RICHARD CARDINAL CUSHING

'At Home in Your Midst', Cardinal Tells Lutherans

By ALICE EVANS
Herald Reporter

"A few years ago it would have been thought very strange indeed for a Catholic Archbishop to be celebrating with you the diamond jubilee of your parish; but times have changed, and changed for the better, so that I can feel thoroughly at home in your midst today . . ." said Richard Cardinal Cushing, archbishop of Boston, yesterday morning at an ecumenical service at Concordia Lutheran Church.

More than 450 people filled Concordia's sanctuary, another small room near the nave of the church and a portion of Kaiser Hall, to hear the Cardinal speak at the special service commemorating the church's 75th anniversary.

bishop of Hartford; and from Robert Marshall, president of the Lutheran Church in America, congratulating the church on its anniversary.

Dr. Olander, speaking on behalf of all churches in the New England Synod, said "What is today so implicit in the beginning because of the faith and courage of the 28 who founded Concordia."

"A Litany for the Peace of the World" was sung by Dr. Olander, Pastor Bourret, Assistant Pastor Bauer, and various members of the church.

Italy Near End of Crisis In Cabinet

ROME (AP) — Italy's month-old Cabinet crisis appeared today to be nearing an end, with a minority stopgap government in prospect.

Premier Mariano Rumor accepted a mandate Sunday night from President Giuseppe Saragat to form a Cabinet. It was Rumor's second attempt, but this time he apparently was assured of the Socialist support needed for a voting majority in Parliament.

Ulster Riots Injure 90

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — More than 90 persons were injured as Northern Ireland's religious warfare spread to Belfast over the weekend. It was the worst violence in the capital since before World War II.

Two members of the British Parliament called on Home Secretary James Callaghan to intervene, but the British government is traditionally reluctant to take a direct hand in local affairs in Northern Ireland. The territory has domestic self government but remained in the

'They' Do It

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—On a blackboard in an anteroom to the cavernous control center for spacecraft photographing Mars, scientists wrote their theories about why Mariner 7 wasn't operating perfectly.

First was "hit by a meteorite," then "gas escaping from a battery." Somebody added a third, "LGM"—little green men.

Three GIs Set Free By Hanoi

TOKYO (AP) — Hanoi radio said today North Vietnam has released three U. S. war prisoners held for more than a year and an American pacifist who will escort them home disclosed their names.

Pacifist Rennie Davis, who received custody of the three men, sent a message to Hong Kong identifying them as: Lt. (jg) Wesley Lewis Rumbie, 29, of Oroville, Calif.; Lt. (jg) Robert Franchot Frishman, 29, of Santee, Calif.; and Navy Seaman Douglas Brent Hegdahl of Watertown, S.D.

Davis said all three men were in "excellent condition" and that Frishman had "had a successful elbow operation."

"We leave Hanoi Tuesday via ICC (International Control Commission plane) to Vientiane, Laos," Davis said in his message to Hong Kong.

Davis, who with three other American pacifists will escort the pilots home, cabled The Associated Press here that the prisoners had been released to his group.

He said the pilots and his colleagues would fly Tuesday from Hanoi to Vientiane, the capital of Laos, in a plane of the International Control Commission. They plan to go on to Bangkok Wednesday and then to New York on Thursday.

Davis also cabled that his group had met four other American fliers—who are not being released—and all appeared in "excellent" condition. They were Lt. Col. Robinson Rieger of Oklahoma City, Maj. Roger Ingvalson of Sanford, Maine, Capt. Anthony Charles Andrews

Crew Begins Final Report On Moon Trip

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — With only one week remaining in their quarantine, the Apollo 11 astronauts today began wrapping up a report of their adventure before stepping out into a world waiting to shower them with honors.

Space agency officials said Neil A. Armstrong, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins have shown no ill effects from their space journey and indicated there was no reason to extend their isolation beyond the scheduled release date of next Monday.

The 264 mice injected with moon dirt were still free of reaction, the officials reported.

