Obituary

William Hayden, Insurance Agent In Tolland, Dies

TOLLAND — William Hoyt Hayden, 88, of Tolland Green, who conducted an insurance business from 1918 to 1955 in the Tolland area, died yesterday at his home.

Mr. Hayden was born Dec. 27, 1879 in Blanford, Mass., son of Charles B. and Ellen Henry Hayden and lived in Ellington and Rockville for a few years before coming to Tolland in 1900. He retired in 1955, selling his insurance business to John B. Mason of Vernon, who conducted it as the Hayden and Mason Agency.

He was a member of the United Congregational Church of Tolland and St. John's Lodge of Masons, Hartford. He was past secretary and director of the former Tolland County YMCA.

Survivors include a son, the Rev. Henry H. Hayden of Fresno, Calif.; a daughter, Mrs. Robert Adams of North Brook, Ill.; two brothers, Donald Hayden of Ellington and Ralph Hayden of Branford, and six grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2 p.m. at the United Congregational Church of Tolland. Burial will be in South Cemetery.

The White-Gibson Funeral Home, 65 Elm St., Rockville, is in charge of arrangements. There will be no calling hours.

The family suggests that those wishing to do so make memorial contributions to the Memorial Fund of United Congregational Church.

Mrs. Leonard F. Weikland, 65 Forest St., died Thursday at Mt. Sinai Hospital, Hartford. Burial will be in East Cemetery.

The W.P. Quinn Funeral Home, 285 Main St., is in charge of arrangements. There will be no calling hours. Memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society, 227 E. Center St.

Max C. Kasiski, formerly of 172 Center St., died Friday night in West Palm Beach, Fla. Burial will be Tuesday at St. Mary's Episcopal Church, at a time to be announced. Burial will be in East Cemetery.

The Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St., is in charge of arrangements, which are incomplete.

Mrs. Emma K. Evans, 85 of Putnam, mother of Mrs. Gladys E. Chetani of Manchester and sister of Mrs. Helen E. Webber of Rockville, died Thursday at Day Kimball Hospital, Putnam.

Survivors besides her daughter include her husband, two other daughters, five granddaughters, and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be Monday at 11 a.m. at the Smith and Walker Funeral Home, 148 Grove St., Putnam. Burial will be in Grove Hill Cemetery, Rockville.

Friends may call at the funeral home tomorrow from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Mrs. Robert Shute, 45, wife of Robert Shute of Hartford, formerly of Manchester, died yesterday at St. Francis Hospital, Hartford.

Born in Manchester on Oct. 27, 1925, the daughter of Mrs. Helen Hoyle Coleman of East Hartford and the late Dennis T. Coleman, she lived here most of her life, recently moving to Hartford.

Survivors besides her husband and mother include a son, Harold Rowett of Manchester; three daughters, Miss Linda Rowett and Miss Susan Rowett, both of Manchester, and Mrs. Elin Powell of Hartford; four brothers, Henry Coleman of East Hartford, Dennis Coleman and Francis Coleman, both of Hartford, and Roger Coleman of South Windsor, and a grandchild.

Andover

ZBA to Hear Six Appeals

The Zoning Board of Appeals meets Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Town Office Building to hear six appeals which ask for relief from the zoning laws of the town. This is an unusual number of appeals. Since the board's inception in 1966 it has had only two or three appeals each year.

Only one appeal has to do with the construction of a new dwelling which Percy B. Cook owns at the corner of School Rd. and Hebron Rd. and which is under construction. Two individuals, Anthony Armentano and John Hillman, asked for a variance for occupancy of a seasonal dwelling for year-round homes.

Frank Trayer who owns property on Lake Rd. and Robert F. Peters, Pine Ridge, ask for variances in side yard requirements for the construction of accessory buildings. Leon Nelson, Bunker Hill Rd., requests a variance to build a garage in R-50 district with less than 100 feet minimum front yard.

Any interested person may appear at the hearing or may send a written communication regarding any appeal. The copies of the appeals are on file and may be inspected at the office of the town clerk.

