Why My Lai? Because War Can 'Affect a Guy's Mind'

By RICK MERRON
MY LAI, Vietnam (AP) — The Marines of Combined Action Platoon 146, taking a break, sat wearily next to a blackened, abandoned house.

"Right civilians? I've killed civilians myself—because I was ordered to," said one of them, as if he had expected the question.

"But I only found afterward that they were civilians.

"At the time, how do you know? Because it's a woman? No, because women can fire AK47s. Because they're children? No, because they can make boobytraps."

The speaker was Pfc. Robert Wolf, a tall, lean 20-year-old from Sacramento, Calif., who joined the Marine Corps as a combat program and landed here after six months in a line company.

Wolf spoke only for himself but his words seem to summarize the reality for American troops in Vietnam—not just in the coastal hamlets, but in a mass killing of civilians alleged to have taken place 21 months ago. It was the My Lai massacre.

The Marines' overall mission is to protect the residents while the Army says the mass killings were at My Lai 4, and this platoon of Marines has the only American now regularly stationed in its immediate vicinity. They operate out of the Son My, which has earlier been spelled Bong My, refugees resettlement area a half-mile away from the hamlet.

Survivors of the 1968 killings also live here.

KEEP DANGEROUS Foe FROM GAINING LEAD

The purpose of the holiday play is to run one opponent out of cards in his partner's long suit. If you later give the lead to the short suit, he will be unable to return his partner's suit, and you thereby gain time to make your contract. You may have to use a magnifying glass to see how this principle applies in today's hand.

North dealer.

North-South vulnerable.

Opening lead — Queen of Spades.

West leads the queen of spades, and East is tempted to win the trick at once. There doesn't seem to be any point in running East out of spades, because East is never going to gain the lead. If you use that magnifying glass, however, you will see that East is going to win an important trick and that the holiday play is therefore absolutely necessary.

South refuses the first trick, allowing West to win it with the queen of spades. West continues spades and South wins the trick. By this time East has lost all of spades, and South has accomplished the purpose of his holiday.

South must develop the diamonds to make his contract. If he allows West to win two diamonds, West will win his extra point for length in clubs. If he allows East to win one of spades and one heart, South solves his problem by allowing East to win one of the diamonds.

In a broadcast monitored in Miami the station—official voice of Fidel Castro's Cuban government—said Nixon's speech Monday night had changed nothing.

NEW YORK (AP) — A partial solution to the growing financial distress of the performing arts may be achieved by adopting business methods, one of the nation's largest financial institutions has concluded.

Recognizing that "artists may have the wrong attitude toward their work," the Chase Manhattan Bank suggests that while the arts have concentrated on performance quality they have not paid enough attention to business methods.

Realistic Policy, Fairy Tale Logic

President Nixon, in Vietnam, is doing what we think is as close to the right thing to do as any President could come. But in his talk about what he is doing in Vietnam, he is courting trouble. What he is doing is deescalating the war, by reducing the scale and enterprise of American military action, and by adhering to a continuing schedule for the withdrawal of American troops.

This can be classified as a hard and realistic policy because it is perhaps the only way to bring the war in Vietnam toward some kind of eventual halt. If it obviously involves risk, one can applaud the way the President himself ties to it the assertion that "I have consistently said we must take risks for peace."

President Nixon's complication comes from his inability, while following this realistic policy, to admit openly that he is behaving unilaterally, conducting a retirement, and perhaps even getting ready to accept for his own a certain degree of defeat.

He feels forced, by his own character, perhaps, and certainly by his sense of what his own nation expects, to present a kind of fairy tale happy justification for and prospective happy ending to his realistic actions.

This fairy tale bears the title "Vietnamization," and the story is told in one of the South Vietnamese turning in to a political unity and a military prowess which will enable them to do for themselves everything a half million American troops have been doing in their country over the past five years.

There have been changes since. There have been different political regimes. There has been augmented training of South Vietnamese military manpower. But there is still not the slightest guarantee that, should the United States get out of Vietnam, the South Vietnamese would be able to stand firm either politically or militarily. The President says he is getting optimistic reports. It would indeed be a convenient and fortunate thing if South Vietnam should, after all, develop the will and unity and the desire to fight which would enable it to take care of itself.

The Signals Change

It was not many days ago that the financial community which specializes in theorizing why the stock market behaves as it does was reacting enthusiastically to any sign that the Nixon administration was getting stern about inflation.

This was the period in which things which might normally be considered bad news were being considered good news because they seemed to be slowing the economy down when the economy needed to slow down if it was not going to break its neck.

That was the theory and the story all summer long, and through September, October, and November. And it seemed quite a valid theory, in those days. Enough good bad news in a day, and the stock market would go up.

Now in December, one can detect the emergence of a reversal of theory and reaction. The heretical stock market is beginning to go down on bad news instead of up.

And the explanation of the theorists, who used to be so clever at telling us why bad news was good, proves able to make its shift without being incoherent. Now, they say, that the Nixon administration and the natural conditions of the marketplace have begun to really slow things down so that inflation is in check. This, they say, is the good news everybody was cheering on all fall. Now the danger is that the slow down will become too fast and go too far.

From now on, therefore, bad news will really be bad news. Inflation becomes merely the danger we are just edging past, and depression is the new enemy, possibly just ahead, unless we can manage some change so that we are guaranteed something of a speed up within the next few months.

At the moment the stock market, like the theorists, doesn't quite know which way to turn.

On Remodeling Mom "Mother, my teenage daughter said I don't wear that. It's not a genuine dress. The blouse had ruffles at the neck and sleeves. Not being the fluffiest type I had never really liked it (it had come with a matching knit suit I did like). But I thought an open blouse (did like), my daughter's school where I would meet her new teachers for the first time would be a good occasion to get some wear from it."

Now my lectures on simplicity in the Best Taste were back-firing. Without argument I changed to a silk, tailored blouse slightly darker than the suit. It was quickly approved, and we were off to the open house.

Inside Report

Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

WASHINGTON - The degree to which President Nixon has undressed his own anti-poverty chief, Donald Rumsfeld, was revealed last Thursday in a remarkable conversation between a senior Republican Congressman and a top White House aide.

The Congressman was complaining about Rumsfeld's quiet quest for a Presidential letter to House leaders of both parties forthrightly opposing an amendment which would have turned control of the poverty program over to state Governors.

The Congressman was informed by the White House aide that not only would no such letter be written but that Rumsfeld had been instructed to stop such lobbying efforts immediately.

Thus, Mr. Nixon's attitude toward Rumsfeld in the House poverty fight was not being neutral, as apparent on the surface, but outright hostile. That reflects not only the ideological manner in which the general White House handles Congressional relations but also symbolizes deepening ideological polarization in the Republican party.

At one pole on this issue are Rumsfeld and a few progressive Republican Congressmen, who still believe their party can expand its base among the poor and the black. At the other pole is the House Republican leadership, dedicated to capturing the 1984 Wallace vote. On this as between the two poles, there is no middle ground. Mr. Nixon hastened toward himself to be drawn, irresistibly, to the conservative pole along with most Republicans.

A Thought for Today

Open Potter's Tax Suggestion

David in the intimate relationship that existed—and for millions still exists—between them and Christ, the Shepherd of their souls? Several centuries after David, when Isaiah shielded his prophetic eyes and gazed far into the future to the promised Messiah and sought to describe what he saw to others, he once more said the picture of a shepherd. He predicted of Christ: "He will feed His flock like a shepherd. He will gather the lambs in His arms. He will carry them in His bosom and gently lead those that are with young." A true child of God can easily understand that.

Soon I shall be gazing in faith and devotion at the Christ Child, a seemingly helpless Babe in a simple manger. I shall see far more than that. I shall know that He is true God, Lord of Heaven and earth, and—and that is even more important—that He knows me, and always ready to help me. It will be comforting and cheering to say of Him, "My Shepherd!"

