Near East Has Hawks, Too
Extremist causes, which have wedded themselves to the most violent kind of solutions, do not turn conveniently meek and tame the moment the world would like to have them cooperate in some grand concerted effort to avoid the conflict the extremists consider inevitable and necessary.

On the Arab side, the fact that Egypt and Jordan have accepted the American plan is a great good news. But their acceptance has brought the Palestinian commando organizations out into an attitude of open defiance, in which they threaten to continue their part of the war no matter what tactical commitments Arab governments may do.

On the Israeli side, the struggle of Premier Golda Meir's Cabinet to find and deliver a positive answer to the American proposal has brought out into the open the fact there is in Israel, as almost everywhere in our time, a division of political opinion on issues of war and peace.

The encouraging thing that remains, however, is the now apparent fact that the more responsible middle ground leadership on each side of the Near East conflict has at last been brought close to those procedures which do have a chance of creating something more than a temporary cease fire.

The right kind of cue for the outside world came from President Nixon in his Thursday night press conference, to keep the pressure—and the reassurance—steady in the direction of peace.

And for the leadership on the spot, the need is for both the courage and the sharp common sense to try to keep on doing what some voices on either side are certain to denounce as treachery and surrender.

In any true and valid settlement, neither the interests of the Arabs nor those of the Israelis can be sold out. Both failures to explore seriously the chance for such a settlement can amount to selling out all civilization.

Feeling the Heat
The longer a hot spell lasts, the less painful and more soothing its ministrations to the human condition.

But let the oven stay around us for a few more days, and we find ourselves slipping easily into the self-satisfied slouch of the pagan. We have, without too much struggle, given up the basic idea of work.

When we have conquered the idea of work, we inevitably gravitate toward an experiment in play. It may be too hot for work, but how else do we have to get to be too hot for golf? Besides, we owe it to ourselves to be doing something with our time.

But if the spell lasts, it soon becomes too hot for play. The very same conscience which freed us from our responsibility for work now looms itself another or two or two or two as it will really be all right if we don't play, either.

Along toward the eighth or ninth day of continuing heat, we approach the state of the inert, defined, in the dictionary at hand, as "destitute of inherent power."

This is the state in which one discovers that one is feeling no pain, experiencing no instinct, entertaining no wish, formulating no resolve, being prompted by no conscience, or being tempted by no necessity.

Not long after that, one forgets that one ever wished it would rain.

Curing The Slowpokes
On a conscientious monitoring experiment, in which the participants did not alter the amount of food they ate after they gave up smoking, they had an average weight increase of 8.6 pounds each, in one month of observation.

The first point of the statistic is that they did not put on weight because, to compensate for their lack of cigarettes, they began nibbling candies and goodies all the time.

What did happen to them, by the charts of the team of doctors who monitored the experiment, is that the lack of smoking brought on a conspicuous slowing down of their whole metabolism.

There was a percentage drop in their advent sophisticated optical consumption of oxygen as they beat beats dropped by as many as 4,800 beats a day. Their body processes produced less iodine, calcium and glucose than before.

In short, they all became slower people. The result of this experiment inevitably suggests other explorations. How can we pep these slow people up again, to full activity in body processes and in life? Would an injection of nicotine be the answer? Or should we look for some substitute that wouldn't require the use of a needle and couldn't be absorbed through some simple process of inhalation?

Errors By Mr. Duffey
Everyone must be extremely careful at the moment the year-end tax returns are filed, for the campaign oratory candidates who make sweeping promises are not easy to handle. They may indeed possess the political power to topple the Meir government and throw all peace proposals into the Red Sea.

Earlier this month, in his efforts to obtain the backing of the House, Mr. Duffey spoke of the men who work hard to get unemployment insurance, and a special payroll tax levied on two per cent of any other amount in a special payroll tax. There is no such tax.

Wonders of the Universe
Computer Discovered Two Tiny 'New Moons'
By DR. I. M. LEVITY, DIRECTOR
The Fels Planetarium of the Franklin Institute, when man first recognized the moon as the earth's satellite, he may have pondered the possibility of other natural satellites. However, until the advent of sophisticated optical equipment, there was no possibility of finding small moons.

