Bolton Conservationists Ask Elevated Rt. 6

The town of Bolton feels that the town from the construction of the road will be largely off-set by the further loss of land, loss of homes and physical disruption of the town.

The town is very anxious to minimize these detrimental effects and therefore proposes a 1.44 mile elevated highway through Bolton. The proposed route is favored for the following reasons:

Utilize the new highway construction to Bolton Notch; minimize right of way acquisitions through the town (100 acres); minimize loss of existing residential and commercial development; avoid all parks, schools, town office, cemeteries and historical areas; minimize the physical division of the town; best serve existing industrial-commercial zone; provide redesign for the improvement of existing hazardous traffic flow in the Notch area; minimize the number of additional road crossings; provide a Blackledge River conservation area; is compatible with the proposed route in the Bolton area; is compatible with the proposed route in the Bolton area.

'Odd Couple' Total Theater

The 29th Season of The Manchester Community Players' production of "The Odd Couple" is now in its final week. The play, which opened last night at the Bolton Notch, has been a tremendous success.

The play is a comedy by Neil Simon. It tells the story of two divorced men who are thrown together in a New York City apartment. One is a fastidious, uptight man and the other is a carefree, down-to-earth man. Their contrasting personalities create a series of humorous situations.

Sheinwold on Bridge

DON'T SIGNAL DOUBLET. WHEN YOU WANT A SWITCH BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD. It doesn't always pay to signal a doubleton by playing high and then low. When you want your partner to switch to a different suit, ignore the signal. You may be able to show the doubler later.

Both sides vulnerable. Opening lead - King of diamonds.

When today's hand was played in a tournament, Edgar West, president of the American Contract Bridge League, shrewdly played the deuce of diamonds from the East hand at the first trick.

It's easy to see what happened at other tables. East played the ace of diamonds, inducing West to continue with the ace and then a low diamond. East ruffed and cashed the ace of hearts (otherwise he wouldn't get it). The defenders could get only four tricks.

When West played the deuce of diamonds West suited himself. West took the jack of hearts. Then he took two heart tricks and shifted back to diamonds.

West took the jack of diamonds and then the ace, discovering to his surprise that his partner was out of diamonds. West continued with a fourth diamond, and then overruled dummy with the queen of spades. This then led another heart, and declarer couldn't shut out West's jack of spades.

The defenders took two hearts three diamonds and two trump tricks, three tricks more than the pairs who signaled at the first trick with the nine of diamonds.

Daily Question: Partner opens with one spade and the next player passes.

The proposal is part of the CEPA-WRPA (Windham Regional Planning Agency) planning effort, which they hope will influence highway department planners when they bring the Interstate through Bolton, Coventry and Andover on the way to the edge of Columbia and the future Williamite bypass.

All joint meetings it has been stated that the highway department is opposed to taking the new highway through the Notch. Many town officials believe that a route through the Notch, rather than through a more southerly section of town, would do the least damage.

Bolton's proposal is an attempt to offer what feels is a sensible solution to the battle of the section of town, would do the least damage.

Mrs. Filkoff relaxes between formal living and dining areas.

Heralding Homes A Comfortable Formal Home

Formal living with an eye to comfort seems to be the theme of Mr. and Mrs. James Filkoff in their contemporary ranch style home.

The combined use of wood and stone on the exterior are carried through to the interior. Even the level roof idea with skylight which connects house and garage is repeated inside as is shown in the living room view on this page.

The sliding glass panel front entrance, the square foyer with patio-type flooring, the spacious living room at the left are all distinguished by the majestic grandeur of a gray stone fireplace and chimney, resembling an impressive medieval castle, which extends through two floors and a cathedral ceiling. In fact, Mrs. Filkoff said a stone castle was the first thing she thought of when she first saw through the house. The stone was quarried in Vermont and it worked in rounded run-and-run rubble with striped joint treatment.

