Czech Content Depicted in Russian Press

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet press, carrying the first pictures from Czechoslovakia since the invasion, today showed Soviet soldiers happily chatting with Czechoslovak citizens. The Kremlin has been taking precautions, including jamming of radio broadcasts from the West, to insure that the people here get only the Soviet version of events in Czechoslovakia. It says that the situation is normal and the foreign troops are welcome. The favorite in today's papers features two young Czechoslovak farmers engaged in what looked like a friendly talk with unarmed Soviet infantrymen. True, the labor union newspaper, ran a picture entitled "Fragrant in these days," which was a street scene with no trace of military activity. Only three of the lesser papers ran a picture of a Prague street with some tanks in the background. Citizens were passing in front of them without paying any apparent attention. Soviet television since the invasion has shown nothing on Czechoslovakia.

Thieves Ransack Ice Cream Van

Chocolate, vanilla, strawberry, coffee and tutti-frutti; they tried them all! Police received a report yesterday that a large ice cream truck, parked on the east side of the Seaside Foods Division of the National Dairy Products Corp. building at 113 Summit St., was ransacked the night before. The thieves forced their way into the truck's refrigeration compartment and emptied it of its multi-flavored contents, sampling some and scattering the rest along the ground and through the wooded area to the east side of the building. Seaside officials said that very little ice cream was actually consumed or removed from the premises.

Pass State Bar Examinations

Five men with Manchester area ties who passed the Connecticut State Bar Examination in 1968. They are Kenneth R. Tedford, John J. Reid, Joseph Lesmer, Warren Humphreys and Martin B. Burke. Tedford is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tedford of 23 Campbell Rd. A lifelong Manchester resident, he graduated from Manchester High School in the class of 1961 and attended Upper Iowa University, where he received a bachelor of arts degree in history in 1965. At Upper Iowa, he was active in student government, served as an assistant in the history department and as a dormitory counselor. He then attended the University of Connecticut Law School where he was an honor student and was awarded his LL.D. last June. Tedford married the former Donna Sullivan of Willimantic July 20 and the couple, having just returned from their honeymoon, are now settling in Willimantic. He plans to go into private practice, but no definite arrangements have been decided upon as yet. Reid, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Reid of 127 Parker St. graduated from Manchester High School in 1961 where he was active in clubs, student affairs and sports. In 1965 he graduated from Clark University in Worcester, Mass., with honors and an A.B. degree in economics. While at Clark, Reid was president of Lambda Chi Alpha social fraternity, president of the Student Center Board, president of the Intrafraternity Council and a Student Council representative. He then attended the Boston College School of Law on a full Presidential Scholarship where he graduated in June in the top 15 per cent of his class. He was chosen as Uniformed Commercial Code editor of the quarterly publication "The Boston College Industrial and Commercial Law Review," that provides 1,000 pages of comprehensive law material each year. McGovern Assails Humphrey Bastions

(Continued from Page One) bombing of North Vietnam, withdrawal of opposing forces from the South, and pressure on the Saigon government to "begin a political reconciliation" with the communist National Liberation Front. Meanwhile, the convention's Rules Committee voted to scrap the unit rule, substituting a "freedom of conscience" proposal to permit all delegates to vote as they want. Texas, who fought the return with vows to walk out or to try to launch a drive for President Johnson's renomination, were expected to try to reverse the action on the convention floor. As a part of a ploy to leave the unit rule under which the Texan delegation was pledged to Gov. John Connally as a favorite son, national committeeman Frank C. Erwin said that if a "growing sentiment" for a move to renominate Johnson. This added up to a surprising statement not only to the delegates from other states but those abroad a Texas special train making its way toward Chicago. State Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin, top official aboard the train expressed surprise. He said there had been no discussion of such a move. While Connally said there was sentiment within the Texas delegation to put up Johnson's name, he said it wasn't linked to the unit rule decision. National Chairman John M. Bailey said he has no definite word but he does not expect Johnson to appear at the convention until after the presidential and vice presidential nominations have been made. He said he doesn't expect Johnson on Tuesday, the president's 60th birthday. Another star figure in the Democratic contest, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., was said by an aide to have no plans to attend the convention. Kennedy aides said former Gov. Michael V. DeSalle of Ohio had never discussed with the senator his announced plan to put Kennedy's name in nomination before the convention. McGovern said he is confident Kennedy will subscribe to the dovish Vietnam plank he and McCarthy endorsed. For himself the South Dakota Senator said he thinks he has 125 votes toward the nomination and hopes to draw on uncommitted persons for another 75. He said that he believes this will help keep Humphrey from a first ballot victory. "I believe my candidacy has forestalled that," he said. He said he wasn't claiming votes from New York, California, New Jersey, Illinois and other large states, but expected to get some of them when uncommitted delegates take a stand. Jesse M. Unruh, California delegate chairman, included McGovern in an invitation also extended to Humphrey and McCarthy to appear before the group. An Associated Press poll based on primary results, public commitments and individual delegate checks gave Humphrey 649 of the needed 1,182 votes. McGovern was credited with 478 and McCarthy 85.

