He has been with the Vernon school system since 1951. A replacement for the principal's job at the Skinner Rd. school will be sought within the system as well as outside.

In making the decision to recommend Novak to the new post, Dr. Raymond Ramondelli said he had been with the system the longest of the three applicants.

Dr. Ramondelli told the Board of Education that Novak will remain on the same salary schedule even though the school he will be taking over is much larger

Sheinwold on Bridge GET YOUR EVIDENCE ON LOSING TRICKS

Whether you win or lose it, each trick tells you something. When you want to find out how the missing cards are divided, you may have to get some of your evidence by losing tricks deliberately at a safe time.

Opening lead—Two hearts. West led the six of hearts, and declarer held up dummy's ace. Declarer's partner led the third heart trick. East discarded a club, and South noted that it would be safe to lose tricks to East but not to West.

South had eight tricks in top cards and would make his contract if he could get a fourth spade trick. Declarer's only problem was to protect himself from four spades to the jack on either side.

Game More Like War

TORONTO—There is little evidence that lacrosse became an organized sport before 1860. The early Indian version, more of a battle training than a sport for warriors, pitted tribe against tribe or village against village. As many as 1,000 men took part in some games.

West had started with five hearts, but it was clear that West held four spades to fill out his hand of 13 cards.

This was exactly what South had set out to discover. It was the king of spades and confirmation of his count when East could not follow suit. It was then a work of a moment to lead a low spade and take a freeze with dummy's nine, assuring the game contract.

Tolland More Commercial Zoning Sought in 2 Bids to PZC

Two separate requests for the zoning of additional commercial land were received by the Planning and Zoning Commission during Monday night's meeting.

The first request, presented by August Locher Jr. on behalf of some property owners in the area involved, calls for the extension of the present commercial zone from Goose Lane and Rhodes Rd. to the intersection of Merrow Rd. (Rt. 186) and Anthony Rd. and Baxter St.

The second request involves the rezoning of two parcels of land paralleling the Wilbur Cross Hwy. at the intersection of Mt. Spring Rd. The 1.4 and 1.5 acre parcels are zoned residential and are owned by Charles Luce.

The Merrow Rd. zone change request was made by Locher, acting on behalf of seven property owners involved, who own over 50 per cent of the property between the present zone and the Anthony Rd. intersection. These people would be agreeable to the rezoning of the entire length of Merrow Rd. for commercial purposes, he added.

Those signing the request for action are Harriett D. Barron, Carmelo J. Zangilli (former First Selectman), Earl Kellner, Edmund Perkins, Norman Wilson, Lucien Cyr and Chester C. Sioszars.

Those applying for the zone change cited the growth of the town, both accomplished and predicted, as a basis for the request. Because of the "need for further commercial area as expressed by both the Zoning board and the Industrial Development Commission" we request this area as the most readily available, naturally situated and most profitable area available for commercial use without expense to the town," they said.

The PZC, acting on advice of Town Counsel Robert King, agreed to consider the application as a request for a zone change from the residents in-

Polling Errors Seen Danger in Predicting Race

NEW YORK (AP)—A survey among political pollsters shows they agree that their chances of predicting the winner in two-year elections are less than they were in the 1960s, when the major polls failed to predict the winner in the presidential race. The New York Times reported today.

In a story from its Washington bureau, the newspaper said that the pollsters are increasingly confident that the odds are strongly in favor of their calling this year's election outcome correctly.

The story also said in part disclosure.

Wanat Resigns As Selectman

The Board of Selectmen last night accepted the resignation of Democratic minority selectman Eugene Wanat. Wanat gave no reason for the resignation in his brief one sentence letter. He stated that the resignation be made effective as of last Oct. 8. Wanat was the high scorer on the state administered tests for the position of town superintendent for the town. He has not been appointed for the position since the only other candidate withdrew before the appointment was set upon by the Board of Selectmen.

A requirement of the office is that the Board Superintendent hold no other town office. The appointment of a new superintendent is still up in the air as of last week with the selectmen waiting for a ruling from the town council whether they can consider only one candidate or if the job and tests must be reappointed.

The two Republican selectmen, First Selectman Ernest Vik and Charles Luce, filled three appointments to local boards at their meeting last night.

They appointed Richard Roberts of Carter Dr. as an alternate to the Planning and Zoning Commission, replacing William Salmond of New Rd. who moved out of state recently.

They appointed two members to the Industrial Development Commission including Dr. David Bertuccio who is replacing Aubrey Frost for a term expiring June 30, 1970. Also appointed was James Rock to fill a vacancy caused by the expiration of the term of Richard Pietras. Rock's term will expire June 30, 1970.

Three Town Studies
Vik proposed the creation of three different committees in the next few weeks to study various proposals for the town. Included in these are a committee to study the wages and salaries of all town employees and elected officials to ascertain whether they are "progressive and compatible with the times," and a committee to investigate the advantages of blanket insurance coverage for the town.

Insurance agents living in the town could serve as consultants for the committee, but would not be appointed to the study committee itself.

A committee to study the advisability of the adopting of a town charter will be appointed shortly Vik announced. This committee will likely be appointed after the elections next month.

Both parties will be asked to recommend the names of interested persons to serve on the committees, through the Town Committee. The Board of Selectmen will make the final appointments, Vik noted.

He also reported the changing of the town election date to May, to coincide with the fiscal year, will be placed on the agenda for a future town meeting. If no action is taken the election date would automatically be held in November.

Square Dance
The Tollanders Square Dance Club will hold a regular club dance Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Meadowbrook School. Red McCain will serve as caller at the club level dance.

Holiday Workshop
Mrs. Norman Wright of Tolland, chairman of the Tolland County Extension Service Holiday Harvest workshop, has announced the opening of the workshop today and tomorrow from noon to 8 p.m. at the TAC Activities Center on Rt. 20.