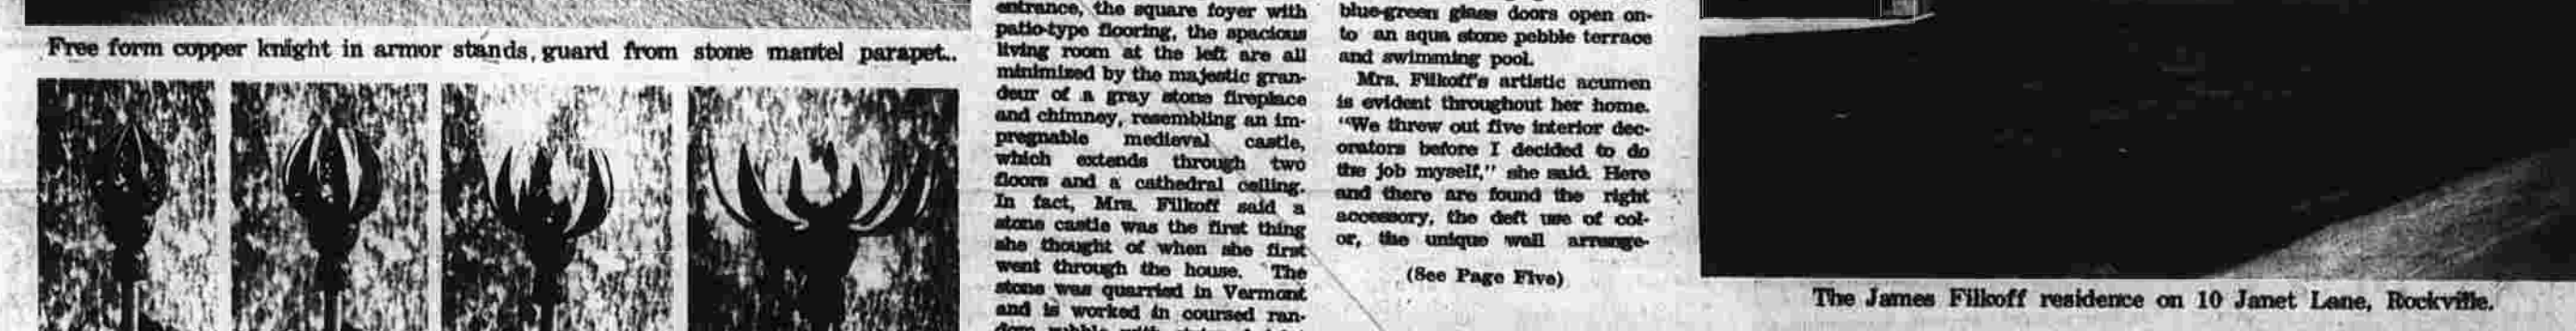

Painted walls in the foyer had been preferred until a friend said he had something he thought the Filkoffs might like. When they saw the heavy old type covering encrusted with brown sand and glitter, remembering the stone, the Filkoffs fell in love with it and it became a home gift from their friend.

The living room area is a golden glow of matching carpeting, drapes and curved crumpled velvet sofa. The crumpled velvet was selected as a more practical covering than a plain fabric. Color accents are found in a hanging Spanish lantern with ruby red glass, and red and gold brocade covered occasional chairs.

Under the Spanish lantern and at one end of the sofa is a circular table inlaid with overlapping oyster shells covered with a protective transparent gold vinyl.

The formal dining area, separated from the living room by the fireplace, is furnished in Spanish style with chairs also in red and gold brocade upholstery.

The kitchen is modern and functional with dark walnut cabinets and aqua colored appliances. Aqua pebble textured flooring and window curtains of figured aqua, blue and white flannelback with chains complete the decor.

Wooden lotus lamp from India with adjustable petals.

View of living room from foyer showing skylight in dropped ceiling effect.

Ceiling opening to pitched roof gives height to master bedroom.

One way or another, it seems the most... The human being goes on in the twilight world, on shore or journey, or as begins to be permissible and accurate in April, just to get there. The outbreak of... comes from every direction. Some of the notes... even a jumble of robin sounds suggests when daylight is falling and birds are nesting. Nothing in the world says good-night with such reassuring and friendly cheer, and ears left open for it will find it lingering long after it has ceased. Ours is a world of wonderful things, each taking our fancy and affection in its turn. We think this may be the robin's spring.

Coup At Sitwah

(From a future history of university conflict and "Counter-revolution on the Campus.")

The aggressive emergence of the John R. Society campus underground came suddenly without warning on Monday, May 17, 1969. At 8 a.m. that day about 140 members of the group, many in their own uniforms and carrying rifles issued to them during training hours, invaded the university administrative building and quickly isolated three cleaning women in the dean's vacant office.

