terms, at least, with the realities of a world in which neither good nor evil is absolute and in which those who move events and make history are not who have understood not how much but how little it is within our power to change.

And here is another "unthinkable": "I am unable to understand how a controversy with a small and poor country, with virtually no military capacity, can possibly be regarded as a test of our bravery and will to defend our interests. It takes stubbornness but not courage to reject the entreaties of the weak. The rest of the world is not of our value but of our wisdom and judgment and common sense."

"I think we must abandon the myth that Cuba's Communism is a transitory menace that is going to collapse or disappear in the immediate future and face up to two basic realities about Cuba: first, that the Castro regime is not on the verge of collapse and is not likely to be overthrown by any policies which we are now pursuing or can reasonably undertake; and second, that the continued existence of the Castro regime, though inimical to our interests and policies, is not an insuperable obstacle to the attainment of our objectives, unless we make it so by policies that it poison our politics at large and to divert us from more important tasks in the hemisphere."

The Fulbright speech, in my opinion, represented none of these things. It represented someone who very seldom gets an open vision in the national discussion of foreign policy. It represented the average common sense American citizen himself.

Almost all the things Fulbright said were things ordinary Americans have been waiting for somebody to say. Almost all the things Fulbright said were things ordinary Americans have been waiting for somebody to say.

It is not the people, but the politicians, and all those who pretend to make or follow the popular consensus, who keep knowing all those myths Senator Fulbright labeled in his speech Wednesday.

All the "unthinkable thoughts" Senator Fulbright succeeded in listing were thoughts ordinary Americans have been thinking for a long time.

What were realities, even at the cost of feeling and reason. The American people are never morose. They keep waiting for speeches which would do have some elemental intelligence.

A Right to Be Mortal? It all seemed to us an unpleasant part of the mass package when Astronaut John H. Glenn, Jr., having come down to earth to own a share in a motel, and then stake out a claim on a political nomination already occupied by another earthling, next found his campaign sighted by such a thing as a campaign charge that his motel had refused admittance to some of his own prospective constituents because their skins had a certain color.

When an astronaut comes down to earth, he really comes down to earth. Having proved himself mortal in each respect, Astronaut Glenn next had the misfortune to slip and fall in his own bathroom, sustaining an injury both disconcerting and disappointing, which makes it difficult for him to keep his balance walking on the same earth he once orbited so beautifully.

The question is, was this still part of the same piece, the same descent? Was his coordination while shaving something less than it might have been because his mind, though preoccupied, was being preoccupied by thoughts of the old man he might be chasing out of the Senate? Was he as well prepared for the well known hazards of the American bathroom as he was for the risks of a space capsule? Or was that fine edge of physical and mental conditioning something far back in the story of his life?

Perhaps there is no package at all. Perhaps it was up in space, and not back here on earth, that the present lack of balance really originated.

Or perhaps it is simply one more demonstration of why some people never want to be heroes. Afterward you can't even fall down in your own house like any other mortal without having somebody attach some psychological significance to it.

We think that, after all our early quibbles about it, we are beginning to hope John Glenn runs, and runs beautifully, and makes his career in the Senate like a star for all America to watch and admire.

Most of the individuals involved in current State Highway Department transactions and in the investigation of them hadn't even begun to think about when one of Governor Dempsey's predecessors, Robert A. Hurley also had a connection with a State Highway Department investigation.

The connection of Hurley, who was governor in the 1940s, was that he himself launched that investigation and that he himself, instead of defending the highway commissioner of the time against interference and rumor, was the one who intended to press for the fullest possible investigation of such inference and rumor. That was Hurley, in his time, following his instinct and his conscience. Today Dempsey, following his instinct and his conscience, defends a commissioner.

The potential truth, in the typical case histories the two investigations seem to have had in common, is most elusive, almost unobtainable by ordinary police or investigational methods.

In Hurley's time, the focal point of the investigation he launched was certain practices concerning the performance of the contract on which he was bidding. Such formal testimony was given on this point kept it "self-hazy and fuzzy, and this was perhaps the reason the final outcome of the Hurley probe is still so elusive.

The Fulbright speech, in my opinion, represented none of these things. It represented someone who very seldom gets an open vision in the national discussion of foreign policy. It represented the average common sense American citizen himself.

Wonders of the Universe

Life on Other Worlds Part 2

By DR. L.M. LEVITT, Director, The Felix Platterium of The Franklin Institute, Philadelphia, Pa.

With the tremendous global push into space now underway, the search has been set and the curtain has risen on one of man's most audacious and exciting adventures—that of probing space for extraterrestrial life. This search will culminate in a thirteen-year study of life's early beginnings to see whether the same general geochemical processes that made an organic soup of the primitive oceans were duplicated elsewhere in our solar system or in space.

