"Good health and physical fitness are the logical and necessary starting points for excellence in all things."

We didn't say that. The President's Council on Physical Fitness did. But we couldn't agree more!

For twenty years it has been the mission of the European Health Spa to help men and women discover for themselves that vibrant good health adds a plus to every... activity and aspect of life.

Our three-quarter-million-dollar facility now under construction in Manchester is designed "from the ground up" to provide the latest and best in scientifically-developed conditioning equipment.

ONLY MINUTES AWAY... A map showing the location of European Health Spa near Manchester and Hartford.

Did we ever mention the poolside lounge area for carefree lazing and the private sun booths in which one minute of exposure equals one hour in the sun? These, too, are favorites at our health clubs.

Of course, dressing and grooming areas will offer comfort, convenience, privacy—with the security of individual lockers. Reception and lounge areas... but really, it's impossible to "tell all" here.

If you value your health and fitness and want a trimmer, younger-looking appearance, you owe it to yourself to check it out in person. You'll find the European Health Spa offers something truly new and unique in the Hartford area.

During construction, our friendly, professional staff of health maintenance specialists is right at the Spa site, ready to answer all your questions.

ABOUT FEES AND "PHASES" The sooner you join the European Health Spa, the lower your fees will be. Our company offers memberships in 10 gradually increasing "price phases."

This is the first in a series of four articles on nursery schools, based on visits to six nursery school programs in Manchester. The articles will explore the subject of freedom and authority and what balance is necessary for a growing child.

Liberal Study: How Much, How Young

In a child naturally good or must be trained to be good? Should society in its child rearing attempt to maintain traditional values or allow children to grow naturally and perhaps develop new ones? Freedom and how much of it can be allowed a growing child is a subject long debated by child development specialists.

Interior Subcommittee got down to one specific case.
 It was conducting a hearing on the proposal that the government give back to the Tio Pueblo Indians of New Mexico, few and clear to do as they please with it, including doing absolutely nothing to use or improve its resources, a 46,000-acre tract of land including Blue Lake, sacred in the Tio Pueblo religion.
 This was one of the specific things President Nixon had recommended the day before.

What the hearing demonstrated was that there is a universal will to do something for the Indian, and a willingness to give the Indian anything that belongs to him, providing the process doesn't involve taking something away from the white man and his existing use of the country.
 In the case of Blue Lake, the battle for white retention of what we have taken from the Indians had the most creditable type of leadership. It is the United States Forest Service which doesn't want to have its own management of the territory lapse back toward the Indians who might just worship the trees there instead of manage them.

