Senate Prober Vows to Expose Those Liable for Migrants' Plight

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senator probing alleged sub-human conditions among migrant farm workers promised today an exposure of who is responsible — "institutions or persons; government or agribusiness; federal, state or local."

"Nothing will change until this rotten system is exposed and held accountable," Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., said in a statement for today's opening of a two-day inquiry by his subcommittee on migrants. The first scheduled witness was Dr. Raymond Wheeler of Charlotte, N.C., one of a team of foundation-sponsored doctors who visited Texas and Florida migrant camps earlier this year and reported that workers were deliberately kept in "sub-human status."

Mondale noted the hearings follow last Thursday's television documentary "Migrant—An NBC White Paper," which he said "documented evidence of the squalor, degradation and racism which our nation bestows upon the migrants."

He also noted a similar documentary, the late Edward R. Murrow's "Harvest of Shame," had aired much the same migrant conditions 10 years earlier.

"Perhaps our greatest shame is how little we have done in this decade," Mondale said. "We must see to it that there will be no such documentary in 1980."

"We know the problems," he said. "We must now turn to the question of why we have accomplished so little. What are the powers, the pressures, the politics and the special interests that have perpetuated this degradation? Who has opposed the investigations of these conditions, and who has endeavored to suppress the truth?"

Mondale said he had invited officials of NBC and the Coca-Cola company to testify about reports Coca-Cola pressured the network to tone down its documentary on migrants. Coca-Cola, which owns the Minute Maid and Snow Crop brands of orange juice, is a major Florida citrus producer.

Mondale said he also had invited representatives of growers associations to testify about reported pressure. The Florida Fruit and Vegetable Association wrote NBC President Julian Goodman and Federal Communications Chairman Dean Burch on June 22 warning it would oppose relicensing of any station taking part in the "slandered broadcast."

The subcommittee has reported pressures of its own, Last Friday Boren Chertkov, the subcommittee counsel, said some persons had declined to testify because of "personal threats, harassment, intimidation." He said he could not name the persons without endangering them.

Support Squatters

'Squatter' Movement Expanding

NEW YORK (AP) — Helmeted police broke into a brownstone in lower Manhattan today and seized about 65 men, women and children who had occupied the vacated building over the weekend in the latest incident of an expanding squatters movement in the city.

After the roundup, an angry crowd of about 100 of the squatters' neighborhood sympathizers chased, cursed and spat upon the landlord of the building, Leon Nagin, of Queens. Nagin had accompanied police to the brownstone, in the Chelsea section, about 7 a.m. As Nagin was escorted away by police, he declined to speak with newsmen.

The occupation of the building was reported begun by four families — two black and two Puerto Rican.

A lawyer for some of the squatters said 14 men, 22 women and 19 children were evicted from the building with police aid. All were taken away in a police wagon and a city bus manned by police.

Carlos Figueroa, 26, who lives across the street from the building, said: "We feel this cause is just."

The squatters had followed the lead of other groups on the East and West sides when they moved into the vacant building on West 15th Street Saturday morning.

The landlord in this case had cleared out his previous tenants and planned to begin renovation today to convert the building into luxury apartments renting for $200 to $400 monthly.

Sunday the landlord appealed to the group to leave but they rejected his plea. They say they

Average Migrant's Life Grim As His Income: $891 a Year

By GEORGE LARDNER JR. The Washington Post

There are about one million of them, counting the children, and their profile is as grim as their pay checks.

Migrant farmworkers keep to the backroads, bouncing across county and state lines in tumbledown buses and cars, picking tomatoes, pulling corn, snapping beans. It's hard back-breaking labor. The average annual income last year: $891.

It is less than they made four years ago when the U.S. Department of Agriculture reported an average migrant's income from farm work was $1,045.

Mexican-Americans, blacks, Puerto Ricans and whites, they lead chaotic lives, but they keep working, flitting from one dismal labor camp to another in a subculture of squalor and disease.

Even the neglected American Indian gets better health care. According to a Senate subcommittee, the average per capita health expenditure in 1967 for migrants was $7.20. For Indians it was $170.15.

Many congressional hearings have been held, but little has been accomplished. It is time, says Sen. Walter F. Mondale (D-Minn.), to find out who is responsible.

