

Some Reflections on Life With a Teen-Age Daughter

By HAL BOYLE
 NEW YORK (AP)—One of life's little ordeals is trying to raise a teen-ager today. Particular difficulty is in making the teen-ager do the job he or she is capable of doing. Anyone who does the job successfully deserves a pat on the back from a grateful neighbor. But those who do not do the job successfully are often the subject of a good deal of gossip. Bringing up children in the old days didn't take too much trouble. They were seen and not heard. If you told them to do something they did it—or so the legend now runs—and if you were 12 or so they were started doing outside jobs and

They feel it keeps adults in their place. Have you tried to talk to a teen-ager recently? It isn't easy in training a mule, the thought is that you first strike between the eyes with a 2-by-4 plank to be sure you have its attention. You are not allowed to do this with teen-agers. The only way is to get the attention of a teen-ager is to dangle a $10 bill in front of his eyes, then, speak in real fast, try to get your message across before it can be lost. Teen-agers are extremely uncommunicative in the presence of their elders. I am trying to bring up one, Tracy Ann, and recently turned 16, and have discovered she has two vocabularies.

River Diversion Bill
 (BOSTON AP) — A $20-million bond issue to finance a plan to divert 325 million gallons of water per day from the Connecticut River to Quabbin Reservoir was killed late Sunday night by the Massachusetts House.
 A bill authorizing the Metropolitan District Commission to build a pumping station near Northford Mountain was sent to a study-in-effect, killing it for this year.

 Up to 27 billion gallons of water annually will have been pumped into the reservoir, which has contained about half of its capacity for the past several years.

Continues Diamonds

After the actual play of the queen of diamonds, declares the ace diamond to dummy's side. He tried three rounds of clubs, but the suit didn't break. Since West had discarded a heart on the third round of clubs, declarer took the ace and king of hearts. But West dropped the queen of hearts on South's king of diamonds. Now there was no way to keep East out of the lead. East was sure to get in and could then lead a spade through South's jack. Down one.
 South could have made the contract by a very simple play. After winning the first trick with the king of spades, he gets to dummy with a club and then leads the first diamond from dummy instead of from his own hand. East must play low, and South takes a deep finesse with the nine of diamonds.
 West wins with the queen of diamonds, but West is the safe opponent. If West leads another

He's a Man Of Many Hats

WINNETT, Mont. (AP) — Sixty-three year old M.N. Gershmel is an important man here in Petroleum County. He's sheriff, county manager, school superintendent, assessor, director of finance, public administrator and coroner.
 He lives in the central Montana town of Winnett, which has 380 people, three gas stations, one grocery, a grain elevator, one hotel and several bars. Winnett is the county seat of Petroleum County which, with its 800 residents, has the smallest population of any Montana county.
 Gershmel says that neither the coroner nor sheriff's jobs keeps him very busy. Nobody died in Petroleum County last year, and says Gershmel, the local people are very law-abiding. Only once in a while we get some a podium coming through."
 Gershmel, who's been running the county government for 13 years, believes the county's future may hinge on the lack of people.
 "People back east may get tired of the heavily populated areas and come out to the West," he said. "The more the better."
 Storm Jolts Yugoslavia
 (BEOGRAD AP) — A fierce storm swept roofs off houses and toppled trees Monday night as the Yugoslav Riviera, and a series of strong earth tremors jolted the town of Debar, near the Albanian border early today.

Common Sense Necessary For Home Fire Prevention

By VIVIAN BROWN
 AP Newsfeatures Writer
 Last year, property losses from fire damage in the United States were more than $2 billion, but vastly more important, entire families were burned to death because of carelessness or ignorance.
 People do foolish things.
 They cook in a fireplace and then leave dying embers in it that can ignite the grease.
 They let youngsters, who are at home alone, cook bacon and other greasy foods.
 Many parents leave small children at home with portable heat stoves that can be knocked over.
 They keep inflammable cloths and chemicals in the cellar or in closets.
 One house was destroyed by fire when a 12-year-old boy was asked to remove ashes from a fireplace and he left the paper guard up and the fire in the grate.
 Water will make the grease splatter and the fire spread, so avoid using it on a fire.
 If a skillet burns, leave it where it is. In moving it, the hot grease might spill, spreading the fire and burning you.

 Experts recommend tending family awareness of fire should center on common-sense precautions. Local fire departments should be encouraged to instruct communities in the dangers connected with fire and give warnings on how they can get started.

Runaways Find Sanctuary In East Village Storefront

By LINDA KRAMER / AP - New-Haven Press

NEW YORK (AP) — Some 200 runaways concentrated on a chess board, others lounged about and rapped, a girl stretched. Most of them were runaways of days, weeks and there were a few junkies among them. It was a typical afternoon at the East Village storefront that is a pilot program sponsored by the New York Educational Alliance.

"We're a non-organized service, helping kids to be comfortable in the lives they've chosen for themselves," explained Larry Zick, one of two full-time social workers at the storefront. Part of being comfortable is being well but many of the youths are very nervous, especially at regular clinics because under the circumstances they dare not identify themselves. The New York Educational Alliance has a doctor three times a week to do a check-up on the kids. A psychiatrist and psychologist also visit the storefront regularly.

The East Village Project, as the storefront is officially known, also provides the youths with free legal substance. Helps them find jobs, provides emergency food, helps them obtain free legal substance. Helps them find jobs, provides emergency food, helps them obtain free legal substance. MIMICS, UNLIMITED!

Mimicking the famous is, and always has been, a favorite kind of humor. From the kind of major racial outbreak which has marred other years in American cities, the British weekly The Economist said:

One reason the summer is quiet, the Economist continued, is that "police forces have learned when to back down, when not to back down, when to act and to take orders as a platoon."

In the ghettoes there is a growing respect for the ability of most police departments to outwit or simply beat down a full-scale riot. And the slums themselves, the victims of their own riots, are tired. A recent poll showed that less than one percent of city blacks now believe that the police are the cause of their troubles.

After a lecture last night in the United States Dr. Norman Pittenger, a theologian at King's College, Cambridge University, wrote in a British newspaper:

"Comparisons are said to be odious but a visit to a dozen theological centers and to many parishes on the East Coast and in the Middle West assured me that if comparisons are made between the British and a healthier state than in the United States."

"Church attendance here in Britain is by those who are committed Christians by those who hope that Christian faith may be meaningful."

The larger number of people who were there because it was something "the thing to do," and fewer because they were committed or hoped that the church had something, however dimly they perceived it."

$77 Billion Defense Budget: Senate Launches Cutting Attack

By WALTER R. MEARS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators critical of the massive budget are planning new assaults on a Pentagon campaign depicting further cuts and a consent to cut $33 billion for the defense budget.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Min., to slice $377 million program for work on a nuclear-powered aircraft carrier. Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., is considering an effort to knock out $29 million for the new Clayon Navy fighter plane. Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., is challenging a $62.5 million item for research and development work on a new manned bomber.

And there may be other attempts to trim the $77 billion bill authorizing weapons purchase, research and development, and other military outlays.

The overall military budget now stands at about $77 billion, the highest in the history of the United States. It is being increased to $82 billion for 1970.

Sen. Hartke said Tuesday that he would like to see the budget cut by $3 billion. He said he would like to see the budget cut by $3 billion. He said he would like to see the budget cut by $3 billion.

A House But Not a Home, Stewart's Film 'Mysterioso'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What's a nice guy like James Stewart doing in a place like the Cheyenne Sporting Club?

The question is more pertinent when you know that the Cheyenne Sporting Club is a place where a man can get a divorce. Stewart's new film, "Mysterioso," is all about it.

"That's right," the actor confirmed. "There's no use in trying to hide it."

"But," said the director, Gene Kelly, "it'll be the picture about it that can be seen by family audiences."

"I'm not going to tell you the plot, because I don't believe in that," Stewart told a reporter. "I learned that from Alfred Hitchcock, who said you should never give away the 'mysterioso'—the thing that the whole plot hinges on."

