France Withdraws Millions

PARIS (AP)—France is withdrawing $745 million today from the International Monetary Fund following a slump in its gold and foreign currency reserves due to the strike wave that has paralyzed the country since mid-May.

French reserves had dropped $28.6 million to $3,700,000 on May 31, the Finance Ministry said. Union leaders went to their striking members seeking to get the trains and Paris buses and subway moving again.

The Banque de France resumed operations after being closed two weeks. Hundreds of small and medium-sized factories reopened across the country, signaling a partial break in the paralyzing general strike.

Millions of Parisians flooded back into the city after spending the three-day Pentecost week-end in the country. Monster traffic jammed the city's main thoroughfares.

PARIS—The two main political forces in France, President Charles De Gaulle and the Communist Party, are now trying to extricate themselves from a dangerous game of double bluff which threatened the country with civil war.

In the course of the past week, the President and the Communists were driven swiftly by forces beyond their control from the brink of a political compromise to a position of open combat.

But an "accident," as French officials put it, could still lead to violence. The new forces which created the crisis, inspired from the far left of the student revolt but finding some echo of sympathy over a wide

Hebron $924,000 Budget Set; Mill Rate at 57

Hebron voters accepted the recommended 1968-69 budget totaling $924,004 last night at the annual meeting of the town following several parliamentary maneuvers. The Board of Finance, in a brief meeting following the town meeting, voted to set the mill rate for next year at 57 mills, a 10-mill hike. Board of Finance chairman A. Harry Wirth made the original motion recommending a $919,914 budget for general government, $262,060 for the Hebron Board of Education and $200,230 for the Regional School District.

Other board members rose and told the meeting that as a result of the budget, these items would be cut from the education operational budget. The Board of Finance also authorized to borrow funds temporarily in anticipation of the receipt of the proceeds of the bonds. An appropriation of $4,700 was approved to be transferred from the Board of Education to the Board of Education deficit for the current operating year. Mrs. Katharina Sibun was re-elected to the Rham Board of Education for the term ending July 1, 1971. Mrs. Sibun was elected in April to fill the vacancy left by Robert Price's resignation. The Board of Selectmen was authorized to enter into an agreement with the Amston Lake Fire Company to lease the Amston Lake firehouse. The Board of Selectmen was authorized to purchase the tank truck and motor vehicle owned by the Amston Lake Fire Company for $10,000 per year and the lease would run for an undetermined period of time, until the town wished to re-locate the fire fighting equipment in the Amston area. Then the firehouse would revert to the fire company which was a separate corporation from the Amston Fire Department. The Board of Selectmen was authorized to enter into such legal agreements as may be necessary to exchange a parcel of land located on Rt. 85 for the construction of the new north and south roads. The Planning and Zoning Commission pointed out prior to the vote that by law bringing a request before the commission and that Perham had not supplied any further information so that the commission could make a recommendation.

Vocal, Written Opposition Expressed to Zone Changes

There was a standing room only crowd last night in the hearing room of the Municipal Building where more than 100 citizens came to voice arguments against zone change applications coming before the Town Planning Commission. It was a public hearing, and the public was very much interested, submitting petitions of 16, 30 and 81 names, respectively, against three items on the docket. The application filed by Alexander Jarvis was to change from Business Zone II to Business Zone III two parcels of land amounting to 122,000 sq. ft. fronting on Center St., in the Roosevelt Alexander St. area. Representing the applicant, Atty. John Labelle charged that present zoning regulations are not clear as to certain business uses defined as appropriate in Business Zones II and III. Labelle said that by designating retail sales, excepting liquor, are permitted under Business I, that the regulations are so strict that department stores aren't permitted until a property is zoned Business I.

Snosed under by a bundle of blueprints, architect's rendering, photographs and plans, members of the Town Planning Commission last night unanimously voted to hold an extraordinary public hearing in July. Already 11 items have been set down for a July hearing. Public hearings for July are now to be held on July 1 and 30, with the regular executive session to be held on July 15. The commission also voted to move the starting time up to 7:30 rather than the present 8 p.m.