Scientists generally concede that the evolution of life took thousands of millions of years and one may well ask how can we possibly hope to find out the long sequence of events to a few paragraphs. The answer is that we cannot trace life from its beginning to the creatures on earth today, but we can speculate on its earliest stages for it is this fact of the story which intrigues us. It is only at this time that science has progressed to the point of being able to reconstruct the early stages of life.

As the sun of the earth, it is from explorations of those primitive worlds that we learn of the intelligence that has been uncovered through the working process and for the reconstruction of the evolution of life.

The initiation of these modern studies goes back to the beginning of the sixth decade in the twentieth century. In 1909 Dr. Melvin Calvin, who was awarded the Nobel Prize for his work on photosynthesis in 1962, during his reign of less than five years. He yielded no ground to the religious fundamentalism, but he stressed charity and gentleness toward the outcast.

Pope Paul spoke after he had visited the huge amphitheater to a spot near the pagan temple of Venus on Palatine Hill. The 66-year-old pontiff took up the rough-hewn cross half-way through the ceremony, which his papal participation is unusual.

The procession symbolized the Way of the Cross and included an emergency meeting in St. Peter's Basilica. The first four stops were inside the Colosseum, the others outside on the way up Palatine Hill.

Earlier the Pope had mourned the death of the late Archbishop of New York, Cardinal John O'Connor, who died in Rome last week.

The Pope's visit to the Colosseum was a gesture of reconciliation between the Catholic Church and the ancient Roman Empire.

Pope Blasts Treatment of Silent Church

capped the strongest papal denunciation of communism in years, the Pope condemned Communist treatment of Roman Catholics as a modern-day crucifixion.

It was his most dramatic appearance in the solemn rituals of the Vatican, as he was crowded into Coliseum Square in a light rain to see him.

A moral but heavy crucifixion is still present, the Pope declared, and Christ could ask his "modern and able persecutors" why they are persecuting.

The body of Christ is crucified every day, morally but heavily, in many parts of the world," he said. "The church of all ages is still the suffering church, the church of the poor, in some places, the suffocated church."

His denunciation of Communist oppression led some observers to believe he is working to revive the church's attitude toward Marxism as it was in the reign of Pius XII.

Heralding Homes

An Old House in Vernon

STORY BY DORIS BELDING PHOTOS BY SYLVIAN OFIARA

Mrs. Mildred Willes of Vernon Center can trace the history of her home back to 1808, but feels that it was probably built during the late 1700s, and is one of the oldest houses in Vernon. Antiquarians, who have worked in Indianapolis, Ind., agree with Mrs. Willes.

The house was originally a center chimney colonial. The late Hoadley Willes, husband of the present owner, remodeled the chimney to make room for a wide staircase to the second floor. He cleaned and repaired many of the bricks and used them to build the outside chimney now in use.

Standing on a triangle of land at the junction of West Rd. and Rt. 30, the residence is located on an old stage coach route from Hartford to Boston, not far from Lafayette Corner, where General Lafayette reported to the British on Sept. 17, 1777.

The late Henry Willes, father-in-law of Mrs. Willes, owned many of the houses in Vernon Center. A pipe line on the property on Rt. 20 and Wells St. supplies water to the homes of Mrs. Sarah Forbes and Mrs. Irving Campbell, both of Vernon Center. The houses formerly owned by the senior Mr. Willes.

The exterior of the house has been modernized with siding, and shutters have been hung at all the windows. The interior was also renovated by Hoadley Willes, who left most of the old paneling and hardware intact. Fewer lathe work of the kitchen doors, and two pine planks cover many of the floors.