Prayer: O Christ, how reassuring it is for me, a stupid man, and always ready to help me. It will be comforting and cheering to say of Him, "My Shepherd!"

How Ya Gonna Keep Them On the Kibbutz After Tel Aviv

By LOUIS R. FLEMING The Los Angeles Times

TEL AVIV—Israel is trying to figure out how to keep them on the Kibbutz after they've seen Tel Aviv. Keeping people at the spartan agricultural communities has become a serious national problem. And to make matters worse, some of the solutions, such as moving industry to the farms, have threatened to destroy the Kibbutz movement.

The movement has provided the backbone of the nation, the source of much of its leadership, strength and inspiration. It is still growing, but with a rate of growth lower than the rest of the nation. At one time the movement embraced more than 8 per cent of the population. Now it represents only 2.1 per cent, with less than 100,000 members.

There are only two reasons why a man leaves the Kibbutz, a successful businessman who did, however, "either he is married or he is not married." The rough position of the Marxist-inspired communalism, the reduction of privacy and personal identity is hard to take, particularly for women. Young people are also drifting away, attracted by the bright lights of the big cities. And the Kibbutz movement, founded on the farm, is caught at a time when Israel has gone about as far as it can go with agriculture and now needs industry.

The successful businessman left the Kibbutz because of his wife. He was already irritated with his Kibbutz when he tried to block his graduate university work. He would almost certainly have left eventually on his own because the Kibbutz offered no opportunity for him to apply his advanced business management training.

Happiness to a Kibbutznik is a family of Kibbutzniks. Shimon Rosen, a member of the Knesset, the Israeli Parliament, and secretary of the Union of Kibbutzniks in New York, is a family member of the movement. He has two grown sons, a married daughter and nine grandchildren, all working in Kibbutzim.

And when my week's work is done," Rosen reported, "I drive up to my Kibbutz from my office in Tel Aviv and the weekend there. Of course, I have my job to do. I wash dishes." "Most of the new members are our own sons and daughters who get married and start raising families," a member explained. "We have never lost over 25 per cent of our young people."

The figures were on the tip of his tongue. The problem obviously is worrying the education. "We are a pioneer movement," a Kibbutznik cannot embrace mass man.

Elite, indeed. A disproportionate number of Israeli Prime Ministers, Cabinet members, Knesset Members, Army Officers and Military Pilots have been drawn from the Kibbutz movement.

From the first Kibbutz, founded at Degania near the Sea of Galilee in 1911, the movement has slowly spread to every corner of the nation and is used as the model for farm military units that are a part of Israeli colonialism. The occupied Arab lands, from the Negev to the Lebanese frontier there now are 250 Kibbutzim.

Teen-Age Idol's Life

twice a week "because we like to go out alone."

And when Avalon is away on an occasional nightclub tour or on location, Kay Avalon stays home to care for their five children, without the help of a cook or maid.

"The last time she saw me perform was in Las Vegas in 1964 — and she aggravates me at times," admits Avalon. "But I don't think we've stepped yet."

To escape the noise, he sometimes retreats to the family garage, climbs into his Mercedes (nearest next to the family station wagon) and rolls up all the windows.

Should he make the boys of fatherhood and family life for the late 50's when he was on the road as a teen-age recording star with thousands of adoring fans — or the early 80's, when he had all the opportunities of a swinging resident Hollywood bachelor?

He would not.

"It was murder being a teen-age idol," he recalls today, age 29. "You couldn't do anything (without being mobbed). It had a slight off on the road and wanted to see a movie, I'd have to have my manager buy the balcony."

"During engagements I would go to the theatre and stay in hotels all day and have food sent in. After a performance I'd open the stage door and hundreds of kids would be there... I think I know every back exit, every tunnel there is."

"All through those years I felt very embarrassed to walk through a crowd with all those kids screaming, grabbing and touching you, girls fainting, the police pushing."

"I wanted to sign every autograph because that's the kind of a guy I am. But I couldn't do it. When I really stop to think about it, I think of all those plane trips, all those bus rides, the early morning disc jockeys, all those late evening disc jockeys, all those one-night stands, sleeping every one-night night on all those buses."

"Actually, I was like a puppet. It was at 10 o'clock you do this. At 12:30 p.m. you have to be here. At 2 p.m. you'll be picked up there..."

Shortly before he entered his 30's, Avalon broke away from the rock 'n' roll recording star label to enter other phases of show business—particularly motion pictures. At that point he had a house off Sunset Blvd and was a self-described "swinging bachelor."

"If anyone had said to me, you'll be married when you're 22, I would have said you're out of your mind. But I met Kay and it was a love-at-first-sight kind of thing."

Today the Avalons exude "the merry-go-round of Hollywood cocktail parties" in favor of going out to dinner once or

Equality to the Negroes

By DON WHEELSTEIN
The Los Angeles Times History—the God—works in mysterious ways its wonders to perform.

A clear and present example of this is found in the branding of some blacks by others with the many accusation of "Uncle Tom." The equivalent of such branding among Christians would be to call one a Judas; among American patriots, a Benedict Arnold; among laborers, a house nigger.

The irony is that when Harriet Beecher Stowe introduced the character in 1852 in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," she invested him with such nobility and sympathy that millions of people the world over were won over to the great antislavery cause.

The original Uncle Tom refused to become a field driver for the hated slave owner Simon Legree because he could not bring himself to whip other slaves. For such refusal Uncle Tom was mercilessly beaten. Following the beating, Legree ordered him to proceed with the flogging of Cassie, a proud and defiant white slave, but Uncle Tom refused.

"I'm willin' to work night and day while there's life in me, but I can't feel right to do; and, ma'am, I never shall do it."

TEVET.

Although bitter abuse is heaped on blacks who are real or imagined race defectors, termed Uncle Toms, nobody seems to remember that the real winners of the novel were Sambo and Quimbo, brutal black slave-drivers used by Legree to push the slaves to unendurable limits in the cotton and cane fields on pain of torture or death.

Mrs. Stowe's character, Uncle Tom, was based on the life of a slave named Josiah Henson, born in Port Tobacco, Md., in 1773. He escaped to Canada where he became a well-known Methodist minister. In 1850, Henson, then 77, fled to New York and then to England. He was the guiding hand that founded Tuskegee Institute and died in greater numbers and honor in England than he had in his own country.

And yet, it was Washington's

Retired Engineer
Back at Throttle; Tells How It Was

BOSTON (AP) — A retired fireman and engineer is back at the throttle of Boston & Maine's steam locomotive 3713, but only to show visitors to the Museum of Science how it used to be.

"I tell them to look all they want but not to touch anything," George L. Langill says of the visitors, mostly school children, "then I throw the malarky with them."

Langill, 68, of suburban Malden, retired a few years ago from the B&M and now works for the museum. Part of his 47 years as a railroader was spent aboard engine 3713. It was the last steam engine used by the B&M and went out of service in 1934. Now it is the property of the museum.

Langill has a heated shelter on the locomotive but when a lot of youngsters come around, he climbs the cab and takes the engineer's seat.

"The cab is comfortable in the winter, and awful hot in August," he said.

Engine 3713, acquired by the railroad in 1934, hauled passenger trains to points as far north as New England, and to Troy, N.Y.

"My heart left me when the steam engine went," Langill said.

"I'll changed railroading from a thrilling experience to nothing but an automatic automobile. There's nothing like the smell of oil."

Nursery School Has Yule Party

Pupils, families, and friends of the YWCA Nursery School celebrated the season at a party held Sunday afternoon in the Community Y.

The children presented finger-plays and Hanukkah and Christmas songs, written for the occasion by Miss Sylvia Claffin, Miss Kim Brown, Miss Primavera, and Jay Hednah sang "The Obergrenad Song."

The children's portion of the program also included a polka and two selections by the rhythm band.

Puppets created by Miss Ellen Packard were featured in "The Marvelous Toy" and "Santa's Christmas Tree." She was assisted by her younger sister and brother, Annette and William.