Second, because both bodies are electrically charged, the computer which does this also is programmed to do many similar things for scientists.

Third, a natural satellite was circling the earth with a period of 4.22 hours at an altitude of about 4,720 miles, with a path inclined to the earth's equator by about 42 degrees.

Then, in 1968, Dr. John P. Bagby, of the Hughes Aircraft Co., by a novel approach to the problem, discovered two small natural satellites revolving 4,720 miles above us. They are of magnitudes 6 to 8, which means they are faint to be seen by the naked eye but can readily be photographed.

Dr. Bagby deduced that any natural satellite would be found in three general orbits. His visual and photographic search from 1967 to 1969, produced negative results.

He covered the area of the sky containing the first of these orbits three times without success. The second orbit is theoretically possible but impractical, as it was ignored. A search was started for the third orbit and, suddenly, promising new information became available.

Connecticut Yankee

By A.E.O.

After the two state conventions, the present primary season began, the one remark most frequently made by Connecticut voters was something like this: "You've got to be rich to try to run for public office these days."

What was on record up to that point was a series of lavish displays of hospitality to convention delegates during the Hartford conventions themselves, preceded, in many cases, by previous hospitality to the delegates, their town committees, and their friends in their own home towns, and accompanied by extensive use of the advertising media.

And that had to be followed, if one were victorious, by the final campaign directly to the whole state electorate, a final campaign that obviously had to be designed and developed to equal to all the lavish production of the previous campaign.

Wherefore the favorite comment of the Connecticut politician: "You've got to be a millionaire if you want to try to get into office these days."

All the while, right under the nose of the rich men in the 1970 political picture, non-millionaires Mim Daddario, Tom Messer, John Lupton and Joe Duffey were doing well enough, thank you, in spite of their lack of great money.

There seemed no great reason to be sorry for them. One who was not so fortunate was aging to have an adequate amount of money spent on their behalf, even if it wasn't their own.

And they enjoyed, meanwhile, two pleasant circumstances not available to their better-heeled competitors.

No one was accusing them of trying to buy public office. Various kinds of people were glad to volunteer financial help to them.

Consider, on the other hand, the plight of the poor little rich men in this 1970 campaign. The fact that they were supported generally by their own campaigns is used against them by their political foes.

And, at the same time, it operates to eliminate what might be a normal flow of financial contributions from their friends. What these friends add, such a millionaire need not be troubled by the fact that, even more than his money, his campaign needs the kind of involvement, commitment, and see-it-through energy which not only inspires but follows the small contribution.

HAMILTON GETS ORDERS
Four European airlines have selected Hamilton Standard to supply computerized airborne integrated data systems (AIDS) for their fleet of Boeing 747 and McDonnell Douglas DC10 wide-body jetliners.

Everybody knows money's scarce and costly to borrow these days. But despite the implication of these signs, Hartford National is not really financing its new offices through SDB. The building is the store block at Main and N. Main Sts. in the North End Redevelopment Area, where both banks will establish branches. The block's key occupant will be a Top Notch Foods Supermarket.

Operating revenues rose to $176,831,818, from the $162,620,549 reported a year ago.

John C. Murphy of Manchester has been appointed sales territory manager for Wreth Laboratories, Philadelphia-based pharmaceutical manufacturer.

After-tax earnings were $15,897,000, or 25 cents per common share, as opposed to $62,000 and $1.07 per share last year.

Coventry Panel, After Two-Year Study, Rates School System as Poor

By HOLLY GANTNER
The Coventry School System, in a report that has taken two years to prepare, has predicted a "grim future" for the system, unless a major restructuring is undertaken by the board of education.

The report, which was completed recently and presented to the Board of Education, has been publicly released, but the Herald was able to obtain a copy. It is a 100-page document, which had been prepared by a committee of parents, teachers, and administrators.

