Pinehurst—today as always... FAMOUS FOR FINE MEATS...

SIRLOIN explained...

We sell only one kind of Sirloin and Porterhouse... Top quality choice... in other words the best.

A good sirloin or porterhouse should have 1/2-inch of fat... no more.

IS SIRLOIN ALWAYS SIRLOIN?

When you look at a sirloin, a true sirloin, it should have the filet mignon (tenderloin) right in it.

These New York sirloins you see, so much of late are really not sirloins. Because the filet or tenderloin is cut out and sold separately.

12th Circuit Court Cases

ROCKVILLE SESSION

Circuit Court Judge Max Savitt presided over the Rockville court session yesterday to begin a three-month tour of duty in the 12th Circuit Court in Rockville, Manches-

He spoke briefly to court personnel and reporters at the end of a long morning of decisions affecting both the violators of minor traffic rules and those accused of serious crime. The judge began to express thoughts about his assignment to this area when he abruptly stopped on the word "pleasant," observing that "there is nothing pleasant when we have to sentence people."

That "no judge" may be the most difficult of jobs was obvious at the close of a short trial yesterday. One man had accused two others who live in the same rooming house of seriously beating him up as he was sleeping in his bed.

Donald E. Scribner, 28, and George W. Ladway, 28, each tried on a charge of breach of peace for an alleged assault on Ralph Maynes Nov. 8. All three men live at 78 West Main St., Rockville. Maynes was taken to Rockville General Hospital for treatment of a cut and injured ribs early that morning and on his complaint the two men were arrested.

Each denied any part in the attack. They said they were the only ones in the building except for a fourth man identified as Babe Mason, who was with Scribner and Ladway for a while. Ladway declined an offer by the judge to call Mason as a witness.

Counsel for both sides agreed it was a question of credibility and Judge Savitt found both men guilty. He sentenced Scribner to 60 days in the Correctional Center at Hartford and Ladway to a fine of $75, with a continuance to Dec. 23 for payment.

A hearing for probable cause was scheduled for Dec. 16 for two escaped Norwich patients accused of breaking into Vincent's Drugstore on Union St., Rockville, Nov. 20. Dennis Cassidy of East Hartford and Robert M. Drew of Hartford are both 19 and had been sent to Norwich Hospital by Hartford County Superior Court because of drug dependency.

They escaped Nov. 18 and charges in connection with this are matters for the 10th Circuit Court. They are charged here with breaking and entering with criminal intent.

Judge Savitt faced by a 16-year-old who exhibited a propensity for driving without a license and without insurance as required for those under 18, informed the boy of the maximum penalties for subsequent offenses on each charge. He then fined Roy Wabner of 840 East Middle Pike, Manchester, $50 for operating a motor vehicle without a license and $100 plus a 30-day suspended jail sentence with probation for one year on the charge of operating without insurance. The judge warned that another repeat of the offense would mean 30 days in jail, and gave the youth, who works, three weeks' time to raise the amount of the fine.

A Manchester woman, Mrs. Gladys Smith of 382 Adams St., was described as not being amenable to probation and was sentenced on a charge of breach of peace by assault to 90 days at the State Farm for Women at Naugatuck. She pleaded guilty to the charge, which stemmed from a fight with another woman in a Vernon restaurant, resulting in scratches and damage to the other woman's clothes. A charge of being found intoxicated was nolle.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered for Guy Smith, 21, of River St., Rockville, charged with taking a motor vehicle without the owner's permission. The charge involved a car owned by the mother of a girl friend. The case was continued to Jan. 6.

A re-arrest warrant and $200 bond was ordered for Terry Murphy, 21, of 49 Wells St., Manchester, who failed to appear to answer charges of operating a motor vehicle without a license and improper left turn. A $100 cash bond was ordered forfeited.

Trials by jury were requested by two men who pleaded innocent to unrelated charges, and their cases were continued for assignment to the East Hartford January session. Thomas W. Freeman, 20, of East Hartford, arrested in Ellington on Oct. 23 pleaded innocent to a charge of possession of marijuana. Bernard Beecher, 48, of 39 Vernon Ave., Rockville, pleaded innocent to breach of peace by assault.

Motor vehicle charges resulted in fines of $15 for failure to drive in an established lane to Michael Marchand, 18, of 15 Prospect St., Rockville, and George M. Hambsch Jr., 17, of 24 White St., Rockville. Jeffrey L. West, 17, of Hillside Dr., Rockville, was fined $20 for failure to yield the right of way.

Town Directors Approve Agreement with Teachers

As required by a new state law, adopted by the 1968 State Assembly, the teachers' agreement, approved Oct. 7 by the Board of Education and the Manchester Education Association, was approved also by the Board of Directors last night.

The action was unanimous and was without discussion. Wilson E. Deakin Jr., new superintendent of schools, who was present to witness last night's action, thanked the directors for their 1969-70 school appropriation. He said that the teachers' agreement, reached after 10 months of negotiations, gives Manchester an excellent teaching force, equal to, if not surpassing, those in other areas town.

The board adopted two resolutions, in connection with a state grant and loan for heating improvements in Bennett Junior High and Nathan Hale School.

In past years, state grants for school construction and improvements were paid in installments, over the life of bond issues, usually 30 years. Under a change voted by the State Assembly, grants are paid during the stages of the construction.