Everyone joined in a carol sung by Mrs. Richard Carpenter. Refreshments were served by Mrs. John Helund Jr. and Mrs. Clarence Brown.

Cops! Almost forgot that Santa Claus, of course, paid a surprise visit. One young lady pulled the switch of the holidays on him when she asked, "What would you like for Christmas?"

Gets Life Sentence

BRIDGEPORT (AP) — Superior Court Judge Anthony E. Crilly imposed a mandatory sentence of life in prison Tuesday on Henry A. Bond, 30, of New Fairfield, who had pleaded guilty to a second degree murder charge in the killing of a gas station operator.

Bond had originally been charged with first degree murder but was allowed to plead guilty to the lesser charge in the death of Frank Gallagher, who was shot June 24 during a hold-up.

Two other New Fairfield residents, Joseph P. Spinello, 30, and Vincent J. Mariani, 30, were charged with robbery with violence in connection with the hold-up.

However, the very nature of the black condition and the gap between the general development of Negroes and that of whites, dictates two clearly separate and distinct paths to be pursued by Negroes and whites.

1-That black leaders will probably continue to be imprisoned in the United States and that they will be unable to return to their own country.

2-That black leaders will be unable to return to their own country.

3-That black leaders will be unable to return to their own country.

Mrs. Clifford Massey puts the finishing touches on Community Hall greenery. The front entrance was decorated for the first time by the Junior Woman's Club. Last year the first selection and the resident star trooper did the decorating. Wreaths were made for the club by Leslie Barrett, 15, and Carrie Doonan, 10. ### Viet Amputees Hit Rehabilitation by VA

WASHINGTON—It took only 40 minutes for an evacuation helicopter to fly Max Cleland from Khe Sanh, where he lost both legs and his right arm in an accidental grenade explosion, to a hospital in Vietnam where three surgeons treated him immediately. Then it took him 18 months to persuade doctors at the Veterans Administration Hospital here that he was fit to return to his home, because they thought he would never walk again. Cleland told a Senate subcommittee Tuesday.

Cleland, 27, who won a Silver Star for gallantry in Vietnam, walked into the hearing on his new legs. "There is no doubt in my mind that my rehabilitation time could have been cut in half. To me there was nothing special in my being a triple amputee. I always assumed I would make it," he said. "Unfortunately, I did not find that the up-to-date, rapidly applied medical techniques used in saving men in the battle had their counterparts in my rehabilitation."

Cleland, a former Army Captain who served with the First Cavalry Division in Vietnam, charged that the Veterans Administration uses World War II and Korean War methods to rehabilitate Vietnam veterans. "The Vietnam veteran is aggressive, highly motivated and young. He is not an average patient in any sense," said Cleland, who came from Atlantic and once worked as a congressman's aide on Capitol Hill. "We don't send out emotional panicles to Vietnam. We expect the best treatment and every benefit of the doubt. It's a bit discouraging when we don't get it."

He said he got his legs only after learning that the VA center in New York was more responsive than the hospital here, where rehabilitation activities consisted of carving chess sets or making boxes. "What he really wanted, Cleland said, was to learn how to drive a car specially-equipped with hand controls—which he now does."

He also complained that the VA didn't guide him to the best hospital, didn't get him a wheelchair of his own for a year and kept him without pay for two months. "More effort has to be made, especially by the VA, to insure that the small but select minority of Vietnam veterans in VA hospitals have adequate social, recreational and psychological activities to help them in readjusting to American life," he said.

Earlier at the hearing before the Senate Subcommittee on Veterans Affairs, Peter L. Lassen charged that the VA is "retreating down — or giving up — crippled Vietnam veterans. Lassen, 30, who lost the use of both legs in Vietnam, is executive director of the Paralyzed Veterans of America. He said that VA rehabilitation

Coventry Work Priorities Set For Town Projects

The steering committee of the Town Council has issued a preliminary report, listing priorities of work to be done in town. The report is broken down into time periods of 30 days, 60 days, 6 months, or over 6 months. The Town Council formed two sub-committees at a recent meeting, and heard their preliminary reports at this week's meeting. The steering committee is headed by Hugo Thomas, with Jesse Brainard and Charles Nyack.

Thirty day priorities, or those considered as deserving immediate attention, include a report from the town engineer, a report on the town garage, snow removal, bids for a bulldozer, the trade-in of old equipment, a study of the sewer report, and a study of the sewer report. Sixty day items include a discussion of labor contracts, a discussion of a sewer commission, and a report on the proposed Bolton-Coventry airport, and projects concerning the dump.

The report presented to the council Monday night is preliminary and more details will be made available when the report is finalized. Also reporting to the council was the finance committee, headed by Albert Bradley, and the town engineer, Bruce Wilson. A town purchasing policy is being prepared, Bradley said, and will be discussed at the Jan. 5 council meeting. A time will also be ready at that time for the report, Bradley added.

The annual town report should be ready within a month, Bradley said. This is the report covering the 1968-69 fiscal year. Some town agencies have not yet submitted their statements for the report, Bradley added. In other action Monday night, the council tabled a request from Town Manager Dennis Moore for a transfer of $1,100 from contingency to cover additional insurance costs. On hand to discuss the matter was town insurance agent James Zucarey, and a representative from the insurance company handling the policy, John Reagan.

Need for the transfer stems from an increase of about $2,000 in fire insurance costs. The council also deferred action on another administrative request in the insurance area. A representative from the insurance company handling the policy, John Reagan, said that the insurance company has no responsibility to pay those people who may have been included in the hearing on his new legs. "There is no doubt in my mind that my rehabilitation time could have been cut in half. To me there was nothing special in my being a triple amputee. ### Air Force Closes Down UFO Studies today's FUNNY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force today officially closed Project Blue Book, the agency which for 21 years has been investigating unidentified flying objects. Secretary of the Air Force Robert C. Seamans Jr. said continuation of the agency "cannot be justified either on the ground of national security or in the interest of science."

Closing of the office was suggested earlier this year in a report prepared by the University of Colorado and later endorsed by the National Academy of Sciences. That report, which cost the Pentagon $50,000 and involved an 18-month study of flying saucer reports, concluded that little if anything had resulted from investigations of UFOs over the past two decades. The Colorado report, compiled under the direction of Dr. Edward U. Condon, asserted there was no justification for further extensive study of UFO sightings in the hope that scientific knowledge would be advanced.

The Air Force says Project Blue Book's conclusions based on investigations since 1958 are that: "No UFO reported, investigated and evaluated by the Air Force has ever given any indication of being a threat to national security. "No evidence has ever been submitted or discovered by the Air Force that UFO sightings represent technological developments beyond the range of present scientific knowledge. "There has been no evidence indicating that UFOs are space ships from other planets."

The Air Force says Project Blue Book records would be placed in the Air Force archives at Maxwell Air Force Base, Alabama. Officials said Air Force headquarters in the Pentagon would continue to handle requests for information on UFOs. Closure of the office involves three people, including Lt. Col. Hector Quintanilla Jr., who has been chief of Project Blue Book. He has an officer as assistant and a secretary.

The Air Force says it was unable to estimate how much money had been spent investigating UFOs in the past because money is not appropriated specifically for this purpose. Under Project Blue Book's operation reports of UFO sightings were forwarded to the office by various Air Force bases. Depending on the information available from those reports, Project Blue Book then investigated further.

The agency's office was located at Wright Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio. The Air Force said cancellation of the project was not made merely to save money. "It was felt that continuation of the project could not be justified," an officer said.

Heroin Claimed 200 Teen Lives In NYC '69 NEW YORK (AP) More than 200 teen-agers have died this year from involvement with heroin, a city health official says. Dr. Michael Baden, associate medical examiner, said Tuesday that 210 youngsters from 15 to 19 years old had died from heroin use this year, compared to 72 last year. Another 200 deaths from heroin have been reported in the age 20 to 24 bracket, he said. Baden predicted more than 800 persons would die by the year's end from heroin. He spoke at a hearing of the New York State Democratic Advisory Committee on Crime and Safety in the Bronx.