The workshop is designed to provide people with ideas and techniques to be used in decorating for the holiday season. Special emphasis has been placed on the use of simple, inexpensive materials to put the handmade look back into the Christmas season, according to Mrs. Wright. A booklet of patterns and instructions will be made available.

In addition to the exhibit which will feature continuous demonstrations, there will be a home baked food sales table, handcrafted gifts, a grab bag and popcorn machine for the children, and light refreshments.

4-H Club Officers
Erla Davis has been elected president of the Little Blue Beavers 4-H Club. Other officers are Doreen Davis, vice president; Mary Moulton, secretary; Linda Boyden, treasurer; Cindy Rau and Lynn Vendrillo, chairmen of recreation and refreshments, and Heather Rau, reporter.

Exemption Hike For the Elderly Urged by Houley

Democratic State Senatorial candidate Robert Houley yesterday called for increasing exemption for elderly families living on fixed incomes to a "more realistic level."

His proposal suggests a $2,000 exemption for a single retired person and $3,000 for an elderly family.

"This would permit older citizens to maintain their homes without fear of alarming taxes on their property," he told a meeting of elderly people at Franklin Park in Rockville yesterday. He also spoke at a meeting of Rockville's Club 65, a date postponed from last week's political moratorium.

Other proposals to aid the elderly were made by Houley, including the expansion of housing for the elderly to allow more space per unit. This would include re-evaluating the number of efficiency units. He further suggested the inclusion of some two-bedroom units in small numbers to accommodate cases where two sisters or brothers wish to live together or where one spouse might be an invalid.

Houley called for an investigation of the possibility of adding clinical services to existing projects and proposed projects to allow routine medical care to be administered within the housing projects, rather than at a convalescent home or hospital. This would be particularly true of nursing services, he maintained.

Concluding his statements, Houley told the gathering that the needs of the elderly would be one of his continuing concerns. "It will work hard to provide more oriented retirement for the elderly," he said.

The Found Silence Impossible

Believers in the cause of freedom, of democracy, of honesty — perhaps believers in some of the abstract qualities and virtues considered good in the human life — would do well to try to drink in deep the spoken words of the speaker's dock in Moscow the other day, during the trial of those tried and convicted and exiled for trying to make a demonstration in Red Square against the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Mrs. Larisa Bogoruz-Daniel, wife of a Russian writer already in prison for his rebellious pen, was making her final plea to the court. It turned out, of course, to be no plea, but a statement of explanation and defense.

This is what she said: "I have to speak of my motives, since this question was asked of me. "I did not act on impulse."

"I thought about what I was doing, and I fully knew what the consequences might be. I did not act on impulse."

"I do not consider myself a public person, still less a political one. There was much I had to suppress within myself to do what I did. My general instinct and distrust for public exhibitionism."

"I am fond of my freedom and value it. "I would have preferred not to do what I did and give unnecessary support to people who think the way I do and have greater weight in our country."

"I thought some public person might speak publicly, but they did not. "I was faced with the choice of acting on my own or keeping silent."

"For me, to have kept silent would have meant joining those who support action with which I did not agree."

"I do not consider my way of belief the only right one, but for myself it is the only one."

"It was all the meetings and the information of the press feeling of uniform support that caused me to say openly that I was against the action."

"If I had not done this, I would have had to consider myself responsible for the error of our Government or its agents."

In this woman's decisions, as in her eloquence explaining them, in her transparency of a testimony before the court, there is a moving presentation of one of the dramatic questions for human behavior. This woman found herself compelled to take action which was of great and obvious danger to herself but which seemed quite futile so far as advancing her belief and her cause. She took the action, nonetheless, because she felt that silence, immobility, or her part without amount, in truth, to her acceptance of responsibility for approval of an action she did not and could not approve.

Perhaps she erred, this Mrs. Daniel, in her estimate of her own utility. She stood up in court, and uttered these words, and these words came out of that totalitarian court room for people to read and ponder, and they may eventually prove words more powerful than the verdict of the court.

But the words, and the act, have to be judged first without reference to any possibility that they may have practical effect, or prove historic.

Let her words and actions be judged as if, from all practical points of view, they were futile.

Then let us focus our hearts and minds on the reason she acted and spoke as she did, nonetheless.

She considered silence in the face of action and policies she could not approve to be treason to herself — treason in which she herself accepted her routine share of responsibility for things she considered wrong.

It should be very easy for all of us, considering this conduct on the part of this courageous woman in totalitarian Russia, to say that this is the highest possible example of individual citizenship.

It is not quite so easy, or automatic, for us to concede similar high citizenship to people who, in a democratic society, engage in futile protest against the actions and policies being followed by a government ostensibly supported by some great majority of the people. But people who find themselves compelled to speak last by their silence they condemn and support things opposite to their own beliefs deserve at least the same tolerance in any society — the recognition that they may not necessarily and automatically be the crackpots. Mrs. Larisa Bogoruz-Daniel, going un- necessarily out of her way to protest her country's use of marching troops to control the inner politics of another country, is undoubtedly a member of a crackpot to the Russian consensus of the moment as she is a heroine to the outside world. Most people who act under the compulsion of a strict and unwavering loyalty to their own beliefs win both titles, but something more than which side of which border the individual is located on ought to determine which title is the more valid.

New York's Unneeded Officials

New York City has a Mayor. It has a Board of Education. It has a superintendent of schools.

None of these elective or appointive officials, however, has the power to operate a school system for New York City.

The Mayor, the Board of Education and the Superintendent altogether are not allowed to make policy for the city's schools.

They are not even able to keep the city's schools open.

Their combined power as the top elective and appointive officials responsible for New York City's school system is considerably less than the power wielded by the United Federation of Teachers, a union of the city and school board employees.

The Federation, on votes recommended by its president, has kept New York City's schools closed, instead of open, 10 of the first 23 days of the new season which started in September.

At the moment, it has closed the schools again, and this time the estimate of its president is that they may remain closed for a month.