He proceeded to outline the plot: He and Henry Fonda are a pair of confederates who are looking for a woman in Texas when a letter catches up with Stewart. He learns that an uncle who willed him a piece of property in Cheyenne. He discovers to his chagrin that the property is a house, though not necessarily a home. Shirley Jones is the resident madam in charge of five girls.

What happens next is Stewart's mystery. But he emphasized that the situation is played for laughs, not prurency.

Is there any nudity? "Are you kidding?" he exclaimed. "I'm too damn old for that."

Stewart said he is doing "Cheyenne Sporting Club" because he thinks it's a whopper good comedy.

"That's what we need right now," he said. "We need a little comedy. We need a little comedy. We need a little comedy."

Language Confusion

PORT KAITUMA, South Africa (AP) — African pupils must know two languages if they want to study at a high school now have to learn a third language.

Before the present government came to power in 1948, Africans were taught mainly in English. The late Prime Minister, Hendrik Verwoerd, then minister of native affairs, in 1964 ordered that Africans be educated in junior school in their own tribal language or in Afrikaans, which he called "black English."

High school education continued mainly in English but now, said Metcalf Matiza, principal of the Kwazakwe High School here, the government has ordered that high school education must be in both English and Afrikaans.

"Cheyenne Sporting Club" because he thinks it's a whopper good comedy.

"That's what we need right now," he said. "We need a little comedy. We need a little comedy. We need a little comedy."

Bolton Benefit Dance Slated Friday

There will be a special dance Friday night from 8 to 11:30 p.m. at the St. Maurice's Church to benefit the Danny Thomas St. Jude Research Hospital. Mrs. Audrey Muro, local chairman, said that volunteers who marched in the campaign will be admitted free.

The dance will feature the music of the Rogues of Manchester, who have donated their services. The group, which has been together since September 1968, includes Jim Blaine on rhythm guitar, Pete Cream on bass, and Mike Hayden on drums.

Mrs. Muro noted that the drive for funds has been very successful this past year. Bolton's contributions totaled $42, and the total of Tolland County was over $6,100.

The dance will also be open to the public, and tickets will be available at the door.

Milhey in Litter

NEW YORK (AP) — A litterbug in Maine has found a way to make littering self-liquidating. Allen H. Reed Jr., executive vice president of Keep America Beautiful, Inc., reports that a litterbug caught in Maine tonight was fined $20. This litterbug, with the help of friends, picked up enough returnable bottles along the roadside to pay the fine with the deposit refund.

That amounts to about 1,000 bottles with their initial two-cent deposit.

The case, aside from revealing a litterbug's ingenuity, demonstrates that deposits go longer before people from littering. A widespread awareness and soft drink bottles in this age of affluence, Mr. Reed concluded.

Bolton Benefit Dance Slated Friday

There will be a special dance Friday night from 8 to 11:30 p.m. at the St. Maurice's Church to benefit the Danny Thomas St. Jude Research Hospital. Mrs. Audrey Muro, local chairman, said that volunteers who marched in the campaign will be admitted free.

The dance will feature the music of the Rogues of Manchester, who have donated their services. The group, which has been together since September 1968, includes Jim Blaine on rhythm guitar, Pete Cream on bass, and Mike Hayden on drums.

Mrs. Muro noted that the drive for funds has been very successful this past year. Bolton's contributions totaled $42, and the total of Tolland County was over $6,100.

Milhey in Litter

NEW YORK (AP) — A litterbug in Maine has found a way to make littering self-liquidating. Allen H. Reed Jr., executive vice president of Keep America Beautiful, Inc., reports that a litterbug caught in Maine tonight was fined $20. This litterbug, with the help of friends, picked up enough returnable bottles along the roadside to pay the fine with the deposit refund.

That amounts to about 1,000 bottles with their initial two-cent deposit.

The case, aside from revealing a litterbug's ingenuity, demonstrates that deposits go longer before people from littering. A widespread awareness and soft drink bottles in this age of affluence, Mr. Reed concluded.

With Company A

As has been remarked so many times, that intimate acquaintance with the face of war which, in previous wars, has come only with post-war literature, has been offered everybody live and real from the front in Vietnam.

Some of the most dramatic and gripping action of the war—as well as some of its most cruel and inhuman moments—have been put under microscopic civilian observation as they are actually happening.

The result has been to give everybody a ring-side seat, which many involuntarily convert into a general's arm chair, for action and moments of drama greater than anything that will be created later for novel or stage.

This was all taken, through the reporting of Associated Press Correspondents Herb Foss and Peter Arnett, into the midst of the agony of Company A, which had trouble answering, on the sixth successive day, its orders to advance into highly dangerous and effective enemy fire on a mission which seemed to have no greater goal than the recovery of two American bodies from the wreckage of a helicopter which had been shot down.

As Correspondents Foss and Arnett told the story, it came out to a sort of regulation ending. The men who were too sick of pointless war to answer orders to head into enemy fire on the sixth day in a row were ordered by a man cussing out, and ended up getting to their feet and following their sergeant down the hill. Meanwhile, the readers of this superb news story had been taken into the very heart of the ordeal faced, day after day, by young men who would, in a better kind of world, be having better things to do.

While these two correspondents were putting this piece of the action under their word microscope, television was also flicking it away over the same situation, with both word and picture. This time the spotlight didn't provide quite the regulation ending. The way it told the story, the heatless men were told the enemy had already departed, which was true, before they did get up and go down the hill. And the television version left hanging, painfully, the question of what in the world had been the purpose of the mission anyway. How many Americans lost their lives in what seemed to be mainly an attempt to recover a half dozen bodies, already known dead?

Or, in other words, how sensible is war?

This is a question that soldiers in almost every historic in almost every war have come to ask themselves, sooner or later. And it is a question that has been the key motive in every flood of post-war memoirs, novels and stage plays.

In this war, the people back home get to be asking the question along with their sons out in the field.

The experience is not proving very healthy for the institution of war. And because it has, through modern communications media, offered this kind of experience, the war in Vietnam has probably done more to begin to turn the mind and heart of man against war than all the previous wars in history added together.

on the surface of things here a few million years ago, and you might have to dig for hundreds of feet in some locations, depending upon the effects of such things as floods and glaciers.

But up on the surface of the moon, you can reach down with your special moon-rook equipment and you pick up a piece that has been lying there, unchanged in that same spot, on that same surface, for perhaps three and a half billion years.

That bespeaks a sterile, changeless existence which may have lasted as long as the earth itself has been here. All the while the earth has, however, had a life with processes of growth and decomposition, production and storing, chemical and organic metamorphosis, and the present state of the earth shows, as far as we are able to research into it, all the results of an endless series of natural events.

The poor moon, on the other hand, although it may have been born about the same time, or even earlier, has had almost nothing at all happen to it, but has orbited along in the same sterile, changeless state ever since it was first hung out there to dry in the sun. It has, over the millennia, accumulated into its dust and rock a certain amount of gas extracted from the solar wind which kept beating against it. That, plus the occasional bombardment of atoms and rays, is perhaps the only thing that has ever given the moon any kind of history or story until, one day, Armstrong and Aldrin awakened the sleeping planet.

Convenient Having Him Around

It was certainly convenient that when the Colorado State Supreme Court the other day reversed the 1948 conviction of one Joe Sam Walker he was around to hear the news and gain something of the possible benefits from the decision.

Joe Sam Walker was convicted, in 1948, of the crime of murder, but instead of capital punishment, his sentence was to serve from 40 years to life, which is what he has been doing, protesting his innocence all these 21 years.

The new decision in his case does not establish his innocence. It merely ruled that he didn't have a fair trial, back in 1948, because of the massive and capricious publicity which had labeled him, even before his trial took place, as "a mad dog" and "pervert" and "fiend."

Now Walker will either get released—he has been eligible for parole for two years anyway, but refused parole in order to press his appeal to the Supreme Court—or he will get a new trial.

Quite conceivable in that case, the real evidence which still produces a conviction, even though memory of the newspaper headlines has long since faded.

But there is, as we said, a great convenience in having the victim of possible mistakes in the part of our system of justice still alive if mistakes happen to be discovered 20 years later. It gives society, if it has made a mistake, at least the privilege of having somebody to say it's sorry to.

