WASHINGTON (AP)— Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford today announced he is calling to active duty about 24,500 Army, Navy and Air Force re-servists. About 10,000 will go to South Vietnam. In his first full-dress news conference, the new defense secretary said that no decision has been made at this time whether to call any additional reservists.

He also said that Presiden Johnson intends at this time to limit U.S. forces in Vietnam to 549,500-representing an in crease of 24,500 over the presen No Connecticut units are in volved in the call-up. Clifford linked this preside tial decision to limit furthe U.S. deployment to another major decision "to turn over th major effort gradually to the South Vietnamese." The new secretary, in office only six weeks, said the decision to move toward turning over the biggest part of the war effort to Vietnam has been made after months of consultations with the Vietnamese and took into ac count the Salgon government's decision to boost its forces by 135,000 men.

The reserve call-up was fore shadowed by Johnson's speech March 31 in which he also announced a partial halt in the bombing of North Vietnam in a move to get peace talks started Clifford, who has played a major role in high-level govern ment discussions leading to the peace moves, said that "after a halting start" messages are now going back and forth between the United States and the North Vietnamese. He described them as formal in tone.

Our No. 2 Problem?

Thursday, April 11

Now, in the perspective of our domesic trauma, the war in Vietnam has almost begun to take the secondary role some like Dr. Martin Luther King said it should.

It has no longer been, for the past few days, the number one heartache, the number one disease in American life It has somehow -perhaps very decepively -seemed to be less consequential. It is, of course, something of a mercy hat, during the time when we had trouble bringing our thoughts back toward it, the war in Vietnam has happened to be going well.

It is quite possible to take General Vestmoreland's report, namely that "militarily we have never been in a better relative position in South Vietnam" and make some partial agreement with it, although perhaps not from the same angles and for the same reasons which prompt him. We are in pleasing position because the siege of Khesanh has been lifted, and the long nightmars of the ordeal of our Marines there has been ended.

Our position with regard to the bombing of North Vietnam seems to have been proving, too, with informal signs that, drawing our bombers still a little urther to the south than he did in his original announcement, President Johnson may be giving Hanoi an additional signal or perhaps responding to some

It might be that the withdrawal the besieging forces from around Khesanh will come out in the history books as a valid signal from Hanol.

One might also say that it is part of our good position in Vietnam right now that Soviet Russia has given its official blessing to the prospects of negotiations about negotiations between Hanoi and Washington, thus adding important impetus to the possibility for such talks, just as President de Gaulle did earlier in the game.

It is also good that United Nations Secretary General Thant, once the world figure most likely to be brushed aside by ited States policy, has now been briefed and consulted by our highest authority, and seems to find himself very busy on the fringe of management about times and places for the first negotia-

Once President Johnson announced his ullback of our bombing of North Vietnam, and reinforced that peace gesture iramatically with his own announcement that he would not be a candidate for eelection, there has been considerable revelation of the possible subtleties of peace-making in Vietnam.

There were in existence, it has been evealed, all kinds of intricate timetables for a number of gradual signals of deescalation to be exchanged back and forth, each answering of each signal with an appropriate response supposedly not only moving talks forward, but building the atmosphere of mutual trust in which he first talks could take place.

Now everybody seems to be straining to detect somebody's signal to somebody in almost everything that happens. No one in the public realm knows anything for sure, any more than we know whether President Johnson had good reason to think Hanoi might respond positively three days later when he made the speech opening this round of history for the war in Vietnam. But just about everybody, including a good many who once may have been insatiable hawks, is hoping that the delicate by-play continues. Everybody has trouble enough at home. The fact that everybody has trouble enough at home is not, to be sure, any valid reason for chickening out of the war in Vietnam. No matter what our pain or preoccupation at home, we should not get out of Vietnam without honor, without fairness to those who have merged cause with us there, without trying to create some atmosphere of both political and economic stability for the whole region. It has always had to be that any peaceful solution to the war in Vietnam had to come by negotiation, rather than by victory, and that the peaceful solution, when it came, would have to include a stability not dependen upon the continued presence of American military force. The big good hope is that we may be near the beginning of negotiating about negotiating on such a basis and toward such an end.

Even Gold Got Healthier When the gold crisis was at its height and none of us laymen could even begin to understand its complicated technicalities, it was a relief to find an ocnational analyst who would say, in language anybody might pretend to understand, that the real location of the crisis was not in the technicalities of the gold market, but in the moral, spiritual, political health of the country

But if it might be pleasant to hear some relatively simple analysis like this, less of her personal safety.

Then came the week of the great re versal in the standards and directions of the country of the dollar. Somehow, leadership succeeded in restoring confidence in itself. Somehow, it seemed there might be an end to the national sickness of the war in Vietnam. And by the end of the week the forces that had Jonce seemed at liberty to pounce on the gold position weakness of the country were finding themselves thrown back on their own plot and forced to run for

Once again, there was an exper opinion which got away from the usual expertise. It said that the country's position on gold had improved more than it was likely to have improved as a result of any of the technical things done directly about the gold crisis. An improved national general health had begun to provide an immunity to the infection carried by the gold bug.

The Forgotten People

Anyone who watched the TV coverag of the grim weekend's riots, and mil lions of Americans did, could hardly avoid astonishment at the close-up plo tures of looters calmly walking out of stores laden with stolen goods while po licemen looked the other way.