In addition, the state now underwrites the cost of construction loans, and guarantees that the interest rate will not exceed 4 per cent.

The new law applies to new construction and is not retroactive. The directors approved an application for state and federal "open space" grants and acquisition of the watershed holdings of the Manchester Water Co.

Under the application, the approved cost of the open space lands only (it is estimated the cost of the entire holdings of the Manchester Water Co.) is approximately $720,000.

The federal grant, if approved, would be 60 per cent, or $432,000; the state's share would be 20 per cent, or $144,000; and the town's share 20 per cent, or $144,000.

If and when the Manchester Water Co. is acquired, it would be by a bond issue, plus some funds available in the Water Department Reserve Fund.

Town Manager Robert Weiss informed the directors that recommendations for a water-rate increase are near completion. He said they will be submitted for a public hearing and possible action early next year.

The board designated the following eight banks as official town depositories: Manchester Savings and Loan Association, Savings Bank of Manchester, Connecticut Bank and Trust Co., Hartford National Bank and Trust Co., Connecticut Savings and Loan Association, Society for Savings, First National Bank of Boston, and Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., of New York City.

Town Treasurer Mrs. Rose-Ind Quish, in answer to questions from the directors, said that all of the eight banks are already town depositories and that the average interest yield from all of them is 5 per cent.

Former police chief Herman Schendel, an official of the Manchester Property Owners Protective Association, challenged the 5 per cent interest figure. He said that his association is concerned with the low interest yield for the Cemetery Department's Funeral Care Fund.

Schendel charged that the fund is earning only 2.5 per cent interest. He called for an investigation.

Happiness and anticipation of a joyful Christmas together were expressed today by relatives of three American helicopter crewmen after they were released by North Korea.

"I'm just overjoyed," said Capt. David Crowder's wife, Janice, when reached at his parent's home in Foster, Ga. "I'm just beaming all over."

She said the couple's fifth wedding anniversary is Dec. 19 and they were "really going to celebrate." I got a Christmas present and an anniversary present. Isn't that nice?" she said.

Leopold's wife, children, mother and stepfather all gathered at the home of a half-brother in Richmond, Va., to celebrate the release. His mother, Mrs. Harold Davis, said, "I'm so happy. What a wonderful Christmas. This is going to be. I'm sure looking forward to seeing him."

Leopold's daughter Dawn, 19, said his return "is going to be the best Christmas present I've ever had." While son Donald, 8, said he wanted to "tell Daddy about the new sled" he wants for Christmas.

Military Draft Harks Back to Biblical Era

By DON McLEOD Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Selective Service System likes to say the first military draft was ordered by God.

No sooner had Moses led the Israelites out of bondage in Egypt, the Bible says, than Jehovah ordered him to:

"Take ye the sum of all the congregation of the children of Israel, after their families, by the house of their fathers, with the number of their names, every man by their polls, from 20 years old and upwards, all that are able to fight with the sword, thou and Aaron shall number them by their armies."

Between God's draft and the U.S. induction system, which underwent major reform Monday night with the adoption of a lottery selection method, history is studied with examples of mandatory military service from the Athenians, Spartans and Romans all required citizens to serve in their armies under rules that would make most Americans cringe. One Roman law required every able-bodied man from 17 to 47 to do 10 to 16 years of active duty. Those from 48 to 60 pulled paragon duty.

England maintained the practice from pre-conquest times on and Capt. John Smith brought the draft with him when the first permanent English colony was formed in Virginia in 1607 with each settler a soldier.

But as New World colonization spread, forms of required military service changed and the militia system replaced straight out draft.

Colonial militia fought the Indians, the French and the British themselves. State troops were the main units in George Washington's Revolutionary army, a situation that failed to please the future first president.

Shortly after he became chief executive Washington asked Congress for a "uniform and effective system for the militia of the United States."

Congress responded with an act in 1792 requiring service in militia, which remained, however, under state control as to length of service and training.

But the act set a precedent by providing "that each and every free able-bodied white male citizen who is or shall be of the age of 18 years shall . . . be enrolled in the militia."

Other efforts to maintain a large national army under federal control failed in the face of strong objections against any permanent, standing military force and compulsory training.

Fear of a European-style standing army under federal control defeated attempts to create a national military force

1800 payment to the government. Critics charged the draft was designed to "make the poor man do the rich man's fighting."

Riots followed, the worst taking place in New York City where Irish immigrants and other poor people fought police and Army units for four days. Property damage ran into the millions and deaths were estimated at 1,000.

Following the Civil War the nation reverted to a tiny army stationed mainly on the frontier to fight Indians. Although a draft was instituted during the Spanish-American War, the fighting ended before the induction system was really put into effect.

The modern draft was born May 18, 1917, as the United States prepared to fight in World War I. More than 24 million men were registered, from whom 2,810,000 were inducted. Each registrant was assigned a serial number, and these numbers determined the order of induction. The numbers were drawn in a national lottery with Secretary of War Newton D. Baker drawing the first number from a big fish bowl.

Induction was stopped but the draft mechanism was kept alive after the war by a Joint Army and Navy Selective Service Committee. When the Selective Training and Service Act was passed Sept. 16, 1940 on the brink of U.S. entry into World War II, the draft machinery was based on the numbers of Pearl Harbor, Congress amended the act to remove a restriction that inductees could serve only in the Western Hemisphere or U.S. territories, and the period of military service was extended to the duration of the war plus 6 months.

