Red Cross officials say 114 donors kept their appointments with 59 residents walking to contribute. Fourteen persons were deferred for various physical reasons. ### Crossroads Plunges into Sports Program

By ARTHUR HOOPER (Special to The Herald)
LONE, Top—The Crossroads group arrived in Lone, Top, a week ago and we were well into our sports program. The trip from Lague in a small bus was very picturesque as we traveled through fishing villages and backwoods, seeing the grass houses and traditional landmarks frequently associated with Africa. Lone itself is a beautiful city on the Atlantic Ocean with a beautiful beach and mild tropical temperature. Fruit and food are abundant along the coast and life is very pleasant. I have noted that the Togolose are extremely friendly and cordial to foreigners, responding warmly to a "bonjour" or "bonsoir." The whole city knows our program and seems to be interested in it. Each morning we get up at 5:15 and have breakfast. We begin coaching at 6 o'clock. We have classes in track, volleyball, basketball, tennis and swimming during the morning, followed by movies or two on the ground. American athletes. After state in the afternoon we arrange games with the local teams. The program has been planned and is being run with the cooperation of the Ministry of National Education of Togo. Some groups, especially basketball, find that they cannot accommodate all the youngsters who turn up to be coached. It is difficult to see the enthusiasm which these kids have for sports. They have a lot of talent and are eager to learn. One of our group members is Steve Kelly of Stamford with whom I played football at Loomis and at Tufts. One afternoon we took an American football to the beach and ended up in the midst of an impromptu football game with an eager crowd of youngsters. We have been cooking our own meals for the most part. Our girls are becoming well versed in local foods and do well in trying to feed eight hungry boys. The market place offers a variety of meats, fruits and vegetables along with yams and rice so we are well provided for here. One of the most impressive and inspiring sentiments I have found is the sense of attachment and affection for our late President Kennedy. Among students he is remembered as a young and dynamic leader who personified that progress to which young idealists aspire. The Togolose sincerely sympathize with us for they, too, knew the sorrow of an assassinated president's last year. Last Thursday I attended a "Kennedy Club" which has over 200 members. It is reassuring to know that even half way around the world young people have so many common interests and share in so many similar ideals.

Annual Report New Mains Improve Flow Of Water

Lawrence Witkowsky, superintendent of the Manchester Water and Sewer Department, has submitted a summary of operations of that department. The completion of the water main extension from W. Middle Tye to Hayes St., by way of the Manchester High School grounds, Summit, Flower and Main Sts., has increased the water supply to Manchester Memorial Hospital. The high school now has two additional fire hydrants available, and the station has benefited by the increased supply. A 12-inch water main was installed from Charter Oak St. to Spring St., by way of Gardner St. and Gardner St., west branch. This increased the amount of water to residents of this area. The screen of the 40-year old fire hydrant at Charter Oak St. developed irreparable defects and was replaced with a 12-inch well which tested out at 700 gallons per minute. Changes in the distribution system show an addition of 5.1 feet of 8-inch main, 80 feet of 8-inch main, 1,099 feet of 10-inch main and 3,048 feet of 12-inch main. There were 25 new valves added, and 13 additional fire hydrants. This year 9.78 inches less than the average. The largest rainfall for any month was recorded in November with a total of 5.57 inches and the lowest was October with .31 inches. In 1963 the total water used was approximately 876,160,000 gallons. As of Jan. 1, 1964, the Manchester Water Dept. had a total of 105,48 miles of water mains with 619 fire hydrants in use, and a total of 6,743 active water connections. The storage capacity of the Manchester Highland Park totals 470,000,000 gallons. Additions to the sanitary sewer system totaled 1,291 feet of 10-inch main, 4,551 feet of 8-inch main and 670 feet of 6-inch main. There were 36 new manholes added bringing the total number of manholes to 3,462. As of Jan. 1, 1964, the Sewer Dept. had a total of 87,211 pipes.

