Announce Engagements

The engagement of Miss Linda Jo Ortolini of Manchester to Charles L. Baker of Rochester, N.Y., has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Ortolini, Jr., of Village St.

Her fiancé is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baker of Belleville, N.J.

Miss Ortolini is a 1965 graduate of Manchester High School and a 1969 graduate of Southern Connecticut State College, New Haven. She will receive her master's degree in June at the Southern Connecticut State College where she is a member of Omicron Psi Lambda honorary graduate assistant at the college and teaches in the Midway Program in Bridgeport.

Mr. Baker is a 1966 graduate of Belleville High School. He will graduate in June from the University of Rochester, N.Y. The wedding is planned for June 27 at South United Methodist Church.

Townpeople To Receive Census Forms

Now that postal service in the area is back to normal, the census, to be delivered to homes all over Manchester by mailmen tomorrow, will arrive on schedule.

Four out of five households will have a brief, 23-question form to fill out which should take about 15 minutes to complete, according to census authorities.

For one in every five households, there are additional questions, with the largest number—38—going to one in 20. If the family is in the one in five category, it should take about 45 minutes to fill out the form. The form should be filled out and mailed to the Hartford office before or on April 1.

Though no one has ever been jailed for not filling out a census, there is a law making cooperation mandatory.

Jobless Claims Show 7% Drop

1.5 per cent drop in unemployment compensation claims was reported for last week in the Manchester office of the State Labor Department. The total was 797 for the week ending March 21, compared to 862 for the week ending March 14.

Unemployment claims decreased by 1,264 or 2.9 per cent, to 42,581 total. The state figure was 30 per cent for the corresponding week last year.

Bridgeport, with 6,111 claimants, was the state leader last week. It was followed by Hartford with 5,426, New Haven with 4,119, and Waterbury with 3,196.

Manchester was 18th among the state's 19 offices. Only Wilkes-Barre, Pa., had less claimants than Manchester, which includes the Rockville union chapter.

Mr. Harris is also a student at Macalester College where he is a member of Alpha Kappa Delta, honorary sociology society. He is now on active duty at the U. S. Air Force Base at Ft. Belvoir, Ill.

The wedding is planned for June 28.

Cambodian Officials Fear Countercoup

SAIGON (AP) — The Cambodian state radio called on all army veterans and reservists to return to active duty today in the face of continuing demonstrations near the capital, Phnom Penh.

The radio, monitored in Saigon, renewed a government appeal to the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese to meet with a Cambodian delegation and arrange withdrawal of the 60,000 to 80,000 Vietnamese troops in the country.

But it did not seem likely the appeal would be heeded, since the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong withdrew most of their diplomatic personnel from Phnom Penh Friday.

With the new government apparently concerned about the possibility of a countercoup by supporters of ousted chief of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk, all airports remained closed for the second day in a row.

Airlines sources in Bangkok Thailand, reported scheduled flights of Air Vietnam, Union of Burma Airways and Lao Airlines canceled since Phnom Penh and Siem Reap. The sources said it was possible the airports would remain closed.

The Cambodian radio said in a French-language broadcast that on Thursday night and Friday morning, the Viet Cong organized demonstrations at Kompong Chhn, about 30 miles from Phnom Penh, "to come and trouble our capital."

The radio warned Cambodians "not to be taken in by those who indulge in the games of the Viet Cong... You must understand that Sihanouk was legally dethroned of his functions of chief of state, conforming to the constitution. He is a traitor to the nation."

Sihanouk was deposed March 21 while he was in Moscow urging Soviet leaders to help convince the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong to get out of Cambodia. He is in exile in Red China.

Cambodia's provisional chief of state, Cheng Heng, told the country via radio Friday that "the Viet Cong have begun actions against the Cambodian people and our soldiers, especially in provinces near the border."

Viet Cong forces in civilian clothes were reported to have attacked a town less than 12 miles from Phnom Penh, and military security was stepped up throughout the capital, with tanks blocking all routes in and out.

The 28 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong diplomats who left Phnom Penh departed from Vietnam, Laos, today after spending the night sleeping on the airport floor. They were not permitted to enter the Laotian capital.

In Washington State Department officials have made it clear the United States is opposed to extension of the Vietnam war into Cambodia.

Speaker Robert F. Kennedy said Friday the United States has declared its "support and respect for Cambodian sovereignty, neutrality and territorial integrity."

The assurance came just a week after Prince Norodom Sihanouk was deposed as Cambodia's chief of state and replaced by a government which claims to be opposed to tolerating Communist sanctuaries inside Cambodia.

