Heralding Politics

Both of Manchester's political parties plan to kick off their campaigns for the Nov. 4 municipal elections the end of this week.

The Republicans, on Saturday, will hold their traditional Annual Bar-B-Que and the Democrats, on Saturday or Sunday, will open their election headquarters.

The Bar-B-Que will be at 4 p.m., at the Dougherty Lots, Center and Dougherty Sts.

The Democratic headquarters will be in second floor suite of offices at 221 Main St., the same premises used by the Democrats in 1966.

The Republicans will wait until Thursday, Sept. 23, to open their headquarters.

It will be in the empty store at 808 Main St., the same headquarters for the Republicans as in 1968 and in 1966.

All election activities, for all seven voting districts, will be in the town charter, also reviewed in the two headquarters.

Because Manchester's municipal elections were changed from even-numbered years, the time allowed for reviewing the manager's performance, as spelled out in the town charter, also was changed. It will be in November of even-numbered years, starting with 1970.

Fourth District Cong. Lowell Weicker Jr. will be the speaker tomorrow at the Republican headquarters at the Shoreham Motor Hotel, Hartford.

Weicker, in his first term in Congress, is serving on the House Committee on Science and Astronautics and its subcommittee on Space, Science and Applications. He is a president of the 1st Club, an organization of the first-year Republican House members.

Manchester's incumbent Board of Directors may hold its last regular meeting on Oct. 7, although it has a meeting scheduled for Nov. 4. The board's regular meetings are held on the first Tuesday of each month.

Mayor Nathan Agostinelli said today that, because Nov. 4 is election day, he will recommend that the board call off its meeting that night.

Of the board's nine incumbent members, three are not running for reelection, and the board which will be elected Nov. 4 is certain to have a minimum of three and a maximum of six new members, depending on which party wins control.

The town charter specifies that the new board will be seated Nov. 17, the third Monday in November.

Consultations were expected today or Wednesday between U.S. and Soviet diplomats to prepare for meetings between Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and Secretary of State William P. Rogers. The two foreign ministers will discuss the Middle East, disarmament and other issues.

That is pressing hard for Big Four talks on the Middle East will be the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union as

Queen's Life Threatened

THE HAGUE (AP) — An anonymous caller threatened Monday night to kill Queen Juliana of the Netherlands, if authorities refused to release an Arab youth charged with throwing a grenade at the Israeli Embassy, police said today.

The chief inspector of the Hague police said the youth was still being held, and strong security measures had been taken to prevent an attack on the queen, who opened the Dutch Parliament this morning.

To Keep Neighborhood White Chicago Area Block Clubs Aim to Maintain Stability

By ALAN EHRENFELT
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Ashland Avenue divides the Southwest Side of Chicago like a wall. If you are black you live east of it, toward the inner city ring of the rim of downtown Chicago. If you are white you live west of it, toward the outer city ring of the rim of downtown Chicago.

Lately, though, the wall has started to crack, as Negroes looking for a place to live press outward from the inner city. The white homeowners to the west are responding in an organized way. Led by a 51-year-old Catholic priest, the Rev. Francis X. Igo, they have formed block clubs, designed to keep the neighborhood white.

There are clubs now, grouped together as the Southwest Associated Block Clubs.

The area has 5,000 families, in an area two miles square.

A representative of Father Igo said that 150 Negro families have moved into the previously all-white area in the last year.

Does this mean the clubs have failed in their mission? No, according to the spokesman, who said their aim is to "maintain stability in the area."

In the past year, BWAC has become one of the city's most powerful pressure groups, opposing housing of black pupils into white schools and demanding more police protection in the neighborhood.

When a house on one of the organized blocks goes up for sale, they try to find a buyer. A white buyer.

Critics say the block clubs are racist. Father Igo says "Moving the ghetto a few blocks westward doesn't solve anybody's problem."

Harold Dunn, a white resident, agrees.