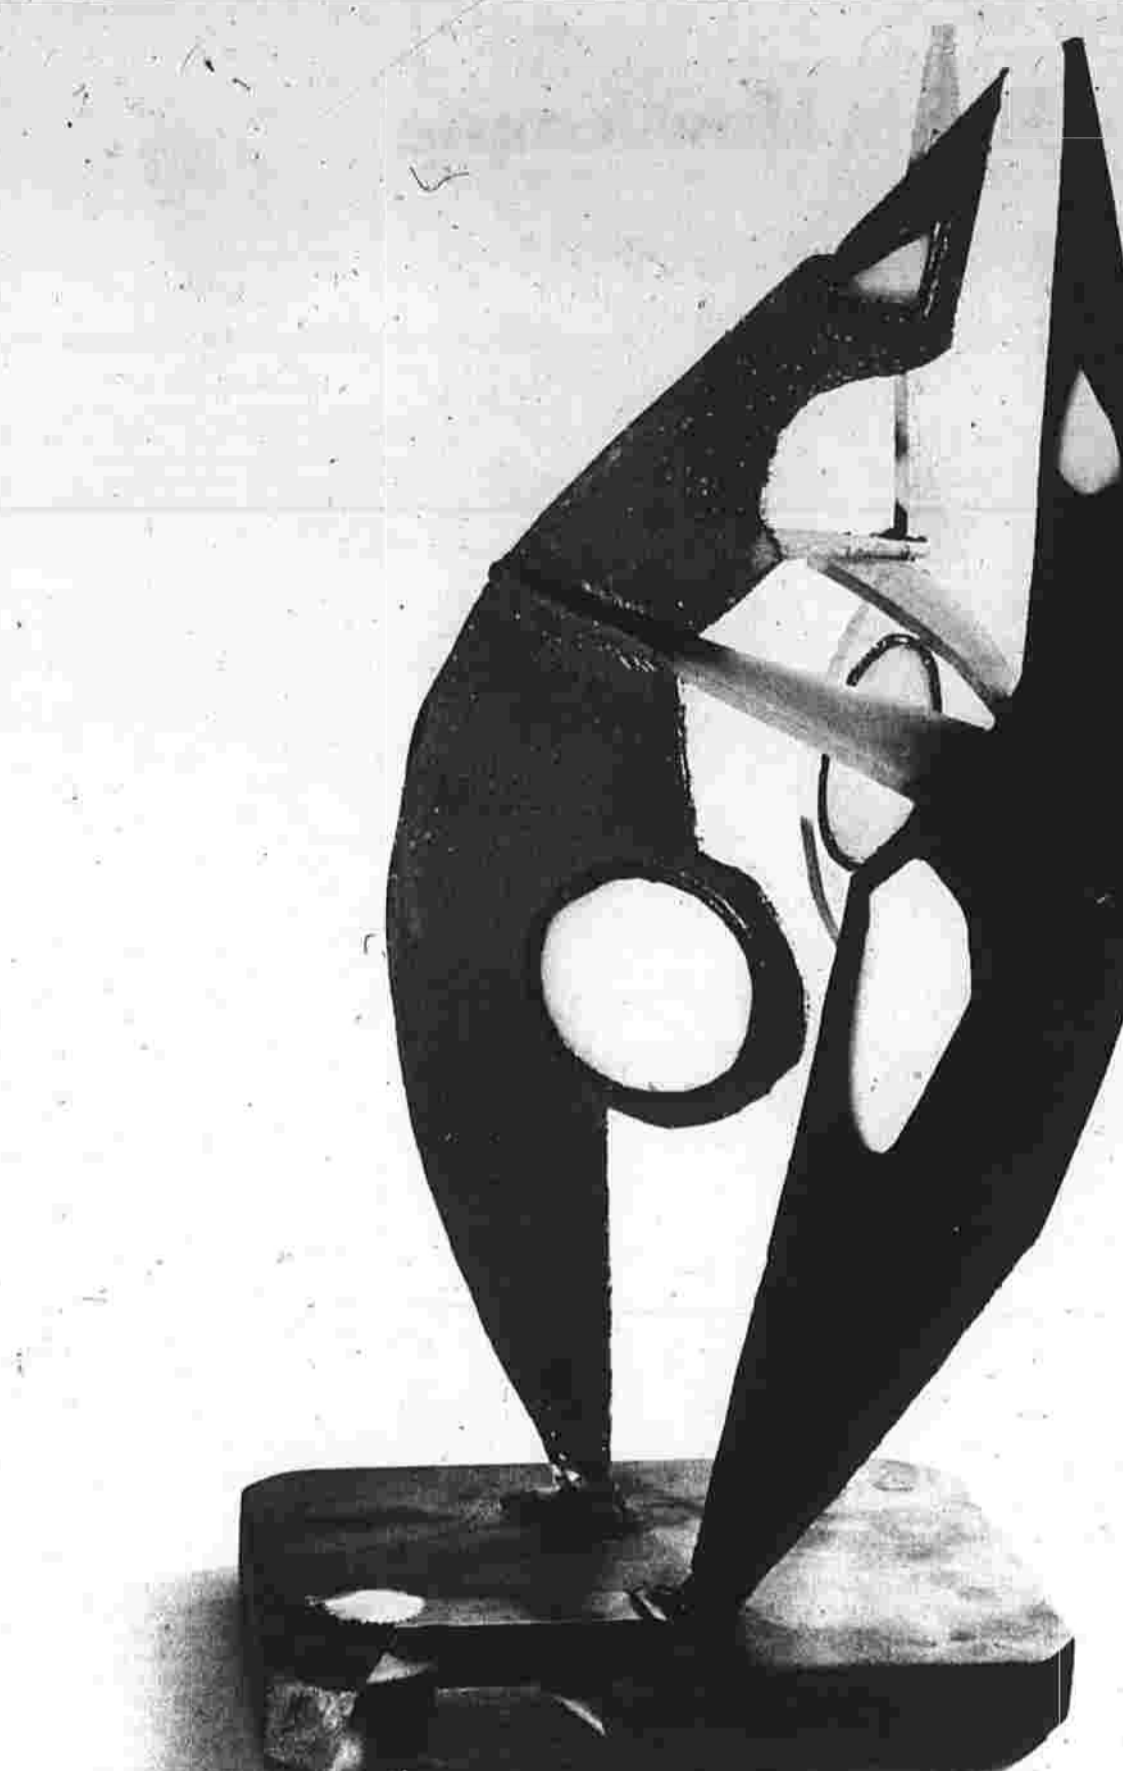

Our national sense of guilt over our treatment of the Indians seems to be on a continual increase. We talk much more about it, and we keep searching for new ways to show that we are becoming more civilized than our grandfathers and great grandfathers who merely found the Indian an obstacle to their own natural destiny to manage this fair land.
 But we have not yet evolved, in our pentence, to the point where we are willing to surrender our own right to judge what is best for the Indian and for his land and let him decide for himself what his values and practices are to be.
 He can have anything he wants, the American Indian, so long as we don't happen to be using it, or have better ideas for it than he is likely to, and so long as it doesn't interfere with any of the rights and privileges of those innocent present day Americans who, of course, had absolutely nothing to do with the Indian policies of yesterday.
 We talk better than this, and we intend better than this, but our actual action has a way of settling down into the sometimes limited sphere such considerations leave open.
 The term "Indian giver" has, in reality, always meant gift to the Indian.

Only The Weapons Change?

This month—the first bomb ever built was exploded successfully in New Mexico on July 16, 1945—the nuclear age is 25 years old.
 For 25 years, most men have been living in possession of the theoretical knowledge that civilization now possesses the technical power to destroy itself, in physical, chemical terms.
 For some people there have been some moments in which this theoretical knowledge has seemed real knowledge—real enough to frighten and concern us.
 But one thing is certain. That is that we human beings have not done, have not even really begun to do, the things we would recognize as sheer necessity if we really were capable of taking the nuclear age seriously.
 We would, if we took the bomb seriously, have had it under some kind of control long before this.
