Court Forbids Professor To Disrupt UConn Campus

By YERBY D'ITALIA

The University of Connecticut today obtained a temporary injunction against UConn Professor Jack L. Roach barring him from taking part in "any activities which would impair or prevent any lawful activity of the University of Connecticut."

The action is regarded as unprecedented in the country. The sociology professor has taken part in demonstrations at the Storrs campus in the past few months.

The temporary injunction was issued by Judge William Barber in Tolland County Superior Court in Rockville after arguments for both sides were heard in the two-day hearing. Outside the court house this morning, about 25 UConn students carried placards in support of Roach.

As Roach left, shortly before noon, he and several students were arrested on warrants for their part in recent demonstrations. Roach was charged with breach of the peace.

No appeal may be made against the temporary injunction.

Specific activities the injunction forbids: Roach may not obstruct the entry of any building; he may not enter any building where any has been restricted; he may not impede the ingress or egress of anyone; he may not willfully make any noise that is calculated to disrupt, and he may not encourage others to engage in disruptive activities.

The issuance of a temporary injunction in a case of this nature is without precedent in the country, both sides agreed.

Atty. John J. Hill Jr., representing the university, said that such an action was unprecedented because the activities on campus across the country are without precedent. He obtained the injunction would not be positive but preventive in nature. Atty. Hill said he hoped the decision of the court would set a precedent for dealing with similar actions across the country.

The attorney for Professor Roach, Thomas Grant, argued that a temporary injunction was too severe. He said there were several other remedies available to the state other than an injunction and he listed some statutes in his brief that he said provided remedy.

The main arguments of the defense centered on two points: That the injunction would violate Roach's constitutional right of free speech and that the penalty was too severe for the alleged wrong doing.

The defense denied from the beginning of the hearing yesterday that Roach himself ever actually impaired the lawful activities of the university.

A film clip was shown yesterday which showed Roach seated at a desk in the courtroom. He said in the state's complaint of impairing university activities on four occasions: Oct. 1 at a New Chemical recruitment; Nov. 22, 1968, at a meeting of the Phi Kappa Phi chapter; Nov. 23, 1968, at a meeting of the Phi Kappa Phi chapter; and Nov. 24, 1968, at a meeting of the Phi Kappa Phi chapter.

The film showed Roach refusing an interview with a WTIC newsmen. Roach was shown shouting obscenities into the microphones and making obscene gestures with his hands.

Immediately after the decision this morning, Roach walked over to several university officials, shook their hands and congratulated them, saying, "Well, I guess you won. You're smarter than I thought."

Roach was arrested by state police immediately after the decision. He was charged with breach of the peace. The charges stem from activities Roach engaged in on Jan. 15 and Jan. 25, according to an officer who was holding Roach in custody. He said the state's complaint of impairing university activities on four occasions: Oct. 1 at a New Chemical recruitment; Nov. 22, 1968, at a meeting of the Phi Kappa Phi chapter; Nov. 23, 1968, at a meeting of the Phi Kappa Phi chapter; and Nov. 24, 1968, at a meeting of the Phi Kappa Phi chapter.

Nixon Asks Senate To Ratify N-Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon asked the Senate today to ratify the nuclear nonproliferation treaty promptly. He said such action would further his goal of negotiation rather than confrontation with the U.S.S.R.

"My request at this time is no more than a confirmation of the Senate's previous action," Nixon said in a message to the Senate, recalled urging a delay in ratification of the treaty last fall because of the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Navy Awards $388 Million For New Jet

By BOB HORTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Years behind and millions of dollars behind the Navy awarded a $388-million contract for a new jet fighter capable of intercepting enemy bombers attacking the coast.

The Navy has fallen in an acceptance battle with the Air Force over a new jet fighter design expected to be developed by the Navy's Robert S. McNamara to provide a new fighter plane that could be adopted by all services.

The F-11B aircraft, started in 1965 and canceled last year when it proved unable to meet Navy specifications for carrier operations, was designed by the F-11B team.

Pentagon figures show the Navy spent $216 million on development of the F-11B. With little fanfare, the Navy announced Tuesday that Grumman Aircraft Industries of a few weeks ago has won the contract for a new jet called the F-11B.

The F-11B is the F-11B or VF-11B, which was called in initial paperwork, will have a swing wing and a fancy navigation system for its intercept duties.

Once the F-11B research and development is completed, the Navy will pick up an option to build 400 models of a cost estimated at $7.1 billion each—or over $1.8 billion in all.

Hundreds more F-11Bs may be ordered after that initial run, according to a Navy spokesman.

The F-11B is to be used to intercept Soviet bombers and other threats. It will be used to intercept Soviet bombers and other threats. It will be used to intercept Soviet bombers and other threats.

Allies Mull Plan For Asian Peace

PARIS (AP) — U.S. and North Vietnamese negotiators are studying proposals for a three-nation peace force to carry out a general ceasefire in Vietnam, according to a source here.

Pacific Oil Slick Surges into Harbor

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Oil from a leaking undersea well covered an estimated 800 square miles of the Pacific lagoon and spread into the small boat harbor of this coastal city.

Sixty persons living on boats were ordered ashore as a precautionary measure due to fire hazard.

The thick dark oil washed up on beaches where one man said, "The smell is awful."

As the leak went into its second week, the slick extended nearly 40 miles seaward, reaching the shores of Anacapa and Santa Cruz islands. It extended along beaches from Goleta, just west of Ventura, to a distance of about 20 miles to the west.

In many areas the oil had washed onto the beach, in others it was just offshore.

A wind shift during the night drove the oil into Santa Barbara Harbor.

Waves broke a log boom—a series of logs strung together to check the slick—and oil spread into the small pleasure harbor, where 700 boats valued at $20 million are kept.

Two workboats sprayed chemicals over the oil to try to break it up and minimize damage to boats and harbor facilities.

Oil workers six miles at sea worked to seal the well from which an estimated 100,000 gallons of oil have leaked since last Tuesday. A spokesman for Union Oil Co. said the leakage appeared to be lessening.

On Tuesday drilling resumed in the Santa Barbara channel after oil companies operating the six wells in the area agreed to tighter regulations set down by an emergency board of the Department of the Interior.

The stricter rules call for more frequent tests of blow-out devices, more rigid drilling procedures and the installation of more casing where needed.

The wells were shut down Monday at the request of Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel after he viewed the slick. He announced the suspension in Washington Tuesday saying that a thorough study is under way on regulations governing drilling on the continental shelf.

Nationwide Strike Hits Italy's Industry

ROME (AP) — A nationwide 24-hour strike set deep into Italy's heavy industry today, but the government said it was moving to slow the pace of the labor force.

