Escalating Punishments It is an almost ungovernable human instinct that society, when it finds itself particular kind of offense against law and property and life, moves to impose stiffer penalties on the crime.

But, although all of us probably yield, in our emotions at least, to such an instinct in one situation or another, there is, unfortunately, absolutely nobody who can cite any proof that the stiffening of penalties and punishments ever, of itself, resulted in a lower incidence of the crime being targeted.

For that reason we find ourselves regretting, as a piece of unrealism, that portion of President Nixon's statement on the current wave of bombings which asks that bombings be made subject to the death penalty if a fatality occurs.

making such a recommendation, in a opinion, the practice of taking human life and committing legal murder itself even in cases of direct, intentional our question by saying that we ought to bring the death penalty back into use, and then see if it does not have some deterrent effect.

But we find ourselves able to point to a situation in which this has already been done, for all practical purposes Over in the streets of Hartford, the death penalty has been imposed and carried out for the alleged three dollar snatch of a handbag. The penalty was set by the policeman on the scene when the aim of his warming shot proved faulty. The 19 year old youth who was allegedly engaged in the crime of purse-snatching has, then, suffered the death penalty. This factual outcome has, one supposes, pleased some of us who have been thinking it was about time somebody cracked down, real hard, on the young hoodlums of our time. After all, if the youth in question had not been snatching a purse, he could still be alive. It should be a lesson to others. So also should be the somewhat more desciplined example set by Connecticut judge who, a few days later, imposed stiff jail sentences on two purse snatchers convicted before him.

But, although such sternness, of heavy sentences in the courts, of exaction of the death penalty in the streets, may please our own sense of comparative virtue and slake our thirst for retribution, do any of us really believe, even for one fleeting instant, that it will do anything to keep the next young hoodlum away from the next innocent pursecarrying victim?

We are, admittedly, in the very dawn of potential discovery of what constitutes intelligent handling of the problem of crime. We are by no means all the way toward that completely soft philosophy in which all we do with our criminal is treat him, and in which we know that punishment and retribution neither prevent crime nor cure the criminal. That may be our ultimate sanity. But for the present we retain, and necessarily so, since we do not begin to know enough to leave it, a criminal code in which we try to make the punishment fit - the

Where we look silly, and in mental trouble ourselves, is when we yield to that instinct to try to discourage a particular kind of crime by escalating the punishment for it. A life for a purse

- which is the way the code now works out sometimes in city streets - is pretty far back toward the medieval code o a life for a loaf of bread, which never did stop the stealing of bread. An attempt to exact for an indiscriminate bombing a death penalty we do not carry out even for direct premeditated person to person murder or assassination is more likely to turn our young bombers

Better Not Strike Twice Is there anything worse than a mail

A few hours ago, all of us would have been likely to answer this in the negative. It seemed like a total deprivation. Now, a few hours later, one is tempt-

There is something worse than a mail ed to give a different answer.

It is the flood of pent-up junk which the end of the mail strike releases.

It is the restoration of high-pressured involvements, trying to establish a connectiion between our private lives and the problems of our time. It is the revival of that pay, pay, pay, monotony of the bills, bills, bills.

It is the revival of that what have we forgotten nag which couldn't get at us while the mail service was shut down.

It is the revival of that high-pressure invitation to accept free land we can't afford in Florida, Arizona and Vermont.

Let all this be warning to the conquerers of snow, hail and ice. They had better not give us any second chance.

Kitty Hawk, After All Russia has just issued the first volume of a new edition of its national encyclopedia, and various advances toward reality have been noted. The Wright Brothers, for the first time in Soviet chronicling, are allowed to be the first successfully to fly an airplane. The Russians used to like to claim that a fellow named Mozhaisky did that, in

The cisim of previous editions that Communism had proved to be the giorious conqueror of alcoholism has been omitted, in this edition, just in time to clear the way for news headlines telling what a continuing problem Russia is having with its drinking.

