Official Cites Worries On Power Plants

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Undersecretary of the Interior Russell E. Train says public misunderstanding of nuclear power plants poses serious problems for the future.

One of the greatest needs today is better public understanding of modern technology, he said, saying the public is "deeply troubled" over nuclear power plants.

He said there is a pressing need for new procedures in planning for nuclear plants which will give consideration to conflicting views.

He urged the use of these corridors for other utilities and recreation, and said he was confident that technology will eventually allow undergrounding of all transmission lines in utility tunnels.

Westinghouse nuclear energy consultant James H. Wright said that the radiation effect from a nuclear power plant on the population within 20 miles is "the equivalent of wearing a watch for three days of the year."

DON'T TAKE FINESSE
WHEN OUT OF COCKOON
By ALFRED SHEINWOLD
Like everybody else who works with bridge players, I have spent thousands of hours teaching beginners to take a simple finesse. And after years of experience, I still find it hard to take that same kind of simple finesse. It's all very frustrating.

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player bids two diamonds. Three spades, one heart. If partner has more than mind-boggling strength, you should collect a bigger penalty, more than enough to compensate you for not bidding a game of your own.

Management rules and regulations governing the privately-owned lake forbid the use of engines or motors of any kind in or upon the lake. It is interesting to note that residents and property owners have been skating on Andover Lake ever since it came into existence over 40 years ago.

Infant Dies After Receiving Chimp's Liver

DEWSTER (AP) - A small Seattle boy died late Thursday, less than 24 hours after surgeons gave him a transplanted chimpanzee liver in a last-chance effort to save his life.

The child, not identified further by the hospital, grew weaker during the night and died shortly before midnight, a spokesman said.

The Seattle boy suffered from biliary atresia, a congenital malformation of the bile ducts that usually is fatal by the age of 2.

Doctors said the transplanted chimpanzee liver was in good condition at the time of death.

Ending The War Of 1939-45?

Just for the hopeful record, it should now be chronicled that, in December, 1969, a government of West Germany has begun to try to end the war of 1939-45.

The indication is that neither the United States nor Russia is pleased with such activity on the part of West Germany, primarily because neither of these two great nations really knows how to loosen the iron grip it has been holding on Central Europe for the past 34 years of so-called peace.

The "activity" in question isn't, for that matter, openly labeled any business of putting an end to the war which ended a quarter century ago.

To do so, it is all a matter of chess. Chancellor Brandt sends a surprise note to Moscow, agreeing that Moscow would be a suitable site to begin long-proposed discussions about agreeing to bar the use of force. The Warsaw Pact nations, meeting in Moscow, adopt a communique which praises the new government in West Germany for more realistic attitudes, and especially for signing the treaty against proliferation of nuclear weapons.

But the realistic, restraining, necessary jealous hand of old mother Russia can also be discerned in the part of the Warsaw Pact communique which warns that Germans are still Germans, and will have to be watched closely, against a return of their old villainy.

And the equally jealous hand of old mother United States has been observed in Bonn, where Chancellor Brandt's government is making advances toward the East without consulting Washington in advance.

But what the clues all say, Russia and the United States and their great power vested interests notwithstanding, is that Central Europe is getting tired of living in an occupied partitioned camp, and that Chancellor Brandt may go down in history as the man who told both Russia and the United States to go home, which is something both must do before there can be any peace or normalcy in Europe.

Needed: A Code For Fog

The chain reaction collision in fog on a federal superhighway has now been accorded the distinction of the same kind of federal investigation that normally follows an aviation crash.

A three-man team of experts is busy investigating what happened down on the New Jersey Turnpike, the other day, when 21 vehicles piled up on one another, killing six and injuring 17.

The federal investigators are approaching their task from several angles. Naturally enough, they are interested in figuring out what, if anything, can be done about the peril of fog on superhighways where high rates of speed are normally in order.

They are interested, also, in trying to formulate some set of guide lines for motorists to follow, once they find themselves in fog.

"No one really knows what to do," says one of the federal safety sleuths. "Some drivers panic and stop in the middle of the road, which is sure disaster. Even those who pull over to the side, as happened on the turnpike, can get hit. Drivers may have to pull over to the shoulder and drive slowly on that for safety."

In the chain-reaction disaster the other day, people were hit trying to fire flames and wrecks, and at least one car was hit after it had pulled on the left shoulder to avoid the accident.