The World War II draft was far the most sophisticated previous lottery when fewer men were needed, the World War II drawing determined only when a man would go, not if he would go.

The World War II draft legislation expired in 1947, but was revived the following year and has remained in effect since.

Again a lottery was used, setting the order of induction on serial numbers drawn from a John's, which has a population of about 1,000.

Classification and induction were based on the numbers of Pearl Harbor, Congress amended the act to remove a restriction that inductees could serve only in the Western Hemisphere or U.S. territories, and the period of military service was extended to the duration of the war plus 6 months.

LOVELY CHILDREN: A PHILADELPHIAN'S STORY. By John O'Hara. Random House, $4.50.

Here's O'Hara's latest Thanksgiving season offering, and it's another chip off the old Gibboville, Pa., block — even though the bulk of the action is centered in Philadelphia.

The action is a trip around the fictional circuit O'Hara has used in his many novels and short stories. It's a fairly interesting trip, even though it doesn't go much of anywhere.

Tracing the life of heroine, Lovely, near Charlotte Lewis, from girlhood to adulthood (primarily physical, hardly mental), the plot moves slowly forward with frequent stops for sexual episodes, that add little to the story but without which his short novel would be only a long short story.

What holds the whole thing together, of course, is O'Hara's superb writing. Lovely, as Lovely, really is pretty much of a self-centered creature. She's very much like her mother, Dorothy, a lady of rather erratic sexual tastes. But O'Hara, once again, uses the powerful writing, which makes him one of the country's best current authors, to make these dreary people interesting. In a handful of carefully selected words he depicts a character's soul, and shows it as it really is, not as it would like to be seen.

Consider the death of Lovely's father:

"Billy died almost but not quite literally with his boots on; they cut off his boots before taking him into the operating room at the hospital. But he never regained consciousness after his still, and someone remarked that at least Billy was spared the knowledge of the mutilation of his boots. In Billy's scheme of things a pair of 28-year-old boots were priceless. Someone at the hospital did remember to give Dorothy her husband's spurs, and someone else had been at the scene of the accident picked Billy's crop off the ground and left it at Lovely's house. Dorothy went into mourning of a kind; as soon as the last visitor left her house after the funeral she opened a bottle and filled a silver stirrup cup with gin."

Not a great book, but great reading.

Phil Thomas

THE WILD, WILD WEST. By Peter Lyon. Funk & Wagnalls, $5.95.

The author has had a lot of fun debunking all that nonsense about the gunfighters of the old West.

It is a pretty broad field, and he has had to leave out some minor figures. So he has concentrated on tearing apart, gleefully, some of the more prominent raunchy figures of the age.

His position is that even those who were supposed to be the white, steely-eyed protectors of justice (having moved in from another state, where they were wanted by the law) often were professional gamblers, unmitigated liars and murderers who shot adversaries in the back. Their one-shot, marmalade; he says, usually was a farce.

His gallery of thugs includes Wild Bill Hickok (whose reputation was based on shooting from behind a screen); Jesse James (who shot unarmed bank tellers); Wyatt Earp and his brother (who shot first at defenseless men); Blk. Mountain (who didn't kill very many because he usually missed); Billy the Kid (who may have been a murderer, and fired from ambush); Calamity Jane (an alcoholic who may have had two carbon copies using the same name); and Belle Starr, the concubine of a whole roster of outlaws.

How did this legendary nonsense pass into the folklore of frontier heroes? The author blames the luridly fictional accounts of the old National Police Gazette; the gullibility of 19th century Eastern journalists visiting old yarn-spinners; the unreliability of old Western newspapers; the flamboyant writings on the old dime novels; the naivete of early biographers; and finally the uninhibited imaginations of modern day radio and television script writers.

Lyon's book is an overview of the idea that things "went wild" about all those early ruffians. It is designed to throw a bit of backwash into our notions about Western folklore. He is a debunker who does his job with gusto.

THE HOLROYD PAPERS. By Chandler W. Sterling. Bartholomew House, $5.95.

This rather strange novel is written in the form of a journal, composed by one James Alfred Holroyd.

He begins by relating how, as a college dropout, he felt guilty over the suicide of his roommate and began haunting around the country, getting into various scrapes and jumping into bed with any available female.

Eventually he drifts into the priesthood, studying in a seminary where all of his associates are weird characters. Though he has no belief in God, he comes a success as a pastor and man, but he manages to maintain his posture as a churchman.

The final ironic twist is that when it comes time for the election of a new bishop, there is a factional fight and the position goes to Holroyd.

The story is told against the background of a bitterly seamy side of ecclesiastical life, a disheartening account. The author is the Rt. Rev. Sterling, member of the House of Bishops of the Episcopal Church.

This happens to be an incidental reason why heavy drinkers are often heavy smokers... More seriously, the same complexity of result extends into other kinds of human consumption.

Conversely, many of the items of human consumption about which no alarm is ever likely to be raised could, in the wrong quantities, mean danger to the human being whom they normally nourish.

There is no single law to govern human consumption, but if there is anything that might come close to being a single law it would, of course, be moderation.

