It's still difficult to define trend, says Istomin, adding that concerts are fewer, audiences are smaller, and "it's a tough era for us now." Another problem, says Istomin, is that young performers who win prizes often find no audiences to play for. A prize winner, Istomin says, hould go out and play at hun dreds of concerts to learn his craft, but the public wants a

"My teacher let me try out for those contests at 17 because he thought I might be put into the Army and I should have a chance before I got killed. As it happened, I wasn't called until 1945. But he let me try out and I won and there I was. "I won the Levintritt with the Brahms. At that time, if you won the Levintritt, you were nationally known right away. ear the long sweet glide music of the sule returning earthward; we have made this route twice before, and so have become capable of taking our mind off the elemental concern of whether the journey is to be complete and.

Relaxed, we feel like singing; instead, we notice the universe composing music of its own. From up on the moon there is a gavotte, its phrasing still not quite precise note to note; but its nit obviously matched to the particular minuet Armstrong and Aldrin performed on the moon. Around the moon while the two circling space ships drew the silken threads of their trajectories into one concentric orbit which made them one again one thinks one may have heard a revolving, round-like natural melody,

Freeing The United States

Dont' say that Apollo 11 hasn't been capable of playing a part in the affairs of mankind wider than its own techno-

It proved a fine umbrella, the other day, for a Nixon Administration announcement of some changes in our official attitude toward Communist China. Not that these changes might not have ome, in due course, without the exisday when we were all thinking moonward must have seemed a very good day to let the new China policy slip into the news. It is, in any case, a good side dividend for the moon triumph, for it begins, at least, the end of two bad theories. The first bad theory to that we can somehow act as if China were not in the world. The second bad theory is that we, the United States, can allow ourselves to take the cue for our own beron; the behavior of another

The changes in outlook and policy now announced by the State Department are not major. U.S. citizens traveling abroad can now bring back with them up to $100 of goods which have been produced in China. Hitherto the importation of anything from China, no matter where it was bought, has been forbidden travel by Americans in China which have been in effect since 1950 have now been lifted for scholars, students, scienlists, physicians and newsmen. There's a hint that the general travel ban for ordinary citizens, which is still in effect, may be reviewed in September.

Secondly, the restrictions against

One good, sound thing about these changes of policy is that they are uniateral changes; made by the United States on the basis of what the United States conceives itself to be and on the basis of what the United States considers any deal or reciprocal understanding with Communist China. Indeed, there is not much expectation, in Washington. that China will respond to these gestures

But what China does, and what kind of life China chooses to live, have never been as important, to us, as the question of what this country does, and how

If China wants to live like a barbarian, totalitarian state, that is to be regretted: but it is no justification for having the United States put restrictions on its own citizens. When we meet totalitarianism in the world, we should meet it in the robes of freedom, not in any cetaliatory imitation of its own chains. We should act free. We should not act slave be-

These, then, are gestures, under the attention-diverting mantle of our space exploits, which are in a good direction.

Limited in nature, they are nevertheless symbolic of a very broad and necessary hope. This is the hope that we can at last lift ourselves out of our long assumption that Communist China has to be our enemy because there is so much bad blood and history between us.

"We have no hostile intentions against Communist China," said the State Department spokesman announcing these policy changes. "We hope that Peking will come to realize that fact."

Peking may realize it, eventually, it we ourselves do. But first we have to climb out of the theory that Communist China is the complete villain of the Asian scene, and out of our surly memories that, in the only really major victory ever attained against American arms, Chinese troops drove General MacArthur back from the Yalu.

That drive to the Yalu was what brought China into the Korean war, as any sane American calculation would have expected would be necessary for China in such a situation, and that has been, somewhat illogically, the prime basis for our own classification of China

It may be under President Nixon, who some John Birchers, of being soft on Communism, that the United blates is going to liberate itself from what has really been a John Birch attitude and policy toward China.

Saving The French Quarter

Secretary of Transportation Volpe who was suspected when he entered federal office of being just a professional road builder who had no higher desire than to pave the country solid, will now be receiving the plaudits of the sensitive for his executive action in vetoing a section of a Louisiana freeway because it would "have seriously impaired the historic quality of New Orlean's famed French Quarter."