For the exponents of agribusiness, already smarting from an hour-long NBC-TV documentary Thursday night, it means a discomfiting week. "Nothing will change until this rotten system is exposed and held accountable," Mondale says. His Senate subcommittee on migratory labor will open hearings today aimed, in the chairman's words, at "the powers, the pressures, the politics and the special interests" that keep it going.

Whatever their conduct, some of America's biggest corporations have substantial land holdings on which migrant workers are employed. Among them, according to the project on corporate responsibility, are Coca-Cola (Minute Maid), Penn Central, Teneco, the Atlantic Coastline Co. and U.S. Sugar.

The project, which is run by a group of Washington-based attorneys, has been investigating these and other companies for some time now. It will be called to testify.

"At present," says Philip W. Moore, staff counsel of the public interest organization that cut its teeth on General Motors earlier this year, "a complicated series of corporate lawyers insulates the managers of large corporations from the human suffering which their decisions produce."

"Yet large investors are at least as responsible for the human condition of workers in Florida and Texas as ... the small farmer."

The first witnesses will be a team of doctors sponsored by the field foundation of New York, who say their investigation of migrant working conditions in the two states turned up "thousands of our fellow-citizens manipulated and managed in such a way as to reduce them to sub-human status."

In a preliminary report to the subcommittee, the doctors said they found primitive housing, decrepit outhouses, contaminated water, hazardous working conditions and, in Florida, a death rate for mothers and infants up to a third higher than the national average.

One physician reported seeing men without protective gear spraying an insecticide, parathion, on a windy day in Florida. He said children were playing in a yard only 50 feet away. Thirty-two drops of parathion absorbed through the skin, Mondale's subcommittee reported last year, is fatal.

Moon-Landing Anniversary

That 'Giant Leap': One Year Later

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It has been one year since men first landed on the moon and Neil Armstrong's giant leap for mankind seems almost stuck in mid-air.

One year ago today, as 500 millions around the world saw Armstrong and Edwin "Buzz" Aldrin walking the moon, the space program was at its pinnacle. Now it is struggling.

"This is the greatest week in the history of the world since the creation," said an ebullient President Nixon. "The world has never been closer together before."

The bond was as short-lived as that stay on the moon. The pride dissolved in a welter of other concerns than the feat of men on a dead satellite a quarter million miles away.

No one is more disappointed than Armstrong. "I had hoped it would take our minds away from some of the more mundane and temporal problems that have faced us and let us look a little farther into the future with the aim of solving problems before they become problems," he says. "I haven't seen as much evidence of that as I'd hoped."

"We appear to be still tied up with today's problems—the problems already occurring. We attack them from the backside rather than meet them head-on. If all of us could look into the future we could look at problems from the front side." After Armstrong, Aldrin and command module pilot Michael Collins returned from their epic journey, interest in further manned exploration of the moon waned quickly. Apollo 12, the second moon landing, was accepted in a relatively routine fashion, particularly after its television camera quit almost at the outset.

Apollo 13 also got a lot of yawns until an explosion created the greatest crises of any space flight to date.

Apollo 14, commanded by Alan B. Shepard—America's first man in space—already has had two postponements of two months each, caused in part by modifications but also because the space agency wants to stretch dollars by stretching out flights. One of the seven scheduled moon landings already has been canceled and three, or even four, more may go the same money-saving route.

Gearing up for the Apollo 11 first moon landing, NASA in one year got $5.9 billion. But this year the administration and Congress, sensing the national mood and beset with other stringent demands on the federal dollar, responded by cutting way back. The House approved $3.197 billion for fiscal 1971. The Senate passed $3.319 billion. The difference will be worked out in Administration, and other officials of the agency.

The astronauts were to be here a little more than an hour before leaving for New York, where they will give Secretary-General U Thant of the United Nations a sample of moon rock and the U.N. flag they carried with them when they splashed down in the Pacific July 24, 1969.

The Apollo 11 capsule, a half-pound moon rock—the largest to go on public display—and the spacesuits worn by the pioneering crew, are being exhibited in all of the state capitals. The tour began April 17 in Sacramento, Calif., and the exhibit

Passengers, Crew Rescued After Blazing Vessel Sinks

SANTA CRUZ DE TENERIFE, Canary Islands (AP) — All 721 passengers and crew of the Norwegian cruise ship Fulvia were rescued Sunday after a fire at sea 100 miles north of the Canary Islands. The burned out vessel sank in 2,000 fathoms this morning.