Dixie Help Asked On Poverty Bill

Sen. Alexander C. Penny, chairman of the Citizens' Advisory Committee (CAC) has informed the board of directors of the Citizens' Advisory Committee that he is considering the bill to be re-introduced. He is basing his move on his long experience in the Senate. The point is that West's ruling is not an entry — the only entry to the West. East can make good use of that entry only if the first claim of the sturgeon club out of his hand. Penny, who is an original member of the CAC, was elected its chairman on Sept. 1, 1962, and has been credited with being a strong factor in the May 19 approval of North 2nd Re-

Charter Changes Favored Over Republican Objection

After conducting a 35-minute public hearing on proposed charter revisions, at which three residents spoke briefly, the town board of directors last night voted 6 to 2 along party lines to place on the Oct. 5 voting machines the same 12 charter revision questions which, on May 19, were defeated for lack of sufficient affirmative votes. The Republican minority voted against all of the questions but one, on the basis that the proposals had already been defeated. The proceedings were illegal, and that the new "rubber-stamp" Charter Revision Commission (CRC) had spent no effort or time in reviewing the proposals. The only question approved by the Republicans (with the exception of Director Brian Taylor) was the one which would raise from $1,000 to $5,000 the demonstration of bonds to be issued in the future. The CRC last week needed a combined total of 45 minutes in holding two meetings, plus a public hearing, and even voting to recommend acceptance of the proposal. Taylor, last night, raised the question of legality, when he objected to continuing over 30 proposals into 12 questions and voting them approved by way of a referendum. He called the proposal "a crumb for the hungry wolf."

News stories from South Vietnam say that American officials there have indeed for some time been trying to get Premier Khanh to exert a more dynamic leadership for the people, but that they are somewhat startled by his sudden decision to march north, in his oratory at least. And there is some suspicion that perhaps Premier Khanh has already begun adjusting himself to a United States in which a Senator Goldwater could be nominated for the presidency.

Against the alluring prospect of a dramatic march north, the situation in South Vietnam still seems, by most reports, to be one in which South Vietnam cannot even claim the loyalty of its own people in their own villages. Once the South Vietnam government had that, it might not need to march north in order to win the war. It will gain that, if it ever does, by governing and doing rather than by importing more foreign troops or talking about war bigger than the one it already seems unable to handle.

Can Champagne Risk Cheapness?

If there are, among us human beings, any who would not like to be allowed to have their cake and eat it too, will they please come forward!

While we are waiting, we might discuss not cake, but champagne.

What makes champagne a specialty? Bubbles, that is, bubbles.

What are bubbles? Carbonated air.

Nothing, really. But tradition and custom and the human fancy have built it into something special, something luxurious. Wine can be ordinary, but champagne can never be less than festive and gay. Wine can go with almost any occasion, but champagne demands soft lights and passionate eyes and wailing music.

Champagne, therefore, thanks to a few shots of carbonated air, plus the reputation of centuries, has a status position. It is a status symbol.

With this status the champagne makers and wholesalers and retailers are very happy, all of them.

They like it, that is, except when the federal government's tax schedules also treat champagne as if it were something special and luxurious, not just an ordinary wine with a little carbon dioxide shot into it.

The federal government puts a tax of 37 cents a gallon on any wine, foreign or domestic. But the moment somebody shoots bubbles into this amount of wine, the tax goes up to $3.40 a gallon. And, the wine merchants argue accurately enough, bubbles don't cost that much, especially when they have got a bill in Congress to put an end to the tax discrimination against bubbles.

If they got their bill passed, that certainly might make champagne just as cheap to buy as any other wine.

It might be so cheap nobody would consider it status, or luxurious, or gay, or especially suited to celebration.

All Solved

The opening sentence of a column today from Washington by David Lawrence shows how devastatingly simple problems can become once you apply the right labels to them.

Here is the opening sentence of Lawrence's column in this morning's New York Herald Tribune:

"The Communist conspiracy to provoke trouble inside the United States is at last coming out in the open. The riots in Harlem and Brooklyn have been participated in and to a certain extent, incited, by Communists—and Paul R. Screvans, acting Mayor of New York City in the absence of Mayor Robert Wagner, publicly and officially said so this week."