"Before we joined the block club I was ready to move," he says. "And I can't afford an 8 1/2 per cent loan."

"I don't consider myself prejudiced," Dunn says. "There are some colored that are better than I am and some that are worse. But I don't particularly care to live with them."

Dunn, an engineer, is a large, friendly, fortysix man who lives with his wife and six children, all under 14, in a modern bungalow four blocks west of Ashland.

The two-square block area which includes the Dunn home was known to census takers in 1960 as Tract 850 of West Englewood.

At that time, 38 per cent of its residents were foreign born or first-generation Americans. They are the descendants of Irish, Italians and Eastern Europeans who came to America early in this century and did most of the physical work that built Chicago.

Some 2,401 persons—none Negro—lived in the tract in 1960.

The average schooling of the residents in 1960 was 9.5 years—grammar school and a bit of high school. Only 28 per cent held white collar jobs. But the unemployment rate of Tract 850 was a remarkable 0.6 per cent.

When you ask Mr. Dunn about the problems of her community, she starts by mentioning schools. She fears that integrated schools are not safe.

Three times this year, Betty Dunn says, she had to take her children home from St. Mary of Mount Carmel school because of racial tensions at nearby Harper High.

Now the Board of Education is looking for further ways to relieve the overcrowding in black schools by sending the Negro pupils to white schools just west of the Ashland Avenue line.

The block clubs are fighting it. "Whether we can stay isn't just up to us," she says. "It's up to the Board of Education."

Violence is a preoccupation of the block clubs.

Every few nights, Dunn drives through the area in a

Tolland County Superior Court

DIVORCES

Divorces were granted recently by Superior Court Judges William P. Barber and David M. Shea to:

Eleanor Maclejo from Anthony Maclejo, both of Manchester, on grounds of intolerable cruelty. She was granted $1 per year alimony.

Jan Wilbert Reid of Vernon from Wilbert Miller Reid of Petersburg, Va., on grounds of intolerable cruelty. She was awarded custody of two minor children.

Linda Horn DeLaine of Vernon from Lary DeBene of Rockville on grounds of intolerable cruelty.

If you walk east across Ashland Avenue past the color barrier, you find that the lessons of community power have been absorbed among black people, too. Here, the broad-based Organized Block Clubs, both of them, is beginning to decentralize into smaller block clubs, which are proving successful in the white areas.

And the OBC is concerned with the same issues that bother the people on the other side.

Sam Bishop lives two blocks east of Ashland. He is a postman and his wife, Rose, is a postal clerk. They have three children, the oldest 10.

The Bishops are black. They moved west two years ago from an apartment in the inner city.

With Sam working days and Rose working nights, they hold when they only see each other through the door. But both take an interest in the OBC.

Like Mrs. Dunn, they regard school as their biggest community problem. Their elementary school was built to handle 800 pupils. Last year there were 1,850.

The OBC would like to see some of the pupils transferred to less crowded schools on the other side of Ashland. And here the Negroes collide with the wishes of the Southwest Block Clubs.

"I'm for neighborhood schools, too," says Bishop. "If we could get the equipment and space, I'd prefer a neighborhood school."

He says most of the homeowners on his block are recent arrivals who want to stay.

Bishop fears these people are not going to bring the same traits for integration. He insists that most of them would, like Dunn, just as soon live among their own people, if they could find a decent place.

Crime remains a problem even in the new neighborhood and the residents fight it the way Father Igo's people do—with radio-equipped patrol cars that send reports to police.

Bishop says the OBC has been sponsoring the patrol for about two years, that it was an OBC idea later taken up by the Southwest Block Clubs.

Bishop says it's working. "It's controlling crime because it's a project set up by the community."

Bishop sees the eventual solution to the race problem in the existence of a large black middle class, created by better education. Only then, he feels, will it be possible to have full equality and break down barriers like Ashland Avenue.

In the last few months, representatives of the OBC and the Southwest Block Clubs have met to discuss common problems. They often turn into debates. Bishop says, but at least each side gets to hear the other's point of view.