When the press and TV arrived, a neatly prepared statement reflecting the careful planning of the revolution (or which the FBI seemingly had no advance knowledge) was handed out listing the demands of the Sitwah student group.

The latest crusade for the relatively civilized ways of fighting a war is Congressman Richard D. McCarthy of upstate New York. He has been leading into the use of chemicals in Vietnam, and directing questions to our Department of Defense and our Department of State and correlating known facts and given answers.

And he comes up with the contention that, for all our official disclaimers, we are waging chemical warfare in Vietnam, in a way which ought to be considered under the Geneva protocol.

Congressman McCarthy notes that the Defense Department justifies the use of tear gas as a relatively humane use of strategy, designed to minimize casualties, particularly among civilians.

But then the Congressman also notes that one of the uses of tear gas frequently described in the chemical warfare manual is to flush the Vietcong out of their fortified positions as a prelude to B-52 bombing or artillery attacks.

"This clear use of gas in conjunction with lethal conventional weapons is chemical warfare," says the Congressman.

Congressman McCarthy also attacked from our authorities the contention that in addition to chemical defoliants employed to reduce the threat of ambush and clear lines of fire for our troops we have been dropping chemical herbicides on jungle plots where we think the Vietcong are raising food for themselves, which means we have extended our chemical warfare to anti-food operations.

All this, he could, mild stuff compared to what we could do with chemical warfare, and what are we promised and equipped to do in the way of chemical warfare, should we deem it necessary to our national interest.

Wonders of the Universe Tool Maker in Space: Cost $500 an Hour

By DR. I.M. LEVITZ, Director of the Franklin Institute

The idea of manufacturing artifacts under the unique and alien conditions in space was given a significant boost with the announcement that space manufacturing modules are being contemplated to orbit as part of the Apollo Applications Program Orbital Workshop in 1971.

James H. Williams of the Marshall Space Flight Center has proposed a three-phase program to prove the feasibility of using space as a manufacturing center.

In the first phase, an electron-beam heat source will be used. Phase two will be a follow-up on phase one, in which the process chamber will be larger and more versatile than the initial experimental chamber.

And the piece of TV light source will have a larger separate facility to be docked with the orbiting space station in the mid-1970s, in which there will be room for at least two working astronauts.

However, the products and processes are still in the nebulous stage, since technical developments have appeared so swiftly that engineers and scientists have not had the time to crystallize a set of objectives concerning the commercial utilization of space.

A Thought for Today Sponsored by the Council of Churches

In today's language we might use the term "credibility gap" to describe the demand for signs shown by the crowds who watched Jesus in action. In St. Paul's first epistle to the Corinthians he says Christians are "those who have the mind of Christ."

When people witness accomplishments such as those of Apollo 8 and Apollo 9, they are impressed with the power of American technology. They are inclined to say, "If we can do that, we can do anything."

After having been pressured into holding public hearings it had once proclaimed quite unnecessary, on the ground that the bills already passed at the arguments, the legislative Judiciary Committee made its own pitch in the direction of making the hearings more interesting. It took the two issues, one for the repeal of capital punishment, the other for changes in the state's abortion law, and scheduled them for the same day and the same session.

It knew that, by doing this, it would have to trap some of the individuals who had been most insistent on public hearings for the two bills, add trap them. It was specific, into seeming to be on opposite sides of an issue concerning the taking of human life.

The result was clear in the course of the hearing. Those college liberals who do not believe in the taking of life by capital punishment but who do believe in the possible taking of life by the process of abortion in certain situations were forced to decide which issue they wished to help on this one given day. The result was that most of those who had been most insistent on public hearings for their long consistent crusades against capital punishment, and gave their main attention, that day, to the abortion issue, which has newly hot crusades both for and against.

In other words, the sociological liberals escaped the committee trap by trying to ignore the punishment issue for the day.

As for the Judiciary Committee's early conclusion that there was no need for a public hearing, it found itself compelled to sit for seven long hours while various arguments and pleas, and regardless of the nature of the arguments involved, that committee had given to the Lutheran Augustana Synod open at Emanuel Lutheran Church, the first such convention held here in 25 years.

One of His Loaves Went to England

John Juliano's customers go out of their way to tell him his bread is good. He claims it's because of the old-fashioned methods his family has used for many years.