Nixon Said Aiming To Cut More Troops

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon was quoted today as telling congressional leaders another contingent of U. S. troops probably will be withdrawn from Vietnam beginning this month.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said Nixon discussed that prospect at a briefing on his journey to Asia and Communist Romania, a trip which included a visit to Vietnam.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said meanwhile that Nixon had told the congressional leaders, "no decision had been made on further troop replacements."

But Ziegler said an announcement on the troop replacement subject will be made "in the latter part of August."

First Lady 'Didn't See An Ugly Face'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pat Nixon came home from her around-the-world trip saying that the "happy, smiling faces of the people that welcomed us everywhere" are evidence of a "lessening of tensions."

"I didn't see an ugly face on the whole trip," Mrs. Nixon said in an interview while flying home Sunday night.

And because she didn't see any demonstrations or signs of criticism, Mrs. Nixon said she feels "America's prestige is at an all-time high."

In winding up her first foreign trip with her husband since he became President, Mrs. Nixon said the reception in Romania was one of the big moments they have experienced during eight years of traveling around the globe.

For two days "they came out time after time," she said of the enthusiastic crowds in Bucharest.

"I wouldn't stand for two days for anything," she said laughingly.

Mrs. Nixon said she felt the Romanians have always had an affection for the United States.

"They want to be proud and had a chance to be proud because an American president was in their country," she said, adding that the U.S. moon landing "played a part in it."

The First Lady also was impressed by the soldiers and security men who lined the routes in Bucharest.

"Once they get you in, they take care of you," Mrs. Nixon said of the Communist government.

"Our boys could just go to sleep," she added in reference to the U.S. Secret Service agents with them.

Mars Appears Barren Mariner Limping, But Focus Sharp

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Limping a little but with its camera focused sharply, Mariner 7 zipped in today for the most detailed pictures ever taken of Mars. But hope of finding life grew dimmer.

As the spacecraft streaked within 2,000 miles of the planet, scientists said its cameras were working better than those on its predecessors—so well, in fact, that they planned to show the pictures as they arrived.

The showing was scheduled for 12:30 a.m. EDT Tuesday, more than 18 hours earlier than originally planned.

Thirty-one pictures will be taken—seven more than planned. And they'll be shown to scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory five times faster.

"They'll be split down the middle by a black bar and will have many of their gray shades missing because computer processing won't be complete. But scientists said they wanted to show them immediately, despite these imperfections, because of their excellence.

They'll be reshown at 8:30 p.m. EDT on Tuesday after processing is complete and the blemishes are removed.

Hopes of finding life darkened as scientists analyzed information from a twin spacecraft, Mariner 6, which swooped past Mars five days ago, showing a desolate, moonlike surface.

The Mariner 6 pictures were markedly better than those of Mariner 4, which flew Mars in 1965. But scientists said pictures from Mariner 7 would be best of all.

Missouri Town Hit By Rail Car Blast

NOEL, Mo. (AP) — "It blew the hell out of things," said Kenneth Meador.

One piece of metal ripped through a wall of Mrs. Rosa Miller's house, killing the 47-year-old beauty parlor operator.

An 800-pound railroad car wheel soared three blocks and smashed into the home of Virgil Bentley, seriously injuring his wife.

Roofs caved in. Walls buckled. Main street was carpeted with shattered glass from store fronts. More than 40 persons were injured. Pieces of shattered railroad cars were thrown half a mile. At the site of the explosion there was a hole 15 feet deep and 50 feet across in the railway roadbed.

"Practically every building in town is damaged," said Meador, who operates a gas station.

The mystery blast shattered a 115-car Kansas City Southern freight train, as it was passing through the community Sunday.

Officials pieced together this report:

About 3:45 a.m. as the freight train rolled into Noel on route from Kansas City to Shreveport, La., the crew spotted a fire on one of the cars.

"They tried to get the train out of town before it blew up, but they didn't make it," said J.W. Braswell, local station agent.