Common Market May Start Talks with Britain in June

By RODNEY FINDER, Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Common Market leaders expect negotiations with Britain to start by the end of June, but the British press and public were not enthusiastic today.

The six nations of the European Economic Community met in a summit conference in the Hague Tuesday with a decision to open negotiations with Britain...

Mixed Emotions Follow Cassius Clay — 'Buck White'

NEW YORK (AP) — Cassius Clay stopped 'Buck White' in his 26:47 of the first act Tuesday night at the George Abbott playhouse...

Richard Watts Jr., New York theater critic, said the play was a close without getting anywhere in particular and it certainly falls to be theatrically arresting...

Canadian Youth Held in Assault On Two Women

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — Police are holding a 20-year-old Canadian in lieu of $50,000 bond in connection with an assault on two 20-year-old Rose Lattino...

The woman is reported in hospital after spending a cold night on the ground in Fairfield Memorial Park.

Police say Roy Leblanc of Victoriaville, Que., beat the woman at her home Monday night, took her to the park in his car, beat her and burned her with lighted cigarettes...

Police say Leblanc was arrested Tuesday, then left her in the park, but she was not found until 2 1/2 days, police said.

Leblanc, who said he was a dressmaker in Bridgeport, also took the purses of the Lattino woman and her friend, Josephine Birco, with whom she shared an apartment, police said.

Leblanc was booked on two counts of kidnapping, one charge of robbery with violence, and one of attempting to defraud. The Birco woman, who was hospitalized in Fairfield, also was arrested in Fairfield Tuesday.

For fully 45 minutes Clay dominated the 45-minute second act, occasionally straying from the throne in the title role of "Buck White" to join the action. He spoke his message loud and clear.

After the show he spotted Floyd Patterson, former champion and one of his victims, in an orchestra seat. "There's Floyd Patterson!" Clay shouted to the audience. "Give him a hand!"

The dressing room was a mob scene, reminiscent of Madison Square Garden or the beach the night he knocked out Benny Liston.

"I did the best I could," said Clay while posing with Patterson. "I wasn't really acting. These are my true feelings of freedom, justice and equality!"

William Glover, AP drama critic, called the musical "undistinguished" and said Clay "displays a rather ordinary theatrical style and hint of paunch as the preaching firebrand of a ragamuffin ghetto organization called B.A.D. for Beautiful All-Whay Days."

What other press critics said: Clive Barnes, New York Times: "Muhammad Ali... is beautiful. Buck White... is not quite so beautiful and is a pity."

"The whole dramatic power of the original play is washed over in a frothy sea of well-meaning clichés... (Clay) sings with a voice slightly impersonal, acts with an embarrassment and moves with innate dignity."

John Chapman, Daily News: "Clay doesn't appear until the show is half over—but when he does he takes charge in a snap."

Oscar de la Renta's spring collection influenced by national costumes draw applause at the American Designer showings in New York.

De la Renta Collection Has Drama with Global Touch

NEW YORK (AP) — For the woman who likes drama, Oscar de la Renta's spring collection is filled with the bright but subtle influence of national costumes from around the world.

De la Renta's collection got its dramatic touch from the American Designer showings red and white structure pleated and black, frunk-belted poplin coats.

His organza and founds are light and airy, ruffled at the throat and hem and printed in floral patterns.

Evening pants ensembles are softened by long cardigan coats or Balinese dancer overalls.

Another designer to offer drama at the day's showings was Marilyn Lewis of Cardinal.

Registration for the second semester will take place between 7 and 9 p.m. on Jan. 6 and 7 at the high school.

Bribe Case: Brewster Reported Ill

NAAB, Ireland (AP) — Daniel B. Brewster, the former U.S. senator from Maryland accused of accepting bribes, is seriously ill in a neurological department of an Irish hospital, his wife said today.

Mrs. Brewster is the daughter of a former U.S. ambassador to Moscow, William C. Bullitt. She declined to say in which hospital her husband, a Democrat, is a patient or how long he had been there.

A federal grand jury on Monday returned an indictment accusing Brewster of accepting bribes in exchange for votes on postal rates legislation.

Brewster, 66-year-old millionaire and decorated World War II hero, was unseated from the Senate in last year's election.

He is of course most anxious to return to the United States to answer this charge as soon as possible.

Coroner Holds Driver, Speeding Cause of Death

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — The death of a passenger in a car carrying eight teenagers in Danbury Nov. 7 has been blamed on excessive speed.

Fairfield County Coroner Thomas L. Kotler ruled today that the driver, 16-year-old Louis H. Skidmore of Danbury, was operating his car at a speed of 70 mph on a road with a 40 mph speed limit.

Kotler said the youth was extremely responsible for the accident and was in violation of the state statutes regarding negligent homicide.

Several persons in the car were hurt, and 17-year-old David Pender of Danbury died a short time later in Danbury Hospital of a fractured skull suffered in the crash.

Golden Hill Road was accident-prone when the accident occurred shortly after 8 a.m. as the teenagers were en route from Danbury High School to a restaurant, the coroner's ruling said.

Other features of the busar are a white elephant booth, a tailor shop offering dresses, aprons and stuffed toys.

Religious articles, candles and wreaths will also be offered.

Children will have their own booths, with items priced for their pocketbooks.