One customer felt so strongly, she wrote him from her home in Blackpool, England. Mrs. M. Terry said that she bought a couple of his loaves while visiting friends here in town last Oct. 17. She put them in a deep freeze to wait for her flight home to England.

Lomborg Flashes Old Form As Red Sox Tame Detroit

DETROIT (AP)—Don't get your eyes on the Boston Red Sox in the American League pennant race. Veteran Jim Lomborg appears to have regained much of his 1967 form.

Lomborg, the Cy Young Award winner last year, pitched the Red Sox to the pennant with 2 victories two years ago, turned in a fine performance Friday night as the Red Sox edged the defending World Champion Detroit Tigers 4-3 before a crowd of 31,461.

Lomborg wasn't around for the first half of the season when the Red Sox had a big boost in the opener of a three-game series with the Tigers. Lomborg was the right-hander, plagued by recurrence of shoulder trouble most of the spring, surrendered only six hits before he settled down and batted the rest of the game. # Jackson Speaks with Bat And Keeps Fists Wrapped

NEW YORK (AP)— Reggie Jackson, the slugger, cooled off his temper, but not his bat, and floored the Seattle Pilots for the second night in a row.

Keeping his fists wrapped only around the bat, Jackson strung two home runs for three hits and singled in an inning to lead the Oakland Athletics to a 5-1 victory over the Seattle Pilots Friday night.

Jackson, hitless by a slump, had only returned to the lineup after the Minnesota Twins had hit him in the eighth of a five-inning game. Reggie struck his big fat in the top of the first, driving home the first run of the game. Jackson was ejected from the game.

This time, Jackson was hit by a pitch. He was ejected from the game, but he kept his cool and

Manchester Area Interest in Old House Leads to Seven Arrests

South Windsor police are puzzled over the high interest shown in an old house opposite 1728 Main St. there. They have arrested seven men this week and charged them with breaking into the house.

Tuesday night neighbors saw lights flashing in the unoccupied house. They called police who found John Seigars, 30, of Holland, Mass., in the house. Another man eluded police at the time there.

Police found furniture and antiques in Seigars' car which they said had been taken from the old house.

At 6:30 a.m. Wednesday, police arrested Richard Y. Abo, 17, of East Hartford as he walked along a South Windsor street.

That afternoon, after investigation, police took out court warrants for the arrests of Peter J. Brown, 19, and Steven C. Filkoff, 18, both of East Hartford.

Thursday, at 12:30 p.m., police got another call that more people were in the old house. They arrived and arrested Graydon R. Dyer, 18, of East Hartford, Eugene C. Mellor, 19, of Newington and Richard Miller, 18, of Hartford.

Late Thursday afternoon the warrant on Brown and Friday morning on Filkoff to complete the seven arrests involving the house.

Seigars and Abo were both charged with breaking and entering with criminal intent and larceny over $250. They appeared in East Hartford Circuit Court 12 where bond was set at $2,500 on each. They are being held for court appearance again Monday in East Hartford. Brown and Filkoff face the same charges, but were released on their own recognizance for court Monday.

Mellor, Dyer, and Miller were all charged with breaking and entering without permission. They are scheduled for court appearance in East Hartford May 12.

The old house is now posted to war off trespassers.

COMPLAINTS

An antique milk can, the fourth this week, was stolen yesterday from outside the front door of the home of Mrs. William Jackson, 111 Cambridge St. The milk can was painted black and had a decal of an eagle on it. It was valued at $35.

A collection container for the Danny Thomas St. Jude Crippled Children's Foundation was stolen yesterday from the Pine Lenox Pharmacy.

Someone broke into the Manchester dog pound and tried to take a shepherd-type dog recently, police said. They were not able to get the dog over the high outside fence, however.

Two bicycles were stolen from John Johnson, of 233 Center St. Thursday night. The bikes are valued at $90.

Construction equipment at the Jarvis Construction site on 476 Center St. was damaged recently. Police said, a conveyor belt was slashed and gravel was put into the gas tank and crank case.

Abernathy, 101 Others Put in Jail

Marchers broke through a police cordon and ran to the main entrance of the Medical College Hospital.

The group ignored Chief Conroy's order to leave, but complied when Abernathy walked over from a picket line and asked them to leave.

It was the second time this week that Abernathy led a march through Charleston to support the strikers. About 1,000 persons, including some white clergymen and nuns, took part in a march Tuesday.