"Once you realize we're fighting the same things for our families, they relax—they forget the color for a while."

Rham District Four-Board Meeting Due On an Area Grade School

The Regional District Board of Education voted last night to send representatives to a Sept. 22 meeting to consider the future course of the educational program in the towns of Andover, Hebron and Marlborough.

The board had received a letter from Marvin A. Ross, chairman of the Hebron Board of Education, asking if the chairman and secretary of the Regional District Board would participate in a joint meeting with the chairman and secretary of the three elementary school boards.

Loretta Cecile Barrett from Irving D. Barrett, both of Manchester, were granted a change of name to Loretta Cecile LeBarre.

Raymond George Stride from Joyce Elsworth Stride, both of Coventry, on grounds of intolerable cruelty. He was awarded custody of four minor children.

Sam Bishop lives two blocks east of Ashland. He is a postman and his wife, Rose, is a postal clerk. They have three children, the oldest 10.

The Bishops are black. They moved west two years ago from an apartment in the inner city.

Sheinwold on Bridge

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

When your partner's opening lead is the king of a suit you can signal encouragement by following suit with a higher card than necessary. In general, this signal says partner to continue the suit for a second and then a third time. In unusual cases, your signal may have a different meaning.

Opening lead—King of Clubs. When today's hand was played several years ago in the annual Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament, the final contract was four spades at almost every table. West invariably led the king of clubs against any kind of spade contract.

Every experienced East for lowed suit with the seven or eight of clubs to encourage a club continuation, but not every West stopped to think of the true meaning of this signal. The West player blithely cashed the ace of clubs at the second trick and then looked around for new ways to counter.

There were no new words. If West promptly took his ace of hearts, he could get a third defensive trick. If West failed to take the ace, he wouldn't get it; South was ready to draw trumps and run the diamonds to get rid of his hearts.

In the ordinary hand, signaling with a high card does not promise a definite card but merely urges partner to continue the suit. In this case, East had bid clubs, he could not wish to ruff the third round of clubs. East's signal at the first trick could be based only on possession of the queen of clubs.

If West stopped to think, he would have seen that the body of a Greenwick, Conn., man who drowned during a fishing accident here during the weekend.

The victim was identified as Rodney L. White, 39. He died in 1968 of the University of New Mexico with a BA Mrs. Hill has had one year of teaching experience in New Mexico.

A coroner ruled that death was accidental. The body was at Raham on Oct. 6 at 7:30 p.m. recovered Sunday.

Defense Cuts in Bay State Cause Economic Concern

BOSTON (AP) — The sudden cuts in defense spending are causing growing concern in Massachusetts.

Washington recently has lopped two huge military contracts from the Massachusetts economy, and is trimming back on some other installations.

First came the closing of the Strategic Air Command's 8th Air Force Headquarters at Westover Air Force Base in Chicopee Falls. A Pentagon spokesman, replying to state officials, said SAC commanders had decided that if one of the three SAC headquarters had to be closed, Westover was the best choice.

This means an immediate end to $13.3 million worth of the economic activity that has been going on, not counting "spin off" of Kennedy and Johnson administrations, the state was well taken care of with Defense Department projects. The huge NASA complex under construction at Cambridge was only the latest of many expensive undertakings assigned to Massachusetts.

Observers point to two reasons for the cuts. First is the fact that Nixon was defeated by almost a 2-1 margin here in the election.

The other is that the state's strong in their criticism of military spending and administration priorities.

It is rather awkward for a senator or congressman who makes a speech calling for defense spending cuts to follow it up with one demanding more defense money for his state.

That political leaders are weighing just how sympathetic the Nixon administration is to the fiscal years from 1968 to 1970, defense spending in Massachusetts went up $238 million into the $2 billion-per-year range.

But that increase, given the fact that the state's defense budget was cut by $1 billion in 1968, is a far cry from the $2 billion-per-year range.

