Alabama Of Wallace

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) -Alabama Republicans are seeking a stronger voice in state government while shying away from a head-on clash with George Wallace.

Delegates to the Republican State Convention, mindful of the losses the party suffered in 1966 by running a candidate against the late Lurieen Wallace, showed no sentiment today in favor of challenging Wallace in the governor's race this year. No one had even offered to run against the Democratic nominee as the convention entered its final day. The Republican leaders con

Alabama GOP Shy Of Wallace

Delegates to the Republican State Convention, mindful of the losses the party suffered in 1966 by running a candidate against the late Lurieen Wallace, showed no sentiment today in favor of challenging Wallace in the governor's race this year. The Young Folks Get Together The triumph in the British system of royalty is that Prince Charles and Princess Anne not only comport themselves with a faint atmoshpere of story book distinction, but also show unmistakable signs of being individual human

Where their mother, the Queen, has just been required to lead a royal foray into the northern wilds of Canada, to make sure that the United States doesn't forget, in its navigational and oil reserves exploration, that Canadian sovereignty extends into the Arctic, the Prince and Princess, by the very grace and distinction of their presence, have very little trouble reasserting that slight degree of sovereignty the British image still holds over American social instincts. What fine products they seem, these two young people, of the British

It so happens they are being entertained, the Prince and Princess, by three young Americans who have also done well with the problem of retaining personal individualities in the face of pub-samples of young people reared in atmospheres of pomp and importance and power. They, like their guests, have somehow managed to retain naturalness and individuality.

If, underneath the compulsory surface conformity required of all five of them, there smoulders some revolutionary instinct, it is well controlled. Perhaps Princess Anne and Tricia will, somewhere outside the range of camera and microphone,h' ave a moment or two of private escape, in which they join in tearing their respective Establishments

But the picture we get, and the picture we would not change, is that of a weekend which comes straight out of some Victorian story book. We hope the young ladies carry parasols. We hope We hope the world does not have to touch them, for these few hours, with ts cheap cruelties, its contrived con roversies, or its too importunate realsms. Let these young people be, for a vignette, before the grind resumes.

The Tests Flunk Too

While we have the political polls on he run might also be a good time to apply a lash or two to the psychological est, which is supposed to tell prospective employers which job applicants to

Once the hottest thing in the employment procedure, the psychological tests have been cooled a bit as experience with them has broadened.

One company found that the tests were giving it an endless succession of average employes, none of whom would ever be likely to have an original thought or make a creative suggestion.

Other employers have found that some of the people who do the very best on psychological tests are terrible flops when they are put in the jobs their performance on the tests has won for them.

Or, to go back to the original premise, the supposedly scientific prediction of man performance, either in mass voting or in the individual job, is not yet a guaranteed process. With a little good luck for the dignity of the individual and the liveliness of society, it never will be a guaranteed process

Americans Do Some Funny Things Once again, the Fourth of July has come and gone. And once again we have all been reminded of what, presumably, we were and what, presumably, we are. The pretty magazines show us what we are. We all go to grandpa's for a picnic, with the kids, and our big, slaver ing, lovable dog. Our old folks sit around the pot-bellied stove and play checkers Our young men stand up proudly in town eetings and speak their piece.

Then, sometimes, we reminisce. There's the minuteman, rifle at the ready, prepared to repel the British. Or Teddy Roosevelt, charging up San Juan Hill, Kindly old Robert E. Lee, astride Traveler Bill Cody, racing into the sunset in pursuit of buffalo. We have a problem.

We simply don't seem to know wha ve were. And not knowing what we were, we can hardly know what we are. Weems did to George Washington. We cosmetize everything. We re-create a naion that never was. And, having done this, we allow radicals at both extremes o insist that we live up to standards that we never really set and goals we never

We have produced an America that tree. In point of fact, we as a nation have chopped down whole forests of cherr trees—and cheerfully denied our crimes We have hoisted ourselves on our own phony petard, and it should not surprise is when this immense firecracker blows Take that minuteman who marched off to fight the British almost 200 years ago. He didn't carry a rifle; he and his forbears had been here for almost 150 years, and often he was a city boy. He was as apt to be a shopkeeper as any thing else, and he knew a lot more about pots than musket balls. He was scared to death of British troops, and as often as not he ran when the shooting got hot. We had no real army until Valley Forge, when those shopkeepers who hadn't taken off for home were finally marched and drilled into professiona soldiers. They were cheated, lied to, and mistreated by a Continental Congress hat contained as many poltroons as patriots. In the end, this superb little army won because the French - for self-serv ng reasons of their own — sent over a navy and an army. We proudly say we never lost a war But the sons of these "minutemen" marched off to another war in 1812. General Hull, an aging veteran of the Revo ition, led an invasion of Canada conured up visions of disaster, retreated to Detroit, and promptly surrendered his headed for Washington. The militia-93,000 of them-was called to the colors and 7,000 responded. Five miles from the Capitol, at Bladensburg, the entire American army, save for a handful of ailors, blanched at the first sight of the British, turned, and ran. The British burned the White House and the Capitol, just as American troops earlier had burned York, the capital of Upper Canada. We celebrate the glorious achievement of the American navy - Old Iron sides and Don't Give Up the Ship - but in fact, by 1814 the navy was firmly blockaded and the nation was bankrupt. Peace came not a moment too soon. We say we are a nation guided by