You Should Know...

Joseph H. Brooks

A quick glance at clean cut, sharply dressed, Joseph H. Brooks gives little hint that he might be Manchester's newest and youngest police detective.

At 27, already with four years of law enforcement experience, Brooks, with his crew cut, college athlete look is far from the hard-nosed, square-jawed stereotype portrait of an investigator, firmly implanted in the minds of the public by television and Mickey Spillane thrillers. In fact, to look at him one might expect to find Joe a busy engineer behind a blueprint cluttered desk or playing first base for Harvard in the traditional Yale encounter.

Perhaps it's this look of non-violent dedication that has allowed him to become a success at this ripe old age.

Brooks was born in Hartford in the shadow of Koney Park where he spent many of his boyhood days before moving to East Hartford to finish his elementary schooling.

He attended East Hartford High School for two years and found a promising future in the fine art of football as a defensive linebacker, ready to enjoy his two senior seasons in the sport when the family moved to rival Manchester.

The young athlete worked hard during pre-season training ready to meet the test he would be subjected to by his former teammates, but that test never came. In the first five minutes of the first game he suffered an ankle injury that sidelined him for the rest of his scholastic career.

Brooks was an average student, studying homework, taking math, and getting along all right in English. Sports were his main love and interest, particularly horses.

Ever since he was nine years old, working catch-as-catch-can at the Koney Park stables, Brooks has been infected with the equestrian bug. Someday he hopes to have a small spread with about 25 head of registered stock.

In the fall of 1958, a recent high school grad, Brooks put aside his love for horses to serve his country and enlisted in the Marines. Although he wanted to see action overseas he made the mistake of putting down on his application that he had held a high school typing and wound up as a clerk typist for his four-year hitch, which took him from Parris Island, S. C. to Camp Lejeune, N. C. and finally Quantico, Va.

It was a friend that got him interested in an interim job as a private detective in West Hartford where he handled minor assignments, before applying for a slot on the Manchester Police Department in response to a newspaper ad. "I thought it would be a pretty good career," Brooks said, "and the pay was more than I had been getting."

He passed the test and received his appointment in January of 1964, diving into his new job with enthusiasm. Aside from the change in working hours, Brooks' biggest difficulty in adjusting to the new life was one that faces nearly all law enforcement officers—emotional impact. The stark realization after personal experience and contact that there are real "hard core" criminals in this world and this town and at the same time there are those who just can't seem to get a good break.

As do many people, Brooks feels that there is something in society that just fails the type of youth who doesn't have a proper home—something that can't be made up through a welfare program or a jail sentence. The police business brings mixed emotions.

"To us," relates Joe, "an oxygen call is a routine thing, but not to the person on the other end of the line. It has given me great personal pleasure to have aided in saving a number of lives in this manner."

Brooks recalled a number of instances that helped develop his solid dedication to the job as a rookie patrolman. One was his alertness in capturing two youths who moments before had beaten an old man with an ax handle, robbing him of a nickel.

These were the things that helped him decide to apply for one of two open detective vacancies last November and which gave him the instinct and determination to capture one of those slots.

In June of 1966, Brooks took

Camp Counselors Now Number 28

Camp Kennedy Director Harry F. Smith has announced the appointments of six more volunteer counselors, five from Manchester and one from Ellington, bringing to 28 the number of volunteers accepted to date.

The five from Manchester are Julie Cameron, Joanne LaVie, Ellen-Marie Healy, Judy Whittle and David Levine. The one from Ellington is Susan Chase.

Application for campers are due back by Friday, Smith announced.

He said that openings still exist for volunteer nurses and for volunteer counselors and that applications may be obtained at the East Side Rec. School St.

Smith announced that Miss Patricia Loftus of 194 Greenwood Dr. will return for her fourth year as director of arts and crafts.

