Much of the meadows is used for the dumping of the waste of metropolitan New York. At the middle of the valley is the Joint Meeting Sewage Plant, a roma-nesque building surrounded by huge revolving fountains. Swamp wildlife has lived here, diaguised by the wide fields of tessied brown reed. Beneath the reed has been found within one small area, some 20 varieties of plant life, including such exotic varieties as skunk grape, swamp rose-mallow, pur-ple loosestrife, Rutland Beauty, and Joe-Pye weed.

As late as the 1930's, the streams were filled with huge water snakes. In fact, the name Secaucus, which is now the only entirely within the con-of the meadows, comes the Indians' word-"Siskakes," meaning "when the snake hides." The area is so low that hig tidal waters back up through the Hackensack River and flow over the muddy land. Once, the receding tide left a smell of brine, the odor of a beach at ebb tide. Today the high tides bring the sewage of 500,000 people that is dumped each day into Newark Bay. This pollution set-tles over the land and in the

One of the first tasks in the reclamation of the meadow-lands will be building a dam at the mouth of the Hackensach River, blocking the high tides and the bay sewage. The dam, as well as landfills, will be constructed by the Army Corps of Engineers for an estimated $300 million, with most of the money coming from federal funds. The Army says its plans will be ready in two months. Meanwhile, the Meadowlands Commission has promised to panel of lawyers, mostly law professors, held a discussion in Washington the other day on whether "the established law of the seas has been outmoded by the advest of electronic intelligence."

The question the American Society of International Law heard debated was, in other words, whether a small nation like North Korea might not be able to daim, some time in the future, self deenne rights out beyond any traditional three or 12 mile limit. Modern monitoring devices, said one of the panelists, can "penetrate to the heart of a country's inland defenses." The immunity of the high seas was a thing set up in the days of sailing vessels, when both field gleases and gun had a certain range. "Coastal states cannot be blamed." said one of the panelists in Washington, "If they view offshore electronics elligence operations as a substantiall new phenomenon in international life." To claim the right of the high seas. originally one for navigation, for purposes of engaging in espionage i this same panelist suggested, possibly powers who slone can afford the fan-tic equipment involved. Eventually, then, the smaller work powers may succeed in getting international law about freedom of the seas rewritten to exclude the freedom to spy. ing as such a discussion may be, there is a certain air of unreality about it. Eventually, it would seem, everything that goes on anywhere on this earth ! going to be an open book to everybody else. Ironically, although we have case after case in which nations big and small make a great point of a legal limit of three or 10 or 12 and 200 miles off their coasts, there is no case on record in which any nation has claimed the right to protest any invasion of its sovereignty by all the many-purposed satellites now flying over everybody up in space. It is mainly from the intelligence activities of such satellites that we and Russia know just about everything that goes on inside either of our territories. Russia, or North Korea, for that matter, hasn't peeped a word about our obvious espionage from space, and we haven't complained, either, about the obvious fact that Russian satellites have us under constant surveillance.

Although such information gathering is still spying, it has the effect of creating at least one phase of that open society which would be the good dream of the philosophers.

Give us a truly open society, the philosophers would say, and a world of peace might follow. A defense of intelligence operations, delivered by former Defense Secretary Clark Clifford before another Washington gathering of lawyers the other day, made essentially the same point, from a more pragmatic point of view. "If a nation is getting reasonably accurate intelligence," said Clifford, "it is less likely blindly to strike out at some country it thinks is its enemy, it is less likely to be disturbed by rumors and guesswork and so, in a moment of hysteria or deep concern, launch an elationship among nations; intelligence gathering is an aid toward peace and not a hindrance toward peace." Unfortunately, so far, such philosophy is easier for the nation which happens to be doing the spying than it is for the nation being spied upon. But where the apying is equal, as between Russia and the United States, Clifford's benign point is worthy of note. What truly is necessary in considering the role of the university today is the simple necessity of keeping some sort of historical perspective. Student rebelinstances it is based on legitimate dissent. In no instances can the underlying complaints be solved by wholesale expulsions. In less than five per cent of the universities in the U.S. has the problem become severe enough to merit volved, a real effort has been made to deal with the problems of society by admitting those who need an education the most-but have not had the same kind of freedom and choices, hence encounter cultural shock. The pendulum has not had time to swing back. Naturally the spectrum includes those, black and white, who are out to make trouble, and provide few solutions. But even in the elite colleges, where most of the dramatic events have transpired. there have been differences. Harvard has gone one way, Cornell another, Columbia still seether, Yale has escaped occupation, Weselyan has not been without its own reaction. So while President Nixon is correct in opposing students who terrorize others, carry rifles, engage in violence, carry knives into classrooms, it should also be kept in mind that in very few institutions have the guidelines set down by the President been breached. It should also be kept in mind that there are many areas in which society does not insist always on an eye for an eye. Such compromises may make for a disorderly world; they also make for the world we live in. Before a university gives up and starts pitching people out, right and left, it

