came to Minneapolis on law business this week. He gave an impression that he is increasingly aware he might again be the Republican candidate for president this

At a packed news conference

At a packed news conference Wednesday, the relaxed, smiling 1960 GOP nominee fielded questions ranging from his antipress outburst in 1962 to his controversial television debates in 1960 with John F. Kennedy.

Nixon observed that if Cassius Clay could beat Sonny Liston, the Republicans in 1964 "can beat anybody."

Nixon, who came to Minneapolis to confer with officials of Cargill, Inc., a client of his New York law firm, was asked about his opposition to selling grain to Cargill, Inc., a client of his New York law firm, was asked about his opposition to selling grain to the Soviet Union when Cargill is doing just that.

"It might be difficult if we didn't have such an understanding client," he said.

About his anti-press outburst after he lost the California governorship in 1962, Nixon said he owed it to himself to speak out about "14 years of reporting errors, some deliberately prejudicial. Now I can take it another 14 years."

Some observers have said the television debates with Kennedy helped elect the late president.

Asked about this, Nixon drew a laugh when he said:

"I suppose I'm not the best witness on that." He added he would urge such debates on the 1964 candidate because they lead to a better informed electorate.

"People tuned in to see a fight, stayed to hear the issues," he said.

Asked to comment on the premise of some that he is the GOP leader most likely to win, Nixon grinned and cano:

"I find a great deal of disagreement on that."

"I party likes to run the man who ran before," he said.

a "ling that as the 1960 standard bearer, he would continue to speak out on issues.

'SLUGGER' RADATZ SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP)-Relief pitcher Dick Radataz won't be out-talked at the Red Sox spring training camp for some time. He had a chance to oat yesterday in a squad game for pitchers and produced five hits in six trips.

Radatz is considered one of the poorer batters among pitchers, the notoriously weak hitters of the game. As a relief specialist, of course, Radatz normally has even less opportunity to bat than starting pitchers.

His long tenure on the Park Board resulted in much for the good of the community. Not everyone agreed with all his ideas but that's so with anyone who does things. The quickest way to have no disagreements is to do nothing. Suffice to say Walt did things and the community is much better off for it.

He attained the name of Manchester's official No. 1 fan when he was presented with a lifetime pass to all games some years ago, the only man not connected with schools, to be so honored.

He'll be missed not only by this particular sports writer but by a great many others.

Troy scored 197 points and Waickowski 12. But he's really come along and more than made up the difference.

"He also took up the slack of rebounding when Ray LaGace was hurt a couple of times. He deserves a tremendous amount of credit and is a good example for any young, big boys. He showed what can be accomplished by a lot of hard work."
