Glenn said a person has to be uneasy at the start of a space flight "when you consider that you are on top of something that went to the low est bidder on a government contract."

He pointed out that President Georges Pompidou was in Washington a few months ago for talks with President Nixon and said "In a few days, he will be the guest of Moscow." Schumann urged continued Big Four efforts for a Middle East peace based upon the Se-curity Council resolution of Nov.

22, 1957. "The concertation of the four," he said, "is the true way to both arrive at our goal and not divest the United Nations of the irreplaceable responsibilities which it assumes and which it should assume in that part of the world."

Schumann did not directly mention the mediation efforts of the special U.N. peace envoy, Gunnar V. Jarring. Jarring began indirect peace talks Aug. 25 in New York with

Egyptian, Jordanian and Israeli delegates. Israel withdrew from the negotiations on Sept. 6; charging that Egypt had violat ed an accompanying cease-fire agreement by setting up new antiaircraft emplacements along the Suez Canal. The United States initiated the talks and is trying to get them started again. The U.N. delegates of the Big Four nations have long been discussing the Middle East situation at private meetings in New York, but emphasis shifted to Jarring's mission after Egypt, Israel and Jordan accepted the U.S. peace-

Senator Jackson's Letter Even as the dove-sponsored McGovern-Hatfield amendment, trying to put a timetable stopper on the war in Vietnam, was going down to defeat in the Senate, a new and more impressive proposal was launched not by any dove, but by an acknowledged hawk. The new proposal came in the form of a letter to the White House. The letter was drafted and circulated by Senator Henry Jackson, the Washington Democrat who has consistently, ever since his close relationship with the late John F. Kennedy helped bring him into the national spotlight, been on the hawkish, heavy armament side of every foreign policy issue.

And what the letter proposed was that the President take the lead in proposing, at the peace negotiations in Paris, a comprehensive stand-still cease fire for everybody in South Vietnam

The letter, in its pleading with the President, described its proposal as "a course of action that has not yet been tried, but which we believe could move use towards a just and responsible peace."

For us to make the proposal at Paris, the letter urged, "could present a new context for the Paris negotiations, give fresh and added meaning to our previous osals and create a new l the other side to respond."

Drafted by the acknowledged hawk, Senator Jackson, the letter bore the ignatures of Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, Minority Leader Hugh Scott, Republicans Jacob Javits of New York, Robert Dole of Kansas, Barry Joldwater of Arizona, Winston Prouty of Vermont, Charles Percy of Illinois, Milton Young of North Dakota and Ted Stevens of Alaska, and Democrats Warren Magnuson of Washington, Alan Bible of Nevada, Thomas McIntyre of New Hampshire, and Birch Bayh of Indiana. The inclusion of Javits and Goldwater indicates what bridges and divisions Senator Jackson's letter had somehow managed to reach across.

"As soon as news of the letter appeared, other members of the Senate began volunteering additional signatures for it.

To many observers, an effort to reach for a cease-fire has long seemed to be the next logical step in Vietnam. And, although there is no doubt that a ceasefire under such guerrilla circumstances would be the most difficult kind to arrange and supervise, it has been suspected that the real reason American policy hasn't reached for a cease-fire is that it preferred to keep alive the chance of exerting continued military pressure on the enemy.

If some such intent has been inside American reluctance to try to get a cease-fire, the political situation revealed by the Jackson letter is that notable hawks such as Senators Jackson, Goldwater and Dole are apparently quite ready to have the Nixon Administration give up that last vestige of belief in any normal-kind of military victory in Viet-

The urgency is, as we have said be fore, that no deaths are so bitterly cruel as those which occur in a war which has already passed its own moments of important military decision which has become, in this case, stalemate.

No Fun Winning All The Time How could one of the world's great scientific card players also establish himself as a heavy loser in various games of chance?

The trouble is that the cool, analytical head doesn't necessarily always govern every action of its owner.

There may be, inside him, a touch of that madness, that eternal quest for the alightly improbable, which distinguishes that human weakling known as the compulsive gambler.

So it seems to have been with a cele brated teacher of bridge, whose trouble wound up in a federal court the other day. His writings on bridge are brilliant enough; his play in bridge tournaments is impeccable and always successful. From these activities, he should earn himself a handsome enough living.

But he has had a compulsion, on the side, to bet on cards, dice, and athletic games in which he is not even a participant, and the result of this betting came to light when Uncle Sam got after him for not reporting his winnings. He maintained, in defense, and Uncle Sam ended up by conceding much of it to him, that his losses had been greater than his winnings.

Investigation revealed that the great bridge expert actually lives in circumstances much more modest than his supposed legitimate earnings would indicate. As his loyal but long-suffering wife explained, "if he would only follow what he writes in his books, he would be as winning a player in anything....as he is in bridge tournaments."

What is it which gets into a talent which knows how to study out the expert thing to do, and makes it reach for the thing not very likely to succeed? Apparently, it would be boring to win all the time.