The owners of the vessel said she had drifted to within 35 miles of here and went down at a latitude of 28.57 north and a longitude of 16.30 west.

The 448 passengers and most of the 273 crewmen arrived in Santa Cruz Sunday night aboard the French luxury liner Ancerville, which answered the Fulvia's SOS.

Most of the passengers were Italians, while the crew was Norwegian.

The Fulvia's captain, C.B. Fasting, and four of his officers remained at the scene aboard the Spanish tug Tamaran in a futile attempt to save the 16,500-ton Norwegian-American Line vessel.

Late Sunday night the Fulvia was reported ablaze from stem to stern and listing heavily to port. At least three passengers were injured.

The Fulvia, in a distress signal early Sunday, reported a fire in its engine room after an attempt to abandon ship was given. The sea was calm, and pas-

Viet Cong Rockets Hit Saigon; Fighting Flares in Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) — The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong marked the 16th anniversary of the Geneva Agreements on Indochina today with a rash of attacks in Cambodia and along Vietnam's demilitarized zone, and the first rocket attack on Saigon in more than two months.

One American was killed and nine were wounded in fighting below the DMZ. The United States retaliated with the first B52 raids in two weeks along the zone dividing Vietnam.

Fighting flared in eight areas of Cambodia, in a wide arc around Phnom Penh, the capital.

The South Vietnamese government said its infantrymen, bombers and artillery killed 69 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong in clashes near the provincial capital of Svay Rieng and the towns of Kompung Trabek and Tuk Meas, on the highway between Saigon and Phnom Penh. 83x South Vietnamese were reported killed and 23 wounded.

The Geneva agreement of 1954 carved up French Indochina into the two Vietnams, Laos and Cambodia. The two Vietnams were to be united after an election in 1956. The election never was held because of opposition by the South Vietnamese government.

A Cambodian spokesman in Phnom Penh said enemy troops overran a small post at Strang, 32 miles southwest of Phnom Penh, but most of the garrison had slipped out of the village before the attack "so now we have the Viet Cong encircled."

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong also struck anew at Cambodian forces on the Kiri Rom plateau, 60 miles west of Phnom Penh, which enemy troops had held for six days and from which they withdrew last Thursday after inflicting heavy casualties on the Cambodians.

The spokesman said fighting resumed Sunday around the burned out summer home of Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the deposed Cambodian chief of state, and one Cambodian and two Viet Cong were killed.

The Cambodian spokesman also reported: "Enemy troops fought their way into the outskirts of Kompong Chhang, a provincial capital 66 miles north of Phnom Penh, and seized a school."

"Sporadic fighting occurred around Saang, a town 19 miles south of Phnom Penh that has been the scene of three major battles."

Viet Cong forces made several attacks about 10 miles west of Kompong Cham, on the Mekong River 78 miles northeast of Phnom Penh.

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu's Independence Palace apparently was the target of two 100-pound rockets that landed in the heart of Saigon about 3:30 a.m. One came down in the grounds in front of the palace, breaking some windows and causing no casualties.

The other crashed through the roof of a three-story apartment house about three blocks away, but none of those sleeping in the building were hurt.

The U.S. Command reported that a cargo-carrying U.S. Marine helicopter accidentally dropped a slingload of mortar ammunition and gasoline drums on a Vietnamese hamlet 16 miles south of Da Nang Sunday, destroying 23 houses and damaging 25. Despite the extensive damage, only three Vietnamese civilians were injured, the command reported.

Plane Peru-Bound

Thick Fog Hampers Search For Lost Soviet Relief Craft

HALIFAX, N.S. (AP) — Thick fog covering the Atlantic between here and Iceland is hampering the search by planes today for a Soviet cargo aircraft missing on a flight to Peru with a load of relief supplies for earthquake victims.

A spokesman for the rescue center here said weather over the search area is not expected to clear until Tuesday.

The four-engine AN27 aircraft has been missing since Saturday, when it disappeared from radar screens at Keflavik, Iceland, about 21 minutes after taking off for Halifax, a refueling stop.

A rescue official said today the aircraft carried "23 or 24 passengers and crew."

Fog covered much of the area Sunday and one pilot reported it was "right down on the deck."