The three major unions called a general strike in an attempt to force Premier Mariano Rumor's government to speed up the reform of the pension system.

At the Fiat Steel and Iron Works only 200 of 5,000 employees reported for work for the first shift, and at the Fiat Automobile works at Turin 70 per cent of the 11,000 workers stayed out. Many schools and filling stations were open, and in Milan, Pirelli SpA, leading rubber goods manufacturer, and Montecatini Edison, Europe's second largest chemical concern, reported "a high percentage of workers" did not show.

Many bank employees throughout Italy stayed off the job but without since Rumor formed his coalition Cabinet Dec. 12.

With 59 major labor contracts up for renewal this year, the government has long desired a more effective performance machinery. They once considered a body along the lines of the national relations Visa Supervisory Commission in Korea, but discarded this as too similar to the ICC.

A peace force from countries of the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong have not participated in such discussions.

The diplomats said the proposals probably will not be worked out at the peace conference until there is some progress in the settlement of the Vietnam war.

The conference is scheduled to start in Hanoi and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front refuse to discuss military or political issues without a general ceasefire.

Heavy industry appeared hard hit by the walkout. Police estimated 60,000 workers—30 to 40 per cent of the labor force in the big factories around Turin failed to show up.

Manchester's Water Problems—II Remedy Estimate $4.2 Million

(Editor's Note: This is the second of four articles based on the Griwold Engineering report released Jan. 20. Among the reasons the report was nearly two months late is the drought which has caused a shortage of water in the town system.)

But they warn that their figures are also showing 100 per cent efficiency which is difficult to maintain in any system, especially during high use periods. They also note the chances of poor meter records in their figures, town growth exceeding planning projections.

By MALCOLM BARELOW

The dependable water yield of all seven Town Water Department sources now is 4.14 mgd (million gallons per day). The recently released Griwold Engineering report on the town predicts the draft on this yield will be 5.25 mgd by 1970, 7.32 mgd by 1980, and 9.82 mgd by 1990.

This means the town could be short about 1.11 mgd next year, 3.14 mgd by 1980 and 5.68 mgd by 1990.

The Griwold engineers admit they are basing their dependence on the drought years of 1961 to 1968 and the town can expect much more water in the average year.

But they warn that their figures are also showing 100 per cent efficiency which is difficult to maintain in any system, especially during high use periods. They also note the chances of poor meter records in their figures, town growth exceeding planning projections.

U. S. JOINTING TABLES ON MIDDAY CRISIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States agreed today in a sole to France, to join in four-power talks aimed at breaking the deadlock in Middle East peace efforts. Secretary of State William P. Rogers handed the note to French Ambassador Charles Lugeat at 12:15 p.m. EST. President Nixon had decided several days ago to accept the French proposal for talks on the crisis.

Test Program Denied
 WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department and Smithsonian Institution officials have denied a report that a study of bird life in the Pacific was a cover-up for a chemical-biological warfare test program.

National Broadcasting Co. reported that a Smithsonian Institution bird-banding project was connected with such tests.

The Pentagon said Tuesday the study was at Baker Island, a small U.S. possession 1,700 miles southwest of Honolulu, was to investigate the natural distribution of disease by migratory birds. It began in 1962.

The Smithsonian has never engaged in any chemical or biological research for the armed forces or anyone else, a Smithsonian official declared.

Resignation Accepted
Space Chief 'Surprised'
 WASHINGTON (AP)—Dr. Edward C. Weibull, director of the National Aeronautics and Space Council, said he was surprised when President Nixon accepted his resignation as executive secretary of the National Aeronautics and Space Council.

Weibull, a prime mover in the area of manned space flight, was named to the $28,700-a-year job in 1962 by President John F. Kennedy.

"I had no many people indicate they hoped I'd stay on the job that I almost got to believe that I would stay," Weibull said after receiving a hand-delivered letter from Nixon accepting his resignation.

Weibull, 59, said he has no way of knowing whether his departure means a change in White House space policy.

"It's certainly up to the new administration to change the people they want," he added.

Weibull was an advocate of the moon landing goal set by Kennedy early in his administration.

Your Dental Health

This is the third in a six-part series of articles on dental health. The first article, published last week in cooperation with the Connecticut Dental Society in Vietnam, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, discussed the importance of dental care for the armed forces and the role of dental X-rays in diagnosis and treatment.

For several months ago, the newspapers have been carrying conflicting stories about the danger of X-rays. Are dental X-rays safe, even for small X-rays and pregnant women?

Let me emphatically state that dental X-rays, using modern equipment and procedures, are safe. Today's modern dental X-ray equipment exposes a patient to far less total body radiation than the radiation from natural sources.

Radiation, like many of modern medicine's tools, is potent. But when used judiciously, with proper equipment, the X-ray's potency is substantially reduced. Dental X-rays are essential to diagnosis. For example, X-ray pictures can reveal the beginning of decay, which cannot be seen by the dentist's eye; they can detect abnormal growth conditions, such as unerupted or mal-positioned teeth; they can expose such abnormalities as tumors or cysts.

The American Dental Association recently conducted a survey of dentists' average life-spans. The survey found that the average dentist lives longer than non-dentist males in the population. The average age at death of all dentists was found to be 71.2 years, while the average male life-span was 68.3 years.

Interestingly enough, the survey included many older dentists, men who were using X-ray machines when the procedure was still somewhat new and when the equipment was not nearly as safe as it is today. For example, older X-ray equipment emits a dose of exposure of from five to seven seconds instead of the one-tenth to three-tenths of a second for exposures today. And certainly the dentist runs a greater exposure risk than the individual patient.

As far as pregnant women are concerned, the ADA recommends that these patients be provided with lead aprons as an extra safety precaution. But the greatest patient protection is still the use of modern equipment and fast speed film. You must remember that your family dentist has received instruction in the use of X-rays. He is trained to operate the equipment and to consider all hazards to his patients. You can be certain that your dentist will not recommend the taking of X-rays unless he thinks that they are necessary for diagnosis and subsequent treatment.

The best attitude you can take is to let your dentist make the decision. He is the person most acquainted with you and your oral and general health and he knows whether you will need X-rays to help him decide upon his course of treatment.

Asks Simplification
Of Absentee Ballot
 HARTFORD (AP)—Secretary of the State Ella T. Grieco asked the legislature's Election Committee Tuesday to simplify Connecticut's absentee ballot.

Speaking before a committee hearing at the State Capitol, Mrs. Grieco said her office is studying absentee ballots of other states and will try to create a ballot acceptable to current voting laws but easy to understand.