A Matter of Taste

Crito: Sociates. It was reported over the news that some ingenious artisan has discovered how to put the taste back into bread after the bakers have taken it out. Is not this wonderful?

Sociates: It is indeed, Crito. Crito: There will be money in it for someone?

Sociates: For a lot of people, I imagine. Crito: But does it not remind you of what you were saying yesterday about what, that behind every table that we touch and see there is laid up, as it were in heaven, the idea or form of a table, from which all material tables derive? I suppose this would also be the case with bread—that the loaves we eat are merely unskilled copies of the ideal loaf.

Inside Report

WASHINGTON—After two weeks of confused transmittal, the President's Assistant for Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Robert Finch and Agriculture Secretary Clifford Bourland. But he encouraged them to be more specific.

Indeed, food stamps might have disappeared from the Nixon program entirely had it not been for frantic lobbying inside the Administration by Dr. Jean Mayer, the brilliant and conservative Harvard nutritionist who signed on in June as the President's food consultant. Now so Washington and to politics, Mayer worked behind the scenes to prevent Mr. Nixon's welfare reform program from wiping out food stamps.

But even though Mayer has managed to save food stamps for now, the program is doomed in the long run. The Administration wants to get rid of food stamps "one top White House aide told us." The program reserves the news from the rest of the people by giving them their own currency. Besides, it doesn't work.

This was the framework for a battle, both partisan and ideological. Likely to last throughout Mr. Nixon's first term. Liberal Democrats, first to give the President credit for his revolutionary welfare reform, will attack him for slighting the hungry poor. The Administration, for its part, will accuse the Democrats of paternalism that does not trust the poor to wisely handle cash cash.

This debate, in considerably more muted terms, has been fought out inside the Administration all summer since the arrival of Dr. Mayer. Following President Nixon's May 6 statement on hunger, Mayer was talked into coming to Washington to set up the President's White House conference on the subject.

Sociates: So that the man who can offer us the taste of bread without the bread will be superior to the man who has to use a tasteless loaf as a taste? Crito: I suppose so. But what about the texture, Sociates? Does bread not have a crusty texture as well as a taste? Sociates: Don't be stupid, Crito. An artisan as ingenious as yours will surely supply a synthetic, indefinitely resalable breadcrust for you to chew along with your freshly purchased taste. Goodbye, Crito.

Crito: Goodbye, Sociates. —MANCHESTER (ENGLAND) GUARDIAN

Political Parade

By DAVID S. BUDER The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—One day last week a prominent member of the government stood with reporters at one of those cozy sessions where he could speak his mind without fear of public identification. The next morning, readers of several newspapers were told the "high U.S. officials" believe prospects are "very promising" for a quiet year on the college front.

As it happens, that conclusion is directly contrary to most of the pertinent information the government has been able to assemble on the plans of the student militants and the state of preparedness of the college administrations.

Since it is not the custom of newspapers to advise their readers to disregard yesterday's headline, they will undoubtedly be a good many citizens who will be terribly surprised when another round of demonstrations and sit-ins occurs on the college campuses.

The soul that slumbers, it shall die. The penalty wasn't. The fine must be paid. But then, Jesus stepped from a throne to a cross to pay the penalty for his friend.

There is little wonder that the law-breaker was broken-hearted in his repentance. "The soul that slumbers, it shall die." The penalty wasn't. The fine must be paid. But then, Jesus stepped from a throne to a cross to pay the penalty for his friend.

aided, dead throel from the last weeks of preceding the welfare program into shape, should not be summoned to draft a new message on emergency basis.

But, when that statement is finally prepared, it will state the Administration's decision to spend one billion dollars (about half as much as Mayor wants) for the interim period until the Nixon welfare plan is enacted. After that, food stamps will be distributed to poor people — unmarried and children married — ineligible for welfare. But even that limited program might be further truncated if some White House aides have their way.

These past two weeks of often cloudy dispatches have made clear that Pat Moynihan's analysis of what all the poor — a lack of money — under the administration policy. To remedy that in some measure, the government will put money in the pockets of the poor and give them the option of spending it wisely for food or foolishly for a stupor.

As a nutritionist, Dr. Mayer would prefer a food stamp program superimposed on Moynihan's cash payments for the next several years. As a loyal member of the Administration, he is unlikely to lead a public protest against it if at least the Nixon Family Plan is followed. But liberal Democrats on Capitol Hill, searching for political issues, have no such inhibitions. They are certain to protest food and clothing in the months to come in an effort to draw a political issue of food versus money.

The 22 Republican members of the House of Representatives who made their own unpublished tour of the college campuses last spring urged Mr. Nixon to "coordinate all the present youth programs of the federal government through one central office."

That has not yet been done. Neither has there been action or the other positive steps recommended by Rep. William E. Brock. Brock's visit and his colleagues' Administration proposals for reform of the draft—the base of the young man's lives—are languishing on Capitol Hill. Proposals for involving students in public service projects and governmental decision-making (some of which Mr. Nixon espoused as long ago as last year's campaign) are still just words on paper.

As the Brock group recommended, the administration has sought to block legislation in Congress to cut off funds indiscriminately to campuses afflicted by disorder. But the steps that might prevent a new round of disorder have not been taken. When they returned from their campus visits, the Congressmen — more of them, however, than the liberalists who wrote Mr. Nixon that "the critical urgency of the problem of campus unrest" cannot be overestimated.

Man Charged In Slaying

WALLINGFORD, Conn. (AP) —A 47-year-old merchant seaman faced a murder charge today in the slaying of a man he found visiting his estranged wife, Barbara, found her with DePinto in the kitchen, and shot DePinto in the abdomen with a .38 caliber pistol.

The four Carver children were reportedly in the house at 39 Tremper St. when the shooting occurred. DePinto was rushed to Meriden-Wallingford Hospital, where he died shortly after arrival. Carver, a half brother of Police Chief Joseph Bevan, reportedly had just returned to Wallingford from a long voyage. William Carver was booked after turning himself in to police a few minutes after the shooting.

Army M16 Contractor Fails to Pass Muster

WASHINGTON (AP)—Calling the weapons poorly made, the Army has stopped accepting M16 rifles produced by a Massachusetts company involved last year in a contract award that raised the ire of Congress. The Army says in effect that the Harrington & Richardson Co. of Worcester, Mass., was turning out shoddy rifles but it hopes the suspension of M16 acceptances will be temporary. In response to questions, the Army said it had rejected five lots totaling 5,000 rifles before suspending further acceptances last July 25. The company is being in deliveries by 12,000 weapons.

Firemen's Wives Get Into the Act, Play Waterball

Tax Office, Rec Spending Reviewed by Finance Board

Tax problems and over-spending by the generation-skipping trust monopolized the time of the Board of Finance in last night's meeting. While waiting for another member to show up for a quorum the discussion centered around the antiquated system of collecting taxes in Bolton. There were many suggestions for changing the filing system, to getting some extra help for the tax collector for the masses, to the acquisition of a verifying machine. This discussion was spurred by the first two items on the agenda. The first action ratted a transfer of $32.83 from the General Fund to a tax refund account to cover money which had been overpaid in taxes. The second move, which must be approved by the town, concerned $5,800 needed because of another taxpayer's mistake. After the first action ratted, the second move was approved. The request by the selectmen to reimburse Aloysius Ahearn for $185 for the time and money he invested in assessor school was only partially granted. It was the opinion of the finance board that he should be reimbursed for the $50 spent for tuition and lunch.

Forgery Suspect Accused Two of Mafia Connections

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—A federal judge in Little Rock, Ark., New York meatcutter, tears in January to 20 years in another case. Kiehn has told the court he cashed $9,000 worth of stolen savings bonds under a threat of death from Mafia loan sharks. Kiehn has told the court he was accompanied by Michael Edward Muratore, 32, of Long Island, said he cashed the bonds after he and his family were threatened of his inability to repay a $2,000 loan he said obtained from Coa Noe the agent. Muratore, divorced, is charged with forging and cashing 47 U.S. Series E savings bonds worth $200 each in several banks here last March. The case was expected to go to the jury today. Muratore testified during the second day of his trial Tuesday that when he fell behind in repayment of his high-interest loan, he was told the must forge and cash the checks or be, his widowed mother or son would be harmed. "I can't answer that question," he told the jury. Under cross-examination, and still expressing fear for the safety of himself and his family, he flatly said they were new acquaintances and Frank Carbone, a priest, had given him several prayerbooks and stolen a candlestick.

