Heralding Politics

By Sol R. Cohen

State Sen. and Mrs. John Lupton of Weston are inviting to their home all of the 1,052 delegates to the Republican state convention.

State Sen. David Barry, one of the front-runners for the Democratic nomination for First District congressman, has been spending considerable time in the 13 towns of the district.

State Senate Minority Leader Wallace Barnes of Farmington has scheduled six speaking engagements for tomorrow, as part of the Earth Day observance.

Barnes, a candidate for the one year term of duty in Korea and volunteered to serve in Vietnam where he is now stationed.

A 1964 graduate of Manchester High School, Capt. Quasnicka attended Central Connecticut State College in New Britain before he joined the army in March 1967 as an enlisted man.

The Greater Hartford Chapter of the Elphinstone Society, a national Republican organization, has invited Mayor Nathan Agostinelli to a May 13 meeting in the Tower Auditorium of the Hartford Insurance Group Building.

The meeting is for all those men and women who have announced or have been endorsed for the GOP nomination for lieutenant governor.

Bidders Sought On Sewer Link

Bids for constructing yet another link in Manchester's expanded sewerage system will be opened May 4 at 11 a.m. in the Municipal Building.

Prices are being sought for all materials, labor, equipment and incidentals necessary to construct the 3,600-foot-long Lydall Brook Trunk Sewer. It will run along Lydall Brook, from the existing Northeast Interceptor at Parker St. and Colonial Rd. to the intersection of Scott Dr. and Kennedy Rd.

The bids are to include prices for a 60-foot connection, to join the Loomis St. end of the Northeast Interceptor to the 8th United District Sewage Treatment Plant, off Hilliard St.

Eventually, all of the town's sewage will receive primary treatment, in separate plants operated by the town and the 8th District, and then will pass through a secondary treatment plant. The last, to be constructed near the town's South St. Disposal Area, is scheduled for completion in the fall of 1971.

Three local men are actively seeking the Democratic nomination to succeed Barry as state senators from the 4th Senatorial District. They are Atty. Dominic Squatrito, State Rep. and former Mayor Francis Mahoney, and former State Rep. Henry Becker.

Times change. Fashions change. Customs change. But people, in many ways, remain the same.

We continue, for example, to love and revere members of our respective families... feelings which remain even when we lose someone, and which we demonstrate through dignified funeral services.

U.S. Ships Border Troubled Trinidad

WASHINGTON (AP)—Six American ships including the helicopter carrier Guadalcanal have been deployed in the Caribbean for possible use in evacuating Americans from Trinidad, Pentagon officials said today.

Trinidad has been torn by a 15-year-old civil war, nor is any of the U.S. naval activity directed against Cuba, they said.

Pentagon spokesman Jerry Friedman said the six vessels, which operate as a ready Black Power movement leader. A rebellious soldier was killed by a coast guard man he tried to flee the camp six miles from Port of Spain, a 15-year-old civil war.

Friedman declined to say whether the Guadalcanal carried its normal complement of 16 helicopters and 2,000 Marines in addition to the crew.

A guided missile cruiser, the U.S.S. Blackthorn and other amphibious ships rounded out the ready group. The others included the attack ship USS Vermilion, a landing ship dock (LSD), the supply ship USS Sultak County and Terrebonne Parish.

Nixon Endorses Earth Day Idea

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon feels today's Earth Day activities show a concern people have for the future of the planet, a White House spokesman says.

General Warren, deputy presidential press secretary, said Nixon has been following the activities closely and feels the concern expressed "cannot and must not be expressed by government at all levels."

"He, of course, feels that it should be more than a one-day event and that it should be part of a beginning of a new and sustained public commitment to the environment," Warren said.

FDA Says Soup Mix Tainted

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government has initiated the voluntary removal of 19 million servings of a nationally sold soup mix because of food poisoning danger.

Also since January, it has recalled 24,000 nationally distributed frozen strawberry pies manufactured by a Columbus, Ohio, brand name candy.

Other food items recalled in the past three months because of contamination in certain brands and lots include dried eggs, anchovies, noodles, raisins, frozen fried chicken, peanut butter, pimientos, pizzas and cooked mushrooms.

TRUTHFUL PARTNER
By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

The man who cannot tell a lie is not only a menace to society but also a deadly bore. When you ask him how he is, he tells you. I wouldn't dwell on these defects except for the fact that the truth-teller is an irksome bridge partner.

Opening lead—Five of Diamonds.
West led the five of diamonds, dealer put up dummy's jack, and East won with the king. After some thought, East returned the eight of spades. Who can quarrel with East's performance?

West led the seven of spades, and West won with the ace. Now West didn't know who had the four of spades. West wondered whether to return a spade or another diamond.

After quite a bit of fruitless stalling, West decided to lead through dummy's queen of diamonds. This gave East his second trick, but that was all for the defense.

"Pea" Once "Pease"
LONDON — The pea (Pisum sativum) gets its English name indirectly from the Latin "pisum," which resembles the Anglo-Saxon "pease." The word became "peas" or "pease"; later, in English, it was "pease." So many people thought "pease" was plural that they persisted in dropping the "r" sound, thus making the word "pea."

The Vulnerable Cathedral

The news about the Strasbourg Cathedral—which is that after having survived some 900 years in untroubled shape it now suddenly seems to need rebuilding every 30 years—is a dismal tribute to the Industrial Revolution.

For it is that Industrial Revolution, making its first beginnings some 170 years ago, but really exploiting its mixture of bounty and pollution only in the last 60 years, which is behind all the sudden impermanence of our world.