'It's Good, And It Works' We all want peace. The question is how we achieve it, and what kind of peace we

We seek a world - and a nation - in which each country, and each person, shows a decent regard for his neighbor's rights, for his privacy, for his dignity. The principle of mutual respect is threatened abroad and therefore we have to maintain strength sufficient to preserve it.

The principle of mutual respect is threatened here at home, and therefore we have to be firm in defending it. The real advocates of peace are those who respect the rights of others, not those who infringe those rights; those who seek accommodation, not confron-

One of the tragedies of life in America today is that when we speak of maintaining peace, we do have to speak not only of peace abroad, but of peace at home. We find bombs exploding not only etnam, but in our own cities We find many of those who most loudcondemn "the system" violating those sic human decencies, those patterns of mutual respect for the rights of one another, on which a free system rests. We know the country has faults, but we also know it has great and enduring strengths - and one of those strengths is the best system yet devised for cor recting our faults.

There are some who look at the faults and cry that "the system" has failed. Their problem is that they don't under stand the system. Those who condemn America call it unre ponsive; they claim that it only protects he status quo.

They couldn't be more wrong American system is the greatest ngine of change and progress the world as ever seen. It has produced more goods, more widely distributed, than ny other system, any time, any place. t has given more people more true free lom - in the sense not only of political edom, but also freedom to work at obs of their own choosing, to live lives t their own choosing - than any other evstem, any time, any place. And it provides the best means yet devised by man of directing progress not toward th ends that some arbitrary authority might choose, but toward the ends that the people themselves choose. n preserving the American system, we are defending the ideal of freedom. We also are preserving a process of change - a process that gives each person the right to be heard, and lets no one voice dominate. Ours is a system rooted in law. It is based on respect for law, and on laws that deserve respect - and also on renect for those who have the responsi bility for upholding the law. At the very heart of the American system is respect for the rights of others and we have built a body of law designed to protect those rights. .That's pre cisely what the great bulk of our laws are all about We don't brand murder and arson and rape crimes just as an excuse to put peo ple in jail. We do it to protect the right of the ordinary citizen-the noncriminal -not to be killed, not to have his house burned down, not to be assaulted. Confronted with a choice, the Amerian people would choose the policeman's runcheon over the anarchist's bomb But true peace lies neither in bomb nor n truncheon. It lies in that pattern of mutual respect and mutual forbearance that is the essence of a civilized society. That pattern is what has to be strengthened and maintained.

America hasn't survived for nearly two centuries, and become the world's richest nation, and its strongest, because we were weak or dispirited or because we had a "system" that didn't work. The other free nations of the world haven't turned to us time and again to help preserve their freedom because we held reedom lightly. When we have poured out our resources to help the poor and the disadvantaged, it hasn't been because we didn't care. As we have erected new batteries of legal safeguards for the rights of minorities, it hasn't been bceause we were racist or bent on op-

We have done all these things because the heart of America is good, and because we believe in liberty and fustice, not just for a favored few but for all. We have done them because our "system" is good - and we have been able to do them because it works.

So let's not be bowled over by those who dismiss "the system" - or dismayed by their pessimism about the future. Let's look instead at the great promise -the real promise-that the future holds in this country of ours .- VICE PRESI-DENT AGNEW ADDRESSED THE AMERICAN LEGION CONVENTION IN PORTLAND, ORE.

Thus, heard from top government officials during the height of the missile crisis here was the complaint that the U.S. had not "guaranteed" Egypt against a pre-emptive Israeli air strike against Egyptian missile sites. The Egyptians have not orgotten that pre-emptive at tacks took Israel to the Suez Canal twice in the nest 14 years — in 1956 and in 1967.

Moreover, the standstill zone on the Egyptians' side of the canal is infinitely more important to Cairo than the Israeliheld East Bank is to Jerusalem. The Egyptian side Cairo's vital defense line. sudden Israeli air strike knock ing out the anti-aircraft mis siles could once again expose the Egyptian heartland to Israeli air attacks similar t those of last winter.

Finally, his decision to install new defense missiles in the forbidden zone (with 32 miles of the canal) helped Nasser show the hawks here and in othe Arab lands that he has not gone soft on Israel.

As seen both by Egyptian and Western politicians here, that is a political imperative to Nas ser. He has already broken with the Palestine commandor He has privately pledged h support to Jordan's King Hussein in any war with the com mandos and he has expelled several hundred militant Pales tinians from Egypt. Further more, the hawkish Algerian are threatening his close relations with the revolutional government of Libya in an ef fort to outbid Nasser for the role of top banana in the Arab

But the real reason for Na sar's dangerous folly was distrust of the United States. This same unreasoning distrust explains why Soviet and Czechoslovakian amphibious equip ment is still pouring into Alexandria for transport to the canal area from Soviet ships. Whatever the Arab militants are crying for, Nassar knows that any cross-canal attack today against the Israelis would be doomed to bloody defeat. NEWARK, N.J. (AP) - Comedian Phil Foster has been charged with committing perjury before a federal grand jury investigating organized crime and official corruption in New community.