Beseiged GIs Get Help from Bombers

(Continued from Page One) Around Saigon, South Vietnamese infantrymen reported killing at least 20 enemy soldiers in two separate clashes 30 miles northeast and southeast of the capital. Government losses were put at eight killed and 60 wounded. Enemy troops also launched a mortar and ground attack against a government district headquarters and a U.S. compound in the provincial capital of Gia Nghia, about 30 miles south of Duc Lap. The attack was repulsed after two hours of fighting. Two Americans were reported wounded and South Vietnamese casualties were termed light. The enemy also attacked a government outpost in the same province. Military spokesmen said the attackers were driven back. Government casualties were put at two dead, four wounded. In political developments, South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu said in Can Tho Friday he does not believe that U.S. presidential candidates who advocate American withdrawal from Vietnam will be elected. "I don't think the American people will vote for those people," he said. Thieu also defended the government's jailing of runnerup presidential candidate Truong Dinh Dm for advocating negotiations with the National Liberation Front. Dm's jailing has been criticized in the United States. "Since we are a constitutional government which respects law and justice, we have to make the difference between men who respect it and men who don't," he said.

Bulletin

BACHS MCGOVERN Senator Edw. B. McGovern of Connecticut today announced his formal endorsement of Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota for President, and said he would act as floor manager for the McGovern forces at the Democratic National Convention, a role similar to that he filled for the late John F. Kennedy in Los Angeles in 1960.

Duffey Hopes To Pick up State Votes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The Rev. Joseph Duffey, head of the McCarthy effort in Connecticut, heads back to Chicago today still hopeful of picking up a few more delegates at the Democratic National Convention. "I do believe that many of the 25 uncommitted Connecticut delegates are generally uncommitted," said Duffey in an interview. "And the events of the last week will make it easier for them to support McCarthy."

Asked what "events," Duffey mentioned the Gallup poll showing greater popular support for Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy for President than for Vice President Hubert Humphrey, the endorsement of McCarthy by Iowa Gov. Richard Hughes and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's call for a halt to the bombing of North Vietnam.

While some observers seem to think Russia's invasion of Czechoslovakia has hurt McCarthy's cause, Duffey said, "I don't think its impact ultimately will hurt McCarthy."

"The Czech crisis reminds us that we have deeply overcommitted ourselves in Vietnam," said Duffey. Connecticut's 44-member delegation to the Democratic convention, which begins Monday, consists of nine McCarthy delegates and 35 party loyalists who are technically uncommitted but presumed favorable to Humphrey. The uncommitted portion of the 35 is to protect the state chairman, John M. Bailey, who must be officially neutral in his capacity as national chairman.

The Connecticut delegation is scheduled to caucus Monday in Chicago and it is possible that McGovern may shed the cloak of "uncommitted" at that time. Duffey was asked whether he would be able to support Humphrey as the Democratic nominee for President, and he said: "I would like to be able to support him—but I am discouraged at the moment on the basis of his recent public statements."

The Connecticut McGovernites' fight before the convention's Credentials Committee for four more delegates is apparently over, he said. The Credentials Committee rejected the four McGovern challenge, and "I do not anticipate the challenge will be taken to the floor of the convention," said Duffey. "If we can receive some indications that the Credentials Committee will make recommendations of reforms in the process of selecting delegates."

But the McGovern group contended that they had 13 delegates coming to them, instead of the nine allowed by Bailey and other leaders of the Democratic state organization.

Police Arrests

Lloyd E. Carter, 17, of Vernon was served a 15th Circuit Court warrant early this morning charging him with breaking and entering with criminal intent and larceny of less than $500. Police said Carter was allegedly the companion of John Fowler, 29, no certain address, who received a nine-month jail sentence Thursday, in taking a television set from the Sherman Cabins, 160 Tolland Tpk., July 18. Fowler and another person tore a screen off a cabin to gain entrance, loaded the set into a car and drove to Hartford where it was sold for about $20. Fowler pleaded guilty to the charge on a prior date and was sentenced on that incident and another involving the theft of a tape recorder from a Center St. apartment. Carter is being held in lieu of bond for arraignment in Manchester Monday. Gary J. Watkins, 36 Village St., was picked up for being absent without leave from the United States Navy, and turned over to the New London Shore Patrol. James Richardson, 25, of East Hartford was charged with failure to obey the stop sign at Main and Hilliard St. at 1:35 a.m. today. He will appear in court Sept. 9. Allan R. Hasey, 19, of 59 Homestead St. was charged with failure to obey no passing marking on S. Main St. at 8:45 p.m. yesterday. He will appear Sept. 9.

