News for Senior Citizens

By WALLY FORTIN, DIRECTOR

Now hear this all you good people that will be going on the Pennsylvania Dutch trip, Tuesday is "off" day, and it sure will be one busy day.

We're going to meet at the Senior Center no earlier than 8:30 a.m., and no later than 7 a.m. In fact, we hope to leave as close to 7 as possible.

That means your truly will be better off sleeping right here at the Center Monday night, because getting up at 6 a.m. will be like the middle of the night. Now be sure that your luggage is plainly tagged so we can spot it without too much trouble. That early in the morning, we want things to go as smoothly as possible.

Once we hit the road, the first few hours should be for relaxing, and catching up on a little shut-eye. Then for the rest of the trip, it should prove interesting. We have two bus loads going, and let's hope the weatherman will be on our side.

By the way, I don't know exactly when we will arrive home on Thursday evening, so it will be best for you folks looking for a ride home to plan on calling your driver when we arrive at the Center. It's better that we wait a few minutes for them, instead of them waiting hours for us.

I guess that's it, and we'll be looking at you Tuesday night. If you do have a question regarding the trip, give us a call 643-8310 during the day Monday.

This trip will just about get over, and we'll be registering for the Fishing Festival Garden trip, a one-day deal which we hope to go on, around the first part of June. This should be an interesting and delightful trip, so start thinking and planning accordingly.

Our Monday's Kitchen Social went over real well, with 15 folks participating. This coming Monday, those attending should bring one can of cat food, and by popular demand, the word is do not bring soup.

We had an excellent turnout for our regular Monday afternoon pinocle tournament, with 21 tables, meaning 82 persons. Winners of the thirteen prize were: Gus Gull, 724; Mable McCherry, 704; Quade Sanford, 686; Peter Frey, 676; Grace Windsor, 672; Andy Noche, 669; Elizabeth Joens, 658; Ted Rivard, 648; Mabel Keeney, 647; and Ann Young, 644.

Last week's Friday night Setback Tournament was called off because of Memorial Day, so we have no results to give you. We'll be back in the swing of things come this Friday night, so plan on joining us then. Lots of cards and goodies from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m.

On E. Center St., near the Post Office, members of Manchester Garden Club have replanted their garden at Munro Park. It was accomplished by Mrs. Earl Bissell, Mrs. Robert Cook, Mrs. Charles Crocker, Mrs. Herbert Johnson, Mrs. Christian Kafer, Mrs. Joseph Sullivan, Mrs. Lynn Taylor and Mrs. Anton Latsiva.

St. Thomas Seminary: Disciplined Life Makes Room for Change

There is a college in these parts where the students wear shoes, get haircuts regularly, and so far as is shown, haven't planned a single riot.

St. Thomas Seminary is separated from the heavy traffic of Bloomfield Ave. in Bloomfield by only a few acres of field, and yet the immense and lovely stone structure appears as an ordered and disciplined world of its own.

However, change has come here as elsewhere and the doors and windows of this Catholic school for the priesthood have been opened to the world of community.

St. Thomas is a four-year high school and a two-year liberal arts junior college. Both resident and commuter students attend the high school while all college students live on campus.

After St. Thomas there is still six years of study at a major seminary before the young man begins his career as a diocesan priest, rather than as a member of a particular religious order. Occasionally a student does join an order, but as one faculty advisor explained with a smile, "Recruitment on campus is discouraged."

Manchester and Vernon youth are among the student body. Two members of the faculty are also from Manchester. The Rev. Charles B. Johnson teaches Latin and history to the Rev. Martin J. Scholky teaches religion and Greek.

There is a definite and never to be confused division between the high school and college groups. They have separate sports programs, clubs, newspapers, separate places in chapel and to each its own student council.

Qualifications are similar to those at a good liberal arts college with college board scores considered. However, an exceptional student is given a chance, according to the director of admission, Father Scholky.