Meanwhile, Assemblyman Hubert H. Humphrey charged the Board of Education with "gross negligence" for expelling a boy who died Sunday at age 13 of a heroin overdose. Walter Vandermeer, found dead in a Harlem apartment, was the youngest recorded narcotics victim in the city's history. Jack said the school board had put Vandermeer "not only on the streets" and added, "This happens often in ghetto neighborhoods." Vandermeer was expelled in May 1967, at age 9, as a behavior problem. He was assigned to a children's shelter, where officials have declined to say whether or not he attended classes.

Nixons Plan Vacation On Coast at Yuletide WASHINGTON (AP) — President and Mrs. Nixon are expected to fly to their Southern California home the day after Christmas—barring a special session of Congress. The Nixons would spend about 10 days at their home in Carmel, if present plans hold. Nixon, however, last week told Congress he will call them into special session on Dec. 28 if they do not act before then on pending appropriations bills for the same time. Nixon said that if Congress members had to stay in Washington during holidays, he would be here with them.

23 Landlords Are Sought For Code Violations

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Warrants for the arrest of another 23 Hartford landlords on code violations were issued Tuesday in Circuit Court. Among the latest batch of landlords charged in the city's crackdown on alleged code violations is Thomas Kerrigan, a former state senator. Meanwhile, the newly named assistant corporation counsel, Albert R. Nevins Jr., said he had withdrawn one of the 24 warrants issued a week earlier.

The landlord in question, Irving Rosenthal of Bloomfield, made the necessary repairs on his Hartford property, Nevins said. Nevins has been given the job of clearing away a backlog of 110 cases of housing code violations. He has now processed more than half of them. Special court sessions are to be held each Monday, beginning Tuesday, to handle the cases, he said. He will be sworn in as a special prosecutor in each session.

Vernon Building Needs New Name To Serve as Teen Center

One of the first things to be done with the building to be used as a teen drop-in center, Vernon Public Works Director Andrew Tricario said Tuesday, is to change its name. Vernon Haven Convalescent Home building, owned by the town, was for several years used as a convalescent center. It was known as the Toland County Home for Children. The suggestion to change the name right away was made by Thomas Wolff, Monday night at the meeting of the Board of Representatives. Wolff is chairman of the board's committee working for the teens.

Two weeks ago, after many months of discussion concerning safety factors connected with the building, decided if it were safe enough for delinquent patients, it was certainly safe enough for teenagers. Due to certain state laws, the building cannot be used, in its present state, to hold dances for large crowds, but the teens agreed they would be happy to have a place to gather socially. A logical name for the building is that in the name of the teen club which was formed about a year ago.

The board had been told, by the insurance company, that whether the town should lease the building to the teens for a year. Town Counsel Albert Schreiber explained it would be best not to do this. The teens have no formal organization. He suggested that the town pay the insurance until such time as the young people might incorporate. The teens will do their own painting with paint supplied by Edward Volinath. Volinath will act as advisor to the painters.

Public Works Director Andrew Tricario said the estimated cost of putting the building in good shape is $7,700. He said there are some things that will have to be done before the building can be used such as installing fire exit lights, repairing some plaster, and recharging the fire extinguishers. # News Analyst Views Chances Better Than Even for Vietnam

By DON OBERDORFER
The Washington Post-Outline SAIGON — One of the wisest and most discerning of Vietnam's intellectuals is preparing to write a history of his generation, which was brought up under the Mandarins and has known the French, the Japanese, the Americans, the Vietnamese Communists and 20 years of war and turbulence with only a few interludes of national peace.

The title of his work will either be "Vietnam Between Despair and Hope" or "Vietnam Between Hope and Despair." He will have decided which.

The uncertainty is understandable and widely shared. In four years of periodic visits to our country he has encountered only a handful of men, mostly Americans, who were certain they had a clear vision of the future. The majority of those men are long departed, and few of them left with either their vision or their careers intact.

Barely there is no other place on earth where such a scene takes place today so often takes place tomorrow, and who knows the future for natives and foreigners alike usually sums to about noon on the following day. "The problem of projection here is the if factor," one of the most experienced U.S. officials observed wryly the other day. "You can formulate a hypothesis as to what the future will be, but there are always three ifs in every hypothesis."

Nonetheless, projection is now more prevalent for Americans and Vietnamese than it has been in many months. The U.S. government has taken a clear new direction—the gradual withdrawal of U.S. ground forces troops in the next year or two—and the imminent question is whether this can be accomplished without losing the war. Can the United States withdraw 200,000 or so men on a schedule without drastic military reverses or a political collapse in South Vietnam? Can the South Vietnamese government hold its own the next three or four years—with substantial U.S. economic help plus American artillery, air and logistical support? In short, can the Nixon policy work?

After a return visit of four weeks and with some trepidation, my guess is that as of today the chances are reasonably good, by which I mean a better than even chance.

The chances for South Vietnamese survival in the long run appear to be considerably lower, but that is another story.

Anyone who ever spent much time there can cite a dozen reasons and a hundred supposed facts to support or refute almost any side of any question. In this country, it is usually the estimate that comes first and the reasons later, which is another way of saying that people are forced to rely in the end on educated hunches. Here are some of the factors behind my hunch of the moment:

First there is the sheer inertia force of regime and men which counts for much in this part of the world. Notably expected Ngo Dinh Diem last year or Nguyen Cao Ky to last a month, but both lasted for as long as the military were behind them. At present Nguyen Van Thieu appears to be unchallenged from within the army, which amounts to nearly one million full-time soldiers under arms and is likely to be raised soon by another 100,000 or so. Roughly one in every nine South Vietnamese is in the government's armed forces.

The United States has now supplied the South Vietnamese with 700,000 M-16 rifles, 1,200 tanks and armored vehicles, 30,000 machine guns, 4,000 mortars and nearly 20,000 jeeps and trucks. The enemy force of Vietcong and North Vietnamese troops has also been supplied with modern weapons by their allies, Russia and China, but the human arsenal of South Viet-

Johnny Cash Sings Reality—Reality Comes Back in Cash

By MARY CAMPBELL
Newark, N.J. — "Hello, I'm Johnny Cash." That's the way Johnny Cash started his 200 personal appearance shows in 1969. And till he the title of his next LP on Columbia, in January, which will probably sell a million.

The big album, the one that took Cash from being a star among the country listeners and put the whole country on a Cash kick, was "Johnny Cash at Folsom Prison."

Doing that album was Cash's own idea. "I wanted to do it ever since I played at Folsom the first time in 1959." He sang there in 1960, '64 and '68, and the live album was made up for the first time in the fourth time. "I'd always thought the reaction from the prisoners would make a very interesting album."

Cash picked the songs to appeal to an audience of prisoners. For a second live prison album, which also did all right, he picked the songs he had written himself. "I love the country," he said. "I love the home and I love the promise of a garden but where I live, I haven't had time to do anything but fish a little and rabbit hunt the past 14 years, but more people are buying."

"I think people were looking for something and I think they've found it now. It's real and it's true. I think that's why they're buying."

There's a realism to Cash himself. He answers questions in a straight, thoughtful way, seeming to try to push into the background his nervousness and annoyance and push forward to movie theaters. He says, "It is my life just as it is. I've lived at the time, just at the time everything big starts happening for me. I think it is a very honest movie."

He also sings 13 songs in the movie "I Walk the Line," which is good and the timing and the music play and the appearance, but even stronger is the feeling of realism. He really is a country person, who's known and survived hard times.

Of course, not all his songs are written entirely from personal experience. He says, "I didn't shoot a man in Reno just to watch him die"—a line from "Folsom Prison Blues."

Cash says that the Folsom Prisoner who wrote "Greystone Chapel" is going to be on one of his weekly TV shows. "He's going to be on one of my weekly TV shows. He's going to be on one of my weekly TV shows. He's going to be on one of my weekly TV shows."