What makes the whole problem more urgent, and worthy of such federal attention, is the prospect that the number and intensity of the fogs to be encountered on our highways is likely to be increasing steadily, almost perhaps, in direct proportion to the number of gasoline and diesel motors we operate on the highways.

A Railroad Plan In a little noted Congressional proceeding, the Senate Commerce Committee has been noting the finishing touches on a bill that would save many of the remaining long distance passenger trains in the U.S.

The first draft of the bill calls upon the Secretary of Transportation to submit within 60 days after enactment of the bill a recommendation for national passenger service, identifying those lines where service is to be provided and at what frequency.

While the new bill, if passed, will surely see the trains not in the designated national system will disappear if they are losing money, the new Congressional concern (the House is working on similar legislation), means that the great national train continues. As the ICC now has before it some 150 requests for discontinuation of passenger service, the Congressional interest is just in time.

Wonders of the Universe A Way To Probe Venus Atmosphere

DR. I. M. LEVITT, DIRECTOR of The Franklin Institute

A novel program to fill in the broad information gaps in our knowledge of Venus has been proposed. A buoyant Venus atmosphere probe is being developed.

What makes the whole problem more urgent, and worthy of such federal attention, is the prospect that the number and intensity of the fogs to be encountered on our highways is likely to be increasing steadily, almost perhaps, in direct proportion to the number of gasoline and diesel motors we operate on the highways.

Before 1962, astronomers knew the Venusian atmosphere contained a significant amount of carbon dioxide, a peculiar gas in that it permits the short-wave radiations of the sun in and doesn't let long-wave radiations out.

Some astronomers assumed the Venusian day to be about 60 earth-days in length, while others assumed it was a day or 24 hours. Some astronomers believed the surface to be hot, stormy and dusty, while others evolved a strong case for a surface completely covered by water.

It must be recognized that astronomers did not speculate capriciously — they could provide sound, scientific reasoning for their contentions. Who was right? It was this uncertainty which led to intense interest in the flyby.

Connecticut Yankee By A.H.O.

One of Connecticut's college presidents discussing the current rapid turnover in college presidencies recently brooded on his theme to include the question of leadership in "the larger society" which includes the political and public as well as the academic world.

"What is happening on your campuses by way of testing an established order and by way of effecting change is only a precursor of what is in store for the larger society," said Homer D. Babbidge, of the University of Connecticut, down at the fall convocation of the Yale Alumni Board.

"What is at stake," said President Babbidge, "is not the incumbents. They are obviously expendable. The real question is, who will be willing to succeed them?"

"And if I am right, the far greater question is, who will be willing to accede to any position of leadership in a society that on the one hand expects George to do it, and on the other is bent on ousting George's blood?"

Connecticut public life is currently being compelled to focus its attention on one such example of a post—that of Commissioner of Public Welfare — being made "untenable" by the result that is one commissioner, who might be regarded as

Ancient Hanukkah Symbols Found by Archeologists

The Washington Post-Jewish Jerusalem — Two new archeological finds in Israel, both centrally related to Hanukkah, the Jewish Feast of Lights, have just been put on display here.

One is the earliest known detailed representations of the Menorah, or seven-branched candelabra, one of the temple's holiest items and now the symbol of Israel.

The new finds were made by Hebrew Museum archeologists. Only one small container of the holy oil was found in what remained of Solomon's temple (the site is that now occupied by the Mosque of Omar, the Dome of the Rock, in the old city of Jerusalem).

The original temple candle, described in the old Testament, held seven lamps but miraculously lasted for eight when placed in the Menorah.

Under the older method, the olives were first crushed under a stone rotating in and revolving around a circular trough and kindling an additional one each night (or in a different trough, for the Menorah, allowed to drain into a small pit).

Then the baskets were piled under a beam, one end sunk into a hole in the wall, and huge stone weights were attached to the temple and placed at the altar.

The representation newly discovered in the Jewish quarter of the old city, is 8 inches high and 5 inches wide. It was in the Roman conquest in 70 A.D.

For such a probe, a power supply would be provided by solar cells, but operating in a different part of the electromagnetic spectrum from that used today.

The life of the power system will be long enough so that meaningful results can be acquired to unlock what has been almost a complete mystery to scientists.

NLC Elects Nixon Advocate To Post Over John Lindsay

By KEN MARTNETT, AP Urban Affairs Writer SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Republican Mayor Richard G. Lugar of Indianapolis, a supporter of the Nixon administration's urban policies, has defeated New York Mayor John V. Lindsay for vice president of the National League of Cities.