Camp Kennedy will open July 1 and will close Aug. 9. It will operate for three seasons of two weeks each. The camp will be closed July 4 and 5.

another big step and marched down the aisle with the former Donna Wightman of Manchester, a graduate beautician. "At first she was apprehensive of the dangers involved in the job," said Joe, "but now we both adjusted to everything."

He enjoys his work for many reasons, among the top are the opportunity to work outdoors, since he enjoys sports and camping and perhaps more important the opportunity to think and reason for himself, one of the most important qualities in a good detective.

In addition he must be able to deal on equal terms with people from all walks of life.

The challenge of this career has warranted that as an officer in the department spend a great deal of time adding to their education, a practice Brooks has followed since the day when he and a buddy would quiz each other on vocabulary cards.

Currently Brooks is attending courses at the Arnold Marfall law enforcement school in New Haven, and was the recent recipient of a Manchester Scholarship Foundation stipend to continue his course toward an associate in science degree at Manchester Community College.

Active in community affairs, Brooks is a member of both the local Elks Club and Masonic Lodge 72.

During his spare time, when he has some, he likes to keep in shape by riding, water skiing and swimming. He also holds a yellow belt in Japanese karate.

Scorpion Search Hulk off Cape Henry Likely to be U-Boat

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A hulk found off Cape Henry by divers hunting for the missing submarine Scorpion may be the German submarine U-564, destroyed by U.S. warships April 30, 1945, seven days before the end of the war.

The submarine Pargo detected the hulk last Friday 70 miles east-northeast of Cape Henry. Divers descended 180 feet to the ocean floor from the submarine IX-C submarine type to which rescue ship Sunbird. They reported the hulk was about 200 feet long.

Schools Urged to Adapt to Gifted Child

By BETTE QUADALE

Programs to provide special educational opportunities for gifted and creatively talented children are presently in the planning stages in Tolland, Ellington and South Windsor. All three programs would be geared to the elementary level.

Other areas towns are also considering some type of specialized program for these youngsters. Hebron is "in the talking stage", and Coventry is working through Project ASK, according to Dr. William G. Vassar, director of the State Department of Education Bureau of Pupil Personnel and Special Educational Services.

Dr. Vassar stressed the need for an "identifiable need" in the teaching techniques for gifted or talented children. "Ability grouping is neither good nor bad in itself," he stated.

The grouping concept depends on what goes on in the classroom, the curriculum for the gifted and talented children must be different from what is taught in the ordinary classroom," according to the educator.

Meeting the Needs "The needs of these students cannot be met by generalizing curricula," he stated. "Different teaching materials and methods are necessary to prevent many of these children from becoming bored, from becoming the troublemaker of the class, or from dropping out of school."

Dr. Vassar explained the unique legislative program regarding gifted children which has broadened with former legislation to include not only the academically bright shown on IQ tests, but also the creatively bright youngster and brain "underachiever."

These students can be found in all areas of the state, including the rural areas and the city slums. The state has placed considerable emphasis on the creatively bright student, who is talented in one or more areas, according to the educator.

"This is the student that teachers sometimes think of as a problem. These students will question facts. They will not always be in agreement. They are divergent thinkers," according to Dr. Vassar.

"Teachers today must realize the necessity to step aside, and let these children proceed," he said. "Up to now we have not chosen to nurture creativity in our students."

"Brainstorming Sessions" The teachers of the gifted and creative children should re-evaluate their thinking and teaching methods.

"We must be ready to let the kids talk 90 per cent of the time and the teacher 10 per cent. Brainstorming sessions, and team teaching programs, should be adopted to encourage these students to proceed at their own rate," he stated.

Teaching techniques must be developed to deal with these students on a higher level than the average child, Dr. Vassar said.

Dr. Vassar proposed intensive teacher training be given to develop new teaching methods. "The entire staff of a school must be oriented and in favor of the program if it is to be successful," he said.

