Rescuers Press Search For Tornado Casualties

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP)—Rescue workers and relief agencies pressed a search today for more dead and injured in the debris of the tornado-swept West Texas city.

There were thousands of homes—as estimated, 4,800—with up to 750 dwellings destroyed—perhaps 800 injured, and 20 houses dead.

Estimates of property damage from the savage twister Monday night ranged up to $200 million.

For a time Tuesday it appeared that the tornado-ravaged Great Plains Life building, the city's 20-story pride, would totter and fall. Great cracks and gashes were seen in what remained of its facade. The surrounding area was evacuated.

But the swaying building stood.

Automobiles on downtown streets were smashed to unrecognizable masses of steel by debris falling from skyscrapers.

Many of the injured, especially those in the downtown district, were struck by flying glass fragments from shattered windows.

Rows of warehouses were twisted into torn masses of sheet iron.

Frame homes in the Mexican-American section of Guadalupe known as "Little Mexico"—were shattered by the tornado and blown away by the hurricane-like winds that followed.

Negro Outpolls Mayor In Newark Primary

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Negro engineer Kenneth Gibson won 42.7 per cent of the vote in Newark, N.J., Tuesday to set up the city's first black-white mayoral runoff. He will face incumbent Hugh J. Addonizio, Primary voters in West Virginia and Nebraska strongly backed U.S. Senate incumbents.

In Newark, where Negroes represent a majority of population but not of registered voters, Gibson outpolls Addonizio by better than 2 to 1 but did not win a majority and thus set up the runoff.

Gibson won 37,000 votes and Addonizio 17,925 in the six-man field. Third with 13,904 was City Councilman Anthony Imperiale, a militant labor and order advocate who set up a white citizen patrol after the 1967 race riot.

Addonizio is under federal indictment for extortion and income tax evasion. His trial is scheduled to begin June 2, two weeks before the June 16 runoff.

Gibson, 37, who ran third in 1966 when Addonizio won a second term, told supporters the runoff was "a very clear choice, not between black and white but between honesty and continued corruption."

The United States, said Gibson, "has little to gain and much to lose by sending troops to Cambodia. Regardless of its intent, this decision could lead to a wider, longer war rather than to the end of American military involvement in Southeast Asia."

In the Democratic gubernatorial caucus, Gibson won 48,333 while Gibson and another Negro, James B. Hunt, won a record 84.5 million pounds, slightly above the 1968 record. Usually hard to win in the clouded tobacco output is exported.

Book Review

MORNING IN SPRING AND OTHER POEMS by Louis Ginsberg. Morrow, $5.

This fresh new book of poetry, Ginsberg's first since 1967, comes in the autumn of his poet's life, but it has the lyric tones of a young man in love—in love with words and the world around him.

Ginsberg's poems are simple with a lyric quality not often found in modern poetry, yet the thoughts and ideas are timely.

He is a personal poet, like his son Allen. The elder Ginsberg's "To a Mother, Buried," laments the death of his first wife Louisa, and how their two sons mourned for her. Louis' "Morning Poems" say simply what Allen says in his book-length poem "Kaddish."

He has other advice for his sons. In "My Sons, Watch Out!" he warns them there are dangers in every part of the world, but "More dangerous is the arena." The girls, they walk abroad like subtle temptresses. Ambushed with walking a pert curv, With breasts portending for new generations.

The book, also to be published in paperback by Gotham Books, is divided into six sections, "Love Poems" and "Memoriam" are the best, probably because they are so personal—they show the man.

In recent years Louis and Allen Ginsberg have been holding with considerable success, joint poetry readings.

In the introduction, Allen writes, "Confronting my father's poems at the end of his life I weep at his meekness and his refusal, at his wise entrance into his own mortality and his silent recognition of that pitiful immensity he records in his own life's time, his father's life-time, and the same fierce art accords to my own person his son."

Roslyn Barasch

THE END OF THE 20TH CENTURY? By Desmond King-Hele. St. Martin's Press, $6.95.

Quite a few deep-dish thinkers, technicians and specialists (and even some intuitive guessers into the crystal ball of fate) have been making projections into the future, speculating on how things will be around the end of the present century.

This English science writer offers here a version in layman's language of the whole array of these speculations; it is a sort of handyman's guide and checklist on the possible horrors and possible hopes of the human race.

King-Hele concedes that, with nuclear force and chemical-biological weapons, combined with nationalism, psychopathic leadership and trigger-nervous rulers, "the human race may very well be on the road to extinction." "Man has many possibilities, but the most likely ones are disastrous."

Yet he has enough faith in man's instinct for survival to concentrate on "the blind optimism so typical of our species."

He finds evidence that it is technically possible to increase world food production fast enough to prevent starvation during the population explosion. He foresees major advances in communications, transportation, surgery and the prolongation of life. He reviews the dilemma of pollution, urban chaos and racial tensions, as well as the dangers of entrust our future to energetic but non-intellectual administrators. He warns that world government and world loyalty must come and that man's inherited aggressiveness must be given a safe outlet.

Various specialists who have peered into the future have a claim to greater authority than the present author—in their own fields. His task has been to interpret, in a single book for the layman, what the specialists foresee in our several worlds of the future.

THE PLEDGE. By Leonard Master, Simon & Schuster, $6.95.

This amazing true story reads like a suspense novel.

From the end of World War II until May, 1948, when Palestine ceased to be a British protectorate and had to fight the Arabs for survival as the state of Israel, today's collection of strange, fantastic desperation to acquire arms for the coming war—what the future world would not only money and nonwar items; it needed every sort of weapon that would shoot.

The underground operated from a small residential hotel in upper Manhattan, one of those places full of little old ladies. One cell of the operation handled all over the country buying up weapons, ammunition, radios and special machinery for making ordnance, while another branch took care of smuggling chemical out. Another cell trained compounds, type giving the material out. Another clandestine radio network.

The underground even bought

Miss Charlotte Yale of Andover, editor of unusual six-section yearbook.

Andover Girl Editor

U of H Yearbook Says 'Cool It'

Time clicks on, and so does the collegiate camera. The 1968-69 yearbook at the University of Hartford reflected the aftermath of an uptight period in college life—assassinations, war, commercialized sex, cop-out and an abrasive view of hypocritical standards.

By contrast, the word for May at the University of Hartford 1970, now being distributed to UofH collegians, is "Cool It."

Ironically, the board of student editors could hardly have foreseen the invasion of Cambodia—observed in this year's pictorial publication might have been inundated with clannish data.

The '70 annual, edited by Charlotte L. Yale of Andover, an art education degree candidate at Hartford Art School, mirrors what had been a reasonably quiet college year—if today's vigorous and aware campus youth is ever very "quiet" for very long.