The Most Rev. Ernest L. Unterkofer, the Roman Catholic bishop of Charleston, has stressed the need "for dialogue and conversation" between hospital officials and union leaders.

"To place the full blame for the strike on the workers is not fair," the bishop said in a statement Friday.

U.S. Forces Pound Foe In Cambodia

along the barbed wire at day-break.

"There were groups of North Vietnamese bodies strung from the Cambodian border right up to Frontier City," said one officer.

In addition to the 157 enemy killed, field reports said six wounded North Vietnamese were taken prisoner and piles of weapons were found after the battle. These included five mortar tubes, two machine guns and a big rocket launcher.

The reports also said numerous enemy bodies were dragged back across the border. Some were spotted being placed on oxcarts inside Cambodia.

The attack on the base and American retaliation came at a critical diplomatic stage.

Blacks Keep Faculty Club At Colgate U

The protestors ousted a cook, her husband and several residents of the building. They said the club or a comparable site should be found for the cultural center. Wallin ordered them out, but when they ignored him, opened talks with ABC leader Nisco A. Giles.

Students for a Democratic Society held a rally to back the ABC.

Two unarmed security guards remained in the faculty club. Wal'in said he would call police only as a last resort.

City College's president, Dr. Buel G. Gallagher, warned engineering students who held informal classes Friday that they were jeopardizing his talks with minority-group students.

About 400 engineering students and some faculty members met on the unoccupied part of the campus, while Gallagher met protesters' leaders at his home, on the barricaded South Campus.

Vernon Twins Join Air Force

Joyce and Janice Morello 19-year-old twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Morello, 84 Glenstone Dr., Vernon, have left for basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex. after being selected for enlistment by a panel of senior Air Force officers at Headquarters U.S. Air Force Recruiting Service.

They were administered the oath of enlistment at the Armed Forces Examining and Entrance Station in New Haven.

Tsgt. Roderick Levesque, the Air Force Recruiting Representative of Hartford, interviewed the sisters. He said one of the reasons the twins gave for wanting to enlist was "to take advantage of the opportunity to further their education with an Air Force scholarship and job training."

Upon completion of their basic training they will be assigned to a technical school for specialized training.

The twins were 1968 graduates of Rockville High School, were employed by a Hartford insurance company before enlistment.

Mediation Fails Teacher Pay Dispute To Be Arbitrated

For the fourth consecutive year, negotiations between the Manchester Education Association and Board of Education have broken down at the mediation stage and will go to arbitration. This was indicated in a letter sent yesterday to John S. G. Rottner, chairman of the board and Superintendent of Schools Donald J. Hennigan, by Mrs. Bernice Maher, chairman of the MEA personnel policies committee.

"This is to inform you," the letter opened, "that the Manchester Education Association is 'receding to arbitration as a result of failure to come to agreement on a number of items left unresolved from mediation sessions held on April 10 and 14. The letter then enumerated five areas on which agreement had been reached, and the eight unresolved areas.

Speaking for the out-of-town Mrs. Maher and Arthur Glaeser, MEA committee co-chairman, Robert Von Deck, senior member of the MEA negotiating team, said earlier mediation sessions had resulted in a meeting of minds on the BA through master's plus 30 hours salary scales, health staff salaries, BA plus 15 credits, non-degree teachers' salaries, and extra compensation for department heads.

Negotiations fell down, he said, on longevity, sick leave and severance pay, administrative salaries, non-teaching administrative and supervisory salaries, teacher facilities, teacher aides, two weeks' extra work and compensation for elementary school principals, and a clarification of the health benefit plan.

Von Deck said the MEA had been informed by George Bradley, assistant superintendent of schools for personnel and board negotiator, that arbitration would "start from scratch" that is, all agreements made on up this point early in negotiations, not at the eleventh hour. We don't feel they are acting in good faith."

He admitted that continuation of the 8, 9 figure would, in some instances, result in a principal receiving a higher salary than that of an assistant superintendent.

Teacher facilities, Von Deck said, hinged on the MEA's request for 14 additional ditto machines in elementary schools. "Some larger schools have two," he pointed out, "but the average is one. We found where there is one, teachers' use is limited because it is in the office. The MEA believes there should be one in each teacher workroom of each school. It doesn't make sense to pay a teacher $8,000 to stand in line to run off ditto work."