At that time, 38 per cent of its residents were foreign born or first-generation Americans. They are the descendants of Irish, Italians and Eastern Europeans who came to America early in this century and did most of the physical work that built Chicago.

Some 2,401 persons—none Negro—lived in the tract in 1960.

The average schooling of the residents in 1960 was 9.5 years—grammar school and a bit of high school. Only 28 per cent held white collar jobs. But the unemployment rate of Tract 850 was a remarkable 0.6 per cent.

When you ask Mr. Dunn about the problems of her community, she starts by mentioning schools. She fears that integrated schools are not safe.

Three times this year, Betty Dunn says, she had to take her children home from St. Mary of Mount Carmel school because of racial tensions at nearby Harper High.

Now the Board of Education is looking for further ways to relieve the overcrowding in black schools by sending the Negro pupils to white schools just west of the Ashland Avenue line.

The block clubs are fighting it. "Whether we can stay isn't just up to us," she says. "It's up to the Board of Education."

Violence is a preoccupation of the block clubs.

Every few nights, Dunn drives through the area in a

Vernon Art Association Plans Fall Show Week of Oct. 20

Registration forms have been sent to members of the Tolland County Art Association for its fall show. The 23rd Annual Exhibition for members will be held the week of Oct. 20 at the Rockville Public Library.

Charles Krue has been named chairman of the exhibition planning committee which includes Trudy Lee, Kenneth A. Igo and Irma Lee.

A practical application of members' talent is being formed in 1969 but never accomplished very much.

Aram Dumarjian, superintendent of schools, expressed his feeling that the four boards need to look into all the facets of the problem before throwing it open to the public.

He added that if the town joins in a "formal study," the state will provide bureau services of a superintendent during the life of the study.

Bank Charter Denied

HARTFORD (AP)—The State Banking Commission has denied a bank charter to a group of Bristol area businessmen who wanted to form the First State Bank and Trust Co. in Bristol.

State Banking Commissioner Philip Heves said Monday that one requirement for approval is that conditions in the area involved would afford a reasonable promise of success. "Such is not the case here," he noted.

Members of the association who have received recognition at outdoor shows during the summer include Trudy Lee who won a second prize at Colchester and a third prize at Putnam; Myrtle Charis, a second prize winner at Narragansett; and Jean Pehovak, who won honorable mention at Colchester.

Other pictures exhibited local on this month include a watercolor, "Labor Day," by Barbara Orlovski, in the Connecticut Bank and Trust Company, and an oil painting, "Bill Life," by Laurie King at the Savings Bank of Rockville.

Army Uses BB Guns As Training Tool

FT. ORD, Calif. (AP) — The Army is using BB guns to teach recruits to shoot the way the movie cowboys do—without taking time to aim.

It's called the Quick Kill, for surviving the close-range combat that they face in Vietnam.

Quick Kill is one of two exercises here in which soldiers train with BB guns. The other one is Man versus Man, an amphibious exercise.

In Quick Kill, a soldier is trained to shoot by pointing—and aiming—his weapon.

The soldier starts the exercise in a relaxed position with his arms slack and the BB rifle at his waist. A hasty spin a disc in the air about six feet down range, the recruit raises the gun to his shoulder and shoots without aiming.

Recruits usually smirk when first handed BB guns, said Maj. Ron Bishop, but "that usually stops when you tell them in an hour you can teach them to shoot a dime out of the air with those BB guns."

In Man versus Man, recruits split into four-man squads wearing heavy field jackets, gloves and masks to protect themselves from close-range BB fire.

Attackers hide in bushes, bunkers and holes ahead of "target" groups. The survivors fire at will and a hit soldier drops to his knee to signal he is out.

"It's the best break-through in training we've had in a long time," said Bishop.

FT. Ord received its first shipment of BB guns two years ago. Now there are 600 BB guns in the post's arsenal.