Many Physical Ailments Sex Problems in Disguise

By C. G. McDaniel, AP Science Writer

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — As many as a third of the patients who go to a doctor because they have physical complaints may be suffering from sex problems, a California physician reports.

These patients do not recognize that their "hazards" about sex might be causing such problems as headaches or fatigue of the eyes, nose or leg pains, Dr. Daniela D. Hansen of Inglewood, Calif., said Tuesday.

Hansen is a doctor of internal medicine, teaches at the University of California Medical School at Los Angeles. He participated in a day-long program on sexual problems in medical practice at the American Medical Association's clinical convention.

In the past few years, Hansen has been assigned the role of sex educator in six or seven years ago no sex-related program as in which he participated would have been given at an AMA meeting, he said.

Psychiatrists traditionally have been assigned the role of sex educator in the past few years, Hansen said. He said that because of the past education of physicians they have not been equipped to recognize a physical problem as a sex problem in disguise.

Very often it takes a long time to evolve from the fact that he has a sex problem, even when the physician suspects it, and sometimes a patient cannot be brought out at all because of the sensitivity that surrounds the subject, Hansen said.

The press of time and other patients frequently prevent physicians from dealing with the problem, he said.

After a physical problem is recognized as being related to a sex problem, sometimes a "30-second psychotherapy" is all that is needed to eliminate it, he said.

At other times, a lengthy psychoanalysis might be required, or rarely, a patient may have to go through life with the problem because he cannot deal with it.

Hansen said the symbolic translation of sexual conflict is possible into any organ or organ system of the body. He said he thinks most doctors see as many patients with sex-related physical problems as he does but that they do not recognize them. At least a third of his patients are so affected, he said.

Archeologist Finds Remains of Ancient Sinai Dwellers

TEL AVIV (AP) — An Israeli archeologist announced today he had discovered evidence of an ancient people which populated the Sinai Desert 6,000 years ago.

Dr. Benno Rothenberg of Tel Aviv University told a news conference the inhabitants flourished on copper and turquoise mining, hunting, fishing and making tools.

They lived in southern Sinai, numbered about 5,000 and were subservient to the Egypt of King Sargon in about 4,000 B.C., he said.

He also reported finding rare "native copper"—pure copper which does not require any refining process.

"It is not certain, but they probably migrated from Jordan to the Sinai," he added.

Rothenberg, whose expedition followed Israeli troops into the Sinai Desert in June 1967 when the expanse was captured from Egypt, says the Israelis carried out the most thorough search of the desert he has known.

Bolton Norman Lemaire Appointed To Finance Board Vacancy

Norman Lemaire of School Rd. was named to fill a vacancy on the Board of Finance at a special meeting last night. Lemaire, a Republican recommended by his town committee, won over Democratic town committee candidate John Conley in a 2-2 board vote which crossed party lines. The board was 2-2 Democratic.

Lemaire replaces Republican T.J. Crockett, who resigned after moving from town. Both Lemaire and Conley ran in the May election and were defeated by present board members.

In the short discussion preceding the vote Republican William Riley noted that it is customary but not board policy to replace a member with a person from the same party.

Democrat Aloysius Ahearn said that his party had been given a mandate by the voters in the last election, and he believed the replacement should therefore be a Democrat.

It was pointed out that Lemaire polled a few more votes in his defeat than Conley did. For this reason, and because Crockett was a Republican, chairman Paul Brown, a Democrat, voted for Lemaire.

The board felt that both men were qualified for the position. Lemaire is a comptroller, a manager of accounting at Travelers Research in Hartford.

The Bolton Art Club will not be meeting during December, January and February. The club voted last May to eliminate these meetings because of poor weather conditions usually exist and cause inconvenience to the scheduled demonstrators.

Bulletin Board Basketball registration for boys and men ages 10 and up will be held again tonight from 6:30 to 7:30 at the Community Hall. The snow Monday night will be the expected registration.

Cvt Scout Pack 157, including the Webelos, will meet Friday at 7 p.m. at the Community Hall.

The teen-agers yoga class will meet tomorrow from 3:30 to 4 p.m. in St. Maurice. Church basement. Teachers and other adults are welcome. Everyone should wear loose sports clothes and bring exercise mats.

Vernon Charter Revision Question: What Are Duties of Mayor?

The question of the intent of the Consolidation Charter concerning the duties of the mayor is being discussed by the Charter Revision Committee as it did the first.

The commission met last night to continue its work on proposed revisions to the document. Discussing the chapter on the mayor, his election and qualifications, powers and duties and appointing authority. John Dalgie, chairman of the commission, said the mayor's job was not envisioned as a full-time job.

Dalgie was on the original commission which drew up the charter. It was the intent at that time to have a strong board and a weak mayor type of government, he said.

Atty. Thomas Dooley, also a member of the present revision group, contended that the way the charter is written suggests that the intention is to have the mayor's job be full-time. He said the words belie the situation. He added that the language allows for a full-time mayor and noted that he feels the town will need one sometime in the future.

Commission members generally agreed that the charter should remain intact and that what would make the job full-time or part-time would be the salary involved.

In connection with the duties of the mayor, the commission discussed the area of his authority to appoint. The charter gives the mayor the authority to appoint and remove all department heads and other officers and employees of the town, except the officers and boards elected by the voters, appointed by the Board of Representatives and appointed by the Board of Education. It also states this authority is subject to provisions of the merit system and "other provisions established in the charter."