Until our last few decades, we had a pretty nice thing going, survival-wise. The earth itself and its resources were much the same as we had found them; the atmosphere as pure as it had been on the day of Creation; the waters were sweet and clean.

Now, by contrast, there is a chemical smog in the air which cracks and rots the stones of Strasbourg Cathedral and poisons the lungs of people. The rivers run with waste and the countryside rots with trash.

In not much more than 50 years, or half a century, the cathedral which had stood secure for nearly 10 centuries, the world which had existed relatively unchanged for millions of years, the civilization which began in Genesis, have all suddenly become vulnerable to the new activities of man.

In a mere 50 years of berserk enterprise, venturing first and calculating later, man has managed to challenge and imperil the whole basic premise of life on earth.

Quite naturally, any campaign which tries to alert man to the enormity of what he has done, and exhort him to repent him of his deeds and hasten to cure them, must seem a little unbalanced and hysterical. Surely, things can't be quite as desperate as the crusaders would like to make out. Surely, there has to be time enough left. To be sure, the problem is serious enough to deserve our attention, but it's not the doomsday scene would like to frighten us with.

The only catch is that, on this first Earth Day, we're not really sure we aren't really in all the trouble those ecologist people say we're in.

Increasing The Pressure On Hanoi

It seems that most of the speculation about the purposes and directions of President Nixon's moves on Vietnam is neglecting the great strong drive he continues to make, in the direction which does him most credit.

It may be true that, as so much of the speculation of commentators and politicians suggests, he has some kind of an eye on his domestic electorate, and on the state of mind it may find itself in when it votes for members of Congress not so many months from now.

And it may be that one of his objects in putting a larger troop withdrawal goal than expected out on the public line sooner than expected has been to notify our allies in Saigon that they had better prepare themselves for such troop departures, because we are not fooling.

But the main thrust of President Nixon's use of the 150,000 figure, and of his insistence on holding to that figure without being very certain of any matching military deescalation from Hanoi, is a thrust which is directed against that same Hanoi.

Hanoi can label President Nixon's talk about troop withdrawals propaganda, and it can pretend it is feeling no pressure, and we can all be as cynical as we please about Hanoi's potential sensitivity to world opinion, but the fact will remain that the President's policy of pulling troops out is the most powerful kind of pressure he can possibly put on Hanoi.

It is, for instance, much more powerful if a stroke of American policy than it would be to bombing North Vietnam to the saturation point.

There is something else that can be said for it.

If this kind of pressure is persisted in, it will eventually and inevitably result in forcing North Vietnam back out of the battlefields of North Vietnam.

Perhaps, to most of us, the surprising thing is that it is President Nixon who is engaged in this kind of policy, and applying this kind of pressure, just as if he really understood and sympathized with the use of the intangible kind of forces involved in such a diplomacy.

How can it be Richard Nixon who is proving so relentless in withdrawing military force from a battlefield, in building the moral case against Hanoi as if he believed that a moral case must have power even against Communists?

There are undoubtedly many who, like the Communists themselves, find it hard to believe that Richard Nixon is actually engaged in such policies and the wielding of such persuasions of deliberate unilateral deescalation.

But the President sticks to his policy and his objectives in spite of the obvious disagreement of the professional military leaders he must consult each time. And it must be conceded that he is at least as close to a solution as they ever got, at a lower cost in lives.

Hanoi may pretend it isn't noticing or feeling anything, but our belief is that it wishes it could find the Nixon the world thought we elected. There is nothing so frightening as a good deed in a naughty world, nothing so powerful as doing the right thing.

Let's Clear The Tracks

A step in the direction toward the solution of the inter-city travel problems was taken a few years ago when the federal government's Department of Transportation (DOT) got together with private enterprise for the development of high speed trains. But since then DOT has done nothing to clear the tracks and motion toward a new era in rail transportation.

The "why" of it all is as perplexing as it is annoying and discouraging. There is good sound reason to believe that with a little initiative by Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe and other key people in DOT that it wouldn't be too long before the good old fashioned know how and spirit of private enterprise, backed up by some well spent government funds, would free the jama at rail-road stations, reduce the number of automobiles which crowd along highways as commuters go to and from their jobs, and all in all convince Americans that the facts of the matter are these: The Penn Central Railroad, long before its take-over of the old New Haven Railroad had its electrically-powered Metroliner developed. The train is now whizzing back and forth between Washington and New York and with each run convincing passengers that there can be such a commodity as clean, reliable, rail service from the heart of one metropolitan area to another.

About that same time Sikorsky Aircraft became involved with its TurboTrain, a turbine powered carrier which utilizes some of the techniques and comforts of air travel.

As the TurboTrain was being built and tested there were many reports that the outdated signal system on the New Haven line would be modernized; that the archaic speed limits would be removed; and that many improvements would be made to the tracks.