Judge Reverses His Decision In Abortion Case

LITCHFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Patrick W. Menillo, accused of first-degree murder in an abortion death, was denied bail Tuesday by Superior Court Judge Louis George, who reversed his own decision to grant Menillo freedom on $30,000 bail.

Menillo had been held at the St. Elizabeth Hospital after a two-car accident in Browns Mills.

He was a veteran of Vietnam service who had been seriously wounded in fighting there.

Now it will be up to Menillo's lawyer, Theodore Koskoff, to appeal. Koskoff said he will appeal the decision to deny bail. Menillo did not represent a threat to anyone and would not skip bond if he were freed.

Menillo, who owns a Bridgeport dress shop, is charged with killing 23-year-old Carol DeGobbo last June 2.

The oldest of the British West Indian settlements is St. Kitts, first inhabited by Englishmen in 1623.

Viet Veteran of Portland Dies in Ft. Dix Crash

PORTLAND, Conn. (AP) — Army Capt. Harold J. Miller, 35, of Portland, Conn., was fatally injured in a Sunday night auto accident near his military base, George had decided on Monday to grant Menillo bail. But he said Tuesday that he had reconsidered, and decided that he didn't have the jurisdiction to do it.

First-degree murder is usually a non-bailable offense, and

This novel method of being absent in its own country and they have a real stake in the war. This is less true of the general populace, who have less reason to maneuver and less at stake. It may be significant, though, that the children in Hue are playing childhood games of how to defend the city against the enemy Vietcong.

Third, the Vietnamese government, from necessity if not conviction, has begun to accord a greater measure of military and political power to the provinces and hamlets in the countryside. Two of the most important changes are the transfer of the decision in the summer of 1968 to distribute weapons to the local volunteers, and the Vietnam War may still produce results that, for us Vietnamese, are to be expected, but for the United States they are not. He is anxious to be able to turn to American troops in such a case. He wouldn't say how many such troops he would like to see in the field, but he says that at least 200,000 American troops would be needed to support the South Vietnamese in such a case. Disyentery Reported
HARTFORD (AP) — The state health department has reported that there were four new cases of amoebic dysentery in Connecticut last week.

Since there are many chronic carriers of the disease, prevention requires strict personal hygiene, careful handling of food handlers, and a good sewage disposal system.

Amoebic dysentery is seldom fatal in the United States.

$100 Million Will Be Added To School Lunch Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government plans to add $100 million to the school lunch program in 1970, officials say, in a free or reduced-price meal for every needy youngster by the end of this year.

A chief concern of many delegates to the recent White House hunger conference was free lunch and breakfast programs. To dramatize their concern more than 500 delegates turned in their $15 a day conference meal tickets.

The Agriculture Department figures there are 6.4 million needy youngsters when it comes to school meals. To enroll all these in the school lunch program is now the department goal, says school lunch director Herbert W. Rorex. Last year 5.1 million took part.

Of total of needy children 50 per cent are expected to get a lunch, and in a Southeastern district, the rest will get meal costing more than 30 cents at 15 cents off, with the cost of 25 cents or less would be available at a dime.

There are problem areas. Rorex said of the 6.4 million needy youngsters about 1.4 million attend private schools; 85 cents are inadequate or do not exist.

Young Scientist Wins Major Physics Prize

By BRIAN HULLIVAN
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Physics is offering a young man's prize for the best paper in the field, a phenomenon, demonstrated anew with the announcement of a major scientific award to a 26-year-old British theoretical physicist, Dr. Brian D. Josephson of the University of Cambridge.

In recognition of his fundamental work he did when he was seeking his doctorate, in 1962, in his early 20s.

The award, announced Tuesday, is the 1969 Research Corporation Award for outstanding contributions to science. Of the 28 scientists who have won the award, 18 have subsequently won a Nobel Prize.

The history of physics is filled with examples of brilliant insights and discoveries coming from young physicists taking a fresh look at things.

Prof. Nicholas Siamos, a 38-year-old physicist at Brookhaven National Laboratory, Upton, N.Y., offered a reason for the youthful innovation.

"Generally it's because when you're young you're willing to try new ideas. You haven't been encumbered with stuff that's been around a long time."

"To do something big, you've got to change established ideas, not just conservatively you get."

Last year's Research Award winner, Dr. Murray Gell-Mann of the California Institute of Technology, was this year's Nobel Prize in physics. He is 40 and made the first of his fundamental discoveries in subatomic particles in 1963, in his 26th year. He won his Ph.D. at 20, was a full professor at 22.

Jacobson's award was for basic work in superconductivity, as the lead, lose their resistance to electricity at low temperatures.

The classic example of a young man's sweeping insight came from Albert Einstein, who found that matter and energy are the same and put forth his special theory of relativity in 1905 when he was 26. He was 37 when his general theory of relativity was published.

Before Einstein, the American physicist Albert Michelson was only 35 when he carried out a celebrated experiment in 1887 with Edward W. Morley involving the speed of light.

The experiment formed a starting point for Einstein's relativity theory by finding they could detect no effect of the

Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued its long year in moderately active trading this afternoon, with declines leading advances by a narrow margin.

Some analysts said that in an overall market there might be a temporary holding at certain levels, but over all there was a basis for a sustained upward drive.

"Prices are eroding for lack of support," commented Monte Gordon, research director for Bache & Co. "Investors are unwilling to commit their dollars because of the uncertainty over the length and breadth of the decline."

Cruelty Charged To Baby-Sitter

A baby-sitter was arrested on a warrant yesterday and charged with cruelty to persons in connection with injuries inflicted by a baby left in her care last October.

Mrs. Donna Marie Meyer, 23, of 426 W. Middle Tpk., was going to change the baby's clothing when she was called to the police station by Mr. and Mrs. John Avery of 426 W. Middle Tpk.

The Avery reported to police on Oct. 18 that their 17-month-old daughter Mary had suffered second and third degree burns on the legs and feet, possibly caused by hot water.

Mrs. Meyer was released on a written promise to appear in court Dec. 22.

Peace Tree Lit To Chorus Of Peace Chants

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has dedicated the nation's Christmas tree as a symbol of America's hope for peace in a ceremony in which a small group of antiwar demonstrators chanted peace slogans in the background.

The chanting came as Nixon spoke at the Pageant of Peace to a crowd of 5,000 people in the White House.

"My first moment was one when America can look forward to a decade in which America could enjoy Christmas at peace with all the countries of the world," the President said.

Antiwar demonstrators in front of the tree, located on the ellipse back of the White House, chanted "peace now" and "stop the war" as Nixon spoke. The President raised his voice.

"Today America is not at peace. And what we want for this nation is not only peace but peace for all people in the world."

Police selected several North Vietnamese flags and took them to the White House. The flags were placed on the tree.

The prime objections of the demonstrators were members of the "Washington area. Grinch" and a play on the title of a children's book named "How the Grinch stole Christmas."

She said the group calls Nixon "Grinch" because he "stole the Christmas" from the Vietnamese.

Vernon Fault in Legal Ad Delays Hearing on Radio Station

Because a hearing scheduled to be held last night on an appeal to construct a radio station in Rockville was not advertised, it had to be postponed.

Richard M. Brescia of Norwalk, Conn., had filed the appeal with the Zoning Board of Appeals for construction of the station and transmitting towers.

It was explained that the hearing was not advertised properly, according to state statutes. The statutes call for advertising the hearing twice, with the first run no sooner than 15 days before the scheduled hearing and the second no later than ten days before the date of the hearing.

The notices ran Dec. 4 and 6 which does not constitute two "clear" days as defined by the statute, the only "clear" day would be Dec. 5. In order to avoid any future problems, the case for Brescia and the zoning board will be rescheduled for Dec. 22 at 7 p.m. at the zoning board.

Third session trophies for the beginning class students were awarded at the end of the season. The trophies were awarded to the top scorers in the super-advanced class, Pasty Hull.