"An understandable ballot cannot meet present legal requirements," Mrs. Grieco said in a position paper Tuesday, detailing plans to create a public change in the law.

Sheinwold on Bridge

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD
 The kind of bridge you play depends partly on the quality of your opponents. If they're soft, you can afford to play carefully. If they're tough, you must learn to avoid obvious mistakes in order to survive.

South Dealer.
 Both sides vulnerable.
 Opening lead—King of hearts.
 West opened the King of hearts. East followed with the Ace and South played the King. South hoped that West would lead another heart, but West instead led a spade, a discouraging lead and shifted to the ten of spades.

South played low from dummy, and East threw away his last spade. West would lead his other spade to give East the rest of the suit. If South retained the first spade, East would shift back to hearts. Either way South was down two.

Pin a medal on East-West for their defense. If East failed to play the Jack of spades at the second trick South could safely refuse that trick and win the next spade. Then South could develop the clubs without worrying about the spades.

Don't reach for a medal for South. He threw away his contract at the first trick, perhaps defense. South should take the defense. He should take the first trick with the Ace of hearts, get to dummy with a diamond and then lead the Queen of clubs for a finesse.

West could take the King of clubs, but could not run the hearts since South still had the Jack of hearts. If West shifted to the ten of spades South would immediately run his nine trumps—once spade, one heart, four diamonds and one club.

Partner opens with 1-N7 (16 to 18 points), and the next play is passed. You hold: Spades, 10-8-7; Hearts, K-Q-10-7-7; Diamonds, 8-4-3; Clubs, 10-8-2.

What do you say?
 Answer: Bid three hearts. You want to play four hearts if partner has three or more.

New Grade School's Trash: To Burn or Not To Burn

To burn or not to burn, and where—that seems to be one of the few remaining unanswered questions on the building of the new elementary school.

A recent report of town officials at the high school for almost two hours Monday night pending. The meeting was at the Public Building, Council Public Building, Council Joint Board of Education.

The result appeared to be that the architect would be asked to bring in comparative cost figures on an inside incinerator and a mulching unit. The other alternative would be to take all the trash from the new school to the dump.

No one seemed to be in favor of a mulching unit—a water-circulating shredding device which chews everything up and then compresses it, after which it must be dumped.

Both the present elementary school and the high school have incinerators. If regulations be come stricter, those would have to be changed, but school of fields, including James Vetch, building and grounds supervisor, said this would be possible.

An incinerator in the new school would comply with proposed legislation on incinerators. Architect Robert Lianhart said that an incinerator built according to these regulations would cost an estimated $400,000.

Lianhart was of the opinion that it would be cheaper to take the trash to the dump, or to use the incinerator at the present elementary school for incineration of that school's trash.

Vetch pointed out that the present incinerator is working all afternoon on its own trash, and that to take trash from a middle school will be un-velled.

After Discussions
 After the joint meeting, the two boards held their own meetings.

The Board of Education continued its budget discussion, but last week. The board is reviewing the budget, as the superintendent, preliminary budget figures, as they become ready. The board will review all figures again before making its request for the next fiscal year.

Dr. Castagna said that he had written the Board of Finance saying that the budget will be ready March 10, and asking for a joint meeting March 17.

The school board had also requested the finance board to discuss the budget at the last finance board meeting, but that meeting was postponed because of the weather.

Dr. Castagna said that he would be unable to attend all meetings, but he would be glad to attend the budget meeting Monday night.

There appears to be an understanding among the school board and the field trips, at least in the initial presentation. Dr. Castagna explained that his textbooks are being purchased because of the policy of the Board of Education and the high school will be five years old this September. Some are replacement for worn out books. Some are supplementary material.

As for the field trips, Castagna noted that, for trips out of the state—such as to Concord and Lexington, Mass., or to the Peabody Museum in Boston—

Charles Thompson, Mrs. James Meacham and Mrs. Raymond Smith, members of the Manchester WATES; and the enthusiastic audience response, and an increasing demand for a copy of the program, in the Manchester area.

William Forbes is concert program chairman, Kenneth Meibohf and Roger Ritchie are co-chairmen of ticket sales, Gordon McCowen and Les Cameron are co-chairmen of advertising and promotion, and Aubrey McMillan is chairman of the budget.

Tickets are on sale now from members of the band.

Show Marks 55th Year Of Kilties

The Manchester Pipe Band is going to celebrate its 55th anniversary this year with a variety show on Saturday, April 12, at Bailey Auditorium of Manchester High School.

Charles Murdoch, the band's pipe major, has been named general chairman of the committee developing the program. Brad Davis of WTTV-TV and radio will be master of ceremonies.

The band is familiarly known as the Manchester Kilties. Some of New England's foremost Scottish and Irish entertainers will appear on the show. Murdoch said, and the band will also play.

A similar show was presented by the band in Burlington in 1967 and reportedly met with enthusiastic audience response, and an increasing demand for a copy of the program, in the Manchester area.

William Forbes is concert program chairman, Kenneth Meibohf and Roger Ritchie are co-chairmen of ticket sales, Gordon McCowen and Les Cameron are co-chairmen of advertising and promotion, and Aubrey McMillan is chairman of the budget.

Artist Squirts Paint On French Cultural
MARC, France (AP) — Andre Malraux, minister for cultural affairs, was squirted with red paint Tuesday by a protesting artist who called it a "cultural act."

Malraux, here to lay the cornerstone for a Marc Chagall museum, called his assailant a scoundrel. "He jumped out at me shouting, 'Down with Chagall!'" Malraux said.

"I think it's marvelous that you still can shout, 'Down with painting in the street,'" Malraux commented, "but on the other hand I don't understand how someone can attack as worship an artist as Marc Chagall."

The protester, who said his name was Pincione, announced afterward "I am a painter, I know Malraux, and this is a cultural act." Malraux said he would not press charges.

Woman Found Guilty In Husband's Slaying

Gap in Ex-President's Defense

As might have been expected, Ex-President Lyndon B. Johnson has devised his first formidable appearance in public print to a defense of his policy in Vietnam.

And as might have been expected, he still does not prove capable of the realism or choice to recognize—the real issue.

The real issue was not intervention in Vietnam. We were, indeed, doing that before Mr. Johnson became President.

The crucial thing was the nature and the extent and the how of our intervention.

Ex-President Johnson now, as before, argues that we had "no acceptable option" but to intensify our effort when the enemy mounted an all-out drive to take South Vietnam and unbridge all of Asia.