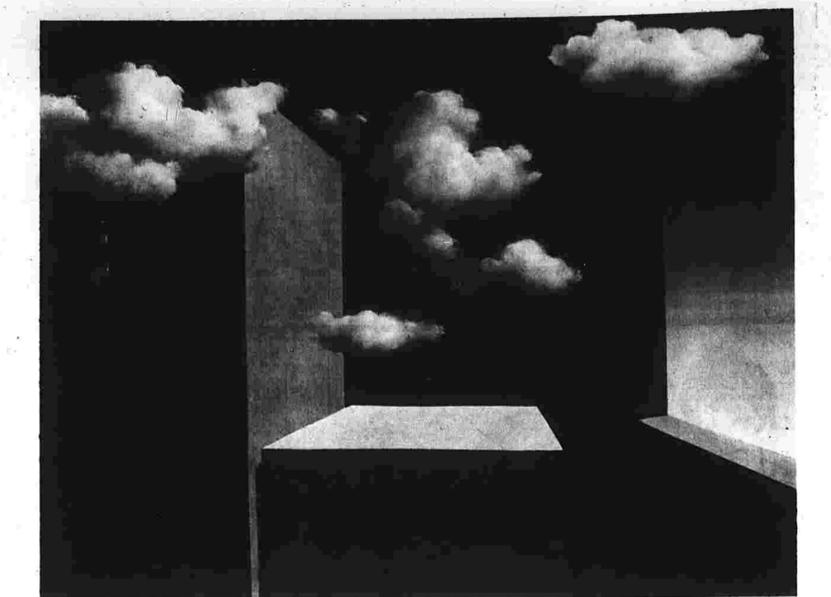

To date none of the promises has been carried out. The TurboTrain has been running, despite the obstacles, and its performance, especially of late, has been laudable. But if any high speed train is to live up to expectations it must not be held in rein. This particular train can reach speeds of 170 mph. Yet, because of conditions on the New Haven line the speedometer is not allowed to pass the 79 mph mark on any of the tracks.

Modern rail travel of the variety offered by the Metroliner and the TurboTrain is a good part of the answer to the mass transportation dilemma. But the trains which are based on the technology of today and tomorrow cannot function properly if they are crippled by trackage and equipment and regulations of days gone-by.

The time is now for Mr. Volpe and DOT to shake the cobwebs of inertia and complete the government's part of the agreement.

Connecticut's congressional delegation might well address itself to this matter, less somebody DOT writes off high speed rail service for Connecticut and its neighbors as a noble experiment which didn't work while conveniently neglecting to mention that private enterprise and the traveling public did their best.

A Thought for Today

Our Father which art in heaven... give us this day our daily bread. Matt. 6: 9:11. Sometimes a person who has trouble keeping down his weight will say, "I live to eat." In a general way, this is the attitude of the world, not simply toward food, but toward all things that sustain and enrich human life. Houses are not simple places for shelter and warmth, but the suburban dreamhouse becomes an object of adoration, enlivening wholehearted dedication. Automobiles are not only means of transportation but important status symbols for which great sacrifices are offered. We do not seek daily bread—homes, food, clothing, automobiles. So our prayers are often little more than "gimme" prayers. "Give me a raise." "Give me success." "Keep me ahead of my competitors." Of course, we polish up these prayers and try to "spiritualize" them. At the bottom of it all, we stay pretty well convinced that whatever we get out of life, we must get for ourselves. These are symptoms of people who love the gift but not the Giver. It is an rebellion against God. We want to "use" God to get what we want out of Him, rather than let Him use us. Because of our dedicated pursuit of "things," we cannot live thankful, confident lives. The person who "lives to eat" is never satisfied. The person whose life is dedicated to the accumulation of possessions never owns enough. If we fear, love, and trust material things above God, we cannot provide for ourselves. No wonder we worry!

Jesus Christ came into the world to show us the Father. His teaching made it very plain that our daily needs are not met simply by fate or good luck or even by our own hard work. But all our daily needs are provided by God, who gives every good gift.

And Jesus willingly suffered the death of a penniless slave so that God might forgive our unwillingness to trust Him for daily bread, so that we might be able to live as children of God who can live confidently trusting our Father in heaven.

By faith in Jesus we are set free from the dedicated pursuit of things to seek God first and serve our neighbor as man.

Prayer: Father, help me to seek You first, trusting that You will look after my daily needs. Amen. Rev. Ronald A. Erbe, St. Xavier Lutheran Church, Wapping.

INDIA'S TRADE SOARS NEW DELHI—Indian trade with Socialist countries has soared in recent years. The total volume of such trade increased from about $10.6 million in the early 1960s to about $62.2 million in 1968.

"Keep The Earth Day Dawning" To the Editor, The genuine concern for the betterment of our town's outdoors demonstrated by the high school students in their Earth Day is to be enthusiastically congratulated. Likewise the forthcoming activities of the Scouts and others who will be participating in clean-up teams deserve the praise of every resident. Let's keep the Earth Day dawning.

Respectfully, Frederick W. Spaulding, D.M.D. The Community As Employer To the Editor, It is of course natural for a community to react to the constant confrontation between public officials acting in the interest of the public and some unions acting in the interest of their members who are on the payroll of the community. There have been letters and editorials and legislation continuing its group interests, and aggressiveness of the teaching profession. On the other hand, this has been defended as the right of any group in a democracy to band together for the purpose of increased taxation, furthering its group interests. When, however, group interests require the taxation of nearly 100 million, then a better stop footing for our own teams and start working for the good of the community. If the foundation of a city will start to crumble, then cooperation with business and social agencies could be toward solving the housing problems in the debris at the bottom. It is precisely the beginning of increased taxation, about 20 years ago that started the exodus to the suburbs. Perhaps there is an undiscovered way to amicable relationships between the community and its demanding employees who are themselves a part and very vital part of the community which is also their employer. Understanding always helps and so I wish to point out that there is a very matter of difference between employee-employer bargaining in private industry or business and that of a community and its employees. Everyone knows very well that when the industrial or commercial employer grants increases in money or other concessions to its employees, prices go up so that the consumer, not the employer, pays the increased wages or salaries. But the taxpayer-employer cannot pass on his burden to anyone else because the consumer of the civil services is still the taxpayer-employer. The taxpayer cannot possibly pass on the increase in excesses to anyone else. The taxpayer pays out of his own enterprises, his own labor which often is harder than the ones he pays to. The taxpayer pays out of his own income which is responsible for the maintenance of those who ask for more. This fact of life has to be finally understood. For even if the taxpayer is submissive or generous and gives up more and more of his own standards, the generous might also be the losers. For opposite the top of the 100 mill tax rate which is dizzying right, there is a bottom.