Unless the school board, other continued authority collapses and capitulates and surrenders its own legal elective and appointive powers into the hands of a union of its employees.

That would, apparently, be the only peaceful solution — to have all properly elected and appointed officials resign, to have all laws suspended, banish parents and deny their right to have an interest in school policy, and leave the union and its leader free to begin untrammeled, unchallenged, an operation of the city's schools designed to be satisfactory to their own interests and ideas. They would be free to do as they please, to guarantee that their own best interest and ideas would also be best for pupils, parents, and the city community as a whole. And the city would be rid of all that superfluous governmental structure which, on the record, stands mainly as a hindrance, and costs more money and trouble than it could ever be worth. Why have a mayor or a school board, or a superintendent, or a PTA, when you can have a union?

Does "Equal Time" Belong? The "equal time" issue is making a political football out of the whole idea of debates among the presidential candidates this year. It's unfortunate, because a central point of the issue is being missed.

As long as Congress must vote every fourth year to suspend the "equal time" provision if the country is to enjoy and be enlightened by television news like the Nixon-Kennedy contest in 1960, parliament politics and not the public interest will prevail.

This year Richard Nixon, apparently well ahead of his rivals, does not want to risk his lead by prime time before the cameras with Messrs. Humphrey and Wallace. And so Republicans in Congress continue to block the legislation that would have opened the door to debates.

And these same Republicans are reminding Mr. Humphrey potently that in 1960, as a result of a television news program, a Democratic senator reversed, he as a Democratic senator, his vote against the "equal time" suspension so that Lyndon Johnson would not have to take on the underdog Barry Goldwater in a television "image" contest that just might have narrowed the race.

This necessity to suspend for brief periods the controversial Section 315 of the Federal Communications Act, so that TV-radio networks can give free time to major candidates without granting the same time to inconsequential office seekers, is an opening wedge to ridiculous partisan bickering.

Nothing in the Constitution or elsewhere in law requires debates. Nowhere are there hard-and-fast rules saying the best debater is necessarily the best President.