Foe Attacks Ap Bia Hill, B52s Reply

SAIGON (AP) — Fighting flared up on Hamburger Hill Sunday night for the first time since American paratroopers captured the 3,000-foot mountain last May 20, U.S. military spokesmen reported today.

The spokesmen said North Vietnamese troops attacked a column of American tanks in a base camp on the hill overlooking the A Shau Valley. The enemy attacked with mortars, machine guns and rifles, but the thrust was broken by big 80mm tanks guns firing pot-shot and a twin-engine A-1H pouring out 18,000 rounds of fire per minute.

At least nine North Vietnamese soldiers were killed, and there were no American casualties, headquarters said.

Within a few hours, 20 B-52 bombers retaliated with a massive rain around the mountain to thwart any new enemy buildup.

U.S. spokesmen said they did not see any immediate major threat to American and South Vietnamese units operating in the A Shau Valley. American tanks and armored personnel carriers from the U.S. 5th Mechanized Infantry Division have been operating on Hamburger Hill and inside the A Shau Valley in Operation Montagnard Rendezvous. Their aim is to deny the North Vietnamese supply routes from Laos through the valley and staging areas there.

Tank trails and fields of fire have been cleared on top of Hamburger Hill, known formally as Dong Ap Bia. But U.S. officers said they do not plan to keep the armored column on the hill. They said the task force was deployed there to clear the top of the mountain for any future major fighting.

American paratroopers from the 101st Airborne Division captured the hill last May 20 at a cost of 55 Americans killed and 300 wounded in 11 separate assaults in 19 days. More than 600 North Vietnamese soldiers were reportedly killed.

Area Barely Qualifies Farm Loan For Golf Course

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department agency, plowing past some of its own rules, is about to underwrite a $263,000 loan to build a golf course in the Mississippi district of Rep. Jamie Whitten, chairman of the appropriations subcommittee that approves the department's budget.

The Farmers Home Administration already has approved the loan guarantee for the all-white Natchez Trace Golf Club, Inc., but formal closing is not expected for a month or more.

The loan will enable the country club to buy land it has been leasing for a 9-hole golf course, buy and build an additional nine holes and construct a clubhouse, swimming pool, tennis courts and other facilities.

The club is in Lee County, where, according to government figures, about 40 per cent of the families live below poverty income levels. Last fiscal year, the Agriculture Department spent $300,000—about the same as the golf course loan's face value—on food stamps for 3,000 recipients there.

Agency officials both here and in Mississippi said they could find no indication that Whitten, a Democrat, had exerted any pressure or made any inquiry about progress of the application.

But Whitten told a reporter he had in fact written a letter asking about the project's status. "I did in that case as I did in many others," he said. "When the local people are for something, you naturally ask for them how it's doing."

The loan is one of about 600 made for golf courses since the program began in 1962. Inquiries disclosed, though, that it exceeds the agency's usual practices for the recreation loan program.

"We try to avoid indebtedness of more than $1,000 per family membership," administration loan officer Robert S. Crites said. The club had 221 members at the time of its application and now has 231, which would put the indebtedness at $1,147 per family, or 16 per cent above the guideline.

While the Government is not directly loaning the $263,000, it may pay out more than that amount in servicing the 40-year loan.

The Bank of Mississippi at Tupelo, Miss., is making the actual money available. The golf club is paying only 5 per cent interest, however, so the government must put up additional interest to make the arrangement acceptable to the bank.

If the loan closes at the current 8 per cent rate, the government would put up an additional 3 per cent interest. If the money market remains stable, the government would pay out $271,000 as its share of the interest over the life of the loan.

The 40-year term given the Natchez Trace group is the

Laos Pessimism Tempers Vietnam Optimism on War

By T. JEFF WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer
VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — If President Nixon finds a glimmer of light in Vietnam he has only to look toward Laos to see more threatening clouds. The government forces in Laos, backed by the United States, have suffered serious setbacks lately. Just now the offensive by North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao forces seems to be in a lull, but people in Vientiane are wondering if there will be a resumption of fighting by the time Nixon arrives Sunday in neighboring Thailand.