The encyclopedia even discusses, with some faint degree of impartiality, things like abstract art, which are supposed to be nothing but the by-product of capital-

In other words, the product of this new edition of the Russian encyclopedia won't have quite as many adjustments to make if he ever gets out into the outside world and in contact with what it considers established fact and theory. It behooves the outside world, meanwhile, to prepare to loosen up in a few of its own conceits and ideological absolutions. We can't let Russia ever get ahead of us in admitting truth.

Big Foul Up

The Internal Revenue Service has issued the most complicated tax forms for filing returns for the calendar year 1969 in the history of the income tax More people are more confused this year than ever, as evidenced by the whopping increase in business reported by experts and advisers.

Why do they do these things and how o they get away with it. This is a difficult question to answer Presumably the "experts" in IRS were interested in producing a form which would more easily adapt to the computers, although they will not admit that this had anything to do with their decision on the new forms.

Frustration and anyer are increasing as the deadline of April 15 nears. The most sweeping change decree IRS this year was the elimination of the short form 14A, which people with low or moderate incomes could file. Now everybody must file the more complicated 1040 form.

Some tax - assistance firms report that their business has increased as much as 300 per cent Possibly the IRS itself has started to realize that it made a mistake with its new forms. The report is that tax officials say that taxpayers are using the wrong lines to furnish information. As a consequence, the computers reject these returns and they are returned to the taxpayer for correction. One of the biggest foul-ups seems to be Line 15b which is titled "Less Adjustments." This is supposed to apply only to sick pay, moving expenses, em-ploye business expenses and payments retirement plans by the self - employ-

But some taxpayers are including state and local taxes, contributions medical expenses and exemptions for themselves and their families. One Washington lawyer characterized the new forms as a "federal intelligence

There seems to be no relief in eight in the foresecable future. New problems will be created next year when It isn't that the average citizen doesn't realize that he must help support the cost of the government. It is that the whole procedure is so confoundedly complicated.— BRISTOL PRESS.

D B URISS GENERAL MANAGER

SUBJECT: Tentative Budget and Budget Messag

GENERAL COMMENT

BUDGET PREPARATION AND PRESENTATION

Inflation in its continuing spiral has made budget preparation more difficult than ever. Cost predictions have to be made on a time span of over 18 months in advance of expenditure - a speculative activity at best:

Several minor changes have been made in the budget document as a result of suggestions made by the Connecticut Public Expenditures Council. This organization will probably continue their analysis of our overall fiscal operation and further recommendations for changes may be forthcoming.

Detailed explanations of major changes in budget requests appear in the departmental sections with this introductory message reserved for general comments

BUDGET REVIEW BY BOARD OF DIRECTORS

The budget document, even though it is lengthy and detailed is, of course, no substitute for the work sessions with the General Manager. As you know, the budget is a plan with a dollar sign in front of it. If it is to make any sense at all the Directors must be familiar with the content of the plan as well as the dollars involved.

OVERALL REVENUE PICTURE

Several factors have a negative effect on revenues projected for next year.

- 1 Estimating percent collection of taxes at 98.5% rather than 99.5% reflects our experience over the past five years. You may recall that the Auditor suggested that we were being unrealistic in using the higher figure. This has put us in a bind in recent years. The total reduction in revenue estimates is approximately $239,000, an equivalent to about one mill.
- 2 This year there will be no grant from the State in lieu of the inventory tax, due to action by the last session of the State General Assembly in order to balance the state budget. This totals a $128,000 loss or approximately 1/2 mill.
- 3 Due to reduced building activity we are estimating $24,000 less in Town Clerk and Building Permit Fees or the equivalent of one tenth (:1) of a mill.
- 4 Sale of Town owned land for Route 6 produced $156,500 for the General Fund Capital Improvement Program. This, of course, will not be duplicated. It represents approximately six tenths (.6) of a mill in income.
- 5 We do not anticipate that we will have any surplus funds available to apply against taxes to be raised. In the current year we were able to apply $50,000, or the equivalent of two tenths (.2) of a mill. Actually, at the time of budget preparation, it appears that total expenditures for the present year will exceed total income by about $40,000. However, we expect that economies during the final six months of the fiscal year will wipe out this deficit.