Fashion Show Services Mrs. James Urso, president of the Andover Democratic Women's Club, reports that the club's annual Fashion Show, held last Friday at the elementary school, was a big success. Over 200 tickets were sold and nearly 800 people attended.

Mrs. Urso wishes to thank the many business firms which provided prizes, Davidson and Loventhal for the fashions, the many people who worked on the show and those who attended. Most of the receipts will go for a scholarship to an Andover High student.

Diabetes Week The Columbus-Hebron Andover Public Health Nursing Agency is cooperating with National Diabetes Week which starts tomorrow and ends on the 23rd. The agency points out that diabetes is a chronic illness, and that the sooner it is discovered the better a person's chances to live a full, productive, and satisfying life.

Today, over 4,000,000 Americans have diabetes and at least 1,600,000 do not yet know they have it. During Diabetes Week, Dr. Dreyfus will be found in numerous places in town. It is suggested that people over 40 years of age, and relatives of diabetics should take advantage of this means of testing for diabetes. Dr. Dreyfus is provided by the American Diabetes Association.

Manchester Evening Herald, Andover correspondent, Lawrence Moe, tel. 742-6785.

George F. Gee, 66, of 282 McGuire Dr., died suddenly this morning at Manchester Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Gee was born Jan. 4, 1902 in Manchester, son of George and Christina Brown Gee, and had lived in Manchester all of his life. He formerly was employed at the Charter School, Manchester.

Survivors include two brothers, Francis T. Gee of Manchester and Willard J. Gee of Bolton; and two sisters, Mrs. Irene Desilets of Andover and Mrs. Florence Egley of Stamford.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 1 p.m. at Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St., Rockville. Burial will be in East Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home Sunday from 7 to 9 p.m.

Mrs. Rose M. Joslin, 80, formerly of 80 Bigelow St., died yesterday afternoon at Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St., Rockville. Burial will be in East Cemetery.

Survivors include two brothers, Mr. Charles London, State police said the man was dependent on an illness.

Dr. Bruce Rafferty, medical examiner, ruled the death a suicide.

Mr. London was born Dec. 18, 1886, in Bloomfield, N. B., Canada, and had lived in Hebron for many years. He was a retired carpenter and farmer. He was a member of the Water-ville (Maine) Lodge of Masons.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Mabel Raymond London; two sons, Charles E. London of Hebron and Ivan E. London of Manchester; a daughter, Mrs. Mortimer Friedrich of Burlington, Vt.; two brothers, Barry London and George London and a sister, Mrs. Carrie McKinney, all of Canada and five grandchildren.

Private funeral services will be held Monday at the Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St., Manchester. Burial will be in East Cemetery, Manchester.

There will be no calling hours. The family suggests that in lieu of flowers those wishing to do so may make memorial contributions to the Memorial Fund of Gilead Congregational Church.

MCC to Hear Islam Leader Minister Louis Farrakhan, sometimes known as Louis X, will speak at Manchester Community College Monday night at 8:15. His appearance is being sponsored by Jay R. Stager's Religions of the World class.

Louis, successor to the late Malcolm X in a religious capacity only, is East Coast representative of the Nation of Islam and minister of Mohammed's mosques in New York City. The meeting is open to the public.

NATO Warns Russia Against Warlike Acts

Informants said there is evidence the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia caused widespread dismay among French officials. It prompted some to discreetly ignore De Gaulle's strictures and resume their contacts with allied colleagues.

De Gaulle said two years ago French troops would no longer participate in the peacetime integration of NATO forces although he has repeatedly reaffirmed France's fidelity to the alliance and said French troops would fight alongside the allies in a war.

De Gaulle said the foreign ministers meeting because that body is the governing organ of the council. Yet, Roger Seydoux, France's permanent representative to the alliance, has remained at his post at NATO headquarters and after the Soviet invasion began attending special meetings of the Defense Planning Council, informants said.

Although De Gaulle withdrew two divisions in West Germany from allied control in 1966, the troops have remained in Germany under a special agreement with the Bonn government. French leaders have kept up contact with their former NATO colleagues.

NATO officials saw these signs as indications De Gaulle has abandoned thoughts of walking out of the alliance next year.