Miss Yale, an attractive brunette, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen R. Yale, Boston Hill Rd. She will graduate June 7, and plans to continue her work in art education. Last year, she was art editor of "The News Liberated Press," the campus paper. The school paper's consistent irreverence, however, appears not to have diluted Miss Yale's editorial sensibilities.

College yearbook, like college students, no longer come in predictable formats. The '69 format came in 21 or so sections of fold-out posters, encapsulated in a portfolio box.

The '70 annual comes in six sections, roughly six inches by nine, in a personal copy format with a chaste designed black portfolio box to keep things shipshape.

The '69 yearbook, under the editorship of Mrs. Christine L. Butler, reflected in the words of a UofH official, "a stunning combination of modern art and pictorial techniques with valuable student moods."

The new UofH annual belies the notion, said to be held by some well-meaning people, that today's collegians are incapable of organizing anything except campus tantrums and protests about cafeteria food.

An inscription at the end of almost prudently print, "The 1970 UofH Yearbook is printed on 70 lb. White Opaque paper. The body type is 10 Point Universel Medium. The headlines are set in Futura Tempo Bold. The text is in Patina II Cover Stock, using line conversion, printed in black ink and varnished. Cover by Charlotte Yale and Jeff Watkins; design by Jeff Watkins."

Jeffrey C. Watkins, art director of UofH '70, is from Southshore, Mass. Yearbook staff members further included Anson C. Fyler Jr., literary editor; Stod Nicholas, sports editor; and Dennis Pillion, business manager.

The UofH '70 has some intriguing items. In the Hart College of Music section, there is a graphic introduction to a "Cooler"—devoted exclusively to the kinetic talents of Dr. Mobe Parano, Hart president. Parano, Hart president, and UofH vice chancellor for the performing arts.

Israeli Forces Withdraw From Lebanon After Win

RAJYIEH, Israel (AP)—The Israeli army command announced that all its forces had returned today from Lebanese territory after completing a 30-hour drive against Arab guerrillas based on the southwestern slopes of Mt. Hermon.

About two dozen tanks and halftracks carrying about 300 troops first crossed back into Israel after spending the night occupying 37 square miles of guerrilla-infested Lebanese territory.

The Israeli withdrawal came some 12 hours after the U.N. Security Council in New York demanded an immediate pullout.

When they returned to their base in Israel, laughing and shouting troops jumped off tanks and armored vehicles and headed for a mobile canteen.

Some told newsmen they had neither slept nor eaten since the task force plunged into Lebanon at dawn Tuesday.

"I expected more resistance," said one Israeli private, commenting on the antiguerrilla sweep. "I got scared when they seriously started shelling at our half-track. I don't know who was firing, the Lebanese army or the guerrillas."

"My ears are still ringing and I'm half dead with fatigue," a bearded captain said. "We had strict orders not to harm civilians, but we gave the guerrillas everything we had. Our tanks fired into their bunkers, at anything we thought of as a guerrilla hideout."

At Fatah is a chief guerrilla organization.

The skies over the battle scene were still streaked with falls of gray smoke and fire still smoldered on the plain to the west of the 9,000-foot Mt. Hermon.

The armored column withdrew without aerial cover, but a small spotter plane and air force helicopter kept watch.

"I never expected so few casualties," said one soldier with a shrapnel scratch on his nose.

Israeli officers declined to show newsmen any of the 11 prisoners reported to have been taken captive or to even talk about the prisoners.

"They are here but I don't think we have to show them around," one officer said.

Reports relayed to Beirut from witnesses in the battle area said Arab guerrillas fought sporadic skirmishes today with the Israelis, and a commander of guerrilla forces said the Israelis failed to overrun the main guerrilla base.

Israeli aircraft were sighted over the area but there was no reported widespread shelling of Beirut.

At Fatah in Beirut said an Israeli helicopter was shot down Tuesday night and three crewmen were captured.

This was denied in Tel Aviv.

"My ears are still ringing and I'm half dead with fatigue," a bearded captain said. "We had strict orders not to harm civilians, but we gave the guerrillas everything we had. Our tanks fired into their bunkers, at anything we thought of as a guerrilla hideout."

Country Survives Ostracism By Ignoring Inconveniences

By BOON LEWALD
Associated Press Writer
SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Rhodesia is an outpost in the eyes of many nations. Yet Rhodesia survives, and has just proclaimed itself a republic in the face of the total trade boycott of the country proclaimed by the United Nations two years ago.

No one can be sure of the future, but every trade boycott has its kinks, and life goes on. There are inconveniences, some of them minor and others more consequential. Even the mailing of a letter abroad can be a nuisance. Britain, once the mother country, does not recognize Rhodesia's status as a self-declared republic. It is a daily mail service via neighboring Portugal. Mozambique. For an extra 14 cents he puts postage stamps on letters and mails them across the frontier.

This is one of many devices Rhodesians have found to evade international sanctions since Prime Minister Ian Smith unilaterally declared Rhodesia's independence from Britain Nov. 11, 1965. But imported goods from Japan, Germany, France and Italy are on sale in Rhodesian shops. They indicate the volume of trade through Mozambique and South Africa. Rhodesia is a land of no ports.

The three white-ruled countries at Africa's tip are allies in a hostile world. South Africa maintains a diplomatic mission in Salisbury. Every other continent closed after Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence. The last ties with Britain and became a republic March 2.

Charmers are busy in Portugal's African territory. Infiltrators, called freedom fighters by their supporters, sometimes try to enter Rhodesia through the steamy Zambezi River Valley. The border with black-ruled Zambia.

So far these have been kept at bay by Rhodesian troops in cooperation with paramilitary forces from South Africa. More than 170 infiltrators have been killed and many others captured, the Rhodesians say. Rhodesia and South Africa have lost about 20 men.

Few infiltrators get far south, although the airport at Beitbridge was damaged and railroad tracks were dynamited in small-scale January raids. South Africa support us we can probably last indefinitely," says an industrial economist.

"Sanctions forced the government to protect itself by industrial projects have been canceled since 1965 and we are not making many goods we never used to. Textiles, nonmetallic mineral products, wooden furniture, foodstuffs, chemical products, all have been stimulated by the need for local manufacture.

"The steel industry is going in for a lot more fabricating. We now make our own railroad rolling stock, for instance. Heavy industry is up and we will soon make tube mills, furnaces and other products," says a minister in April election.

to double the number of blacks in 21 years and cause massive unemployment. The younger generation is no longer satisfied with village life in largely undeveloped reserves called tribal trust lands. A drift to the black townships at the edge of white cities brings about 40,000 extra nonwhites to the market every year.

"We had a real growth rate of only about 3 per cent over the last decade. If you work out that the population is increasing 2 1/2 per cent annually we are clearly losing ground. We just cannot hold our own last year when the growth rate was 10 per cent in real terms. But mainly Africa graduates a year, but taining this depends largely on foreign exchange earnings which depend on sanctions."