The discussion centered around the appointment of police officers which now comes under the jurisdiction of the mayor. The commission decided to make the change when it comes to the charter on the Police Department and propose to allow the police chief to appoint and discharge his own men.

The commission also voted to delete the offices of deputy police chief and deputy building inspector. Dalgie explained that it was the original intent, when the consolidated government came into being, to eliminate double jobs through attrition. Since the government consolidated, the police chief has resigned and the deputy chief has been appointed as chief. It was also agreed to place the office of town planner under "Qualified Officers Outside the Classified Service," as he is a

Confused by Report Building Unit To Inspect Leaky Roof at High School

The Town Building Committee last night made tentative plans to tour and inspect the leaking high school roof Saturday morning. It is hoped Summer B. Weiss, West Hartford architect retained by the Board of Education to make recommendations for corrective measures, will be able to accompany the group.

The committee hopes Weiss will be able to explain what caused Amers on School 8, will be held open until the first of the year.

This was included in the bid to update the Bennett Junior High School complex system. The TBC earlier approved the work if funds were available, and they are not. The question was raised by Eugene Montary whether the work would be done at the alternate bid figure at the low point of the roof, and if the interior configuration has been changed since plans were submitted to the Board of Education in April.

Truman Crandall, TBC chairman, said he would clarify the situation before asking the committee to take further action.

LBJ To Talk On Decision Not to Run

NEW YORK (AP) — Twenty words that changed American political history will be examined at length in a television interview with the man who uttered them, former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The words, spoken March 31, 1968, were, "I shall not seek, and I will not accept, the nomination of my party for another term as your president."

Uncle Sam Gives No Leave For Adoptions

WASHINGTON — Uncle Sam can be very generous in granting military leave to married or unmarried employees. But he draws the line when it comes to adoption.

With orphanages, foundling homes and places like Junior Village here already overcrowded, the government's hand in adoption seems strange.

In general, an expected federal mother can get about two weeks off before the expected birth and up to eight weeks after delivery. That's not free time, however.

She must have enough sick or annual (vacation) leave saved up to pay. If she doesn't have that much time, the government will put her on leave without pay, but her job is guaranteed on her return.

Women in government who adopt new babies can take their vacation time to get the baby settled in. But they can't be given sick leave time for that purpose, or given a job guarantee if she can manage leave without pay.

The government sees the situation strictly (and perhaps correctly) along medical lines. A woman should be off work six weeks before delivery and she needs at least that much time afterward to recover, and look after the baby.

Stamps In the News

NEW YORK (AP) — Carl J. So far, the harem costumes that twinkle his black mustache and describe with pleasure how scantily clad harem girls will entice male customers into his new shop.

By SYD KRONBERG AP News Editor. Both the Federal Republic of Germany (West Germany) and West Berlin have issued the first Christmas stamps in Germany's philatelic history.

Many other nations (including the United States) have issued Christmas postage stamps. The latest to produce such advances are Cyprus, Botswana, Jamaica and Gibraltar.

The U.S. Postmaster General receives a multitude of requests each year from various groups to issue commemorative stamps which would honor Americans.

The Philippines have issued three new stamps to honor the 50th anniversary of the profession of pharmacy and from the National Volleyball Committee of the Amateur Athletic Union to honor the 75th anniversary of volleyball in 1970.

Postmaster General Winton M. Blount will announce a series of four 1970 U.S. commemorative stamps which will be based on natural history themes.

The American Philatelic Society will hold its 84th annual convention next year (Nov. 1970) outside the North American continent for the first time. It will be held in Honolulu with the Hawaiian Philatelic Society as host.

First Charges Filed in Probe Of Dodd Funds
WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — U.S. Atty. F. L. Peter Stone filed an information Tuesday alleging that International Labor Corp. made an illegal $8,000 contribution to the 1964 election campaign of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn.

During Senate ethics committee hearings, a former Dodd aide testified that in return for the contributions, the senator was asked to endorse legislation for Abraham N. Spanel, former Labor board chairman.

The Senate returned Dodd in 1967 for converting campaign contributions to his own use. Spanel was never appointed an ambassador.

The ethics committee hearing record includes a memorandum attributed to Spanel and the draft of a letter by Dodd forwarding the memo to President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Also reproduced in the hearing record is a petty cash voucher for $8,000 given by a Labor official.

The Corrupt Practices Act makes it illegal for corporations or unions to contribute to candidates for federal offices. The maximum penalty for the act is a $10,000 fine.

Electric Cars Won't Cure All Pollution, Experts Say

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Experts on national power requirements say any development of a feasible electric car won't cure all the environmental pollution now caused by internal combustion engines. The energy to provide power for electric motors, they pointed out Tuesday, will have to be generated by some means and through did occur, the production of power for electric cars would still result in pollution or entail pollution.

"It is unkind to the public to say that electric cars will solve the pollution problem," said Commissioner John A. Carver Jr. of the Federal Power Commission.

Even nuclear power plants have been opposed strongly by persons concerned about radiation or ecological changes caused by the internal combustion engines, "but you are only replacing one kind of pollution with another," he said. He explained that electrical energy "must be produced somewhere."