 We would, if we took the bomb seriously, have got control, by that time, some kind of world government capable of preventing war in which the bomb might be used.
 In reality, the world is in anarchy so far as control of the bomb is concerned.
 It is in the jungle, so far as real law against war is concerned.
 From this state of affairs, one central deduction has to be made.
 The bomb has not frightened us enough to make us change our ways.
 Perhaps we have cried woe to ourselves so many times we no longer pay much attention to ourselves.
 Perhaps we find the problem of safety too difficult to solve, and so turn toward trying to deal with the smaller things of life, where we have some chance.
 Or perhaps we have some blind faith in the luck and destiny of man—some unquerable instinct which tells us that man is going to make out all right, atomic bomb or no.
 Whatever the explanation, the fact is that we do not move.
 There is no greater guarantee against the use of nuclear weapons than there was 25 years ago.
 There is no more workable law against war than there was 25 years ago.
 It does not look, then, as if the bomb which can destroy us is going to prove to be the bomb that saves us. It has made little more impression on the actual conduct of human affairs than did gunpowder in its day, or the tank, or the dive bomber. The weapons change; human nature doesn't seem to. Is that the end of the story?
 Is there to be no voice which can awaken men to such a positive vision of life they themselves might be able to shake off their fatal numbness and act as if they could be capable of free decisions?
 Is there to be no creed which can persuade men into such reverence for life they would really shun, instead of seeking, the taking of it?
 Is this the story of civilization, that man has thought and dreamed his way through these few thousand years merely to become the victim of his own stupidity?
 Most of us have always believed differently. But it would be reassuring, in the 25th year of the atomic age, to have some positive evidence at hand.