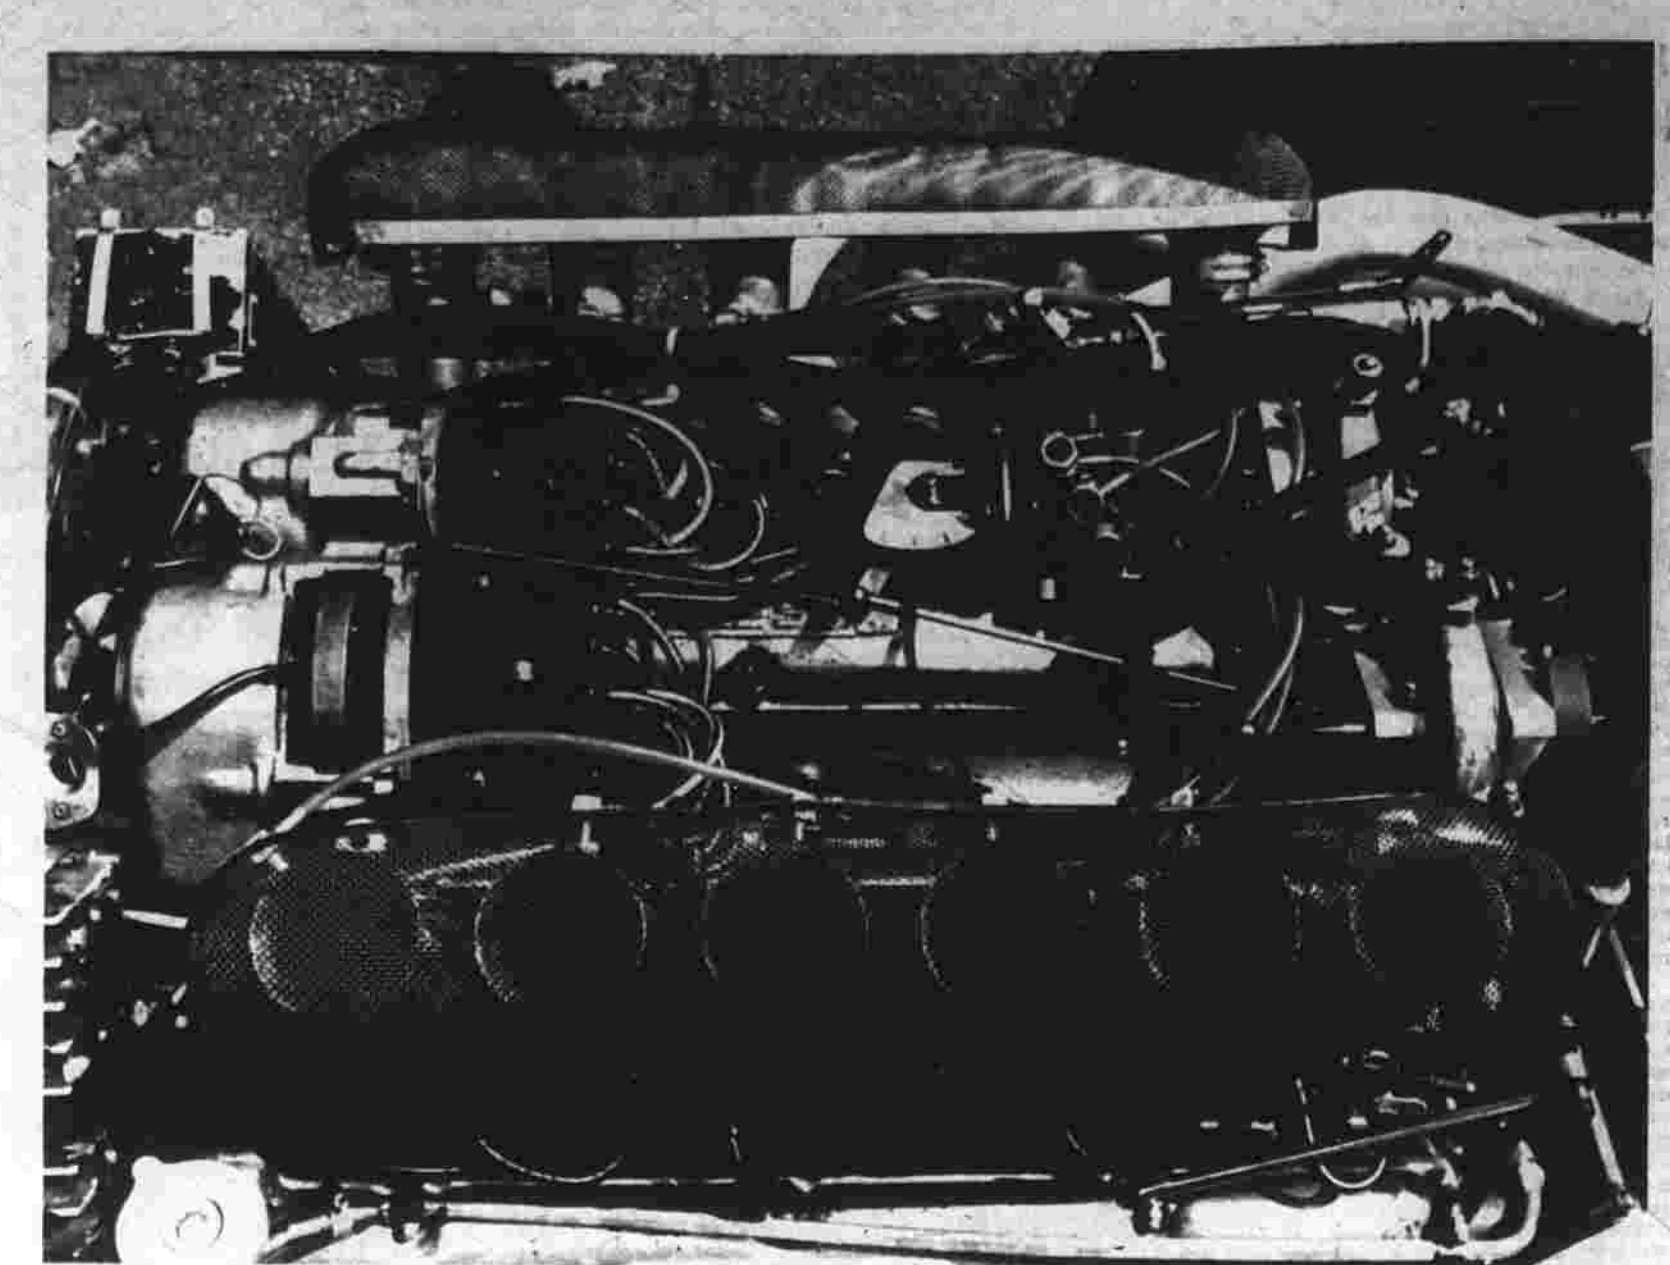

The sole argument for debates is that the public seems to find it easier to choose after seeing the major candidates in action together.

But as an added factor there is a long-standing, evident feeling that presidential campaigns are far too long, and almost barbarically arduous for the candidates. And there's the fact that television, though immensely expensive for the campaign organizations if they are forced to buy time in quantity, does reach to the people as never before.

A recent Gallup Poll stated that the majority of the voting public would like a substantial overhaul of the election system, including shorter campaigns, with greater stress on radio and television and less on mob-scene rallies.

Just debates be the central question? Why not, during some cool fall between elections, repeal "equal time" outright for an indefinite period, give the networks their heads during "good behavior," and let them use their own judgment of fairness and public-service value in granting free time for what-ever purpose? Rank favoritism would be spotted immediately and corrected easily.

At least the candidates then could go before each other in debates or, as the situation developed — on their own, without the congressional show-down of recent days which have made Congress look silly and debased the presidential election system. — SPRINGFIELD UNION.

Inside Report

Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

WASHINGTON — Working quietly and completely backstage at Richard M. Nixon's campaign headquarters in New York is a figure from the dark regions of Nixon's past. It is a man named Murray Chotiner, mastermind of the early Nixon campaigns and his first political mentor.

After some six years in political oblivion, Los Angeles lawyer Chotiner suddenly popped up Sept. 19 at a Nixon fund-raising dinner in Manhattan. Since then, Chotiner has a written record of all that he has done for Nixon, and a reputation for being a man who can be trusted.

Chotiner was in fact, Nixon's first political boss. Seeking the office for the first time in his Congressional race of 1946, Nixon sought out Chotiner for his help. Chotiner's help contributed greatly to Nixon's early Republican victory.

National School Lunch Week is being observed at Porter School and the menu is arranged by the national committee.

The committee said a packed lunch seldom provides the same nutritive value as the hot lunch served by the school.

"Too many children," the committee said, "not only what they want and tend to eat up on smocks. Too many parents cannot afford the price of school lunches."

School lunches, noted the committee, provide practice for lessons in nutritious eating and this is part of required health teaching.

The prevailing price for school lunches is 35 to 40 cents. Porter School charges 30 cents, although this price is subject to change if necessary.

Parents are invited to lunch in the school cafeteria any day this week but are asked to contact Mrs. Stanley Field, manager, so quantities may be planned, all there is to be a contact.

Boeing May Drop Design For Swing-wing Transport

NEW YORK (AP)—A meet-to-much safety, weight, economy with airlines representatives my and time. The 218-foot craft can be built and flown with safety, engineers feel. However, weight cannot be reduced enough to permit flight abandoned a movable, swing-wing design for America's next superjet transport.

The new design may be slightly smaller than the original design, which called for a seating capacity of about 300 passengers. Boeing officials are under- stood to be convinced that the swing-wing concept, in which the outstretched wings would be swept back as the craft reached cruising speed of 1,800 miles an hour, will be built eventually.