"We tend over backwardly if a fellow has a strong desire and strong character references," he said.

At St. Thomas a person finds both change and constancy. No sooner is a person aware of what is traditional but that he sees that change has modified it to a shape of today.

Daily Mass, for instance, is attended by the entire student body after morning classes and before lunch. Sports coats or suits are worn. The long vaulted chapel is enduringly lovely with dark curved beams tracing its ceiling.

However, Mass is likely to be a folk Mass complete with guitars, if the day is Tuesday, a visitor was told that this venerable chapel has been known to vibrate to a "rock" generation Mass in the rock-idiom.

The day's meditation is more than likely to concern one of the day's lively subjects. Discussion, lectures and talks concern topics ranging from community renewal programs to sexuality and celibacy.

Whatever the issue, meditation sorts it out, and, as one student reflected, "It's just sort of run off on a tangent and find new patterns of thought which I can apply to different areas."

Commitment to the priesthood is a gradual or growing thing, according to Father Scholky. Not all of the students who begin their studies here decide to continue, although 18 out of 20 who enter the high school go on to graduate.

Rep. St. Ouge added: "The number of priests in the Connecticut diocese has remained fairly constant but is not keeping up with population growth. The possible closing of Catholic schools would have one result of making it more difficult to contact possible applicants for St. Thomas from Catholic schools.

The same bent for service which characterizes the man with priestly ambitions may well be found in government leaders. Two Connecticut lawmakers, U.S. Reps. William St. Ouge and Thomas Meehan, attended St. Thomas.

The Rev. John Kelly feels that today's student is more aware of problems and so his own purpose and direction becomes, "The past" he said, "reflected a monastic influence."

Social mixing and even dating has been taken out of the realm of rules. The students are in their years of decision and good perspective may be retained by group dating.

It also serves another purpose, according to an article on the subject in the high school publication, "The Rebel." The student journal "may well begin at a young age to learn what an unsolvable mystery women really are," it said.

Now almost every boy on the college level takes part in either a tutorial or parish program. They lead discussion groups at CVO and teach in parish schools of religion.

The seminary's facilities are open during the summer to boys from Hartford's North End. Sports and trips are planned as well as a Head Start program. Community involvement also goes on as folk singing groups provide for participants and provide entertainment for both adult and teen groups. The Drafting Seminars are one such group on the college level.

Student council activity reflects a conservative, mature bent of mind. Recently permission to study in rooms replaced mandatory presence in study halls. However, when the lack of adequate studying became evident the students voted themselves into the study halls.

Education for leadership goes hand in hand with community service at St. Thomas, and though the style of tomorrow's priest may be changed, it appears that the fabric of the priesthood will remain the same.

Obituary
Findell Dies,
Long Illness

George Findell, 68, of 90 Co-urn Rd., died Friday at the Phelps Memorial Hospital, Longmeadow, New York after a long illness.

Mr. Findell was born Dec. 7, 1901, in Grandenburg, Sweden. A resident of Manchester since 1951, he owned and operated the Findell Manufacturing Company, manufacturers of plywood.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Tyla Findell; a daughter, Mrs. Tyla Findell; a son, George Findell, Jr., of Durham, N.H.; a sister, Mrs. Marie Westlund of Lake Worth, Fla.; and seven grandchildren.

Private funeral services will be held at the convenience of the family. There will be no calling hours.

The family suggests that those wishing to do so make monetary contributions to the American Cancer Society or to the Manchester Rotary Scholarship Foundation.

Holmes Funeral Home, 400 Main St., is in charge of the arrangements.

Chamber Cites
Three on Vote

Phillip Harrison (Harrison's Stationers), president of Manchester Chamber of Commerce, has sent letters of commendation to Sen. David M. Berry and House Rep. Donald B. Gerson and Francis J. Mahoney for their voting against the employment compensation proposal for strikers, as presented to the legislature.