Danbury Paper Says Hospital Care Poor

By BOB CHUVALA
Danbury News-Times Staff Writer
For The Associated Press

DANBURY, Conn. (AP)—The Danbury News-Times has charged editorially that treatment given mentally ill patients at Fairfield Hills Hospital in Newtown "does not measure up to that given in other sections of the state" and called for corrective steps.

The editorial resulted from a six-part News-Times series on the state mental hospital, recently the focal point of charges of patient abuse and torture, and discrimination against black employees.

The series reported an intense power struggle between the state Board of Mental Health and the superintendent and Board of Trustees of Fairfield Hills for control of the state institution.

The newspaper said the power struggle reached a head last October when the superintendent, Mental Health Director William F. Bloom, threatened to fire Superintendent William F. Bloom "without recourse to a hearing" if he did not follow a Board of Mental Health order to decentralize the hospital.

The Board of Mental Health had ordered the three major state hospitals to decentralize their operations nearly three years ago. Connecticut Valley Hospital (CVH) in Middletown and Norwich Hospital followed the order, decentralizing their operations into "geographic units" by 1967.

The News-Times said Fairfield Hills, however, has continued to ignore the order with a series of excuses until recently when administration utilized a small section of the overall operations.

The "geographic unit system" is aimed at breaking down the institution into more manageable units and giving more intensive care and therapy to the mentally ill in order to achieve a quicker release of patients back into the community.

CVH and Norwich implemented the plan and succeeded in dropping overall patient populations to numbers substantially lower than the Fairfield Hills patient population.

The hospital the News-Times said, is still operating in a vacuum away from community involvement and intensive patient treatment and care, perpetuating conditions that no longer exist at the other major state hospitals.

Fairfield Hills continues to make use of "back wards" and "seclusion rooms" for long periods with only a blanket for comfort and the floor for a toilet; that many wards in the hospital have toilets with no seats, no toilet paper and no partitions or doors for privacy; that patients must dress and undress, toilet and shower in full view of fellow patients and attendants.

A former patient interviewed for the series stated she had been locked in seclusion rooms several times, and was forced to strip and sleep on a blanket as punishment for being aggressive.

"What they do is train you to be a patient at Newtown," she said.

The News-Times also said that two clinical psychologists who testified on a mental patient's "Bill of Rights" before a General Assembly committee last February were asked to resign as part of the team.

Dr. Leonard Scholiff and Dr. George Steinfield, both of Danbury, had been instrumental in informing patients of their legal rights prior to the February hearing. At that public hearing they testified that "people that want to get out of the hospital may be prohibited from doing so by being locked in a closed ward," that "people in long-term treatment buildings are receiving little psychiatric help," and that patients are being "dehumanized" by their treatment.

Following the psychologists' testimony, Dr. Green reportedly ordered all outgoing mail from the hospital's psychology department to pass "unopened" over his desk for "review, approval and mailing," and prevented publication of a timely newsletter which contained a paper by Scholiff and Steinfield concerning the need for legal rights of patients to be spelled out.

The newsletter was published underground and distributed from another state hospital with funds collected from "concerned psychologists," the paper said.

The News-Times also detailed unsuccessful attempts by the Midwestern Connecticut Mental Health Association to obtain cooperation from Dr. Green in opening a halfway house. The superintendent reportedly refused the association admission to the hospital to speak with patients about to be discharged.

The state Association of Mental Health has compiled a bulging file of complaints and charges from former patients,

Handbags Accent Costumes; Fall's Selection Big, Colorful

What's going to be your bag this fall? Or should we say "bags"? Since a handbag plays an important role in accenting an outfit, most women will want a minimum of three bags: a casual bag to wear with skirts and sweaters and pants suits, a tailored bag for suits and dressier dresses and an evening bag for those magic nights.

Handbags in General
Over all, this fall's handbag look starts with a return to the '30s with softness and slouch, the prevailing feeling. Texture is extremely important and the distinction between day and evening textures is loud. Now it's anything goes: Shawls, pants, tunics and midi coats. To complement skirts and sweaters, get a grip on the soft slouch bag and envelope, but also get a hold of the structured bag and envelope. Textured and tweed bags are in, as are the crumpled patent, hair calli and printed rabbit.

Formal Daytime
Suits and dresses require a more formal handbag, as do the bags are still tailored, but called in the form of kites, cloches and Initials.

Webbing, cords and ropes, many looking like saddle or military gear show up as straps for shoulder bags and as trim on daytime styles. Prints and lace are everywhere in sportswear, but it also appears for fun coverings.

The elongated envelope to the leading shape for fall, flapped and snapped and trimmed with brassy corners.

The most important color are the earth tones, the whole palette from gold to brick, red to chocolate. The newest neutral is slate, a new blend of gray and brown that's darker than taupe. The russet tones are just plain old neutrals. Bobs de Rome, a sooty pink color that goes with almost any shade, is everywhere.

Quail Daytime Bags
According to the National Handbag Association, casual daytime bags speak straight from the shoulder. Soft, long travel totes are appearing in new soft leathers and crushed patents. And every manufacturer had come out with some travel bag that is coordinated with their regular handbag line—the travel twin look.

Men aren't neglected on the bag scene, but the bags in which they can carry the wallet, card cases and passports that otherwise would mar the most popular male bag in business is the variation of the attaché case that can be tucked under the arm like a newspaper.

Outside pockets and contrasts of texture and color are highly sought after. Pockets and straps are crumpled patent, hair calli and printed rabbit.

Evening Bags
Romance blooms in silver, black silk, and champagne. The black silk is tucked and pleated, as it was in the '30s.

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) — A net average of 45,000 Scots go south every year, supporting St. Samuel Johnson's saying that "Scotland has many fine prospects, but the finest is the high road that leads him to England."

For the five million or so who stay at home, the annual outflow is not an unmitigated blessing. It helps check unemployment, though at five per cent this still runs at double the rate for England.

Martial Law Lifted From Gulf Coast

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 Mississippi's hurricane-ravaged Gulf Coast will be returned to civilian control by midnight tonight after being under martial law imposed in hurricane Camille's aftermath.

Gov. John Bell Williams Tuesday ordered that martial law be lifted in effect in some areas but that it remain in effect in others until the restoration of public utilities.

Martial law ended at midnight Tuesday for Ocean Springs and was to end 24 hours later in Harrison and Hancock counties, which include Gulfport, Biloxi, Pass Christian, and Bay St. Louis.

In the Pascagoula area, on the western side of the barrier, where damage was less severe, martial law was lifted last week.

Emergency operations during the martial law period were directed by the National Guard and the state highway patrol.

Meanwhile, the search for hurricane dead continued. Billy Joe Cross, director of the state game and fish commission, assigned to determine the death toll, said the total of known dead was 127.

The number reported missing at 1964.

South Windsor Royal E. Cowles Quits As Town GOP Chairman

Royal E. Cowles, Republican Town Committee chairman since April 1968, announced his resignation as of Sept. 1. Cowles is leaving seven months before the expiration of his second two-year term.

Under Cowles leadership in the 1967 election, Republicans gained control of all local elective and appointive offices. Robert J. O'Connor, chairman of the Public Building Commission, has assumed the duties of 1969 campaign manager, but Cowles' successor has not yet been named.

Cowles' letter to the members of the town committee read as follows:

"After long and careful consideration, I have regretfully decided to resign as Chairman of the South Windsor Republican Town Committee effective September 1, 1969. This has not been an easy decision to make. As a lifelong Republican, I have been sincerely committed to the success of our party and of course, to its efforts in the service of our town, our state and our Nation.