Vernon School Costs Come Under Fire At Hearing on Town's Budget

By BARBARA RICHMOND (Herald Reporter)

"How much is it going to cost us in mills?" This was the question uppermost in the minds of those attending the first of two scheduled hearings on the proposed $13.5 million budget.

With the exception of members of the Board of Representatives and Board of Education, only about 40 townspeople attended the hearing to review the budget which now reflects an increase of $1.3 million over the current budget.

With the education budget responsible for all but $63,786 of the increase, it was naturally the one to which most of the questions and criticisms were directed.

"How much does it mean in the mills?" posed by Victor Ricca, Mayor Frank McCoy said the way the budget is structured it would mean an 11-mill increase.

"The Board of Representatives has to study the Board of Education budget and I expect you compared us as far as it is concerned," McCoy said.

Commenting that the increase in the proposed general government budget would mean less than one-half mill, Ricca said the Board of Education.

With this Mrs. Herbert, commenting on the education budget where the mills will be given to the education board, cautioned, "The committee, first outlined the areas which would be increased and the reasons for them."

Salary adjustments in all categories account for 68.2 per cent of the increase.

John Boland of Gerald Dr. asked why all the salary increases had to be given each year. He noted that industry does not do this, that raises are given when needed.

The Board of Education will meet with the Board of Representatives next week for kindergarten registration.

The final pre-school kindergarten registration will be held April 27 through May 1 at all of the town's elementary schools.

The pre-school registration program was adopted earlier this year by the Board of Education.

During the short period that the general government budget was reviewed last night, several people commended the board for keeping the increase down to a minimum.

Some questions were directed to the increase in the police budget which amounted to $51,000. It was noted that this was in part due to the increase in salaries contemplated plus the hiring of needed additional personnel.

Mayor McCoy said that the construction of sidewalks in some of the school areas will eliminate the need for some school guards but due to the increase in crime, more personnel will be needed.

Brown then commented, "I think for the first time in a long time I have to commend the Board of Representatives for the job it has done on its budget."

Although both boards have detailed copies of the budgets, when asked why the taxpayer couldn't have them too, Mayor McCoy explained they can be examined by anyone in the town clerk's office. One man suggested that they print copies and then sell them.

Mayor McCoy quipped, "We are trying to sell the budget."

Nation's Catholic Bishops Deter Priests as Politicians

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The nation's Roman Catholic bishops have urged priests to refrain from entering political contests, saying that such activity is not in the interests of the Church.

The report said the Second Vatican Council's documents on the laity and the Church in the modern world also "seemed to discourage" priests from entering political races.

Bishops from across the country—more than 200 of them—also accepted reports detailing major advances in Christian unity talks and outlining progress by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

The report, drawn by a committee on pastoral practices headed by Archbishop Paul F. Scheraga, said that such activity is not in the interests of the Church.

People Movers in Forefront Of Fight to Ease Congestion

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — As their streets and economic life become clogged in traffic jams that sometimes grow tight as jigsaw puzzles, city administrators are now giving more serious consideration to revolutionary "people movers."

The term is perhaps not the best, but it does effectively encompass the wide range of conveyor belts, moving sidewalks, monorails, automatic railroads, subways and other means of moving masses of people short distances.

General Electric, Goodyear, Westinghouse and perhaps 100 smaller companies are involved. San Jose, Calif., is about to install a six-mile belt system. At the leading point of the cross-Manhattan conveyor.

The primary problem of congestion remains associated with downtown areas of major cities, where dozens of roads disgorge thousands of automobiles that squeeze into a mass of noisy, polluted frustration.

But few people need to be told that congestion is the evil shadow of the automobile. It is the shadow of the shadow of the automobile. Large suburban shopping centers now have the problem of transporting shoppers a half mile or so from their parked cars to the stores. At airports, where congestion already is almost impossible.

A hypothetical situation: A Boeing 747 terminates a flight and prepares for a return trip. About 400 passengers and crew get off and each is met by two porters. The total for one flight is now 1,200.

Double the figure because of those preparing to board the return flight. The total is now 2,400. But nearby, another 2,400 people are jammed at the gates because another 747 has landed. The problem obviously cannot be solved by dispersing the population that indicates 61 per cent of the population is sufficiently fearful or embarrassed by crowds to avoid public transportation, such as on buses or subways.

The greatest number of these more than one-half the handicapped, according to the study. They are unable to maintain their balance in existing moving vehicles as they start, stop or round sharp curves.

Re-elected to the finance committee were James S. Copley of San Diego, Calif., Union; John Cowles Jr. of the Minneapolis, Minn., Tribune; J. M. McClelland Jr. of the Longview, Wash., Daily News; and Miller, executive.

Recent tours were made by two Girl Scout troops—661 from St. Mary's Church with Mrs. Eldon Coykendall, and 668 from Bowers School with Mrs. Ralph Brown. At noon on April 16, Mrs. Barbara Norton's group from the YWCA will visit.