Mrs. Gerald Charest Lutz Junior Museum

Can you imagine getting up at 2 a.m. to feed a baby? Of course! There is nothing unusual about that. But this baby was a racoon.

Taking a month-old racoon into her home, feeding it with a bottle and later training it to eat dog food was just one part of Mrs. Gerald Charest's work as a member of the Lutz Junior Museum Volunteer League.

Mrs. Charest knew about the Lutz Junior Museum at 228 Cedar St. because her four children had attended classes there, and she had collected tickets when the museum had presented children's programs Saturday afternoons in Bailey Auditorium. Then one morning her telephone rang. It was the curator of education at the museum asking her to become a volunteer in the natural history department.

That was three years ago. In addition to working in the natural history department, Mrs. Charest has served two years as president of the Volunteer League and is a member of the board of trustees. As curator she has supervised the museum's weekly orders from the schools for materials in her department. The weekly orders may be for articles to go in a hall display case or for boxes of materials which the children in the classroom can actually handle.

During the summer, Mrs. Charest devotes her time to the repair and upkeep of the natural history exhibits. She also collects new ones, which entails collecting materials and doing research to insure accuracy.

Mrs. Charest is the chairman of the newly formed committee to study ways of increasing the use of the school loan department of which the natural history section is only one part.

All her family are involved in the Lutz Junior Museum activities. Mr. Charest, who is a professional photographer, is a photographic services for the East Hartford Pratt and Whitney Division of United Aircraft. He helps with school exhibits and has done photographic work for the museum. As a volunteer, Anne, 14, feeds the animals in the museum store and assists in other ways. Most other children in the family are in the next generation. Dr. Joshua Ledberg, professor of genetics and biology at Stanford and a Nobel Prize winner in 1968, made his predictions in a paper titled "Technical Possibilities of Heremaking Man." He said it would be possible to create a new race of man at a new conference.

"Well, I guarantee he'll grow up and say, 'I hate to be blond, and all the rest. You could open blame your parent for just that' about everything," but at least, he said, "but at least, the government must not be allowed to get into the act. 'Dictators will not stop at propaganda,' Dr. Joshua Ledberg said Monday at the first session of this year's Nobel symposium. "They will use genetic engineering, too, if they have enough wit and stay long enough in power."

Nader Hits Antismog Device Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer critic Ralph Nader says the Justice Department's consent decree settlement with major automakers accused of suppressing antismog devices is a "legal fiction" designed to mislead the public.

"Better a trial sought and lost than a consent decree gained in the form of a legal fiction and talked up by a compliance capability that is beyond debate," said Nader in a letter to the Justice Department's antitrust chief, Richard W. McLaren.

Nader hinted he would contest the settlement, in which auto manufacturers admitted no guilt, but agreed not to suppress research on devices to cut down exhaust emissions from cars and trucks.

"There is every indication that this is going to be the most widely contested decree in antitrust history," he said.

The decree becomes effective in 30 days. McLaren has no immediate response to Nader's letter.

Nader complained the decree does not set up adequate machinery for insuring the auto manufacturers obey antitrust laws in the future.

Water Hinders Miners in No. 9; No Bodies Found

FARMINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — A recovery team exploring Consolidation Coal Co.'s No. 9 mine has encountered waist deep water and large roof falls.

The crew of six miners and five inspectors had gone 1 1/2 miles from Atha's Run elevator Monday in the preliminary stages of operations to recover the bodies of 78 miners killed 10 months ago when fire and explosion thundered through the 7 1/2-mile-long mine.

William Parks of the U.S. Bureau of Mines said the team found no evidence of the bodies Monday.

John Ashcraft, state mines director, said recovery teams will enter the mine on regular shifts to pump water, clear debris and generally get the eastern two miles of the mine in operating condition.