Turrets on the Hudson

Begun in 1870, the castle was completed under Church's supervision in 1874.

The rooms are arranged so that the awesome view can be seen from any room, even though a window had to be cut through an inner wall to see the castle from the main road is close to a mile. The road climbs through woods and meadows and by a large lake. The grounds were landscaped by Frederick Edwin Church, born in Hartford, Conn. in 1826, was an artist of the Hudson River School era. He was a pupil of Thomas Cole.

Greatly impressed with the style of architecture which he called the "High Style in Architecture," he employed three architects to design a castle-tower home and art studio for him and his wife on the wooded pinnacle which overlooks a sweeping vista of the Hudson River and the Catskill Mountain Range to the west.

Cubans Worried About Shirkers

MIAMI (AP) — Cuban workers will determine what measures to take against fellow laborers habitually absent from work.

The announcement was made by Labor Minister Capt. Jorge Riquelme in a television appearance last week. He said that Havana and mentioned in Miami.

His announcement followed a speech by Prime Minister Fidel Castro Sunday in which he blamed increasing absenteeism for decreased production of island commodities.

Riquelme said the government will appeal to workers to submit recommendations for disciplining shirkers. He predicted it will be six weeks before Cuba has the work force necessary to accomplish the revolution's economic goals.

Against Bypassing States

Nixon Rejects Giving Crime Funds to Cities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has rejected the notion that federal crime-fighting funds should be channeled directly to the cities. He said he believes the cities will receive an appropriate share of the federal grants through the states.

Mitchell, appearing before a Senate subcommittee, rejected the request of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., that states be bypassed at least temporarily. "I got the money directly to the cities," Mitchell said.

The subcommittee is considering a House-passed bill which established the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration under which the federal government provides grants to states for law enforcement assistance.

Under the act, states are required to develop plans for improving their law enforcement systems. Mitchell said the states can use the money effectively.

Hoax Kidnap Costs Ransom of $40,000

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A bank president has been tricked out of $40,000 by a telephone caller who pretended to be holding his wife hostage.

Leo Hill, president of the First National Bank in Boulder, was called through all this before in 1967—but that time it was real.

He alerted the police Thursday night and told them to look for a package of currency at a red flag in the road as directed by his caller.

Hill then proceeded to a rendezvous with detectives, who informed him his wife had been found in a grocery store parking lot, having her hair done.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry S. Williams of 120 Wadwell Rd., also graduated this year from the Boston Conservatory of Music where she majored in dance.

She is also the author of a book, "The Yule Drama School made a film about a city in Miss Williams' life entitled "Amy," which was entered in the Boston Film Festival.

Last year, she was choreographer and solo dancer in a television special, "A Christmas Carol," produced by Boston University Extension.

Her experience in ballet includes "Swan Lake" and "The Nutcracker Suite." Dramatic work includes her leading role in "The House of the Living Dead" by William Sh. Williams, which Miss Williams choreographed and danced in the "Shrew."

Air Stewardesses Snub Long Skirts

NEW YORK (AP) — Airline stewardesses, catered to by some of the nation's top designers, are turning thumbs down on the mid-length, promiscuous, at least one more year of coffee, says the New York Times.

Unlike most women, they have a choice. Trans World Airlines, in a poll of 31 stewardesses, found the mid-length unpopular that "TWA officials say they are running in the face of designers" when their new fashion line is revealed in mid-August.

A permanent addition to the line is expected to be pants ensembles, used on a trial basis by TWA and popular with stewardesses and customers, a spokesman said.

United Airlines, in which large-labeled trousers are a case of trial and error, introduced the new line last week. The airline's new line is expected to be popular with stewardesses and customers, a spokesman said.

Air Stewardesses Snub Long Skirts NEW YORK (AP) — Airline stewardesses, catered to by some of the nation's top designers, are turning thumbs down on the mid-length, promiscuous, at least one more year of coffee, says the New York Times.

Unlike most women, they have a choice. Trans World Airlines, in a poll of 31 stewardesses, found the mid-length unpopular that "TWA officials say they are running in the face of designers" when their new fashion line is revealed in mid-August.