At the closing session Thursday of the league's convention, Lugar, 37 and a former Rhodes scholar, won 378 to 281, in a rare contest for the vice presidency.

Lugar had the advantage of being known personally by the delegates. While Lindsay was a rare visitor to league functions in recent years, Lugar was present, visible and active.

Lugar said he would be glad to be vice president of the league, but he would not be in the city for the convention.

Lindsay, who had the endorsement of the Democrat-dominated nominating committee, would have given him a national platform, should he have wanted to go in a bid for higher office.

Lugar had stated his support of the Nixon administration's urban policies, but he had not stated his support of the Nixon administration's urban policies.

Drugs, Smoking To Be Discussed By School Board

Discussions of a recommended drug policy, a student request to change smoking regulations at Manchester High School, and a resolution by George Lawrence of 232 Autumn St., appear at 8 in the Board of Education agenda for Monday night's meeting at 8 in the Bernet Junior High School Main Building.

Lawrence's letter and a petition presented on behalf of a committee of concerned parents provoked a board meeting attended by a large number of students and adults on Nov. 24. The petition took issue with the association of a high school faculty member, Peter Richmond, with "Pi," the "underground" newspaper.

The board will act on two professional and one custodial appointments, two professional requests for leaves of absence, one professional resignation, and correct an error in a previously established professional salary.

Election of Feeney as N. L. President And 11 Player Deals End Baseball Meet

Notes from the Little Black Book... Former East Catholic High cagers, Freshman John Barry and sophomore Gary Kinnel are off to good starts with the Eastern Connecticut State College varsity basketball team this season.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The Major League annual winter meetings, keynotes by Charles "Chub" Feeney's election as National League president, kindled by an apparent solution to the Seattle Pilots' ownership dilemma and left off by 11 players' trades, ended a week long run today...

Hockey Players Face Identity Gap In Pursuit of Side Endorsements

NEW YORK (NEA)—The world, indeed, was fully prepared for Broadway Joe's touch-down burgers and Mickey May's hair cream and even some All-Pro fowl, but it is, one would think, not the least of the problems facing the players in the pursuit of outside endorsements...

At a time when professional athletes are acquiring profitable outside endorsements, hockey players seem to be dragging their feet in the pursuit of such deals...

Hockey players, it seems, are facing an identity gap in the pursuit of outside endorsements and, more specifically, outside money. While advertisers and commercial firms are clamoring for the top performers in almost every other sport to endorse a product or make appearances in their behalf, hockey players go virtually unnoticed...

Gordie Howe

"Hockey has its own little niche in the American sports world," he says, "and there's no way hockey players, even the star players, can rise above baseball, football, basketball, and boxing in the eyes of the general public."

Cavett: He Needs Guests

By LAURENCE LAURENT
The Washington Post

Dick Cavett will take over ABC-TV's late evening talk show Dec. 29. He'll be replacing Joey Bishop, who departed the series "by mutual agreement" with the network earlier in the week.

ABC-TV plans to continue "The Joey Bishop Show"—without Joey Bishop—until Dec. 26. Guest hosts will be used until Cavett's arrival.

No solution, however, is in sight for the biggest problem plaguing two dozen producers this season: Finding attractive guests who haven't been over-exposed. The problem is increasingly acute with the line-up of 19 weekly variety programs, over 100 specials and the growing list of such syndicated talk shows as those of David Frost, Mike Douglas, Dennis Wholey, Della Reese and Steve Allen.

By a most generous reckoning about 250 entertainers are certain to lure viewers to a program, with Bob Hope the current champion.

The current TV schedule, by conservative estimate, demands about 6,000 guest performers a year and enough stars simply aren't available.

If further complications are needed, many producers demand protection of a star's appearance. This means the usual requirement that a guest stay off the TV screen for 21 days before he visits a particular program and remain off for eight days after he has appeared. This, in the trade, is called the "21 and 8 rule."

Cavett, in other words, isn't coming into the "gab and guests" business in an ideal season.

The In-Fighting At 'Laugh-In'

By JAMES E. BRODHEAD
Special to the Los Angeles Times

Beautiful Downtown Burbank—A long silence, broken by the subdued murmur of the waiting cast, settles over the cavernous sound stage. In one corner, production executives leaf through their fat scripts and rejuggle the shooting schedule. They're two hours behind now and getting later.

