When Words Fail

President Nixon is trying such a dellcate mixture of assurances in his Asian trip that it is no wonder that, for all his meticulous preparation, he should have moments of seeming to talk against himself.

The diplomatic tight rope the President has been walking requires a balance between two things he has been trying to do. He has, for one thing, been trying to tell us back home and tell our friends in Asia that he himself now rejects the original basis for our involvement in Vietnam, and will not permit us to repeat that kind of history.

The President must also, for his second thing, keep our friends in Asia - particularly those who may depend on us for their own political power and prestigeperhaps aside from questions of security for their nations - that we are not really deserting them.

In the course of this balancing act, the President has necessarily alternated between declarations of non-involvement and reiterations of our loyalty to the involvements we have already accepted or have acknowledged for the future.

It was in Thailand that he lost his balance, momentarily, when, speaking exemporaneously, he pledged that we would stand proudly with Thailand "against those who might threaten it from abroad or within."

That "or within" was, of course, precisely the kind of involvement the President has otherwise been promising to avoid henceforth. Thailand, with its continuously simmering Communist-oriented revolutionary trouble in its northern provinces, could be a dead-ringer for Vietnam in the days that nation's internal troubles drew Mr. Nixon's predecessors into involvement there.

After the President's momentary loss of balance had made confusing headlines around the world, some of the administration braintrusters were given the task of straightening everything out again.

What they offered makes rather significant news. The United States, they said, is still bound, for instance, by SEATO pledges to defend an ally against external

But in a case of domestic insurgency, the United States will no longer act-as it has in Vietnam-as if it had a greater stake in a nation's defense than that nation itself. Such a nation should count on only advice and equipment, not milltary operations, from the United States. And even that secondary form of assistance might not be forthcoming, the new policy suggests, unless the threatened nation shows itself willing to adopt social and political reforms which will strike at the roots of its domestic insurgency. Such informal, but impressive, interpretation repaired the Presidential slip and put the balancing image back on the wire. Such slips are, we suppose, the result of leadership's almost inevitable instinct to say something people supposedly want to hear. Mr. Nixon's ardor sometimes carries him away, until he seems, one monent, to promise everything to the doves, which would be the height of national foolishness, and, the next, to promise everything to some nondescript Asian palace regime, which would be ridiculous too.

Against all the sometimes confusing talk of this Asian itinerary, a perhaps truly significant shift in American policy has apparently occurred in the field in Vietnam. There the report is of a shift from "maximum pressure" and "search and destroy" tactics for our troops to one of "reducing the violence" and "protect tive reaction." This is the kind of order which may do more to end the war than talk can, and which may illustrate, in a realistic and meaningful way, what the President has been trying to put into words about the mood and purpose and extent of future American operations in Anin

- e __(1) __ Since Apollo Ruined Our Weather

Until Mariner 6 began televising back to us the other night, the last time we saw Mars was one evening last week when it appeared just to the right of the moon, with Antares to the left. Since that time, the normal information of the almanac variety, which alerted us to that particular early evening triangle, has been next to useless.

Sunrise time, sunset time, moonse time, the setting or rising of the planets, all have become paper statistics, not provable by observation.

So far as human beings can see, an impenetrable vell of cloud and rain has been drawn between this earth and its skes and its heavens and its firmament

Then came Mariner 6, on television with its invitation to do a little planetwatching in living room comfort. It proves a rather comfortable version of amateur astronomy. The particular object in view is presented all alone, with no confusing competitors in view. One knows which is Mars. And the astral object being presented is offered in closer more detailed view than most of us have ever enjoyed or imagined possible.

It is fortunate, then, that man is able to break out into space, through all cloud covers and mere atmospheric impediments, to resume his star-watching, in living room comfort, whenever earthly weather might otherwise interfere. Of course, man also has to contemplate the weird, fate-like possibility that it was his own foolishness in kicking up dust on the surface of the moon which set off that permanent whirl of cloud and rain around his own natural home back on earth.

Some future satellite, we hope, can be programmed to send us back, by television, a focus on the sun steady enough for us to watch while we take our daily lamp;

Kennedy's Panic

Millions of Americans, many of them enchanted by the aura that surrounded the Kennedy family, have already passed judgment on the puzzling actions of 37-year-old Sen. Edward Kennedy. These judgments depend on whether on believes or does not believe the story of the tragic accident as related by Sen.

