It may be less grand than most station wagons. But it's also about a grand less.

When you're looking for a miniature moving van, your Squireback Sedan isn't it. Even with its back seat folded down it only holds half as much as the average station wagon. Which means you can't lug 30 pieces of luggage, or a full-sized double bed. But maybe you just need a car that can carry 15 valises. Or a full-sized single bed. Then you can save a lot of money with a Squireback Sedan. It costs only $2849. And it not only goes for less than most conventional wagons to begin with, it keeps on going for less. A Squireback can get as much as 27 miles on a gallon of gas. It takes 5 pints of oil instead of 5 quarts. It never needs an ounce of anti-freeze, because it's cooled by air. And it avoids repair bills like a... well, like a Volkswagen. So before you go out and buy some station wagon that has twice as much space as you really need, ask yourself this question: Will all that extra gross space be worth an extra grand?

PLANE REPORTED OVERDUE SPRINGFIELD, Vt. (AP) - An airplane with seven persons aboard was reported missing today on a flight from Bridgport, Conn., to Vermont. An official of the Federal Aviation Administration in Nashua, N.H., said the plane was supposed to land at Springfield Airport shortly after 9 a.m. The last radio contact with the plane was made by the airport when the twin-engine craft was over Brattleboro, the spokesman said.

LBJ Signs Measure On Gold

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Johnson has signed a bill removing the gold cover from paper currency, thus freeing $10.7 billion of the precious metal to defend the dollar abroad. The White House announced today he signed the bill Monday night.

Despite the mounting international crisis and the urgent calls for passage by Johnson, the Treasury and the Federal Reserve, Congress approved legislation only by a close margin. The vote was 199-190 in the House, 80-7 in the Senate.

Demands for gold, fed in recent weeks by international speculation, had reduced the U.S. stock close to the cover requirement by the time the repeal became law. The requirement now abrogated was that the Treasury hold gold equivalent to 25 per cent of the value of Federal Reserve notes outstanding.

For the average citizen, removal of the gold cover has no direct effect. His currency will change his paper money for gold when it is in force and he can't now.

For the Treasury, battling to maintain the dollar's international value and prevent its devaluation, removal of the cover means $10.7 billion more to fight speculation against the dollar—speculation which, with the demands of foreign governments for gold, has drained away most of the "free" gold.

The lack of the gold crisis has been increased by three factors.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) - The son of President Antonin Novotny was barred today from leaving the country for fear he would flee to the West in the wake of the scandalous ouster of his father.

The newspaper and Deputy Premier Atak Simunek added their voices to the growing demand for the removal of President Antonin Novotny, the old-line Communist who already has been forced out as party chief by a more liberal element.

Some reports have said Sejnka fled Feb. 25 after trying unsuccessfully to use the army to block liberalization and return Novotny to the party leadership.

The newspaper also charged that Sejnka was a close friend of Novotny's son, Antonin Jr.

The paper said Atty. Gen. Jan Bartulka, who was fired recently after being accused of plotting on Novotny's behalf, was also a close friend of the younger Novotny's.

Simunek was quoted by Radio Prague today as saying the important to use the army to block liberalization and return Novotny to the party leadership.

Atom-Smasher Machine U.S. Scientists Checking Physics Advance by Soviets

By VICTOR COHN
The Washington Post

United States scientists are checking a revolutionary physics advance in the Soviet Union which might yield super atomic energy.

The Soviet development, it is reported, is a theory developed by the Soviet Union's Dubna Nuclear Research Center, in which a machine five times more powerful than the 250 million dollar machine BEV (billion electron volt) chamber, at right angles to the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission is now planning at West, Ill.

ADP scientists and physicists at the University of California at Berkeley—where the Russian ideas are being hurriedly checked out recently, that the Russian method has exceeded the U.S. method in efficiency. The Russian method is directed at the proton, the proton is one of the basic particles in the atom's nucleus.