Recently, he said he had learned, a directive has gone out to limit teachers' schools to limit times when teachers may use the machines.

The MEA wanted 10 teacher aides included in the budget. "But the board," he said, "would not bind on either the ditto machines or aides. Our experience in the past has been that when the board didn't bind, the teachers never got it. The MEA felt there could be no contract with binding these two items in the package."

The question of including two extra weeks for preparation, with accompanying compensation, in the elementary principals' present 10-month schedule, Von Deck said, was a high priority item carried over from last year's arbitration.

The $31,000 additional sum in the 1969-70 requires clarification. Von Deck said, "We merely want to know whether it is increased health insurance rates, or whatever it may be." He added this item was not discussed at any of the mediation sessions.

Arbitration calls for the MEA to select one panel member, the board a second, and the two groups to agree on a third. Names may be selected from a list submitted by the American Arbitration Association.

Capital in Bloom

WASHINGTON (AP)—Spring is upon the capital and it shows beautifully in the buds and blossoms of the trees and flowers along the city streets and in the parks.

One of the best spots in town is the White House grounds, and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon Friday was hostess there to some 80 members of the Horticultural Society of New York.

Down by the tennis court the crabapple, redbud and dogwood trees were in full blossom. The Stayman Winesap apple tree was blooming beside the pond. Pale lavender wisteria blossoms hung heavily by the south steps and blooming yellow, red, peach and white tulips seemed to be everywhere.

The group presented Mrs. Nixon with some cuttings from a white flowering redbud tree. The society members verdant on the grounds? Lovely.

Pay Television: Now the Movies Launch Attack

By JERRY BUCK
NEW YORK (AP) — In 17 years of testing pay television has faced more trials and tribulations than a soap opera heroine. Now, after finally getting approval, it is under attack by a determined foe.

The movie theater owners have mounted a nationwide campaign to gather 25 million signatures to convince Congress that the public doesn't want pay television.

The owners, with the aid of a 45-second film shown in their theaters, have cast pay television as a "monster in the living room" that is out to kill free television.

"We've got several million signatures already. We don't think it's too much of a problem to get 25 million," said Martin H. Newman, chairman of the Joint Labor and Management Committee to Save Free TV. The owners are allied with the theater unions and businessmen connected with theaters.

An official of a company interested in pay television described the campaign as "the same scare tactics" used in California to defeat pay television in a 1964 referendum. The referendum was later declared unconstitutional.

The committee filed a brief early this month with the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington to block the decision by the Federal Communications Commission to begin taking applications for over the air pay television after June 12.

It might seem that the theater owners are trying to exorcise a phantom. Pay television has failed in five major tests and at present doesn't exist. Only one company, Zenith Radio Corp., has announced plans for the manufacture of the necessary equipment.

Nevertheless, the thought of pay television as an extension of the box office has excited entrepreneurs for two decades.

"What would it offer?" asked Bob Benton, executive assistant to the director of the National Association of Theater Owners. "Sports and movies, the same things now offered on free TV. The effect would be to drive out free TV."

"It's a very transparent ploy," counters John Pinto, director of creative services for RKO General Inc., which ended its pay television experiment in Hartford, Conn., Jan. 31.

"It's the same thing they were doing when commercial TV came along. For the theater owners now to say they're defending commercial television — after fighting it for years — is ridiculous."

Although the thrust of the campaign is to "save free TV," both Newman and Benton readily admitted the owners also have their own interests in mind.

"We started this campaign," Newman said, "because the FCC said 90 per cent of the programs had to consist of sports and first-run movies not more than two years old."

"It's a threat to us for the simple reason that we have a limited number of box-office hits to work with. We think pay TV is going to fail, but in the meantime we just don't want to lose any of the pictures we need."

But Newman and Benton repeatedly say the campaign is being conducted as a "public service."

The pay television would work by means of a scrambled signal sent out by a station and decoded by a device attached to a television set. The device would record the number of programs watched and customers would be billed monthly.

Viewers With A Bad View

A feature story on WTIC-TV's experiences with complaints made to the station by telephone callers appears in the current issue of "TV Guide."

According to the "TV Guide" story, viewers in the southern New England area served by WTIC-TV tend to use the telephone most when they're angry, about changes made in entertainment programs, even when the changes are caused by events of great magnitude.