There has been some speculation that the new government will lead a surprise attack on the Communist sanctuaries and hilltops across the nation.

In Waban, Mass., a Rev. Robert E. Ely, pastor of the Episcopal church, said a red-robed quartet playing brass instruments would welcome the new government.

Inmates Wear Easter Finery

DWIGHT, Ill. (AP) — The Easter parade at the Illinois Reformatory for Women will become a permanent thing.

Inmates will be wearing bright yellow, green, pink, blue or violet cotton dresses individually complemented with scarves, hickrack braids or other trim. Men's suits will be above the line.

After Easter, the colorful outfits will be worn regularly as part of the prison uniform. By order of the Illinois Department of Corrections, the dress wear-sucker uniforms, no longer will be required.

The Easter parade and breakfast will serve as an inaugural for the new dress.

Inmate seamstresses have been working overtime to complete the outfits.

"This is part of our conversion process," said Peter B. Benninger, director of inmate clothing at the reformatory.

"We want to eliminate the dehumanizing process," he added, "People who look better generally feel better, and act better."

Police Seek Young AWOL Sailor For Questioning in Enfield Killings

ENFIELD, Conn. (AP) — An unidentified young man who police say is absent without leave from the Navy was sought today by police probing for clues in the slayings of four young persons Friday.

Police were uninformative about persons they had questioned about the bodies of an engaged couple and two of their male teen-aged friends were found Friday morning in the living room of the apartment.

The three young men were employed at the Bigelow-Sanford Corp. in Enfield. They were described by police as being in the living room of the apartment when the slayings occurred.

All four had been shot in the head. A medical examiner estimated they had been dead since about 8 a.m.

The identity of the AWOL sailor was not disclosed. Police said the man was frequently seen in the area of the slayings.

Strike Keeps Many Home for Holiday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Travellers' better chance of getting out of town by air at Easter time may be hampered by a strike of air traffic controllers.

The strike, which is scheduled for 6 I. In addition, a strike of truck drivers will be in effect in New York, N.Y., and other New York areas.

We are conceivably living near the climax of a great contradiction in our attitude toward religion.

On one side of this contradiction, we seem to have reached something of a lull in our credence for the formal story and in our respect for the formal dogma and ritual of the established religion.

On the other side of this contradiction, we seem — some of us at least — to be seeing with a dramatic compulsion to put the ideas of religion straight to contemporary, earthly test.

To take an extreme example which may not appeal much to those who consider themselves religious people, there is in existence today what seems more than very similar to the kind of disorganized rabble which may have followed Jesus Christ.

Today, there appears to be a movement afoot to launch a half-dozen astronaut missions to the political arena to capitalize on their prominence.

It stands there still, momentarily tired from its long, unproductive search for a new role.

It has the reddest breast any robin ever wore.

And it is undoubtedly the largest robin anybody has ever seen.

It could not possibly be confused with one of those thick-robin who has been roughing it in Connecticut all winter long.

It says, on its first afternoon, is confined to exploratory territorial proclamations. It has to find out, before it takes truly at home again, whether somebody new will be trying to move in. Afterward, when it is certain that the old nesting site is clear, or has been defended, there will be caroling.

To be strictly accurate, there are as many first notes every spring as there are people to see them. The more reliable report, however, is that it looks, acts, and feels like the first.

One such first will be its appearance at 4:10 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon.

Same Old Game

The case for legalizing bingo is no more valid now, with legislation coming before the state Senate today after passage by the House, than it was when such legislation was voted last year by Gov. Sargent and members of other states — and Massachusetts itself, for that matter — needs to be considered.

The Bay State legislature in 1947 repealed a bingo law which had been passed 10 years earlier. That decade brought about the game's resurgence, and the legislature's repeal of the law was expected of it. This was not necessarily the fault of either legislature.

What makes these men ideal to play a major political role? This is a question which the men must answer if they are to succeed in the political arena. This question will be posed again and again by their opponents.

To begin, astronauts are highly selected individuals — the result of a screening process in which perhaps one in a hundred is chosen or a million could qualify. It may be that no nation has ever more carefully selected its people for the most demanding task ever conceived by man.

simplest an idealism have failed. Still it may, when it subsides, leave a mark a little higher up the beach than ever before. We have not made such progress up to now, by whatever means, as to become the quality of our aspiration, by whatever route. Where hope and aspiration can still find road and room, nothing is ever final.

Knocking The No-Knock

Progress may seem inevitable, but it is only change which is guaranteed. Who would ever have thought, back in the days when the availability of high octane gas took over the design of automobile combustion chambers, that the present day would find the federal government exerting all kinds of pressures on oil companies to get themselves out of and away from the famous high octane kind of progress?