The whole point of the Vietnam story and issue is that Mr. Johnson, as President, might have followed the option as he describes it and have done so without a major part of the controversy which engulfed him and the issue if he had omitted from his "intentionality" of our effort the strategy in which we departed from our relatively pure and maintainable role of non-intervention.

This was the act by which, instead of merely meeting and repelling aggression, we ourselves crossed a boundary and extended the war. This was the act which emphasized our lack of any international sanction for our military policy in Southeast Asia. It was the act which raised the temperature of opposition and criticism of our behavior, both at home and abroad.

It is an ironic footnote that our decision to carry the war to North Vietnam, by bomb and shell, which cost us so heavily in lives and treasure, had not yet been rated as a decision which was really worth while even from the practical military point of view. Certainly it did not accomplish what was promised for when it was begun. It was then supposed to bring North Vietnam to its knees in a matter of a few weeks. But the final military appraisal may judge that the war itself would have gone just as well for us if President Johnson had never inaugurated, on Feb. 7, 1968, the bombing which lasted for the next three years.

The possibility which ought to be considered by future analysts of the Vietnam issue is that, if the bombing had never been begun, we might have managed a defensive holding action in South Vietnam and in the interim have had, as we have achieved, at much less cost in manpower, dollars, and controversy.

Why did we not give more consideration to such an option of repelling and containing aggression without broadening and intensifying our own risk and controversy?

The answer may not lie in any simple analysis of military strategies. In almost every important pronouncement by either President Johnson or Secretary Rusk during the years of the Vietnam issue there was a purely American presence, a power position, on the mainland of Asia, that, indeed, we had some kind of duty and obligation to ourselves to be there. In some part of our policy instinct, then, the defense of South Vietnam was merely the incidental in what our policy makers regarded as our vital national interest of asserting our own power, and showing our flag, on the mainland of Asia.

The wisdom and necessity of that, too, will be a subject for future judgment by historians, even though, like the bombing itself, it is not something our Ex-President chooses to concede any special attention or importance.

One Way Left To Run Railroads? It hasn't taken Connecticut very long to realize that whatever happens to the Railroad it is not going to make good news to the customers.

At the moment, the only bright spot which suggests itself for the thinking of customers of the New Haven division of the Penn Central is this: Perhaps, by running fewer trains at higher fares, the Penn Central management will be able to afford some soap and water for the coaches it will still keep in service.

We in this department cling, we are afraid, to certain anachronistic assumptions.

We believe there ought to be decent, respectable service not only between Hartford and New York, but between New York and Montreal.

And we believe that the convenient public, which originally issued every franchise to every railroad, should have something to say about what services are maintained and what services are discontinued by the holders of such franchises.

Clinging to two such anachronistic beliefs as this, however, now seems to forbid any further allegiance to another old-fashioned theory—the theory that private enterprise can best run the kind of railroad the public wants and needs.

There seems only one logical eventual conclusion: That would be for the taxpayer to stop subsidizing managements which run railroads in defiance of the wishes and needs of the public and have government begin running the railroads here, as government runs them in every country in the world where service is clean, efficient, and adequate.

Every new administration, we imagine, for the last 30 years, has had some real soul somewhere in it who dreamed of the possibility of freeing the farmer and freeing the consumer and freeing the taxpayer from the round of artificial management which makes the taxpayer pay for higher taxes and higher prices in order to guarantee to the farmer, providing he allows the government to tell him how much to plant and grow, an income handsome than anybody ever guarantees any consumer or taxpayer.

Even the farmer himself is not reality supposed to like it. But something, usually disappearance from the scene, or, in tenuous cases, eventual defeat at the polls, always happens to anybody who really tries to do anything about changing the price support system.

Still, it is nice to have somebody like Dr. Houtthacker come in with each new administration. We hope they treat him gently.

Looking Again At Annual Sessions

A legislative press corps poll of State members representing various sessions has disclosed the predominant sentiment in favor of annual sessions for Connecticut's General Assembly.

This wouldn't be the first time our lawmakers have been discovered tramping merely down an unknown and unmarked roadway.

It would appear that the majority of legislators are embracing annual sessions as the answer to the problem of improving legislative performance. The idea of annual sessions has become one of the doctrinaire "reforms" automatically linked to any modernization of the General Assembly.

The issue seems to have reached a stage of urgency this year as a result of several factors, but we sense chiefly because of the catalytic impetus of a year marked by such things as the Citizens Conference on State Legislatures, Headquarters in Kansas City, Mo., this national organization draws its principles from some of the major private foundations.

We're not about to challenge the assistance the Citizens Conference has afforded its old buddies at American by killing the hourly award of the Tolvo route to award of presents from Japan.

Thus, American legislators have had a disconcerting experience in the past few years of a "renewal" of the office of Mr. Nixon. Presumably, it began scintillating about for another law firm.

In the case of the Park Avenue firm of Howell, Koenig, Rogers & Walls, whatever this firm might lack in aviation industry experience is more than made up by its potential as a Manhattan reformer. Shown in their Rombschian preferences, the firm's partners include William P. Rogers, Mr. Nixon's Secretary of State.

When American made its proposal, the Rogers firm, immediately realizing the potential for scandal, firmly declined.

But American was outdone in the quest for Republican influence by Eastern, an airline and lawyer lacking in Democratic recommendations. It may well have suffered for that lack. Recommended a rich collection of Eastern men are being themselves for a poisonous stretch of Potomac infighting.

There is a lesson here. The Transpacific case, more than any other recent decision to come before a regulatory commission, points to the need of reform—a possibly radical reform—in the basic operations of the quasi-judicial regulatory agencies.

Editor's Note: George A. Spater, president of American Airlines, denied allegations about American in the Evans and Novak column distributed by Publisher Hall Syndicate.

Mr. Spater said "American Airlines was completely surprised by President Nixon's January 24 decision to reopen the Transpacific route case and had not 'lobbied for' or recommended such action by the President. No one in American Airlines has been 'recruited' for a law firm with Republican connections; and specifically American has made no contact with the firm of Royal, Koenig & Rogers. We have also ascertained that this firm has no knowledge of any approach by American."

Inside Report

by Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

WASHINGTON — No sooner had President Johnson announced his decision Dec. 19 in the malevolently contested Transpacific air route case than two major airlines—American and Eastern—began a quiet search for Republican rainmakers.

They were already looking ahead to the prospect that President Nixon, once in office, might well wipe out his predecessor's decision awarding lucrative air routes to Hawaii and the Orient. And that is precisely what happened on Jan. 24, in an atmosphere thick with suspicion for Republican rainmakers.