There were no publicly dissenting votes after Johnson and top aides briefed 10 top congressional leaders of both parties Friday. American tourists and other foreign visitors continued to leave Czechoslovakia without incident. Some Czechoslovaks with valid exit papers also were getting out. The U.S. Embassy advised Americans with cars to drive out on their own. It arranged for more special trains to carry others to Austria. Czechoslovak tourists who were abroad when the Warsaw Pact troops invaded now face the problem of whether to go home or not. Meanwhile, many are short of money and beset by fierce rumors about what is happening at home. In one green, damp meadow beside the Danube in Vienna, 250 Czechoslovaks are sleeping in their camping tents or in their cars, facing the decision. For some, with wives and children at home, there is no choice. But Prof. Stanislav Jilek declared: "We are not going back. Under these conditions, never."

Troops Arrive In Chicago For Security

CHICAGO (AP) — Some 250 Army support and supply men have arrived in the Chicago area as an advance contingent of federal troops poised for possible movement into the city during the Democratic National Convention. The advance troops arrived Friday, most of them from Ft. Riley, Kan. They are to make preparations for 7,000 soldiers at Ft. Hood, Tex., who are on standby to be airlifted to Chicago if major disturbances erupt during next week's convention. Illinois National Guardsmen also began reporting to armories throughout the city. The 8,500-man contingent, activated by Gov. Samuel H. Shapiro at the request of Mayor Richard T. Daley, commanding the guard, said: "We hope for a real boring week." He added that his men would go into the streets armed and in full field gear. If ordered deployed, and would operate with restraint and under strict guidelines on when to use force. At midnight Friday, Chicago's 11,000 policemen went on 15-hour work shifts and all days off were canceled for the duration of the convention. At the same time, Secret Service agents began a systematic search today of the International Amphitheatre, the convention site, seeking out anyone in hiding or any possible hidden explosives. As many as 2,000 Secret Service and FBI agents will be on duty in the city during the convention. A group planning demonstrations during convention week received a setback Friday. A federal court dismissed a suit by the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam seeking an order to prevent officials from interfering with their activities. The committee planned to march to the amphitheatre Wednesday night, the scheduled day for the nomination of the presidential candidate.

Three Newcomers Learn the Ways of the Stars

By ALKENE MACMINN The Los Angeles Times

SAN FRANCISCO — Three young television "stars" descended on this golden gated city the other week, charged up and ready to tell the world about themselves and their new fall series. They left 24 hours later with a few noticeable battle scars, but more importantly with a deeper understanding and appreciation of what it takes and means to be a "star."

Peggy Lipton, Clarence Williams III and Michael Cole are the three young headliners of Aaron Spelling's new "Mod Squad" series coming up in September on ABC. In the curious billing of television, the credits of "Mod Squad" will list Peggy, Clarence and Michael as "stars." Nevertheless, they are relatively unknown as far as the public is concerned.

So with the premiere of "Mod Squad" just two months away, the building process begins, the carefully planned, carefully charted course whereby Michael, Clarence and Peggy will be introduced to the public and the press to generate interest in them and the program.

By custom, young "stars" are taken on public appearance tours, an admitted ordeal for the neophyte, the P.A. tour is even tougher, harder, because they're trying to sell an unknown quantity.

Clarence, Peggy and Michael had their initial go at their ritual here, first stop on a quick two-day tour that also took them to Chicago. Public appearance tours are traditionally frantic, and this one was no exception.

To be successful, every minute must count. Every answer must be right. Every interview must be fresh, interesting and vital to hopefully entice the columnist to pen kind words.

The three Mod Squaders, as have hundreds of young newcomers before them, found their baptism into the world of P.A. tours trying, frustrating and not too frequently rewarding. To begin with, they were easily sur-prized to discover that the out-of-town press—the reporters away from the Hollywood scene—knew nothing of their series, much less of them.

"You get so involved in your series that that's all you talk about. Then all of a sudden you meet two lovely ladies (reporters) who don't know anything about it. They don't even know the name of the studio," Peggy commented at one point.

Understandably, it was a rude awakening. But as the public relations expert who accompanied them pointed out, "That's why we're here—to tell 'em."