Five American, Canadian and Danish planes were searching. Officials said neither oil slicks nor suspicious debris had been sighted.

The huge plane—189 feet long and capable of carrying a payload of 88 tons—disappeared from radar screens 21 minutes after taking off from Keflavik, Iceland. It had been scheduled to refuel again at Halifax.

Visibility was zero in much of the search area Sunday, and one pilot reported fog "right down on the deck."

"THE WAY I HEARD IT"

by John Gruber

Two months after the event, I'm still getting occasional letters demanding me for my review of "Music Man" at MHS in May. A great many of them take the attitude, "The audience liked it, so what did you have to open your big mouth and write that article?"

Make no mistake, I am not a reporter for The Herald; I am a music critic, hired specifically because I know more about that subject than the average person. The average person is altogether too easily satisfied in the matter of entertainment, which is why TV is in such a wretched state, you and I are poles apart.

Actually, I'm always amazed at the number of people who seem to read my stuff. It is a fact, known to every entrepreneur in America, that only about 5% of the public care about the art of music, and sometimes I find myself very close to 100% of the readers of The Herald read my columns.

What's more, I never review anything from a standpoint of entertainment, but from a standpoint of art. Musical comedy may be a minor art, but it is no less a student's education in the art of music. If it is supposed to entertain, it is in the hands of the student, not in the hands of the writer.

What seems incredible to me that when you actually talk to these people who so often are distressed over my review (which was actually a mild one compared to what I felt to have written) they are in perfect agreement that Manchester's music department is better than any other in the country. Yet they expect me to give MHS reviews the palm for performance.

They also resent the fact that music, as evidenced in public performance, has gone steadily downhill at MHS ever since Miss White has been in charge. I have written for years about the Round Table Singers to take part in a Connecticut Opera production of Aida. I have written, because I thought they would learn something and be an asset to the production.

Raymond Rogers, who was principal at that time, told me that he thought that experience was one of the most beneficial to young people who had had Connecticut Opera. The Round Table Singers to supplement the production even though it would still be good experience. They couldn't measure up to the Round Table Singers are the group in which MHS takes most pride.

Early this season I talked about this sort of thing with Miss White. She agreed that music has gone down hill, and she took the defeatist attitude that she couldn't do anything about it. I also took up the matter with the superintendent of schools, who seems to feel that music is going to be done to remedy matters.

This is getting your information straight from the horse's mouth. Yet most of the people who wrote (not all, but about 80%) or telephoned, seem to think I should have written something like "Musical Man was the best musical comedy production MHS has done this year."

Of course it would be perfectly true, since it was the only one they did. It would be equally true to say "Music Man was the worst musical comedy production MHS has done this year." Such comments are utterly meaningless; presumably they are made by people who can tell you in advance that the reviewer I give of the next MHS musical comedy will not be a rave review. This is because I take music seriously, and the powers that be in the Manchester school system do not.

Questioned by newsmen at the Athens airport, Mrs. Kennedy is only about one third the size it should be to accomplish anything in the system. Far from tripping it, it is a fact that they can't get a single addition to that faculty. Talk to Manchester Evening Herald, 100 Exchange Street, Manchester, Conn. 06105. Telephone 645-2711.

Fans Rout Gopds At Pop Festival

NEW YORK (AP) — "We're taking the biggest bath in the history of rock festivals," said a spokesman after the New York Pop Festival surrendered to its audience Sunday.

"There's no money for security, and security has been ineffective so far, so we might as well let everyone in free," the spokesman for the three-day event added.

The audience completed the group of youths decided to fly the flags of the Viet Cong and North Vietnam over the stadium on Randall's Island in the East River.

The music fans watched as two American flags came down, they were hoisted back up, and finally came down again because of the security guards, outnumbered 6 to 1.

"We were just outnumbered and we didn't want any more take money from the public," the spokesman said.

The music fans got the skin-deep, leaving the festival to the young fans.

Regular city police were not called in to help security on the island. The police were in trouble from the beginning of the planning for the event, several radical political groups demanded that the stadium was to be the rock music and the island police were to be in charge.

Security measures broke down Friday night and large numbers of youths were able to gain access without paying admission.

The original $5.50 admission fee was reduced to $3 on Saturday night, but the program of music was cut to a relatively few acts.