When this is completed, probably in six weeks, the workers will proceed to phase two, clearing more of the mine, including 1,000 tons of limestone dumped down a shaft, about two miles

Scientists Give Views On Remaking Man

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Cou-

Hershey Replacement Denied in Washington

NEW YORK (AP) — A Columbia Broadcasting System

reporter says President Nixon is preparing to retire Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of the Selective Service System, within the next month.

A White House spokesman in Washington said there was no news conference.

Newman Dan Rather said Monday on the CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite that Hershey would be replaced as part of a draft reform plan designed to defuse domestic political opposition to the war.

Booth To Chair Textile Group

PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (AP) —

Robert Booth group vice president of The Kendall Co., Boston, was elected chairman of the Northern Textile Association today at its 118th annual meeting.

William F. Sullivan of Belmont, Mass., was re-elected president and Kenneth W. Chase, president of Berkshire Hathaway, Inc., New Bedford, Mass., and Edward B. Stevens, president of Ames Textile Corp., Lowell, Mass., were elected vice presidents.

Selected directors for three years were H. King Cummings, Guilford Industries, Inc., Guilford, Maine; Robert T. Davies, Thomas Taylor and Sons, Inc., Hudson, Mass.; H. L. Gosnell, Bates Manufacturing Co., Inc., Lewiston, Maine; Newell D. Hale, Hale Manufacturing Co., Putnam, Conn.; John B. Love, American Thread Co., New York City; and John J. Wall, W. J. Berry International Corp., North Monmouth, Maine.

Malcolm G. Chico Jr., Providence, R.I., and Lawrence H. Hanel, Newton, Mass., were elected new honorary members of the association.

The Northern Textile Association represents all textile manufacturers in New England and the Middle Atlantic states, and also numbers additional members in the Mid-West. Its membership includes cotton, wool and man-made cloth and yarn manufacturers.

'Food for Thought'

NEW YORK (AP) — Former

President Lyndon B. Johnson has penned a favorable foreword to a book by Eugene Black, former president of the World Bank, critical of the policies which led to big scale U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

In the book, "Alternative in Southeast Asia," Black said the attempt to beat off the Communists through counterinsurgency in the process helped to destroy much public support for the whole idea of foreign aid.

Black, once a Johnson adviser, says Trinity College on economic development in Southeast Asia, suggests instead wood.

"An overwhelming American presence a multilateral framework for a policy of regional cooperation," Johnson's forward comments.

"Whether one agrees or not with all of his analyses and prescriptions, no reader will put this book down without being struck on ways to form a left with a wide winner's cup, model government for the cold war full of food for thought."

Twelve of the 34 members are qualified first aid instructors and are available to instruct first aid classes.

Frosh Told Cynicism Most Urgent Problem

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Cynicism is a more serious problem than campus disorders or sex, Yale President Kingman Brewster Jr. told the incoming freshman class... In his greetings Monday to an audience that included the first Yale undergraduates women, Brewster cited the Rev. William Sloane Coffin Jr. as an example of the Yale men who have not yielded to the temptations of cynicism which pervade the country.

Wildcat Strikes an Issue In German Political Races

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—West Germany, in the midst of a national election campaign, has been rocked by two weeks of unusual wildcat strikes involving more than 300,000 miners and steelworkers... The strikers denied any Communist influence. They said they had agreed to a wage freeze in 1967 to help the country out of an economic slump... The workers' demands are well timed. The companies are prospering. There are labor shortages in several key industries. And with election day only two weeks away, there is an inclination to settle quickly.

People who wish to express their feelings for the deceased with something other than flowers should feel free to do so, but the sending of flowers would never be discouraged.

We keep telling people we have super sophisticated computers and they keep telling us we have a few tellers who don't smile.

So we decided to do something about it. We've made smiles the subject of lesson number one in our teller's training course. And that course, itself, is part of something we believe makes us stand out from other banks. Recently, in a separate building in downtown Hartford, we set up a full-scale training center for new CBT employees. We don't do any banking there. Just training.

You see, we're going all out to give our customers better service. Including the simple things... like smiles.

We're the bank that listens.