The government is putting its faith in a massive population control program to bring the number of blacks down to what Labor Minister Ian McLean calls "the right ratio to the economy." The government expects a report soon on the feasibility of "massive incentives and disincentives" to regulate the size of black families.

The crux of the international furor over Rhodesia, spearheaded by African and Asian countries in the United Nations, is that the Salisbury regime has refused to envisage anything but perpetuation of rule by the white minority.

Friends Urge Shriver to Drop Out of Race for Governorship

By TOM STUCKEY
Associated Press Writer
ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Sargent Shriver, former U.S. ambassador to France, director of the Peace Corps and a general in the war on poverty, is finding Maryland politics a tough nut to crack.

He has attempted to pick his audience carefully as they do not appear hostile nor combative at liberal Democratic club, chambers of commerce.

The young pre-dominant among those naming two ready-to-go campaign headquarters, but they aren't crowded.

The other hand, liberal Democrats have come out openly and urged Shriver not to run while announcing their support for the interim governor, Marvin Mandel.

Shriver has arranged private meetings and formal dinners with state and AFL-CIO leaders. Democratic leaders urged quiet and organized labor has said it told Shriver it was for Mandel.

Others who have let the public know they cannot back Shriver over Mandel include Sen. Robert Sikes, former congressman and himself a runner-up for the Democratic nomination for governor four years ago; Philip H. Goodman, former acting mayor of Baltimore; and Sen. Steny Hoyer of Prince Georges County, populous neighbor of Montgomery where the Shriver lives.

Goodman released a letter to Shriver mentioning Maryland problems, issues and politics. I, therefore, must conclude that it will be an impossible race for you to win.

"A person with your ability and background is needed in public life, but this governor's position is not in the making for you."

"Sargent's personal ambitions don't coincide with the needs of the state," said Sikes. Referring to his own liberal leanings, Sikes said it might lead to the assumption "that I'd be inclined for Shriver to run. I'm not."

One Injured In Blast At Police Station

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—The Des Moines police station was heavily damaged early today by an explosion that punched out windows in the three-story building and destroyed several cars on an adjacent parking lot.

Des Moines Police Chief Wendell Nichols said damage would probably run about a half million dollars.

Investigating officers said it was believed dynamite had been placed on an electrical transformer near the southwest corner of the block-long stone structure.

The explosion, which occurred shortly after 4:30 a.m., tore a three-foot hole in the side of the building and knocked out all communications facilities.

There was only one reported injury, Willie Wolski, a factor who was working in the building, was cut in the back by flying glass. He was treated at a hospital.

Chief Nichols, who declined to speculate on a motive for the bombing, said 16 prisoners inside the building were transferred to the Polk County Jail.

All electrical power in the building was knocked out by the blast, and emergency generators were pressed into service to keep police radio equipment operating.

Army demolition experts were called in to aid in the investigation.

In addition to the cars that were destroyed, about a dozen other vehicles sustained considerable damage. Several of them caught fire after the explosion.

Two businesses across from the police station also were damaged. Debris was scattered throughout the area.

Adult Pickets Try to Sway Dodd on War

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—With the avowed intention of getting Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, to change his mind about the Indochina war and American involvement in Cambodia, a small group of adult picketers began picketing Hartford's Federal Building Tuesday.

Their signs, among other things, urged the Connecticut Democrat to "help end the undeclared war" in Cambodia. Dodd's Connecticut office is in the building.

The group, which fielded a picket line Tuesday that ranged in size from six to ten, called itself the Cambodia Crisis Committee and claims to represent some 200 working people. It also claims the support of the liberal Caucus of Connecticut Democrats, an offshoot of the McCarthy and Kennedy presidential campaigns two years ago.

"We didn't want to leave it up to the younger people to stop this war," says Mrs. Herbert Schwartz of West Hartford, one of the picketers. "This group was organized by older people who are responsible and have jobs."

The committee says it wants Dodd to vote for a Senate bill proposing a halt to funding of U.S. military operations in Cambodia, and will man the picket line each day for two hours until the bill is voted on.

Dodd has strongly supported President Nixon's decision to send U.S. ground troops into Cambodia, and one of the picketers, Milton Stern, said he wasn't optimistic about the chance of swaying the Senator. "But anything peaceful is worth a try," Stern said.

Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market was off sharply early this afternoon with the Dow Jones average several points below the 700 level. Trading was moderate.

A very steep early decline which sent the Dow average plunging more than 10 points in the first hour of trading had apparently eased by early afternoon.

At noon the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off 11.16 to 693.44. The last time the average closed below this level was July 29, 1963, when it ended at 690.71.

Declines led advances by over 6 to 1.

Analysts said penetration of the 700 Dow level triggered increased selling. Many investors, however, continue to stand on the sidelines, they added.

The present downswing was due to the same economic and political factors that have been depressing the market for months, analysts said. They cited high interest rates, inflation, poor company earnings, and the Asian war.

Stocks in all categories were lower.

At noon the Associated Press 50 stock average was off 2.5 at 267.7, with industrials off 8.1, rails off 1.5, and utilities off 1.3.

Bickering, Not Negotiating Characterizes Peace Talks

PARIS (AP)—Today is the second anniversary of the peace talks on Vietnam.

The talks began May 13, 1968, in the old Majestic Hotel near the Arch of Triumph. That was after President Lyndon B. Johnson announced a partial halt to the bombing of North Vietnam, and his simultaneous decision to refuse re-election.

In the first nine months the two chief negotiators, W. Averell Harriman of the United States and Xuan Thuy of North Vietnam, resolved some of the main issues but regularly met in private to iron out procedural problems.

By January 1969, when President Nixon took office, Harriman and Thuy had agreed to bring South Vietnam and the Viet Cong into the talks.

They also reached a tacit understanding—never acknowledged by Hanoi—for a total halt in American bombing of North Vietnam in exchange for a North Vietnamese undertaking to reduce infiltration across the demilitarized zone and to stop large-scale rocket attacks on South Vietnamese cities.

Backstage friction arose between Harriman and the South Vietnamese representatives, including for a time Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, who accused the American negotiator of allowing himself to be "taken in by the Communists."

Nixon named Henry Cabot Lodge, former U. S. envoy in Saigon, to replace Harriman. But the talks were freezing into a sterile repetition of propaganda speeches by both sides. Week after week the four delegations prepared statements accusing each other of refusing to negotiate.

Lodge repeatedly pleaded in vain with Thuy to resume private discussions. Thuy's refusal to do so stemmed from Hanoi's apparently unshakable determination to bring South Vietnam and the Viet Cong into the talks.

the delegation, as chief negotiator. They denounced this as a downgrading of the session and has boycotted the sessions ever since. To retaliate, he sent minor officials to lead his delegation and recently announced he was leaving Paris altogether.