Middlefield Sees Little Hope Of Halting Festival

MIDDLEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Middlefield officials are already ramping out on the slopes of Powder Ridge ski area in this rural town of 4,000, some townpeople are giving up hope of stopping the youth throng expected here for a rock festival less than two weeks away.

The town and a number of individuals have initiated court action to stop the three-day festival at the ski area the weekend of August 1. After a week-end recess, a Superior Court hearing into their request for an injunction reopens today.

But Arthur Meekley, first selectman of the town and its top elected official, says it may already be too late to stop the influx of young people.

"We know many people are on their way already, and win, lose or draw, they're going to get them, whether it's held or not," Meekley said.

The festival will be designed for 50,000 rock fans, say the promoters, and they have promised that only 50,000 tickets will be sold.

But the townspeople have been going ahead with plans to hold the festival, and advertisements for it have been appearing in underground newspapers as far away as New York.

On Saturday Judge Aaron Palmer, who is conducting the Superior Court trial, said that the festival should be held at the ski area.

Town Not Yet Affected By Shortage of Asphalt

The critical shortage of liquid asphalt in Connecticut and New England has not yet affected the street-paving program in Manchester, according to Karl Dow, general manager of the Balf Co. The Hartford company, with a branch plant on N. Main St., Manchester, has the contract for paving Manchester streets.

Dow said that, although supplies are very tight, the situation was eased somewhat yesterday by the arrival in New conference, but it's a cinch to be the lowest amount since the earliest days in space.

All this hasn't dimmed the optimism of Armstrong, now an executive in the space agency.

"I suspect space progress as we know it is now inevitable," he says. "It is a thing that now exists and will continue to exist for the rest of mankind. We don't have the option any longer of saying yes or no—only of saying when."

It was at 4:18 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time last July 20, when Armstrong stepped onto the moon. He was followed by Buzz Aldrin and Michael Collins.

According to the flight plan, Armstrong and Aldrin were to rest before venturing out on the moon's surface. But Armstrong, anxious to get on with the next phase of the adventure, shortly after 7 p.m. EDT, Armstrong asked if they could start the moonwalk in about three hours. The ground gave permission.

It took an agonizing amount of time to put on suits and back packs, to depressurize the cabin. At 9:30 p.m. Armstrong stood on the top step of the lunar ladder and pulled a cord that released a scientific instrument package and television camera at the side of the ship.

"Man, we're getting a picture on the TV," Houston said. And a minute later: "Okay, Neil, we can see you coming down the ladder now."

"I'm at the foot of the ladder," Armstrong then said. "The LM (lunar module) foot pads are only depressed in the surface about one or two inches."

At a recent news conference, Armstrong confessed he had been worried about sinking into the moon's soil even though previous unmanned satellites had encountered firm footing. "I've got an 85 per cent confidence level that there would be solid ground," Armstrong said. "I suppose it was the kind of concern you'd have if you played Russian roulette with one bullet in a 20-chamber pistol."

But last year, he announced calmly: "I'm going to step off the LM now."

And in a soft voice—so soft that it was hardly audible—he made the now famous comment: "That's one small step for man, a giant leap for mankind."

Then Aldrin climbed from the ladder, commenting, "Now I want to back up and partially close the hatch, making sure not to lock it on my way out."

"A good thought," Armstrong road paving program is under a $14,000 state grant. The local program has been progressing on schedule.

The shipment of 29,000 barrels of asphalt to Manchester is being distributed by the Guyott Trucking Co. of New Haven. Guyott, said Trickett, said the picture will be. There may be a shortage of liquid asphalt in New England, Guyott has been without asphalt for the past 10 days, severely curtailing paving operations in Connecticut.

The liquid asphalt, mixed with crushed stone and sand, produces a two-inch "black-top" paving material.

Manchester's street-paving said, and guided Aldrin down the ladder.

"Beautiful, beautiful," Aldrin said when he reached the moon. "Magnificent desolation."

Collins, orbiting 60 miles overhead, asked how things were going on the moon.

"I believe they are setting up the flag now," said mission control.

"Great," Collins replied.

"I guess you're about the only person around that doesn't have TV coverage of the scene," mission control said.

"That's right," Collins said. "That's all right. I don't mind a bit."

