John Powers: 'Bulldog' in Race Of Red Power

By BETTE QUATRALE (Herald Reporter) Promising to serve as a full-ime state senator if elected, mally announced his intention to seek the Republican nomination for state senator from Tol-land County (35th District), Pesterday afternoon.

A fat man takes things in slow stride and achieves a philosoph-ic serenity denied many thin people. He runs after neither bus nor blonde but stands patiently on the corner waiting placidly for one or the other to pick him up. He is not a restless prisoner of time.

People trust him more and have greater confidence in him. When you think of a gossip, don't you think of a thin, hatchet-faced person rather than an overweight one? The fat man finds it easier to borrow money or get credit. A banker looks at him and says to himself: "This guy ought to be good for the loan he's asking. After all, he's too slow to run away and too big to hide." It is also easier for a fat man to avoid doing all the time-wasting and frenetic things by which many people seek pleasure. No one expects him to play tennis, ride horseback, or climb Mt. Everest. Even if he should be drafted to help fight a war, he is usually assigned to the safest place—bringing up the rear. Sensible women prefer to marry a fat man because they astinctively know he makes the best of all husbands. It is the thin husband is more likely to philander than the fat one. The fat man realizes that the energy philandering wastes is hardly worth any possible reward th The fat man is raarely lonely.

At a cocktail party it is the thin man who stands alone, brooding like Hamlet. The fat man is in the center of the crowd, because people like to laugh with him as well as at him. They just like to be in his company. No matter what he does, whether he is eating, joking, or simply taking a shower, he has more fun than a slender man because there is so much more of him to enjoy what he's doing. The fat man has a few other things going for him. His bulk makes him stand out from the mob; and people go around him politely because they see he's too big to be shoved around. In a shipwreck he is the best bet for survival. He does not have to wear himself out trying to

But would there be enough engineers to make the essentia surveys, then to plan and design would there be enough skilled construction firms given contracts for the lowest bids-to build all the plants for all the towns and cities at the same

The point is raised by Reinhold W. Thieme, a deputy assistant secretary of the Interior, not in terms of suggesting any slowdown, but merely to point out that some cities might have to wait their turn to complete the clean-up of the entire river. Another caution against expecting instant paradise comes rom a distinguished leader in efforts to save man's environment, Dr. Rene Dubos of Rocketeller University, New York City. He says much basic knowledge is lacking concerning some

While a river of dollars will be needed to stop pollution, "even if we had limitless resources we could not formulate really effective control programs because we know so little about the origin, nature and effects of most air poliutants," Dr. Dubos writes in Psychology Today. Seventy per cent of the solid particles contaminating urban air have not been identified, and 'no one really knows at present which of the air pollutants are most dangerous and where priority should be placed in control measures."

Even greater ignorance exists in water supplies, and about which ones may be harmful to health, he adds. But it is essential that as a soclety Americans commit themselves to solving problems of pollution "not because we are threatened with extinction but because, if we do not understand what the environment is doing to us, something worse than extinction will take place a progressive degradation of the quality of human life," Dr. Dubos declares, Specialists such as Thieme and Dubos are not suggesting any excuses for not going ahead immediately with a mammoth attack against pollution, but to give perspective that the struggie will take time, and will in volve more than the most obvious sources of pollution, such as sewage, chemicals pouring into the air and water, and no ious fumes from auto exhausts. Standards of control will have to rime with population growth, Thieme points out.

Suppose, he explains, that a city is treating its sewage so that 95 per cent of what is discharged into a river or lake is safe enough not to harm the quality of the water-at this time. If the city's population doubles, or more, then the 5 per cent of contaminated material could, by sheer volume, become a damaging amount. Charles C. Johnson, administrator, and Dr. John J. Hanlon,

While it is very important to protect wildlife and natural resources and to preserve recreational areas, they give the highest priority to cleaning up air and water to protect human health. And Johnson adds, in this respect: "What is good for man is good for animals, too."

The outlook is promising for truly effective control in a few years time of pollutants from automobile exhausts, but "the picture for control of pollutants from stationary sources is not so rosy," says Leighten A. Price of the Environmental Health Service. Major problems are sulfur oxides and solid particles of mat ter coming from power plants, factories, incinerators and burn ing of coal, but "you just can't

The U.S.-Israel Relationship For both the United States and Israel, the specific issue of additional military planes to be sold by the one to the other has created intense emotional crisis.

Fortunately, a difficult temporary decision seems to have been made by the Nixon Administration and accepted by the leadership of Israel without any rupture of the basic and fundamental relationship between the two countries.

The linkage between the two countries is so strong that our pledge of national freedom and identity to Israel is as binding as any pledge we have made to ourselves. It is so strong that we, although erful nation, are almost inevitably in some degree under the compulsion of whatever acts and policies Israel undertakes. We have to trust Israel not to take us into unnecessary extreme dangers; Israel has to trust us not to abandon Is-

With such necessities as these always present in our relationship, that relationship should not be allowed, ever again, to be pin-pointed down to the question of rael if the going gets rough.