"However, a thorough evaluation of my business and family responsibilities now and in the foreseeable future, has led me to the conclusion that I will not be able to devote the time necessary to perform properly the duties of my office, particularly in view of the forthcoming election campaign.

"I wish to thank each of you for your support and your confidence in me during my three-year term."

Callaghan to Attempt Irish Conciliation

By COLIN FROST
 Associated Press Writer
 BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — British home secretary, James Callaghan, arrived today to try to conciliate feuding religious factions in Northern Ireland so that "life can return to normal and the troops can be withdrawn."

During his three-day visit Callaghan plans to meet Roman Catholic and Protestant leaders, including the militant Protestant firebrand, the Rev. Ian Paisley.

At Belfast Airport, Callaghan stressed the 50-year-old partition of Ireland will not be an issue in his discussions. The border between the British-ruled North and the Catholic Irish Republic to the south will remain as long as the Northern Ireland Parliament and people want it, he said.

Callaghan also said he will not be principally concerned with inquiries into the causes of the recent religious riots, in which eight people were killed and hundreds wounded before British troops moved in. In his remarks, he said there are real and deep seated feelings of injustice and discrimination held by a number of people in Northern Ireland, it is the home secretary said.

"The fear exists, and an society can be stable unless those feelings are examined and, if they are found—justified, removed."

Callaghan said he intends to meet with the Catholic and Protestant leaders, but he said he will not be primarily concerned with inquiries into the causes of the recent religious riots, in which eight people were killed and hundreds wounded before British troops moved in.

"I am not here to dictate to the Northern Ireland government. I've come here to see what the people here can decide whether they are willing to live in peace, in freedom, in equality."

"I put myself at the disposal of the Northern Ireland to try to ensure that those conditions exist but only you, the people of Northern Ireland, can take the necessary steps to achieve them and make them lasting and permanent."

Callaghan said a respected police force is part of the necessary cement for a true democracy.

Miss Susan Margaret Dunn

of Wilmington, Del., became the bride of David Anthony Lamenzo, who claims Northern Irish heritage, in a double-ring ceremony at the Immaculate Heart of Mary Church, Wilmington.

The bride is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Paul F. Dunn of Wilmington. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Lamenzo of 19 Jean Rd., Hartwood, N.H.

The Rev. Rev. Magr. Eugene Higgins, pastor of Immaculate Heart of Mary Church, performed the double-ring ceremony and was celebrant at the nuptial Mass. Mrs. Eugene's sister, Mrs. Winifred, was organist. Potted ferns were on the altar.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a floor-length gown of lace over tulle, designed with cool cutouts, full sleeves, and accentuating the empire waistline.

She had a circle of daisies in her hair, and she carried an Edwardian bouquet of daisies.

Mrs. W. Peter Gales of Jericho, N.Y., was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Mary Alice Lamenzo of Manchester, sister of the bridegroom; and Miss Nancy E. Dunn of Wilmington and Miss Barbara J. Dunn of Cambridge, Mass., sisters of the bride.

The attendants were dressed alike in full-length gowns of white dotted swiss over blue tulle, fashioned with jewel neckline, full sleeves, and empire waistlines belted with white organza ribbon tied at the back in a bow with streamers. They wore white georgette handkerchiefs. The honor attendants carried a bouquet of daisies and carnations, and the bridesmaids carried bouquets of daisies.

Marshall E. Lamenzo of Manchester served as his brother's best man. Ushers were John M. McCarroll, National League All-Star baseball pitcher, and Morris K. Udall-Arta, who managed the professional basketball team with the Denver Nuggets.

Forty-eight members have served as ushers. 21 one-time newspaper publishers, editors, reporters, 20 have served as administrative assistants, and one to other legislators, 10 were F.I.I. agents, 3 are medical doctors, and 3 are clergymen.

With a hooked back and a wingspread of up to five feet, the osprey is frequently mistaken for the time to eat. Every-thing is measured by time. A million dollars means nothing if you don't have time.

The importance of time is very much on the minds of these days of Edward R. Duke by his Washington, D.C., high school classmates because of his spruce attire.

Since he first was renowned here at the old Cotton Club in Harlem in 1967, Ellington has been extraordinarily busy. He has traveled the world, written more than a thousand musical compositions, including such jazz standards as "Mood Indigo," "Sulitude," and "The Duke." He has made a thousand recordings, from which more than 15 million discs have been sold.

Time Is What Makes Duke Ellington Tick

NEW YORK (AP) — Duke Ellington, probably the greatest living figure in jazz, is a man who likes to have his hair cut and his head when he is in the hair.

A visitor to his hotel room found the elderly band leader relaxing before the hairdresser. Ellington sat in a chair, his feet propped against the wall above the bedstead.

As he sat in a chair, Ellington still liked to compare his hair to that of a woman's. "I like to get out of bed and work that," he said. "Going to bed, you have to make your hair, and because if you turn it into a towel, it turns you into a woman."

After his hair finishes its last comb, Duke still likes to compare his hair to that of a woman's. "I like to get out of bed and work that," he said. "Going to bed, you have to make your hair, and because if you turn it into a towel, it turns you into a woman."

"That way I can often get to see a sunrise and sunset the same day," he said. "Nature's wonders are endless. You don't need a watch. You just know what time it is and you're done."

"Life is just doing your work and having an appreciation of what you're doing."

Ellington, whose first composition at 17 was called "Boogie Woogie," is currently and simultaneously trying to finish "That's why we always," he feels the pressure of time.

Memory of Nazi Executioners Lingers in Polish Countryside

By MARTIN ZUCKER
 Associated Press Writer
 WARSAW (AP) — Poland, which lost over five million of its citizens at the hands of Hitler's executioners, is a land filled with reminders of the suffering.

Be it on a busy Warsaw thoroughfare or in a drab, muddy village, the visitor is likely to run across a memorial, a plaque, a tablet, marking the spot where partisans fought and died, where men, women and children were shot or where victims were gassed during the occupation from 1939 to 1945.

The Nazis did not limit their murder to concentration and extermination camps, of which Poland had the most infamous: Auschwitz, Treblinka, Majdanek, Belzec, Chelmno. They carried out their terror, repeated and liquidation campaign on street-corners, in cellars and woods and in the forests.

Not long ago the Polish government published a "guide," designed partly to familiarize the nation's youth with the sites of mass graves and executions, and partly to make them aware of their nation's suffering.

The book lists some 2,000 sites and says these are only the places where the Nazis committed their "largest scale crimes."

Regularly, the Polish press carries reports of findings of new mass graves or of testimony revealing executions previously unknown.

The wedding is planned for June 6, 1970.

Average Intelligence Makes for Best Police

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — It takes a person of average intelligence to make a good police officer, a psychologist reported Monday at the Governor's Conference on Crime, Delinquency and Criminal Justice.

Dr. Hollis B. Farnum, who has assisted police departments in Rhode Island with psychological testing for several years, spoke at the opening of the three-day conference at Salve Regina College.

"Very bright men are often unable to take the tedious of routine police work and often quit after a while, Farnum said. He said department seniority systems mean that many bright policemen are assigned to work that does not tax their abilities."

CHICAGO (AP) — Congressmen with sports backgrounds serving in the House of Representatives are among the individuals with unusual careers being mentioned, adding: "I shall therefore pursue with the government the question of how those fears and any discrimination that may exist can be removed."

"I am not here to dictate to the Northern Ireland government. I've come here to see what the people here can decide whether they are willing to live in peace, in freedom, in equality."

"I put myself at the disposal of the Northern Ireland to try to ensure that those conditions exist but only you, the people of Northern Ireland, can take the necessary steps to achieve them and make them lasting and permanent."

Callaghan said a respected police force is part of the necessary cement for a true democracy.

Dr. John Adriani Quits Hospital Post

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Dr. John Adriani, rejected as prospective director of the Bureau of Medicine with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, says he is quitting his post as associate director of Charity Hospital here.

Adriani said Tuesday that officials "at the top level" of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare had turned down his proposed federal appointment.

In announcing he was quitting his post with Charity Hospital, where he has been since 1964, Adriani said his retirement had nothing to do with the controversy over the federal job. He said he had been "planning" for some time.