A permanent addition to the line is expected to be pants ensembles, used on a trial basis by TWA and popular with stewardesses and customers, a spokesman said.

United Airlines, in which large-labeled trousers are a case of trial and error, introduced the new line last week. The airline's new line is expected to be popular with stewardesses and customers, a spokesman said.

Man in Hospital After Accident An East Hartford man was hospitalized after his car veered from the eastbound lane of W. Middle Tpk. near Edison Rd. and struck a pole yesterday.

Everett D. Seifert, 67, told police that he does not remember what happened. He was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital and admitted to the 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m. wards. His condition is satisfactory.

Police said, "and it's particularly difficult to deal with." He said the source of the arrows was unknown.

The soldiers did not know the effect of the bullets they fired against gasoline bombers. At the height of the disturbance, the number of rioters was estimated at more than 300.

OPEN DAILY and SUNDAY 10 A.M. to 10 P.M. (CLOSED SATURDAY)

College men with a rather unusual weekend pastime.

OPERATION ASSIST

Kappa Alpha men at the University of Missouri at Rolla are not all sweater and pin fraternity stereotypes. Last term a bunch of them were among a couple of hundred university volunteers devoting one or more weekends to "Operation Assist," a nongovernment, nonrecognition enterprise organized by the St. Louis Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Operation Assist exists to make life better and safer for people living on the 4200 block of Fair Avenue in St. Louis. The St. Louis Jaycees suspected that many urban problems could probably be solved more easily, cheaply and quickly if they avoided government programs and red tape. They decided to find out, with action.

"We decided to concentrate on one block because we felt it would be easier to get individuals involved if the whole neighborhood was involved," said one Junior Chamber of Commerce member.

The students tackled carpentry, painting, plastering, electrical wiring and plumbing. One of the residents commented: "I don't have the time to do all the repairs around here myself, and I can't afford to hire men to do the work. I don't know what I would have done without the help of these boys."

The students' rewards were many. "One of the most satisfying things for us is when the people across the alley from where we're working come out and start to paint and fix their homes on their own initiative."