Hanoi and the Viet Cong abruptly canceled last week's session because of bombing of raids against missile sites in North Vietnam, and the U.S. thrust into Cambodia, but indicated they would return to the table this Thursday.

school, almost the back school for the district.

The school board chairman, possibly foreseeing such an accusation, says he does not know how many blacks there will be in that school.

It is going to take some juggling to reconcile these conflicting objectives, particularly since there will probably be many seeking to abuse the system to their own ends.

What If Three-Year-Olds Do Know

In our swiftly moving times, we can't even depend on old standby bromides. It used to be that one could say, with impunity, and without any real meaning: "As any three year old child can tell you."

When we said that to somebody, we weren't really talking or thinking about any three year old at all.

We were trying to say how little we thought of whatever particular adult mentality we were dealing with at the moment.

Now, the old familiar and reliable bromide has backfired on us.

When we say it now, we are telling the truth about the three year old.

The three year old can tell us. The three year old is, in fact, by education's latest psychological pronouncements, the human genius at its peak.

Of course, what the psychologists put it, there is the age at which the human mind is most capable of absorbing, storing, the most complicated kinds of knowledge. This would make it the "most teachable age."

We can't very well go around admitting the possible truth, which is that the toddler of three is not only more teachable, but already more wise and informed than it will ever be again.

We adults have to hold the world together, until the three year old grows dull and dense enough to take it over without changing any of those routines which are so reassuring to us even though, as any three year old could tell us, they merely compound and preserve our fundamental mismanagement of the world which has been handed to us.

We think we should let the three year olds—and only the three year olds—vote.

A Thought for Today

Sponsored by the Manchester Council of Churches.

Wednesday May 13, 1970, is "Where God Is."

Some people have very definite ideas about where God is. I recall speaking about evangelism, of all things, to a group of suburbanites in an inner-city church building where they meet once a week.

They never go near the place and want nothing at all to do with anybody who lives in the neighborhood, which is a poor one.

Evangelism (for them) concerns India, Brazil and Ghana. I happened to ask these evangelistic people if they had ever been inside the tavern across the street from the church.

They reacted in shock and not a little anger. "You're here to talk about evangelism," someone reproved me. So God couldn't be in the tavern. Then, precisely where would he be?

From "Our Prayers Are Meaningless," written by Malcolm Boyd

Finch warned that the erosion of support for Mr. Nixon among college students was creating a breach that would be hard to repair.

It was Finch, definitely worried about the massive demonstration here this past weekend, who went to the White House with his novel idea for keeping all the HEW conference rooms available on Saturday for open meetings between students and sub-Cabinet officers of all the departments.

Even before approving that plan, however, Ehrlichman had moved fast to open at least some lines of communication between the President and the students.

When Rep. William K. Knowles of Wisconsin, one of the group of state chief executives who conferred with President Nixon on the Southeast Asia situation.

Don't Misunderstand

To the Editor: As a student at Mount Holyoke College and a resident of Manchester, I am concerned that people who have not been directly involved in campus strike activities should misunderstand our motives and I would like to explain what the situation is here.

A majority of the students voted on Wednesday morning, May 8, for an open-ended strike. All normal activities were suspended so that more time could be spent in constructive political action in response to the recent U.S. expansion into Cambodia.

Let me write a few lines in response to the public officials, door-to-door canvassing, lectures and tea-china, petitions, peace vigils and efforts to reach the people of the entire nation are a few of the activities organized since the strike began.

Each student is encouraged to participate in her own way and no one is forced to take part against her will. There has been no violence.

We do not wish to shirk our academic responsibilities, however we feel a more pressing obligation as American citizens to make our views known and to attempt to stop what we believe is a morally and politically disastrous government policy in Southeast Asia.

We are not striking against the college, but are making an effort to reach the government. The only way that we can effectively accomplish this goal is to devote every possible energy to it.

We must not have ourselves in a protected academic environment and neglect our political responsibility, which we cast off our academic obligations.

I realize that, as students supported by our parents, we do not face survival on our own.

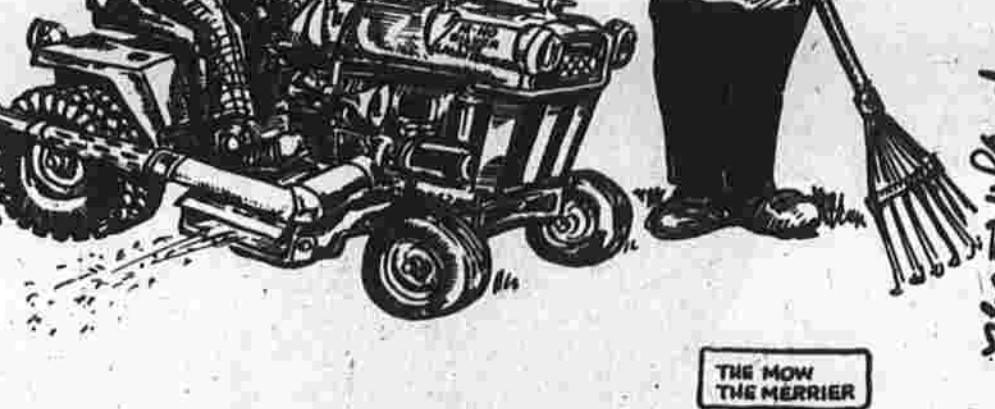

We can afford the time for activities which others, who have to make a living, may consider a luxury.

We are not confronted with economic necessities. I think this is why we can afford to be idealistic, perhaps unrealistically so. However, I do not think that those who face survival in society can afford to neglect their political ideals.

How is democracy supposed to work and freedom ever to become a reality if the majority of the people do not participate in government and do not vote their opinions? Those who do not speak will find that there are others who are only too glad to speak for them and only too ready to deny them their right to speak. They will find that they are speaking to protect and improve the political system, but the style of life that they are trying to protect and improve is dependent upon the political ideas they are too busy to vote. Their own survival may hang on a right that they could not take time to use.

Very sincerely yours, Katherine W. Lauer, Mount Holyoke College '72

In reality the deficit is near $60 per unit when all the other town services provided are included.

I am still waiting for some churchmen from one of the churches responsible for the building connected with apartment housing developments and a shopping complex are seeking large cuts in their assessments.

They can tell our legislators that they oppose the war, wish no appropriations for it, and want our young to live.

Sincerely yours, Wilma D. Marlow

To the Editor: I wonder how many home owners in Manchester have noticed recently that several individuals connected with apartment housing developments and a shopping complex are seeking large cuts in their assessments.

On April 10, the Robert Stone, Jack Goldberg, and Milton Miller combine were reported as appealing for an assessed value of $100.

On May 1, Neil Ellis, Clarence Kaplan, and Curmine Filomane filed applications for assessments on land in the Green Manor Industrial Park, as well as on land and buildings owned by Ellis and Kaplan at 330 Broad St.