Fortunately there are a few increases offsetting the above reductions. These are:

- 1 The increase in Town Grand List represents approximately $500,000 or 2.1 mills in taxes.
- 2 The increase in State Educational Grants for school operation based on school population is estimated at $132,000 higher than in the current year and Special Construction Grants at $47,000 totaling the equivalent of seven tenths (.7) of

In summary, then, various decreases in revenue from sources other than taxes are slightly more than offset by the increase in the Grand List and increased State Aid related to education.

OVERALL EXPENDITURE PICTURE

Of the overall budget increase, slightly more than half is caused by the Education increase and 25% is caused by the operating department increases. The balance of increases are in Pensions, Capital Improvements, Offset to Tax Adjustments resulting from revaluation, and Social Security and Insurance increases. These increases are summarized below:

Education	$949,36
Pensions	166,7
Capital Improvements	105,24
Tax Offset	100,0
Social Security & Ins.	68.0
All Other	463,6
RII Gener	$1,852,9

As stated previously more detailed explanation of departmental increases appear in the main body of the budget. A few general expenditure comments are appropriate, however.

PERSONN

At the present time, no final agreement has been reached with the employee organizations representing police and fire personnel. A two year contract with the group representing hourly rated employees provides for an 8% increment. We also have an agreement with the Municipal Employees' Group (MEG) representing most clerical and professional personnel of a non-supervisory character for an 8% increment. For budget purposes we have used this same figure in computing salaries for police and fire.

A comparative review of department head and supervisory salaries revealed many positions that were no longer competitive with similar positions in other towns or in which subordinate salary increases in recent years had accelerated to the point of inequity compared with responsible supervisors. Where warranted, adjustments have been made.

PENSIO

A substantial change in the method of computing pension benefits has been negotiated between the Police, Hourly and MEG employees. Our present plan provides for benefits to be computed on the basis of career average earnings and years of service. Most pension systems today are based on a determination reflecting the highest 3 or 5 years of service and the number of years of service. This is the system employed in the Firemen's Pension System and would now be applied to all employees. The increased cost for this is estimated at $104,000 annually.

This, the first major change in our pension system since its inception in 1954, was recommended by the Pension Board.

CAPITAL IMPROVEMENTS

The development and implementation of a sound Capital Improvement Program probably represents the greatest single need Manchester faces today. If we are to merit the trust that the public has placed on us we must catch up with the capital needs of the Town and keep up our physical plant so that its deterioration does not rob future generations of a substantial part of its heritage.

The Capital Program Budget appears as a detailed separate document. The Board should give serious consideration to some bonding for Capital Improvements in the area of storm drainage, road reconstruction and sidewalks based on the urgent needs in these areas. A careful weighing of the benefits resulting from immediate correction of serious deficiencies, the interest costs incurred from borrowing and the erosion of the dollar due to inflation should all be considered in reaching a decision on this important matter.

SPECIAL FUNDS

FIRE DEPARTMENT

A tax rate increase of .45 will be necessary to support the proposed budget for the Fire Department Operation. The reduction from 48 to 42 hours for the Firemen's work week is a major factor in this increase.

WATER FUN

Present rates for Water Service should be adequate for normal operations. However, in order to carry on a Capital Improvement Program as outlined in the Griswold Report and in supplementary information from the Director of Public Works, a rate increase will be necessary.

SENFR FU

Increased revenue will be required in order to operate this function. The starting of the Secondary Treatment Plant for a few months of the year and interest charges on the borrowing for sewer improvements are major elements in the increase here. Either charging for sewer at 100% of the water rate or retaining the 75% of an increased water rate are alternatives to be considered.

Fire Destroys Shed

Three fires occurring late Wednesday night, one which destroyed a tobacco sited, are assumed to have been set, according to Fire Chief Philip Crombie.

The sited, owned by Arnold F. Joseph, was located on Griffin Rd. It consisted some lumber and a one and one-half ton truck. The other two fires were grass fires.