To Protect Non-Smokers

The editorial in defense of the smoker was interesting, but I am amazed at its choice of words and point of view. It would seem nonchalantly to disregard the wisdom, the years of research of The American Public Health Association, The Connecticut State Department of Health, The American Heart Association, The National Tuberculosis Association and others.

Two Groups Plan First Aid Course

The Columbia Chapter of the American Red Cross and the Public Health Nursing Agency are co-sponsors of a first aid course for women in the three towns, which will run for five weeks. Registration for the course will take place Feb. 11 at 7:30 to 9 p.m. in the basement of the Hebrew Congregational Church on Rt. 86.

The course to be given will be the standard or basic one. Trained instructors Durwood Miller and Mrs. Mary Maloney, both of Manchester, will be in charge of the group. Participants in the course will wear slacks, bring along a notebook, and a first aid textbook. The latter will be available at the meetings at a cost of 75 cents.

A number of men in Andover with previous first aid training have requested that a refreshment course be run for them. This is now being planned by the sponsoring groups and details will be announced later on.

Helping to Celebrate a 90th Birthday

Gresko, land in area of Rt. 6 and Old State Rd., according to the Connecticut Highway Department. The department announced Tuesday that receipts, including restaurant and service station concessions, were just under $27.7 million for the year.

Design Error Said Cause of QEZ's Trouble

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP)—The maker of the engines of the Queen Elizabeth 2 today blamed a design error for failure of the new liner's turbines during her shakedown cruise. A spokesman for John Brown Engineering, Ltd., said the turbine rotors would be returned to the ship at Southampton by March 7. Their installation in readiness for new sea trials could be completed in two weeks.

The spokesman said the failure of the turbines involved vibration of its blades.

Managing Director Graham Strachan said his firm's workmanship and material had been blamed for causing the turbine failure. The speed of the ship would be unimpeded, he said, and there was no question of cancelling the builders, Upper Clyde Shipbuilders, Ltd., to acquire the turbines.

The government also has established a national commission to study heraldic for use against the parasite.

Coventry 126 Sign Petition For Shop Center

One hundred and twenty-six town residents have signed a petition stating they are in favor of the proposed W. Harry England shopping center at the corner of Rts. 44A and St. The Planning and Zoning Commission was presented with the petition following a lengthy meeting Monday night in which nearly five hours of discussion was devoted to the England proposal.

Atty. David C. Rappe, representing England, said he had been asked to draw up the petition by some townspeople and that it had been placed in Rolling Plaza, where the signatures were collected in four days.

Nothing new came out of Monday night's meeting except for some further indication by Engineer John Pessato, for England, of plans for a large supermarket and several smaller shops, and a separate station right at the corner of Rts. 44A and St. The site-shape of the project in a way that would not cause pollution to the surrounding area and nearby brook.

Director of health Dr. Robert Bowen, who has expressed concern for proper sewage disposal, attended the meeting also. He said he would approve a system for the project if it had been recommended for approval by the State Department of Health, and it is expected that the detailed drawings necessary for submission to the review.

Pessato said he had in preliminary drawings, which he displayed, allowed for certain drains, which would take care of ground water in the area. He said he would be more than adequate to handle the anticipated load.

As expressed at the public hearing on the project last month, pollution has been the gravest concern, since the site of the proposal is on what is described as an "upland bog."

Black Boycott Ends in Hamden, 14 Pupils Return

HAMDEN, Conn. (AP)—A black boycott of Hamden High school classes ended today following a decision by school officials to allow 14 suspended students to return to classes between now and next Monday.

Suspension of 12 students—seven black and five white—were ended Tuesday.

Eleven students will remain suspended for their alleged participation in a racial brawl in a school cafeteria nine days ago. Two of the 11 are black and the remainder white.

A total of 29 arrests have been made in connection with the Jan. 28 incident at the suburban high school, where 81 of the 2,000 students are black.

The black boycott of classes, urged by a group called the Council of Black Fathers, was nearly 100 per cent effective when shortened school sessions resumed last Wednesday.

By Tuesday of this week about 25 black students were back in school, and about 50 were attending special classes in neighboring New Haven—set up by the black fathers' group.

George Kent, a spokesman for the black fathers' group, said he had been assured by the Board of Education that there will be sufficient changes in administration procedures to meet demands of the black parents.

Among their requests last week—denied by the Board of Education—were a meeting between the full board and black parents and the immediate reinstatement of suspended students.

Special classes for the 11 students who will still be on suspension, need week area to be established at the Hamden-New Haven Cooperative Center; the Board of Education announced Tuesday night. School officials pointed out that no suspensions have resulted from the suspension.

Grant Approved WASHINGTON (AP)—A federal construction grant of $85,000 was approved Tuesday for the Valley Association for Retarded Children and Adults Inc. of Derby, Conn.

The money is for construction of a diagnostic and evaluation clinic that will provide day care for 400 mentally retarded persons.

Senate Democrats Veto Simple Replies

HARTFORD (AP)—Senate Democrats voted unanimously Tuesday to block giving simple "yes" or "no" answers to polls conducted by newsmen covering the legislature.

Majority Leader Edward J. Marcus said legislators "should not pre-judge issues" and "should take positions on matters" only after they have all the facts. Minority Leader William Barnes said the GOP was not going to follow suit since a person is never forced to answer a question.

Newsmen have held polls this session to find out where senators stood on the issue of a state income tax, annual legislative sessions, and a state lottery.

Bolton 31 Positions Listed For May 5 Election

The town clerk has finally received the positions to be filled in town elections May 5. The list was held up in the office of the secretary of the town because of a clerical error. It has now been revised correct to that office and by the town clerk.

There are 31 positions to be elected. Candidates are being held in two full terms (1969-70) and one for an unexpired term (1969-70). Albert Hopper and James Norris, both Republicans, will be up for election in the former. Frederick Barretto, a Democrat, is serving the unexpired term.

Charles Lake's term on the Board of Assessors will be up. He is a Democrat. The new clerk, town treasurer, tax collector, and agent of the town deposit fund. The incumbent town clerk, treasurer and tax collector, all Republicans, have filed to seek re-election.

On the Board of Finance there will be three vacancies, two full terms and one unexpired term. The terms of Norman Prens and Peckham have expired. Peckham has been re-elected for a second term, which runs from 1969 to 1971.

The unexpired term is being filled by Russell Moonan, a Democrat. It has been ruled by the town clerk that the term takes effect on the day of election. So whoever is elected to this, and other similar, spots will take office May 5 rather than July 1.

Three elected for full terms begin July 1. The unexpired term runs to 1971. Voters can vote for all three candidates.