Inside Report Republican Mess In Ohio

By Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

COLUMBUS, Ohio — When Ohio Republican Party caucus met here last week to ratify the favored candidate for president, the chief fund-raiser Richard Niehoff bluntly informed them that they were converting to cope with a "disastrous" situation.
 His description was not exaggerated. The monthlong self-confident Ohio party shaped by Roy C. Willis has been reduced to a disordered, demoralized band of feuding politicians. Last May's debilitating Republican primary contests were followed by major statewide scandal that now promises to cost the state's taxpayers $4 million and throw the GOP out of Columbus.
 Here is an unexpected wry tale for an Ohio Democratic party grown steadily feebler through the 1960s and this year, running a ragtag collection of candidates for lesser state offices. (Including 70-year-old Joseph T. (Jumping Joe) Ferguson for state auditor). So profound is the Republican distress that a Democratic sweep for all state offices now seems likely, the Republicans could well lose the state House of Representatives, and even Rep. Robert Taft, Jr.'s lead for the U.S. Senate against liberal Democrat Howard Metzenbaum is shrinking.

 This political turnaround comes at a most critical time. With legislative and Congressional reapportionment just ahead, a Republican debacle could drastically transform the political balance of power in this critically important state.
 The Old Bill system of unopposed primaries saving Republican money for the full campaign collapsed completely this year in primaries for Senator and Governor dissipating campaign funds (up to $2 million, according to State Chairman John Andrews). But the post-primary statewide scandal was the final blow to the party that Bill built.
 It was revealed that two members of the state

Ever since the Democratic State Convention over which you presided so ably adjourned we have been troubled in two departments, that of our own conscience, and that of worry over any possible tendency you may have to blame yourself for a certain negative piece of the outcome of that convention.
 The possible matter for our own conscience lies in the fact that we commented extensively, just after the adjournment of the Republican State Convention, on what seemed to be a new Connecticut tradition. We noted that your fellow townsman, Republican State Senator T. Clark Hill, had made it to his party's nomination for lieutenant governor almost as a direct result of his exposure of a general and patient and apologetic for the delays of others. There were the delegates, beyond and besides, and looking for some way to punish leadership for coming up too little and too late with the business of leadership. Somebody threw the match up on the stage, and the warm explosion followed, and the convention stampeded itself to Hill in a matter of minutes.
 On top of this, we recalled that another Republican State Senator, Dr. Gran won first prize at the annual Art Contest of the Connecticut State Medical Society. The material employed was Vitralene, a low density polyethylene plastic made in England, which melts like wax and adheres firmly when cooled. It is used for body molds and braces for crippled children at the Newtonville Children's Hospital.

It seemed very simple, in outline. There he was, pleasant and genial and patient and apologetic for the delays of others. 22 DeMolay Boys Fill Town Posts

The Town of Manchester gained a new mayor, general manager, and police chief this morning—only for today.