In his speech Friday French Foreign Minister Michel Debre put emphasis on continuing efforts to improve relations with the Soviets.

In France's kindest words about NATO so far, Debre described the alliance as an "expression of political equilibrium" and an "element of equilibrium" in the world situation.

Debre's "condemnation" statements on NATO were couched in a diplomatic manner.

Democratic Town Director Francis Mahoney is urging prompt action on a proposal to amend the town charter.

Associates said Harlow told Johnson this was not Nixon's intent. They also said Harlow described the President-elect's position as one which put foreign affairs decisions in three distinct categories:

— Vietnam. On that, Mr. Nixon and Mr. Johnson are in quite a verbal accord, there is a disagreement, we don't expect any foreign policy actions which will be initiated, and completed, during the remaining tenure of the current administration. There is no question for consultations on such matters as the State Department, Robert D. Murphy, Nixon's new representative at the State Department, is expected to see them.

Johnson, who personally welcomed Murphy, stressed that the role of the Nixon liaison man would be that of an observer.

— Decisions by the current administration which would commit the next administration to some course of action. It was in this field, Harlow was said to have held, that Nixon saw concurrences—and concurrence—as vital.

A top Nixon aide put it this way: "There's no compulsion, obviously, even in this area on the President, but Mr. Johnson wants to say that the United States will do so and so, he wants to say that validly, obviously he will consult with Mr. Nixon."

— Mr. Nixon's absolutely clear about this, "one Nixon man said. 'The President is absolutely clear about this, there's no problem.'"

Nixon shifted his headquarters today to his 12th Circuit court, his favorite spot for relaxation. He returned to his office after his last perhaps five days. He flew to Miami on Air Force One, the president's jet. It was his first journey in that airplane since his election.

In other developments: — The President-elect named Ronald L. Ziegler, 29, to be chief spokesman for the White House after he takes office. There is to be no press secretary. Ziegler was designated a special assistant, but the duties are to be much the same. It was made clear, however, that Ziegler will have no policymaking or interpretive role, will simply relay information.

Ziegler, a Los Angeles advertising man, is probably the youngest man ever appointed to run the White House press office.

— Nixon conferred for more than an hour with Whitney Young, director of the national Urban League, before flying from New York to Florida.

Young later made clear that he has reservations about the Republican President-elect, but said he is willing to give Nixon "the benefit of the doubt."

Young said what is needed now is a series of acts to aid "the forgotten American" — the Negro and the poor.

A Nixon associate said the session with Young was part of the President-elect's effort to build national unity, that it was a wide-ranging and extremely frank discussion.

World's Bankers Assemble Over Growing Money Crisis

In Paris, financial sources said the French would seek additional credits amounting to at least $1.5 billion at the Basel meeting. That was the total of the swap agreements made last July 10 with the central banks of West Germany, Belgium, Italy, the Netherlands and the U.S. Federal Reserve and the Bank of International Settlements.

Officially reported reserve losses, since the weakness of the franc developed in the May-June student-worker upheavals and their aftermath, now total about $2.6 billion. This does not include the swap funds.

In London, the free market price of gold—always an indicator in times of currency trouble—rose to $140 an ounce for the first time since September. The official price is $35.

The pound was looking shaky for reasons of its own, aggravated by the French troubles. Financial experts, worried by the October downward trend in Britain's international trading performance, said the government must act soon to check off-balance sheet spending.

They said, this could be done by hardening already severe curbs on installment buying, and by quick increases in sales taxes.

The pound fell to its lowest level in 10 months, but Sir Leslie O'Brien, governor of the Bank of England, downplayed this. He left for Basel, saying: "I expect the meeting to be the 'quietest I have known.'"

However, the Federation of West German industries said it had "considerable and basic misgivings about using exchange alterations as a means of influencing the market." It said although the German economy showed a trend favorable toward revaluation of the mark, it saw no reason for such a move immediately.

And Dr. Otmar Emminger, president of the German Central Bank, said talk of revaluation was "nonsense."