This solves the problem of riots in New York, and, in the United States, a "Communist conspiracy to further participate in the invasion of Mississippi," and as for the three civil rights workers whose bodies authorities have been searching for, they must have been a hoax, part of a Communist-backed conspiracy to "threat violence" upon the people of Mississippi.

Where does some presumed voice of sanity stand in the face of such contentions?

First, we think, it says that it would indeed be some kind of miracle if, given situations as they exist in Harlem and in Mississippi, Communists and their agents were not forever trying to mix into these situations and inflame them.

But second the voice of sanity has to decide that there is something else and something more basic than the Communist meddling involved in such situations, and that we could organize ourselves to hate and kill all Communists incessantly and we would never get one slight step nearer the basic solution of the problems which attract the Communists in the first place.

Other than advising us to hate and denounce the Communist, voices like those of Lawrence and Eastland do not carry us to our ultimate solution. But what their logic so far as it may be called logic, would suggest is that if we could subdue and eliminate Moscow, we might at least have peace in Harlem and Mississippi.

But, if for the moment, it is not convenient to shoot up Moscow, let get the trouble at its real source, at least we can stop worrying about any other responsibilities of our own for trouble in Harlem or Mississippi. If we can squish the Communists, we must expect they will keep on creating such problems for us.

What a beautiful and conscience-free way for a civilization to go!

"Bac Tien"

There has, over in South Vietnam, been a sudden infusion of vigor into the active oratory. The day 10 years ago, when settlement at Geneva, after 250,000 French army casualties, brought an end to the war between France and the nation which has now been characterized by a "day of shame" and France been accused of treachery because the Geneva settlement turned half the country over to the Communists.

Two footnotes should be appended to this heroic version of history. First, had there not been a truce and partition negotiated at Geneva, there would indeed have been one Vietnam, but Communist, second, one of the agreements at Geneva gave the people of the country their chance the next year to unify Vietnam by their votes in a free election. But when next year came, it was South Vietnam, backed by the advice of its American friends, which refused to hold such a free election, for fear that too would be lost.

The current infusion of oratorical vigor in South Vietnam does not go with heroic version of the past. It goes on to a heroic recommendation for the future. It has a war cry, "Bac Tien," which translates "to the north" and which punctuates oratory in which Premier Khanh is now suddenly vowing to send his army to the north in order to liberate North Vietnam.

 By A.H.O.

The personal debate over whether the Republican party becomes a strong party, when it puts itself in the hands of its own right wing was answered eloquently in Connecticut in 1962, and is to be answered again in 1964. We think there are some differences, as well as similarities, between 1964 and 1962, but the turbulence of the national campaign, even in its earliest moments, forbids any prediction as to which will prove more important when Connecticut goes to the polls in November.

If, by fate and by chance, by conviction and vote, the people of Connecticut then prove that they for all these years is a big shift to the right, that will point one way for Connecticut Republicanism to continue forward in the effort to try to compensate for the tactical loss of advantage it seems certain to suffer from the revolution in the makeup of the Connecticut General Assembly which lies just ahead.

That can happen, let us hasten to say. We live in strange and exciting times when all political movements can be up for revision.

If we were still to go by the book, however, we would have to make a still different kind of guess. That would be that the natural problem of the Connecticut Republicanism, the loss of the helpful protection and power insurance the traditional system of election of the House of Representatives has given, is a big policy, a big issue of compensating for that prospective loss by broadening the scope of their appeal to Connecticut people.

If the Republican party is going to be able to elect a few representatives on the basis of a system which favors small town pockets of conservatism, the normal reading of the electoral book would say the Republicans would have to try to elect more representatives on the basis of a broader appeal to the popular vote as a whole.

Again, a consultation of the book would say that the great Republican vote gains in the recent moderate, middle-of-the-road Republicanism, Raymond E. Baldwin and Dwight Eisenhower.