Twenty-two members of the John Mather Chapter, Order of DeMolay, took the places of town officials. The event is the second annual DeMolay Government Day. The days last set up this morning. When John B. Harkins, assistant general manager, briefed the young men of the organization on what they would be doing. Each youth is assigned to a department, under the guidance of the chief of that department. Government day is an opportunity to learn as much about town government as you can, Harkins told the group.
 Following the day's work, there will be a supper for all participants and town officials at the Masonic Temple.
 Today's officials are: Mayor: Richard McAwley, taking the place of Nathan Agostinelli.
 General Manager: Edward McMillin, advised by Robert Weis.

demanded that Herbert and Turner resign.
 But rural Republican leaders are bitter that Cloud, Andrews, and Hughes so quickly attacked Herbert and Turner. The unusual circumspect Blus, now Ohio's Democratic campaign chairman, upbraided Hughes recently in a private conversation that quickly became common knowledge.
 Republican attacks on Herbert and Turner only added fuel to Democratic campaign ammunition, the rural Republicans argue, and probably hurt Cloud most of all. The result: A widely propagated myth that Herbert will survive while his tormentor, Cloud, is defeated.
 "That is sheer nonsense. Finance to last week's party financial meeting, Cloud's men were distributing party polls showing Herbert behind for attorney general by 2 to 1 while Cloud, though trailing, is much closer to Democratic John J. Gilligan.
 But Republican men reluctant to pour any money into the Cloud campaign, feel Cloud has slipped badly (compared to pollster Oliver Quayle's secret survey which shows Cloud's 67 per cent job done in a year ago now at 51 per cent).
 The Republican situation in the Democratic district for the dexterity of Ohio Democrats, developed over the past few years, is being tested in fact, the best hope for Cloud and some of his running mates is for Gilligan, unquestionably the most interesting figure in Ohio politics today, to commit the same errors he made in two past losing campaigns—a subject worthy of a future column.
 "Can we afford to entrust our fate to the natural resources to Cloud was joining Andrews in Democratic luck?" he said.

At that time Zampano rejected a defense attorney's motion that Fardus be confined to a mental hospital near his home. The judge said that was a medical decision, not a judicial one.

VISTA Post Turned Down By Blumenthal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard D. Blumenthal, 34-year-old former White House aide says he has rejected an offer to head Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA). The job pays $38,000 a year.
 Blumenthal, currently on duty with the Marine Corps at Parris Island, S.C., declined comment on a report that he turned down the post because he has doubts about the administration's approach to the agency. The Washington Post said Blumenthal reportedly gave that reason to Donald Rumsfeld, Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, VISTA's parent agency.
 Rumsfeld attributed the rejection to administration plans to fill the post before Blumenthal completes his Marine Corps obligation.
 Blumenthal confirmed he met with Rumsfeld and turned down the job but would not elaborate. Sources said he and Rumsfeld met over the past weekend.
 Blumenthal was quoted by the Post as telling Rumsfeld he "didn't think I could do a good job defending the President's policy."
 Prior to last April Blumenthal was a staff assistant to Daniel P. Moynihan, a White House counselor.
 Rumsfeld, the Post said, was reported to have urged Blumenthal's return to the White House staff this fall. But the newspaper's sources said Blumenthal has made tentative decision not to return.

Officials Get General Look At Interstate Highway Plans

By WILLIAM COB
(Herald Reporter)

Members of the Chamber of Commerce parking and traffic committee and Town Manager Robert B. Weiss this morning got a wide-ranging but generalized look at plans for interstate highway construction in the Manchester area.

All interstate area projects have equal priority and all are currently under design. But some may be delayed longer than others because of "more serious problems," said the State Department of Transportation official who made the presentation.

He was George Coch, assistant director of design for the department's Bureau of Highways, who was assisted by Andrew Kennedy, a design engineer.

The basic plan under review showed the proposed widening of the Wilbur Cross Highway (now designated I-84) and the construction which will relate to it, including the collector west of Laurel Lake to the north of I-84 currently under construction through Manchester. It also showed the proposed route of I-84, which will cross the Putnam Bridge at Glastonbury and run northwesterly through East Hartford, joining the existing Wilbur Cross (which becomes I-84 to the Massachusetts line) also west of Laurel Lake.

Related plans looked at included the relocated Tolland Tpk.—Oakland St. intersection, the I-291 connector, which is proposed to run easterly from the Bassett Bridge in South Windsor to the Wilbur Cross as far as Vernon Circle in the vicinity of the city.