Swiss bankers reported they were inundated with orders for German marks. The authoritative London Financial Times reported the French money market was showing signs of panic, with private banks cleared out of marks and Swiss francs.

One factor acting against the franc was fear that France may bring back exchange control, causing the rush to switch to other freely convertible currencies or commodities. The French Finance Ministry denied it was even considering exchange control.

Another factor was the rise in the French cost of living, now running at 5 per cent a year. This inevitably made the franc's purchasing power suspect.

Currency dealers in Frankfurt said the West German federal bank took in more than $500 million from speculators Friday, most of it thought to have come from France. Marks were going at the peak rate of 5.97 per dollar and broke through their official ceiling with relation to francs.

President Still Head, Nixon Says

(Continued from Page One) to be made by this President and by this secretary of state and by this secretary of defense."

He spoke slowly, emphatically, and swung his hand to underscore the point.

However, Nixon sources said Harlow concluded his telephone conversations with the White House convinced that there is no misunderstanding or disagreement between the President and his successor.

These sources did acknowledge that Johnson had expressed concern at the implications of Nixon's statements—which included a comment that "it would be essential that there be prior consultation and prior agreement" on decisions in the foreign policy field.

"He was a little concerned that the impression might have been left that Mr. Nixon was trying to be a co-President of the United States for the next few days," said a source familiar with the conversation.

Associates said Harlow told Johnson this was not Nixon's intent. They also said Harlow described the President-elect's position as one which put foreign affairs decisions in three distinct categories:

Strikes Mark Power Fight In Prague

(Continued from Page One) indicated Dubcek's supporters were fighting to defend his reform policies against attacks by Old Guard hard-liners. Some members had angrily demanded to know what leaders had invited the Soviets to invade their country for the purpose of quelling "counterrevolution." Many Czechoslovaks feared they were the dying gasps of free discussion.

Dubcek was reported to have announced new allegiance to "democratic centralism," the orthodox Communist principle that debate stops once the decision is made.

The decision in this case, the final resolution of the Central Committee, is due Sunday at the earliest.

More than 100 of the 140 members who had asked to speak remained to be heard from in the closed Central Committee meeting at Prague Castle.

Evsen Erban, head of the National Council, urged Friday "disciplined implementation" of the final Central Committee decisions. But resolutions were reported pouring with objections to curbs on freedom of the press.

Prof. Ivan Malek, director of the Prague Microbiological Institute, said the continued distribution of Soviet propaganda material containing distorted information and lies "makes people's blood boil."

Frantisek Pavlicek, manager of the Vinohrady Theater in Prague, demanded to know what members of the Central Committee or government had invited the Soviet Union and other Warsaw Pact countries to invade Czechoslovakia in August. The Soviets had claimed Czechoslovakia's Communistists asked for outside help.

Josef Smrkovsky, national Assembly president, said Czechoslovak reformers had failed to "outrun the post-January developments in such a way as to permit the party to influence them more systematically."

The result, he said, was that from the outside Prague's reforms appeared "more as a negation of more liberalization than truly revolutionary reshaping and fulfillment of socialism," and this caused anxiety in the Soviet Communist camp.

Interior Minister Jan Pelnar, criticized the Dubcek course for not showing enough "political courage" to root out anti-socialist forces. Another government member attacked the party leadership for attempting to lead a "new social movement" which proved "entirely unrealistic."

Lubomir Strougal, a vice premier, said it was a pity that "certain comrades defend the post-January development in its entirety and do not want to admit that serious mistakes occurred in carrying out this policy."

Before the incident, two petitions had been circulated among the student body, both containing several hundred signatures. One urged keeping the work in the gallery, and the other called for its removal. Wednesday, the Student Senate gave its approval to free expression by approving its retention.

When contacted, Dr. Frederick R. Lowe, MCC president, said efforts are being made to find the guilty party.

Strikes Mark Power Fight In Prague

(Continued from Page One) indicated Dubcek's supporters were fighting to defend his reform policies against attacks by Old Guard hard-liners. Some members had angrily demanded to know what leaders had invited the Soviets to invade their country for the purpose of quelling "counterrevolution." Many Czechoslovaks feared they were the dying gasps of free discussion.