Premier Souvanna Phouma has been vacationing in France but is expected to come home next weekend. Meanwhile there are rumors of deep dissatisfaction among young, right-wing army colonels over what they regard as political stagnation and a deteriorating situation. The current crisis developed June 27 when North Vietnamese forces overran the government army's stronghold at Muang Soui, 100 miles north of this administrative capital. The fact that it was a traditional neutralist stronghold is important. It is a traditional neutralist stronghold in this country. Souvanna Phouma, represents the neutralist system. On the left is the Pathet Lao and on the right are government army generals.

Under this triangular system, Laos is technically a neutralist state designed to be a buffer between Thailand and North Vietnam. But if the neutralist army's position is destroyed, Communist attacks this undermines the legitimacy of the neutralist Premier Souvanna Phouma. It would leave the Pathet Lao on the left, support Vietnamese, and the North Vietnamese army on the right, supported by the Americans. Laos would no longer be strictly neutralist and thus up for grabs, to use an unpolitical but accurate term.

The North Vietnamese, with many troops in the country, seem apt to overrun almost any spot in Laos when they choose. It depends on their political timing. Their timing in overrunning Muong Soui, a neutralist stronghold, was on the western end of the Plain of Jars, has caused concern here. This gives them a better opportunity to isolate Luang Prabang. Also it was done in the middle of the monsoon season, an unusual move. If they could do this it means the North Vietnamese have improved the road so it is not an impassable quagmire under deluge. This in turn means they have the capability of resupply and could drive deeper into the government half of Laos.

Intelligence sources report a heavy buildup of men and supplies by the North Vietnamese at Muong Soui. The question here is: If Communist forces isolate the royal capital of Luang Prabang and then threaten Vientiane on the Thai border, what will America do? This option seems to fall to the Americans because of their massive economic aid and daily—but never officially admitted—bombings of North Vietnamese forces in Laos from Thai air bases. Without this heavy air support, most political and military observers here believe, government forces would have folded months if not years ago.

Said one nongovernment American living here the past four years: "The situation is very grim. The attack on Muong Soui is an attack on Souvanna Phouma and the government. If they seal off Luang Prabang it will be an enormous shock to the Laotians." The most evident U.S. option seen by politicians here is for Nixon to urge the Soviet Union into decisive action. It is a signatory to the 1962 Geneva accords. The Kremlin is quick to say this is a Laotian matter but it revealed in 1962 that it has influence when it wants, even if through Hanoi. In 1962, with the government facing defeat, President John F. Kennedy committed American troops to the northern borders of Thailand in a massive show of force. The Kremlin quickly came around to the idea of keeping Laos neutral. The Soviet Union would also have an interest in maintaining a neutral Laos as part of its over-all Asian plan to contain

Coventry 230 Acres Purchased For Salvation Army Camp

The Salvation Army camp recently purchased 230 acres near the intersection of Rt. 44A and North River Rd., Captain Robert Watson, director of the present Nathan Hale Camp, has announced. The new camp is expected to cost well over one million dollars, and will be funded through legacy sources, public contributions, foundation grants and a state-wide campaign.

Watson pointed out "there is just not enough space to expand and we are bursting at the seams" at the present campsite located near the intersection of Cross and High Sts. The present property is split into four parcels, a large chunk of land near the Robertson School. The present camp serves more than 3,000 campers during its regular staff of 70 persons. Golden Age campers, 27 other adult campers and six day campers. As of Aug. 24, when the regular camping season climaxes, Mansfield Training School will use the facilities for about six weeks serving more than 800 retarded children and adults.