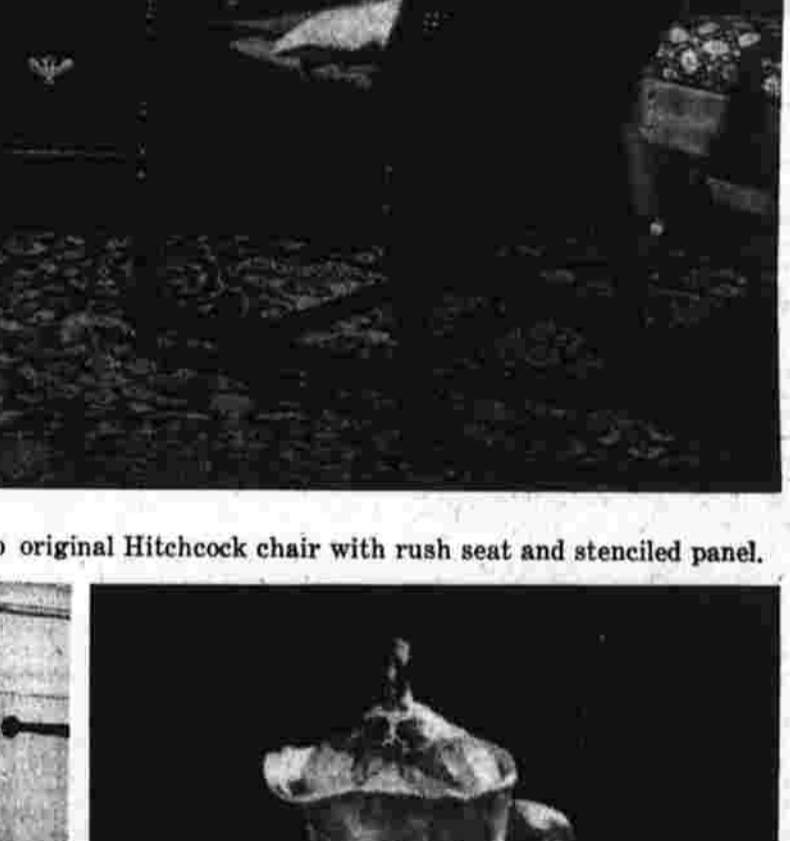

A quantity of old china and glassware, plus some unusual silver, was inherited by Mrs. Willes from her husband's family. Much of the china was handpainted by her mother-in-law.

Mrs. Willes leafs through old scrap book in living room seated beneath Empire mirror with gilt frame.

Early 1800 Queen Anne desk is in den next to original Hitchcock chair with rush seat and stenciled panel.

Ornate gilt-framed mirror reflects dining table.

Pacific Coast by Waves

At San Francisco's Fisherman's Wharf the waters of San Francisco Bay dropped at least a foot a minute for about three minutes, then rose again at the same rate. An effect was to pull old trash out from under pier. For hours the junk surged back and forth, acting as a marker of the tidal flow. A wave washed out a bridge over the Copala River in Grays Harbor County in Washington, and turned over several trawler homes in the county beach areas.

LONDON (AP)—The Alaska earthquake jolted seismographs around the world.
The shock waves reached London's Science Museum, the most broke the needle on the seismic measuring equipment in London's Science Museum.

The tremors knocked the needle of the seismograph at the St. Mark Observatory in Paris. A spokesman said the recording of the earthquake was the case of great disastrous magnitude.

In Sweden, the Uppsala Biological Institution reported that the shock pulled the instrument to 1.5 on the Richter scale, among the heaviest recorded.

The geographical observations in Paris, Italy, said it recorded strong tremors for four hours. Moscow's seismic station said its readings reached 11 on a 12-point scale.

Citadel Guest

Brig. Jonah Munyi of Nairobi, Africa, will give an illustrated lecture highlighting the Salvation Army's growth in Kenya since 1921, at the church on Sunday. His visit here is part of a program enabling him to report on missionary efforts conducted throughout the "dark continent."

Brig. Munyi, a product of missionary work by the Army in his country, was converted to Christianity in Nairobi in 1927. He was born in the Embu district of Kenya in 1914, and given the name Munyi, which means "Rhinoeros" in his native tongue. He entered the School for Officers' Training in Nairobi in 1932, and has since filled appointments in many of the departments in the Army's broad program.

At the present time, he is secretary for Field Affairs, the third ranking officer in the Territory of East Africa which also includes Uganda and Tanganyika. He is responsible for the direction of personnel and program in 206 Corps and 465 outposts operated by the Salvation Army. This territory also operates 135 schools, 2 hospitals and 13 other welfare institutions.

Recognized early in his career as a potential leader, the brigadier spent a year in special training at the William Booth Memorial Training College for Officers, London, England. He has served as a corp commanding officer, training school officer, in welfare work, and divisional administration. He is a skilled linguist, and acted as interpreter when Gen. Albert Orsborn and Gen. Wilfred Kitching made their visits to Kenya.

Thompson Gives Talk on Makeup

Arnold Thompson of 18L Forest St. will give a makeup demonstration Tuesday at 8 p.m. at a meeting of the Gilbert and Sullivan Workshop at Cooper Hall, South Methodist Church. The demonstration will be given in preparation for the next production of the group, "Yeoman of the Guard," April 10 and 11 at Bailey Auditorium, Manchester High School.

Thompson, who will do the makeup for the production, became interested in it during his high school days. A native of Canada, he was awarded scholarships for three semesters to Hart House, Toronto, a drama school. He toured Canada doing impersonations and musical comedy.