These recent court decisions and approaching revision of the Connecticut General Assembly would say that the Republicans of Connecticut, to reconstruct and broaden the basis of their own appeal by making ever than ever, they stay close enough to the political middle to give themselves a chance of victory whenever they can also demonstrate public competence and candid appeal.

When the Goldwater party, tending they of course prove correct, the Goldwater and his position may prove able to do just as much for Connecticut as the shift of party position couldn't have occurred at a worse time so far as Connecticut Republicans are concerned.

The courts are shooting their traditional control of the Connecticut House out from under them and the very moment a new kind of lasoo has fallen over the city and it only takes a short dry spell to prove it.

Now the odd thing is that rain has a terrible reputation. We stand as children at the window watching the rain pour down and feeling gloomy. The rain streams down the windows, pane like tears, we feel depressed; it is a gray day. The solution, of course, is to get out into it—to take a walk. Some odd souls like to get drenched to feel the water of a summer rain is for them like swimming on the land. Well, this may not be possible in all climates and for all people, but the idea is sound.

A good symbol, we say, for religion, which also has a bad reputation in some quarters. Go forth and feel its cleansing touch. Rain is not the only reminder of the grace of God, but it is one of them.

 More to Come?

NEW YORK, July 23—All along 120th St. in Harlem yesterday, where there was a red light and traffic stopped making noise, you could hear the hollow sound of nightsticks tapping against wooden barriers on the playgrounds or set on stoops and they did this in Harlem and in Bedford-Stuyvesant and now in South Jamaica, too, and they all seemed to be waiting to start more trouble. And they do not want to listen to anybody. That's the bad trouble now. The kids act as if they have no ears.

I talked to a couple of them. "A big policy a white guy was saying," and they say to me, "Get out of here who the hell wants to listen to you?" Now with all these cops around, they're making it hard to go about your business. So we're trying to call them off. But you mention a name to them and they laugh. I say to them, "Bumpy Johnson wants you to cool it," they say, "Who the hell is Bumpy Johnson?"

Johnson, who comes out of the days of Owney Madden and Bill Duffy, is the best known gangster name in Harlem. He means nothing to these kids. Not any other name mean anything to them. Mayor Wagner spoke on television last night. He meant nothing. They want to listen to people like Jim Lawton and then go out and riot.

General Manager Richard Martin has written the General Services Administration (GSA) requesting information on possible town purchase of the Keeney St. Nike site.

Martin's letter refers to a previous GSA letter which questioned the length of time being taken by the town to consider the purchase.

The General Manager asked for clarification of rights-of-way and other easement matters. He also informed the federal officials that besides considering the property for recreation and water utilization purposes the town is also considering the site for educational purposes.

He mentioned that plans of these proposals would follow later.

The 3-acre site has been made available to the town on a "first refusal" purchase basis by federal agency administering the disposal of the surplus property.

Town officials have been quoted as saying that very favorable purchase prices are available to the town if it chooses to exercise its priority of purchase for special uses such as schools or parks.

Fava Bid Low On Razing Job

Fava's Building Wreckers of Middletown, with a price of $945, is the apparent low bidder for demolishing the old Center Firehouse.

Others who this morning submitted bids for the project are: Choman of Manchester, $1,150; and Manfort Bros. Inc. of New Britain, $2,340.

Fava's bid was announced to commence the work immediately upon award of a contract, and to complete it within three days.

Big specifications call for the work to be done during normal daytime working hours, and for removal of a buried fuel oil storage tank adjacent to the firehouse and the filling in of the exposed hole.

Salvageable material of the two-story frame building, with the exception of the oil burner, will be the property of the contractor.

House Co. 2, to the rear of the Lincoln School, has been available for use.

The area to be cleared will be used by the Center Congregational Church as a parking area, and will also be available for Lincoln School parking.

The old firehouse was built around 1904 by town fire companies up to the modern standard of that day. Fire equipment prior to that date had been stored in the old trolley barns and in commercial buildings.