The occupation of a building does not wreck a university, it mereof talented faculty members does damage the university. This is, and has been, the problem of Cornell. But to allow students a voice on the Board of Trustees, on faculty selection, on admissions, or on other such matters, is not a matter of doing violence to any principle-although pride may be in-volved. However, students have to remember that every record has its flip side. The Trustees and the faculty could well consider asking for a voice in running the college newspaper, radio sta-tion, etc., once the principle of inter-mingled authority takes hold. Such in-

Strikers Back at Work

HARTFORD (AP)—Employes an strike since Thursday at the Whitlock Manufacturing Co., in Elmwood, voted Tuesday morning to accept a company wage offer and return to work.

A union official said members of Local 281 of the International Union Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers voted 38 to 9 to accept an 18-cents-an-hour across-the-board increase.

The first year of a three-year pact that provides for an annual wage re-opener expired last Wednesday.

A brief skirmish took plac at last night's Board of Direc tors meeting, with Democratic Director William FitsGerald on one side, town residents Mrs.

Peter Badlocki and Herman Schandel on the other, and Town Manager Robert Weiss caught in the middle by the verbal fire.

On March 15, Mrs. Dorothy Kenny, then executive secretary to the manager, charged, before a crowded hearing room, that Weiss is enjoying fringe

This model cities isn't so much," Sussman says. "We should make existing groups do their jobs instead of setting up new ones."

The New Jersey money is part of $15 million Congress appropriated last year for rat control, which only began to filter down to the 12 cities and the states of New Jersey and New York in Jersey.

The tunds were authorized in Bid Date Listed comber 1967 after a year of For Access Road sometimes derisive debate but Congress did not appropriate any money until fiscal 1968.

Under the bill, only a small part of each grant actually is intended for killing rats. Guidelines call for major efforts in cleaning up neighborhoods and removing nests and food sources.

Bids will be opened May 16 in the Municipal Building for the construction of a new access road for Manchester Memorial Hospital. It will be an extension of Alpine St., to run from Haynes St. to S. Alton St.

The contractor will be required to adjust, reconstruct and through."

The second issue involved in the New Jersey delay concerns whether traditional city agencies will run the program rather than being administered under a new approach—Model Cities. Model Cities planners want to incorporate the rat killing pro-ject in their own wide ranging program, which is aimed at renabilitating slum neighbor

The annual Lion's Club Cracker Jack sale gets under way tomorrow beginning at 6 p.m., and Ben Shankman, the chairman of the fund-raising event, takes a practice throw to make sure his arm is in shape. Lion members will be all over Manchester tomorrow night selling Cracker Jacks. The proceeds from the sale will go toward local charities, Shankman said. The Lions Club in past years has helped to support a research program at Yale which is trying to find the cause and cure for glaucoma, and the club has donated to local scholarship funds. Eye Screening Program
The Tolland Junior Woman's Club is again sponsoring the pre-school eye testing program for lasyeye or ampleopia.

Club members participating in the testing program recently attended refresher courses conducted by Mrs. Clifford Nelson, field consultant of the Connecticut Society for Prevention of Blindness.

Four sessions have been scheduled for the local three and four-year-olds. All parents of children in this age group have been contacted, and testing will be done by appointment only. Those wishing to make an appointment may contact Mrs.

It was all in the targety in center that the current participants at each had completed their job training courses. Administration officials have promised that trainees who want to continue will be transferred to other centers and none will be left stranded.

Bolton Streak Ends With Cromwell, 6-2

Unable to get any breaks and the victim of several mental errors, Bolton High wound up on the short end of its important baseball game with Cromwell High yesterday at home, 6-2. Pete Denz limited the Bulldogs to four hits. Bob Muro, clutch hitter for the Bulldogs, collected two hits.

Muro in the fourth imning rapped a single and Pete Traygis tripled.

The new Kanin film is filled with bright directorial touches, and it may amaze some movie students to learn that his last movie was "Tom Dick and Harry," a 1941 comedy with Ginger Rogers, Burgess Meredith, Alam Marshall and the senior senator from California.

Why the long lapse between pictures?

"All of us get the impression that people can order their lives the way they choose," replied the baid, nattily dressed Kanin.

"That simply isn't so. All of us are subject to the accidents of circumstance. If it hadn't been for the war, I might have remained a film director throughout my life. But I happened to have been given notics of these, but to data very few seniors have been given notics of these, but to data very few seniors have been given notics of these, but to data very few seniors and tampering with his work," said Kanin.