The classes will be discontinued until Jan. 8.

Stricter Rules Set for Blasts in Bad Weather

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Stricter rules on manned rocket launches during bad weather will be enforced to avoid a scare like the one from two lightning bolts that struck Apollo 12 last month, the testing chief for the Manned Spacecraft Center says.

Don Arabian, here for a conference of the American Geophysical Union, told newsmen Wednesday that the Saturn Apollo 12 generated two lightning bolts as it passed through a cloud layer shortly after liftoff.

If the same conditions exist in the future as on Nov. 14 when the Apollo 12 craft generated two lightning bolts after liftoff, Arabian said, "there would be no launch."

"As it stands right today," he said, "we can say there are no hardware changes that are required in the spacecraft to launch vehicle to provide better or further protection against discharges of the sort that occurred."

Apollo Scientist Asks N-Blast on the Moon

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—An Apollo space program scientist has proposed a nuclear blast on the moon to help mankind learn more about its physical makeup.

Dr. Gary V. Latham, chief of the Apollo seismic experiment program, set forth the idea at an American Geophysical Union meeting Monday as a way of increasing knowledge of the lunar body, "right to the core."

Latham and another Apollo scientist for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said evidence shows that a nuclear blast would be so small that it would be undetectable to the moon's surface. A kiloton blast has a force equal to 1,000 tons of TNT.

The explosion should be on the dark side of the moon so that radiation produced would emanate away from earth, and the shocks produced within the moon would be recorded on instruments on the lighted side, Latham said.

The nuclear device, he said, could be carried by an Atlas-Agena rocket in an unmanned mission.

Some 20 to 50 moonquakes or meteoric impacts have been detected on the moon since the first seismic equipment was planted there last July, he said.

Results, all strange, according to earthy quake phenomena, may imply that the moon's surface is covered with a layer of rubble perhaps 10 miles deep, Latham theorized.

In another paper presented to the gathering of nearly 1,000 scientists, Dr. Elbert A. King Jr., chief of mineralogy for the Apollo program, said evidence gathered thus far from the rocks and other material returned from the moon indicates a mixture of matter different from that of earth.

King, a University of Houston professor, said this raises the question of whether the moon came out of a "differentiation" process.

As explained by King, the material returned from the moon includes relatively small amounts of titanium, strontium, chromium, yttrium, iron, iron titanium oxide and "lots of glass."

Neither water nor carbon dioxide have been found, he reported.

Ottom emphasized his amendment was directed at college administrators, until the House-passed bill that would be federal law, school or other financial aid in which students were not punished or penalized called in to receive order to present a plan to prevent recurrences or loss of additional federal grants.

Ottom said, however, the HEW secretary is still against it. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Robert H. Finch wrote the Senate committee that approval of the House bill "could seriously jeopardize the substantial progress made in school desegregation."

As passed by the House, the bill would appropriate $18.6 billion for Finch's department, the Labor Department, and a number of related agencies. But the Senate committee boosted the total by about $7.7 billion.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., told reporters the bulk of the increase came from items not considered by the House—about $2 billion for the Office of Economic Opportunity and $1.2 orders.

Education Bill Would Cut $ to Campuses in Turmoil

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Appropriations Committee has amended a $20 billion money bill to permit the use of federal funds to colleges that fail to control campus violence.

The committee, after adopting the amendment, put off until today acting on a controversial provision in the House-passed bill that would curtail the government's power to compel school desegregation.

Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H., author of the aid cutoff amendment said it is intended "to wake up the trustees, administrators and faculty to the fact they might lose some of their financial support if they don't keep their houses in order."

Education Task Force Agrees on Five Goals

For almost two hours last night, the C-DAEP Education Task Force meeting was an exercise in semantics. At the end, the eight 20-year goal meeting, were reduced to five.

1. Individual growth: To insure each person is given the opportunity to grow to his greatest potential.

2. Responsive educational system: To enable anyone to take advantage of educational opportunities at any level fitting his capacity.

3. Community needs: To develop a system which will provide the tools and processes to meet successfully community requirements and needs.

4. Facilities: To provide adequate physical facilities in which learning can take place.

5. Ability to meet changing needs: To develop a process that will insure that the educational system will continually update and renew itself.

Merrill Olinick, Travelers Research Corp. (TRC) aide, answered two questions raised at the November meeting, TRC can and has prepared an extrapolation of student population in the year 2,000. The report has been forwarded to Superintendent of Schools Donald J. Hennigan.

Regarding the state's role in school construction, Olinick presented the following conditions:

1. The State Board of Education receives and reviews plans, and advises, but the town may act on its own.
2. Disapproval can be based on not enough teaching stations and facilities, non-compliance with state fire and health laws or lack of elevators for multi-started construction or other facilities.

3. Reimbursement for the construction of elementary schools is made on the basis of the total number of pupil stations multiplied by $900, or one-half the project cost, whichever is less.

4. State reimbursement is based on the total number of pupil stations multiplied by $1,400, or one-half the project cost, whichever is less.

5. State reimbursement is based on the total number of pupil stations multiplied by $1,400, or one-half the project cost, whichever is less.

6. All final plans and specifications are approved by the State Board of Education.

7. Transmission of preliminary draft modifications to the Board of Directors via memoranda from the C-DAEP agency.

The Manchester Red Cross office will be staffed throughout the day to take telephone calls and assist donors with transportation or to answer questions regarding donations.

The Red Cross hopes that these three Bloodmobiles, operating simultaneously, will draw between 800 and 1,000 pints of blood, thereby insuring a small reserve for the Blood Center to use during the long holiday period when few operations are scheduled and when donor participation is normally at its lowest point.

Committee Hopes to Iron Out Tax Bill Bugs This Week

By FRANK C. PORTER
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—The following are the major provisions of the House and Senate versions of the Tax Reform and Relief Bill, differences in which a conference committee will attempt to compromise this week.

Where appropriate, further comparison is made with the bill reported by the Senate Finance Committee, which was greatly altered on the Senate floor.

Overall, the House bill would provide some $2.3 billion in tax relief when fully implemented, including $3.3 billion from revenue tax credit. Thus there would be long-run deficiency in revenue of $2.4 billion.

The Senate bill contains some $1.1 billion in ultimate tax relief and $4.4 billion in reform which would contain some $7 billion in increased Social Security benefits added on the Senate floor.

TAX RELIEF
In general, most of the thrust of the House package comes from general rate cuts while the Senate formula would substitute an increase in the personal income tax exemption. The latter would concentrate on the low and middle income brackets but critics complain it would be far too costly, particularly in view of a number of special benefits added for the aged, handicapped, and families with children at college.

RATE CUTS
House: Cuts averaging about 5 per cent would be spread in half in 1971 and half in 1972, thus deferring much of the fiscal impact. The rate for the lowest bracket, for example, would be lowered from 14 to 12 per cent in two steps, that for the highest bracket from 70 to 65. Ultimate revenue loss: $4.5 billion.

Senate: The present 60 per cent rate would be reduced to 55 per cent in 1971 and 50 per cent in 1972. The rate for the lowest bracket, for example, would be lowered from 14 to 12 per cent in two steps, that for the highest bracket from 70 to 65. Ultimate revenue loss: $4.5 billion.

EXCISE TAXES
House: Present excise taxes are scheduled to be reduced from 10 per cent to 5 per cent for telephone calls and from 7 to 5 per cent on new automobiles on Jan. 1, 1970. The bill would be further reduced in subsequent years. The bill would phase out the 10 per cent rate on one-year, leaving excises at present levels in 1970. Revenue increases: $1.6 billion.

Senate: The production payment provision was adopted in lieu of the oil and gas depletion allowance. Revenue gain: $200 million.

INVESTMENT TAX CREDIT
House: The 7 per cent credit is permitted to deduct 7 per cent of the cost of machinery or equipment from the tax otherwise owed—terminated for transactions after last April 15. The bill makes a great number of technical and timing adjustments and contains some exemptions for specific companies. Overall revenue gain: $2.2 billion.