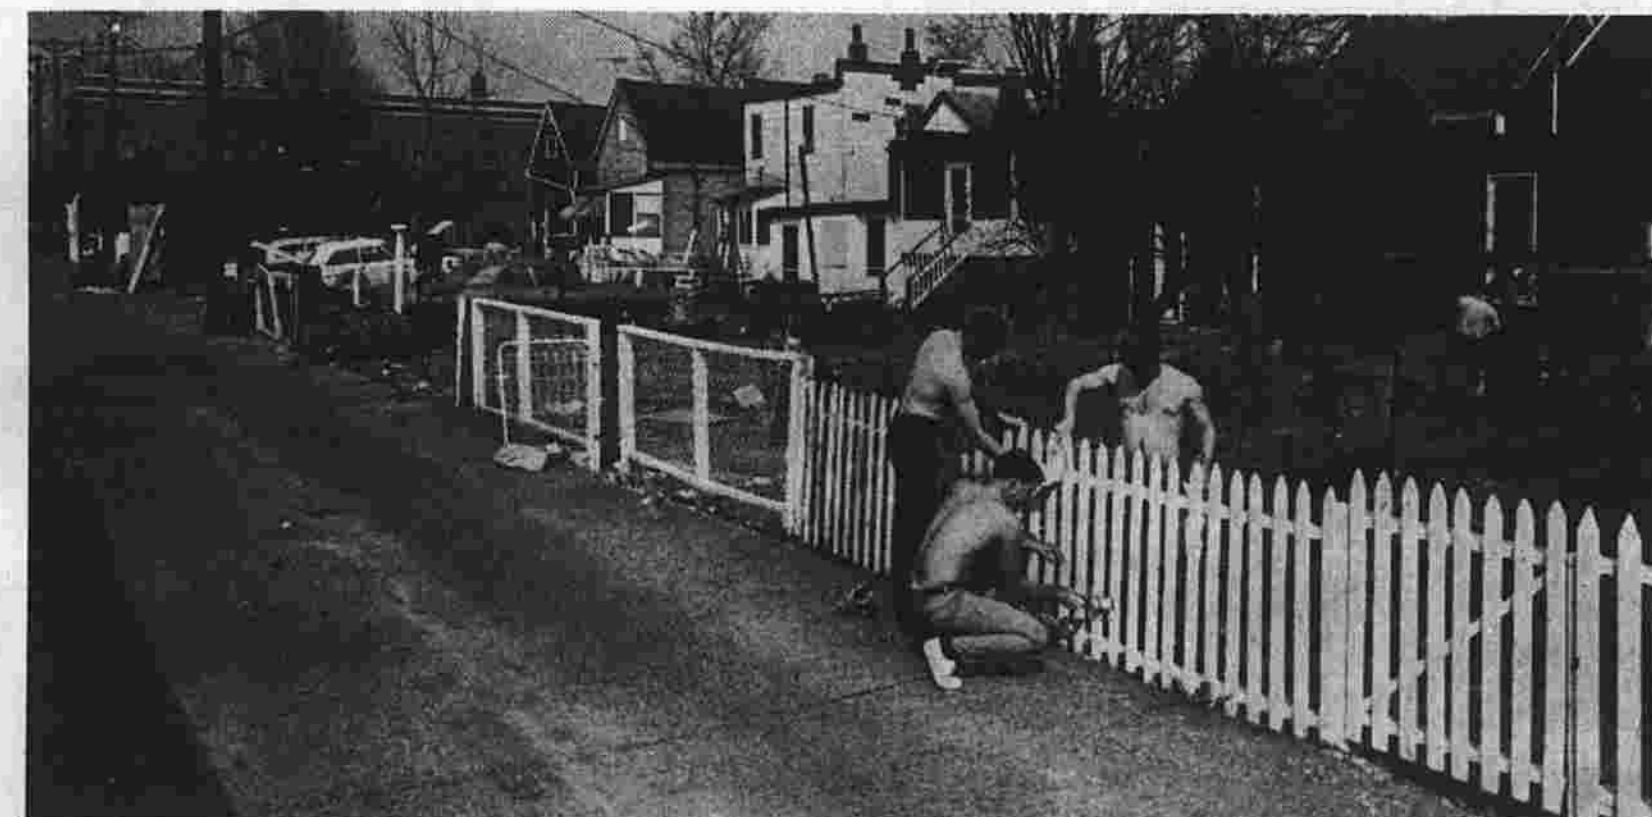

This calls for extracurricular skill!

Amateur handymen: restoration work is in progress, and deterioration is reversed, not only checked.

Fraternity men putting their teamwork to good use, for others.

Students learn about how people live at first hand—by sharing and helping to solve problems.

Popsicles always taste better with a little dirt and grass added, just for flavor. David and Daniel DuVerger, 2 1/2-year-old twins of Mr. and Mrs. Merle DuVerger of 15 Ash St., sought relief from the week-long heat at Globe Hollow, then tried a popsicle for extra refreshment. After all, brothers gotta stick together to beat weather like this.

Adjourns Until Tuesday Jury Still Out In Nazaroff Case

By DOUG BEVINS
(Herald Reporter)
A Hartford County Superior Court jury was unable to return a verdict last night in the manslaughter trial of John Nazaroff of Manchester. After deliberating nearly 11 hours, the jury decided to adjourn until Tuesday, when it will try again.
The jury now is made up of seven men and five women. It had been divided six and six, but one woman juror was excused yesterday on complaint of illness. A male alternate juror took her place.
Nazaroff, 25, is charged with manslaughter in connection with the Jan. 5 shooting of George Vilbrin, 22, also of Manchester. If convicted, Nazarov faces a maximum sentence of 15 years in prison, a $1,000 fine, or both.
The jury heard final arguments by prosecution and defense counsel Thursday afternoon, and it was charged by Judge Anthony Armentano yesterday morning. It began deliberations at 11:14 a.m.
Sent for Sandwiches
At 2 p.m., the jury returned from a one-hour luncheon recess, and disappeared in the deliberating room again until shortly after 7 p.m., when it sent out for sandwiches.
Patience of attorneys, sheriffs, and spectators began to wear thin. Asst. State's Atty. Joseph F. Skelley Jr. paced around the courtroom. Nazarov, in a green suit, remained to adjourn until Tuesday at 10 a.m.