There will be five vacancies on the Board of Education, a seven-man board. There are five full-term (1969-71) and one to fill vacancies (May 5, 1969 to July 1, 1971). Those whose full terms are Mrs. Claire Warde, a Democrat, Harold Smith and Alfred Manigault.

Democrat Ronald Parry and William Houle are currently serving the unexpired term. Remaining on the board are Republicans James Grunski and Rippy Graham.

Voters will be allowed to vote two candidates for the three full terms, and one candidate for the two full terms. The maximum number of board members allowable from one party is five. The present set-up is four Republicans and three Democrats.

Six evening courses offered by the Continuing Education Department of Manchester Community College will begin this month. The classes will meet one evening a week. All will be held in Manchester High School.

12th Circuit Court Cases

ROCKVILLE SESSION
William Renaud III, 18 of 72 Elm St., was charged with the investment of a charge of theft of a motor vehicle in Rockville Circuit Court. Renaud waived examination and was bound over to Toland County Superior Court by Judge William Ewing. A charge of failure to obey an officer's signal was also taken.

Police say that Francis C. Hall, 48, of East Hartford was driving east on Hill St. yesterday, attempted to turn left on Hill St. but cut the corner too sharply. He ran into a car turning right on Hill St. driven by Dennis R. Neumeier, 22, of 115 Sycamore Lane. Both cars were drivable, no injuries were reported, and no police action was taken.

A collision at the intersection of Bridge St. and Hartford Rd. involved cars driven by David A. Nourie, 21, of 50 Forest St. and James B. Sullivan, 65, of 45 Riverside St. No injuries were reported, both cars were drivable, and no police action was taken.

A collision in the Parkside parking lot between Sears Automotive and the bowling alley was caused by slippery conditions. The cars were Robert J. Balfe, 20, of Mountain St. in Rockville and Richard W. Thompson, 42, of 214 Oak St. in Wapping. Only slight damage was incurred, and no police action was taken.

A break and entry was reported at Muller's Service Station sometime after closing Monday night. According to police, a padlock was pried off a rear door and there was evidence that desks in two offices were searched. Nothing is reported missing.

Police Log

Charles G. Edson, 35, of Storrs, was arrested on a warrant issued by the District Court yesterday charging him with obtaining money under false pretenses. He allegedly cashed a check at a Manchester food store. Court date is Feb. 17.

Ronald P. Fiora, 16, of East Hartford was charged with shoplifting yesterday at Treasure City in the Parkside after allegedly putting three records aboard a car and attempted to leave the store. He was released on a written promise to appear in court Feb. 17.

Roger Fodder, 16, of 344 Lyndal St. was charged with larceny under $50 yesterday and released under no bail for a court date on Feb. 17. According to police, an employe of Moriarty's Service Station on the Board of Tax Review is lying on the hood of a car in the rear parking lot. The windshield was broken and Fodder allegedly had his arm through the hole. When he drove away, he left the car with the windshield shattered. A tachometer was missing from the car in the lot. Fodder was released for questioning later for processing.

The term of John Morano, secretary of the Board of Appeals will be up next year. The new term runs 1970-71.

Police report that Sara Phillips of Glastonbury lost control of her car on Feb. 17. She was taken to icy conditions and ran into a telephone pole. The car was damaged and the occupant, Phillips, 49, was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital for four weeks until last month. No police action was taken.

Police say Martha Partman of 180 Scott Dr. was southbound on Walker St. yesterday and slid into a stop sign at the intersection of E. Center St. and Hartford Rd. No injuries were reported, and no police action was taken.

A minor collision in the parking lot by Sears Automotive on the board of the state building code and the building inspector is next Wednesday, rather than today as stated yesterday in The Herald. It will be held on discussion purposes only and will be held on Feb. 11 at the Community Hall.

Hawaii-Bound Salesman Arrested in Hijack 'Joke'

HONOLULU (AP) — Archie Eugene Evans, 33, instructed his driver, James Dooley, to take the plane to Hawaii when the pilot thought it was funny money when he allegedly told a United Air Lines stewardess to tell the pilot the jetliner should head for Cuba.

Evans was arrested before U.S. Commissioner Henry W. C. Wong in Honolulu Tuesday night on a charge that he "impair[ed] the safety of an aircraft while in flight." Evans was taken to the Honolulu Police Station and released on $100 bail.

Hijackers' Profile His Life Is Black and Ugly, He Needs a Dramatic Play

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — His life has been a nightmare of routine, and failure. Mentally, he is overwhelmed by his own pro-tema, tortured by the unrest abroad in the world. Life, black and ugly, offers him nothing but despair.

Before he goes, he must stage one big dramatic play—something that will restore the long-lost respect of family and friends, raise him above the facade mob, give him back some semblance of pride.

High in the sky, he pulls a gun and muscles his way into the cockpit of an airliner.

The engagement of Miss Barbara A. Quinn to David M. Tupper, both of Manchester, has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Quinn of 1000 Park St.

Her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Blon P. Tupper of 76 Johnson St.

Miss Quinn is a graduate of Manchester High School and is currently attending the University of Connecticut at Storrs.

Mr. Tupper is a graduate of Manchester High School and is currently attending the University of Connecticut at Storrs.

The wedding is planned for May 2.

U.S. Engineer's
Wife Released,
Iraqis Report

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Elizabeth Ball, wife of American engineer Paul Ball, has been released from a prison in Iraq, reports from Baghdad said today.

Mr. Ball was placed under house arrest when his husband was seized in December for Iraq's oil fields.

Mr. Ball is a graduate of Manchester High School and is currently attending the University of Connecticut at Storrs.

The reports said Mrs. Ball is staying in the Belgian Embassy in Baghdad and her husband is still in custody.

It is still a novelty to jangle dwelling villagers. Men, women and children stand near the tracks to wave as the cars rattle past. But it is also a very real reminder of the war.

Every station along the route is raving and bullet-pocked. "We'll shoot any new bridge in the tangled wreckage of an earlier age."

When the train passed through the giant U.S. base at Phai Bai, seven miles south of Hanoi, two American military policemen, charged and the announcements that 60 other persons, including children, would be tried on similar charges.

Ball is an employe of the Franklin Oil Co. in Houston, Tex., but he has been on loan to the Iraq Petroleum Co., a Western consortium in Baghdad, for about a year.

60 Students Charged
In Pasty Raid Try

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — More than 200 male students, most of them from Biscayne, tried an old-fashioned party ride on the all-night campus of Barry College today, but the raiders scattered in getting arrested.

When things calmed down after two hours, the 60 students got all but one from Biscayne—had been arrested on charges of disorderly conduct and unlawful assembly causing a disturbance. They were released in custody of college officials, police said.