This is apparently the first time the federal government has withheld funds for a highway project on the basis of preserving a historic area, and that will be what al' the applause is for.

on to point out that the day is now upon historic sites or no, when we must to deal realistically with the problem of locating our superhighways. Our dividends from such highways will be continually reduced if the highways keep uining and eliminating the very population centers they are supposed to serve. The choice is not always as clear and amatic as that between having the rench Quarter and having a highway: there it can be rather easily recognized/ that having a new highway serving that ection of New Orleans may not be worth much if nebody any longer has any special reason for wanting to go to that part

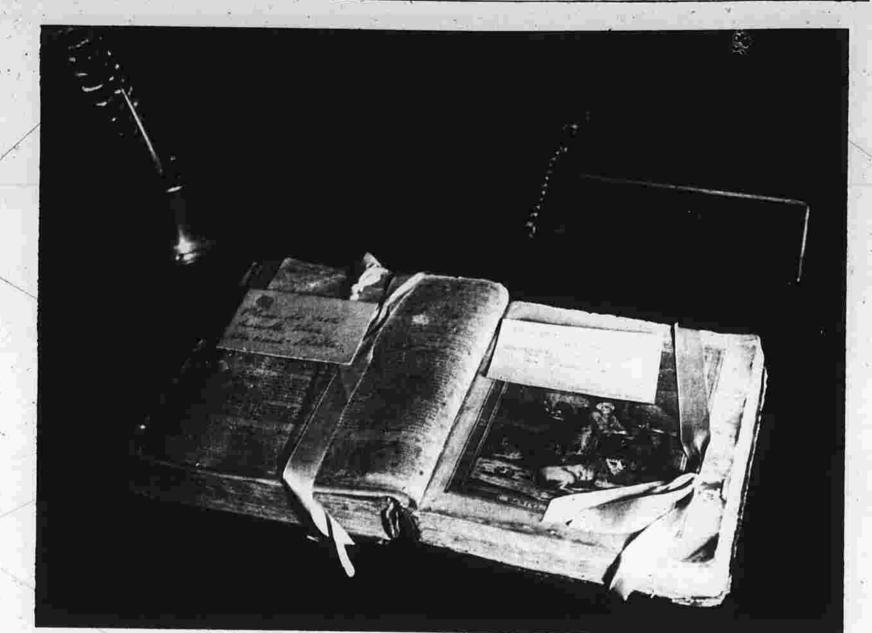

But there are elements of such choice in almost every major highway project

I are on a two-month tour of Europe. This is the first letter about their adventures abroad, written by Scouts Marnette Ostrout and Kathy Krause, Miss Krause also took the photos.)

As the gangplank was drawn sway, the SS Statendam set sail June 30 and an exciting and long awaited tour of Europe began for 17 girls of Girl Scout Troop 1 and their two leaders, Mrs. Natalie Phillips and Mrs. Soon after leaving New York harbor, all passengers, instructed by the friendly crew, learned the procedure for life boat drill. Each girl, dressed in green, of course, added a bright orange life preserver to her wardrobe. A feeling of emptiness surrounded Marnette Ostrout and Laura Kurtz during this drill due to the fact that they were the only ones without life preservers However, drill went smoothly and the girls settled down to their week

Kim Darby Instant Star In 'True Grit'

By BOB THOMAS

CORONA, Calif. (AP) - Kim Darby harks back to the Lillian Gish kind of star: the frail-looking girl with will of iron. She played that role to a fare thee-well in the current success, "True Grit." She's the deterwheedles, cajoles and browbeats John Wayne and Glen Campbell into tracking down her father's killer. Kim Darby, who this month became old enough to vote, is just as strong-minded in private life. "True Grit" made her an instant star, and you might expect that she would be grateful o her director, yeteran Henry

'I hate him," she comments I quote hate him unquote. There had been reports during the filming that the actress and Hathaway did not get along, and she confirmed them. "He gave me nothing-except scorn and ridicule," she said. "Oh. I've had directors who did things like shooting a gun off in my face to get surprise; that I car understand. But I can't forgive rudeness." Nor did Kim have glowing comments about her John Wayne

"We had no rapport, either in the scenes or out of them," she said. "He was Rooster, and I was the little girl. Matty, and he didn't have any regard for me." Kim did get along with Campbell, a good thing because they are again costarred in "Nor wood," a modern story being filmed in and around this South ern California town. This time out, she gets to grow up a bit. but she still looks remarkably

She's a hometown girl, born in Hollywood and reared in the San Fernando'valley. Her name at birth: Derby Zerby honest Naturally it had to go when she started getting roles in television. She borrowed the Kim from a high school classmate and switched her first name to the British pronunciation.

"Television was a great chool for me," said the slight brunette with the large, deepbrown eyes. 'I played a lot of the series, usually as a peculiar, troubled girl, which I'm not One of the series was especially lucky for me. It was a 'Run for Your Life, which Ben Gazzara himself directed.

"Paul Nathan (producer Hall Wallis' assistant) happened to see it, and he decided that I was been for him. I'd still be doing

Much has happened to Kim in the past year. Four weeks before the start of "True Grit," she gave birth to a baby girl She has since divorced actor Jim Stacy. She starred in "Generation" with David Janssen and Peter Deuel, her current boyfriend:

Much more will be happening to Kim Darby, and she seems able to deal with any eventuality. Her own ambition: "I'd like o pattern my career after Sandy Dennis's. I think she has done a wonderful job of handling herself."