Two-Week Trial
The trial began Tuesday, July 21. During the two-week trial, the court heard testimony of five Manchester policemen, a pathologist who performed the autopsy, two witnesses who had been near the shooting, and three others who had been involved in the dispute which preceded the shooting. On Wednesday, Nazarov took the stand in his own defense.
In final arguments, Skelley submitted that the shooting was an undisputed fact. What the jury had to determine, he said, was if Nazarov was actually afraid of Vilbrin, if he had reason to be afraid, and whether he used reasonable force against Vilbrin.
Defense Atty. John Berman and Courtney Bourne contended that Nazarov was in a state of terror at the time of the incident, and that he acted in self-defense.
In addition to the manslaughter charge, which was filed March 18 after a grand jury refused a murder indictment, Nazarov is also charged with carrying a weapon on his person without a permit. Judge Armentano denied a defense motion Thursday for a directed verdict on this count, which carries a maximum $1,000, or five years in jail, or both, if convicted.

Hospital Phone
The telephone number for Manchester Memorial Hospital was changed a few months ago, but too late to be listed correctly in the new phone books. The hospital number is 646-1222.

Metro Halts Scent

PARIS — Paris' subway, the Metro, has an aroma of perfume, garlic, cigarettes and burned rubber. For a while, to mask these odors, a deodorizer-disinfectant was sprayed along tracks and on station platforms, but not anymore — commuters complained that their wives were suspicious when they came home smelling of the Metro's lavender scent.

Other moderators for the primary, announced by Republican Registrar Fred Peck, are: Voting District 2, Robertson School on N. School St. — Mrs. Ernestine Brown of 21 Harlan St.

elect Republican candidates for governor and U.S. senator.

Cong. Thomas Meskill of New Britain is the party-endorsed candidate for governor. He is being challenged by State Sen. Wallace Barnes of Farmington.

Cong. Lowell Weicker of Greenwich is the party-endorsed candidate for U.S. senator. His challenger is State Sen. John Lupton of Weston.

Under party rules, all candidates in a primary are permitted proportionate representation among the moderators and other election workers. Peck said that Barnes, in a letter to him, waived his right to designate his backers for election day jobs, and left it up to him (Peck) to choose the workers. "I know you will be fair and partial," Barnes wrote. Peck said he had not heard from Lupton.

The polls, on Aug. 12, will be open from noon to 8 p.m., with a full complement of election workers. The Republican primary is estimated to cost the town a minimum of $4,500. The Democratic primary, scheduled a week later, on Aug. 19, is also estimated to cost $4,500.

Peck has scheduled a meeting Aug. 11 for all workers in the Republican primary. It will be at 7 p.m. in the Municipal Building Hearing Room.

Buddy Ebsen: He Doesn't Fret

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Those devil demographics are threatening a number of long-run television series, and even the stalwart "Beverly Hillbillies" is considered vulnerable. Buddy Ebsen isn't worried.

"I doubt very much that the demographers will shoot us down," says the patriarch of the Clampett clan. "But even if they do, I wouldn't fret over it. I've got a couple of other strings on my bow."

Demographics is a trade term for the composition of television audiences. Until a season or two ago, numbers meant everything; the shows with the highest ratings survived.

Now, advertisers appear more concerned with the quality of audiences—particularly whether shows attract the 18-50 age group that buys products. Hence the disappearance from CBS of "Petticoat Junction," "Red Skelton and Jackie Gleason, shows with big audiences but not the right kind.