The Nathan Hale Camp can accommodate 160 youth campers and 25 Golden Age campers and other adult campers and six day campers at one time. Seventy-five per cent of the campers are from Connecticut, said Watson, while the other 25 per cent come from Rhode Island. The camp director is eagerly looking forward to the development of the new campsite which hopefully will be completed within two or three years. The new facility will accommodate 200 campers at one time, in addition to 50 Golden Age campers. The master architectural plan has not been completed, said Watson. He added the development of the man made eight to ten-acre lake, the master architectural plan and the water system; plant three, raising the money, and the final stage, construction.

Today in History:

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Monday, Aug. 4 the 216th day of 1969. There are 149 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1914, Britain declared war on Germany at the beginning of the first World War.

On this date — In 1892, Lizzie Borden was arrested in Fall River, Mass., for the hatchet murder of her father and step-mother. In 1916, the United States bought the Danish Virgin Islands for $25 million. In 1944, during World War II, Nazi police captured 14-year-old Anne Frank and seven other Jews in their hiding place in Amsterdam.

In 1962, eleven U.S. air force fliers captured during the Korean War reached Hong Kong after being freed from prison in Communist China. In 1963, it was disclosed that Joseph Valachi, a former member of the Cosa Nostra, had been supplying FBI with information about a national crime syndicate. Five years ago: After four years of negotiations, the United States rejected 15 Philippine claims totaling $50 million, ranging from tax refunds to back pay for war-time guerrillas.

The bodies of civil rights workers Michael Schwerner, Andrew Goodman and James Chaney were found in a newly built earth dam near Philadelphia, Miss. A tank and artillery battle flared across the Jordan River as Israeli planes hammered Arab guerrilla bases in Jordan. One year ago: The camp director is eagerly looking forward to the development of the new campsite which hopefully will be completed within two or three years. The new facility will accommodate 200 campers at one time, in addition to 50 Golden Age campers. The master architectural plan has not been completed, said Watson. He added the development of the man made eight to ten-acre lake, the master architectural plan and the water system; plant three, raising the money, and the final stage, construction.

Experts Ask Grand Tour Of Planets

WASHINGTON (AP) — American space scientists recommend a deep sweep around the solar system by unmanned spacecraft in the late 1970s to explore the outer reaches of the sun's billiard.

The Space Science Board of the National Academy of Sciences said Sunday the grand tour of Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune and Pluto might provide new clues to how life actually evolved. The board even envisioned such a craft ultimately leaving the solar system and plunging into Milky Way regions.

Another recommendation, for robotic later years, included studying the feasibility of having a spacecraft dock on an asteroid between Mars and Jupiter to collect samples for return to earth. The group also suggested having a spacecraft chase Halley's Comet. It last flashed into Earth's view in 1910 and returns about every 77 years.

The board said grand tours of the five distant planets could be made in the late 1970s because of their unusual deployment. It would be nearly 200 years until another such opportunity is presented, the board added. While giving no dollar estimate, the group said the cost of the grand tour would be a small additional fraction of the money already spent by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

College Head Sees Danger In Fund Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president of Brandeis University today warned that cutting off federal funds to universities based by radical protest could be just as damaging as the protest.

"What if you cut 'em down, these policies lead to the same end," said Brandeis President Dr. Morris B. Abram, who weathered an 11-day occupation of his school's communications center in January by Negroes demanding an autonomous black studies department. "And, as usual, the enemies of the right and left, while throwing bricks at each other, seldom hit anything but those in between — the liberals and moderates," he said in testimony prepared for a Senate subcommittee probing campus disorder.

Abram urged the subcommittee to consider an alternate course proposed by the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence: Grant students the power to seek federal injunctions against radicals who threaten to shut down a campus. "It may be a very sobering experience for radical extremists to face a federal judge and try to explain why they think they have the right to deprive others of constitutional guarantees," he said. The Brandeis protest did not seriously hamper the school's normal operation. The dispute ended when the school granted amnesty to the protesters and agreed to institute an administration program.