In his letter, Harrison stated, "The Manchester Chamber of Commerce heartily commends you for your responsible vote in expressing opposition to the employment compensation proposal as presented to the state legislature. Because of your negative vote, I am certain that you are aware that passage of this proposal would have been extremely unfortunate in that it would have been dropped thereby, underwriting a strike against themselves. It was in 1960; the occupational structure is unchanged; and the educational attainment has increased."

Finally, there is the recent statement of Prof. John Kain, eminent Harvard authority on transportation and urban problems, that "in recent years, the middle class has moved out of the city and into the suburbs, leaving the city largely to the poor. The middle class has a large migration of the middle class to the suburbs, but the poor and the lower middle class are left behind in the city. This is the result of the government's failure to provide adequate housing for the poor and the middle class."

Prof. Ginzberg, in his book, "Manpower Strategy for the Metropolitan Area," places emphasis on the deterioration of the occupational structure in the city. He says, "The shift from manufacturing to service jobs in metropolitan employment has led to the availability of a large number of low-paying dead-end and intermittent work opportunities for the poor, uneducated and untrained."

As a result, he concludes, "one of the major challenges facing the metropolitan area is to improve its overall structure so that only a small minority of the population is left behind in the city. This description of the changing job structure in metropolitan areas does not apply to the central cities during the past eight years. In fact, there has been virtually no change in the occupational distribution of employed workers among them, there was a slight increase in the proportion of the young, unskilled and uneducated workers among them, there was a slight increase in the proportion of the young, unskilled and uneducated workers among them, there was a slight increase in the proportion of the young, unskilled and uneducated workers among them."

Whether or not the middle class continues to increase as the population of the total city population has increased, the middle class is not increasing as fast as the population of the total city population has increased. The proportion employed as domestic dropped from 10.9 percent in 1960 to 9.7 percent in 1967. The proportion employed as clerical and sales workers rose from 18.2 percent to 23.2 percent during the same period.

The facts cited above focus on the progress that has been made. There has been deterioration as well, some of it a very serious nature. Of major significance is the white drop in central cities, most of whom are productive workers, and the sharp increase in the number of black teenagers and black families headed by women, many of whom end up on relief rolls.

During the past eight years, there was a 60 percent increase in the number of black youths aged 16 to 19 and a similar increase in the proportion of black families headed by women. At present, one black low-income youth (three-fourths of all black children) is supported by a family with income under $4,000 a year, living in a four-room house.

The more rapidly that ever blacks are replacing them at a far slower rate than at any time in the past 20 years. Why the change? The truth is that the poor are more likely to be dependent poor on relief rolls rather than working class.

Another important fact that shows up in the statistics is that the gains of the past eight years have not been evenly distributed. The figures that the United States Bureau of Economic Analysis shows that poverty in Cleveland and Los Angeles, places like Hough and Watts, family income has not risen and the unemployment rate has remained very high.

This deterioration may reflect the migration of the more successful families from the slums, over the conference is participation of the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong, in the future government of South Vietnam.

In his May 1 address, Nixon made no mention of a coalition government but said the United States will not support any government... that results from the free choice of the people of the area. Kosher Meal: It Needed Good Plan

The Washington Post WASHINGTON—The Jewish Community Foundation (JCF) is holding a ball Saturday, June 14, during which it intends to serve a kosher dinner.

Example, no Saturday is a Sabbath. Kosher food is prepared by a rabbi or a rabbi's assistant. Kosher food is prepared by a rabbi or a rabbi's assistant.

Problem: how to cook 1,000 steaks between 8:37 p.m. and a reasonable time for dinner. Solution: Involve the waiters and cooks at the Washington Hilton Hotel (where the ball will be held) in a 100-second

Curfew, Rain East Catholic Senior Effect

Although cut off from their dinner and from the Hartford Hilton last night, East Catholic High School seniors held their social event of the year just the same. Sister Catherine Marie, senior advisor, said the seniors were "blacked out" for the rest of the evening.