The 61-year-old Adriani said the federal job had been offered him by FDA Commissioner Herbert L. Ley Jr., subject to approval of higher officials in HEW.

Adriani, who has taken a determined stand against selling drugs under trade labels instead of more clearly identifying names, said Winston B. Rankin, deputy FDA commissioner, phoned him Monday that "they did reject it at the top level."

FDA officials in Washington have declined comment.

North Slope Oil Fields Among World's Largest

By JOHN CUNNING
 AP Business Staff Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) — Like an individual who comes into a pile of money, the State of Alaska is going to rush directly to the bank Sept. 1 when it accepts deposits on deposit the money in an account that is worth of oil that pays interest.

Some most of the checks are expected to be drawn on New York banks, because the big deposits of the state are held in New York banks.

In their investments, Alaskans are dispersing their money in a variety of ways. Some are buying stocks, some are buying bonds, and some are buying real estate.

State law limits investments to government securities and bank certificates of deposit, which are about as safe as any place.

The good news for Alaskans through the Northwest Passage doesn't end with the knowledge that their money is safely tucked away in secure investments. Lots more cash could very well be on the way.

If oil is found, for example, the finder may pay a standard 12.5 per cent royalty. And then there's another 800,000 acres of leases that might be put up for bidding sometime in the future.

Being an Alaskan is fun these days.

Dies from Fright

MOUNT-POCONO, Pa. (AP) — A 78-year-old woman "kissed" over and died, a Bremen man said, when he asked her to leave her home because a bomb was reported about to explode under America to handle the book.

Mrs. Prussia, who lived alone, was the first of 80 residents to receive the evacuation order from Bremen in the quiet summer resort town of Mount-Pocono.

Fear gripped the town as families leaped into cars and trucks to escape, after Bremen spotted what they called "a complicated-looking device" under the chair.

DRAGON HOTEL. By John Ball, Walker & Co. $4.50.

The story of an American in Taiwan, this book has some of the aspects of a travelogue. But it goes beyond that.

It includes some colorful accounts of shops, food and night life in Taipei; a visit to a moon-tain resort; a side trip to an air base on Quemoy; the hazards of local transportation; the problems of language, and many other elements of a travel book.

But Ball has given his script an adventurous turn by relating some of the amusing things that happened to him because he happened to be staying at the Dragon Hotel, an inn of less than distinction.

Almost before he knew it, the author was involved with various members of the hotel staff and their relatives, and was engaged in giving them free lessons in English—which they figured engagingly.

He found himself growing very much interested in a beautiful Chinese girl, Miss Lin, until she confessed that her real name was Mrs. Chen. The hotel went on a wild goose chase that involved a funny little crowd of Chinese train. And it arranged his first Chinese "blind date" with the wife of one of the hotel clerks, who turned out to be such a dasher that she shook up the Officers' Club, where he took her to dinner.

THE POSEIDON ADVENTURE. By Paul Gallico, Coward-McCann. $6.95.

A terrifying nightmare about a disaster at sea, this novel spins out a long, harrowing tale of the human will to survive.

The "Poseidon" is a huge ocean liner, now old and creaking, that has been converted to the passenger-and-cargo trade, Harver. $10.95.

The "Historian As Detective." By Robin W. Winks, Harver. $10.95.

Professor Winks is an American, a connoisseur of mystery stories, and a lively writer with broad literary tastes.

This happy blend has led to a series of books that are both entertaining and enlightening. Winks has this time brought together essays from his excellent archive on historical events and the pitfalls of the present. Its subtitle is "A MILE HIGH. By Richard Condon, Dial Press. $4.95.

Condon has pulled out all the stops in his novel about the era of prohibition, bootlegging, gang warfare, political corruption and organized crime.

His main protagonist is Edward Courance West, son of a well-to-do and rapacious Tennessee politician. While still in his twenties West coldly plots a great coup. He organizes a secret syndicate of the nation's top tycoons, and with a starting capital of $18 million promises to buy up liquor stocks, distilleries, breweries, rum boats and other facilities for bootlegging.

He makes an alliance with the Mafia, finances their operations—at high interest rates—and takes a cut of their profits. West practically invents prohibition in the United States. He becomes the world's richest man. He also becomes a super-patriot who sees Communism in the shadow, a psychopathic racist and a megalomaniac. Not to mention that all along he has been a madist.

The melodrama is so thick that it ever was in the old comic strips. The action culminates in a fantastic personal kingdom in the Adirondacks, and the plot is far more implausible than any writer of pulp-fiction could contrive.

Condon is the author of the very popular novel "The Manchurian Candidate." In his new novel he has told one of the tallest tales you'll find anywhere. His slight-of-hand technique makes it seem exciting—the sort of popular fiction that thrives even in competition with the late, late show.

THE DORP. By Frida Arkin, Dial. $4.95.

It's one more fictional small town, Kuyper's Dorp, hidden by trees in upstate New York. Frida Arkin gently, deftly plucks aside the veils and looks in. Do some denizens of the Dorp smack of stereotype? The town editor labors over his folky editorials as a teenager gets pregnant in a convenient crypt.

But what other fictional editor nightwalks to "slave" off mind-boggling intrigues? In his new novel, Arkin, riding trains, demurely confounding the most pompous man by pouring over thick tomes in statistics—or Amazonian dialect? That address is in Dorp, that betsy old lady, it becomes apparent, is the sanest person in Kuyper's Dorp—and the toughest.

Then there's the pig-raising hypochondriac who's printing a medical dictionary—the culinary genius of the corner lunch stand who serves up the most poisonous tongue in town—the Methodist minister who calls for mass confession, but can't turn up anybody who'll say "I'm a sinner."

All this and more Mrs. Arkin sees not as a beady-eyed Peeping Tom, but as a compassionate, recording Angel with a funnybone.

If Mrs. Arkin is all-out-of-life writing, she gets ahead, and she's thick a couple of times. A deer catches the lover's ear, which she and kills the wrong husband, who's walking a lonely

U.S. Troops in Vietnam Cut Back to 526,500

SAIGON (AP)—The U.S. Command announced today that American troop strength in Vietnam has been cut to 526,500 from the all-time high of 543,000 last February as part of President Nixon's order to withdraw 25,000 men.

A spokesman said the troop strength would be pared to roughly 515,000 within the next two weeks in line with Nixon's announcement of June 8.

Official figures released by the U.S. Command put American strength at 526,500 as of last Thursday. This was a drop of 7,700 troops from the previous week.

The remaining 2,000 scheduled to leave under the initial 25,000-man cutback will depart sometime this week.

There are more than 600 illustrations, taken from paintings, photographs, drawings, prints, advertisements and cartoons.

Air Force's Red Tape Is Unglued

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Food and clothing collected by a group of St. Petersburg residents finally began moving today toward the Mississippi Gulf Coast—but in trucks instead of an Air Force cargo plane. A convoy of 11 trucks, seven trailers and a jeep left MacDill Air Force Base at 8:30 a.m., an Air Force spokesman said. The convoy carried 83,000 pounds of goods for victims of Hurricane Camille. Included were goods collected by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith and their friends in St. Petersburg. Smith, an independent trucker, originally intended to take the goods to Mississippi by truck. His wife said they changed their plans when the Air Force offered to airlift the goods to Mississippi. Smith—rig crumpled full—was taken to the base. But Monday night the trailer was still sitting there because, the Air Force said, the airport at Biloxi, Miss., was overrun with mercy flights and there was little chance of getting in. So, the goods amassed by the Smiths were distributed to the convoy trucks which pulled out today.

"We wanted to get supplies to Mississippi as fast as we could," said Mrs. Smith. "All I know is that we could have had them on their way two days ago by airplane." The Air Force first had trouble lining up aircraft. Then it ran into another barrier when the Biloxi airport became tied up.

"We wanted to see if we could collect food and clothes without getting tied up in such red tape," Mrs. Smith said. "The trailer was filled and ready to go Saturday."

'Went Blank,' State GI Says Of Slaying

SYDNEY (AP) — "Everything went blank," said a U.S. Army helicopter pilot from Connecticut as he pleaded innocent to a charge of murdering an 18-year-old girl.