In 1928, he and his wife came to Manchester, when he began his employment at the Travelers Insurance Co., Hartford. He has done makeup for productions in and about Manchester, and recently completed a course in corrective makeup to correct facial deformations for the rehabilitation of mentally ill.

He has conducted makeup classes in New York, Boston and throughout Connecticut. For the past 12 years he has done the makeup for characters for the Fellowship Club of Manchester Lodge of Masons.

The Rev. Abram Sangrey, minister of United Methodist Church of Bolton, conducted an Easter service Thursday for the patients at Crestfield Convalescent Hospital. The Rhythmic Choir, under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Perrett, interpreted three Easter hymns.

After the program, six Sunbeams, volunteer teen-age girls at the hospital, were presented with their stripes. The stripes, awarded for 150 or more hours of service, went to Susan Beckwith, Connie Shorrock, Ellen Kirk, Linda Young, Carleen Conran and Cynthia Smith.

Carson Wins State Award

Robert A. Carson, a senior at Manchester High School, has won third prize of $75 in the state in the 1964 Hire the Handicapped poster contest.

Carson, the son of Mrs. Joanne Carson of 73 Benton St., earlier this month was named first prize winner of a $50 merchandise certificate in the local contest, and thus earned the right to compete in the state contest, sponsored by the Governor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped.

Carson will receive his prize together with the other state winners at an awards luncheon Thursday at noon at the Statler Hilton Terrace Room in Hartford.

Gov. John Dempsey will present citations to the winners of both the poster contest and the 16th annual Hire the Handicapped Theme Contest, also sponsored by the governor's committee on the handicapped.

The other winners in the poster contest include: First, $200, Mary Jane Frontel, East Hampton; second, $125, William C. S. C. R. F. F. F., Thompsonville; fourth, $50, Bryan Serra, Stratford; fifth, $25, Barbara Zapadka, Westerly, R.I.

Carson's winning entry was one of 208 posters submitted from 25 schools in 10 areas of the state by students in Grades 9-12. The posters had to emphasize the ability of handicapped persons and the reasons they can become valuable employees.

Carson is an Art IV student in the classes of Mrs. LeVerne Kelson, with whom he has studied for two years, and academically is pursuing a college preparatory course. He has been accepted by the University of Connecticut for admittance in the freshman class in September.

In February, Carson won a blue ribbon—the highest individual award possible—in the Connecticut Scholastic Art Contest for a still life in oils. This work is presently in New York for judging in the national level of the art contest.

Judges in the poster contest were Mrs. R. O. Morgan, director emerita of the Hartford Art School; Samuel P. Wagstaff, curator of paintings at the Wadsworth Athenaeum; and Lester Smith, assistant manager, public information and advertising, Travelers Insurance Companies.

Carson will be accompanied to the awards luncheon Thursday by his mother, his teacher Mrs. Kelson, and A. Raymond Rogers, principal of the high school. During the program Gov. Dempsey will also present certificates of appreciation to the teachers of the winners.

The presentation of $1,000 in prize money for the theme portion of the handicapped contest will be made by Alfred Cavedon, president of Aidon Spinning Mills in Talcoctville and president of the Manufacturer's Association of Connecticut, which donated the prize.

Theodore Powell, director of public information for the State Department of Education and a member of the Manchester Board of Directors was a judge for the theme contest. The $500 first prize was won by Catherine Bjorkback of Riverside over nearly 400 entrants. There were no winners from this area.

TV Notebook

By DICK KLEINER NEW YORK (NBA) — Hollywood hasn't done right by our Mercedes (that's Mercedes McCambridge, not Mercedes Benz) and so she's back on the New York stage, involved nightly in that emotional experience called "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?"

"I was badly typed by Hollywood," she says. "I always played the person who acts like a man, thinks like a man, reacts like a man, but is a woman who has been badly treated by a man."

Mercedes McCambridge with Donald Davis

"The parts are all alike. Oh, the character may be a Southerner or a New Yorker or a westerner or from any place, but you would cut the dialogue out of one script and paste it in another and nobody would know the difference."

Television gave her a chance to be a bit different. She, Dane Clark and George Brent were rotating stars of a series which has run under such titles as "Deadline for Action" and "Wire Service."

"That is still being rerun," she says. "But I had a smart lawyer—hah!—who advised me not to accept residuals. Instead, I had a deal which bombed. Dane Clark still laughs at me. Needless to say, I now have another lawyer."