The 210 students and parents in attendance were disappointed by the Hilton cancellation at East Catholic. By 7, they had the cafeteria beautifully decorated in blue and gold and their girls picked up at 8:30 p.m. by their parents.

Police also used tear gas to clear the area. The seniors were "blacked out" for the rest of the evening. The 210 students and parents in attendance were disappointed by the Hilton cancellation at East Catholic.

Group Works To Create Town Youth Commission

A group of 20 Manchester teenagers, working toward the creation of an official Town Youth Commission, has scheduled a Youth Forum for next Tuesday. It will be at 6:30 p.m. at the Senior Citizens' Center, Myrtle and Linden Sts. The keynote speaker will be Mayor Nathan Agostinelli. All Manchester teenagers have been invited to attend, to express their opinions on available youth facilities and to propose alternatives. The Manchester Board of Directors is expected to consider a proposed ordinance in July, for the formation of a duly appointed Youth Commission, to be an arm of the town government. It would be made up of representatives of the various town schools, plus representatives from that group of teenagers who are out of school and working. The prime mover for the Youth Commission is Robert Digan, coordinator of youth services for the Manchester school system. It is his suggestion that the commission be advised by an appointed group of adults, "who would assist only, and would leave the decision-making to the teenagers themselves." The proposed commission would be similar to other town agencies. It would meet in the

Emmy Marks Her 21st

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Emmy comes of age on Sunday night—or will she?

The 21st awards of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences will be handed over Sunday at 10 p.m. EDT over CBS, and it remains to be seen whether the ceremonies will reflect a maturity on the part of Oscar's younger sister. Last year's affair fell far short of being a triumph admits TV Academy President Seymour Berns but he promises that the 1968-69 awards will be better.

Berns is a pipe-smoking television veteran who directed one of the first Emmy winners (a girl ventriloquist with a dummy named Judy Splinters) and later directed Jack Benny and Red Skelton. Now he's in charge of the burgeoning TV enterprises of the entertainment giant National General Corp.

"We're going back to some basic fundamentals with this year's show," Berns reported. "The first principle is that an awards show should be an event. It has the two elements that are television's best attributes: it happens now; and it deals with people's emotions."

"An awards program can't compete with an entertainment show. Any variety show has the facilities and time to do a much better job with entertainment, and any such attempts are bound to be compared unfavorably to the awards telecast."

"That doesn't mean we won't have entertainment elements in the Emmy show. But they will be generic and not offered solely to entertain; they will make sense in the context."

Many critics have failed to Country singer Johnny Cash opens his summer show tonight 9:30-10:30 on ABC. Bob Dylan is guest.

make any sense out of the multiplicity of Emmy categories, and Berns admitted that has always been a problem with television.

"Perhaps we could make the awards simpler but that would mean stepping on a lot of toes," he remarked. "This year we tried an innovation by announcing the news and documentary awards early. We did this because news was never more important than it was in 1968. By knowing the winners in advance we could show pieces of the shows and make them more meaningful than if we merely read the list of nominees and the winner."

Not a bad idea from the practical side either; there were 146 nominations in the news-documentary divisions.

After years of being presented as a banquet, the Emmies will be presented Sunday in a theater—the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium from which the Oscars moved to the Los Angeles Music Center—and the Peet Forum at Madison Square Garden in New York. Berns cited reasons for the switch: A theater gives the show a better look; the audience pays attention better; the dinner following the awards had always been a letdown. This year a champagne reception will follow.

Bill Cosby emceeds the Hollywood portion; Merv Griffin in New York. The favorites among contenders are "Laugh-In" which hit the high of 11 nominees plus "Hallmark Hall of Fame" with nine and "Mission: Impossible" with eight.

Berns admitted that this year's show, despite the careful planning, will bring the usual chorus of complaints. That's the name of the Emmy game. "Members are always yelling that they don't like the way things are run and threatening to hand their Emmies back," he said. "So far none of the statuettes have been turned into the office."

notably, television series are likely to die quietly. "Peyton Place," after five trauma-filled years on ABC, slipped away Monday night without even a farewell.