With this longlived miniature space station the Soviet Union is forging another link in the chain which will inevitably carry them to a manned landing on Mars." They have completed most successful Venus proect, though they have had consistent failures in their Mars attempts. Next year they may launch spacecraft to Mars at about the same time we launch our Mars Orbiter, With the success they have had with their Venera probes, one should not be surprised to see them make an effort at a soft landing on the Martian surface—a step the every 19 months. While the soft lander is not comparable to the manned landing, it will undoubtedly be exploited in their remarkably ef fective propaganda machinery. The Soviets were astounded by the tremendous public relations coup associated with the launching of the first Sputnik. Their leadership, notably the astute Nikita Khrushchev, recognized the impact of space flight on the contemporary political scene and, with consummated skill, However, with the fall of K., the new Kremlin leadership, short on political astuteness and flamboyancy, was reluctant to invest the tremendous sums of money needed to keep pace with the United States in unar explorations. Certainly, this was true until the impact of the Vietnamese war curtailed our generous NASA budget. In a similar fashlon, the commitments made by the Soviet Union to Cuba, Vietnam, the Mideast and, most important, the tremendous numbers of Soviet soldiers and war materiel committed along its China bor-

Dear Senator:

It seems to have fallen upon this department to write the various letters of condolences which have been made appro priate by the events of the emocratic State Convention We have just finished one young Bill Ratchford up in Danoury-you remember the nice young fellow who made it to be speaker of the House last time -in which we assured him that there was no reason in th world why he should seek take any personal blame for the fact that the convention pass ed him over. He presided beautifully at the convention. Hazardous Maple, 150, Felled in Coventry

This 150-year-old rock maple in Coventry fell before the power saws yesterday, the victim of old age and decay. The tree, one of state's oldest, was considered a hazard, situated as it was on busily-traveled Rt. 31, on the Martin Griffin property. The maple was seven feet four inches in diameter and 107 feet tall, with some lower branches up to six feet in diameter. (Herald photo by Buceivicius)

Suit Charges Water Damage

The Town of Manchester has been named co-defendant in a $5,000 suit, brought by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Kehoe of 324 Lydall St. and returnable in

The other co-defendants are Mr. and Mrs. Earl Everett of 375 S. Main St. and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Broderick of 318 Lydall St. Papers filed in the town clerk's office state that Mr. and Mrs. Everett own the 318 Lydall St. property and that Mr. and Mrs. Broderick occupy

Mr. and Mrs. Kehoe claim that surface water from the Buckley School, on Vernon St., drained onto their property and that it ran into their cellar and into their septic system, causiture, paneling and personal belongings.

They claim also that, the same day, the swimming pool at 318 Lydall St. ruptured, sending a flow of water onto their property and causing loss and

Tribal Warfare Fatal for Seven

(AP) - At least seven Africans have been killed and scores injured in faction fighting between 800 tribesmen armed with spears in the Transkei tribe's Nggeleni district, 18 miles southeast of Umtata, police said Kill, which name spread throughout the mountains. The fighting began Thursday night when the factions accused each other of livestock thefts. Police have reported 18 arrests. It was the Transkel's worst faction fight in two years. The last big clash was in 1968, when five Africans were killed and 166 arrested.

It is my pleasure to introduce to you from time to time some of the less publicized attractions which may appeal as sufficient reason for a day's journey, or more, in the direction of the Catskills.

By the way of introduction -

A popular theory is that the the delightful area constructed name is of Dutch origin. Early for this purpose under the Rip explorers found the mountains Van Winkle Bridge at the west to be largely inhabited by wild cats and the bay lynx. Dutch word for cat is "kaat." The Dutch word for creek, or stream, is "kill." There are many of these mountain streams, and so the name Kaatskills, or Kauterskills, or Catskills has become indelible

Not to be ignored, however, is another theory which recognizes a Jacob Cats, an early Dutch poet whose name and fame can be found in libraries today. He was a chief magistrate and fin-EAST LONDON, South Africa the Great Seal of Holland. IN NEW MEXICO

"Gunsmoke" cast and crew moved to New Mexico recently to begin location filming for a "Gunsmoke" episode to be broadcast next season on the CBS Television Network. Execbara, Calif. The star of "Green utive producer John Mantley chose the area around Taos and Santa Fe because the rugged terrain and scenic mountains perfectly fit the territory called for in the script. More than 20 Club of Santa Barbara, headed Hopi Indians from the Pueblo will appear in the drama.

JUNIOR'S GIRL

Lisa "Sunshine" Todd, beauconversation between co-hosts tiful six-foot-tall actress, will play a country girl who chases ing to Jack: "Dad told me he'd Junior Samples through next like to do more than look in season's comedy bits on "Hee ladies' purses and I told him I'd Haw" on the CBS Television like to do more than describe Network. Miss Todd's first television role was on "The Beverly Hillbillies" and she also appeared on "The Jonathan Win-ters Show" and in the movies "Dirty Dingus McGee" and "Gaily, Gaily." She was born in Santa Barbara, Calif., and attended the University of California there.

> GENERATION GAP Quickie quote from Art Linkletter, co-host of NBC-TV's "Life With Linkletter,": "The generation gap is the distance between what older people forget and younger people don't know."

Annette Day appears in the film, "Double Trouble," Friday 9-11 p.m. on CBS.