Constitutional Convention Scheduled For Reapportioning General Assembly

HARTFORD (AP)—Gov. John Dempsey has scheduled a weekend meeting of state officials to study a federal court outline that calls for the summoning of a constitutional convention to reapportion the Connecticut General Assembly. The court yesterday announced a tight timetable which it said should be followed in bringing about reapportionment. First step is the calling of a special session of the legislature the week of Aug. 3 to determine the makeup of the constitutional convention.

Convention delegates would be chosen by Oct. 6 and the convention would begin its work Nov. 5. The convention would submit proposed amendments to the state constitution to the legislature no later than March 1 and the legislature would schedule a referendum to be held by April 5.

The three-judge panel requested the 10 plaintiffs in the reapportionment case to submit a proposed decree by Monday that would embody the timetable. Their attorneys said they would comply.

The court said it would report the legislature itself its outline was not followed. The court said the legislature should conduct no business except its own reapportionment—no other business—before a special session, told a court conference.

"I will prepare to say next week the steps which in my judgment are necessary to assure a sound and orderly program of action in the light of the court's decision."

He said he had asked State Finance Commissioner George Conkling to study the court's decision "to determine what financial problems may arise and to prepare a plan to meet those problems."

The Governor held a news conference after yesterday's court action and held a news conference after the court's decision.

The Governor has proposed a plan of legislative redistricting and reapportionment which he said would be submitted to the voters in the next general election.

The Governor apparently had as few answers as anybody to some of the ramifications of the court outline.

He was asked what effect the court would have on the state's fiscal program.

"That's the question," he said. "That's the question."

It appeared conceivable that the court would force the legislature to speed the reapportionment timetable—by a month or so.

The Chief Justice in the case for the Republicans, Meade Alcorn, said "the court's decision is the nation's oldest city."

Barry Sees LBJ On Rights Issue. WASHINGTON (AP)—Against a backdrop of harsh words, Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater talks with President Johnson today about steps "to avoid any inflating of trouble" over civil rights in the presidential campaign.

Goldwater said he is not going to propose a formal agreement with Johnson to keep the explosive issue of civil rights out of politics in the months ahead. He said he does not want to discuss the issue until after the election.

Racial Disorder Subsidies in NYC

NEW YORK (AP)—White youths hurtled missiles at Negroes and whites picketing police headquarters during the night while disorders erupted in Harlem and Brooklyn, scenes of five nights of strife.

The picketing of the headquarters in Lower Manhattan, was sponsored by the Congress of Racial Equality which accused the police of brutality and discrimination against Negroes.

An egg thrown by the whites who opposed the CORE group narrowly missed Murphy, a rock hit Police Inspector James J. Conroy, and a wooden barricade to keep the whites at a distance.

The anti-rick crowd swelled to 1,500 at its peak. Most just watched the activity. A fraction of them—mostly teenagers from the Italian-American neighborhood surrounding the police headquarters—jeered and hurled objects.

After three hours of picketing, the CORE demonstrators were escorted in three groups to nearby subway stations. They were then escorted to the lower East Side neighborhood, who continued to hurl missiles at both police and pickets. A policeman was hit on the shoulder with a rock, treated at hospital and released.

Police arrested seven whites who were in an auto from which an anti-Negro placard had been posted.

The government has announced that it will provide for every citizen "to be heard or attacked."

Government Friend, Not Foe, Says LBJ in Jamboree Speech

VALLEY Forge, Pa. (AP)—President Johnson today said the United States is a country where every citizen has the chance to improve his own life and that of his family and the life of his country.

The President received a tumultuous reception when he arrived to help the scouts close their sixth national jamboree and receive their Silver Buffalo award for "distinguished service to the youth."

Shortly before Johnson spoke, Jay T. Lesley, 16-year-old life scout from Appleton, Wis., was killed by a bus when he darted out behind a parked car. He apparently was running to catch up with his troop marching to the site.