"Beverly Hillbillies" might conceivably be in jeopardy for the same reason. Ebsen doesn't think so. He believes the show's audience is so vast and loyal that it could survive for years to come.

He also takes a philosophical attitude toward critics who classify "Beverly Hillbillies" as the ultimate in lowbrow television entertainment.

"My answer to that is a comment in the Saturday Review that I have mounted on a plaque in my dressing room. It says that 'Beverly Hillbillies' is a show that combines social comment with a Nielsen rating," Ebsen said.

"As for myself, I've never tried to analyze the show. I just read the scripts, do them and am happy that they're accepted. I've never looked more than a year ahead."

Ebsen and his fellow Clampetts have already completed several shows for their ninth season. Now they have gone their separate ways for the summer layoff.

"We've a very close group during the season, sharing each other's problems, laughs and sorrows," he remarked. "But we only see each other for six months. When the season is over, I like to go my own way."

"I find plenty to do. I spend time with the family, I sail my boat, I read—I store up shelves of books to read while I'm not working. I write songs with Zeke Manners, who was a member of the original Beverly Hillbillies music act. I take my daughters to horse shows, I ride a dune buggy with my son, I body surf."

On Aug. 11 Buddy opens with "Apple of His Eye," a play Walter Huston once performed on Broadway. He uncovered the play while doing a dramatic role in the recent drama on educational television, "The Andersonville Trial."

Among the other strings in Ebsen's bow is a company that builds catamarans, fast, twin-hulled sailing boats.

"Some conservative yachting people feel that cats are not respectable," he said. "I'm in the process of making them respectable."

One of his feats was coming in second in a recent race off Miami.

107 Shows in Production

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This film capital is busily churning out the television programs that will constitute the bulk of the nation's living room entertainment during the fall and winter. As of the end of last week there were, by count of the trade paper, "The Hollywood Reporter," 107 shows in production, 14 more than at this time last year.

While there are 65 theatrical films in the works, less than half are being turned out in this film capital. Thus, television dominates Hollywood, providing most of the work for actors and the behind-the-camera crews. Like towns the nation over, Hollywood, too, is feeling the economic pinch.

The visitor who arrives on a weekend—when the studios are shut down and the workers at home—can feel the nervous unease gripping the film community.

The squeeze on the television networks is especially painful. Not only are profits down and sales of time tougher to make, but they are facing the loss of cigarette sponsors—and as much as $250 million a year in advertising revenues—at mid-season. Besides that, the Federal Communications Commission wants to chop off one hour of evening time in which stations may broadcast network-owned programs; politicians want free or reduce rates for campaigning; they are under sharp scrutiny and even attack for the content of their programs, particularly the use of violence.

In the future, there is the competitive threat of cable and subscription television as well as the use of tape cassettes which, enthusiasts believe, will ultimately turn individual TV sets into sophisticated record-players with pictures.

On the surface, however, it seems like business as usual in Hollywood. Most of the 107 shows in production are network programs—series and specials. There are fewer new series to be launched in September than usual: 21 instead of the usual 30 or more. ABC, which has been ruthlessly weeding out its schedule, will use 11 of them. CBS, which is busily attempting to change its audience focus, has six and last week made some radical last-minute changes in its schedule. NBC has four, unless one counts the complete remodeling of "The Virginian" into "The Men From Shiloh" as a new show.

Sir John Gielgud stars in the drama, "The Mayfly and the Frog," Thursday at 8:30 p.m. on Public TV.

107 Shows

On the economy side, there is talk of fewer specials, of budget cuts which reduce the size of mob scenes, reduce if not eliminate expensive location shooting away from the studio, and of encouraging the use of less expensive guest stars.

Among the new series are eight situation comedies, four variety shows, including Red Skelton's half-hour on NBC, and 10 dramas. The major networks are still wooing the young (18 to 35) viewers, so the emphasis is on stories about young people. In the drama category, it appears that the success of ABC's "Mod Squad" has been so impressive that we will soon be watching shows about young lawyers (two different series), young doctors and young rebels — of the 1776 vintage. There's even a name for them — "Now dramas".