We should settle such matters in our private diplomacy. We should do it that way so that no subordinate issue ever gets license to take on more importance than it has. We should do it that way so that the relationship between our two countries should not be tossed into the realm of street demonstrations or public pressures. We should do it that way so that no inconsequential ups and downs in our relationship should be able to attain importance in the world of power

That world of power politics now finds the United States and Russia cast into the ancient and historic roles of Greece and Persia, Rome and Carthage, Britain and Germany as rivals for predominance in the Eastern Mediterranean

That situation poses a prime responsibility upon the United States. It is that we must not allow this atomic age version of the ancient power politics game to proceed to the usual end of all such

That prime responsibility to ourselves, and to all civilization, including Israel, goes along with our prime responsibility to remain Israel's friend and guarantor. Our own particular national task, then, s to maintain our guarantee of Israel without letting this guarantee become

New Members Of CBA Hear Of Court Behavior

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)-A Superior Court judge told 6 new members of the Connecticut Bar Tuesday that lawyers have a responsibility to behave in court and should make sure their clients do also. The occasion was the swear ing-in of the new members.

Judge Anthony E. Grillo said "The lawyer in the courtroon in officer of the court, especial ly one engaged in trials having emotion - charged backgrounds, must be so disciplined in refer-ence to his courtroom decorum that he is ever mindful of, and responsive to the responsibility that he assumes as an officer of the court-a fellow servant of the law with the trial judge, each serving in a different ca pacity.' '
"While the lawyer is bound to use every legitimate means and maneuver to protect the interest of his client and to obtain a fair trial, he has a duty to the court of which he is a officer," Grillo said. He noted that the behavior of defense attorneys involved in the Chicago 7 trial has been criticized in some quarters. Any disruptive courtroom con duct, whether indulged in by lawyer or layman, is incompat ible with our system of juris prudence, detrimental to the "Charge It" With Your Master Charge Card or Open Up A Casual Village Charge Account . .

'Iffy" Marriage "I do love you enough to get married," said the young man to his girl friend, "but frankly I don't care for the financial burdens that go with it. Suppose we make an agreement that your father will continue to be responsible for all your expenses after the wedding." The girl and her father promptly agreed to this arrangement, and the wedding bells rang out. For a time, she was content to receive regular checks from her father. But when the bloom of love began to fade, she decided thatdespite the premarital agreement her husband would have to start supporting her himself. And, after a hearing in court, the judge ruled that she was entitled to make such a demand. He said a husband's duty of support is an inherent part of the marriage relationship. Not even by a premarital agreement, said the judge, may a husband escape an obligation that is imposed by law. True, the law does allow some "ifs" in the marriage contract. As to matters less basic than support, the bride and bridegroom may indeed enter into a premarital agreement that will be binding. For ex-

A widower, planning to remarry obtained an agreement from his fiancee that in case he died, certain property would go to the children of his first marriage. After he died a few years later, the second wife tried to back out of her agreement. However, a court held it binding, seeing no reason to let her out of a contract "understandingly and voluntarily entered not stand up if it is not "understandingly" entered into. The woman is entitled to know, before putting her name on the dotted line, the essential facts of her prospective husband's financial condition In one case, a man induced his fiancee to sign away certain inheritance rights in his estate. She did so after being told that he was worth about $100,000. In reality, however, he was worth more than $500,000

Result: a court held afterward that she was not bound by the agreement. The judge said she could not have "understandingly" agreed to give up potential rights of which she was not even aware. An American Bar Association public service feature by Will Bernard. © 1970 American Bar Association

Some Smell Rat in Debate Over Cheese By DON KENDALL

AP Farm Writer WASHINGTON (AP) panel of expert tasters has de-cided a New Zealand cheese resembles Wisconsin cheddar, adding a new flavor of controversy to the sharp fight over its import into the United But the U.S. Customs Bureau indicates it thinks the taste test, conducted at the Agriculture Department Monday, has a sus-The test was made to see if

New Zealand Monterey cheese differs from Wisconsin cheddar, a distinction that greatly affects import quotas and therefore the price of domestic cheese. Seven of the eight tasters identified New Zealand Monterey as cheddar in one sample comparison and all eight voted cheddar in another.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., and Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-EXTRA Wis., sought the tests as part of a campaign to get the govern-ment to change its rule permitting Monterey under New Zealand's "other cheese" quota. But they were not claiming victory. They showed a letter from Customs officials that said it was "open to serious question whether taste and other physical tests alone form an adequ-ate basis" for classifying New Zealand Monterey as checklar. Under New Zealand's "other cheese" quota, it can ship 7.5 million pounds of cheese annually. Its cheddar quota is about 5.5 million pounds annually. By changing the Monterey's classification to cheddar, Customs would help ease competition against Wisconsin's ched-

George Bronz, a Washington, D.C., attorney representing the New Zealand Dairy Board, told a newsman the samples used in the taste test were picked out by Wisconsin cheese officials.

"No doubt they were authen-e," Bronz acknowledged, But added that tasters could probably find some types of Monterey that resembled cheddar since there were so many studes of the cheese.

'The Thinker' Blasted Off Pedestal by Bomb CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) - A 2,000-pound bronse cast of Rodin's "The Thinker" was blown from its pedestal in front of the Cleveland Museum of Art by a bomb blast early vesterday.

Police said a pipe bomb filled with the equivalent of two sticks of dynamite apparently toppled the statue, which fell seven feet and landed head down. It was ripped apart, and bits of bronse tore like shrapnel into stone columns and the bronze doors of the museum 90 feet away. The Cleveland statue was the fourth to be cast from Rodin's pfaster original, which was created in 1880. Museum officials said only 26 statues were cast from the original. They been sold since World War II