The wind-up, as a matter of fact, showed a callous disregard of the faithful viewers. The network and 20th Century-Fox, the studio that turned out more than 500 episodes, could have at least shown the consideration and class of Quinn Martin, producer of the "The Fugitive" and tied up a few loose ends.

Instead, those storm-tossed characters were starting out on a new adventure. Dr. Rossi was about to go on trial for the murder of his fiance's ex-husband and a young man was about to give himself up on a hit-and-run charge.

Years ago, when CBS's radio network decided suddenly to kill off some long-running soap operas—some in mid-episode—it received such a freshet of anguished letters from listeners that they had to tell them—by mail—how some of the stories worked out. In the case of Helen Trent, who had been proving for years that romance could come into the life of a woman over 40, a form letter to fans revealed that she just up and married the latest romance in her life and went abroad to live happily ever after.

It is highly unlikely either ABC or the studio wants to wrap up the serial for the viewers. Primary interest of the producers now seems to be "Peyton Place's" financial future in reruns.

Not only will we probably never know whether Dr. Rossi was acquitted, but the disappearance of Allison will never be cleared up. Allison, as true blue fans will remember, was played by Mia Farrow and she disappeared the day Mia quit the serial.

The only clue we had that it was all over for "Peyton Place" was the line "the end" on the screen. Next week the time period will be filled by "The Guns of Will Sonnett," a western limping to the end of its trail.

TO MARRY

After nine years as a widower with some narrow squeaks, Stephen Douglas of "My Three Sons" will marry next season. During the past season, to brighten up the long-playing situation comedy, one of the sons and spouse produced triplets.

Judy Carne and NBC's "Laugh-In" gang are back Monday 8-9 p.m.

News on Sunday Planned by CBS

By LAWRENCE LAURENT
The Washington Post
NEW YORK - Columbia Broadcasting Service-TV will begin a 6 p.m., Sunday night, news program in January, thus giving the network an early evening news program seven nights a week.

CBS News president Richard S. Salant told about 1,000 station owners and executives at the 15th annual CBS-TV Affiliates' Conference that the Sunday show has already been sold with Standard Oil as the sponsor. The newsmen was not announced, and Salant later told a reporter that one hasn't been chosen.

Salant, who came back to the CBS news presidency in February 1966, is riding high at this meeting and enjoying every minute of it. He told the affilates that CBS News is now beating NBC News in almost every comparison. The "Evening News with Walter Cronkite" has been ahead of "The Huntley-Brinkley Report" in Nielsen ratings for 23 consecutive months. The Huntley-Brinkley report held the lead for almost ten years, prior to 1967.

Salant said the "Saturday Evening News With Roger Mudd" is ahead of ratings on the Saturday Huntley-Brinkley Report. Obviously, he expects the lead to continue with the new Sunday evening program.

William C. MacPhail, CBS vice president for sports, told affiliates that CBS will not join in bidding for an expected 14-game package of Monday night pro football games in 1970. He added that he understands that NBC will not bid either. This leaves pro football with only two possible customers—American Broadcasting Corporation-TV and the Hughes Sports Network.

lease on the Cort Theater on West 48th St. and is remodeling it for the Griffin show.

A huge promotion campaign—keyed to the slogan "Give the kid a break"—will be launched this summer for the Griffin program. Dann's forecast for the show: "I think Merv's going to give Johnny (Carson) a helluva run for his money."

BETSY PALMER SIGNS
ABC's syndication division has signed Betsy Palmer to a long-term contract and named her hostess of its day-time show, "Girl Talk." Miss Palmer has been acting in the absence of Virginia Graham, star of the show from its inception seven years ago, who left in February in a dispute over money. Miss Graham apparently is out of the show, but there is some resulting litigation to be cleaned up.