Despite that fiscal fiasco, she isn't unhappy with her lot. "I'm content with where I am in the world today," she says. "After all, I'm not in jail, my son is alive when he has no right to be (he was badly injured in the Vietnam war)." (See Page Three)

CBS Reports on Viet Nam

Exclusive interviews with Henry Cabot Lodge, American Ambassador to the Republic of Viet Nam, and that country's leader, General Nguyen Khanh, have been filmed for "CBS Reports: Viet Nam: The Deadly Decision," Wednesday from 7:30-8:30 p.m.

The broadcast will offer an up-to-the-minute, probing and in-depth report on the military and political aspects of the war in Viet Nam, according to producer Leslie Midgley, who has just returned from the crisis-ridden Southeast Asian country.

The 13-man CBS News task force dispatched to Viet Nam less than three weeks ago has been journeying to all parts of South Viet Nam to report the very latest developments on the situation there, Midgley said.

"The military operation is terribly difficult to report, as any guerrilla war is," he said. "Our correspondents and camera crews have been going out on missions with South Viet Nam's Special Forces against the Viet Cong, never knowing what to expect or where they're going to end up. There certainly are no clearly-drawn battle lines."

"On the political side of this war," Midgley said, "we're going to show how America got involved there in the first place, and what we are planning to do in Viet Nam during the weeks ahead."

Peter Kallscher will report on the military aspects of the Viet Nam crisis, Midgley said, while Bernard Kalb will dwell on the political ones.

Charles Collingwood, who has been heading the special CBS News task force with Midgley, will anchor the broadcast and a concluding round-table discussion in Saigon in which he and Kallscher and Kalb will evaluate their findings.

Collingwood, before he left for Viet Nam, flew to Paris for an examination of France's role in the Viet Nam crisis and an interview with Madame Ngo Dinh Nhu, sister-in-law of South Viet Nam's deposed late President Ngo Dinh Diem.

Changing Australia Explored

Australia and her dynamic, fun-loving, hard-working people will be the subject of a full-hour NBC News color special to be telecast Tuesday from 10-11 p.m.

Chet Huntley will be the reporter on "Changing Matilda: The New Australia."

"Most Americans think of Australia as the land of the kangaroo and boomerang," says Huntley. "However, we dismiss these cliches in the opening minutes of the program. Instead, our color camera crews in the two months they spent filming in Australia found a colorful, humorous and friendly people making up an enormous island of Western civilization surrounded by exploding Asia, and not very worried about it. This will be the story we will tell."

The special telecast will focus on four aspects of modern Australia: The post-war surge of European immigrants, the barren interior land, the country's effort to draw closer to Asia and Australia's national character.

Since World War II, more than 1,000,000 immigrants from Central Europe have come to Australia for jobs, a home and a future. A Czech sausage maker, a Yugoslav steel worker and a French fashion model will be among those telling of their new life in Australia.

Australia is almost as big as the United States. However, her current population is 11,000,000 and the most optimistic estimate is that it cannot go beyond 25,000,000 because of the vast uninhabitable areas which make up most of the country.

The program will show some of the people who live in one of those desolate areas, in the back country near Broken Hill where children "attend" school by short-wave radio and doctors make their rounds in airplanes.

Because Australia is closer to Japan than to England or America, and the distance from Indonesia to Darwin is far less than the distance from Darwin to Sydney, Australia is taking a closer look at her Asian neighbors.

The program also will cover Australia's relations with Asia in terms of trade, diplomacy and cultural exchange. Asian sentiments about the "White Australia" policy will be heard in a discussion with Asian students at the Australian National University at Canberra.

Television Restraint Bars Flourishing of Fashions

NEW YORK (AP) — Television, which has drastically affected so many facets of American life, has had almost no influence on women's fashions.

Two decades ago a movie dress designer, named Adrian — with a big assist from Joan Crawford — almost overnight changed the shape of women's shoulders from sloping and natural to padded and square. Marlene Dietrich — may she be forgiven — was largely responsible for giving women courage to try their first slacks.

But even in television's salad days when Faye Emerson's daring necklines drew considerable comment, there was no great vogue for the revealing decolletage.

POPE'S MESSAGE ON TV

An Easter message to the American people from Pope Paul VI, filmed in Rome, will be presented on ABC-TV's "Directions '64" tomorrow from 2-3 p.m.

Restraint and conservatism are television's watchwords. An actress permitted to be the class of fashion could do real damage to a series.

Intersecting clothes could — and probably would — divert attention from the plot. Loretta Young, who was probably television's most stylish actress, wore her smartest gowns only when she whirled through the door on her way to the opening commercial.

In the second place, an actress who wears very short skirts or an elaborate hairdo can date a series as indelibly as a Stutz Bearcat or a raccoon coat. This, in turn, may interfere with the rerun sales in subsequent seasons.