Other groups planning to visit the homestead during evening hours in the near future are Ward Circle of South United Methodist Church on May 3; Scandia Lodge on May 7; Wesley Circle of South United Methodist Church on May 12; and the Town and Country Club of Hartford on June 9.

School classes are admitted free, and adult groups with a minimum of 10 persons at half price. Reservations may be made by telephoning Mrs. Royal Izbam at the homestead.

Troubles Began With 'Loud Bang'

...large vibration, a shudder. Two seconds later, he said, "I had a master alarm. I transmitted to Houston that we had a problem."

Haise said that after the bang he noticed a fuel cell that was not outputting any amps. "So," said Haise, "my first sinking spell was due to considering the fact that this could mean we really lost that fuel cell. It also meant by mission rules that we wouldn't be burning LOI (lunar orbit insertion) and with that one problem we had already lost the lunar landing."

"Survival now became a matter of initiative and ingenuity," said Lovell. "The only way to survive the situation," he added, "was to transfer to the LM (lunar module) and get home. It was our only chance to get home."

"There were moments when I didn't know whether we had enough consumables (oxygen, water and electricity) to make it," said Lovell. "In a situation like that there's only one thing you do. You just keep going."

Haise and Lovell said they worked together to fire the rocket of the lunar module. The rocket firing sent them looping around the moon and streaking toward earth.

Apollo 13 passed within 137 miles of the moon, said Lovell, and he found it "almost awesome in its desolation."

Asked whether they felt an awareness of the infinite Power watching over you, Lovell replied, "If I'm in the House after whether I prayed, I certainly did. And I have no doubt that perhaps my prayers and the prayers of the rest of the people did an awful lot for us getting back."

All three of the astronauts said they suffered from the cold of space involving the spacecraft after the warming systems were off.

The command module just slowly kept going down in temperature until I think just prior to re-entry it was down to about 36 degrees," Lovell said.

"We just really chilled down to the bone," said Lovell. "As the astronauts approached earth, they jettisoned the service module, the supply section of the spacecraft where the expansion occurred."

Lovell said the astronauts saw and photographed the damage. "It was to me sort of an amazing sight," he said. "I didn't realize that this whole panel... was thrown clean off. I could see exactly what was damaged. I could see material hanging out from the interior."

Lovell was quoted during a news conference as saying it would be a long time before another moon flight.

"I don't believe that any more," he said. "I believe we can analyze our problems. I wouldn't be surprised to fly again."

The others on the crew agreed. The astronauts will continue a debriefing on their mission with space experts today and Thursday. They have been asked to testify Friday in Washington at a congressional committee hearing.

Crop Gain Needed
WASHINGTON — U.S. Department of Agricultural Economists estimate that American farmers will have to increase crop production by 10 per cent annually over the next 15 to 20 years to meet expected domestic and export needs. They say livestock production will need to grow 1.7 per cent a year.

Yale Students Call Strike To Support Panthers

...of April 24 by committing "a solemn, non-violent act of civil disobedience." "Our witness is for social justice through non-violent means," said Coffin.

A special committee named by Yale President Kingman Brewster Jr. to study Yale's relationship to the Panther strike reported Tuesday that it could not "function effectively."

The black members of the committee had resigned, saying that the committee was "an ineffectual means of dealing with an extremely pressing issue" and "an evasion of Yale's responsibility to the nation."

In his speech, Brewster said that "without exception" faculty officers and presidents of other universities have indicated their support for the Panther strike chief of staff, and Emory Douglas, the party's minister of culture, were among those who were a year ago.

He listed some of the "glorious" explanations of the Panther's malaise as continuation of the Vietnam war, lack of action on the nation's poverty problems and a slowdown in New York City.

Rackley was killed because he was suspected of being an informer. The Panthers were charged with murder, kidnapping and other offenses in connection with the slaying of James Earl Ray, a Panther from New York City.

The "Black Doctrine" leading to an end to the Vietnam conflict was listed as one of the reasons for the Panther's support of the students. "Neither its assumptions nor its practical consequences made explicit," said Brewster.

The Yale president listed a number of disciplinary problems at home which he said were troubling students. "Most students are smart enough to know that there are no easy answers," he said. "But they would like their elders to admit that the questions are real."

Brewster said students would like to have the questions and problems raised and called to the attention of the country. "Unless they are raised among the 200 persons on the Panther list, the questions are not being raised peacefully."

Later, youths entered the Mall and Mallory's department store, shouting and shouting shoppers. Some persons were arrested before the disturbance was quieted.

More arrests occurred at Lee High School, where some of the youths went, apparently in an attempt to get other students to join them. Three cafeteria windows were broken there before police moved in.

In Fairfield, resident students at Fairfield University voted almost unanimously Tuesday night to boycott classes today and to consider a demand for the resignation of their college president.

Commencing students are to vote today. If their vote overwhelmingly opposes the move, the boycott will stop at the end of the day, the Student Association announced. About 800 of the 1,700 undergraduates voted Tuesday.

In a statement, the student government said: "The action was taken as a result of continued aggression against students and faculty by the administration on issues regarding curriculum reform, faculty salary increases, university government and most recently the sudden cancellation of a scheduled 'Doors' concert on campus."

The popular singing group had been scheduled to appear May 5. Both men are scheduled to appear in Manchester Circuit Court May 4.

John McCain Jr., 22, of White Birch Rd., Tolland, was arrested this morning by Coventry police and charged with improper passing. He is scheduled for court May 11.

Later, youths entered the Mall and Mallory's department store, shouting and shouting shoppers. Some persons were arrested before the disturbance was quieted.