It has developed that yesterday's automobile miracle is today's political liability. It is in an effort to act in time to keep our air fit for us to breathe that the federal government is pressuring the oil companies to take the lead out of their additives, not only because it is a danger in itself, but because its presence interferes with the efficiency of antipollution devices that are going to have to be used to take over undesirable elements out of the nation's exhaust.

There may be in this concern for our ability to keep on living in our atmosphere, an incidental boon for our pocketbook.

The oil companies, at least until they could dream of some gimmick for an antipollution additive, might be expected to sell more non-petroleum gasoline, at lower prices.

And Detroit would either have to reduce prices on some of its models, or begin charging extra for low-compression motors, just as they now charge extra for anybody who wants to shift gears by hand.

But let us not — any of us who have worshipped so faithfully at the high octane shrine — predict anything with too great certainty or even, for that matter, be too irreverent and frivolous in the way we knock the no-knock. It could, among other things, come back again.

To Each His Own Robin

Everyone has his own robin. It appears, unexpectedly in the middle of a sun-it patch of work.

It stands there still, momentarily tired from its long, unproductive search for a new role.

It has the reddest breast any robin ever wore.

And it is undoubtedly the largest robin anybody has ever seen.

Connecticut Yankee

By A.H.O.

As has been noted, never in any single political year have so many Connecticut stalwarts taken all or nothing leaps to a state campaign.

But for all the individual valor and willingness to risk shown by these multitudinous candidates, we find ourselves beset by a growing political nightmare in which all of these doughty characters wind up saying the same thing and making the same kind of campaign pitch.

News for Senior Citizens

By WALLY POTTIN Hello everybody! Well we are finally back to the Center. It's a change of pace from cards, and is this one of course being given three-day visit to Washington.

Like I mentioned last week, our takeoff day was really something, weatherwise. As you know it was St. Patrick's Day, and therefore, not a cloud was in the sky, and the sun just about to set.

Instead of the usual light blue sky, it was a nice light green, to add to the day.

We left the Center at 8 a.m., and when I arrived shortly before 7, I found a couple already waiting. After a couple stops along the way, we arrived in Washington at 10:30 a.m. after signing everyone to their hotel rooms, we gave them just enough time to get settled, and then we were off to our first tour.

We went to visit the Immaculate Conception Shrine, and upon arrival we ate first in the cafeteria, and then went to the 'house of the folks' that's right, corned beef and cabbage. After the meal, the group was free to walk around the church, and if you've been to Washington, you know that you'll see it, you'll know that words just cannot adequately describe the beauty of the place.

When you've seen this building, then you'll see it to Washington, D.C. It should definitely be a must for you to see, to really appreciate.

We had a tour of the memorial, and stopped at Lincoln Memorial, and opposite the memorial, we saw the Washington Monument. Now everything is so close together, and there were 56 players with the following winners: Beth Marshall, 131; Jessie Mahoney, 130; Paul Rogers, 129; Walter Schroll, 128; George Schroll, 127; John Derby, 126; Louise Meyer, 125; Walter Schroll, 124; Paul Rogers, 123; George Schroll, 122; John Derby, 121; Louise Meyer, 120; Walter Schroll, 119; Paul Rogers, 118; Jessie Mahoney, 117; Eva Lutz, 116; Walter Schroll, 115; Silent Bronson
Riding Off Air

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
NEW YORK (AP) — "Then Came Bronson" with its peripatetic hero will soon be riding off the television screens after a single season. The NBC series seems to have come a cropper because of a star who was not very happy with his role and because of low ratings—not necessarily in that order.

The series, however, has a lot of pleasant things going for it. It was filmed entirely on location, which gave it not only a special colorful quality but a certain validity. Wednesday night's episode, for instance, was shot on the Pacific waterfront against a background of boats. Almost always, too, the characters surrounding the central figure were skillful and believable.

Jim Bronson, as interpreted by Michael Parks, suggested a contemporary disturbed young man—a loner, wandering the West on a Motorcycle. Each West on a motorcycle. Each middle of someone else's crisis. When it passes, he climbs on his machine and rides off to another one.

Bronson is one of the most silent heroes in TV history. Mostly, he stands around listening to other people, occasionally scratching his head thoughtfully. When he does have something to say, he has a tendency to mumble. Understatement is fine, but Bronson carries it a bit too far. Sometimes, too, the scripts are as hard to understand as the hero. The recent episode was developed around Bronson's uncle, a fisherman with a rotting old tub, a lot of debts, a second wife and a mixed-up 21-year-old son by his first marriage. The son was suffering from some neurosis stemming from the death of his mother, but nobody suggested psychiatric help.