A primary difficulty, he noted, is the student who has attended a brainstorming session where he has dealt in a mature way with advanced concepts, who returns to his regular classes and to a teacher who tells him he has to make up a page of basic arithmetic examples that he missed while in the special classes.

Tolland

Dr. William Vassar at teachers' conference.

"We must not penalize the bright kids because they are in an accelerated program, we must not give them lower marks just because they are bright," Dr. Vassar stated.

Most of the expenses involved in the program are two-thirds reimbursable by the state, including personnel, special transportation, materials and according to the educator.

"I realize the budgetary problems experienced by the local school systems," Dr. Vassar stated. "We want quality programs, not window dressing, even if it means waiting an additional year."

The state legislation was written to give the flexibility of the programs down to the local school level. Different programs can be set up to help identify bright students. The town itself decides what type of program it wishes to develop, according to Dr. Vassar.

"It is our belief that the public school can do a fine job of meeting the educational needs of the bright child, provided the state provides adequate reimbursement," he said.

"The major emphasis of the program will be on the curriculum development, rather than on diagnosis to be successful," according to the educator.

LB Asks Russia For Help in Seeking Peace

GLASSBORO, N.J. (AP) — President Johnson is visiting the site of his year-long summit talks with Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, said today the road to peace in Vietnam will be slow and tough but it would be less rocky if the United States and Russia "are willing to travel part way together."

The President flew from Washington to his Paris jet landing at Pennsylvania-National Guard ramp at Philadelphia International Airport, where he climbed into a helicopter for the 30-minute ride to Glassboro.

The exercises were held outdoors for the crowd of about 2,000.

The President's helicopter landed on the athletic field near Johnson's decision to come to Glassboro had been rumored for some time, he emphasized on the program for New Jersey Gov. Richard Hughes.

The President said in the preliminary Vietnam peace talks in Paris the United States so far has "met with military setbacks" but he believes that "two great powers, having bridged the gulf that has separated them for a quarter of a century."

Johnson taking advantage of the search for peace in foreign policy advice, acknowledged that "peace isn't just around the corner. It's a long and painful setback" but he believes that "two great powers, having bridged the gulf that has separated them for a quarter of a century."

$21,000 Restored for Police

Coventry taxpayers last night rescinded earlier town meeting action, and in a 125-94 secret ballot vote gave $21,000 to the police department for the fiscal year 1968-69.

The special town meeting also appropriated $2,000 for a major sewerage system for the town, to be carried out by Great West Engineering of Manchester, in conjunction with Cheney Engineers of New Haven.

It was one of the liveliest town meetings in a long time, particularly in regard to the police budget portion of the session. In attendance, it drew by about 75 the attendance at the annual budget town meeting two weeks ago, it was at that meeting that $21,000 was cut from the police budget in a heated session, which generally concentrated on the Board of Education budget.

The rescission of the Board of Finance at the earlier town meeting was for just over $22,000 for the police department. But townspeople listened to Stephen Luzzini, assistant secretary of the police department and a plea to keep the police budget at the current level, then cut the $21,000 in a 78-71 secret ballot vote.

Other townspeople almost immediately saw to the drawing up of a petition calling for a special town meeting to restore the suit was last night's special meeting, returning the amount to the police department.

The final $22,000 will give the town police force the same allow for additional personnel, and raises for the full-time police officers who now receive $2 an hour.

After the selection of David C. Rapp as chief of police, it was quickly established that the vote on the police budget would be by secret ballot.

Several citizens rose in favor of the police budget, and the town meeting was adjourned at 10:30 p.m.

Robert Gantner, chairman of the Planning and Zoning Commission, said that the master plan was a step in the right direction, but that the town meeting should be held in joint meetings have discussed the advisability of undertaking such a project.

South Windsor

Council Gets Views On Elderly Housing

The Town Council last night heard representatives from Vernon and Windsor tell of their experiences in setting up a program for elderly housing.