Rome good hydroelectric sites still exist, he said, "but in proportion to need, they represent a small opportunity." Generating plants which burn coal, oil, natural gas or other fuels are more efficient than internal combustion engines. The first commercial plant in America to use nuclear energy to make electricity was opened in Rowe, Mass., in 1960.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS their chemical armories in London (AP) — Two L... The Times said it did not know whether the subject of chemical and biological weapons was heard of during the U.S.-Soviet arms limitation talks in Helsinki, but it observed that "the timing of the American announcement suggests that there is a connection between the two use chemical weapons, with Soviet proposals to prohibit their manufacture altogether and said they could 'combine to in-'

In Hanoi, the official Communist party newspaper Nhan Dan said Nixon's announcement was an attempt to divert attention from the alleged massacre of Vietnamese civilians by U.S. troops at My Lai.

Nhan Dan said although Nixon called his decision an "initiative toward peace," it was actually an attempt of the warmongers to hide themselves under the 'peace' signboard, an attempt to divert the attention of the public in the United States and the world now energetically condemning the mass killing in South Vietnam as a whole."

On another topic, the Soviet news agency Tass commented that the growth of the crime rate in Washington, D.C., "fully justifies its status as the capital of a state with the biggest crime rate in the world."

"According to data published by the 'Post' magazine, the crime rate in October this year was 35.4 per cent greater than in October 1968," Tass said. "This does not reflect the full picture of the growth of crime, the agency said, since many victims of crimes do not report them to the police, often out of fear of violence."

Kenyatta, 80, Plans to Rule Kenya Another Five Years

The assassination last July of 26-year-old Tom Mboya, an internationally known minister of economic planning and development, left a void in Kenya's political scene.

Cindy Birdsong Eludes Kidnaper
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Cindy Birdsong of the Supremes was kidnapped at knife point from her apartment Tuesday night, police said, but escaped by jumping from the kidnaper's car as it traveled along a freeway.

Miss Birdsong, 30, was bound by state highway patrolmen as she was running along the Long Beach Freeway about 30 miles south of Los Angeles. Officers said the member of the pop singing group cut a finger when she tried to grab one of the kidnaper's two knives and suffered minor bruises and scrapes when she jumped from his car.

She was taken to Long Beach Hospital by the patrolmen but was sent home early today. Police said the kidnaper was waiting inside Miss Birdsong's apartment when she returned with two male friends, Charles Hewitt and Howard Meak, both 25-year-old Hollywood salesmen.

The kidnaper, wearing two scarves, forced her into the car, officers said. The two men worked to free their bonds and notified police. Police declined to state any reason for the incident. The kidnaper, described as white and in his late 20s, was still at large.

Ted Kennedy Emerges From the Gloom of 1969

By JOSEPH H. MORSE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anticipating the death of his aged father not long ago, Edward M. Kennedy said: "Well, then I'll really be it. And that's a lot."

Now he is it.

In six wounding years he has gone from Teddy, the carefree kid brother, to eldest male and leader of the famous family.

The newest burden, descending late in his 38th year, fell at a time when Kennedy was moving at a dead run to escape the long shadow of the midsummer tragedy of Chappaquiddick Island.

He still bears heavily the death of Mary Jo Kopechne. But all things considered, he is a man who has survived the murders of two brothers and the violent deaths of three companions within a reach in vehicle accidents, and whose name and future had come under a nasty cloud — the young senator is recovering remarkably.

Four months after the night on Chappaquiddick, those who know Kennedy best testify that he is regaining confidence and spirit, walking taller, and even getting more satisfaction than ever from his work as a senator.

The nightmare night of Kennedy's subsequent moves had virtually stifled the innocent talk of his running for president in 1972. It's now evident that for him, it was the lifting of a millstone from his shoulders.

"Now," a close friend said, "Teddy's in the position of being able to concentrate on those issues he's interested in — Vietnam, the draft, pollution, the poor — and handle them as he himself would like, rather than as he might think he has to as a presidential contender — you know, less candidly."

"He can" take things on squarely and say what he feels without worrying about what people, and the Nixon administration, are going to say about his motives.

Even at a glance, it's apparent Edward Kennedy has come a long way from the gloom that gripped him after Chappaquiddick. Great spells of depression were commonplace then as he wondered who his friends were, what would become of his political effectiveness — and, most important to him, what he had done to the family name and the memory of his slain brothers.

He still keeps in close touch with Miss Kopechne's parents. The battle against a belated autopsy on the girl is less for legal reasons — his advisers think it could only help him — than in sympathy with their opposition.

But now, as he awaits the long-delayed inquest into her death, expressing eagerness to clear up at last the remaining unanswered questions, he is laughing and enjoying himself. He continues to keep his public appearances businesslike and placid. He has again dressed up his speeches with humor. But those who know Kennedy well report that he's "smiling back."

"I guess not having to read about it in the press every day helps," Kennedy said recently, admitting that he was feeling better.

"Now I'm looking forward to next March. By then the legal things (meaning the pending inquest into Miss Kopechne's death) should be cleared away, and then we can . . . You know, March has always been sort of a good month. The sap's rising on up, there's the St. Pat's parade in Boston . . ."

