Vote Power Of all that has been said in the aftermath of the Kent State University tragely, one of the most polgnant statements was that of an anguished coed. These four deaths wouldn't have hapsened, she said, if the government had istened to the students when they gathered by the hundred thousand in Washington last October for the Peace Moratorium. The students tried to work within the system, to express dissent peacefully, but nobody listened to them. Ever since campus unrest began at Berkeley back in 1964, the older generation has been telling the younger that if it wants to reform society it must work within the system set up by society. And more and more the young have been replying that society resists orderly change, that the system is stacked against reform. Therefore, more violent The fault is not that of youth. Somewhere along the line, while the children were raising a generation of obedient

Oh yeah? it is asked. What about the 1964 election? Did not the people vote overwhelmingly for Lyndon Johnson because he promised not to widen the war in Vietnam and overwhelmingly against Barry Goldwater because he talked as if he might? And did not Johnson turn around and do exactly what he promised through the megaphone.

What about the 1968 election? The people elected Richard Nixon because he said he had a plan to win the war and because they believed a fresh administration might have a better chance to get the country out of the entanglement. But now we are in Cambodia by Nixon's order and, a year and a half after his election, still have over 400,000 men in Viet-

This is democracy?

The reply is that a president's room for unilateral action as commander in chief is also part of the system, an imperfect system. In 1964, Congress backed up that power by giving the president a virtual blank check in Vietnam. In 1970, with the hindsight of six years, some senators wish they could give the President nothing more than 30-day renew-

The reaching of a consensus among the American people for withdrawal from Vietnam (but not a consensus on the speed of the withdrawal) has been a long, painful, costly process and students should not discount the role they played in that process. But the democratic system is not built for speed or sudden turn-

If demonstrations or rioting by a small minority had intimidated the President nto ordering an immediate withdrawal from Vietnam, the damage done to the system might in the long run have outweighed the short-run benefit of ending our part in the war.

Hundreds of college students - clear neat and polite - have descended on Washington in recent days to buttonhole congressmen and officials - to talk with them, not at them. Thousands of students plan to take time out from school this fall to work for the election of congressional candidates they support.

But these young people should be re-

Wishing Look Well

Soon after the goal of its successful existence became a large enough loss of circulation, the Saturday Evening Post up and died on us, and we never did check to see whether the final autopsy said that it suffered from too great a loyalty of readers. On the surface, however, that seems to have been the crucial trouble. So many people liked the Saturday Evening Post so much they could not bear to give it up that they, by their selfish insistence on retaining subscriptions, condemned the magazine they loved to death. It did them, the loyal readers, absolutely no good to ask what had happened in this topsy-turvy world, to make a large subscription the sign of magazine

Unlike the Saturday Evening Post, Look doesn't plan to be brutal about dismissing readers it doesn't want. It will merely relax its new subscription and subscription renewal campaigns in those areas it doesn't care about covering any more. The areas where it would just as soon lose readers are the small cities and the rural villages. And the reason it would rather have its readers concentrated in about 60 major met-

White House Isolation The swelling tide of dissent from a widespread section of this nation's population, embracing all shades of politi cal thought; ethnic and cultural background; race and religion, against adninistration policies in Cambodia and Vietnam, and in domestic affairs, suggests that President Nixon is seriously alienated from the hopes, dreams an desires of his fellow countrymen. While solitude and isolation may be acceptable in the ordinary individual, for head of state to cut himself off from the nainstream of public opinion and conviction is calamitous. The administration's abrupt decision to commit American troops in an invasion of Cambodia, plus the killing o four Kent State University students by red anger and despair all across these 50 United States. Compounding the bitterness felt by those who believe President Nixon's war policies are carrying the nation on the road to disaster the hostile contempt voiced by administration spokesmen toward those participating in dissent. Within the highlevels of the government there is dissatisfaction and frustration, as witnessed by Secretary of the Interior Walter Hicker's remarkable letter to the President, imploring him to pay heed to the voices of the nation's youth and ly with the men in his Cabinet.

In the rescu mode the space shuttle will be designed so that it can be maintained in a state of launch readiness for extended periods. It must be capable of being launched within a two-hour period into an orbit with any inclination. The payload capability used to carry scientists and repair specialists into orbit to cope with problems beyond the ability of the crew. The financial return of this type of service involves scores of millions of dollars. As a case in point, the first Orbiting Astronomical Observatory was launched successfully but a malfunction of the satellite resulted in a loss to the space program of about $60 million. With a rescue capability, this satel-lite might have been salvaged. The manned rescue operations may range from the "abandon ship" situation where the entire crew has to be rescued to cases where a severely ill person must be returned to earthbased medical facilities. That's the question that has been kicked around this week outside the courtroom of Judge Irving Ben Cooper, who is hearing the suit against baseball in which the former St. Louis outfielder contends the sport operates in restraint of trade through the reserve system.

In developing their case, Flood's attorneys have called on Flood, Jackie Robinson, Hank Greenberg and Jim Brosnan, all former players, who condemned the reserve system for being weighted in favor of the owners and, therefore, unfair to the players.

"T or C is syndicated on 112 stations, 95 of them with net-work affiliations," Edwards remarked. "If This Is Your Life' hits again, we might go on a network. On the other hand, it might be more profitable to re-main in syndication. Then you can be on all three networks, depending on the area."

Edwards also saw hope for syndication in the proposed Fed-sion rule to remove half-hour nightly from network control of station programming. Everyone who watched "This Is Your Life" during its nine years on TV has his own memorable shows. I asked Ed-

TOUGH KIDS

NBC-TV's Dean Martin says there were some tough kids in his school. There was a boy, for instance, who once opened his lunch box in class and started to drink out of his Thermos. No one know what beverage was in the Thermos, claims Dean, until the boy jumped on his desk and yelled, "All the arithmetic problems are on me!"

PAINTER

Susan Seaforth, featured reg-ular on NBC-TV's "Days of Our Lives," recently took up painting seriously and then sold two of her canvases to Jack Herzberg, the associate executive producer of the daytime dramatic series.

"CORN BREAD BOY"

"I'm a beans and corn bread but I'm learning about food," says Glen Campbell, star of "The Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour" on the CBS Tele-vision Network. "The first time I went to an Italian restaurant in Beverly Hills they asked me if I would like some zucchini. I looked at the plate next to me and said, 'No, thanks, but I would like some of that squash.' "