One of the brightly costumed featured actresses snaps her fingers and taps her foot in bored impatience.

"Oh, God," another loudly sighs. "Now what's the hold-up?"

One of the stars unfolds slowly

ly from his director's chair, stretches and grimaces and glances at the idle set. "I have retired from the battlefield," he sighs with a rueful smile, and ambles back to his dressing room for an unaccustomed drink.

What battlefield? "Myra Breckinridge?" "The Survivors?"

No, boys and girls. This is NBC's Studio 4 in beautiful downtown Burbank—the stage that six months ago was rocking with a dazzling, ear-bending cacophony of hoots and howls, firecracker strings of one-line gags and horseplay off-camera as well as on, claps tick snapping like metronomes as scene after scene sped into the tape machine and the director's voice bellowed delighted encouragement from a ceiling loudspeaker, for the far-out front-runner of U.S. television shows—"Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In."

Top-rated TV hits must always choose between the opposing philosophies of "change and growth" and "don't tamper with success," and this one was no exception. But familiar figures have been bailing out of "Laugh-In" like a string of paratroopers, some by choice and some pushed, ever since last spring: Gordon Wiles, the ebullient former director (since signed by Rowan and Martin for their independently produced special airing on Jan. 14); Paul Keyes, producer and head writer; Jack Hanrahan and Phil Hann, script supervisors; Judy Carne and (in the near future) Goldie Hawn.

And their departures have coincided with a sea-change in the show itself—ragged pacing.

raunchier gags, an increased dependence on out-takes (labeled scenes that would earlier have been discarded) and the spurious breaking up of beloved of supper club comics and the old shows of the Sinatra clan.

Whatever the credits say — and the Rowan-Martin lawyer works hard at keeping his clients' names a part of the show's printed title — this season's "Laugh-In" reflects a belated struggle for creative authority between the stars and Executive Producer George H. Schlatter, and there are some who fear that, to the show's detriment, Schlatter may be winning.

The tug-of-war began almost from the moment the two comedians — fresh from their success as a 1968 summer replacement for Dean Martin — started in. ## Jane Wyman Repeats Her 'Belinda' Prayer

It isn't often that an actress is given the opportunity—or the challenge—to repeat an award-winning performance 20 years later.

But it happens to Jane Wyman when she appears on "The Jim Nabors Hour" on Thursday 8 to 9 p.m. on CBS.

According to the original script, Nabors and Miss Wyman were scheduled to appear together in a comedy sketch and a big musical production number. But Nabors felt they weren't taking full advantage of Miss Wyman's fine dramatic talent.

While discussing which songs he would sing, Nabors had an idea.

"Listen, Jane, I want to do a religious song to close the show. Why don't I sing 'The Lord's Prayer,' and you do it in sign language the way you did in 'Johnny Belinda'?"

"Oh, Jim, that's a lovely idea," Miss Wyman replied. "But that was a long time ago. I'm sure I couldn't do it letter-perfect without studying it all over again."

They were referring, of course, to the movie in which Miss Wyman won an Academy Award in 1948 for her moving portrayal of a young deaf mute. In one scene in the picture, she did "The Lord's Prayer" in sign language as she knelt beside her father's grave.

During a rehearsal break, Karen Morrow, a regular on the Nabors show, offered to contact a friend of hers, choreographer Kevin Carlisle, who has done a great amount of volunteer work with mute children.

Carlisle said he would be delighted to donate his services, and for the next four days he and Miss Wyman worked intensively on the prayer. To her happy surprise, Miss Wyman discovered that it all came back to her very quickly and with little practice.

When the show was taped before a live audience, the prayer was so beautifully done there was hardly a dry eye in the studio.

Nabors commented, "It was a highlight not only of that show, but of our entire season to date. Jane was just great and we all consider ourselves very lucky to have had her as a guest on our show."

And Miss Wyman said, "It was a richly rewarding experience for me. I'm delighted that Jim suggested it."

Germans, USSR Talk Anti-Force

MOSCOW (AP) — West Germany and the Soviet Union today began talks on a formal agreement to renounce the use of force against each other.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and West German Ambassador Helmut Alhardt opened the negotiations at the Foreign Ministry, an official German source reported.

With the opening of today's talks, the Soviet Union now is engaged in negotiations with the three countries that until recently have been its favorite propaganda targets—Communist China, the United States and West Germany.