Tolland Zoning Panel Gets Plans On Tolland Manor Addition

The Planning and Zoning Commission was presented with plans for a 24-lot subdivision addition to Tolland Manor of New Rd. during Monday night's meeting.

The homes would be located on a horseshoe-shaped road named Oakwood Dr., located off Pine Hill Rd.

The plans were left at the town's office by the developer, who did not attend the meeting.

The plans are for "lots of record" approved by the Board of Selectmen before the town zoning regulations were adopted.

The package proposal would alleviate many of the problems presently faced regarding roads, according to First Selectman Ernest Vix.

The annual fall football trip, sponsored by the Tolland Boys League, will be held Saturday.

The plans were laid out by the developer, who did not attend the meeting.

The PZC also plans to call on the services of consultant engineers Black and Buck of Hartford, regarding both the sanitary and road regulations involved in the proposal.

The property involved is owned by Dr. Harry Baras, a developer who has as yet neglected to serve a portion of White Birch Rd. Extension, despite repeated letters from the town and Town Council Robert King.

A letter asking the PZC to review of the subdivision plans was submitted by Clifford W. Elmer Construction Co., Inc. of Wapping.

The PZC also questioned the beginning of a horseshoe-shaped road in back of homes presently being built on New Rd.

Chicago Pigeon Stops in Tolland for R&R

A racing pigeon from Chicago has laid claim to a home in Tolland marking an end to a cross-country flight.

The pigeon, subsequently dubbed with the name of Drifter, was found walking up the driveway of the Marshall Elmer home on Mile Hill Rd. two weeks ago.

Elmer is now studying plans for the construction of a pigeon coop for Drifter, who shows no signs of wanting to make a return trip to Chicago.

Chamber Group Handles Hiring New Executive

A selection committee of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce has been empowered by the C of C executive board to handle all of the mechanics of hiring a new executive vice president.

Robert Brook, the present office holder, is leaving Nov. 1 to assume a new C of C post in Murfreesboro, Tenn.

Chamber president Lyman Hoops said that it is doubtful a replacement will be named before January.

Hoops said that word that a new executive vice president is being sought here has been relayed to the National Chamber of Commerce and to the National Association of Chamber Executives.

The latter organization may be the probable pool from which a new Manchester executive will be drawn.

Hoops said that the committee already has some applications from persons with knowledge of Brook's resignation.

Hoops said that the Chamber's selection committee will study all the applications and will schedule individual interviews in Manchester with the most likely candidates.

At Portland, Maine Foreign Trade Zone Backed by Ribicoff

WASHINGTON (AP) — A foreign trade zone at Portland, Maine, would end New England's "economic bondage" to trucks and ships for oil, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., said today.

His statement came in written form as the Federal Foreign Trade Zones Board resumed hearings on Maine's controversial application for a general cargo foreign trade zone at Portland.

At issue is a request that a subzone be set up at nearby Machiasport, where Continental Petroleum Corp., an independent California producer, has agreed to build a $150 million oil refinery. It would be New England's first such facility.

There are 291 oil refineries in the continental United States, but none in New England," Ribicoff said, adding that the region must depend on "cargo ships and trucks for its oil supplies."

This has led to a continuing price spiral and New Englanders have had to pay an estimated additional $50 million since 1955 just to beat their neighbors, he said.

Ribicoff joined all six New England governors in endorsing the Machiasport refinery project, which is opposed by much of the domestic oil industry.

The industry sees it as an attempt to circumvent the 12.5 per cent oil import quota, depress prices and wreck the domestic oil economy, according to Rep. Bob Price, R-Tex.

It was lambasted last week as a "Johnson Administration fix" by Price.

House Majority Whip Hale Boggs, D-La., took sharp exception to Price's characterization of the proposed operation, but also denounced the Machiasport plan.

He said it would lead to requests for six more subzones with all refineries along the East, Gulf and West Coasts and would seriously damage Louisiana's oil economy.

The foreign trade zone sought by Maine would permit foreign raw materials to be brought in without customs duties, be processed, and either sent out again or imported under U.S. tariff rates.

The so-called subzone to this zone would permit the same thing, but only for specialized products—such as oil or ships.

A total of eight foreign trade zones now exist. They are at New York; New Orleans, La.; Seattle, Wash.; San Francisco; Mayaguez, Puerto Rico; Toledo, Ohio; Honolulu; and Bay County, Mich.

A request for a foreign trade zone for Bayonne, N.J., is pending. Another application for a zone in Finlay Point, Md., has not yet been accepted by the board.

State Party Leaders See Wallace Fading

By DON MEHRE
Associated Press Writer
HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Just how big a dent is George Wallace going to make in the Connecticut vote on Nov. 5?

While Wallace maintained that he is in the midst of the "kind of situation that a candidate like Wallace can play upon fears and offer oversimplified solutions so as to gain as many votes as possible," said Duffey, "I think there is more vocal support for Wallace now than will be manifest on election day."

Most of the Wallace supporters, said Hausman, appear to be blue-collar workers who ordinarily vote Democratic. But Wallace's constituency also includes right-wing extremists who have tended to vote Republican more than Democrat.

But both Democratic State Chairman John M. Bailey and Republican State Chairman Edward B. Hausman expect the Wallace strength to melt as election day approaches.

"I think the Wallace movement in the state reached its peak some weeks ago," said Bailey. "His selection of Curtis LeMay as his vice presidential candidate brought some people up short. They began to realize what would happen if Wallace and LeMay were elected."

Flaps May Stop Ships NEW YORK — Ship architects

may put "landing flaps" on large tankers for emergency stops. The flaps would fold out of the hull below the water line and could cut stopping distance in half, tests show. This is an important factor, since the largest tankers may need three miles to stop while on a straight course.

It is the Bailey and Hausman, expects the Wallace strength to deteriorate. "I think there is more vocal support for Wallace now than will be manifest on election day."