On April 4, Mr. Arnold Klau, the promoter and executive secretary of MISAC Corp., joined the parade seeking a lowered assessment for the project on Oakland St. which is new to the town's Grand List for the 1970-1971 tax year.

The MISAC Corp. is already valued of $1,254,970 for land and the 180 apartments there. This amounts to an average assessment of about $6,999 per apartment. Thus, on the basis of a 50 mill tax rate, the average tax yield per apartment is $350 per year.

There are presently 241 children in the 190 unit complex. If all these children were to attend our schools for the 1970-1971 school year, there would be an average of 1.26 children per apartment unit being educated. With the average per pupil cost of elementary pupils about $700 in Manchester, it would cost $228 to educate these 125 pupils to contribute $30 in taxes but we've lost $200 worth of education.

Education, the town goes in the hole at the rate of $52 per apartment unit.

With the average per pupil cost of elementary pupils about $700 in Manchester, it would cost $228 to educate these 125 pupils to contribute $30 in taxes but we've lost $200 worth of education.

Education, the town goes in the hole at the rate of $52 per apartment unit.

In reality the deficit is near $60 per unit when all the other town services provided are included.

I am still waiting for some churchmen from one of the churches responsible for the building connected with apartment housing developments and a shopping complex are seeking large cuts in their assessments.

On April 10, the Robert Stone, Jack Goldberg, and Milton Miller combine were reported as appealing for an assessed value of $100.

On May 1, Neil Ellis, Clarence Kaplan, and Curmine Filomane filed applications for assessments on land in the Green Manor Industrial Park, as well as on land and buildings owned by Ellis and Kaplan at 330 Broad St.

On April 4, Mr. Arnold Klau, the promoter and executive secretary of MISAC Corp., joined the parade seeking a lowered assessment for the project on Oakland St. which is new to the town's Grand List for the 1970-1971 tax year.

The MISAC Corp. is already valued of $1,254,970 for land and the 180 apartments there. This amounts to an average assessment of about $6,999 per apartment. Thus, on the basis of a 50 mill tax rate, the average tax yield per apartment is $350 per year.

There are presently 241 children in the 190 unit complex. If all these children were to attend our schools for the 1970-1971 school year, there would be an average of 1.26 children per apartment unit being educated. With the average per pupil cost of elementary pupils about $700 in Manchester, it would cost $228 to educate these 125 pupils to contribute $30 in taxes but we've lost $200 worth of education.

Both Find Value in Big Brother Program

By MARGARET AULISO (Herald Reporter)

"It's going to be his garden," Big Brother Richard Cartwright says of the garden his little brother John Tweedie, is planting in Cartwright's backyard.

It's been five months now since Cartwright, of 413 Spring St., and nine-year-old John, also of Manchester, have participated in the Big Brother program and both are finding great value in it.

Besides working on the garden, Cartwright has been taking John to play miniature golf, showing him how to cook, playing catch, and just involving his little brother in Cartwright's own normal daily activities such as shopping and watching television.

When the weather gets warmer, he plans to teach John how to swim.

"It's a great do-it-yourselfer," Cartwright says, "and everything I do, he seems to like to do."

Cartwright, who is chairman of the Big Brothers of Greater Hartford public relations and advertising committee, and John make up one of five Big Brother matches in Manchester.

In these matches, all of the boys are local but some of the men come from outlying towns. Big Brothers of Greater Hartford established a little over a year ago, covers 29 cities and towns.

The intent is to help fill the gap made in a boy's life when he loses his father, either through death, divorce, or separation.

Little brothers are beneficiaries of the program, which is not so, and that there are many sponsoring organizations.

Working to help make the best matches possible and to ease the acceptance of the big brother by the little brother, Cartwright says, for a family are two part-time case-workers, both from Manchester, who cover the entire Hartford area.

They are Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Barlow of 28 Pearl St. Each match must be approved both by the mother and her son.

Cartwright says there are eight potential little brothers in town now waiting for big brothers to volunteer. One boy is waiting to see if he can get the big brother 20 or 21 years old.

One problem they are having throughout the greater Hartford area, Cartwright says, is in attracting black big brothers.

"This program is not solely for the whites," Cartwright says. "It seems to be the impression that we are only matching little white boys with big brothers that are white."

Not financial. A mistaken conception that discourages some people from joining the program, Cartwright does not think is the idea that entering the boys will be a financial burden.

What He Missed Cartwright, who is manager of sales promotion services in the agency department, Life Division, of Aetna Life & Casualty in Hartford, has a son 12 years old, who lives at never had the benefit of a father. I know what I missed. The rest of Cartwright's family, it just can't help but give me including his wife, does not try to interfere or get involved. tion."

The kind of question a boy approved both by the mother and her son.

Stamps In the News

By SYD KRONISH AP Newsfeatures

Esopo '70, now being held in Osaka, Japan, is responsible for the creation of many new stamps—and more to come.

New Zealand has produced an attractive set of three stamps as part of that nation's participation in the world's fair. The designs highlight some of the features of the New Zealand Pavilion.

The Geysers Restaurant is shown on the T-center, which is purple, blue and green. The pavilion itself is depicted in pink and brown on the 8-center. The 18-cent stamp in shades of green and brown shows another exhibit, the bush walk.

Interestingly enough, the stamps were printed in Japan by the Japanese Government Printing Bureau in Tokyo.

Pakistan's participation in Expo '70 is held jointly with Iran and Turkey. In appreciation, Pakistan depicts on its newest stamp the flag of Turkey and Iran as well as its own.

Collectors of U.S. stamps are reminded of upcoming issues on Aug. 22 honoring Edgar Lee Masters in Peoria, Ill., and Aug. 28 for the 60th anniversary of woman's suffrage in Adams, Mass. Dates and prices not yet announced but definitely on the agenda are 10th anniversary of Maine's statehood, 80th anniversary of the landing of the Mayflower, 50th anniversary of English settlement in South Carolina, a wildlife conservation stamp and a Dwight Eisenhower definitive.

The Habimah Theater was founded in Moscow in 1911 by a group of dedicated young Jews who loved the Hebrew language and who resolved to establish a professional, Hebrew-speaking theatrical company. Since then the theater has gained world-wide recognition.

Its permanent home is now in Israel and that nation has issued a new stamp in its honor.

Only members of the immediate families of the couple attended the ceremony, performed at the bride's apartment Tuesday by the Rev. William A. McQuoid of the Main Avenue Presbyterian church.

The new Mrs. Gilpatrick's marriage to the late Mr. Washburn ended in divorce, as did Gilpatrick's four previous marriages.

Some changes have been made in the state home rule regulations since the adoption of Somers' charter, necessitating modifications by Town Council Robert King.