U.S.-Soviet talks on the limitation of strategic weaponry are under way in Helsinki and Soviet-Chinese negotiations on border problems are in progress in Peking.

Allardt is expected to remain chief of the West German delegation at the Moscow talks but Gromyko probably will step down after the initial phase, leaving the talks to a lower-level group.

Soviet Ambassador Semyon Tsarapkin handed a note to the West German foreign office in Bonn Sunday, saying his government was ready to start the talks in Moscow today.

Delivery of the Soviet note on Sunday and only one day before the start of the talks caused some confusion in the West German Embassy in Moscow. An Embassy spokesman said this morning that the talks would not start for several weeks, then a few hours later announced that Ambassador Helmut Alhardt and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko would open the negotiations during the afternoon.

The Soviet go-ahead followed a declaration by the Soviet bloc nations at a summit meeting in Moscow last week which said the new West German government of Chancellor Willy Brandt has shown a "tendency toward a realistic policy."

The West Germans have been seeking talks to improve relations with the Soviet Union ever since Brandt became foreign minister in 1966, when his Socialist party first entered the government as the junior partner to the Christian Democrats.

The Soviet Union finally agreed in September to talk about a renunciation of the use of force but did not set a date. Brandt said at the time that neither the Soviets nor the West Germans had modified their basic positions in the exchange of notes. This was taken to mean that the Russians were still insisting that Bonn recognize the East German regime, and that West Germany was refusing to do this.

The Moscow summit meeting last week also repeated the long-standing demands that the Bonn government recognize East Germany and accept as final the German borders that now exist.

But West German officials viewed the communique at the end of the meeting as conciliatory, and took note especially of this passage:

"The socialist countries taking part in the meeting come out for the expansion and development of relations between all states on the principles of equality, noninterference in internal affairs, respect of sovereignty, territorial integrity and inviolability of frontiers. They are fully resolved to develop relations with other European states wishing to cooperate on the basis of these principles."

The Soviet bloc has put renunciation of the use of force at the top of the agenda for the European security conference it has proposed to be held by its mem-

Rejected Suitor Kills Couple

PORT CRANE, N.Y. (AP) — A bride of six days who screamed for help over a telephone was gunned down in her home Sunday by a rejected boyfriend who also killed her husband and himself, police said.

Broomes County deputy sheriff, eight miles away from the home of Mrs. Charles Jarrard in this Binghamton suburb, said they were on the telephone in response to her call for help when they heard her yell to her husband:

"Don't open the door, don't let him in." After that, deputies said, they heard a commotion and shots.

They found Jarrard, 37, dead from a shotgun blast in his chest. Mrs. Jarrard, 35, had been shot several times and then clubbed with the butt of a 16-gauge shotgun.

The gunman, deputies said, was Arthur J. Reynolds, 37, of Port Crane, north of Binghamton, who they said died of a self-inflicted wound.

Reynolds pulled the telephone cord out before taking his own life, deputies said.

Violent Death Sets Tone At Rock Festival

TRACY, Calif. (AP) — A free rock music festival that police estimated drew 300,000 young people to the dry brown hills east of here left behind it a blanket of litter, four violent deaths, and four new babies.

The babies arrived prematurely to mothers who were taken to medical-aid tents staffed by 19 doctors and six psychiatrists. The staff also reported treating many youths for overdoses of drugs.

Authorities said the four men who died were:

—Meredith Hunter, 18, of Berkeley, Calif., stabbed in the back and face during a scuffle in front of the stage, where members of the Hells Angels motorcycle clan guarded the featured British Rolling Stones and other rock groups during the six-hour concert.

—An unidentified youth who toppled down a bank into a canal and drowned.

—Richard Selov, 22, of Elizabeth, N.J., and Mark Feiger, 22, of Union, N.J., who were run over by a car leaving the speedway site Saturday night after the concert. The two were lying on the ground in a group bedding down around one of the many campfires.

Thousands of youngsters had poured into the area near the Altomont Speedway auto race track on Friday, the night before the concert, and hundreds stayed over Saturday night rather than fight what highway patrolmen called one of the Bay Area's most massive traffic jams.

The major highways into the isolated area were blocked for about 30 miles in the concert vicinity Saturday morning. Thousands of vehicles were parked while their occupants walked miles to the festival. Some 300 cars were impounded for blocking roads or being on private property.