Dubcek was reported to have announced new allegiance to "democratic centralism," the orthodox Communist principle that debate stops once the decision is made.

The decision in this case, the final resolution of the Central Committee, is due Sunday at the earliest.

More than 100 of the 140 members who had asked to speak remained to be heard from in the closed Central Committee meeting at Prague Castle.

Evsen Erban, head of the National Council, urged Friday "disciplined implementation" of the final Central Committee decisions. But resolutions were reported pouring with objections to curbs on freedom of the press.

Prof. Ivan Malek, director of the Prague Microbiological Institute, said the continued distribution of Soviet propaganda material containing distorted information and lies "makes people's blood boil."

Frantisek Pavlicek, manager of the Vinohrady Theater in Prague, demanded to know what members of the Central Committee or government had invited the Soviet Union and other Warsaw Pact countries to invade Czechoslovakia in August. The Soviets had claimed Czechoslovakia's Communistists asked for outside help.

TV's 'Heidi'—No Controls

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Oscar-winning Delbert Mann, one of the pioneering directors of television drama, is returning to television after a considerable absence. Why?

"Because I can find in television the artistic freedom that isn't available in films right now," replied the Kansas-born director.

Mann, a tall, sandy-haired man who directs in a quiet, persuasive manner, was one of a galaxy of new directors who came to films out of television's golden era of drama. His springboard was "Marty," which he directed for television with Rod Steiger as the lovestick butcher. Ernest Borgnine starred in the low-budget film version which won Oscars for him, the film (best picture of 1955)—and Delbert Mann. "Bachelor Party," "Separate Tables," "Lover Come Back" and "That Touch of Mink" were among Mann's other films.

A year and a half ago producer Fred Brogger came to Mann with the proposal to film a new version of the children's classic "Heidi" in Switzerland for a television special. "Hell, yes," the director answered. "Let's talk."

Mann agreed with Brogger and his partner, actor James Franciscus ("Mr. Novak"), to direct "Heidi," and NBC came in on the deal. The show was filmed last fall in the Swiss Alps, at Lubek, Germany and in studio Hamburg with Maximilian Schell, Jean Simmons, Michael Redgrave, Walter Slezak and newcomer Jennifer Edwards in the title role. It will appear on NBC Sunday evening.

"One reason I did 'Heidi' was because of the challenge of bringing it up to date and shooting it on a reasonable budget ($800,000) in the actual locales," said Mann. "But the biggest lure was the artistic freedom which it afforded. After we agreed on the budget and the stars, there was no creation control exhibited by NBC or the sponsor. We just went away and shot it. You can't ask for more freedom than that."

"Some directors like Bobby Wise ('Sound of Music,' 'Star!') may have that sort of freedom in films nowadays, but that hasn't been true for me. The attitude of control over films today has led me to go back to television.

Mann has also been induced back to live television drama—or live-on-tape, as it is called now. He recently finished directing a CBS Playhouse, "Saturday Adoption," which will appear Dec. 4. His last television drama was "The Tunnel," which starred Richard Boone and Rip Torn on Playhouse 90 in 1959.

"I missed the excitement and concentration that live TV gave us in the old days," said Mann. "And once again, I was able to achieve the artistic freedom I can't get in films. The play is by a 23-year-old author named Ron Cowen and it concerns young people today. I felt it should be acted by young unknowns, and CBS said, 'Go right ahead—shoot it the way you feel it should be done.'"

JOE FLYNN GUEST

Joe Flynn, who starred in "McHale's Navy," has been cast as a guest star in an episode of "Family Affair," the Monday night series on CBS.

Who Gets the Ax?

THE WASHINGTON POST — Those who wish to protest about cancellations are in for a busy winter. Christmas presents in the form of January cancellations are being prepared for several of the series.

"Daktari" has already been canceled, effective Dec. 22, or just three shopping days before Christmas. Glen Campbell's variety show is the replacement.