Warrant Officer Lawrence James Hull, 26, of Enfield, Conn., appeared in Central Criminal Court Monday. In a three-minute statement, Hull told the court he took Josephine Dunphy to a motel in Sydney, and while waiting for a meal to be brought up to the room, went forward to kiss her. He said he could not remember what happened after that.

The girl was found stabbed, strangled and mutilated in the motel last Dec. 14. Hull, who was on rest-and-recreation leave, had met Miss Dunphy at a nightclub. He complained Monday that he has repeatedly been refused permission to see a lawyer or speak to American authorities.

Walking Catfish Banned in State

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The walking catfish must not stroll on Connecticut soil without a permit.

So declared the state's Department of Fisheries and Game on Monday as it began a roundup of the unusual fish. The number of walking catfish have been brought into the state for sale or fun from Florida, where they are produced and threatened to other marine life have conservationists worried.

Connecticut officials said the state may prosecute persons who have brought in the fish without the required permit. Permits are also required for the fresh-eating parasitic fish.

One store in the Hartford area has sold about 25 of the catfish.

Cole Wilde, chief of the department's Fish Division, said the catfish are being studied to determine whether they can thrive in the Connecticut climate.

"There is a possibility that they could," he said. "They remain alive in the low 40s in Florida."

Since their arrival from Asia, the walking catfish has taken over areas of the state's waterways. The hardy creature can live in air as well as water because of a rudimentary lung. It feeds on a range of things from pine needles to bass, frogs and shrimp.

Efforts at poisoning the fish in ponds proved unsuccessful because the fish climbed out of the water on their apical fins and crawled off to another watery home.

Vagrancy Charge
VIENNA (AP) — A man who told a magistrate he earned his living as a blood-donor was sentenced to eight days in jail because of "vagrancy." The judge ruled the one-weekly donation could not be considered a proper job and the money he received was not enough for his keep. Blood donors receive 250 Schillings, 10 dollars, each time.

State and Local Taxes Average $338 for U.S.

CHICAGO (AP) — Americans paid $7.5 billion in state and local taxes in 1968—an average of $338 a person—a survey showed today. The study was made by the Commerce Clearing House, an organization which compiles and reports on legislative activities concerning taxes and business. Some of its other findings: Per capita state and local tax burdens ranged from $200 in Arkansas to $503 in New York. Indiana was the only state in which the state-local tax burden did not rise. It dropped 13. The average figure of $338 per person represented a 12 percent increase from fiscal 1967; the total $67.4 billion paid was $8.5 billion higher than in 1967. New York's average of $503 topped the $500 mark for the first time. Another first: no state had a per capita tax burden of less than $200. Increases ranged from 11 in Arkansas to 17 in California. Eight states—Colorado, Delaware, Kansas, Mississippi, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Oregon and South Carolina—showed decreases of less than $10. Four states in addition to New York were over $400—California $468, Nevada $424, Hawaii $421 and Wyoming $405. New York collected $9.1 billion in California $9.4 billion—making up 7 per cent of the total tax take. Illinois, Michigan and Pennsylvania collected more than $3 billion; Massachusetts, New Jersey, Ohio and Texas more than $2 billion. Here is a breakdown on other state and local taxes: More than $300: Massachusetts, New Jersey, Ohio and Texas. More than $250: Pennsylvania, Florida, Maryland, Louisiana, Ohio, Maine, Missouri, New Hampshire, Virginia, Oklahoma, Georgia, Texas, North Carolina, Kentucky, Alabama, Mississippi, South Carolina, Arkansas. More than $200: West Virginia, Oregon, North Carolina, Kentucky, Alabama, Mississippi, South Carolina, Arkansas.

'He Tells It Like It Is'—Daily Exercises a Bother

By MILES A. SMITH
AP Arts Editor
NEW YORK (AP) — The doughty globe-circler Sir Francis Chichester has written a manual book on "How to Keep Fit" that sets a new world record for candor.

None of this pep talk. "Hooray, it's fun to have vim and vigor—that you usually get from young muscle builders. None of that sales pitch from reducing faddists about 'It's a joy to be slim.' This tough 67-year-old whose life has been a jagged fluctuation between physical exertion and a mass of ailments and accidents, believes in exercising for action." His position is that "if my regime of exercises, massage, and diet had saved me from the painful factors in my recovery, and today I consider the most potent factors I know." As for diet, he became a vegetarian in his later life. He is quite frank about the drudgery of exercising. "I do not like doing exercises and I cannot believe anyone else does," he says. "They require will power, which I am lacking in the morning and during breakfast, or browsing through the morning paper."

He book's main purpose is to offer directions for 21 exercises, some of them adapted from Yoga, requiring 30 minutes each morning. But in addition, in 18 pages preceding the outline of exercises, he absorbs the history of his physical misadventures, and it is quite a history. Aside from some boyhood episodes, like being bitten by an adder and taking a 40-foot fall from an oak tree, there is mention of his developing "rheumatism" at age 17 while working on a farm. He attributes this illness to the fact that he was wet and happy and lonely.

It appears from the author's account that he has always had an extreme physical reaction whenever he has had to force social contact or public acclaim. He first realized this in 1929 when he was 27. After a few months of flight instruction he flew solo from London to Sydney in a little 40-mile-an-hour airplane. The plane I ran into hit me like a shock," he says, and put him "on the verge of a nervous breakdown." The same thing happened after his 1966 trip around the world. The crowds, the excitement, the penicillins and the banquets bothered him so much that he developed a duodenal ulcer.

During his middle years he worried a lot about his asthma, his smoking, and his yacht racing; at least some of his ailments—asthma, pleurisy, pneumonia and a lung abscess diagnosed as cancer. For none of these problems he went to a

That's When Battle Begins

Suez Nights Not Quiet

WITH ISRAELI TROOPS AT THE SUEZ CANAL (AP) — Night on the Suez Canal brings welcome relief from the oppressive heat—but also swarms of predatory mosquitoes and countless exchanges of gunfire.

Some of the heaviest fighting between Egyptian and Israeli troops entrenched and hunkered on opposite banks of the canal now takes place after dark.

Only after midnight does the 100-mile long waterway come alive.

Fighters move freely in and out of positions, unafraid of snipers' bullets. Equipment is moved, posts and trenches strengthened.

On the western side, the Egyptians use the cover of darkness to move up fresh troops to canal-side positions.

On the eastern embankment, Israeli soldiers man the so-called Bar-Lev line, a well fortified system of bunkers and trenches cannot see the Israeli chief of staff.

Preparations for the long night begin early on the Israeli side.

Off-duty troops emerge from their underground lairs long before dusk, to wash, grab an early meal and check arms and ammunition. Then the waiting begins.

A lieutenant colonel, at 27 on the Egyptian side of the canal, says his men were never trained for a static trench war. But morale is high and "we have been hitting the Egyptians harder than they have hit us," he says.

"The canal is quieter now than it has been."

He estimated there were four divisions, perhaps 100,000 men, on the Egyptian side of the canal. There are Algerians, too, whom he described as being "no better or no worse" than the Egyptians.

Another officer claims Egypt has the world's largest concentration of artillery on the west bank since those of World War II in Europe.

One heavy panzer, two, the moon, almost full, rises higher in the southern skies.

"No commo's will cross tonight with that moon," says one soldier looking down the canal, shimmering peacefully between the silent armies.

Tension mounts.

Then the heavy rumble of artillery rolls up from the south.

An Israeli position reports one of its soldiers wounded in the cannon barrage. He is ordered evacuated by helicopter.

Now the Israeli return light artillery fire.

United Nations Overflows East River Headquarters

By WILLIAM N. OTIS, Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United Nations overflowed its headquarters on the East River, having moved 250 people this summer into its buildings elsewhere in New York City.

The 5,215 men and women that it employs in the city now work in 12 buildings spread over an area of several miles. It is paying rent of $1.4 million a year.

The United Nations pays no rent for the care of 4,266 people in buildings on the 18-acre headquarters plot.