Senate: House provisions were adopted with some exceptions. Revenue gain: $2.2 billion.

MINIMUM INCOME TAX
House: To satisfy the widespread complaint that many wealthy persons pay little or no taxes because of various shelters and preferential treatment into the tax code over the years, the House enacted a limit on tax preferences. The bill provides that if the total of five types of excluded income exceeds regularly taxable income, then a tax at half of ordinary rates is levied on the combined total. The five types of excluded income are: (1) state and local interest on state and local bonds; (2) untaxed capital gains; (3) untaxed appreciation in value of property donated to charity; (4) the excess of accelerated over straight-line depreciation on real estate; and (5) excessive farm losses. Revenue gain: $2.2 billion.

WANTED Clean, Late Model USED CARS
Top Prices Paid For All Makes! CARTER CHEVROLET CO., INC. 1299 Main St. Phone 649-5288

LOW INCOME ALLOWANCE
House: This device, first proposed by Edwin S. Cohen, Assistant Treasury Secretary for Tax Policy, grants each taxpayer a minimum standard deduction of $1,100—an amount which, when added to his personal exemption, approximates the federal poverty standard for each family size. This virtually all of the 2.1 million poor families now paying taxes would be wiped off the tax rolls along with more than 3 million of the near poor, students with summer jobs and other part-time workers. Revenue loss: 2.7 billion.

STANDARD DEDUCTIONS
House: The present regular standard deduction of 10 per cent of income up to $1,000 which together with personal exemption is subtracted income before computing the tax is raised to 15 per cent up to 1,400 dollars next year, 14 per cent up to $1,700 dollars for 1971 and 18 per cent up to $2,000 in 1972. Revenue loss: 1.4 billion.

COLLEGE CREDIT
House: No provision.
Senate: An amount up to $225 per year per student could be deducted from income tax otherwise owed for college tuition and fees but not living expenses. The credit would be gradually phased out between the $15,000 and $31,000 income levels. The provision would become effective in 1972. Revenue loss: $1.5 billion.

SOCIAL SECURITY
The House bill contains no Social Security provisions, but a separate measure would be introduced in 1971. It is pending on the sharing distributions, now taxed entirely as capital gains, at ordinary rates and tighten up on the treatment of life estates, casualty losses, franchise fees and the sale of presidential papers and the like. Total revenue gain: $550 million.

Senate: The six-months holding period was kept intact and the 25 per cent ceiling removed only for those with more income of more than $140,000 (which would be reduced by the amount of tax-excluded income). The lump sum pension provision was deleted. Total Revenue Gain: $225 million.

CHARITABLE CONTRIBUTIONS
House: The present 30 per cent limit for contribution deductions would be raised to 50 per cent and the special unlimited deduction, the primary device which Americans with incomes of more than $200,000 escape taxation altogether through Jan. 30 at the beginning and end of the year. Revenue gain: $200 million. Senate: Same provision.

EARLY RETIREMENT
A reduction in the early retirement age from 62 to 60 with benefits for those of those persons who retire at 65. Revenue loss: $200 million at the beginning and end of the year. Revenue gain: $200 million.

GENERAL FISCAL MEASURES
INCOME TAX SURCHARGE
Senate: The minimum tax was raised to 10 per cent on the tax surcharge of 10 per cent, due to expire Dec. 31, would be extended through June 30 at a 5 per cent rate as part of regular taxable income. Revenue gain: $200 million.

NATURAL RESOURCES
House: The 27 1/2 per cent depletion allowance for oil and gas was cut to 20 per cent and lesser allowances for some 100 other minerals were reduced proportionately. Revenue gain: $400 million.

PRODUCTION PAYMENTS
The bill would phase out the 10 per cent rate on one-year, leaving excises at present levels in 1970. Revenue increases: $1.6 billion.

PRODUCTION PAYMENT PROVISION
Senate: The production payment provision was adopted in lieu of the oil and gas depletion allowance. Revenue gain: $200 million.

CAPITAL GAINS
House: The holding period for capital gains, which are taxed at half ordinary rates up to a 25 per cent maximum, was lengthened from six months to one year. The House also removed the rate ceiling so that under the present top ordinary rate (70 per cent) without the surcharge capital gains could be taxed as high as 85 per cent.

Marcus Eyes Dodd's Seat In Senate

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — "Unless something unforeseen happens," State Senate Majority Leader Edward L. Marcus says, "the odds are extremely strong that I will be announced my candidacy for the U.S. Senate in the very near future."

Judge in Tate Case Speaks with Caution

By GEORGE A. KRIMSKY Associated Press Writer LOS ANGELES (AP) — William B. Keene has a clipped, staccato way of speaking. And these days, he speaks with extreme caution.

Assigned Tuesday as the Superior Court judge to try the prior Court judge to try the Sharon Tate murder cases, Keene has kept close restrictions on pretrial statements.

sonality in a case that has already been so well publicized. As head of the court's criminal department in the central district of Los Angeles County in 1963, serving with the 8th Infantry Division through the end of World War II.

He declined to discuss his views on the death penalty, but he recommended death for a man convicted of shooting a gas station attendant in 1962.

Keene was named the University of California at Los Angeles Law Alumni of the Year for 1969. He then practiced law privately first UCLA Law School graduate in 1952.

Keene moved to California with his parents at the age of 10. He entered the U.S. Army immediately after graduating from Alhambra High School in 1943, serving with the 8th Infantry Division through the end of World War II.

He earned his bachelor of arts at UCLA in 1949 and was president of the student body in his senior year.

After admission to the California Bar in 1952, Keene served four years as a Los Angeles County deputy district attorney.

Cockfights Flourish Illegally in Hawaii

By CHARLES HILLINGER The Los Angeles Times HONOLULU — "Abraham Lincoln trained and fought fighting game birds, a lot of famous people in the old days did," said Manuel as he fed his birds. Gamecocks in individual cages (they fight to the death if together) exercise muscles for combat by leaping into the air in 6-foot-high pits.

Manuel breeds and raises game birds on one of the outer islands in Hawaii. It's big business. He has several hundred. The most ferocious of his brood sell for $100 and more. Cockfighting is illegal in Hawaii as it is in most states. Yet, it's the most popular sport in the islands among the Filipinos, Japanese, Hawaiian, Chinese and Portuguese who make up the bulk of the population on the seven inhabited Hawaiian Islands.

Sundays are cockfighting days in sugar cane and pineapple plantation villages—from early morning to sundown. It's a weekly carnival—once a week, once a month, and other games of chance centered around the fighting pits. "We've got friends, old people and the kids join the menfolk—all come out to see the action. Plantation worker sets aside his earnings often for six months or more waiting for the practice of throwing a bird into a pen to fight to the death. Then he bets all his money on the one fight."

Tate Murder: Miss Atkins May Be Tried Separately

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A girl member of Charles Manson's hippie-style clan has pleaded innocent to murdering actress Sharon Tate and six others, and a prosecutor says she may get a separate trial.

Susan Denise Atkins, 21, willowy and impassive, spoke a soft "Not guilty," then flashed a bright grin as she made her plea Tuesday before Superior Court Judge William Keene.

Miss Atkins, Manson, 35, Charles "D. Tex" Watson, 24, Linda Kasabian, 20, and Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, have been charged with five murders in the Tate case. The county grand jury accused the same five, plus another girl clan member, Leslie Van Houten, 19, of killing Leno La Bianca, 44, and his wife Rosemary, 38, who owned a chain of Hollywood markets, in the La Bianca home the night after the slaughter at the Tate estate.

Manuel is a friend of long standing. I was to be his guest, he said, and he would be in the process of being excommunicated from the sect. It was considered harmful. It was all set.