Mrs. Janet Knaus, past junior director of the Connecticut State Presbyterians Women's Clubs, will conduct the candlelight ceremony for coming of age.

Accompanying Mrs. Knaus will be Miss Kathleen Hadenberg, National Projects Chairman of the federation's junior division.

Toland recorded only two first places during the 18 events, winning the 800-yard relay and the high jump.

The Board of Selectmen has advertised for the purchase of the town's 1958 Cadillac ambulance on an "as is" basis.

The bids will be opened at the Board of Selectmen at 8 p.m. in the Town Hall. The vehicle, parked by the town administration building, is available for inspection on request. The selection will be made by the board and all bids for the vehicle.

Cub Scout Pack 15 will attend a baseball game at Fenway Park in Boston Sunday. They will meet at the Hicks School parking lot at 9 a.m. and will go to the game.

Toland Junior Banquet The Toland Junior Women's Club will hold its annual quilt and installation of officers Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Willie's Store, Main Street.

Tolland Panel To Explain Charter At Hearing Tomorrow Night

By MARGARET AULISO (Herald Reporter)

A public hearing to explain and the town still wants its own charter. It will be necessary to appoint another Charter Study Committee and begin the long, involved process all over again.

The Charter Study Committee has been working on the proposed charter for a year and has until Friday to complete its review of the document and to turn it over to the Board of Selectmen for its review and comments.

CSC Chairman Frank Kalas hopes to have copies of the proposed charter ready for tomorrow night's hearing.

The charter once adopted will permit the town to operate under so-called "home rule" provisions. The town would present the town to operate under the provisions of the charter.

Robert B. Thayer of Enfield as heard at a public hearing on April 27.

The Board of Selectmen has advertised for the purchase of the town's 1958 Cadillac ambulance on an "as is" basis.

The bids will be opened at the Board of Selectmen at 8 p.m. in the Town Hall. The vehicle, parked by the town administration building, is available for inspection on request. The selection will be made by the board and all bids for the vehicle.

By MARGARET AULISO (Herald Reporter)

WASHINGTON (AP) — Page girls on the floors of Congress and television cameras in House committee rooms are included in a major and tradition-breaking congressional reorganization bill passed by a House committee.

The bill also authorizes a study on glassing in the House chamber and providing visitors in the galleries with a running explanation of the often confusing debate and proceedings on the floor.

The measure was passed by the House Rules Committee Tuesday after a year of hearings and study.

The traditional Senate and House page boys would be replaced with college-age women as well as men, leaders said.

The committee chose hiring of college-age pages—high school graduates under 22 years of age—over an alternative proposal to set up supervised dormitories for the present predominantly high school-age page boys.

The Senate has long permitted television cameras and radio microphones in hearing rooms. The bill for the first time, would permit such news coverage in the House by a majority vote of the committee members.

A glass bubble over the House chamber has been discussed since 1954 when a group of Puerto Ricans fired a hail of bullets into the House floor from the galleries, but Chairman B. F. Sisk, D-Calif., said the study of glassing in the House is not for protecting members.

The purpose would be to send 1954's chamber, he said, so guides could explain what is happening on the floor without disturbing members.

The bill also would make stacked oil claims there and in tours of the Capitol free—they now cost 32 cents—and guides drafted from Colorado, near the Gulf of Alaska.

Panel To Explain Charter At Hearing Tomorrow Night

By MARGARET AULISO (Herald Reporter)

A public hearing to explain and the town still wants its own charter. It will be necessary to appoint another Charter Study Committee and begin the long, involved process all over again.

The Charter Study Committee has been working on the proposed charter for a year and has until Friday to complete its review of the document and to turn it over to the Board of Selectmen for its review and comments.

CSC Chairman Frank Kalas hopes to have copies of the proposed charter ready for tomorrow night's hearing.

The charter once adopted will permit the town to operate under so-called "home rule" provisions. The town would present the town to operate under the provisions of the charter.

Robert B. Thayer of Enfield as heard at a public hearing on April 27.

The Board of Selectmen has advertised for the purchase of the town's 1958 Cadillac ambulance on an "as is" basis.

The bids will be opened at the Board of Selectmen at 8 p.m. in the Town Hall. The vehicle, parked by the town administration building, is available for inspection on request. The selection will be made by the board and all bids for the vehicle.

Houley Raps GOP Censure Of Babbidge as 'Political'

Tolland County's Democratic State Sen. Robert Houley has taken issue with the censure action against University of Connecticut President Homer Babbidge by county Republican town chairman and state chairman Monday night.

Termed the GOP action "irresponsible" and "purely political," Houley emphasized that he does not condone the actions of the students who participated in the "painting" during which UConn students attempted to turn an ROTC hangar into a day care nursery for employees' children.

He was critical of the GOP leaders' actions which, he said, were taken before all the facts of the situation were known. "A censure is a serious step," Houley stated. "These censure actions should take the time to investigate a situation before embarking on such a course."

Houley noted that Mansfield's town chairman, Miss Aryle Charikoulian, spoke against the action, explaining that Babbidge should be given the opportunity to present his case before being judged. The Republican leaders' actions of censure "don't solve anything," Houley stated.

An American Heritage

Beer seems to have been a deciding factor in the Pilgrim landing at Plymouth Rock. A journal entry by a passenger on the Mayflower takes time for further search or consideration: our victuals being much spent, especially our beer.

John Alden, a cooper, made the voyage specifically to tend the beer barrels. These early Americans considered beer a food as well as a beverage — as do nutritionists today. Many New World families brewed their own beer while such notables as William Penn and George Washington developed and brewed private recipes for their families.

Since earliest times in homes around the world, beer has been welcome as the beverage of moderation.

In French Towns Anti-Semitism Source Of Abduction Stories

By HELEGA GRAHAM
The French Observers
PARIS — Just north of Paris and one hour distant from it by train lies Amiens, a small, sleepy town of 120,000 inhabitants with a Gothic cathedral, red brick houses and a brand new campus. For most of the past month it has been in the grip of a fantastic rumor, the most astounding thing is that people believed it. And not just the uneducated or scandal-mongering, but the respectable backbone of the community — doctors, school teachers and lawyers. The rumor spread like wildfire in Amiens. The story circulated only orally. There were no tracts, posters or graffiti. But there is a check and it stands out alarmingly. All the owners of the shops named are Jews.

Anti-semitism, which has always been strong among certain sections of the French population, has been dormant since World War II. Why it should reappear now is not clear, but the prevailing social atmosphere of uncertainty and President Pompidou's coldness toward Israel may both be stimulants.

One other explanation of its re-emergence through provincial dress shops is that these boutiques with their mini-skirts and maxi-coats are seen as symbols of aggressive modernism in small French towns whose traditional values and castes are on the decline. As these boutiques often happen to be Jewish-owned, the new fashions with old prejudice and finds its expression through it.