During 1968, for example, most of the complaints received by WTIC-TV dealt with the pre-emption of entertainment programming for such events as space flights, coverage of the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King and Senator Robert Kennedy and hearings before committees of the U.S. Senate. "TV Guide" noted that 87 viewers called to protest the cancellation of regular daytime programming for the funeral of Dr. King on April 9, 1968 while only one person called to thank

Jack Parr Prefers Travel to 'Tonight'

By JOAN CROSBY

NEW YORK—(NBA)—He was never overweight, but now, with 30 pounds removed an incentive for his daughter to diet, he is positively lean and looks younger than ever.

Although one of the most controversial figures in—or out of—television because, as someone who knows him well says, "he can only be honest," he is easy to talk to, pleasant, has a vast fund of knowledge and possesses a childlike enthusiasm for the world and its foibles.

He's Jack Paar, nervous, emotional, prompt, witty and concerned.

"You don't have to write all this down," he says at the beginning of the interview. "I talk endlessly, but I don't say anything until the end."

Jack says something every time he opens his mouth. Whether he is talking about his daughter, Randy, an honor student at Radcliffe, or his pride of—and in—hens on his forthcoming NBC special, "Jack Paar in Africa," set for May 1, his 51st birthday.

Jack, his wife Miriam and Randy, went to Uganda and Kenya where they shot all the film "with the exception of a few shots taken by another cameraman. When I edited the show I realized there are no shots of the three of us together because one of us was always taking the pictures."

Since he left his chores as host of "Tonight," Jack says, "I have had a few offers. No, I'm being modest. I have had offers."

But he has no desire to get back into the daily TV grind. "Somehow I have blocked out so much of those days. I have a vague recollection of having done five shows a week for five years. Now I'm busier than ever. I can't wait to get up in the morning."

When Paar left "Tonight," he is supposed to have been making less money than the starting salary given Johnny Carson. In all his problems with the network, money was never an issue.

If Paar wanted, he could have his choice of networks and his choice of shows. He's one of the few names in the business that everyone talks about and listens to.

But he prefers traveling, taking along his family and making an occasional appearance on

At Moon Descent, Look for Color TV

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Space officials say there is better than a 50-50 chance that the descent of two Apollo 10 astronauts toward the moon next month will be seen on home television in live color.

It all depends on whether the first color TV camera designed for a manned spaceflight will be ready in time for Apollo 10's scheduled May 18 liftoff.

With two black-and-white TV cameras also aboard, Apollo 10 is expected to be the most televised flight yet.

Air Force Col. Thomas P. Stafford, Apollo 10 commander, said, "I am pushing hard" to get the color TV camera aboard.

"If we do, you'll see lots of pictures, including some of the lunar module (LEM) undocking and starting the descent," he said.

Plans call for the LEM to approach within five miles of the lunar surface. A landing will not be attempted.

The camera—to be carried inside Apollo 10's three-man command ship—could also be used to show color pictures of earth from the vicinity of the moon and from various distances between earth and moon.

Stafford and Navy Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan are to uncouple the LEM from the command ship in moon orbit, then pilot the spidery craft on its descent.

Inside the command ship, Navy Cmdr. John W. Young could aim the color camera to show the departing LEM with the moon in the background about 70 miles below.

Equipped with a zoom lens, having a variable focal length, the camera could show the LEM at considerable distances from the command ship and give close-up views of the lunar surface, officials said.

"The color should be great—as good if not better than any standard color television seen," said Stanley Lebar, program manager for the Westinghouse Electric Corp., builder of the color camera.

Weighting 10 pounds and about 12 inches long, the camera is similar to ones carried aboard previous spacecraft which relayed black-and-white pictures to earth.

Westinghouse modified the system, however, to include a filter wheel that divides the image into various colors which can then be reconstituted at ground receiving stations.

A new ground converter that can make incoming signals suitable for home television sets was built by National Aeronautics and Space Administration engineers at the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston, Tex.

Before giving final approval to carry the camera aboard Apollo 10, the space agency wants to test the system to make sure it will work. Whether this can be accomplished by May 18 is not yet certain.

A black-and-white monitor with a three-inch screen is to be on board the command ship so astronauts can see where the camera is pointing. In previous television shows from space, crews depended on verbal cues from the ground to aim their cameras.