However, a widely held belief that the response to Wallace indicates a wave of reaction within the American electorate is disputed by the Rev. Joseph Duffey, who headed the Connecticut campaign of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn.

"The Wallace movement is by far the lesser of the two anti-political campaigns that arose in Connecticut this year, he said—the first being the 'law and order' before."

Hausman said that "Humphrey and Nixon and the labor unions will be putting on a drive to win the Democratic presidential nomination for McCarthy."

He, like Bailey and Hausman, expects the Wallace strength to deteriorate. "I think there is more vocal support for Wallace now than will be manifest on election day."

South Vietnam Recovers After Tet Destruction

SAIGON (AP) — The top U.S. adviser to South Vietnam's pacification program said today the country has almost completely recovered from the effects of two enemy offensives earlier this year.

Robert W. Komer called the recovery "a major success" of President Nguyen Van Thieu's Saigon government.

"The effects of the Communist Tet offensive last February and mini-Tet attacks of May have now been largely removed and the government is ready to begin a new phase of pacification," Komer said.

"The facts speak for themselves. More than 100,000 damaged or destroyed homes have been repaired or rebuilt. There is an abundance of food. Lines of communication are open. In short, the economy is moving."

The enemy offensive launched against population centers including Saigon, were designed to shake confidence in the government. More than 12,000 civilians were killed and more than a million refugees were left homeless by the destruction of $175 million worth of property.

"Instead, the offensives galvanized a relatively new and untired government into positive action on behalf of the people of South Vietnam," said Komer.

The recovery program's initial task was to furnish emergency aid to the civilian population. Komer said, setting up emergency food distribution centers, establishing curfews for security and reopening roads and lines of communication.

"As lines of communication were quickly reopened and secured prices which skyrocketed during the first uncertain days of the attacks declined to near normal levels," he said.

Komer reported the program furnished care for 750,881 evacuees, more than 100,000 tons of food, clothing, shelter, Tet and other supplies. Komer said 24 non-Communist "great majority" of whom have been returned to or rebuilt homes.

51st District Candidates, in Debate, Agree on Tax Needs

By CLEMENCELL YOUNG A well-run debate last night between the two candidates for representative from the 51st District seemed to end in agreement on one point at least—that the state is in a fiscal predicament and that a state income tax may be necessary.

Republican candidate Mrs. Dorothy Miller of Bolton, a former but not incumbent representative, told the 50 or so persons assembled in the Andover Town Hall that wealth rather than land is money making. Those who land are penalized by the property tax, she explained.

Noting the state's 120 million dollar deficit, Mrs. Miller said that the problem was that the Democratic legislature passed many programs but did not provide the funds. She said that the state were to continue "to have expanding programs" that it will "have to face a state income tax."

Mrs. Miller reviewed other tax increase possibilities, such as increasing the sales tax from three and one-half to four percent, and adding items to the list of child's clothes to the list of taxables.

She said that "both parties have objected to a state income tax" but that it will probably come about, "whether you want it or not."

She emphasized that all studies made by Republicans for proposed programs would contain an estimate of the total cost, and that the Republicans would develop a long range program for capital spending.

She went on to list some of the programs the Republicans would initiate (such as a department of public protection) or implement (such as the highway program) and said that "hopefully" "magic formula" would be found to pay for these.

Review Asked Aloysius Ahearn, the Democratic candidate, also from Bolton, in talking about the state's fiscal problems called for "a complete review" of the state's tax system before anything is done. He advocated assessing on a county, rather than town, basis, done by full-time professional assessors.

He listed the revenue which might result from an increase in existing taxes and said that there should be an increase in taxes on businesses, that "businesses should be much more involved."

Ahearn said that if a two percent major areas — health, education and roads — and asked in enough revenue to pay the deficit, but he pointed to Massachusetts and New York, which have state income taxes, and said that they are "in worse trouble than we are."

"If all factors indicate" that a state income tax "will relieve the burden on the home owner," the Democratic candidate said, "then I will support it."

Vernon ZBA Refuses Bid to Allow Liquor Sale in Restaurant

A request for an exception to allow the restaurant sale of beer and wine, made by Daniel Maddaluno of South Windsor, was denied by the Zoning Board of Appeals last night.

In executive session last night, following the hearing, a motion was made to grant Maddaluno's request for one year. The motion was lost with two voting against, two for and one abstention.

Stanley Brynart, chairman of the board, said those voting against the motion did so because they felt granting the request would be against the spirit of the 1,000-foot requirement regarding a school.

It was pointed out at the hearing that the Vernon Elementary school, which is located on Route 20 across the street from the proposed location of the restaurant, is closer than 1,000 feet to the site.

It was noted that from the restaurant, which is being built in connection with a new shopping center, to the school building would be a distance of about 800 feet and to the actual school building about 670 feet.

There was to be no public bar in the restaurant. The beer and liquor would be sold only to those in the dining room and dispensed from the back room.

Maddaluno was the operator of Dan's Italian Kitchen in the same area. That building was torn down to make way for the new shopping center.

The commission also denied a request of David Kotkin, instructor John and John Ahearn, Republican town, looks forward to its helping to send a Democratic representative to the legislature.

Mrs. Miller said that the bill, as yet unwritten, will say that there will be "little or no control," and that the people of the town, with their town meeting, form of government, and with their open selection of meetings, ought to be able to use the money to the best advantage of the town.

Ahearn contended that "small towns couldn't be expected to run a million dollar business" with underpaid officials. He said that the state should "not abandon local town government," but should help get involved, and that the towns should "forge isolationism" and "cooperate" with one another.

"Grass Roots" Government Mrs. Miller said that the Republicans believed in "grass roots" government, having the towns do as much for themselves as they could, and that the state should "not be a member of the audience, during the question and answer period."

Both candidates agreed on one more point—that the two-party system should return. Mrs. Miller looks forward to a change in state government from Democratic to Republican.

Ahearn, coming from a heavily Republican town, looks forward to its helping to send a Democratic representative to the legislature.