The clothes give-away in most television series, curiously, is usually found in men's clothes — in the width of the jacket lapels and of the hat brims — the narrower they are, the more recently the series was made.

Critic Lists Own Choice Of Shows

By CYNTHIA LOWRY NEW YORK (AP) — Award giving has become a spring event as inevitable as the return of the swallows.

Television and allied industries play the awards game furiously, and for a while now the television screens will frequently be peopled with smiling winners, earnestly thanking "the great team that made all this possible."

It is difficult to see how anyone can make voting decisions on "the best" in any of the usual categories. After hundreds of hours spent looking at hundreds of television programs, it is hard indeed even to recall most of the programs.

If I were forced into personal decisions, I would probably pick CBS' "The Defenders" as consistently the most interesting dramatic series; CBS' "The Danny Kaye Show" which has sharp ups and downs as my favorite variety hour. "The Dick Van Dyke Show" also on CBS is, far and away, my choice as a really funny comedy series.

In the panel-quizz-audience participation show category, "College Bowl" on NBC has my vote, although for relaxed amusement, I enjoy "You Don't Say," on NBC.

Among the public affairs and news shows, my preferences are "CBS Reports" and NBC's "Meet the Press."

Memorable events of the past television year—since last April—all are dwarfed, of course, by vivid recollections of its splendid coverage during the four tragic days starting Nov. 22. Among the dramatic shows I recall are NBC's "Show of the Week" called "Ride with Terror," a shocker, and "The Case Against Paul" (See Page Four)

Alaska Damage Estimate: $350 Million

Families in Anchorage Struggle to Keep Warm, Fed

Townpeople Line Up for Water, Soup

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—The melancholy quiet of disaster's aftermath has settled over this pitifully scarred city.

Soldiers guard deserted streets. Weary people line up with bottles, buckets, jars, coffee tins, at big water-tank trucks. Others line up at a school building for typhoid shots, others at the city park for soup in steaming vats.

Eyes are dull from snook and fatigue, but if voices are low, spirits seem amazingly high. The crucible of common misfortune has brought out the best in nearly everyone, and selflessness has become contagious, though the struggle simply to keep one's own family warm and fed is exhausting.

At the home of construction worker Victor Paal seven children, five of them neighbors, huddle before the fireplace. For them Good Friday's wicked earthquake has brought only grand adventure.

They melt snow in a big yellow plastic trash basket on the hearth, eat lunch from olive drab tins, spend the night together in sleeping bags. A neighbor, Frank Reed, has an electric stove, so Mrs. Paal is able to cook one hot meal a day.

At the Airport Heights School families were receiving typhoid shots from four registered nurses dressed in pants and sweaters.

It was the first chance many of the neighbors had had to see one another since the quake.

"Hi, Marshall, how's all your family?" the tone of voice, and the reply, indicated it was not just a perfunctory remark.

"Fine, thank God, Yours?"

As neighbors swapped experiences, it became more clear what it was like during the awful minutes that began at 5:38 p.m. Friday.

"Are you sure it was only minutes?" said Clarence Clert, an engineer. "I'd swear that damn thing lasted at least a half hour. We were all at home. At first I thought it was

Toll of Dead Still Rising, May Top 100

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—As Alaskans toiled to dig out from the rubble of Friday's great earthquake, Civil Defense officials listed new casualty figures today of 21 known dead and 83 missing and presumed dead.

Fifty-five were reported to have been injured.

This means if those presumed dead—most were washed to sea by tidal waves following the quake—are indeed dead the toll will be more than 100.

Before this morning's report, an estimated 70 had been listed as dead or presumed so.

Gov. William A. Egan made a new damage estimate Sunday night of $350 million for this far north state, where industry in several south-central coastal towns was virtually obliterated.

Civil Defense officials gave this breakdown on casualties:

Anchorage, with a metropolitan population of 100,000 and the state's largest city, 8 dead and 2 presumed dead, 50 injured.

Kodiak, 7 dead, 14 presumed dead, 2 injured.

Valdez, 1 dead, 30 presumed dead, 2 injured.

Seward, 2 dead, 30 presumed dead, 2 injured.

Whittier, 1 dead, 12 presumed dead, 1 injured.

Cordova, 1 dead, 5 presumed dead, injured unknown.

Port Anchorage, 1 dead, 5 presumed dead, injured unknown.

The death toll in Alaska was certain to climb—many still are missing—but most state officials expected the final total to stay below 100.

A stunned population began to realize the economic ruin carried by the quake. In some communities, industry was as much as 90 per cent wiped out.