There was much wine drinking, pot smoking and a few instances of open nudity, but police said most in the turnout were seeking to avoid trouble.

The Rolling Stones arrived late, near the end of the concert, which began about noon, and one fan swung at one of the Stones as they were being escorted to the dressing tent, said

City's Mood Is Tense--Wistful

HUE, Vietnam (AP) — The mood is peaceful but tense, wistful but optimistic in this ancient imperial capital nearly two years after its ordeal in one of the war's most savage battles.

The Tet offensive of February 1968 left the city 70 per cent destroyed in a 35-day battle. Everything here is dated from that time. People speak of things having happened "before Tet," or "after Tet."

Much of the old grandeur is smashed and overgrown with moss. A hole still gapes in the inner Citadel wall, through which South Vietnamese rangers stormed to trap the last enemy holdouts.

Tin roofs shimmer atop houses once sheltered by rich terraces. The left wing of the imperial palace inside the Citadel, damaged in the battle, is patched with tin.

But across the Perfume River, in the newer part of the city, shoppers crowd the rebuilt stores and a shiny new market. With aid from Saigon, the local economy is recovering slowly. The Long Thoi lime factory six miles west of Hue has reopened, employing more than 200.

Refugees are being resettled. Offshore fishing restrictions have eased. More people are working in the rice fields and timber forests. Sawmills are starting up. Still, tax revenues are lagging and work- ing capital and loans are scarce.

Most people, one municipal government official said, have snapped out of the stupor that followed the devastating offensive.

"They sat around and did nothing—perhaps from shock, perhaps from fear that whatever they built would be torn down again," he said.

The Tet offensive was not only the fire that nearly destroyed Hue. It also was the crucible in which its new character, attitudes and programs were forged.

For most residents, it was the dramatic turning point when Hue's people turned from what Col. Le Van Than, the Thua Thien province chief, likes to call "nonaligned" to embittered anticommunists.

"The Communists made their biggest mistake when they tried to lay this city low," says a Vietnamese municipal official.

"They gave the government an ally which it had not had."

"Well," said a U.S. official, "if they don't actively support the government, at least they're not openly sympathetic with the V.C. Now they either hate the Viet Cong or they just don't say anything."

A major reason for the change of attitude is that the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong slaughtered about 8,000 residents while they occupied the city. Bodies are still being dug up from mass graves.

The once militant Buddhist and student factions have adopted a passive stance, officials say. Many of the people who were passive before Tet are now openly pro-government.

An example of this is the People's Self Defense Force, now 87,000 strong in Thua Thien province with 30,000 persons taking part in Hue alone, helping to protect their city from new deprivations. Hue's population totals 160,000.

"Everyone in Hue has had relatives killed by the Viet Cong," explained Ngo Dong, a biology professor at the rebuilt Hue University and the provincial chief of the self-defense force.

"After Tet, the people were fearful and depressed. As things went along they gained confidence. Where before they were afraid to receive weapons, they now ask for them."

Authorities say the force of

Seek Independent Viet Quiz

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has been urged by two influential Democrats to appoint an independent fact-finding panel to investigate the alleged massacre of civilians by U.S. soldiers at the South Vietnamese village of My Lai.

The proposals came separately Sunday from Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, and former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Stennis said the panel should be composed of persons "outside the government and outside the military" and should survey the March 1968 incident determine the facts and make a special report to the President.

Humphrey told newsmen the panel should be similar to the Warren Commission, which probed the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. The former vice president said in Los Angeles "enough has been said that there needs to be an examination."

Stennis said the special panel's probe could be undertaken while trials of the accused are under way.

But the senator spoke against a full-scale congressional investigation, saying "if we in the Congress go to holding a hearing now and before that trial is over, it will go off in different

House Cuts Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's foreign aid program was slashed to a new low of about $1.6 billion today by the House Appropriation Committee.

The committee also assured another brink battle by approving $4.5 billion to supply fighter planes to Nationalist China.

Economic aid took it on the chin in the deep cuts of about $1 billion inflicted on Nixon's original spending ceilings suggested for the program that covers 99 countries.

Funds for the Peace Corps, foreign military credit sales and an array of other programs bring the over-all total in the bill to about $2.5 billion. But outside of the direct foreign aid programs the cuts were not considered heavy ones.