The 51st District comprises Andover, Bolton and Columbia, and there were residents from all three towns at the meeting, which ended with refreshments after about an hour and a half of regulated presentations, rebuttals, and questions and answers.

Hebron Schulze Hearing Set for Tuesday

A hearing on probable cases in the case of Mr. and Mrs. Donald H. Schulze of Old Colchester Rd. was continued yesterday in Wilkesville Circuit Court to Oct. 22 in Wilkesville.

The Schulzes are charged with risk of injury to a minor child and cruelty to a minor. The charges were made following an investigation by state police when 11-year-old Marie Schulze ran away from home in July and was found in the cellar of a neighbor's home.

Maria and her 19-year-old brother, Donald, are now living with their parents in East Hartford. The couple have three other children.

She is a member of the Hartt Opera Department. Hartt Chamber Singers and Hartt Madrigal Singers. She has also given solo vocal recitals at the college she won the Connecticut Valley Alumnae Scholarship in 1965 and 1967, has performed with the All Eastern Connecticut Symphony in 1967, and this year she is a soloist with the Hartt Symphony Orchestra and Chorus. She has also appeared frequently on radio and television.

Mrs. Levine will present a program of Jewish and international songs at the reception.

Memorial Donations Sought by Hospital

To give away money . . . is an easy matter and in any man's power, but to decide to whom to give it and how large and when, and for what purpose and how, is neither in every man's power nor an easy matter. Hence it is that such excellent . . .

"Corporate friends, business, and interested individuals."

Frank Simon, president of the Carlyle-Johnson Machine Co. at 83 Main St., gave the first memorial donation of $10,000 to the hospital. The money will provide a semi-private, two-patient room in the new wing. The memorial plaque on the door will indicate that the room was given in memory of Scott H. Simon, past president of the firm.

Simon said that, as president of a small manufacturing firm, he was donating the memorial because "the hospital is a wonderful thing for our employees and the community. We're using the hospital constantly—we need it. We're most fortunate to have such an excellent facility so nearby. I've been up there for a few stitches myself."

Smith said that the booklet, which is now being distributed, gives many opportunities to establish memorials.

Mrs. Evelyn Perkinson of Packer St. may be called for supper reservations.

The Ladies' Association and Friendly Circle, both church groups, are soliciting for donations of used light clothing (color and washable), as well as light blankets and quilts, bar soap (in original wrappers), for the Church World Service Fall Clothing Collection, presently under way and which will end Oct. 31. There are boxes in the church vestry for receiving these articles.

Articles that cannot be used are nylon stockings, shoes and heavy woolen clothing.

Boggini Backs Proposed MCC Campus Site

N. Charles Boggini, Democratic candidate for state representative from Manchester's 18th Assembly District, is backing a Manchester Community College proposal for a 150-acre campus at Hilltown Rd.

In a statement issued today, he says that he supports the college's request and that the state "should purchase the land it needs for tomorrow, because the longer we wait, the greater the chance of the land's becoming unavailable or prohibitively expensive."

"I feel that Manchester Community College deserves a strong voice to support it in the Legislature. By its appropriation this body will determine the rate of growth of the college. The need for educational facilities is increasing at a phenomenal rate. Only a year ago there were 3.5 million students in our nation's colleges and universities; today there are over 6.5 million. The number of people taking continuing education and extension courses has likewise increased."

"With my support of our own community college, I will seek to make more scholarship aid available to deserving students, and to encourage the growth of the college both in numbers and facilities."

This is the revolutionary rapid reading technique that first captured national attention when Mrs. Wood, a Salt Lake City school teacher, was invited to the White House by President Kennedy in 1962 to teach her amazing method to his top aides. Since then more than 500,000 people have learned her way of faster, more efficient reading at the U.S. and abroad. How's it done? Ask any Evelyn Wood reader. Or come to one of the demonstration meetings. They're free! They're fun. Nobody takes your name, and who knows, you might discover it's "for real."

Boyle Marks 25 Years as AP Columnist

NEW YORK (AP)—The late Don Marquis once described writing a newspaper column as "digging a daily grave."

The nation as a whole seems to have taken my silver anniversary pretty much as stride. Congress in its rush to adjourn failed to pass any resolution of congratulation.

Sometimes I get the feeling that this country is becoming too sophisticated for its own good.

A quarter of a century isn't a long time in the life of a public building or a redwood tree, but it does take toll of a man.

The direct result of a newspaper columnist, is stuffed shirts, but it is not up to him to judge whether he has become a victim of that deadly affliction.

Naturally, at landmark moments of his life, a man likes to "look before and after the pine for what is not."

I am grateful that this job has enabled me to meet and write about literally hundreds of interesting people. It has also permitted me to see the best of some and the worst of others.

But at least every columnist is a reformer, although he may deny this or seek to hide the fact, and he seeks that his real job is to make a better world.

Here, it seems to me, I have failed lamentably.

It is true that there are millions more people alive than when I first started writing a column in 1943, but as I am not the father of my country, I can hardly take credit for them.

Woe have multiplied since I first set down at my typewriter and waited for someone to laugh.

The New York Yankees fall apart, prices have risen, our prestige abroad has fallen to a new low, and the country needs a good dime instead of a nickel cigar, and positive peace are better than ever to find.

YOUTH is rebellion, the old feel forgotten and the middle-aged feel that Uncle Sam is breaking their back with taxes. Dejectedly, we're doing so badly that even Gen. Charles de Gaulle must be tempted to sue as a peacemaker.

Perhaps I nodded at the typewriter too often. Perhaps the world came unglued because I took too many long vacations.

Anyway, I speculate to try harder. I speculate to try harder. I speculate to try harder. I speculate to try harder.

Editors' Note: Don Boyle seems to have survived his silver anniversary, and is recovering nicely. Don't bother to send flowers.

