Secessionist Propaganda:

So far, all actual reports from inside Nigeria and Biafra suggest that atrocity and genocide may always have been more a propaganda invention of the erstwhile secessionists than a practice of the victorious central government.

No authenticated story of atrocity or the practice of genocide has come out of Biafra since its military collapse. The conduct of the victorious central govern-There is no indication that the problem of starvation is as sharply serious as it was assumed it would be, even if the central government had the best of intentions.

Conceivably, all this is the result of the fact that the Nigerian central government now finds itself under the world spotlight, accused of all kinds of sensational crimes, and compelled, there-admitted. It is the possibility that the good adherents of the secessionist cause, rely believing in that cause, thought their best chance of attracting international sympathy and support lay in blaming atrocities, genocide, and mass starvation on the central government.

It has even been suggested, by some observers, that if there has been genocide in Biafra it has been genocide practiced by the tribe leading the secession against other tribes which did not join in it, and that if there has been starvation in Biafra, that has been partly because the secessionist leadership itself chose, during the war, to receive guns rather than food.

During the civil war itself, it was the secessionist rebels who had the more direct access to the sympathetic ears of the outside world. Whether they abused their good connections, for what seemed to them the necessary practical purposes of their own cause, remains to be established, one way or another. Mean while, in the first developments after the end of the war, the central government Nigerians have been proper and civilized in their conduct. Whatever went on in Biafra during the war, there seems to be humanity and mercy there today.

The proposed international jetport in Florida, to serve the Miami area, was carefully located, its original sponsors thought, in the middle of an area called the Big Cypress Swamp.

It had, for its biggest immediate neighbor, the wide open, uninhabited spaces of Everglades National Park.

It seemed a site relatively free from the normal kind of opposition, which comes from people who don't want their homes taken for runways, or put under continual jet roar and shadow.

Then the battle began Conservationist sealots began to claim that taking such a oig hunk out of Big Cypress Swamp would destroy much of that swamp's sefulness as a natural home for its natural inhabitants. They then discovered that all the new building and traffic and people around the new jetport would dis-would carry it out into surrounding ter ritory, that the noise of the motors would shatter the stillness of the glades, and that the terrible total result would be to upset the ecological balance in the last great conservationist refuge on the East-

As a result of such agitation, alarms and pressures the Everglades jetport is now dead, with the death blow being contributed by the Federal government, with none other than Secretary of the Interior Walter Hickel leading the battle

This proves, then, that with enough of favor of ecology, and that birds and alligators can be saved and protected on the theory that they were there first and have no other place they would like if it had been merely homes of lumber and cinder and cement which had involved, and merely the convenience of two - legged, non - feathered inhabitants which had been at stake—that we do not pretend to know. We congratulate the birds and the alligators.

Something For Nothing Misery? The wish for a something for nothing world, judging from our behavior in the crib, must be born inside all of us. Some of us, from the crib on, form a determi nation that the only way to get what we want is to reach out and work for it are grab for it. And some of us, failing such resolve, and failing successful enterprise, and failing luck, contrive to make our own failures seem a little more bearable by a flickering hope that some day, ed, in one way or another, to the purported intention of that pleasantly derapged young man down in New York City who has been prating about how many mil-

somehow, something wonderful is going

It so happens that he himself is certainly one to inspire and encourage a belief in the something for nothing process because he himself has obviously done nothing, except being born just like anybody else, to earn or deserve whatever number of millions he does actually have

The something for nothing equation did work for him. How nice of him to realiz thing for him to do, in such a circum stance is to spread the something for nothing happiness as far as it will go! And since he is being so nice about his own undeserved good fortune, why should any of the rest of us be boorishly prudish about going and getting into line for one of his handouts?

If there is something that holds some of us back, even though our eligibility may be obvious, it is probably a realization that this kind of happiness spread, like the spread on which this particular fortune was founded, will never quite be what young Michael J. Brody is really trying to give away - some of his own something for nothing happiness, or some something for nothing misery.

Political Temperature Is Rising Politically, if not meteorologically, the Senator Dodd, for instance, has had multiple exposures on the national scene. His decision to run for re-election is not surprising; he hopes to vindicate himself at the polls and to remove, or at least to bleach, the blot of censure pass-

ZBA Plans Hearing On Radio Station

The appeal of Richard Brescia of Norwalk, seeking permission to construct a radio station and transmitting towers in the Highland Ave. and Ridgewood Dr. area, will be reviewed at a public hearing to be conducted by the Zoning Board of Appeals tonight at 7:30 at the Administration Building.

The appeall was to have been heard last month but due to technicalities of advertising the hearing it was postponed on agreement of the attorney for Brescin and the one representing the objectors. The appeal was to have been last year following a public hearing. At that time the objectors claimed the station would devaluate their property while the proponents stressed the fact that the property in question is not suitable for residential use due to its steep grade. Proponents also pointed out that the station would employ a number of people, would pay taxes and be good adver ising for the town in general, The appeal of Louis and Elizabeth Smith, 30 Vernwood Dr. will be among others to be heard tonight.