Many feel that the senator's address to the people via television was a wellprepared script, some of it contrived and hard to believe; other parts convincing and inviting sympathy for the colorful legislator from Massichusetts. The consensus ceems to be that Sen. Kennedy's appeal for "advice" from his Bay State constituents will result in his being reelected in 1970. In Washington, there is doubt that he will make an effort to seek the Presidential nomination in 1972, for his image whether one believes his story or does not has been seriously damaged, perhaps beyond repair. People, as a rule, credit public figures with having common sense, good judgment and the knowledge to do what is right under different elreumstances. Perhaps they expect too much for public figures are human beings, making the same mistakes, having the same reactions, sometimes using good judgment and very often bad judgment. The point that is most damaging is the failure on the part of Sen. Kennedy-or his companions with above average legal background - to immediately re port the accident. The unconscionable delay leads one to suspect there was a first thought of kceping the incident quiet. Obviously, considering the cast of characters, this was impocable and any clear-thinking person would have realized it. Most drivers realize that if they are involved in an accident - even in the case of running over a dog - they are morally obligated to report it to police. If a man, woman or child is injured or killed, the average motorist, unless he became hysterical or, gripped by panic, would report the accident as soon na possible.

The most charitable appraisal, in this case, would be hysteria and panic - on the part of all concerned in that isolated

Fix That Bridge

There's a bridge on Chappaquiddick Island in Massachusetts that is just about as famous right now as the one in Concord, Mass., where a couple of enturies ago the embattled farmers fired the shot heard round the world. Pictures of the scene of Sen. Edward Kennedy's tragedy amply bear out his statement that the bridge was a hazard to automobile travel. In the hubbub that has the nation speclating on precisely how and why this befell a social and political. celebrity, the proper authorities would do well to assure that the same disaster enceforth won't befail even a nonentity. The bridge needs at least bigger and better warning signis at its approaches, and perhaps guardrails and lighting, too. By the time this appears in print, something may well have been done. We hope so. No amount of awe, shock, or sense of drama over what has happened should get in the way of doing what now should come naturally. STAMFORD ADVOCATE answered questions have been aroused in Democratic politicians who long have backed the Kennedys but who were neither advised nor consulted in the present crisis. To some of them, all the events that followed the accident on Cape Cod suggest some unexplained need for secrecy.

Actually, early polling results and trips home last weekend by Congressmen point to considerably wider acceptance of Kennedy's presentation than is the case with either politicians or the press.

Moreover, some politicians in both parties described the Friday night speech as an adept exercise in public relations, making the best of an intolerable situation. # IT'S SEAFOOD FESTIVAL TIME!

BROILED BOSTON BLUEFISH (POLLOCK)

Have the steaks cut 1 to 1-1/4 inches thick. Brush generously with soft butter or margarine. Place in a flat pan lined with aluminum foil. Place in broiler with surface of fish about 3 inches below heat. Broil 5 minutes; turn carefully. Broil 6 or 7 minutes longer, or until golden brown (the fish should flake easily with a fork and should have lost its "transparent' look). Remove from broiler. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Serve with Festival Sauce.

FESTIVAL SAUCE

- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 2 tablespoons grated onion 1/4 cup chili sauce
- dash Tabasco tablespoon minced pimiento
- 1/3 cup dairy sour cream tablespoons snipped parsley

Combine all ingredients except sour cream. Chill several hours. Just before serving fold in sour cream. Makes about 2 cups.

FESTIVE FLOUNDER FILLETS

 $\sim\sim\sim\sim\sim\sim\sim$

1/2 cup water 1/2 cup tomato juice

- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 1 package (8 oz.) herb-seasoned stuffing mix
- can (10-1/2 oz.) minced
- clams or 1 cup chopped fresh raw
- hardshelled clams (quahaugs) 8 flounder fillets soft butter or margarine

Combine water and tomato juice; add 1/2 cup butter; heat until butter is melted. Add stuffing mix and clams with their juice; mix well. Spread stuffing on 4 fillets; top with remaining fillets; tie securely with white string. Place in shallow baking dish. Add just enough hot water to barely cover bottom of dish. Brush tops of stuffed fillets with soft butter or margarine. Bake at 400° for 20 minutes or until fish flakes readily with a fork. Serve with dill relish tartar sauce. Makes 8 servings.

CAPE COD COOKOUT

Brush pollock, flounder or cod fillets on both sides with soft butter or margarine. Arrange on a longhandled, well greased hinged wire grill and fasten securely. Place grill about 3 inches above glowing charcoal. Broil until golden brown underneath; turn to brown other side. Fish is done when it flakes. readily with a fork. Baste with barbecue sauce if desired.

COD KEBOBS

String chunks of cod, squares of bacon, cherry tomatoes and mushrooms on long skewers. Brush with vegetable oil. Place directly on well greased barbecue grill. Broil, turning often, until fish is done, basting with barbecue sauce frequently.