Book Review
 By The Associated Press
THE PUBLIC IMAGE. By Muriel Spark, Knopf, $4.95.
 This new novel by Muriel Spark, author of "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie," is short, 144 pages, and can be read very easily and fast. But its title is deceptive—in the most way for novel readers—because it packs in more style, characterization and depicting of a strata of life than more authors can do in a book twice as long.
 The style seems oblique and offhand; a reader always is surprised to have piled up much solid knowledge from it. In this novel the reader learns a lot about the movie business, the way Italian newspapers and magazines report on film people and even about the reactions of Italian readers.
 But most remarkable in Miss Spark's writing is her characterization. The protagonist here, Annabel Christopher, is logical but not predictable. Long before the end of the 144 pages we have a personality which we "know" but which is complex enough so that we can't predict responses—even though they seem consistent after we know them.
 A woman reader finds her heart pulling for Annabel to react in a certain way. But that's really as ridiculous as trying to outguess her. It's her personality and her public image.

Stamps In the News

By STU KRONBERG
 AP News-Service

To honor "Tabern," the National Philatelic Exhibition in Jerusalem, the Israel Postal Department has issued a new stamp and a souvenir sheet. Featured on the stamp are the details from the Lion's Gate in Jerusalem's Old City Wall. The souvenir sheet shows the Lion's Gate in its entirety plus the new stamp. The Lion's Gate is derived from two pairs of stone lions which guard each side of the entrance.

Also issued by Israel is a new stamp dedicated to Abraham Mapu, one of the greatest Hebrew novelists and historians of the 19th century whose works have been translated into many languages. The new stamp bears a portrait of Mapu, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency.

Gibraltar has celebrated the 50th anniversary of the adoption and proclamation of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights by the General Assembly of the United Nations, by issuing two new stamps. The lower value of one shilling depicts King John about to sign the Magna Carta in 1215. The two shillings illustrates the Rock of Gibraltar surrounded by the captives "1704-1804 Freedom."

Both values bear the words "Human Rights 1968" at the top and carry the designated U.N. symbol below, together with Queen Elizabeth's profile portrait.

The Federal Republic of Germany—West Germany—has issued two new stamps, one honoring Konrad Adenauer and the other the Good Catholic Day in Essen. The 30 pfennig red and black Adenauer stamp features a portrait of the late Chancellor. The 20 pfennig green, yellow and violet stamp honoring Catholicism depicts a cross, dove and stripes which symbolize the universe, records the World Wide Philatelic Agency.

Belgium's four latest stamps depict scenes in its principal cities. The two franc shows the abbey at Lausanne. The three franc illustrates the church at Liège. The 2 franc depicts the cathedral of St. Pierre. The 1 franc picture the elevated locks at Roubaix.

Burman, formerly Dutch Guiana, has issued a set of two new stamps. The 1.50 franc stamp shows the World Health Organization which is celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Burmese independence of two values with a common design featuring the WED emblem. The 1.00 franc stamp and dark blue and 35 cent is blue green and dark green.

Short Circuit Brings Firemen To Hospital

A phone call from Manchester Memorial Hospital brought firemen on the double yesterday morning, but to no avail. Curtis Wilson, Hospital Engineer, said that a short circuit in a light fixture was the cause of the incident. No fire was pulled in the hospital, Wilson said. "As a matter of fact, I didn't know that we had an alarm until it was over." Wilson said that the short was a being repaired when someone must have unknowingly called the fire department.

Los Angeles View Apollo Pass

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Moments before its scheduled 6:47 a.m. arrival, Apollo 7 blipped its way clearly over Southern California.

Numerous residents gathered in small groups and some motorists stopped from their cars to view the craft which took a mere two minutes to cross from horizon to horizon.

"It was really buggy," said one observer, "because there we were, watching history go by and there were all these other people, waiting to work and just looking at their feet."

The Apollo 7 was easily visible despite the usual best of light smog surrounding the downtown area.

The astronauts started to toss down the show Wednesday, reportedly on orders from high Space Agency officials who objected to the run-and-games aspect of the show.

The closest thing to a job was when Schirra, floating in weightlessness, described the movements as being "like the idea of a monkey moving around its cage."

In a demonstration of weightlessness, he blew a floating pencil around the cabin with his breath.

Holding the camera, Roberts first focused on a window and commented, "We're looking over the commander's seat now. You can see the sun coming into the window."

Then he panned around the cabin, showing the instrument panel, crew couches and sleeping quarters.

He concentrated on two of the windows.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane Gladys veered slightly westward in the Gulf of Mexico today, starting the metropolitan Tampa Bay area from the threat of her 90-mile-an-hour winds, and headed on toward more thinly populated beaches in Florida.

Tampa, St. Petersburg and other cities clustered around the bay area "may lack out on the storm, after all," said Dr. Robert H. Simpson, chief of the National Hurricane Center.

The shift of a northward course was detected this morning by a hurricane hunter pilot who thrust his plane into the eye of the storm 150 miles southwest of Tampa and 200 miles west of Miami.

Soon afterward Gladys veered almost to a standstill. A later report to northward movement was forecast, but Simpson said the track probably would keep the hurricane far enough off the Florida West Coast to ease the danger to more populated areas.

Killer of at least one person in a stormy crossing of Cuba, failure.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Hurricane Gladys veered slightly westward in the Gulf of Mexico today, starting the metropolitan Tampa Bay area from the threat of her 90-mile-an-hour winds, and headed on toward more thinly populated beaches in Florida.

Tampa, St. Petersburg and other cities clustered around the bay area "may lack out on the storm, after all," said Dr. Robert H. Simpson, chief of the National Hurricane Center.

The shift of a northward course was detected this morning by a hurricane hunter pilot who thrust his plane into the eye of the storm 150 miles southwest of Tampa and 200 miles west of Miami.

Soon afterward Gladys veered almost to a standstill. A later report to northward movement was forecast, but Simpson said the track probably would keep the hurricane far enough off the Florida West Coast to ease the danger to more populated areas.