After Two-Year Shutdown South Vietnamese Railroad Resumes Hue-Da Nang Run

By RICHARD FYLE
Associated Press Writer

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — The Hue-Da Nang railroad, the southernmost of the country's railroads, resumed its regular service today.

At Hoa Xa, 28 miles north of Da Nang and the gateway to the Hue-Van region, the southernmost and northernmost trains pass. There is a brief stop when one is switched to a siding and young girls hawk American canned beef while the passengers stretch their legs.

Hue-Van is made up of forerunners. Thick grass and foliage growing beside the tracks, blind curves and eight tunnels can conceal any number of Viet Cong hidden in the brush.

Since the early days of France, Indochina was a hotbed of Communist activity and has been a hotbed of Communist activity ever since.

MRA Views Plans Proposed by Farr

The Manchester Redevelopment Agency last night viewed the early drawings of the James Farr Sport Center and the enlarged Don Willis Garage next to it on Main St. in the North End Renewal Project.

The Farr plan, which is being prepared by the D. Taylor, agency vice chairman.

The other four agency members agreed, as they outlined the two buildings.

Farr's Sport Center is to be built on the site of the old building. The plan calls for a two-story building with a parking garage and a railroad truck spur. It will be roughly of the same brick design as the Don Willis apartment building directly across from it on Main St.

The bottom floor will have a bicycle showroom with other sports goods. The upstairs will display camping equipment. The one-story rear of the building will have other sales items and the full basement will be for storage. Sales space totals 6,000 square feet.

Byrne Industries is designing Farr's building which will have air conditioning and carpets throughout. Farr is now owner of Manchester Surplus Sales on the other side of the railroad tracks. It is one of the last stores open in the project.

The design for the enlargement of the Don Willis Oil Co. was done by City Service Oil Co. It will be a brick colonial to make use of the present building. The old bricks will be cleaned.

Everett T. Keith, agency chairman, voiced objection to having big bay doors open onto Main St. from the older part of the project.

Directors Turn Down Bid For Martin School Funds

The Manchester Board of Directors last night, by a 4 to 3 vote, turned down a Board of Education request for a $1.6 million appropriation. It was for equipment for the new $1.6 million Richard Martin School. Voting against the appropriation were the board's three Democrats, William Fitzmaurice, Anthony Fitzmaurice and Mary Lachin, joined by Republican David Odgaard.

Voting for the appropriation were Republicans Harold A. Turkington, John Garofalo and Wayne Marz. Republicans Nathan Agostinelli and William Schaller were not present when the vote was taken. Agostinelli arrived later for last night's meeting. Schaller did not attend.

The three Democrats, plus Odgaard, justified their "no" vote on the argument that it would be unwise to spend money for non-essential needs in the town's current school, when administrative needs exist in the older schools.

The school board, when it voted Dec. 22 to request the $1.6 million appropriation, did so by a 6 to 3 vote, along party lines, with the Republican majority voting "yes," and its Democratic minority "no."

Last night's discussion of the proposal was punctuated by sharp disagreement between School Superintendent Donald Hennigan and Town Manager Robert Weiss.

Hennigan said that the $1.6 million request was an exaggeration, after he had learned that the town's 1967-68 General Fund surplus was greater than had been anticipated.

He justified the request on the basis that, in his opinion, a $18,000 item for school equipment had been cut to $32,000 by the Board of Directors, when it authorized a $10,000 bond issue for the school.

Weiss replied "not so" to Hennigan's allegation. He said that the cut "was made along the line" by the Building Committee, that the board knew nothing of a $38,000 proposal, that it approved the $10,000 item as presented to it, and that "every penny (for equipment) was spent as appropriated."

"And," he added, "the $22,000 recommendation by the Building Committee was on the advice of the school board."

Hennigan acknowledged that the request for Martin School equipment does not fulfill the greatest need in the schools, and admitted that better uses for the money exist.

He said that his 1968-70 school budget will provide for improvements in the older schools, including $80,000 for Lincoln School, "to at least make it livable."

He pleaded, "Let's do something tonight, just for once, without looking to the past. Let's go forward. Let's do something that will make the 300 to 400 children at Martin School happy and satisfied."

The $1.6 million request consisted of $1,137 for audio-visual equipment, $2,000 for library books, $1,200 for general equipment, and $502 for kindergarten supplies.

Fitzmaurice, who led the opposition to the appropriation, said, "I can't see making a deficit appropriation for our new school. There are an awful lot of other problems, and it's about time we did something about them."

He added, "It's the Board of Education I'm annoyed with. They don't put things in their proper perspective. Which is more important—books for the

Where Next? MRA Asks Of Renewal

Where to have the next redevelopment project concerned the members of the Manchester Redevelopment Agency during its meeting last night.

The North End project is the one being discussed most actively and the five commissioners said they must re-examine the town to see what other areas could be developed from renewal.

The Cheney Mills area of Hartford St. and Pine St. was suggested to them by Mayor Nathan Agostinelli in January.

The mayor said many of the factory buildings there are obsolete for today's industries and he suggested that they be demolished.

Edward J. Rybicki, agency executive director, informed the agency members that Suburban Center Associates Inc. is still dealing with three prime lots on the corner of Main St. and the location of Main St. and the plans for the two buildings were merely presented to the agency last night for an informal review. Final approval will come later.

Warning Signs, New Light Asked at Dobson Ave. Bridge

The Board of Representatives will not complete design work on this project until 1970. This work will entail test borings, river depth and outcours, Tricartio explained.

The town's engineer, John Pozzato, was also asked to make a study of the Dobson Ave. problem.

Pozzato told the board he thinks it is unwise to quote costs until certain preliminary information can be ascertained. He said there are several types of bridges which can be employed and the economics and suitability of one over the other are academic until some field knowledge is obtained.

Tricartio said his department had planned on making a feasibility study which would take some time. This would include the possibility of widening Dobson bridge and methods of doing it and realignment of Dobson Ave.

Realignment and widening would be based on a preliminary design. Tricartio noted. The highway department's engineer further suggested

Harvard Faculty Votes To Withdraw ROTC Credit

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—The Harvard faculty of Arts and Sciences has voted to require the withdrawal of all courses offered in the Reserve Officer Training of the Army ROTC program, and to terminate the use of university facilities pointed at the decision, but not as surprised as I might have been a few weeks ago.

Pell blamed the decision on the students and faculty resentment of the Vietnam war, and said the decision was made "in a feverish haste."

About 150 students, out of a total undergraduate enrollment of about 5,000, are now enrolled in the Army ROTC. Pell said, and that two-thirds of them are graduate students who receive no academic credit.