Some of those in the new outposts, like their quarters, are "mushy" complaints because they have to come back here to do their banking, attend club meetings, eat cheaper in the cafeteria or shop cheaper in the cooperative stores, and it is unhandy.

The official explanation for the move is that the member countries are that the member countries in the United Nations have required more work of it, the staff has outgrown the home base.

A theory of some U.N. staff members is that more space is required not so much because more people have been hired as noted.

The higher a man moves in the secretariat, the bigger office he is allowed. On one level, he gets one window, on another, two, and on still another, he gets three. The supposition is that in the process, many employees have been pushed out into other buildings.

In the 1968 General Assembly, Secretary-General U Thant said that he would have to pay $500 million for outside premises in 1969. The fact that he is paying more than twice that is expected to put pressure on this year's assembly, convening Sept. 16, to rush plans for a new building.

The idea is to wrap a new seven-story and four-basement U.N. building around an East River tunnel ventilator in a city park just south of the headquarters, at an estimated cost of $50 million.

Met Postpones Opening As Contract Talks Go On

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sort of primer on military ways is making the rounds on Capitol Hill to help lawmakers studying defense issues.

It tells them where to look, who to talk to, and even contains a sample outline for probing defense programs and weapons systems.

Entitled "A Guide to Researching Defense Issues," the 11-page annotated bibliography and accompanying outline was prepared by the Democratic Study Group, a bloc of 16 moderate and liberal House Democrats.

"There's a lot more interest in defense than there's a staff member," explained a DSG member. The guide got started when several members asked how to go about researching defense issues.

"Congressmen are beginning to look for more information about the American Guild of Musical Artists, Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians and Local 1 of the International Association of Theatrical Stage Employees." In announcing the delay, the Metropolitan Opera has postponed its season debut at contract negotiations continue with 11 unions, dancers and other personnel.

Postponement of the Sept. 15 opening was announced Tuesday by the Met.

Three weeks of rehearsals had already been canceled. Rudolf Bing, the Met's general manager, said the opening date had to be postponed because of a lack of rehearsal time.

Herman Gray, a lawyer representing musicians, chorists and dancers, said of the postponement: "There is absolutely no need for this, because the artists had committed themselves not to interfere with the opening night."

Spokesmen for the Met said rehearsals would begin when a settlement was reached. They singled out "certain unions, notably the American Guild of Musical Artists, Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians and Local 1 of the International Association of Theatrical Stage Employees."

Jobs--No Man's Land Of Generation Gap

By VIVIAN BROWN, AP Newsfeatures Writer

It's like being in a man's land because I love carving, they get hysterical. My parents have denied themselves necessities to have for my college education. Should I leave home and do my own thing... and break their hearts?

Dempsey Names Task Force On Taxation

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Representatives of many segments of Connecticut's economy were named by Gov. John Dempsey yesterday to a revenue task force—a special study group to explore and recommend changes in the state's tax structure.

The governor announced that the 24 members of the task force will organize at a meeting in his office on Sept. 9.

Half the members of the task force have already been designated by general assembly leaders. The 12 appointed by Dempsey today include Francis B. Wilda of West Hartford, chairman emeritus of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Co. He was described by the governor as "one of the best men in the field of finance in the United States."

Other Dempsey appointees to the task force were:

Donald W. Davison of New Britain, president of the Stanley Works, representing the Connecticut Manufacturers Association.

Millard Bartels of West Hartford, a director of the Travelers Insurance Companies and chairman of the Insurance Executive Committee.

Mrs. Joan Kemler of West Hartford, a former state board member of the League of Women Voters and co-chairman of the Greater Hartford Community Council's Legislative Committee.

Fomeroy Day of Hartford, chairman of the board of Connecticut Bank and Trust Co.

Carl N. Hansen of Orange, vice president and controller of the Southern New England Telephone Co.

Walter W. Adams of Southington, president of the Benor Citizens' Council of Connecticut.

Yale Law School Prof. Boris I. Bittker of New Haven, a specialist in tax law.

Dennis Hernandez of New Haven, director of administration for the city of New Haven—a nominee of the Connecticut Conference of Mayors.

Wilfred B. Young, retired dean of the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, University of Connecticut.

The Rev. James D. Peters Jr. of Bridgeport, state president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Frederick W. Jackson of Westport, an executive of the State Division of General Food Corporation.

Dempsey said that the task force is "one of the most important commissions ever appointed in the state."

The governor recalled that his February budget message advocated the creation of the task force "to undertake a thorough analysis of our revenue resources during the coming budget period."

The task force will report its findings to the governor and the General Assembly in 1971.

Hong Kong Food Supply

HONG KONG (AP) — Communist China's exports of food to Hong Kong climbed back to normal levels during the past week, government sources reported today.

"We think we're in the clear now," a government official said.

Shipments of Chinese food, on which the British economy depends for daily supplies, fell off sharply during the first two weeks of August, arousing concern that the Communists were bringing new pressure on the colony. But government sources said today they expected that heavy rains in South China had disrupted transport temporarily.

Laird's Stand On Troop Cut Not Changed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird's position on troop cuts in Vietnam has not changed.

Defense officials denied Monday a Time Magazine story which quoted Laird as saying U.S. presence in Vietnam could become an all-or-none proposition, 250,000-man force, even if present administration conditions on war progress are not met.

The Defense spokesman said Laird's position remains that troop cuts in Vietnam are pegged to progress in the Paris peace talks, progress toward "Vietnamization" of the war and the level of enemy activity in Vietnam.

A Republican National Committee newsletter said Monday more U.S. troops will be withdrawn from Vietnam soon. A spokesman said the article had been committed to print before President Nixon announced a postponement of any manpower decision.

The Time article said Laird "sketched a possible scenario whereby the U.S. force could be cut in half, to about 200,000 men, and kept in South Vietnam for an extended time."

The Pentagon said Laird's remark was in response to a question about the possibility of an all-volunteer force in Vietnam. Laird replied, the Pentagon said Monday, that such a proposal "could not be seriously considered until the troop level reached 200,000."

Alisa M. Bruce, Richest Women In U.S., Dead

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Alisa Mellon Bruce, reportedly the richest woman in the United States, died Monday in Roosevelt Hospital after a brief illness. She was about 60 years old.

Mrs. Bruce's worth was placed at more than $50 million last year by Fortune magazine. She had devoted herself to charitable and philanthropic interests in recent years, working from her 12-acre estate at Syosset on Long Island.

Her father, Andrew W. Mellon, died in 1925. She was placed in custody of her 11-year-old daughter, Mrs. Bruce's sister, Mrs. Mellon, in 1925. Mrs. Mellon married David K.E. Bruce in 1928. They were divorced in 1945. Mrs. Bruce got sole custody of their 11-year-old daughter, Alisa, in 1945. Mrs. Bruce was once United States Ambassador to London.

Surviving are a brother, Paul Mellon, and three grandchildren. Mrs. Bruce's daughter and son-in-law, Stephen R. Currier, died in a plane crash in 1967.

Vernon Manchester Man Bound Over In Credit Card Use

A credit card with someone else's name on it proved to be the undoing of a Manchester man who was ordered bound over to Toland County Superior Court on a charge of breaking into a locked car at Valley Falls Park in June.

Raymond testified at a circuit court hearing to show probable cause in Circuit Court yesterday. He recalled that on June 26 he and his wife and family locked their car to go swimming at Valley Falls Park, leaving it in his pants and his wife's pocketbook.

He returned to the car about a half hour later and although it was still locked the pants and pocketbook had been taken. "They forced the side window and then locked it back up again," Raymond said. "I had to use a key to get in."

Charles Vanni of Manchester testified for O'Neil. On June 26, he said, "We were just riding around. There was nothing else to do."

Findings Fail to Support Rock Throwing Charges

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A police investigation failed to support charges that police officers threw rocks at residents of a housing project, Mayor Joseph A. Donnelly Jr. said Monday.

Dykstra said the scene after a resident called the newspaper saying police refused to respond to their complaints. Dykstra said he heard a rock thrown and saw an officer run from the vacant lot where the rock throwing allegedly took place.