More arrests occurred at Lee High School, where some of the youths went, apparently in an attempt to get other students to join them. Three cafeteria windows were broken there before police moved in.

In Fairfield, resident students at Fairfield University voted almost unanimously Tuesday night to boycott classes today and to consider a demand for the resignation of their college president.

Commencing students are to vote today. If their vote overwhelmingly opposes the move, the boycott will stop at the end of the day, the Student Association announced. About 800 of the 1,700 undergraduates voted Tuesday.

In a statement, the student government said: "The action was taken as a result of continued aggression against students and faculty by the administration on issues regarding curriculum reform, faculty salary increases, university government and most recently the sudden cancellation of a scheduled 'Doors' concert on campus."

The popular singing group had been scheduled to appear May 5. Both men are scheduled to appear in Manchester Circuit Court May 4.

John McCain Jr., 22, of White Birch Rd., Tolland, was arrested this morning by Coventry police and charged with improper passing. He is scheduled for court May 11.

A special committee named by Yale President Kingman Brewster Jr. to study Yale's relationship to the Panther strike reported Tuesday that it could not "function effectively."

The black members of the committee had resigned, saying that the committee was "an ineffectual means of dealing with an extremely pressing issue" and "an evasion of Yale's responsibility to the nation."

In his speech, Brewster said that "without exception" faculty officers and presidents of other universities have indicated their support for the Panther strike chief of staff, and Emory Douglas, the party's minister of culture, were among those who were a year ago.

He listed some of the "glorious" explanations of the Panther's malaise as continuation of the Vietnam war, lack of action on the nation's poverty problems and a slowdown in New York City.

Rackley was killed because he was suspected of being an informer. The Panthers were charged with murder, kidnapping and other offenses in connection with the slaying of James Earl Ray, a Panther from New York City.

The "Black Doctrine" leading to an end to the Vietnam conflict was listed as one of the reasons for the Panther's support of the students. "Neither its assumptions nor its practical consequences made explicit," said Brewster.

The Yale president listed a number of disciplinary problems at home which he said were troubling students. "Most students are smart enough to know that there are no easy answers," he said. "But they would like their elders to admit that the questions are real."

Brewster said students would like to have the questions and problems raised and called to the attention of the country. "Unless they are raised among the 200 persons on the Panther list, the questions are not being raised peacefully."

Black University President Mulls Campus Role Today

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — "As major portions of knowledge become obsolete, the adult Black student will be a truck star as a student at Harvard and remains a fan of the sport."

He is now so busy in his new job as president of Michigan State University, however, that he couldn't find time to look in on the Big 10 indoor track championships held here recently.

Wharton, 48, is now in his fourth month as president of the Michigan State University. He was elected to the post in 1967. He is a Negro, Wharton is particularly sensitive to the problems of Black students.

"I find every part of my previous background and education has been useful in my present job," Wharton says in a statement.

"The question," says Wharton, "is how long you can stand the tremendous pressures and demands. Many of my colleagues have discussed this."

"I think we are no longer in the day when a university president can stay 20 or 30 years in office."

Wharton stands over six feet in medium build and retains the broad, Boston accent that suggests his education at the Boston Latin School and Harvard.

Wharton, an expert on agricultural economics and underdeveloped nations, believes the nation's universities "are being dragged into center stage as important institutions in our society by which can make contributions to solve a number of our problems."

Wharton sees two areas where American universities must change. — To meet the growing demand for higher education, schools must consider more open admissions policies.

— To deal with the rapid explosion of knowledge, universities must get away from the concept of providing education for a student only for a set period of time when he is in his late teens or early 20s.

"The concept of education as a privilege is disappearing and is being replaced by the concept of education as a right," he said in a speech before the Economic Council of Detroit.

On the subject of replacing what he calls "educational obsolescence" with life-long education, Wharton says:

"The 'in-depth' touring of Southern California will offer a maximum of entertainment and educational experience and for a reduced price. The tour will be held in California and will have been established."

Would-Be Hermit Dreams Of a Green Spring (Money)

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Oh, $200,000 further fee for any idea when somebody waxes their nose suggested to it, whether accepted or rejected, I would limit colorful cups to catch the sun-shine and the rain, I get the feeling I'd like to be a hermit.

What a nice occupation that need to satisfy my modest would be at least during spring and summer. A hermit can get away from it all by being with it.

My idea is to be a sociable hermit not an unsociable one, to welcome all mankind but still keep it at arm's length.

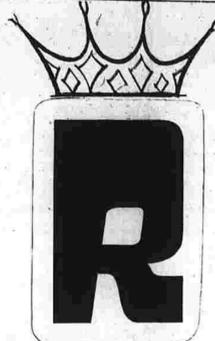

I don't want to be a cave-dwelling hermit, because caves have an average year-round temperature of about 56 degrees, a mile chilly for antique bones. I want to be a hut-dwelling hermit and inhabit a comfortable stone hut in the shelter of vast trees by the side of a river on whose surface nothing would be allowed larger than a canoe.

The hut would contain a large record album, an open window, a perch for a singing bird, a mat by the fireplace for a bound dog to lie on, five hammocks and three vice presidents.

Naturally a hermit has to lead an orderly life or else he'd go to pot like ordinary people do.

The way I've tentatively planned my schedule is this: Monday, Wednesday and Friday, available for public view but, please, no coffee. Tuesday and private consultation; Thursday, exercise; Saturday, dedicated to deep thinking and watching flowers; Sunday, dedicated to deep thinking and watching flowers.