But the Russians have already built a small pilot model and are at least talking of a future 1,000 BEV machine. And this has already raised questions in Congress about moving ahead now on Weston funds.

The question was brought up in a hearing at AEC last week. It is understood, at AEC closed authorization bill hearings Feb. 21 before the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy.

The Weston group hopes to get 25 million dollars this year to start initial building. Then it will need increasing sums to get accelerating and smashing atoms in 1973.

The decision to build the expensive Weston machine was made only after long debate among both scientists and politicians.

On Feb. 21 and again in an interview later, AEC Research Director Paul Daniels said: "We must go ahead now at Weston. It's going to take us several years to prove out the Russian principle."

Berkeley scientists agreed. Dr. Edward J. Lofgren, head of the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory's Accelerator Group, who designed the proposed Weston machine—said: "We've started to build equipment for our first experiments. But it will be full before we have any significant results of just our first stages. It would be six years before we could be ready to build a big machine."

Jack Rosen, assistant to AEC Commission Gerald Tapp, said: "To wait on Weston would disintegrate its momentum and break up the group now gathering and going strong."

"But we are excited" by the Russian idea, said Lofgren. "The Russian idea, which it may be, is an injector for the proton, which maintains a part of post-Weston generation of atom-smashers without spending huge and huge money."

The Russian idea—if it works—could produce a machine that is both simpler and far shorter than the present mile and two-and-a-half-mile machines.

Recommendations by Vernon Study Panel

Following are excerpts from the report of the Consolidated Study Committee issued yesterday. The excerpts deal with the panel's major recommendations.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1. A Town Manager or Council-Representative form of government be considered in the near future.

2. All units of government, including Education, merge their purchasing requirements and establish a Central Purchasing Agency.

3. The Town of Vernon consider, in its comprehensive development action plan, the implications of ideas and programs associated with the concept of "consolidation."

4. A comprehensive development action plan aimed at further unification and integration of all town functions be developed now and consider within this plan the ways and means of attracting desirable commercial and industrial establishments to the town.

5. The Town of Vernon consider, in order to broaden the government, the likely to be most vital and responsive contributions of persons of diverse backgrounds who can contribute ideas drawn from as much as possible. Over the past few years, the town has been involved in decentralizing its purchasing. A central purchasing agency would be better able to optimize the town's purchasing power.

REGIONAL PLANNING

It is a growing community, and it is never too early to consider regional planning as an integral part of its expanding program. To illustrate this with a specific example, a community might first take some action in the next town zone the adjoining town as industrial.

Eventually, resources will be scarce, and rational and efficient use must be part of the planning during the growth years to avoid waste. Regional planning, instituted properly and wisely, should help to generate an exciting investment and business climate in the town.

ADMINISTRATION OF GOVERNMENT

The administration of government requires specialists and generalists. On the one hand, administration is likely to be conducted by specialists with education, experience, and career dedication in the field of government. On the other hand, administration is likely to be most vital and responsive with the contributions of persons of diverse backgrounds who can contribute ideas drawn from

Manager-Council Government Urged in Study Panel

By BARBARA RICHMOND

Consideration of a town manager-council form of government for Vernon in the near future is the No. 1 recommendation made by a Consolidated Study Committee in a report filed yesterday.

The committee, made up of George Forsley, chairman, and Arthur Bryant, Seymour E. LeVitt and W. Glenn Roberts, was appointed several months ago by Mayor John Grant.

In completing its work, the committee stated it hopes the report will serve as a guide to the town officials and the various agencies in their plans for the future growth of the town.

The recommendation for a future town manager-council form of government was first proposed by committee member LeVitt who filed a minority report.

The majority report pointed out that Vernon is relatively fortunate in that it now has a professional administrator, a representative legislative body and a mayor who can project liaison with the public and serve as a catalyst to governmental action.

The committee suggested that the town might wish to choose in the future to have a different form of government, with administration in the hands of a manager and with legislative functions in the hands of a board of councilmen.