"It might take a year and a half to two years to rebuild," said Mayor Bruce Woodford of smashed Valdez, "but we'll make it."

Egan said his estimate of property damage was conservative. Other unofficial estimates were higher.

Egan had increased the figure after visiting Valdez, his home town.

Information from many of the heavy-hit areas was sketchy at best. In Kodiak, where a tidal wave washed out the waterfront, one report said martial law had been proclaimed. Police refused to confirm or deny the report.

Valdez, a tiny fishing port of 1,000 residents on the Gulf of Alaska east of Anchorage, appeared the hardest hit. Most of its dead were swept away when a tidal wave collapsed the city's dock while a freighter was being unloaded.

In addition to the Alaska casualties, 15 were killed in California and Oregon by tidal waves.

After-shocks from the Good Friday temblor continued as residents began the work of reconstruction, vowing to rebuild better than ever.

President Johnson said, after

Escapes Nabbed In East Hartford

EAST HARTFORD (AP)—Two 15-year-old escapees from the Meriden School for Boys were apprehended at gun point by East Hartford police early this morning, following a high speed chase down Maple St.

The youths, driving a car stolen from Windsor, reached speeds of 90 miles an hour as they tried to evade police. Police said Officer Laurence Jones gave chase when he observed the car traveling at a high rate of speed on Pitkin St.

He followed it to the corner of Main and Brown Sts. where he was joined by Officer Richard Lewis. The high speed chase continued as the juveniles raced down Main St. to Maple St.

Their car left the highway when they failed to negotiate a turn at the intersection of Maple and Forbes St. The vehicle came to rest in an open lot.

The boys left the car and ran into a swamp. Police went in after them. They surrendered voluntarily. They were taken to police headquarters for questioning and turned over to juvenile authorities.

Gambling Halted In Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Police start checking today to see that this mountain resort city's biggest industry, illegal gambling, is really dead.

Roulette wheels, dice, card tables and slot machines were stifled Sunday by order of Gov. Orval E. Faubus.

Whether the closing is permanent is a question. One club operator predicted the casino would be in full swing next year. A move is under way to legalize gambling through an initiative act in the November general election.

A city official estimated that 25 per cent of the city's 23,377 residents would be affected immediately by the shutdown.

Mayor Dan Wolf said gambling has been a steady part of the city's economy. "You can't

Relief Effort Set in Motion By LBJ Aide

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson's disaster relief chief returned today from a swift inspection of quake-ravaged Alaska and immediately set in motion a relief effort that ultimately could reach several hundred million dollars in federal funds.

Edward A. McDermott, head of the office of emergency planning, said he planned to talk to Johnson by telephone again this morning. He had reported to Johnson from Alaska before heading back to Washington.

McDermott also said he was calling a meeting in his office this afternoon of the heads of all departments and agencies that "appear at this time to have major responsibility in the repair and rehabilitation efforts that have to be undertaken immediately."

He declined to speculate on how much of the damage costs from the quakes and tidal waves might be shouldered by the federal government. Gov. William A. Egan of Alaska has estimated property damage as $300 million and said he was being conservative.

However, Sen. E. L. Barlett said he and Sen. Ernest Gruening would see Johnson. The two Alaska Democrats made the 40-hour round trip of nearly 8,000 miles in the party aboard President Johnson's plane.

Barlett said he believes there should be a special federal program which would provide several hundred million dollars to restore Alaska's shattered cities and towns, its government-owned railroads, and most importantly, its fishing industry.

McDermott said many of the federal agencies with responsibilities under present law may have to go to Congress for supplemental appropriations.

"It involves much more than assistance with physical rehabilitation," he said.

"Some way must be found to address ourselves to the economic program of the state," he said.

In Anchorage alone, he said, if not months, may elapse before many businesses may be able to open their doors again.

During this period, he said, people employed by these businesses will be out of work and in need of unemployment compensation.

Pope Toughens Policy on Reds

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The framework of a tough new Vatican policy toward communism stood out today after the first Holy Week of Pope Paul VI's reign.

The hardening emerged in speeches delivered by the pontiff during the week. He also again stressed the search for Christian unity and closer ties between Roman Catholics and other Christians.

After a Good Friday procession in which the 66-year-old pope carried a cross, he condemned Communist treatment of Roman Catholics as another crucifixion.

In his first Easter speech as Pope, Paul urged atheists and those who oppose religion to accept God.

His Good Friday speech was the strongest papal condemnation of communism since the reign of Pope Pius XII, who died in 1958.

Paul's Easter speech from the loggia of St. Peter's Basilica was taken as both an appeal and a demand to Communists to mend their ways.