Stamps In the News

NEW ZEALAND

By SYD KRONHIS AP Newswriters Each year New Zealand issues a semi-annual series devoted to its national health, with the additional value on the stamps going to the upkeep of children's camps. The 1969 stamp honors Dr. Elizabeth Cunniff, who 50 years ago founded New Zealand's first health camp for undernourished children. The 4-cent plus 1-cent features a portrait of Dr. Cunniff.

Since 1967 sporting themes have been used primarily as subjects. In addition to the Dr. Cunniff commemorative, there are two other stamps in the set, featuring cricket.

Paintings of birds and flowers decorate the newest set of stamps from New Zealand. The set of four was issued in response to President Chiang Kai-shek's call for a renaissance campaign of Chinese culture, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency.

Each of the stamps illustrates a masterpiece from the National Museum in Taipei. These stamps are available at your local dealer or department store.

FROM THE MAIL BAG... To George A. Painter of Columbus, Ohio: The first-day cover you describe is not a rarity. The 6-cent Waterford Commemorative stamp canceled May 5, 1969, on a special envelope is a nice memento for your collection.

To Mrs. Sara Embree of Independence, Ore., and to many more readers of this column who sent their envelopes for first-day cancellations of the First Man on the Moon Stamp: Just be patient. As of Dec. 21, a work crew had processed six and a half million first-day covers with an approximate million more requests remaining to be processed. Postmaster General Winton M. Blount assures me that every request will be processed but the demand has been the greatest in U.S. postal history.

Speaking of stamps and moon launches, a special canceling unit is now being set up in the Visitors Center at the Kennedy Space Center, Florida, to cancel stamped addressed envelopes presented in person there. The unit will handle all future launches in cooperation with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Collectors unable to be there in person may send stamped addressed envelopes to NABA, John F. Kennedy Space Center, Florida 32899, Attention: IS-CAR 12, to receive the special philatelic machine cancellation. The outside envelope should be endorsed "Special Philatelic Cancellation."

Envelopes not received in time for a specific launch date will be held until the next one.

As we all know by now, first-day cover requests for the Moon Landing stamp topped all previous records. In fact, the requests were more than double those of the previous record-holder—the Project Mercury stamp, which in 1962 celebrated the first U.S. orbital flight by Col. John Glenn.

The sport of water skiing was pioneered on Lake Umbagog, France, in 1898.

It Sounds Better Anyway CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Yet another name has been devised for South Africa's official race segregation policy.

When the ruling Nationalist Party came to power in 1948 and made it the law of the land, it was called apartheid — literally, by apartness.

Both said she prefers the name because segregation of individuals is merely an "incidental aspect" of the policy.

100th Birthday Party Sees Pop Go Bowling

By EARL YOST
Although he has been bowling only eight years, Winfield "Pop" Chace has already left his "mark" on the bowling world. The Manchester man, who will observe his 100th birthday Friday, was tendered a 100th birthday party yesterday afternoon at the Parkside Lanes.

How did Pop, the oldest active league bowler in the country celebrate? By rolling one game in the Senior Citizens' League. His score was a disappointing 78 with only one spare collected in the 10 frames.

"I was just too darn nervous," he explained as more than 150 Senior Citizens bowlers from Plainville, Rockyville, Wallingford and New Haven joined local club members in the gala celebration.

"Happy Birthday" chants resounded off the walls when Chace arrived at the lanes, escorted by his son, James.

Chace was the center of attention, as could be expected. When he arrived at the lanes, he was greeted by the league manager, had a large sign strung above the middle alleys which read, "Happy Birthday, Pop."

The little man — he's 84 and 135 pounds — stood up well. He came dressed in his Sunday best, donning his regular league bowling shirt for white shirt and tie.

"Happy Birthday" chants resounded off the walls when Chace arrived at the lanes, escorted by his son, James.

Chace was born in Bristol, R.I. in 1885. A long-time maintenance man, he retired at the age of 81.

Chace got the works in coverage with newspaper, radio and television crews all present for the unusual form of celebration for a man nearing the century mark.

He was an exhausted man last night.

House-Senate They At Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Provisions worth about $6.5 billion in either increased benefits or tax cuts appear certain to be missing from the tax reform bill that finally emerges from a House-Senate conference committee.

The 14-member committee has finished most of its work on the measure's reform provisions and hopes to complete action on the rest of the bill by tonight.

In an effort to compromise the differences between the House and Senate versions, versions, and head off a threatened presidential veto, the conference apparently are set to delete at least nine provisions from the Senate bill while compromising

Georgia Must School Deseg

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A panel of three federal judges has ordered the Georgia Board of Education to terminate state funds to school districts which have not filed desegregation plans by March 1970.

The far-reaching decision Wednesday also:

- Defines an integrated school system as one in which 75 percent of all pupils of the same race are enrolled in integrated facilities.
- Requires the state board, with the assistance of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), to process and review all school desegregation plans in the state before April 1, 1970.
- Directs the state board, in cases where desegregation plans are not in compliance by Sept. 1, 1970.

The decision was believed to be the first in the nation placing with court standards, to insure compliance by May 1, 1970.

Orders each of the desegregation plans fully implemented the responsibility for school desegregation at the state level. In the past, such action has been directed at local boards with the possible cutoff of federal school funds used as the prime method of enforcement.

It also marked the first time a federal court has designated specific standards for school desegregation.

The decision by U.S. District Court Judge Sidney O. Smith Tuesday: "I would estimate that the range of enemy presence in Vietnam is in the neighborhood of at least 400,000 below last year."

The suit, seeking state-enforced integration of all Georgia schools, was the first ever filed by the federal government against a state. It followed an

Pentagon Misjudged Enemy's Manpower

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. intelligence misjudged enemy strength in South Vietnam last year by at least 66,000 men. This conclusion is inescapable after comparing a new official estimate with an earlier calculation of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong manpower for the fall of 1968, ranging between 207,000 and 222,000.

The Pentagon said Wednesday there was no immediate official explanation for the wide variance in the estimates. But it tends to underscore Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird's reluctance to deal publicly in numbers.

It also casts doubt on the Pentagon's new "best estimate" that there were at least 240,000 of the enemy in South Vietnam this fall.

The Pentagon put out the new figures for autumn 1968 and autumn 1969 after Laird, under questioning by newsmen said Tuesday: "I would estimate that the range of enemy presence in Vietnam is in the neighborhood of at least 400,000 below last year."

In trying to avoid citing specific figures, Laird said "it's not (See Page Four)

Hanoi Negotiator Continues Boycott

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam's chief negotiator boycotted the Paris peace talks for the second straight week today and the United States declared that "there is nothing to be gained by delay."

The statement appeared to be a reply, if indirect, to the alliance of North Vietnamese Ambassador Philip C. Habib told the other side: "It is time for you to join us in serious negotiations. There is nothing to be gained by delay. If your side is willing to talk seriously, you will find us flexible and forthcoming."

Habib, who replaced Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge two weeks ago, underscored President Nixon's statement that "our delegation at these meetings has full authority to discuss any proposal that will contribute to a just peace."

The North Vietnamese have suggested that Habib, a career diplomat, is not a negotiator of the same stature as Lodge or Ambassador W. Averell Harriman.

War Deaths Headed For 40,000 Mark

SAIGON (AP) — American battlefield deaths in nine years of the Vietnam war will total more than 40,000 by Jan. 1 if the current rate continues.

The U.S. Command announced today that 85 Americans were killed in action last week, 18 less than the previous week. This raised the number of U.S. battlefield dead since Jan. 1, 1961 to 39,827.

For the past six weeks, the total of U.S. combat dead has averaged about 100, and there is no expectation that this will decrease substantially any time soon.

The U.S. Command also reported 838 Americans wounded in action last week, a sizeable increase over the 592 wounded the week before. A total of 261,206 Americans have now been wounded in the war.

South Vietnamese headquarters said 421 government troops were killed in action last week, 10 more than the week before, and 1,426 government troops were wounded.

Under a plan being reviewed within the administration, American-owned subsidiary firms overseas would be permitted.