Councilman Donald Gray has been working on plans for elderly housing in South Windsor, and the council is considering whether to take any action on the matter.

Other townspeople who spoke in favor of the appropriation were Thomas Wells, Hugo Thomas, Patric Van Dine and Arnold Carlson.

After the secret ballot was tallied, the vote was announced: 125-94.

The ordinance on the appropriation was explained by Selectman Donald Davis, who said that the town could never have full-time police protection for the town.

Several townspeople wanted to know the final cost of sewers to be installed at the industrial site, and it would probably be "in the millions."

Windsor's population over 65, 60 per cent lived in the town's homes and had great difficulty in maintaining their homes and found taxes a burden.

The Zoning Board of Appeals will hold a public hearing to night at 8 at the Community Hall on a request to divide land on the corner of Quarry Rd. and Rt. 44A into lots which would have a frontage below zoning requirements.

Old and new members of the Bolton Cooperative Nursery School will meet tonight at 8 in the Education Building of Bolton Congregational Church for election of officers and a tour of next year's facilities.

Butterfield Okays Sewage Plans

The town health officer, Dr. Robert K. Butterfield, has given his approval to the sewerage disposal system for the new elementary school.

In another letter from the state health department, the health codes proposed for adoption by the town, with $100 to be reimbursed.

Adoption of the codes, which is actually the state code "with teeth," as Dr. Butterfield explained, will be up to the town at a town meeting in the near future.

The state department of health, in its letter, urged the ordinance be passed by the town at a town meeting.

In related business, the selectmen read a letter from Mrs. Morgan which requested that the town agree with the town health officer that a sewage study committee should be set up.

'Immoral' Sidewalk Law Repealed by Town Board

An ordinance which was termed "discriminatory" by a member of the Board of Representatives was repealed last night by the board following a public hearing.

Representative Abner Brooks speaking on the ordinance to repeal an ordinance concerning sidewalks in the former city area, said the ordinance as it now stands is completely wrong.

Brooks said it is "immoral" to have a law which tells the people in one district they are different from people in another district.

Boston Newsmen Describes Terror

By ROBERT HEALY Boston Globe Political Editor (Copyright, 1968, Globe Newspaper Co.)

LOS ANGELES (AP)—In that narrow, darkened corridor, there was terror, profanity, tears, blood and the violence of a nation.

Sen. Robert Kennedy of New York had made his way down the same back corridor in the kitchen of the Ambassador Hotel just 15 minutes before. He was in a good mood. He had won California. And he came over to shake my hand.

There was this great man, towering over the small man and with all his strength it took him more than a minute to take that gun.

De-escalation Deadlock Unbroken; 7th Session Ends

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER AP Special Correspondent

PARIS (AP)—The United States and North Vietnam failed again today to break their deadlock over how to de-escalate the war in Vietnam.

U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman accused North Vietnam of having 40,000 troops in Laos, which he called an all-time high, and asked that North Vietnam live up to the agreement to neutralize Laos.

North Vietnamese Ambassador Xuan Thuy issued a long blast against "aggression" and then made this statement: "As for South Vietnam, so long as U.S. troops continue their war of aggression, the people of the North will naturally continue their resistance."

Where Shot Key Factor In Recovery

By ALTON BLAKESLEE AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Despite his grievous head wound, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy may have a fair chance of making a good recovery.

The key factor is exactly where fragments of bullet and bone went, and what damage they created, neurosurgeons explain.

If the fragments struck into the cerebellum, in the back part of the brain, the senator does have some kind of chance, one neurosurgeon says.

For one of the amazing aspects of the human brain is that significant amounts of the cerebellum can be removed, and the person still recovers. A bullet fragment could even be left there without further harm.

The medical bulletin issued after three hours of surgery indicates that it was this portion of the brain, the cerebellum, that was mainly affected.

The cerebellum controls and governs motor movements, of legs, arms and other muscles. It is a circular mass of brain tissue, about 3 inches long, and 2 1/2 inches in diameter.