At the Tolland-Oakland intersection, the cloverleaf feeder lanes running northerly to the widening of the Wilbur Cross calls for five lanes in each direction as far as the Vernon Circle, narrowing to four lanes each way to Mile Hill Rd. in Rockville, then becoming three lanes east to the state line. Coch said.

He said the entire section is now under design contract. In answer to questioning, he declined to speculate on completion, beyond stating that the deadline for all projects now authorized under federal funds already allocated is June 30, 1974.

The whole program is moving ahead," he said, "though not as fast as we'd like."

Many new regulations governing federal highway programs, imposed under the current administration, have proven to be a "serious roadblock," Coch said.

Some right-of-ways for the proposed widening of Silver Lane have already been acquired, Coch said, and the design of that project is virtually complete. He said 182 properties will be affected.

Hearing Delayed
Public hearings on the I-84, I-84 proposals are planned for both East Hartford and Manchester early in the fall, probably in September, but no dates have been established, Coch said.

He said a July 23 hearing scheduled in East Hartford was canceled because state officials found that many people might be away on vacation.

There has been considerable controversy in that town over the proposed route of I-84, which is shown going through several heavily populated areas in the eastern sector.

Along with the Wilbur Cross widening, many interchanges have been redesigned, and will provide much safer and higher traffic capabilities, Coch pointed out.

New Interchange
New interchange in the area of Oakland St. and Tolland Tpk. is the reason for the proposed relocation of Tolland Tpk.

According to the preliminary plan showing, the widening will begin in the area of Avery St. and the relocated Tolland Tpk., where the road will be routed "in an arc somewhat south of its present course east as far as Parker St. Plans call for widening to run easterly from the Bassett Bridge in South Windsor to the Wilbur Cross as far as Vernon Circle in the vicinity of the city.

School Board Approves Projects at Three Sites

The Board of Education last night approved plans for additions and renovations to Robertson, Nathan Hale and Keeney St. schools for purposes of preparing cost estimates to present to the Board of Directors preparatory to a November referendum.

The board adopted a resolution on school vandalism and heard presentations from the high school administration on changes in rank-in-class system, independent study program and extension of the lunch period to junior high school men.

M. Philip Susag, board building and site committee chairman, said the board's July 27 meeting would be devoted to a review of estimated costs of the expansion and changes in the three elementary schools.

In the interim, he added, informal talks will be held with owners of property being considered for a third junior high school site.

Proposed plans for the addition of 12 classrooms and two kindergarten rooms to Robertson will add 20,000 square feet; a combination gymnasium-auditorium, locker rooms, kitchen and cafeteria facilities, and four classrooms will add 17,000 square feet to Nathan Hale; and six classrooms and expansion of the cafeteria area will add 7,800 square feet to Keeney.

Susag of the Town Reconstruction Department informed his committee the Teen Center next year would not occupy that portion of the top floor of the School St. Board of Education Annex, where it has been located for several years.

Consequently, Mankay Associates has been selected to study the feasibility and probable cost of redesigning the area for administrative office use, which would release space in the Benett Junior High School Main Building for three classrooms.

In an effort to prevent school building vandalism, the board resolved to undertake the following steps:

1. Continue support of existing preventive measures, such as lighting, police patrols, building checks, etc., and consideration of suggested approaches for prevention which are offered.

2. Firm and positive action including legal steps against those perpetrating acts of vandalism both in justice and in an effort to recover financial damages.

3. Thorough investigation of all acts of school vandalism including continued cooperation with law enforcement agencies designed to investigate such acts.

4. Appreciation for the cooperation of all citizens in assisting it to protect public school buildings from acts of vandalism and/or mischief, and a request that citizens knowing such acts or witnessing same, report them immediately to the school authorities or to the Manchester Police Department.

The following specific recommendations were made in the proposed changes in the system to determine a high school senior's rank in class: 1. That each level have a different weight with honors receiving the highest weight for a grade, and Level 2 the lowest; 2. That non-level courses be given a weight midway between Level 2 and Level 3.