The group was encouraged after the first interview with a top TV columnist. It had gone well, they felt, and the three had capably handled the questions, especially those concerning violence on television (a subject that was to come up frequently in the two days).

Next on the schedule was an appearance on the local ABC station's morning movie. The questions started out simply: "When does your series go on the air?" (Sept. 24 on ABC.) "What does 'Mod Squad' really mean?" (Three teen-agers work undercover for the police.) "Peggy, what is your background...are you an actress?" (I've done some TV.) "Clarence, you have an interesting background." (That's right.)

Then came a question which "turned on" the two young men: "What's going on with young people today?" Michael, somewhat riled up, sounded off and ended with, "I don't think there needs to be a steel girder between the two generations. Let me stay over here and do what I want to do. And then I'll respect what you do."

Clarence had just begun to speak out, but was cut off by a commercial, his complete thought left unsaid. Later, came the instructions from the P.R. chaperone, "Don't let them get you off on things that take long answers. Remember, they always have the last word because it's their show."

Thus, the first lesson of the tour had been learned: On short interviews, don't get into something you can't finish. Smile and say you'd like to discuss that, but there isn't time...and get on to another question.

The luncheon session that followed the morning TV appearance must be written of as pretty much of a loss. It was a group interview with the San Francisco suburban press. But it was booked into a noisy res-

Women, Too, on TV Rise

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Network television's new season holds out little promise as a period of stimulating innovation in broadcast entertainment, but it may go down in the books as a time when two minority groups—television minorities, anyway—receive some unusual if overdue attention.

The new interest in casting Negro performers as regular and temporary members of series casts has been widely publicized. Negroes will star, co-star and be featured cast members in at least one-quarter of next season's shows, not even counting the 13 variety programs and all the movie reruns. Most dramatic series are planning episodes built around Negro guest stars, whether the programs are Westerns or situation comedies.

Less publicized but certainly new is the emergence of women as stars in a medium which over the years has used girls primarily to brighten up the screens, add mild love interest to stale plots and provide an excuse for publicity pictures of a type believed to be favored by magazine and newspaper picture editors.

In the forthcoming season, two women will have their own variety hours—Carol Burnett and Phyllis Diller, both funny but neither the femme fatale type.

Doris Day and Dianna Carroll, two pleasant show-business and box-office names, will be starring in new situation comedies. They illustrate TV's new maturity kick since both will be playing widows with children. Lucille Ball, who after 18 years has got to be television's first lady, will also be around as usual, this time frankly over 30 because her own two teen-agers, Lucie and Deal Arna, will co-star as her kids.

Over the seasons, older women—that means anything over 25 in TV land—have been demonstrating their staying power while the pretty young things have been as dispensable as facial tissues.

Uncounted numbers of girls with names like Laurie, Lynn and Linda have come—and gone—from our screens. One comedy series, specializing in pretty girls, has had almost total overhauls of casting twice—and most of the show's fans never even realized it.

Yet Barbara Stanwyck, 61 and white-haired, just keeps rolling along that "Big Valley." It was originally intended to have Aunt Bea of "The Andy Griffith Show" return only occasionally to the new "Mayberry R.F.D." but the fan mail piled up so alarmingly that Frances Bavier, a warm, motherly type, will just transfer from Sheriff Andy's house and continue on, housekeeper as usual, for Ken Berry, star of the new sequel to the old favorite.

Irene Ryan, "Beverly Hillsbillies" Grammy, is hardly a contemporary sex symbol, but she just received a raise and a share of the show's residuals under a new contract. Eve Arden and Kaye Ballard playing "Mothers-in-law" with grown children are returning for a second season in a tough time spot that had spelled disaster for a succession of shows before that.

There are assorted reasons for television's continuing girl problem. One theory is that the audience likes its adventurous heroes to be fancy free, so the woman can dream and the man can identify. Besides a steady girl friend is a nuisance in stories where the emphasis is on action.

Women, an important even a dominating part of the television audience, are more likely to resent gorgeous young things but feel comfortable and unthreatened by comedies or motherly types.

Violence This Fall

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Network television's 1968-69 season will start in less than three weeks. Some 65 television shows are in production, the vast majority of them in the huge studios of this motion picture capital.

Of the 74 regularly scheduled fall programs—plus a two-hour movie broadcast nightly—20 will be new shows. They consist of the usual television mix of comedy, variety, police-action and Westerns.

restaurant with a bad table arrangement that made it impossible for easy conversation.

The conversation became heated at several points and Clarence made some excellent points, but he later learned it was for naught. This particular luncheon guest would not be writing anything. Thus another lesson had been learned: Direct most of your answers to the working press. They're the ones who will put it into print. And don't let the reporter bait you and go on at length over something that has no connection with the series. Just politely change the subject.