The father wanted to get rid of the boat, but his son had a seizure each time it was suggested. Then, somehow—it seemed as if Bronson managed it by just staring at his cousin—the boy suddenly pulled himself together. Completely recovered, he was last seen sailing away to Acapulco on a rich man's yacht. And Bronson scratched his head, smiled enigmatically and rode on.

More than most of us realize—it has come so gradually—network television today tackles boldly and forthrightly some themes that only a few seasons back would have either been outlawed by the house censors or only hinted at.

Wednesday night's "Medical Center" on CBS was an excellent case in point. It was a story about the repercussions that followed the discovery that the bride of a recently discharged Vietnam veteran suffered from what once was delicately referred to as a "social disease."

The drama emerged from the discovery, leading to the familiar business of the dedicated young doctor putting his career on the line for a cause. In this case it was a belief that a pa-

'Hallmark' Sets
'Hamlet' for TV

A new, two-hour production of Shakespeare's "Hamlet," with Richard Chamberlain in the title role, will be a "Hallmark Hall of Fame" color presentation during the 1970-71 season on the NBC Television Network. "Hamlet" will be part of the "Hallmark" observance of its 20th consecutive season on television.

Shiloh Ranch
Up for Sale

NEW YORK (AP) — The "For sale" sign will go up soon on Shiloh Ranch — again. The sprad changes hands just about every three years although the ranch foreman, the Virginian, stays on.

"The Virginian" is due for some major face-lifting before it starts its ninth season on NBC. James Dury who has played the title role since the first program, and Doug McClure who joined the cast about a year later, will stay with the series. John McIntire and his wife, Jeannette Nolan, who for the past few seasons have played the parts of Shiloh's owner and wife, are expected to leave the series.

This change will be an effort to put new life and color in the series. When the series started, Lee J. Cobb played the ranch owner — and grumbled at his lot for about three years. When his contract ran out, Charles Bickford took over and stayed with the program until stricken with the illness that preceded his death. Then the McIntires arrived.

Through it all, the 90-minute series loped comfortably along, not exactly a smash hit, but never in danger.

Bill Cosby's third special, "The Third Bill Cosby Special," is on Wednesday, 9 to 10 p.m. on NBC.

Series Set For Young

An entirely new weekly series of special, two-minute informational-educational broadcasts designed specifically for school-age children will be presented five times each Saturday... The educational broadcasts will be produced by CBS News and a total of 120 such program segments will be presented over a period of 26 weeks. On some Saturdays, all two-minute segments may be devoted to a single subject. "These informational programs will cover a wide range of subject matter of interest to school-age children, and will show how things look, why things happen, how things work, who people are," a spokesman said. "As an indication of the scope of topics, these miniature features may show how a beaver builds a dam, how a submarine functions, what tonsils are, how a computer works, where paper comes from. They will make up a kind of live-action encyclopedia of knowledge for children who have graduated from 'Captain Kangaroo' and who are now attending primary school."

'Another World' Divides Into Two

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC will launch on Monday a new daytime serial called "Another World—Somerset." This must not be confused with NBC's most popular soap opera, "Another World—Bay City," which until today was just plain "Another World."

It is hard enough to keep the titles of daytime serials straight because none seems to give any clue about content. Now "Another World" is about to divide like a one-cell Paramoecium.

"Another World—Somerset" is one type of what television calls a spin-off. This one will relate in various ways to the established serial, including exchanges of characters and, occasionally, interwoven story lines.

This type of program reproduction is hardly new. When "Peyton Place" was at its popularity peak on ABC as a nighttime serial, CBS spun its "As the World Turns" off into a new, prime-time serial simply by having the heroine of the daytime soap opera, Lisa Hughes, go to a distant city to make a new life. The show did not do well, and it was only a matter of weeks before Lisa decided she liked life better in dear old daytime Oakdale.

"Green Acres," when launched several seasons back on CBS, was a sort of double spin-off. Creator Paul Henning had a hit by putting country folk in sophisticated city surroundings—"Beverly Hillsbillies"—so he put the very urban family of "Green Acres" into a country setting. He also made them neighbors of his "Petticoat Junction" family, using some supporting characters in both shows and having the principals visiting back and forth.

The device is designed to help the new shows attract audiences. By making "Another World" two serials, NBC obviously hopes the old audience for one show will stick around for the second.

Meanwhile, ABC will introduce on Monday two new soap operas, one of them called "A World Apart"—not to be confused with "As the World Turns," or "Another World." Experimentation with form