This was only part of the astonish ment. Looking at ravaged Chicago or burning Washington, there could only 1 a sense of incredulity that this was hap pening in America. Not merely incredu y that in the emotional tinderbox spark could cause such an explosio but also that society should appear to be so helpless to restrain the senseless ness, the sheer madness of the explo

And it is hard to put down the thought that this helplessness was more apparent than real.

Certainly it is clear that what hap pened in the end was only remotely connected with grief and outrage over the murder of Martin Luther King. It is equally clear that those who participated in it were not even remotely repesentative of the vast majority of the Negro people; the burning, the pillage, and killing were the work of those with little regard for Dr. King and with little thought of making a civil rights protest. were looters and vandals, pure and simple.

What is becoming increasingly clear as the reports come in, is that in many places the looters and vandals were, a least in the beginning, given license to do what they did. Policemen were instructed to ignore those who smashed and helped themselves amid the wreckage; some of them said quite frankly that often they were reduced to directcalled in were in many instances used only to cordon off an area, protecting the surrounding neighborhoods but no the people or property within.

The reasoning behind these orders may be understandable, and we have some sympathy for those in authority who issued them. They were, indeed caught in a terrible dilemma between maintaining order and the spectacle, in so doing, of police or soldiers being rough with Negroes, with all that might entail. It is not an easy dilemma for good men to resolve. But the consequence of what was or ered was, in such places as Chicago and the nation's capital, to let a lootin riot turn into a disaster. And the rea sufferers were the decent, honorable aw-abiding Negroes. The dead have not yet been accurate-counted, but most of the score or nore were Negroes. The property damage cannot yet be assessed, but of its indreds of millions all was in Negro neighborhoods. In Washington alone the umber of the homeless, burned out by the vandals, runs into the thousandsll Negroes.

Nor is this the end of the matter. I he gutted areas the residents and the opkeepers will face new difficulties in ebuilding and restoring their lives because of what was allowed to happen this past weekend. Insurance premiums and interest rates will, understandably soar; in some cases they may be unobtainable except through government relief programs.

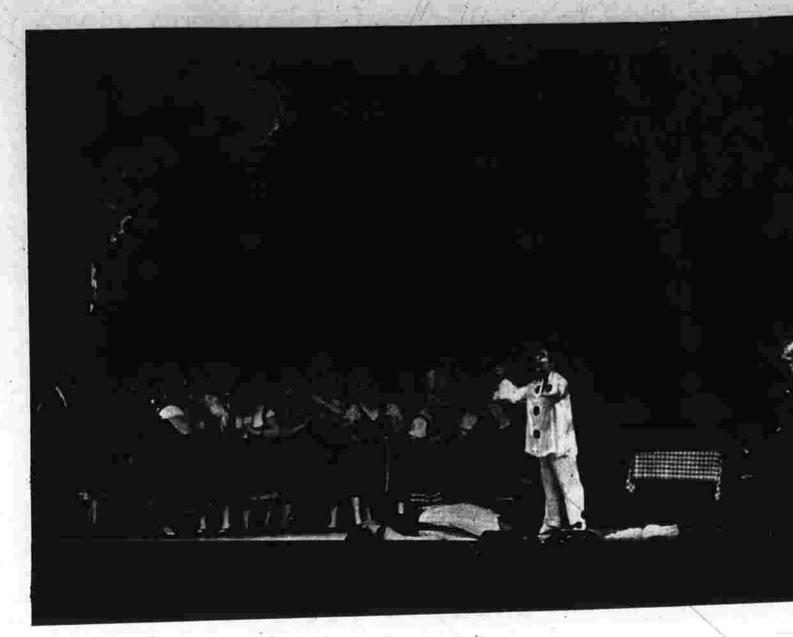

Add to all this the damage done to men's spirits by such a manmade holocaust. The white population watched all this in shock and horror; few of them watching were in personal danger. The Negro people had to live through it in terror, fearful of setting forth upon the street and equally fearful of cowering in homes that might be -- and sometimes were —burned down over their

It seems to us no accident that the places where the most trouble might have been expected --Watts, for example, or Harlem-escaped with the least. In part this may be due to the fact that they have been through it before, and know what it costs. But in part it was due to the fact that in these places the authorities, forewarned, were forehanded. And not just with force, either Mayor Lindsay in New York coupled police action with energetic efforts by nimself and Negro leaders to head off trouble before it got to the explosion

So if nothing else the grim weekend has let us see the other side of the dilemma. For too many and for too long the phrase "law and order" has been under a cloud, as if measures to preserve it were somehow merely acts of oppression aimed against the Negro people to put down their protests against their place in society.

What this disaster ought to remind us, hopefully, is that when law and order are abdicated to hoodlums it is all society that suffers, and that those who suffer most grievously are the forgotten Negro people. WALL STREET JOURNAL

These same regulars started out lukewarm about John F. Kennedy in 1960. throughout Pennsylvania labor. When Humphrey faced a sea of Humphrey-for-President posters at the state labor convention, there was not one Kennedy button to be seen. Chatting with union functionaries that evening, we heard not one kind word about Bobby, What makes this particularly important is that Pennsylvania's atrophied Democratic party, here as in other key industrial states, has just about ceded its functions to organized labor.

Although labor has become an increasingly conservative force in politics, Kennedy's left-ofcenter stands on Vietnam and the Negro question do not seem a principal source of his unpopularity.

Rather, both the union and party stalwarts oppose Kennedy mainly because they feel they cannot trust him though they can trust Humphrey. When Kennedy switched direction on March 16 and opposed Presi dent Johnson, he demonstrated to the regulars that he was undependable and changeable qualities they do not value highly in a politician.