Also, that a 20 per cent greater weight be given to

Replaced by Spillane Bagley Quits Board, Daughter To Teach

In a figurative sense, a Bagley passed a Bagley at last night's Board of Education meeting. Roger Bagley, who was elected to the Board in November 1966 and assumed his position in November of the following year for a three-year term, submitted his resignation, which was accepted.

In tendering his resignation, he said he wished to avoid any possible question of conflict of interest. Among 37 professional appointments approved by the board was his daughter, Miss Daryl Bagley, to teach kindergarten at Nathan Hale School. She received her BS in education from the University of Connecticut last year.

Bagley and John Fletcher, whose term will expire this fall, chose not to run for reelection to the board last November. Until he resigned, Bagley was chairman of the board's personnel-innate committee, and a member of the building and site committee. He was Manchester representative to the Connecticut Association of Boards of Education (CABE), and chairman of Region 11 of CABE, composed of 12 towns in the Greater Hartford area.

Prior to election to the Board of Education, he was chairman of the Zoning Board of Appeals, and served on the Republican Town Committee.

A native of Buffalo, N. Y., Bagley received his bachelor of education degree from the University of Connecticut in 1962. He is a 1966 graduate of Eastern Connecticut State College, where he was a member of the Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society.

He is currently employed by the Board of Education in the Greater Hartford area.

His wife, Mrs. Barbara Bagley, is a graduate of Central Connecticut State College and a resident of Hartford. Salary $7,300.

Hartford Youth
Held in Holdup At Knifepoint

A 17-year-old Hartford youth has been taken into custody by Manchester detectives in connection with the June 1 holdup of the Texas Service Station at the intersection of Main St. and Broad St. in Hartford.

The youth, Joseph E. Stepien, was arrested yesterday on a Circuit Court 12 warrant charging him with robbery with violence.

Manchester detectives, accompanied by Hartford police, found Stepien in a car with his brother, Joseph Stepien, Jr., at the Texas Service Station at the intersection of Main St. and Broad St. in Hartford.

About $125 in cash was taken in the knifepoint robbery. Two men approached the attendant, Steven Parrham, and asked him for change for a soft drink machine, and then suddenly pulled a knife on him. He was not harmed, however.

Another suspect, Henry Coleman, 18, of 486 N. Main St., was bound over to Superior Court for a hearing in Manchester Circuit Court 12 on June 18.

Stepien appeared in Circuit Court 12 in East Hartford this morning, where his case was continued to Thursday in Manchester. Bond set at $5,000 with surety, could not be posted, and he was held in the Hartford Correctional Center.

Palmer Has 48 Good Reasons to Worry As National Lineup Loaded with Power

CINCINNATI (AP) — Everybody wonders what kind of bounce the baseballs will take tonight in the first All-Star game ever played on a wall-to-wall carpet. Everybody expects Jim Palmer to have a good reason to worry.

Palmer, who is right arm pitcher for the Baltimore Orioles, has a seven-year All-Star record of 145 games, 114 starts, and a 2.41 ERA. He is one of the best pitchers in the National League, and he has 148 good reasons to worry.

"How am I going to relax tonight?" Palmer said. "I'm going to be pitching against the Baltimore Orioles. I'm going to be pitching against the Baltimore Orioles. I'm going to be pitching against the Baltimore Orioles."

The NL, which trailed 15-4 at one point in the game's 37-year history, has won 11 of the last 13 confrontations, the last seven in succession.

"Sure it bugs me that the American League has come to be known as the 'inferior league,'" Palmer said. "I don't think the All-Star Game is a true indication of the leagues' respective strengths. But it's embarrassing to lose seven in a row."

"The streak?" Weaver replied to a question. "Yes, I think I'll mention it before the game."

Palmer said he would like to see the American League win. "I don't think the All-Star Game is a true indication of the leagues' respective strengths. But it's embarrassing to lose seven in a row."