LeVitt's minority report termed the committee's proposal for the mayor-council form of government, "an unworkable decision."

LeVitt said that the present charter affords the townspeople something like the federal system at the local level, in that policy and law in turn is regulated and administered by an executive which, in Vernon's case, is a mayor assisted by a full-time professional.

The majority report suggested that administration is likely to be more efficient and effective if conducted by specialists with education, experience, and career dedication in the field of government.

LeVitt said, "Perhaps the committee should consider whether

'Lazy Eye' Tests Scheduled April 15 to 18 at Four Sites

Manchester's second annual vision screening program for pre-school children will be held at four testing centers from 9-11 a.m. daily, Monday, April 15, through Thursday, April 18, at the following sites:

The free screening for children between the ages of three and five will be carried out by volunteers from several local agencies, with guidance from the Connecticut Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

Initiated last year, the program is designed to detect an eye condition—popularly called "lazy eye"—which is correctable in young children.

The condition is one in which the eyes do not work together as an apparently healthy eye actually has poor vision that is not correctable by wearing corrective glasses. It can be overcome, however, provided treatment is begun while the eye is still "learning" to see—usually until the child is about six.

After that, treatment becomes progressively less effective.

Professional guidance for the program will be given by Dr. Nicholas Marziale, town health officer; Dr. J. Robert Galvin Jr., school physician; Dr. Walter Schacht, ophthalmologist; Dr. John Manton, pediatrician; the Manchester Public Health Nurses Association and its advisory board; and the Manchester public school nurses. Mrs. Mary Hilditch will again serve as program coordinator.

An orientation for new testing center volunteers will be conducted by the Connecticut Blindness Society April 1 from 10 a.m. to noon at Temple Beth Shalom. Some 50 volunteers are needed to staff the program.

Members of the Senior Citizens Club have agreed to construct eye occluders and other items used in the testing.

Water damage was expected to total millions of dollars, according to a preliminary report by the Massachusetts Civil Defense Agency said 700 to 800 families required emergency shelter, but moderate temperatures allowed others to remain in their homes.

The Charles River, which separates Boston from Cambridge to the north, was running 2 1/2 feet above its flood level of 4 feet and was expected to crest at almost 8 feet by Saturday.

The Naubus River at Pepperell, about 40 miles northwest of Boston near the New Hampshire line, was approaching its flood level of 8 feet and was expected to crest by Saturday.

Most of the extreme damage from the rainstorm was concentrated along the South Shore, the popular designation for a strip of suburban communities including 6.87 inches at Fallmouth on Cape Cod, 5.70 inches at South Weymouth, 5.58 inches at Boston, 4.86 inches in Worcester, 4.12 inches at North Worcester, 3.18 inches at Portsmouth, N.H., and 1.73 inches at Hartford, Conn.

Much of the flooding came from small streams and tributaries, averaged about 10 inches, or more in some areas, which overflowed.

The Weather Bureau said it might be just a preview of a more widespread—more dangerous—flood.

The bureau's River Forecast Center in Hartford, Conn., said major rivers in the region often were already beyond flood stage—levels high enough above their natural banks to cause damage in surrounding areas—would reach it today.

In Woonsocket, R.I., where the Blackstone River is contained by a dam, the water was more than 10 feet deep, the river was running at the equivalent of 1 1/2 feet deep and was expected to reach the 15-foot mark today.

Weather in New England

MANCHESTER (AP)—The threat of major flooding from rain-swollen rivers increased in southern New England today as a two-day drenching rain storm, which brought near-record accumulations tapered off.

Hartford hit by the torrential rain were southern Massachusetts and Rhode Island, where thousands of persons were left without heat, electricity and telephone service when streets and cellars became flooded.

The Massachusetts Civil Defense Agency said 700 to 800 families required emergency shelter, but moderate temperatures allowed others to remain in their homes.