Since it costs money to be a hermit, as it does to be anything else, I've decided to share my wisdom—at a price. Small quantities will be answered three for a quarter. Larger quantities will be responded to at a flat rate of $100 for a consultation fee of a gers.

Town Will Sell Five Lots Off Ferguson Rd. May 19

The Town of Manchester will conduct a public auction May 19 for the sale of five lots on the east side of Ferguson Rd. to the north of Porter St. The auction will be at 8 p.m., in the Highland Park School Auditorium.

The lots, in AA Zone, each have 120 feet or more of frontage and each is about one-half acre. They are owned by the Town Water Department. Town Manager Robert Weiss is proposing that the proceeds from the sales go toward the cost of the water-storage tank to be erected in the vicinity of the Nike Site, off Keeney St.

The bids for the May 19 sale require a $100 security deposit for each parcel bid upon. Each lot will be auctioned individually and the lowest bidder has the right to reject any and all bids, for what it deems to be in the best interests of the town.

Final approval of the sales will be by ordinance, following public hearings by the Board of Directors, as spelled out in the town charter.

Descriptions of the lots to be auctioned may be obtained in the Municipal Building.

The auction will be conducted by Maurice Pass, town purchasing agent.

Board Sets May 7 as Date To Adopt Budgets, Fix Tax

The Manchester Board of Directors, the Republican majority and the Democratic minority have been conducting their own budget sessions on May 7, at 8:15 p.m. meeting in the Municipal Building Hearing Room. That is the deadline date, by charter requirements, for board action.

The 1970-71 budgets and tax rates will be effective July 1.

Budgets will be adopted for the General Fund, the Town Fire District Fund, the Downtown District Fund, the Water Department Fund, and the Sewer Department Fund.

Mayor Nathan Ngontrell is recommending a 6.1 mill tax rate for the General Fund, 4.2 mill for the Fire District, 1.1 mill for the Downtown District, and a 4.65 mill tax rate for the Water Department. He is recommending that the tax rate for the Sewer Department remain at 6 mill.

The average homeowner, with property assessed at $13,000, would pay $82.15 in taxes, up from $77.30 last year. The town's total tax bill, if he lives within the boundaries of the 8th Utilities District, which levies its own tax for fire protection.

Each mill is the equivalent of $1 in taxes on each $1,000 of assessed property.

In addition to budget work, the Finance Committee will feature new and second-hand articles, such as glassware, jewelry, pocketbooks, with trading stamps donated by members of Child and Family Services, will be sold at bargain prices. These items will include camping and picnic equipment, toys, and games, blankets, sheets, and towels, TV trays, gift items and artificial flower arrangements.

Special attractions in the Midway area include kiddie rides, a Country Fair and a Flea Market.

Horse Show May 8-10

Child and Family Services of Connecticut, Inc. will sponsor its 20th Annual Horse Show and Country Fair on May 8, 9 and 10 at the Farmington Polo Grounds.

Mrs. Alexander F. Mannella is general chairman of the Manchester committee for the event. She will be assisted by chairman from the Manchester Auxiliary, Mrs. Paul Marie, tickets; Mrs. Philip Holway, Midway volunteers; Mrs. Roger Bagley, publicity.

The horse show, one of the largest in the state, is a Gold Star Show with over 500 entries.

Special attractions in the Midway area include kiddie rides, a Country Fair and a Flea Market.

Scouts Plant Trees at Two Town Areas

To keep wind and storms from eroding the sand and gravel terrain along Love Lane, Boy Scouts David Dwyer, left, and Richard Muldoon, right, of Troop 27 at St. Mary's Episcopal Church, pitched in to plant 250 white pine seedlings yesterday.

While five scouts worked at Love Lane, about nine others planted 250 seedlings at the town ski slope on Hercules Dr. as a "wind break" between two slopes. For organizing the project, at the suggestion of the Town Park Department, David, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dwyer of 405 Spring St., completes one of the town leadership projects needed to receive an eagle badge.

Richard, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Muldoon of 152 Eldridge St., and the other scouts, help complete some of the conservation credits needed to move up in their respective scout ranks. The trees, which the boys finished planting after only two hours of work, were purchased by the town from the state at a low rate because of their conservation purposes. They will replace trees lost since a similar planting about eight years ago, Park Superintendent Ernest Turck says, due to theft, vandalism and death. (Her photo by Bucevicius)

Conservation People Named To Linear Park Committee

Those interested in establishing a linear park or "green belt" for public use along the Hockanum River made further progress yesterday by forming a permanent committee to investigate all the possibilities of land access and acquisition.

The permanent committee was formed by members of the Hockanum River ad hoc committee who are representatives from official bodies in Manchester, East Hartford, and Vernon. It will be composed of conservation commission members from all three towns. Ellington will also be asked to join.

The suggestion to organize the permanent committee with conservation commission membership was made by Manchester Town Planner J. Eric Potter. Potter said that conservation commission members have an official capacity which they can use as a base from which to make investigations and coordinate efforts to apply for state and federal land grants. They can also check the possibilities of state legislation.

Another member from Manchester, Dr. Douglas H. Smith, was formed last week by the State for the purpose of forming a permanent committee, but did not have an official standing to rely on, Potter said. It was composed of all three town planners, conservation commission heads, and one other representative from each town.

Conservation commission members, under Potter's plan, would work individually in each town to explore possibilities there, then hold joint meetings to pool their strength in applying for federal and state help.