He was indicted Thursday in connection with an investigation by a Justice Department strike force into activities of Thon "Tommy Ryan" Eboli of Fort Lee.

The five-count indictment charges that Foster, a 57-yearold television and nightclub comic from Fort Lee, perjured himself in testimony to a feder al grand jury sitting in Newark on June 25, this year.

U.S. Atty. Frederick B. Lacey said Foster's testimony concerned statements he had previously made to Internal Reve nue Service agents investigating Eboli's income tax returns. Lacey said that prior to his appearance before the grand jury Foster twice told IR: agents he had paid $1,100 for furnishings purchased from Eboli in 1965. But in his testimony to the grand jury Foster denied mak ng the statements Lacev said Foster testified he had paid Eboli $3,800 for the furnishings. Lacey said the sale was a nonaxable transaction so that on the basis of Foster's grand jury testimony the IRS had to cred Eboli with receipt of $3,800 in nontaxable income rather than

Foster could receive a maxi mum sentence of five years im prisonment and a $2,000 fine on each count of the indictment Lacey's office said Foster would e arraigned in Newark Sept.

Bomber Threat Lands 747 Liner At Maine Port

BANGOR, Maine (AP) - A elephoned bomb threat to Pan American's New York offices prompted the diversion of a 747 Bangor International Airport where its 236 passengers and 16 crew members evacuated the craft within 90 seconds. Flight 101, en route from London to New York, was 70 milds from Bangor Thursday when Pan Am officials radioed word of the threat to the pilot, Capt Stewart Doe of Miami.

After the passengers scrambled from the plane, it was moved to a far end of the runway where searchers subsequently checked it over. No bomb was found.

Five of the passengers were treated for minor injuries recelved in the hasty evacuation. One, who reportedly had a weak heart, was kept at a local hospital for observation.

The remaining passengers resumed their flight aboard a re-lief 747 which left Bangor Thursday night. The other jetliner fol lowed minutes later. It had landed at Bangor at ing because of the possibility Blind Man's Dog that one of them might be can rying the bomb and decide to Stolen in Gotham trigger it.

The craft is constructed of 16 wooden ribs extending out from two donut shaped pleces of plywood, one on the top, one on he bottom. The plywood donuts have an interior diameter of 0 inches and an exterior diameter of 48 inches. Muslin is stretched over the frame and is covered with nine coats of aircraft dope. The 3½ horsepower lawnmow er engine is mounted inside the donut. The propeller, which arrived some five weeks later, is fitted to the shaft of the engine. When the engine is running, the propeller sucks air through the center hole into the area underneath the hovercraft. The air is held in by a 14-inch polyethelene curtain, hung around the edges of the disc. The vehicle floats on this cushion of

The entire project cost about $250. Some materials, including the engine, were given to Morrissette and Pugrab. The propell-er and the engine are the only manufactured parts.

... how to fly a hovercraft

The operator of the hoven craft stands on a small platform in the center over the engine holding onto an upright handle. His stance controls the direction. The craft moves in whatever direction he leans. This occurs because leaning to one direction causes the craft to tilt and the polyethelene curtain to lift on the side of the disc opposite the lean. The air which rushes from underneath the curtain provides the power for the vehicle's motion. A series of tilted metal blades, called "flow straighteners," on the craft redirect portions of the flowing air to correct the tendency of the craft to spin with the momentum of the engine. Morrissette and Pugrab have usually operated the machine on small bodies of water because of the guaranteed flat surface. Larger bodies, such as Bol-ton Lake where the craft was tested once, pose problems such as wind and rough water. A keel is used to further stabilize the craft when it is used in water.

... hovercraft flies above land too

A large flat surface is requir-ed for use on land. The machine will float uncontrollably down most inclines, even those with a seemingly alight angle. A recent test in a local department store parking lot proved fairly accessful, but a rudder on to of the craft is needed, Morrisette said. Morrissette estimated the at-

NEW DELHI (AP) - In an election that could determine the fate of a new-born alliance of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's ruling Congress party and moderate Communists, nearly eight million voters went to the polls in Kerala State today to choose a new government. The elections marked the first

Patterns of Human Behavior has been added as an elective, and progressive revision has started in the English curriculum for the '71-'72 school year. A new independent study program has been organized and applications for this are available in the Guidance Office.

Besides the quiet and open study halls, room 109 has been designated as a math study hall to be supervised by math teachers, and room 225 has been des ignated the social studies area. This will provide additional opportunity for extra help in those

The Guidance department has two additions: For the first time there will be a full time social worker, Mrs. Patricia Hughes. Secondly, there will be a computer terminal to aid all stu-dents, whether or not they are college-bound. Demerit probation rules have been reviewed, and now callfor four weeks of good behavior for removal from the probation list. The system for determining rank in class has also been revised and a more equitable system will be in effect starting with the class of '73. Finally, after 25-years, new uniforms for the band and maforettes have been ordered and, hopefully, these will be received Professionally Landscaped Lots-you will be surprised at the layout and planning on each lot. Perky evergreens, sturdy shade trees and colorful flowering shrubs highlight this development.