Abram said most students are not destroyers. "Sometimes misguided, they are generally sincere, idealistic students," he said. "And although their behavior presently underlies a grave national concern, they are our nation's hope of tomorrow." "The plain fact is that in 1969, 2 to 3 per cent of the student population are revolutionaries — potential destroyers," he said. "However, these radical enemies of the university within its gates have unwitting allies outside," he said. "These are reacting to the violence on the campus by responses which amount to starving the university of support, public and private."

Art Painting on Car Door Looks Bright

AP Newsfeatures Writer Here's a way to keep your house apart from others in your block: Decorate your garage door. A daily, many-day, many-year thing.

The trend to garage door decorating has been observed and more by women who have been trying to sell auto-made garage doors.

Design trend in particular, they point out, is the use of a double-line design and a wooden and aluminum motif that has been designed to put garage doors in the same class as the double-line design.

The design trend may have been started by a woman in Milwaukee, Wis., who makes such design motifs.

When the flash door was introduced, he decided to have the door with designs. The door is made of aluminum and steel.

Nixon Said Aiming To Cut More Troops

Manuscript security for the visit estimated that two million of his countrymen had turned out for the series of motorcades in the first trip to a communist country by a U.S. president since World War II.

Others thought the total was more like one million. But regardless of the count, there was no mistaking the fervor of the spectators who lined Nixon's motorcade routes day and night, and in at least one instance, stood in a heavy, soaking rain for more than an hour for a glimpse of him.

When Nixon would step from his limousine to shake hands with the onlookers, they would reach for increased contact with the president.

Ribicoff Asks More Outlets For Passports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., said Sunday that state and federal court houses should have facilities to issue passports.

In a statement filed with a Senate Appropriations subcommittee, Ribicoff said, "Passport offices are becoming a permanent scene at virtually every passport office."

"The most disturbing element of this problem is that the inadequacies that cause it can be easily overcome, there is simply inadequate funding to supply the needed manpower."

"Prior to this year," Ribicoff explained, "Connecticut residents could obtain passports at three outlets—the federal court in Hartford, the federal court in New Haven, and the state court in Bridgeport."

"Through a variety of circumstances, including the intense pressure of the large number of applications, the courts in New Haven and Bridgeport are unable to handle the demand for the documents."

"This investment will in turn generate future profits as a necessary first step in aiding our troubled citizens," he said.

Military Rule May End, Making History in Africa

By ROSS K. BAKER

Special to the Washington Post
Ed. Note: The writer is an assistant professor of political science at Rutgers University.

It is possible that political history will be made on Aug. 29 in Ghana, where a military regime that has been in power for more than two years appears to be allowing itself to be voted out of power. Elsewhere in Africa—in Sierra Leone, Dahomey and the Sudan—civilians have succeeded soldiers, but not by popular vote. Ghana is remarkable in this respect, and if the August election goes off without a serious hitch, a new government under a new constitution will be installed at Osu Castle in Accra.

The conditional "if," however, is used advisedly, for Ghanaians are intensely political people who have been denied political activity by the military government that overthrew President Kwame Nkrumah on Feb. 28, 1966.

Originally composed of eight members (four army officers and four police officials), the National Liberation Committee, as the junta was called, has been reduced in size. The first casualty was the popular Col. E. K. Kotoka, who was killed in an abortive counter-coup led by dissident junior officers in April 1967. The second loss was the committee's chairman, Lt. Gen. Joseph Ankrah, who was discovered in April 1968 to be the recipient of political funds from foreign businessmen who sought to "promote" his candidacy for president under the proposed civilian constitution.

Ankrah's chair was filled by the attractive and impulsive 31-year-old Brig. A. A. Afrifa, who was discovered in April 1968 to be the recipient of political funds from foreign businessmen who sought to "promote" his candidacy for president under the proposed civilian constitution.

The composition of the National Liberation Committee has been, from its inception, a matter of the utmost delicacy, for Ghana, like virtually every other African state, is highly fragmented ethnically. Each member of the original group was chosen either for his role in ousting Nkrumah or for his tribal affiliation or both.