Herbert Heck, non-voting chairman of the ad hoc committee and chairman of the Hockanum River subcommittee of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce City Health Commission, said the first step for the new committee will be to meet since March 1, 1968.

Book Review

THE KILLING GROUND. By Steven Lisak. Moyer, $4.95.

Johnny Hutchinson, a book-keeper for a New York firm, hasn't been doing so well financially in supporting his wife Chris, his stepdaughter and two dogs. Against his wishes, Chris who used to be a dancer, goes out to earn some money in a ratty little Long Island night club.

At the club she is raped by a man who is supposed to have connections with the Mafia. Chris wants to keep the whole thing quiet, but she arranged Johnny wants to bring down the law.

Then begins a round of eight-month frustrations. The doctor who examines Chris is evasive; he doesn't want to get mixed up. The local cops, portrayed as bribe-takers, shuffle off the case. A not-so-hot lawyer to whom Johnny appeals looks like, but does nothing. There are implications that if Johnny doesn't shut up the Mafia will hot him out.

Then as the novel unravels it becomes apparent that both Johnny and Chris are very vulnerable because of their past. He has had a prison record that he dares not have; she has had a steady involvement in a low-rate dive.

So this is a story of damaged people floundering in an impossible situation—a grisly theme, a rare example of the seamy side of life.

As a novel, what is its merit? Only in the writing. Lisak has a talent for vivid, driving, forceful effects.

SHALOM, AVIVA! By Christine Amelty. McKay, $4.95.

The hero of this rather frothy novel is a 22-year-old apprentice photographer, Jean-Paul Anst, who has been sent by a Paris magazine to Israel, just about the time the Six-Day War broke out between the Israelis and the Arabs.

As a photojournalist, Jean-Paul has been assigned an interpreter and a jeep driver by the Israeli army, the latter being a 20-year-old girl whose first name is Aviva. In a few days of travel with Aviva he falls in love with her; he intends to propose marriage—via the interpreter—but Aviva disappears. He doesn't even know her last name.

Returning to Paris, Jean-Paul nearly gets fired because his "war" pictures consist mainly of portraits of Aviva. But the magazine gives him another chance, assigning him to get pictures of Israeli youth at Bouje, Meauriole he is to travel with a group of American editors. This break gives the young photographer an opportunity to see the girl.

The author has made Jean-Paul a moon-headed innocent who spends most of his time day-dreaming. Much of the intended humor is based on this characterization. But in the process the hero doesn't develop as a real person. Consequently the novel isn't as interesting as it might have been.

THE RECOVERY OF CONFIDENCE. By John W. Gardner. Norton, $5.

An overview of society's most pressing dilemmas, this is a calmly rational examination of the principles involved in solving our problems at a time when our problem-solving apparatus is badly disorganized.

Gardner recognizes first that we have a rising hostility toward our "institutions"—meaning government, universities, corporations, professions, etc.—and a parallel loss of confidence in each of them. He discusses the point that the institutions themselves, prone to self-perpetuation and resistance to

$50,000 Painting By Dali Missing

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — A small wood-panel painting by Salvador Dali called "Paranoiac-Astral Image" was discovered missing Tuesday from a gallery devoted to surrealism art at the Wadsworth Atheneum.

The value of the painting was estimated at $50,000 by Peter O. Marlow, curator of Painting and sculpture at the museum.

The painting is 8 1/2 by 5 and 11-1/2 inches and was set into a shadow-box frame that hung on wires from the top of the wall. It was priced out of the frame, Dali, 65, painted "Paranoiac-Astral Image" in 1934 and it was acquired by the Athenaeum in 1955.

It shows a seashore with intense sunlight, a woman and child in a boat on the sand, a man walking, a nursemaid in the background and a clear sea-shell in the foreground. It is signed minutely in the lower right corner.

Miller said he welcomed Paddock's entry into the race but declared, "I intend to win both the primary and general elections."

THE FAMILY LAWYER

ANIMAL IN THE ROAD

Driving through a suburban neighborhood, a motorist noticed a dog in the road ahead, gazing intently at something in the distance. Assuming that the dog would get out of his way, the motorist kept right on going. Unfortunately, the dog failed to move until the last moment, so late to escape sudden death under the car's wheels.

Could the motorist be held legally liable for killing the dog? A court ruled that he could indeed. Pointing out that the motorist had enough time and enough space to swerve, with no danger to himself, the court said he had no right to head-on-stray into the dog's path.

As a rule, a motorist must show a decent concern for dogs and other animals in our streets and highways. This does not mean, however, that he must take precautions that would inhibit normal driving practice. Consider this case:

A motorist approaching a farm saw several turkeys by the roadside. Just as he drew near, one of the turkeys scuttled out in front of his car and was struck down.

In short order, the farmer sued the motorist for damages. He argued that, since the turkeys were in plain sight, the motorist should have slowed down—just in case. But the judge held the motorist not liable, saying:

"I do not believe the law imposed upon him the duty of slowing down so he could immediately stop, just because one of these turkeys might take a notion to cross the road at an inopportune moment. Highways are not built for animals or fowl to stray in."

Of course, the motorist is even less to blame if the accident was simply within the range of foreseeability. Another man was making a wide turn to enter his driveway one night when a neighbor's dog dashed unseen out of the darkness. The dog suffered fatal injuries and his owner duly demanded damages on the theory that the car was on the wrong side of the street when the accident occurred.

But a court denied the claim, because the location of the car was not the real cause of the dog's death. The court said it was unfair to blame the motorist for an accident he could not have either foreseen or avoided.
