According to a statement rom the 52nd district publicity chairman, there had been some question regarding the intentions of Douglas M. Fellows of Hebron to seek re-election. Fellows was unsuccessful in his attempt for the seat two years ago. He was defeated by Democrat William O'Neil of East Hampton under the new re-apportionment system. The endorsement by the Hebron Town Committee would indicate that Fellows has decided against such a move. Hebron is the second town to endorse Paonessa. East Hampton Town Committee members endorsed Paonessa last month

The town committee chairmen from Columbia and Marlporough have indicated that they know of no other candidate o oppose Paonessa. Pasonessa served one trem in the legislature in the late 1950's from East Hampton under the old agrangement of town repre entation.

An Unhappy Certainty?

The harsh practical political fact eems to be that the assassination of Senator Kennedy has had the ironic ef fect of guaranteeing the nomination of Vice President Humphrey, whose candidacy and policies the dead Senator hoped to oppose.

There was not a very high chance of defeating Humphrey in any case, But now the release of Kennedy delegates, by the fact of his death, is said to make umphrey a routine choice at Chicago. One remembers, as one discusses such rognostication made with such certainy, that this is 1968, and that some other certainties have been upset this year already. There may be more surprises in store for the American people, the pollsters, the political bosses. But it may be, too, that we have run out of surprises. Suppose, then, there is this certainty for Vice President Humphrey as the nominee - a certainty which is hard and realistic even though, as has been pointed out, approximately two-thirds of the voters in every Democratic primary after New Hampshire voted against the leadership and policy of the adminisration in which Humphrey is Vice

One can feel, once this certainty is conceded, the pressure to elevate one's appraisal of Vice President Humphrey. If he is going to be a nominee for President, he must have some worthiness. He have got where he is without having some qualities measuring up high office. We owe it to urselves and to our faith and pride in our own processes and institutions to ssume a certain degree of stature in e prospective nominee. We cannot tear him down without, at the same time and to some extent, tearing ourselves and America down too. He is ours, he is a rospective major party candidate, so e must have something on the ball. He may be our next President; we must, herefore, preserve and protect our own eventual capacities to give him a decent espect, tender him a measure of support, in his efforts to deal with the vast purdens of that office. He has indeed risen through the American political process. How can anybody conclude that that process, which has worked so far, has suddenly turned especially spectacularly deficient?

Perhaps the answer to all, or the summary of, all these observations is that whatever he may be, the prospective nominee is precisely and exactly what we deserve to have before us as a choice for the White House.

How, when the American people and their political systems and institutions have tolerated the rise of any individual to the point where his next logical step is into the White House, can anyone suddenly contend that the American people and their processes really deserve omething better?

These are the conclusions to which elemental logic might lead us. There will be a condition, a feeling which will remain in spite of such logic. It will be a feeling that this threatens to be a national election in which the sters of the country are being disen franchised not by any power or regula tion which prevents them from entering he voting booth, but by the limitations of the choice that may confront them there. Furthermore, to shift back loward the practical, even the profes donal Democratic politicians who are now apparently assuring the nomination of this particular individual are obviously already beginning to-wish they had a candidate who seemed to have a higher chance of winning in November.

Even Tito Bows To Student Power

President Tito of Yugoslavia, surely not one of the least powerful rulers of our time, has, like President de Gaulle of France, responded to troubles started by students with a promise to achieve certain reforms or give up his claim to national leadership.

And even while President Tito thus concedes a measure of respectability and rightness to his particular student reolt, at Belgrade University, there was being formulated, at that University, by collaboration between administrators. ofessors, and organizations of the stuients themselves, a tough set of demands for President Tito to meet, quite apart from any eventual long range re-

These demands asked the immediate removal of riot police around the university buildings, and the immediate release of students arrested in clashes with the police, plus guarantees there would be no reprisals against them. Another demand was for the speedy publication of the report of a government commisslon on the violence at the university. together with punishment of the officials blamed by the students for prevoking the original troubles.

And the fourth demand at Belgrade is for guarantees that the press, radio and television will provide complete and objective reports of the student move-

In Belgrade, as in Paris, as in New York City, then, the display of student power has been so phenomenal as to bring high authority to admission and concession. And the nature of student demands - amnesty for their own acts is always the first thing they want ____ prosecution of the police the second objective" reporting of their own actions in the news media the third seems fairly constant from one "revolution" to another.

We sometimes wonder, witnessing all this suddenly materializing student power, before which the most traditional redoubts seem to tremble and fall, whether some of the leaders of these revolutions are themselves not dismayed by the unexpected ease of their triumph, the meekness of the official opposition, the striking humility of the "establishment". and the fact that they themselves are suddenly in possession of some of the responsibility they claimed to be seek ing. Suppose we elders did suddenly vield to the temptation to acknowledge our own bad job and turn the future directly over to student power, would not the students find this a frightening and dismaying predicament?

The eternal truth about generations is that the older has always been waiting for the younger to come along and take over and do a better job, and that all the younger has ever really done has been to grow older.

Boom Hits Home

One question we landlubbers may have asked ourselves quite often -do any of those fun loving characters up there in the big blue have any idea of what happens down below when they break the sound barrier -has now been given at least a partial answer.

There will be at least a few hundred airmen in the skies of the future who were on the ground at the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs on the day the sonic boom struck there.

It was an impressive sonic boom, as booms go, loosed by a F-105 Thunderchief which was flying a little low. It took more than 200 windows out of the Academy dormitories, gymnasium and dining hall. A few people were cut by flying glass, A few had their hats knocked off. Some of the less sophisticated had a moment in which they found

We are all reconciled to living in the world of the sonic boom. After all, it annot be much worse than the noise of earth bound traffic to which we are trying to accustom ourselves. And it will be just a little easier to take, now that we know the Air Force Academy has been on the receiving end of one.

He Had A Dream Sen. Robert F. Kennedy also had dream for his nation. And now he lies dead.

Now will come the tributes. Now will come forth the world leaders to express their grief to the fallen Sena tor's family.

Now will come the words of abhor rence at the violence bred of extremism wracking our nation and the world. Now will come the commission investi gations and new efforts to legislate against the tools of violence. Now, again, will come the cry from Winston A. Chevalier of 55 Oliver Rd. last night was elected chairman of the Permanent Memorial Day Committee, He succeeds Wesley Bulla. The meeting was at the Municipal Building.

Chevalier is past commandant of the Frank J. Mansfield Marine Corps League. Other officers elected are Theodore Fairbanks, representing the Citizens Committee, vice hairman; Walter Von Hone of the DAV, secretary; Mrs. Victor Swanson of the DUV, treasurer; and Mrs. Albert Schulze of the DAR, assistant treasurer. Mrs. Schulze was named chairman for the Memorial Day essay contest next year.

The committee reported it will return to the town $65, the unused portion of the $1,000 the town budgets for the Memorial Day exercises. The six bands hat participated last month will each receive $75. A motion was defeated that would have given the Manchester High School Band an additional $15 for its parts in the service at Cente The next meeting of the com-

J.S. Penitentiary threw out their guns and ammunition and released 21 hostages today after an agreement with prison officials on a list of nine grievaances. The inmates dropped their guns from a second story room where they had held the prison employes about 28 hours while demanding that their complaints be published in The Atlanta Journal. The surrender came shortly after the first edition of the newspaper was delivered to the prison, carrying a complete list of nine grievances and response from prison officials, Myrl (Alexander, director of the U.S. Bureau of Prisons, had been negotiating with the prisoners since before dawn. Also participating were Journal reporter William B. Williams and Warden Olin G.