Some charter members, like Police Commissioner B. A. Yako, were chosen not because they were privy to the coup but because they represented an ethnic group whose representation on the National Liberation Committee was politically prudent.

The death of Kotoka and the disfigurement of Ankrah have thrust two men into the forefront of leadership in this transitional period—Afrifa and the inspector general of police, J. W. K. Hartley. Afrifa is an Ashanti from the center of the country and Hartley is an Ewe from the Volta region. The two leading candidates for civilian leadership in the forthcoming election, Dr. K. A. Busia and K. A. Gbedemah, are Ashanti and Ewe, respectively.

Neither Afrifa nor Hartley makes any secret of espousal of his kinsmen, and the surfacing of ethnic politics in the context of the election demonstrates the saliency and persistence of this factor.

Under both the ousted Nkrumah regime and the junta, Ghanaians were urged to eschew tribalism, but this is like asking Americans to disregard ethnic and religious allegiances in their choice of candidates. The consequences of tribal politics are strikingly similar for the United States and Ghana: alienation on the part of the "outs," insecurity on the part of the "ins," and an increasing polarity and suspicion within the electorate.

The Constitutional Commission appointed by the junta and directed by Chief Justice Edward Akufo-Addo issued a series of recommendations in late January, 1968, calling for a mixed parliamentary-presidential system that divided executive responsibility between a president and a prime minister. The president, chosen by an electoral college composed of members of Parliament, chiefs and regional representatives, would be the father and constitutional qualified to become prime minister was posed at the same time that the nature and duties of the office were outlined. For almost concurrently with the recommendations of the Akufo-Addo Commission, the junta issued a decree that banned from public office for ten years any important members of the Convention People's Party—the political organization of former President Nkrumah—who held office after July 1, 1966.

The potential candidate most directly affected by the decree was K. A. Gbedemah, leader of the newly-formed National Alliance of Liberals. He had broken with Nkrumah in 1961 but the decree meant he had waited a year too long and was legally barred from running for office.

Gbedemah was required to have his assets scrutinized by the Jagger Commission, which was charged with investigating the financial machinations of members of the ousted regime. After a considerable period of uncertainty, Gbedemah was cleared for candidacy. But as of last May 1, when the junta lifted its ban on political activity, he was still under a cloud of suspicion and was considered to be clearly behind Dr. K. A. Busia, the standard-bearer of the Progress Party.

There was no question of Dr. Busia's eligibility. Busia had been driven into exile long before disqualification dates and as leader of the old opposition United Party had never been affiliated with Nkrumah's Convention People's Party; quite the contrary, he was the embodiment of anti-Nkrumah sentiment.

Busia's standing was further enhanced by his appointment as chairman of the Center for Civic Education, whose function was to restore popular confidence in government and to act as an anti-dote to Nkrumahism. The job involved traveling throughout Ghana and providing Busia with excellent exposure while his sick principal rival was still fighting for his qualification. Despite his early handicaps and Busia's fast start, Gbedemah has narrowed the gap considerably and, according to some observers, is now abreast of Busia in popularity.

Gbedemah is a politician and an organizer and Busia is not. Despite his experience as a parliamentary opponent of Nkrumah, Busia is somewhat academic in his approach to politics and somewhat casual about his role as a candidate. Where Busia's group is often aloof and amateurish, Gbedemah's is invariably professional and Bourret, Concordia pastor, the Rev. Dr. O. Karl Olander, president of New England Synod of the Lutheran Church in America; and Richard Cardinal Cushing, Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston.

Only Coincidence

Town Manager Robert Welles says it is only a coincidence that a notice, advertising for an accountant for the town of Windsor, has been posted on a bulletin board in the Manchester Municipal Building. He says it has nothing to do with the fact that he, Director of Public Works William O'Neill and Town Planner Eric Potter all worked for the town of Windsor, before coming to Manchester. Wise explained that the Connecticut Municipal Finance Officers Association is now circulating vacancies in member towns and is requesting that the notices be posted on bulletin boards.