Kennedy missed the tradition at Columbus Day parade in Boston's North End, usually a must for Boston politicians. The sign of his complete emergence from the gloom of 1969 will probably be his appearance at the head of the St. Patrick's Day parade. It also will mark the beginning of an all-out re-election campaign against a Republican who hasn't even come forward yet to challenge him.

But now, with his father dead, December has been cleared of its official business to allow Kennedy to assume leadership of the vast family.

Joseph P. Kennedy had been gravely ill for most of eight years and was 81 when he died. But he had been there, a symbol and rallying point for the proud, clanish Kennedy progeny. Now he is not.

"You watch Teddy," a family intimate had predicted. "His father's death is really going to be his hand, even if it isn't a matter of shock or prolonged grief. But this thing about representing the family, being the lag of that bunch of brothers, the last Kennedy — he takes that seriously."

And soon after the Kennedy son's death, the same friend reported from Francis Ford: "Almost immediately you could see very well in Teddy's face, his eyes, his whole manner, the mantle shifting to his shoulders."

Dosing in a chair, then shifting to a sleeping bag when too ailing back, even if it isn't much, the only survivor of four sons had spent all of the last nights of his father's life at his bedside. The first night after his death, the senator again

NASA's Apollo Program Cheaper Than Toymakers'

By ALLEN NACHEMAN
Associated Press Writer

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Are you one of those cynics who sit in front of the television set with a pencil and paper during the moon shots and figure what it's costing you in taxes?

The Apollo program is running around $20 billion and the population is about 200 million so each of us is licking in an average of $12, right?

And you'd like yours back in cash.

I used to feel that way, but the coming of Christmas has brought me to my senses. It hasn't made me more patriotic, just more mercenary. I see now that it would cost me less in the long run to get the government run the space program than to conduct it in my living room, which is the alternative.

This is the season when strange people come into your home through the television set and explain to your children how they can spend twice your money. And my eyes are glazing to understand what they're talking about.

He sits in front of the set and watches Major Matt Mason driving his space buggy around Venus and he looks at the wide-eyed and says, "Eh, that?"

But then the network shows Serrak the Blue Destroyer and the astronauts walking on the moon and I can say to the kid, "We can't buy Major Matt. See? He's working for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration."

This is easier for him to understand than the 17th anniversary of the day and the moon isn't making enough to support four people, a dog and a space program.

Has all this been getting by you? Have you been ridding the refrigerator during every commercial?

Major Matt, a 6-inch plastic doll, sells for $9.99 and his buddy, astronaut Jett, is $4.99. Their talking space station, which furnishes authentic astronaut jargon at the pull of a string, goes for $7.99.

A powerful lunar tractor and precociously tinted space bubble to carry Matt and Jett around your living room cost $9.99 and a mobile satellite launcher with its own 6 x 24 inch moonpage is $11.99. Are you taking this down?

Billy Blastoff, America's first boy in space, outfitted with space ray, laser, tractor and star scope, walkie-talkie and "radio active material," $10.99. A moon copter with whirling blades, and an eight-wheel space movie are $4.99 apiece.

Challio, the astronaut from Jupiter, with transparent suit and exotic extra, goes for $2.49.

Last in space robot: $6.99. Blast off to the moon kit: $7.99. Blast the alien explorer: $4.99 each.

Serrak the Blue Destroyer and the Mighty Sogz costs $12.99. Bacterias are extra.

And do you think it will end there? How long do you think your kids are going to be happy with astronaut who aren't even as well-dressed as the Barbie Doll crowd?

Future's Banks: 'Big Brother' Or Business Boss?

By ROBERT A. ROSENBLATT

The Los Angeles Times LAS VEGAS — Banks will dominate financial life in the future, even to the point of advising a family when it is exceeding its budget for food, entertainment or whatever.

That will be a result of the cashless society where credit cards buy everything, a session of the fall joint computer conference here was told recently.

A computer-oriented banker told the session, which has drawn more than 20,000. "Your bank will eventually handle all your financial paperwork—even to providing a statement every two weeks telling you how much you are worth."

"When you are in the red, you will pay the bank when you are in the black, the bank will pay you," Louis Goldberg of Valley National Bank, Phoenix, told a seminar on "Managing Money with Computers."

The corner grocery store and the used car lot, along with just about every other business, will have terminals linked to computers. "When you buy something, your credit card information will be flashed to the computer, which will connect with your bank's machines, and the amount of the purchase will be subtracted from your balance."

Virtually all buying will be done this way, Goldberg said. "Payroll checks will probably be automatically deposited in banks. But special demand and savings deposit accounts will be needed because transactions will be carried out through credit cards."

Goldberg said the new society will cut down paperwork and give you more information than ever, but it will be a mixed blessing — banks will be able to watch their customers very, very closely.

The bank will know how much you are spending in any particular area and will compare this with the average for thousands of other depositors.

"We can look at the individual in terms of a characterization," Goldberg said. "If he is spending 86 per cent of his income for food each month, and the average is 20 per cent, we can alert him about that."

Another drawback, information in the computer can be lost, fabricated or obtained through unreliable sources, he indicated. This could be disastrous for a person in a heavily computerized society, when he would have no defense against the machine's printed-out comments about him.

It's a "legal and moral problem," Goldberg stated. "We have to give the customer direct legal access to the computer's store of information about him."