The most valuable and helpful lesson was to come at a late afternoon interview with a noted San Francisco columnist. Try as he did, he couldn't get the interview moving. At times the three young performers seemed sullen, uncommunicative, petulant. Their answers were vague, there were few good quotes to write down.

After an hour, the columnist's notebook was still relatively free of notes. He could have said goodbye and forgotten about the whole thing. But he chose to level with the three newcomers and give them some advice.

"Look," he said, "I'm only trying to get a story. . . to justify the one hour I've spent with you. You're three newcomers and at this point there's not a damn thing I can write about any of you. I'm just trying to find a way to make you and your show interesting to write about.

"It will be easy to write about you two months from now when the series is on the air. But now I'm writing about something I know nothing about. Don't think people are trying to pry out your innermost secrets. Generally, newspapermen don't give a damn."

"You," he said to Peggy, "are pretty, so you don't have to worry. But you two," he said to Michael and Clarence, "have been hostile. Don't get up tight. Just be honest about it."

The three were somewhat stunned. After a minute, Michael, replying to the hostile charge, said, "It's hard to edit the emotion out of the words. But I'm just learning this business. I love what I'm doing and I want to learn."

It was a revealing moment. The facts of press-star-public relationship had been clearly spelled out for Peggy, Clarence and Michael. Suddenly they became even more aware of the job they had to do and they admitted they were a little scared.

The importance of selling themselves and the show was now clear to them, and they realized, as have scores of other new "stars" before them, that it's not as easy as it looks. It's hard, rough work and if you don't score, another show or star will grab the space, the limelight, the viewing audience.

At dinnertime, the three boarded a jet for Chicago to repeat the whole process. But this time, it would be a little different because they had survived their first outing. They may not have left their hearts in San Francisco, but they left an impression there. And they learned some good lessons.

THURSDAY TV PROGRAM

it and said, "Let's go!"

The first venture was a two-hour version which was filmed late last year for $800,000. It will be presented Sept. 20 in the CBS Friday Night at the Movies spot. Then on the following Thursday night at 8, the hour-long series will begin.

Starring in a series made entirely in this island paradise sounds like a dream assignment, right? Forget it.

"Last week I worked 88 hours," Lord reported. "The only thing that saves me is the Screen Actors Guild ruling that you must have a 12-hour rest period before being called back to work."

"I live like a monk. But that doesn't bother me at all. I came here to work, and I think the results are going to be worth it."

'Hawaii Five-O': Scenery's Nice

By BOB THOMAS

HONOLULU (AP) — Never was an actor more confident than Jack Lord: "This show is going to make it; I don't see how it can fail."

CBS appears to share his confidence, since it is pouring millions into a unique venture called "Hawaii Five-O." The new series is cops-and-robbers stuff, but actor Lord claims it is something more than Dragnet, Hawaiian style.

"This show has quality," he declared in his air-conditioned trailer-bus on location in a suburb of Honolulu. "The proo that is the number one CBS-affiliated stations that signed up to ake 'Hawaii Five-O.' We showed the pilot film to them, and 206 ordered the show, the biggest number in CBS history. A show like Carol Burnett's has only 163."

What does "Hawaii Five-O" have to dazzle the case-hardened station owners? Scenery galore, or one thing. The company has filmed in all parts of this highly photogenic isle. Each segment features from 35 to 40 different locations, virtually almost all of them real-life sets. Only two Hollywood-like sets are used; a makeshift studio in Pearl City contains the offices of the Hawaii governor and of Steve McGarrett (Lord), who heads the four-man special unit of the state police.

Of course series don't sell on scenery alone, as CBS discovered with its ambitious, ill-fated "Cimarron Strip" of last season.

As with most dramatic series, "Hawaii Five-O" will stand or fall on the quality of its scripts and characters. Lord claimed that executive producer Leonard Freeman is policing the scripts with expert care—"he even ordered and paid for three scripts and then threw them out because they weren't good enough." That is rare in television.

Lord himself may prove to be the key factor in the survival of "Hawaii Five-O," since the action is focused on him most of the time. He realizes the responsibility and is ready for it.

"I waited five years to go back into a TV series," remarked Lord, who starred for one season in the commendable "Stoney Burke" show about rodeo life. "I had plenty of chances to do another one. MGM offered me 'The Man From U.N.C.L.E.' before Robert Vaughn got into it; I also turned down 'Shenandoah,' which Robert Horton did, and 'The Outsider,' which Darren McGavin is appearing in now.

"When CBS sent me the script of 'Hawaii Five-O,' I called them back as soon as I had read