The next step is for the Harvard Corporation to act upon the faculty request.

The ROTC courses were externally controlled by the Pentagon, which appointed the instructors.

Also discussed was the south side of Charter Oak St. opposite the exit ramp of Rt. 6 now under construction. The Downtown Renewal plan defeated by the voters in October 1966 included the extension of College St. south to Charter Oak St. opposite the exit ramp and north along the east side of the street. The agency men still have planning funds available from the federal government to work on the Downtown area. They were trying last night to pick the major plan apart to present a much smaller plan for voter approval.

Also discussed included putting a desliver on the 200,000 square feet to be surrounded by Charter Oak St., S. Main St., St. 6 and its exit ramp. This area is now planned for use as a parking lot for the new Junior High School.

Keith drew attention to the land north of Lincoln School on Main St. Redesigning the intersection of Main and Center Sts. could be included in any projects there.

Rybicki added that any project would have to be small and at least 50 per cent of it would have to provide low to moderate income housing to meet new federal requirements.

Keith said their discussion tonight for a meeting with Raymond and May Associates, a planning firm, to talk further on projects.

Stamps In the News

By SYD KRONBERG
AP Newswireman
Scenes of Berlin a century ago—a blacksmith repairing a wheel, a horse trolley driver with top hat and cloak, strollers in front of the Brandenburg Gate—will be featured in 100-stamp form on a new series of eight stamps by the postal department of West Berlin. The designs are taken from the works of eminent 19th century painters, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. One stamp shows a blacksmith's apprentice and woman in bonnets, taken from the work of Franz Kugler. C. W. Alder's designs depict a newspaper vendor in front of the Berlin Exchange, the driver of the horse trolley between Potsdam Bridge and the Rosenblatt Gate. A drawing by Heinrich Zille illustrates a street car driver and mare in front of the Silesian Railroad Station. The stamps, entitled "Berlin of the 19th Century," will be issued later this year and will be available at your local stamp store or dealer.

A controversy over the design of an impending stamp issue in Ceylon has caused such a furor that it has been withdrawn in the face of religious indignation, according to Stamp Magazine. The Ceylon Postal Department had published that it would issue two new stamps to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the Buddhist Congress, but the Buddhists became enraged and insulted when the design of the higher value was announced as showing the right foot of Buddha.

Vociferous objections included the following: It was an insult to even show a part of Buddha; it was an act of sacrilege to "apply spittle" on a sacred picture and strike it with a metal stamp; it was a commercialization of religion. Letters of protest bombarded the local press, particularly the Sinhalese language newspaper.

The design died only when the postmaster general declared that the stamps would not be issued but that a special pictorial postmark would be used to honor the occasion.

The Republic of Guinea has just issued a new series of stamps honoring three distinguished U.S. leaders. The set is entitled "Martyrs of Liberty" and shows portraits of John F. Kennedy, Robert F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King. There are six stamps in the set. Three are for regular postage and three airmails.

INDIAN HANDICRAFTS NEW DELHI (AP) — Indian handicrafts are important foreign exchange earners for India, official statistics here show. They were expected to yield $1.2 million in 1968 or $13.8 million more than 1967. This is almost equal to earnings for traditional items, including cane, jute and engineering goods.

Fancy jewelry in 1967 earned $40 million in foreign exchange. Handmade women's cosmetics rank next, with an expected revenue of $16 million in 1968. No less than 2.2 million people are engaged in handicrafts work. The government is drawing up plans to improve their working conditions, including instituting old age pension.

50 Years Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney B. Cushman Sr. of 551 Parker St. were honored Friday night at a 50th wedding anniversary celebration at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Hayden Griswold of 88 Steep Hollow Lane.

About 25 friends and relatives attended the party which was given by the couple's children, Mrs. (Mary) Griswold, Mrs. Melvin (Phyllis) Derrick, Sidney Cushman Jr. and Eugene Griffin, all of Manchester.

The guests of honor were presented with a purse from their children and flowers from their nine grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Cushman were married the afternoon of Jan. 30, 1919 by the Rev. Richard Peters, pastor of North Congregational Church, at the home of Mrs. Cushman's parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Walker H. Tracy of 302 Woodbridge St. The Cushman's have lived in Manchester all their lives.

Mr. Cushman is a retired tobacco grower. His farm occupied the land which is now the residential development called High Ridge.

Precipitation may total less than one-quarter inch water equivalent occurring an occasional snow shower around Saturday or Saturday night.

JUST ASKING

LUCKNOW, India (AP) — Maharishi Mahesh Yogi may not be a prophet, but is certainly without honor in his own country, even in his own state.

The Beatles' one-time mentor was harassed by the students and professors of Lucknow University while peddling transcendental meditation.

An trade professor asked whether transcendental meditation's secret was so esoteric that his Holiness could not reveal it to an educated audience.

Another teacher asked if it was true that Mahesh was an agent of a foreign power.

"Ask the government," the smiling Yogi replied.

A girl asked why his Holiness needed air-conditioned rooms to preach his message and why he stayed with maharajas and tycoons in five-star hotels.

"Lord Krishna, the first yogi, did not need all these," another girl added.

Windham in Romp, Keeps Pace in UConn

By DEAN YOST

Manchester, keying on Dan Switkowski, the "Whippersnapper" candidate, left Earl Yost open for numerous shots. This enabled Windham to increase its lead as Manchester couldn't cope with the situation. Ernie Moore, the big man for Windham, blocked many Manchester shots and controlled both backboards. Windham shot 30 per cent from the field and 41 per cent from the foul line. Manchester shot 25 per cent from the field and 41 per cent from the foul line. The Indians only made one basket in 16 attempts in the fourth quarter. The only bright spot for the Indians was Brian Maher making 10 for 10 from the foul stripe.

Leading all scorers was Kieran, popping in 21 points. Contributing to the Manchester attack were Mike Siders, who had four in a row before the game, and Ken Terford with 11. Switkowski had 14 points and Ken Terford with 11. Switkowski had 14 points and Ken Terford with 11.

Bill Russell Up, Around Exercising

BOSTON (AP)—Doctors are ready have Bill Russell walking in his room and exercising the leg he injured Sunday, but there's no indication yet when he will be able to leave the hospital in the job of rebuilding the Boston Celtics.

The 40-year-old player suffered a strained ligament of his right knee when he crashed to the floor in the final seconds of the Celtics' 99-94 National Basketball Association loss to the New York Knicks in Boston Sunday. He was taken immediately to University Hospital, where doctors decided no surgery was needed.