Broadcasting Magazine reports that CBS is wavering over which one of two programs to kill. Should it be "The Good Guys," which is filmed on sets made with a child's Erector set? Or should it be "Blondie," which tends to prove that real people shouldn't play establish-

Jack Benny, The Graduate

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mr. Benny was indisposed. Old Walter Matthau dealing the blue-eyes had picked up the grippie during an engagement in Las Vegas and sounded more like Rochester than Jack Benny.

Still, he was able to receive a visitor at his penthouse apartment and talk about his favorite subject, show business. The particular piece of show business that concerned him at the moment was his first television special of the season, "Jack Benny's Bag," which appears on NBC next Saturday night.

"You'll like it; it's great," he said with customary confidence. "It may be the best special I ever did—I would at least put it in the same class with the show I did with the chimps."

"I'll show you how up-to-date the show is—I'm doing a take-off of 'The Graduate.' The other shows steered clear of it because they were scared of the censors. But I've got Phyllis Diller playing the Anne Bancroft role. When I make love to her, I defy anyone to consider it sexy."

I've got Lou Rawls and Eddie Fisher singing the Simon and Garfunkel song, 'Mrs. Robinson.' I never thought that Simon and Garfunkel would give me permission, but I asked them and they said I could use the song for nothing. Imagine—nothing!

"Rochester is back, and I open the show with him. I shouldn't tip this off, but it's so great. After he talks to me on the telephone, he turns back to his poker game. And there Walter Matthau dealing the cards, and Jack Lemmon fussing around the apartment!"

The special is sponsored by Texaco, for which Benny has appeared in spot commercials. He had some words to say about them:

"Some of my friends in the business say to me, 'Jack, why do you do commercials? It isn't like you.' My answer to them is, 'Frank Sinatra, who is the king of our business right now, in terms of what he can earn—Frank Sinatra goes on TV and sells beer. I mean, he makes the pitch himself. Well, if Frank Sinatra can do that, I can do some spots to sell gas.'"

"But I wouldn't do it if only the commercials were involved. The thing is, Texaco also pays me a lot of money for my television specials. It's all tied in together, and it makes a lot of sense."

Benny has another special to do this season and may sign for more next year. If so, he plans to eliminate other engagements. At 74, he continues to make a wide variety of appearances—night clubs, concert dates, etc.

"If I get the specials, I'll cut down, especially in Las Vegas," he said. "That's how I got this cold, working two shows a night. If they'll let me do one, then I'll go back. But it just gets to be boring, the two shows every night."

"But of course I'd never quit. What would I do? What would I have to talk about?"

Half-Hour Comedy Making Comeback

NEW YORK (AP) — The television wheel seems about to complete another cycle. This may be the high noon of the variety show, but there are signs that the half-hour situation comedy, snubbed for so long, is about to be rediscovered.

The programming game, as played by the major networks, is a variation of "follow the leader." Let one show in a category attract favorable attention, there soon will appear a clutch of programs that are at least kissing cousins. Then, with satiety, comes boredom and usually the imitators disappear.

"Bonanza's" success, for example, stimulated a strong of "family westerns." "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-in" has caused so much excitement that we are certain to be seeing a number of variety services using the same fast and furious style.

And, for a couple of reasons, we will soon see a return to the little half hour comedy series because "Julia" and "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir" have been so successful recently.

Another reason for renewed interest in the form is that it can't be criticized for violence or gun-play.

The success of "Julia," in fact, seems to have emboldened the programmers in another area. NBC is committed to a half-hour comedy series next season starring Bill Cosby. Flip Wilson will have his own series if his upcoming special works well; a Negro adaptation of "Laugh-in," called "Soul" and put together by the former's producers, has a chance for a regular spot on the program. And an independent producer has a blueprint for a soap opera with Negro characters dominating.

Presumably by midseason and certainly by next year the public will become bored by the fad in police stories. Writers are so preoccupied by drop-outs and drugs that scarcely a night goes by without one demonstration of a young hippy in deep trouble.

On another front, it appears that the days of ABC's "Peyton Place"—a type of show that never was successfully imitated in a night-time schedule—are numbered. The serial, bounced around the network's schedule during its five years, has performed badly in the ratings this