Not long after they had erected an American flag, Armstrong and Aldrin received a live or near-live broadcast from Washington. And Michael Collins, the command module pilot on the lunar surface, remains on flight duty out of that historic crew.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary Walter Hickey has ordered asphalt import quotas to be raised to permit five million barrels to be brought into the United States from Mexico, the action was taken Saturday.

Francis Sargent of Massachusetts sent telegrams to President Nixon seeking an immediate end to what was described as a critical shortage of asphalt.

It had been thought that the shortage might affect as many as 42,000 jobs in the road paving industry this week.

Armstrong is NASA deputy associate administrator for aeronautics. Collins is assistant secretary of state for public affairs.

There have been other changes among the men in space. George E. Mueller, NASA associate administrator for manned flight, now is vice president of General Dynamics.

Lt. Gen. Samuel C. Phillips, Apollo program director, is commander of the United States Air Force Space and Missiles Organization in Los Angeles.

Dr. Werner von Braun, father of the Saturn rocket and former director of Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., now is NASA deputy associate administrator for planning in Washington.

Christopher C. Kraft Jr., director of flight operations in Houston, has been promoted to deputy director of the Manned Spacecraft Center there.

Top space agency officials still on the job include Dr. Thomas O. Paine, NASA administrator; Dr. Kurt H. Debus, director of the Kennedy Space Center in Florida; and Dr. Robert R. Gilrath, director of the manned spacecraft center in Houston.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only one year after he set foot on the moon, Neil A. Armstrong is plotting a space agency death in Washington. And Michael Collins, the command module pilot on the lunar surface, remains on flight duty out of that historic crew.

South Windsor Anti-Loitering Ordinance To Be Aired by Council

A hearing will be held tonight at 7:30 on a proposed anti-loitering ordinance in the Council Chambers at the Town Hall, 150 Sullivan Ave.

This will be followed by a regular Council meeting at 8 p. m. The ordinance is intended to stop loitering and customers from being molested by unruly students.

Warner said with 670 students at Avery and 525 at Orchard Hill, the demand will be too great for one person to handle well.

Presently Avery and Orchard Hill had one nurse for two leaving only Ellsworth and Wapping Schools with the one nurse service for two schools.

Party sign-up member to the Planning and Zoning Commission to fill an unexpired term ending Dec. 1, 1971, to appoint two members to the Zoning Board of Appeals and to fill unexpired terms ending Dec. 1, 1971, and to appoint five alternate members to an Historic District Commission. This commission will administer the Historic District recently created in the East Windsor Hill, also meet on Tuesday from 8 to 8 p. m. for a special registration session.

Zoners to meet with the Planning and Zoning Commission will meet Tuesday at 8 p. m. instead of the usual fourth Tuesday of the month due to vacations and commitments of some members.

Chairman Joseph J. Carino said the commission will not meet in August unless some restructuring of students in South Windsor prompted the Board of Education to approve the hiring of an extra nurse at a recent Board meeting.

Supt. Charles Warner said he had reviewed the student load in relation to nurse location and recommended the Board approve the request in view of the following enrollment information:

The enrollment figures to date for the 1970-71 school year and restructuring of students in South Windsor prompted the Board of Education to approve the hiring of an extra nurse at a recent Board meeting.

Supt. Charles Warner said he had reviewed the student load in relation to nurse location and recommended the Board approve the request in view of the following enrollment information:

Passengers Rescued; Ship Sinks

passengers said there was no panic as they were loaded into the lifeboats.

The Anceville was bound for Casablanca, Morocco, when it was diverted to the rescue. It arrived about seven hours after the Fulvia's SOS and found the lifeboats about half a mile from the Fulvia.

Capt. Frasting and 26 of his crew remained aboard, and the Anceville picked them up.

When the Tamaran arrived, Frasting and his four officers transferred to the tug while the Anceville sailed to Santa Cruz.

Some of the rescued passengers came ashore in both robes and blankets, but one woman was in a milk coat. An Italian woman was carried off on a stretcher.

The Fulvia left Genoa Tuesday on a 10-day cruise to the Canaries, stopped at Cannes, on the French Riviera and Funchal, in the Portuguese Madeira, and was due in Santa Cruz Sunday.

She was to stop at Casablanca before returning to Genoa next Friday.

She was in Amsterdam in 1949 as the Olofjord, and was modernized in 1967 and her name was changed last year.