The House had pared the authorization for foreign aid down to about $3.3 billion while adding in a surprise move the fighter squadron for Chiang Kai-shek by only seven votes. This was promptly knocked out by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

However, the Appropriation Committee called Nationalist China a staunch ally and said:

"The location and importance of the Republic of China to the security of the United States seems to grow as events and actions take place in the Far East, and, in the opinion of the committee, require the United States to assist in the development of the defense capability of the Nationalist China Air Force to meet whatever threat it may face in the future."

But two members of the panel — Reps. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., and Jeffery Cohelan, D-Calif.—looked sharp exception to the jets for Chiang.

They argued the planes were not requested by the administration, weren't justified before the panel and raised a question about whether the island republic of Taiwan had any need for them. They suggested Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird should be questioned by Congress about the proposal.

Congress in 1968 whacked about $1 billion from President Johnson's foreign aid authoriza-

Labor Union Amendment Tax Bill Bar

WASHINGTON (AP) — An amendment that would remove much of the political clout from labor unions by eliminating their tax-exempt status is presenting a major stumbling block to an early Senate vote this week on the tax reform bill.

Managers of the bill now in its third week of Senate debate, say a final vote can be held Tuesday or Wednesday. But the amendment, sponsored by Arizona Republican Sen. Paul Fannin, must be dealt with first, and a tough political battle is expected over the politically charged issue.

Fannin's proposal would deny tax-exempt status to unions and other organizations using members' dues and assessments to support or oppose political candidates or parties.

Strong opposition was expected from the unions and senators who have been beneficiaries from union contributions.

Fannin insists his amendment would hit tax-exempt business groups equally with unions, but he concedes his great concern is with labor.

"It has been estimated," he says, "that over $100 million were spent by labor unions in the last national elections, not including wages and salaries of those in every-day activities that are truly involved in political endeavors."

"One of the things which makes this practice so iniquitous is that much of this money is collected by the union leaders under arrangements which give a man no choice but to belong to a union."

"I dare say there is no single group in our nation able to wield so powerful a weapon as the quantity of money and help which labor officials can pour into national and local election campaigns."

The AFL-CIO contends these activities are legitimate because the funds are received in voluntary contributions from union members and because they are paid out not by the labor organization itself but by a separate group, the Committee on Political Organization—COPE.

So far during floor debate, the Senate has cut back substantially on the House-passed tax reform bill while voting for a number of politically popular riders, including a big increase in Social Security benefits.

Two leading Senate Republicans suggest these votes are part of a Democratic scheme to pack the bill with costly provisions.

Presidential Press Confab Held Tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon comes down from his snow-covered mountain retreat today to face a news conference and reporters who have had two-and-a-half months to prime themselves with questions since their last formal meeting with the chief executive.

Much has happened since Nixon's last news conference Sept. 26 to spark tonight's questions—reports of the alleged massacre of civilians by American soldiers at My Lai in Vietnam, the defeat of the Hayworth Supreme Court nomination, the start of U.S.-Soviet arms control talks, continued inflation and several other Vietnam developments.

The president spent the last part of his weekend at his Camp David lodge in the Maryland mountains preparing for the 9 p.m. EST news conference, with only a few aides present. Three to four inches of snow fell in the area before Nixon's scheduled departure today.

In announcing the news conference, his eighth since taking office, the White House said only that Nixon would have no opening remarks and would go straight into the questioning.

The session will be carried live by the major television and radio networks.

All indications pointed away from any announcement of further U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam. For the time being, the administration is standing on the 60,000-plus cutback that has already taken place, while taking a careful look at reports of increased North Vietnamese infiltration of the South before going further on manpower reductions.

Besides the My Lai incident and possible troop withdrawals, other Vietnam subjects Nixon might be asked to discuss include the two latest antiwar demonstrations, Henry Cabot Lodge's resignation as chief

U.S. Way Out: Vietnamization

PARIS (AP) — In the absence of a breakthrough in the Paris peace talks, the United States looks to Vietnamization as the fastest way to get Americans out of Vietnam and the best way to achieve the U.S. objective of "ending the Vietnam war."

At the same time, Secretary of State William P. Rogers told an interviewer here President Nixon has no plans for the immediate appointment of a successor to Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, the chief U.S. negotiator in Paris who has quit. Rogers seemed to suggest he saw no prospects at this time for a break in the Paris deadlock.

Laird spoke at a news conference.

"Harring a breakthrough in Paris, for which we all hope, Vietnamization still provides the best and quickest route to achieving our objective," Laird said.