Predecessor, Pope John XXIII, never wavered on doctrinal opposition to Communist philosophy and dictatorial methods. But John sought to ease world tensions and improve the situation of Catholics in Iron Curtain countries by showing patience and charity in dealing with communism.

John almost never used the

Glenn Quits Race, Cites Ear Injury

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Former astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., withdrew today from the Ohio U.S. Senate campaign because of injuries from a bathroom fall last month.

"No man has a right to ask for a seat in either branch of the Congress merely because of a specific event such as orbiting the earth in a space craft," Glenn told newsmen after one of his physicians said participating in the campaign would be detrimental to his health and recovery.

His statement was made at the Air Force hospital where he was brought March 6 to recover from inner ear damage.

The ear injury impaired Glenn's sense of balance and curtailed his plans to retire March 1 from the Marine Corps to enter the Ohio Senate race.

Glenn said he sent a telegram to Ohio Secretary of State Ted Brown requesting that his name be taken off the Democratic ballot.

The Marine Corps lieutenant colonel said he might return to his home near the National Aeronautics and Space Administration center at Houston, Tex., within a week or so.

As to his future plans, Glenn said:

"Perhaps there will be other opportunities for service to our country or a later time when I can conduct the type of campaign I think every candidate could conduct."

Glenn said tests of his condition by specialists "have led to the conclusion that the conditions causing my difficulties will probably not be resolved for at least a number of months."

"Doctors have advised that carrying on in a work status only aggravated the condition and can delay recovery, with the possibility that agitation could develop into a chronic situation from which recovery might be much more difficult," he said.

"To make full recovery most probable, they strongly recom-

Races Equal In Graham's Rally in Dixie

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Evangelist Billy Graham's Easter appearance before an integrated audience of more than 35,000 was hailed as a tremendous inspirational success by Negroes and white persons.

The gathering at Legion Field, a football stadium in Birmingham, was the largest integrated audience in Alabama's history. It also was the largest religious gathering in the state.

Rigid security precautions were in force, but there were no incidents. The city has been the scene of racial violence in the past.

"Billy Graham has brought out the best in us," said Mayor Albert Boutwell.

A Negro minister, the Rev. J. L. Ware, said, "It is my candid opinion that this great Christian service will prove to be the turning point in changing the outlook and image of Birmingham into a city of peace and tranquility and prosperity for all people."

Negroes and white persons appeared evenly divided.

Walter Smyth, an associate of Graham, said Police Chief Jamie Moore estimated the crowd at between 35,000 and 40,000.

About 4,000, both white and Negro, responded at the close of Graham's sermon when he called for the penitent to come forward.

Graham said in his sermon that the world is "a planet in rebellion," but that the answer to its social, moral and spiritual ills can be found in the crucifixion and resurrection of Jesus Christ.

"What causes school children to attack teachers in New York? What causes bombs to be thrown against innocent people?" he asked.

Seven persons were killed in racial unrest in Birmingham last summer, including four Negro girls who died when a church was dynamited.

Young Kennedys Skiing

STOWE, Vt. (AP)—The adult Kennedys went home but left a group of the young fry at this ski resort today, ready for more on the snowy slopes.

The family plane, Caroline, took off Sunday night from Burlington Airport with Mrs. John F. Kennedy, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and his wife, Ethel; Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and his wife, Joan; and Eunice Shriver, wife of the Peace Corps director, Sargent Shriver. It was the former First Lady's first try at the winter sport, although she is an adept water skier. It was the first time on skis for Caroline, 6, and John F. Kennedy Jr. They remained with a number of young Kennedys and Shriver in the care of some family employees.

MACARTHUR WORSENS WASHINGTON (AP)—General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, fighting for his life, developed a kidney condition "grave concern" during the night but was reported rallying today. Army Surgeon General Leonard D. Heaton said he showed a slight improvement.

STIFF SENTENCE GIVEN NEW HAVEN (AP)—A federal judge said today he was "thoroughly fed up" with the recent wave of bank hold-ups in Connecticut and imposed a stiff sentence on one of the bandits who was caught and convicted. Robert E. Kennedy, 29, received a maximum 10-year term for the $1,101 holdup Jan. 27 of the Broadway Branch of the First New Haven National Bank. In imposing the sentence, U.S. District Judge William H. Timbers noted the "innumerable similar offenses of bank robbery" in recent months and said: "As one of the 2.5 million citizens of Connecticut I am thoroughly fed up with the frequency with which these crimes of violence have occurred." In the Jan. 27 hold-up, the bandit, carrying a container filled with a white liquid, made the threat of blowing up the branch. Kennedy was captured a short time later only a few blocks from the holdup scene.