BARBECUE SAUCE

- 1 medium onion, minced
- 1/4 cup vegetable oil 1 cup ketchup
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 1 tablespoon prepared, horseradish

Cook onion in oil until soft but not brown. Add remaining ingredients; simmer 5 minutes, stirring often. Strain into small saucepan to set on the grill,

CAPE ANN FRIED WHITING

- 6 to 8 whiting
- seasoned salt.
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice evaporated milk
- 1 cup packaged cornflake
- crumbs 3 tablespoons butter or
- margarine

Have heads removed from whiting at market. Rinse fish in running cold water; pat dry with paper toweling. Sprinkle body cavity with salt and lemon juice. Dip fish first in evaporated milk, then in cornflake crumbs. Place in shallow baking pan lined with aluminum foil. Dot with butter or margarine. Bake at 425° about 20 minutes, or until fish flakes readily with a fork. Garnish with lemon. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

NEW ENGLANDERS PAY TRIBUTE TO THEIR BOUNTIFUL OCEAN HARVEST

and a second and a

People are rediscovering fish and seafood. Weight losers are eating it several times a week. Hostesses are featuring glamorous fish dishes for smart entertaining. Young marrieds are stretching food dollars with their fish purchases. Consumption of seafoods has actually increased since religious abstention laws were lifted. And in New England, it's Seafood Festival time ... a time when tribute is paid to the finny fish and shellfish that Yankee fishermen have harvested since early colonial days.

The renewed interest in fish comes as no surprise to New Englanders who have long enjoyed a monopoly of the bountiful fresh fish harvested by their fishermen. Daily boats come into Boston, New Bedford, Gloucester and Cape Cod with pollock, flounder, cod, scallops, whiting and lobsters.

Thanks to modern transportation, inlanders are now getting their share of this North Atlantic crop. Airlines out of Boston claim that annual tonnage of fresh fish and shellfish exceeds all other commodities shipped by air. Frozen sea-foods, their sea flavor locked in at dockside, take to the road in giant refrigerator trucks for all points in the U.S.

One word of caution to those new to the art of fish cookery. Don't overcook! Fish has a natural flavor of its own that can be destroyed if cooked to the point of dryness. It's properly cooked when it flakes easily with a fork and is slightly moist.

With that point in mind, you can now free-wheel. Broil pollock steaks (commonly called Boston bluefish) and serve with a tangy sauce. Roll flounder fillets around a savory stuffing; bake and serve with a favorite sauce. Oven fry whole small fish such as whiting. Broil skewered cod chunks for a truly memorable cookout. If you can't come to a New England Seafood Festival, have your own...backyard style.

were taken during one of the class's rare outside appear ances. The yogi (correct term for those who practice yoga) emerged, mats in hand, in the spring, but soon found the weather too warm and the bugs too distracting to continue sessions on a Converse Rd. lawn. They've retreated to the coo basement of the church, and, because Zarifis is taking August off, lessons will stop for a nonth and resume in Septem-

The lessons last an hour and a half, starting with breathing exercises, which, according to practitioners, are the cornerstone of yoga. By breathing properly (through the nose, using stomach muscles) and xigenating one's body, one ouilds up energy to perform the various "asanas," or exercises. The afternoon of this particular visit, about 15 yogi had assembled. The class runs 15-20, and this summer, contains one member of the opposite sex, a student studying art in Willimantic. Men aren't barred; it's just that women have more midds time available. The breathing finished, Zari-

Balesano Hurls Win For Locals

Road cooking proved to be the right menu for Manchester's slumping Ameri-can Legion baseball team last night and as a result the locals pulled off one of the season's biggest upsets, a 3-1 decision over host South Windsor.

The defeat knocked the home run club out of a two-way tie for first place with East Hartford. On the other hand, Man chester snapped a three-game losing skein and squared its record at 9-9 in Zone Eight play. South is 12-5. Strong-arm Jim Balesano

The President's wife showed irritation for the first time in eight days of President Nixon's fast-paced round-the-world trip. She left some disappointed Indian women volunteers behind when she didn't have extra time to chat with them or speak at their mobile child care center in a tent.

"I came to see the children," Mrs. Nixon said, directing her attention to giving out candy to youngsters up to 5 years old whose parents are workers.

Overloaded by the heat, the air conditioning broke down in the gray Rolls-Royce, the Indian president's car Mrs. Nixon used on her two-hour afternoon tour. She was running late from her first stop-a visit to Chatarpur village, 11 miles south of New Delhi, where she went to see a girls school and farm projects and was hemmed in by photographers and reporters. Twenty-five minutes and no speeches had been scheduled fo the child care center. It is an effort of volunteers to help children while their mothers work on construction projects.