Curiously, this new rumor in Amiens coincided with the publication of a book by a French sociologist, Edgar Morin, on an Amiens identical rumor which hit Orleans just one year ago. Ac- cording to his findings many other French towns have been similarly affected. Toulouse, Tours, Limoges, Douai, Reims, Le Mans, Lille and Valenciennes.

In Amiens the parish magazine warned against certain shops. By the end of the second week the rumor had reached the dizzy height of 60 disappearances after an original "five or six." A new version was made. A certain Mrs. X had needed inserted back to the middle ages.

Robertson Gets Pierpont Edwards Medal

Malcolm Robertson of 412 Adams St. last night was awarded the Pierpont Edwards Medal in bronze for Distinguished Masonic Service. The medal is outstanding only by the same metal in silver for Eminent Masonic Services. Robertson, 41, is a member of the Grand Lodge of Connecticut, made the presentation at the annual Past Master's Night of Manchester Lodge of Masons. The honor had been a carefully guarded secret and came as a complete surprise to Robertson.

Presentations of Pierpont Edwards medals are made either during the annual convention of the Grand Lodge or the first week of April, or in the lodge of the recipient. Manchester Lodge of Masons, the honor had been a carefully guarded secret and came as a complete surprise to Robertson.

He becomes the sixth Manchester Mason to receive the honor, and the third in the last five years. The late father of Manchester's education system and his first superintendent of schools, Fred Ayer Verplanck, received the award in bronze in 1893, and in silver in 1948. He was grand master in 1910, and building at the Masonic Home and Hospital at Wallingford is named for him.

Others to receive the award in bronze are the late William "Dad" Walsh in 1947, the late president of the Savings Bank of Manchester R. LaMonte Russell in 1959, Chester M. Ferris of 32 Grand St. in 1960, and W. Sidney Hartnett of 100 Jean Rd. in 1967.

Robertson joined the Masonic fraternity in Manchester Lodge of Masons in 1952, his advanced Entered Apprentice degree. Education was completed at land R. Johnson was the president of the Masonic Fraternity in Boston.

He married the former Lucy Johnson in Fall River in 1941. The couple has two sons, Malcolm and Phillip H. Robertson, and two grandsons. He is currently serving as junior warden of the Oak Lodge of Perfection. He is a 32nd degree Mason of the Connecticut Consistory at Norwich and has a leading role in the ritual of the degree.

Malcolm Robertson and Grand Master Carl O. Carlson

Robertson holds the position of superintendent of the engineering drawing services. He is a member of the Directors Staff, and the Omar Shrine Club.

Robertson was born in Fall River, Mass., on March 28, 1914. After graduating Duxbury High school he entered the United States Army and served in the European theater during World War II. He was discharged in 1946 and joined the United Air Force.

Among members of the Grand Lodge family in attendance to witness the work of the degree were Past Masters Merle F. Tapley of South Wind-Center Congregational Church, Harrison, who is a grand trustee; John L. Von Deck Jr., deputy Stage Co. Next Year: Something For All

By JUNE LINTON (Herald Reporter)

Choosing next season's plays will be a final process of elimination after the other five are finally chosen and announced probably some time next month. The reason behind publishing the list of possibilities is to give subscribers an idea of what they're subscribing to while giving Wedner a bit more time to make his final decisions.

Wedner said audience reaction to the current season's plays, "The show were distinctly different in feeling and general tenor," he said. "The violent racism portrayed in 'The Trial of A. Lincoln,' is in sharp contrast to 'Dob Porter's musical,' 'Anything Goes,' which opens Friday.

The box office favorite so far this season has been "Miss Allright" by G.E. Shaw. Wedner agreed its attraction was most likely the appearance of Katharine Hepburn, who did not come to see it one evening. Wedner is counting on seeing them again now that they know on the list.

As he expresses it, "I never feel constrained to do a lot of plays simply to bring an audience in. The nature of theatre admits of many different kinds of things." Whether melodrama or contemporary drama, Wedner insists each is "part and parcel" of that special world audience sit and watch.

Heading the preliminary list is "Rosecrans and Gaudin: stern are Dead," by Tom Stoppard, described as a funny and fascinating rearrangement of the characters from "Hamlet." Also included is Noel Coward's "Bitter Sweet," Eugene O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey into Night," the musical, "Beyond the Fringe" and "The Royal Hunt" by Sheridan.

"The Tartan" by Sam Shepard is being considered along with "The Little Foxes" and "The Glass Menagerie" by Tennessee Williams. "Ring Round the Moon" by Jean

The recent running of the 24A Marathon brings to mind the race of 1971, won by an Onondago Indian, with the help of a slow-moving freight train.

A total of 114 runners gathered in Ashland, Mass., that year for the start of the 10th annual Marathon.

At the shot of the gun, Thomas Longboat, 18, of Hamilton, Ontario, stepped out in third place.

The two runners ahead of Longboat, both from New York, were moving at an easy pace as they approached the railroad crossing in South Framingham.

To their amazement, Longboat put on an unprecedented burst of speed for so early in the long race, and passed by them just seconds before a freight train pulled across the road.

The other runners jammed up on the other side of the track, and Longboat was homefree.

A Sudbury, Mass., man says the law has left him in the position of having to run for the School Committee.

Julius Rarus ran for the School Committee in the March town election, and came in last among four candidates.

Two of the candidates tied, however, so according to state law, there must be a run-off election, and all the original candidates must remain on the ballot.

Rarus says he doesn't want to clutter up the same, and therefore fired off a note to every voter in town, asking them not to vote for him.

Green Up day in Vermont was especially so for two workers.

As more than 2,000 persons scoured the countryside picking up trash in anticipation of Earth Day one person reported picking up a stray dog while another said he found a $50.

A Superior Court judge in Providence has ordered two Haverhill women not to talk to each other.

Judge Joseph Weisberger issued the order when Mrs. Rose Herold complained that her neighbor, Mrs. June Russell, has threatened to shoot the Herold dog.

Weisberger said any further contact between the two women would lead to trouble, and ordered them to register future complaints with the town.

A Massachusetts man, say Vermont State Police, pulled over beside the road while returning home from a day in Vermont last weekend and went for a walk while his wife slept in the back seat.

After a few minutes, he returned to the car and continued his drive.

Thirty-five miles later, he was stopped by police.

Apparently his spouse had also gone for a walk, and hubby hadn't noticed.

Children Safeguarded

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — School children will be "safeguarded" against possible sex education by a ban affecting all Transvaal province schools, Education Director Dr. A. L. Coetsee announced.

"Up to now there has officially been no sex education in Transvaal schools. The ban on sex education is therefore adding new," Coetsee said. If children spontaneously talk about sex in class, the teacher must "take his discretion in accordance with policy." He must never answer the child in front of the class, Coetsee said.