Vietnamization is Nixon's program for turning over to the South Vietnamese military forces the burden of carrying on the fight against the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese.

Laird contended this provides a means for the orderly disengagement of U.S. troops from combat "without impairing our objective—the right of self-determination of the people of South Vietnam."

He described this as an alter-

Did Garbled Word Trigger Racial Tension and Suicide?

By CARL BERNSTEIN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The home of Willie Boswell is five blocks down the hill from where Philip Jackson Davis lived and died.

Although both attended nearby Wakefield High School, in suburban Arlington, Va., the youths apparently had never met before last week.

Their houses lie on opposite sides of S. Walter Reed Drive, which is part of the boundary between black Green Valley and white South Arlington.

Early last week, Boswell, 18 and Davis, 15, spoke their first words to each other in a stairwell at the school.

Boswell, who is black, now is in the intensive care unit of Arlington Hospital, recovering from stab wounds inflicted by Davis.

During their encounter in the stairwell, Boswell asked Davis, who is white, for money—either a dime for a phone call or a nickel for some ice cream.

They exchanged words, and one of those words may have been "nigger" or it may have been "nickel."

There were blows, one of them to the face of a girl who was with Davis. Boswell pulled out a pocket knife his friends and family say he carried to clean his fingernails. He struck Boswell three times with the knife, twice in the chest, once in the hand.

The stabbing set off a series of racial fights and demonstrations at the school.

Two days after the encounter, Davis looked himself into the bathroom of his home and shot himself in the head with a .22-caliber pistol.

"It really got next to him that people were getting pounded in the hall for racial reasons and that he had to be part of it," Davis' older brother, Paul, 15, says. "He had a lot of black friends."

Less than an hour before he killed himself, the youth received a telephone call from James H. Fox Jr., associate principal of Wakefield.

"Fox wanted to talk to Momma, but I didn't think he should talk to her, she's been very nervous," said Paul.

"So I talked to him after Phil. He just said 'We're going to see about transferring him to Yorktown (High School).'"

"I thought it was the best idea myself at the time. But I could tell Phil was upset. He didn't say anything. I told him I thought it was best, a brand new school and all that. He didn't respond."

The main thing he was wanted to get things straightened out. Wakefield was the big thing for him. He really enjoyed going there. His whole life was around it."

From the accounts of those who knew him—both black and white—there was nothing racist about Davis.

"He believed in equality," his father, Jackson Davis, says. "He never had it (racism) in his home or in anything else he did. But he was very worried that people were turning this into a racial matter. He was very upset people were interpreting it this way."

According to students at Wakefield, which is attended by 1,800 whites and 280 blacks, black and white students fight each other frequently at the school. White students say the fights often have been the result of black pupils "dabbling down" whites for small change.

"You'll be standing in the lunch line and they'll ask you if you have money," says 10th-grader Sharon Curtis. "Usually it's not too much."

Black students say it isn't like that.

"If I see somebody, I might ask him for a nickel," said George Shorter, a black sophomore. "But it's no shakedown or anything like that. I don't dig that."

Amanda Boswell, Willie's mother, gave this account of what happened:

"Willie told me he asked him (Davis) for a nickel for some ice cream. The boy said, 'Nigger, I don't have a nickel.'"

"He (Willie) didn't do more than I would have done in this day and age. He fought. He's proud of being black."

Black Panther Bullets Hit Three California Policemen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police made simultaneous raids on three Black Panther quarters today and were met with gunfire at one of them. Three officers were injured.

The Black Panthers then barricaded their main headquarters, and after three hours during which sporadic gunfire occurred, police, using bulldozers, issued an ultimatum:

"Come out with your hands up or we'll come in."

One man emerged from the building but the others stayed where they were. Police, attempting to serve warrants on weapons charges, made no immediate move.

Police said homemade grenades of an undetermined type were buried at them from the building. No one was hurt by their explosion.

Police withheld the names of the wounded officers. They said they were hit in the first spurt of gunfire from the Panther headquarters.

One officer was listed in critical condition with multiple wounds, another was shot in the leg and the third in the foot.

Police said they understood at least four persons remained in the building, a former store located across from Wrigley Field, a former baseball park. The area is inhabited predominantly by Negroes.

Sgt. Dan Cook, a police spokesman, said the pre-dawn raids were not connected with recent Black Panther confrontations with police in other areas around the nation.

He said simultaneous raids were ordered to serve warrants on two persons after authorities