Dog Saves

KLINGBORN, South Africa (AP) — An African housewife suspect lived to bless the police dog that chased him. He jumped into a brook to escape the dog's sharp fangs, but got into trouble when he waded in deeper. He went under twice and came up again to find the dog at his side.

"He took my arm in his teeth and kept me above 1. In fact until the policemen arrived to help me out," the man said.

"Growing up ain't all that easy"

... said Janie to her counselor. But Janie's a lucky kid, even though she has a serious emotional problem. She sees a counselor. Most kids like Janie don't.

Children have long been the neglected group in the development of services and facilities for the mentally ill. We know there are more kids suffering from severe mental illness than current resources can possibly care for. They're disturbed and ill — and all too often forgotten. Not by us. We remember. We believe their future will be better because we remember. We hope you'll remember too.

Canada Fights Inflation From a Different Angle

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Canada, too, is having its problems with inflation, which suggests that the persistence of this malady in the United States economy may not be solely the result of an improper approach to the problem.

Canada, however, is attacking the problem a bit more directly. Unlike the United States, where the defeat of inflation is expected to be a natural result of an economic slowdown, Canada is considering direct credit controls.

Moreover, the Canadian government already has developed a program of voluntary restraints on prices and wages that has met with some success during the past few months, although the exact amount cannot be measured.

Here is a comparison of results in the battle against inflation:

Consumer Price Increases: In Canada, nearly 5 per cent, in the United States close to 6 per cent.

Unemployment: In Canada, slightly more than 5 per cent on an annual basis. In the United States, 4.8 per cent in April and rising slightly.

Industrial Output: In Canada, continuing at a slow pace but showing signs of perking up. In the United States, at a standstill or even falling back some.

Budget: Canada's is in surplus, meaning that the government is restricting economic activity. The U.S. budget also calls for a surplus, but many doubts are arising about the feasibility of this in either fiscal 1970 or 1971.

Perhaps the biggest difference is in the interpretation of economists. Many economists believe the United States is in the midst of a mild recession, based on declines in production. Canada's economy is still expanding.

The two economies are suffering from such similar problems, however, that the approach to the future in one country may have lessons for the other.

In Canada, the government is considering measures that would restrain the economy even more. Higher taxes are an outside possibility for later this year if prices and wages continue to rise.

That possibility becomes less remote when the wage situation is reviewed. New wage contracts have averaged 9 per cent a higher this year, threatening to outpace inflationary pressures because of age wage of $2.50.

VIENNA (AP) — The Hungarian trade union paper, "Nep-avaz," recently disclosed that a 30-year-old doctor hardly receives more than the equivalent of $78 a month. Starting salaries of doctors were as low as $2.50.

The paper pointed out that an industrial worker had an average wage of $22.50.

RANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The outlook is hopeful for most Saturday's presidential election, despite continued violence.

By Dominican standards, the last two weeks have been relatively normal, with an average of one politically motivated killing a day.

As of Thursday, an unofficial tally showed 15 persons killed since April 25. Five of them were policemen or soldiers.

President Joaquin Balaguer, on leave of absence from the National Palace since April 16, has been busy campaigning for a second term as the standard bearer of the Reformist party. He took his leave in agreement with the country's four opposition parties. They claimed his control over the powerful police and military would make an honest election impossible.

Balaguer is opposed by four candidates: his own vice president, Francisco Augusto Lara, who left the Balaguer party to form his own; former military strongman Gen. Elias Wessin y Wessin; Alfonso Moreno of the Social Christian party; and Jaime Manuel Fernandez of the National Conciliation Movement.

Fernandez was nominated last week after a heart attack killed the movement's first choice for the presidency, former provisional President Hector Garcia Godoy.

All public schools in the republic, closed because of disturbances, have been reopened by Manuel Ruiz Tejada, the nation's chief justice, who has assumed the powers of the president pending the election. He also reopened the University of Santo Domingo and ordered the withdrawal of soldiers and tanks ringing the campus. The several thousand students at the university are preparing for exams and there has been little trouble reported.

Balaguer is the favorite to win because his opponents have been hampered by hoarding, lack of campaign funds.

The big unknown is what the Dominican Revolutionary party spokesman, "El otro Balaguer" — the party's poor people aren't plotting now, they will do in the days remaining will be by may 17.

Soviet Commuter Troubles Similar to Those in America

By HOLGER JENSEN
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — Ivan the commuter spends three hours a day competing with several million suburbanites to get to and from work in Moscow.

He lives in a new high-rise apartment block in Golezdino, 20 miles west of the capital. Every morning he takes a bus to the railroad station, rides the electric suburban train to Moscow's Pili subway station, and transfers to a train that takes him to the Arbat station in the city center.

He rises early and commutes late after a 9 to 6 day clerking in a government ministry. His nerves are frayed from contact with rush-hour crowds. Trains and bus schedules keep him hopping. His wife says him because he never spends enough time with the kids.

His plight bears startling similarities to that of suburbanites commuting to the concrete cauldron of New York or Chicago. Ivan is not in the suburbs by choice, however.

He would love to live in Moscow, the "big village." He cannot find an apartment in the crowded city, so he commutes. Russian commuters have the same gripes as their Western counterparts — station delays, inadequate feeder transportation to suburban stations, poor heating of trains in winter and bad ventilation in summer, uncomfortable seats, standing room only at the rush hours and lack of a buffet, 11 miles of trolley lines and 80 miles of trolley cars, 400 trolley cars, 400 trolley cars, 400 trolley cars.

The only difference is fares and, in the case of the Moscow subway system, cleanliness. The Soviet Union boasts one of the cheapest transportation networks in the world.

Ivan's ride from Golezdino to Moscow costs him 40 kopeks one way. That's about 4 cents.

The subway takes one anywhere in the city center for 5 kopeks. Buses cost the same, trolley cars 4 kopeks.

The Soviet capital has seven million residents and only about 60,000 privately owned automobiles. Most Muscovites rely on a public transport to cross the sprawling city, covering a large rough circle about 25 miles across.

The oblast, or district, has 5.7 million more people. About half of these commute regularly to the city for work or shopping.

Since the district car-owner ratio is even lower, most ride electric trolleys.

Moskovskaya Fravda reported that in the last four years of the current five-year plan the city built two new subway lines, 111 miles of trolley lines and 80 miles of trolley cars. It added 50 new trolley cars, 400 trolley cars, 400 trolley cars.

But the present rate of construction indicates this solution is a long way off.

Rakitin and other transportation officials advocate extending the subway trolley system deeper into the heart of Moscow. That would eliminate the need for trolley transfer stations on the outskirts.

They are relying on completion of a "ring" around the city by 1975, designed as a bypass for long-distance travel. It would be a large number of railroad tracks for suburban train use.

But the present rate of construction indicates this solution is a long way off.
